Woman's World...

Devoted Specially to the Interests of our Women Readers.

Conducted by Katherine Leslie.

To-day the International Council of Women in London are to discuss the "Training of Women Journalists," when Madame Dandurand will represent Canada. Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden, the editor of the Woman's page in The New York Tribune, will discuss the "Economic Position of Women as Journalists," a subject that must be of great interest to women who are, here and across the line, cultivating this field for women more energetically each year, and upon which Mrs. Alden is well fitted, through long experience in newspaper work, to speak with authority. Touching upon the question of salaries paid to women journalists, Mrs. Alden says that their incomes run from $8 to $100 per week, but adds, "I should not be altogether frank if I were to omit stating that the number who make less than $20 per week is far greater than the number who make more. I think the disabilities under which women labor in the daily newspaper field are constitutional, and not to be remedied by legislation, or the education of public sentiment. As a reporter, I have invaded at late hours sections corresponding to the Whitechapel district in London, the Faubourg St. Antoine in Paris, the St. Pauli section of Hamburg, or the Potsdamer Viertel of Berlin, and I judge from experience that a woman of common sense, not conspicuously dressed, has no more than a man to fear from people of the slums.

"In dealing with editors, I have never found the slightest disposition to take advantage of me as a woman, though I have often had to prove by my work what would have been taken for granted in a man similarly employed. I noted that male employes of the papers I worked for were uniformly courteous and considerate to women. But in all our American newspapers news is the first thing. The aim is to present a truthful and at the same time dramatic picture of what the world has been doing for twenty-four hours. It follows that a woman entering this field must enter it as a reporter. The hours of a reporter are irregular. A reporter has no time that can be called her own. She must be out in all sorts of weather, and must meet all sorts of people."

Among the qualifications for a reportership, Mrs Alden says that a woman must see things as they happen, supplying by sane historic imagination such details as seem important only as a background, but investigating with stern conscientiousness every point that seems to be a matter of contest. She must have an accurate memory. She must be able to write in Lacedemonian style, and at the same time arrange her story so as to bring out all its dramatic value. She must be a good judge of human nature to get the most out of those to whom she goes for news. She must sink her personality and leave affronts to an editor to avenge.

Mrs. Alden says that not one woman in a hundred thousand has these qualities, and thinks that the reason women are weak in this field of work is not owing to scholastic deficiencies, but because they find themselves at a disadvantage, physically and in temperament.

A young lady who had lost the bow of her gown at the Historical Exhibition asked one of the young ladies in charge "If she had found a bow," to which the lively girl replied: "I could not restore him if I had. I make a point of keeping all the beaux I find." And the other went mournfully away.

Band night in any of the city parks is as sure to draw men, women and children in hundreds from all quarters as a light in the night attracts moths. It is a sight to see the steady stream of wheel people and pedestrians who flow down streets and byways to the park where the band is to play for the evening. All sorts and conditions troop down to hear the music in the cool night air under the stars, and it does one good to know that those who have not any superfluous money to spend in amusements have always these al fresco musical entertainments provided for them throughout the summer months. That the band in the city parks is appreciated to the full, is shown by the steady stream of beings that begins to move about 7.30, and continues till about 8.30, all making for one point.

After all there is nothing so pretty and effective for summer wear as the washable gown of lawn, linen, cambric or pique. In such a gown a girl always looks fresh and dainty, and not infrequently outshines her more elaborately attired sisters through the simple and becoming appropriateness of her gown to the season. A woman I know wears beautifully laundried linen gowns of the simplest description the whole summer through, and she always looks smart, while another clings to cambrics in dainty tones, simply trimmed with lace or embroidery, and each time they come from the wash they look prettier than the last. A white muslin, valenciennes trimmed, is worn for dressy occasions with an occasional change of the belt and sash ends, and with the addition of a lace jabot or a touch of black velvet ribbon, it makes a charming gown for any occasion. A pretty cotton gown in a heliotrope shade seen at an afternoon garden affair this week was worn by a girl who does not need to consider cost in her gowns or hats; it was made with a well cut skirt and blouse bodice, tailor fashion, and was an extremely smart as well as a simple gown, which attracted much favorable notice. Just now muslins are very low in price and valenciennes insertion and lace are largely in demand for trimming them. The white organdie, daintily tucked and profusely lace trimmed, is, however, the favorite, and is seen at all the smart functions, while delicately tinted flowered muslins run a close second. Exquisite blue piques, some with small white polka dots, are also much in evidence. A beauty is made with a pointed double tunic, and trimmed with rows of narrow white braid. The little braid trimmed Eton coat with pointed fronts opens over a delicately embroidered lawn front, and white satin collar and belt complete a very stylish summer frock. The plain blue, heliotrope, or other delicately tinted lawns are also much in favor for summer dresses, and one in heliotrope made with a full deep flounce having the top finished with ecru insertion an inch and a half wide is lovely. Two other rows of the insertion circle the skirt above the flounce. The bodice is made with a round yoke of fine white lawn in tiny tucks, and the collar is of the same with the tucks running round the neck; the full part of the bodice is trimmed with vertical rows of the insertion, and is drawn into the waist by a folded white satin belt. Double epaulettes of the muslin top the sleeves, which are tight fitting and circled about with rows of the insertion.

* * *

A novel way of trimming a sheer white muslin frock is with ruches of the muslin. The skirt is trimmed with four or five rows of the ruching, the sleeves are treated in the same fashion and a ruche tops the full bodice at the yoke line. The yoke is of openwork lace that extends to the top of the sleeves, and belt and sash ends and collar are of white satin.

* * *

There is a tendency to flat lace trimming rather than the fluffy frilled effect; for example a plain white gown is trimmed with broad lacy insertion down each side of the plain bodice, from shoulder to waist line, and this is continued down the skirt like long stole ends flatly sewed on. The effect is very rich. In other skirts the broad flat embroidery insertion forms a tunic, being put on the ample skirt in points or in a simple broad band circling the skirt.

A correspondent sends me the following receipe for "Salad Dressing," and assures me that it is delicious:

Beat an egg and mix well with 1 teaspoonful of salt, 1 teaspoonful of mustard, 1 tablespoonful sugar, ½ cup of vinegar, and a little butter. Boil all together till it becomes thick and creamy; put away to cool. When required for use add cream or olive oil till the mixture is the right consistency. This will keep for weeks, if put in a cool place.

"HUG THE MACHINE FOR ME," HE WIRED.

Thompson was said to have been assisting in the election and I understood that the man was assisting in my election and was located there.

"At Dutton Mr. Vance was the only one, and he had the supervision of Dunwich.

Something About Preston.

"At St. Thomas I never met Mr. Preston but twice, but at the club I understood that he was assisting in my election. On the night of the 11th I was at home early.

"I was not at the Dake House on the night before the election with a man named Captain Sullivan or a man who acted tu the name of Christopher Stratford or either of them. I had no association with Captain Sullivan, except that I was introduced to him. I did not know before the election that he had any connection with the election. I do not know and have no recollection that I walked on Talbot-street in St. Thomas with him, but I would not say that I did not.

Preston's Telegram.

"I received a telegram from Preston on the night of the election. I did not open it, but I heard it read. I cannot tell the contents, but that words to the effect of "Hug the machine for me" were on it. I did not know the meaning of these words. I did not hand it over to any one for interpretation.

Did Not See Duncan Bole.

"I did not see Duncan Bole, never heard of him or knew that such a man existed until the day following the election. I heard that several other outside men acted as deputy-returning officers. I was told that strangers acted. I made no enquiry as to how the strangers came to be acting deputy-returning officers. I did not go near the sheriff to find out who had been appointed. I did not go to anyone else. Squire Hunt told me the day after the election that a stranger had acted at Middlemarch. I did not think of going to the sheriff about it. I told the sheriff it was necessary to appoint resolute men."

More Money for Bribery.

A few more charges in the voluminous bill of particulars put in by the petitioner, Mr. James G. Nnnn, are of interest to the public:

Charge 118: Shortly prior to and on the said day of election, at the City of St. Thomas or at the Township of Aldborough, in the said electoral district, the said respondent, Macnish, by himself and by and through D. F. McDonald of Parry Sound, one Hopkins whose residence is unknown, Alex Smith of Toronto and John Sullivan, agents of the said respondent, and by and through other persons whose names are at present unknown to your petitioner, agents of the said respondent, did advance or pay a cause to be paid money to or to the use of Thomas C. Campbell, Thomas N. Havens, Solomon M. Dorland and J. D. Shaw, all of the Township of Aldborough, with the intent that such money or some part thereof should be expended in bribery at the said election.

Joseph Haycock Named.

Charge 122: Shortly prior to and on the said day of election at the Township of Aldborough, the said respondent Macnish, by himself and by and through Joseph Haycock of Cataraqui, agent of the said respondent, and by and through other persons whose names are at present unknown to your petitioner, agents of the said respondent, did give, lend, or agree to give or lend and offer and promise money or valuable consideration to or for James Begg of Aldborough, a voter, in order to induce the said voter to vote for respondent or to refrain from voting.

John H. Wilson, M.D., Also.

Charge 131: That the said Macnish by himself and by and through John H. Wilson, M.D., of St. Thomas, an agent of the said Macnish, did give, lend, or agree to give or lend, and offer and promise money to or for Noah Loomis of St. Thomas, a voter, to induce said voter to vote for respondent.

Stranger in the Dake House.

Charge 133: That the said Macnish, by himself and by and through John Begg and George Stanton of Southwold, and a stranger in the Dake House, agents of the said respondent, did give or agree to give money to John McMurray of Southwold, a voter, in order to induce him to vote for said respondent.

Traveling Expenses Paid.

Charge 157: Shortly prior to and on the said day of election, at the Township of Dunwich, or in the County of Essex, the said respondent Macnish by himself and by and through James Vance of the City of Toronto and Colin St. C. Leitch of Duttton, agents of the said respondent and by and through other persons whose names are at present unknown to your petitioner, agents of the said respondent, did pay the traveling and other expenses of Patrick Crowley, Frank Crowley and James Crowley, voters in the said electoral district, on going to or returning from the said Township of Dunwich to vote in said election.

Charge 160 is similar to 157, the voters' names being Henry Koehler and Charles Koehler of Duart, Kent County, their expenses alleged to have been paid. It is alleged that both men voted, although they had no right to vote.

Where Booze Was Supplied.

Charge 162: On the said day of election, at polling sub-division No. 3, Dunwich, in the said electoral district, the respondent Macnish by himself and by and through John D. McDiarmid of the Township of Dunwich, did give and cause to be given to divers persons, voters at the said election, intoxicating drink and refreshment on account of said voters being about to vote or having voted at said election.

Dr. Cascadden Named, Too.

Charge 203: On the 12th day of January, 1899, being polling day, at the Village of Dutton, the said respondent by himself and by and through Dr. Cascadden, agent of the said respondent, and by and through other persons whose names are at present unknown to your petitioner, agents of the said respondent, did give and cause to be given to James Dalgleish, laborer, a voter in the said electoral district, meat, drink and refreshment and money and ticket to enable such voter to procure refreshment, on account of such voter being about to vote or having voted at said election.

A General Charge.

Charge 231: Shortly prior to and on the said day of election, at various places, the said respondent by himself and by and through W. T. R. Preston, Alex Smith, John W. Thompson, James Vance, and J. J. Bell of Toronto, D. F. McDonald of Parry Sound, John M. McIntyre of St. Thomas, agents of the said respondent, and by and through other persons whose names are at present unknown to your petitioner, agents of the said respondent, did pay the traveling and other expenses of divers voters in said electoral district in going to or returning from the said electoral district to vote at the said election.

Alleged False Ballots.

Charge 232: The said respondent Macnish by himself and by and through John Sullivan, whose place of abode is unknown, Duncan Bole of Sault Ste. Marie, J. G. Pritchett of London, Martin J. Cahill of St. Catharines, agents of the respondent, and by and through other persons whose names are at present unknown to your petitioner, did supply false ballots or ballots fraudulently obtained, to personators and voters who were bought, and to one Cameron and other persons for such personators and purchased voters, to be used by them and deposited in the ballot boxes marked for the said respondent at said election.

There is more to come.

An Error in the Name.

Mr. Robert Pritchard of London, Ont., writes to The World that Mr. Nesbitt was in error in stating that amongst the gang that did the dirty work in West Elgin was ex-Ald. Pritchard of London. Mr. Robert Pritchard is the only "ex-Alderman Pritchard" in London. "The individual concerned in that nefarious election," says Mr. Pritchard, "was one John H. Pritchett, now, I understand, a fugitive from justice over the West Elgin election." It was an unfortunate error in the name, and The World takes this first opportunity on receipt of Mr. Robert Pritchard's letter to correct any false impression that may have gone abroad over this error. The friends of Mr. Robert Pritchard would certainly not be misled in the name, because, as Mr. Pritchard says, neither he nor the present Alderman Pritchard have so far forgotten their allegiance to the Conservative party as "to mix up with such a lot of perjured scoundrels as were shown up at the West Elgin election trial." The World thanks Mr. Pritchard for placing this paper right, and the error must have begn in the transcription of Mr. Nesbitt's statement from shorthand notes in the spelling of the name.

"A Degraded Province."

Montreal Gazette: The lengths to which they went in West Elgin, in South Ontario, in West Huron, are but the evidence of the desperate strait in which the Government for which they work finds itself to be as a result of the incidents following last year's provincial elections. Through that pernicious sympathy with election criminals, which is a grave evidence of the extent to which familiarity with corruption has weakened the public conscience, the men responsible for the frauds in West Elgin have escaped almost scot free. The candidate is humiliated and unseated; the returning officer, who put the criminals where they could do their work, is ordered to pay part of the costs of the trial. But the members of the gang are free to continue their scoundrelism, and there is not the slightest doubt that they will, at the next bye-election, be found carrying on their old practices. The perpetration of election frauds is part of their business; they are trained to it; their employers calculate on their doing it as an ordinary part of the election proceedings. They have made Ontario's record for electoral corruption the worst in Canada; one of the worst in America. They are part of the Liberal party organization, and unless the people are strong enough morally to crush both them and their masters they will make Ontario's politics as bad as New York's, under Tammany, if that stage has not already been reached.

NO FLUKE TO SAVE BECKER.

Chicago Man Must Stand Trial on a Charge of Killing and Boiling His Wife's Body.

Chicago, Ill., June 29.—The trial of August Becker, charged with having murdered and then dismembered and boiled the remains of his wife in order to leave him free to marry Ida Sutterlin, a 17-year-old girl, with whom he had become infatuated, came to a sudden end to-day, when it was found that the indictment named Mrs. Becker as Elizabeth, when it should have been Theresa. The court at once nolle prossed the indictment. The jury had been sworn in and the defence asked for a discharge of the prisoner on the ground that Becker had been placed in jeopardy and therefore he could not be tried again. The court denied the request, however, and a bench warrant was issued and Becker re-arrested. A new indictment will at once be drawn up.

Anglo-American Gathering.

The Pan-American Exposition, which has every prospect of assuming the proportions of the World's Fair and promises to make Buffalo another Chicago in 1901, undertakes a pleasant invasion of Ontario to-morrow. Mr. Herbert P. Bissell, the well-known lawyer of Buffalo, who is also an active director of the Pan-American, gives a luncheon to which Cabinet Ministers and many of the country's leading men have been invited for the purpose of meeting the Pan-American directors. It is expected that Sir James David Edgar, Hon. William Mulock, Hon. A. S. Hardy, Hon. Col. Gibson, Hon. Richard Harcourt and other leaders will be present. Mr. John G. Milburn, the President of the Exposition and other eloquent speakers will address the visitors briefly. Mr. Bissell, who has been an active supporter of the Anglo-American sentiment, has also invited Lt.-Col. Otter, the commanding officers and the divisional and brigade staffs of the camp, which his house overlooks, and between the review in the morning and the march past in the afternoon a delightful two hours will be spent under the trees at Pinehurst.

Paderewski's Wedding.

The marriage of Paderewski, the pianist, to Fraulein Helene Rosen, in Warsaw, on May 31, seems to be confirmed. Paderewski went to Warsaw in the strictest incognito, only a few of his friends knowing that he was there. The couple have gone to Lausanne, where Paderewski owns a villa. The pianist is said to be a shrewd investor of the great sums he has earned. He is a part owner of a piano factory in Paris, of a big hotel in Warsaw and of a panorama in the same city, in which the Berlin painter Von Kossak has an interest.

Their New Officers.

At the regular monthly meeting of Toronto Lodge, No. 1, U.P.B.A., the election of officers for the ensuing year took place, and the following gentlemen were elected: Master, Montford McFarland; Deputy-Master, Alex. H. Gordon; Chaplain, George C. Campbell; Recording Secretary, A. W. Spence; Financial Secretary, Hugh Spence; Treasuror, J. H. Walker; Conductor, J. Harvey Brown; Senior Master of Ceremonies, Godfrey Hambly; Junior Master of Ceremonies, Percy Hambly; Lecturer, B. H. Scott; Inside Sentinel, Chas. Lovejoy; Outside Sentinel, Peter William Drewett; Physician, Dr. E. A. T. Fisher; Trustees, James Alles, M. McFarland, J. Harvey Brown; Auditors, Alex H. Gordon, David Millar, Chas Lovejoy. The following were elected to represent this lodge at the Grand Lodge meeting in August next: David Millar, J. H. Walker, Montford McFarland, George C. Campbell and Hugh Spence.

Call to Rev. Frank Forster.

At the regular business meeting held in Hope Congregational Church last evening for the purpose of calling a pastor to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of late pastor, Rev. J. C. Madill, who has accepted a church in Manitoba, there was a large attendance. Rev. Frank G. Forster of Sumach-street Presbyterian Church was given the call. The Rev. gentleman is well and favorably known in the west end, and is becoming very popular. He is a young Irishman with the ready wit for which his countrymen are famous, a powerful speaker and one who will do a good work for the Master.

Cucumbers and melons are "forbidden fruit" to many persons so constituted that the least indulgence is followed by attacks of cholera, dysentery, griping, etc. Those persons are not aware that they can indulge to their heart's content if they have on hand a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellog's Dysentery Cordial, a medicine that will give immediate relief and is a sure cure for the worst cases. ed
