HYMN.

A little child in bulrush cradle
Came floating on the Nile's broad water:—
That child made Egypt's glory dark,
And freed his tribe from bonds and slaughter.

A little child for knowledge sought
In Israel's temple of its sages:—
That child the world's religion brought,
And crushed the temples of past ages.

'Midst worst oppressions, if remain
Young hearts, to freedom still aspiring
If, nursed in Superstition's chain,
The human mind is still inquiring:—

Then let not priest or tyrant dote
On dreams of long the world commanding:
The ark of Moses is afloat,
And Christ is in the temple standing!

[Rev. W. Fox.

THE SAVIOUR.

The tidings which that infant brings,
Are not for conquerors, or for kings.
Not for the sceptre or the brand,
For crowned head, or red right hand.
But to the contrite and the meek,
The sinful, sorrowful, and weak:
Or those who, with a hope sublime,
Are waiting for the Lord's good time.
Only for those the angels sing,
"All glory to our new born King,
And peace and good will unto men,
Hosannah to our God! Amen!"

VARIETY.

THE GUNPOWDER EXPLOSION IN NAPLES.—On the 17th December, about mid-day, the entire city was alarmed by a most awful concussion and report. It resembled the united noise of fifty cannon. The alarm created was universal, and people fled on foot and in carriages in all directions, for it was believed to be the signal of another revolution. On enquiring into the cause it was ascertained that it arose from the explosion of the powder magazine at the end of the new Mole, at the extremity of the arsenal. It is said that eighty cantari (a cantari is equal to a hundred rotolli, the rotolli being 33 oz.) were deposited there. It appears that the Sannita, a government vessel, brought up more powder yesterday from Messina, which was to have been consigned there immediately. However, on the officer putting the key into the lock of the door of the magazine the horrible explosion took place. A great part of the new fortifications in that direction have been destroyed; two government steamers have been damaged; one or two custom house vessels have disappeared; people walking in the neighborhood were thrown down by the shock or the debris, which fell like a shower at a great distance. In this way some were killed or had their limbs broken. The loss of life it is difficult to estimate at present, some putting it down at eighteen or twenty. The damage that has been done to the government works is estimated at 500,000 ducats, while an architect well acquainted with the city calculates the number of windows broken at 60,000. Every house has suffered; in many places, as in the royal palaces, entire windows being thrown in, and the ground was literally powdered with glass.

THE CHILD AND THE RATTLESNAKE.—Last Fall, a woman, residing in the vicinity of Worcester, was picking blackberries in a field near the house, having with her her only child, a bright-eyed fellow of less than a year old. The babe sat upon the ground amusing itself with grasping at clumps of yellow weed that grew within reach, and eating berries brought him, from time to time, by his mother. The latter, at length, intent upon gathering the fine fruit, passed around a rock which hid her child from her view. She was about to return to him, when hearing laughing and crowing in great glee, and thinking he must be safe so long as he was so happy, she remained a little longer where she was. Suddenly the little voice ceased, and after a moment's delay, the young mother stepped upon the rock and looked over, expecting to see her babe asleep; instead of which he was sitting perfectly motionless, lips parted, and his wide open eyes fixed with a singular expression upon some object which, at first, she was unable to discern. But who can judge of her horror, when, on closer scrutiny, she perceived, some four or five feet from her infant, a rattlesnake, with his glittering eyes fastened upon his, and nearing him by an almost imperceptible motion. The sight of her darling's peril so nearly paralized her, that, for an instant, she half believed that the dreadful fascination had extended to herself; but the certainty that, unless she was the instrument of salvation to her child, he was inevitably lost in some degree restored her power. She glanced wildly around for something that might be used as weapon, but nothing appeared, and already the venomous reptile had passed over half the space which divided him and his victim. Another moment and all would be lost. What could be done? In her hand she held a broad tin pan, and springing from the rock, quick as thought, she covered the snake with it, and stood upon it to prevent its escape. The churn was broken—the child moved, swayed to one side, and began to sob. At the same time the mother recovered her voice and screamed for aid, retaining her position till it arrived, when the cause of her terrible fright was despatched.

A CAMPAIGN INCIDENT.

An old soldier writing to the Duke of Wellington on the subject of corporal punishment in the army, mentioned the following anecdote:—

In 1814, when I joined the 87th Regiment under command of Sir Hugh Gough, there was a bugler in the corps, who had been through the Peninsular campaigns. Paddy Shannon was a favorite with all the men, and something of a hero, but all Paddy had left was the recollection of these nets—his only solace, the notice taken of him at the canteen—his only triumph, the whiskey. Need I say Paddy Shannon became a 'drinker'—or that Paddy soon made his appearance at the halberts?

The regiment was paraded, the proceedings read and Paddy tied up. The signal was given for the drummer to begin, when Paddy Shannon exclaimed:—

'Listen now, Sir Hugh. Do you mean to say you are going to flog me? Just recollect who it was that sounded the charge at Barossa, when you took the only French eagle ever taken. Wasn't it Paddy Shannon? Little I thought that day it would come to this; and the Regiment so proud of that same eagle on their colors?'

'Take him down,' said Sir Hugh, and Paddy escaped unpunished. A very short time, however, elapsed before Paddy again found himself in a similar circumstance.

'Go on,' said the Colonel.

'Don't be in a hurry,' ejaculated Paddy, 'I have a few words to say, Sir Hugh.'

'The eagle won't save you this time, sir.'

'Is it the eagle indeed? Then I was not going to say anything about that same, though you are, and ought to be proud of it. But I was just going to ask if it wasn't Paddy Shannon who, when the breach of Tarifa was stormed by 22,000 French and only the 87th to defend it, if it wasn't Paddy Shannon who struck up "Garryowen to glory boys," and you, Sir Hugh, have got the same two towers and the breach between them upon your coat of arms in testimony thereof.'

'Take him down,' said the Colonel, and Paddy was again unscathed. He, however, had a long list of services to get through, and great deal of whiskey, and ere two months he was again tied up, and the sentence read, and an assurance from Sir Hugh Gough that nothing again should make him relent. Paddy tried the eagle—it was of no use. He applied to Sir Hugh's pride and the breach of Tarifa without any avail.

'And is it me,' he at last broke out 'that you are going to flog? I ask you, Sir Hugh Gough, before the whole regiment, who know it well, if it wasn't Paddy Shannon who picked up the French Field Marshall's staff at the battle of Vittoria, that the Duke of Wellington sent to the Prince Regent, and for which he got the letter that will be long remembered, and that made him a Field Marshall into the bargain? The Prince Regent said, "you have sent me the staff of a Field Marshall of France, I return you that of a Field Marshall of England." Wasn't it Paddy Shannon that took it? Paddy Shannon, who never got rap, or recompense, or ribbon, or star, or coat of arms, or mark of distinction, except the flogging you are going to give him.'

'Take him down,' said Sir Hugh, and Paddy again escaped punishment.

We have obtained the victory.

The Subscriber having been appointed Agent to the above Company for New-Brunswick, begs to announce that he is prepared to receive Proposals for FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE. The large Capital of the Company, and the number and influence of its Proprietors, enable it to rank with the most eligible Offices, either in America or Europe, with respect to the advantages offered to the Public.

FIRE BRANCH.

Persons Assured by this Company are not subject to any covenants or calls to make good losses which may happen to themselves or other, nor do they depend on any uncertain fund or contribution, the Capital Stock of this Company being an unquestionable security to the Assured in case of Loss or Damage by Fire.

LIFE BRANCH.

In addition to the more customary methods of Insurance, the Company likewise Assures Lives on any of the following contingencies:—

For the terms of One Year, Seven Years, or any other definite period.

For the whole continuance of Life.—The Premiums to cease, after a limited number of Annual Payments.

For Two Joint Lives.—The sum assured to be paid on the death of either.

On the longest of Two or Three Lives.—The sum assured to be payable at the death of the last survivor; or,

The Survivorship.—To secure the payment or the sum assured, if a life A die before another life B.

For a sum to be payable at age 60, or at death.

Premiums on Credit.—A portion of the Premiums on Credit. Assurances may be effected in various ways, not enumerated, to meet the convenience of parties.

The important advantages afforded by the Company in the Life Branch will include the following, viz:—

The Guarantee of an ample Capital, and Exemption of the Assured from liability of Partnership.

Moderate Premiums.

Large Participation of Profits by the Assured amounting to Two-thirds of its net amount, which may be applied at the option of the party effecting the Assurance:—1st. By the immediate payment of the sum so apportioned.—2nd. By an equivalent increase of the sum assured.

Small Charge for Management.—The expenses of the Office being borne in due proportion by the two Branches.

Prompt Settlement of Claims.

Policies lapsed by non-payment of the Premium may be renewed within three months, by paying the premium, with a fine of 10s per cent., on the production of evidence to the satisfaction of the Directors of the good health of the life assured.

The Company will always be prepared to Purchase the Policies of this Office at their equitable value or will grant a New Policy in lieu thereof without any further payment of Premium, for a sum to be agreed on.

Extra Premiums, suitable to special circumstances, will be accepted to enable a party possessing a Policy on the life of another to guard against the possibility of its being vitiated by the life departing beyond limits, or by any other cause.

Thirty Days are allowed for the Payment of Premiums after the day on which they respectively

Additional Advantages offered to Lives Assured with this Company at St. John, N. B.

I.—RESIDENCE.—Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of extra Premium, to reside in any part of Europe, or in any place in North America to the north of 38 degrees of North Latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississippi River.

II. VOYAGES.—They will also, if not seafaring by profession, be allowed, without any extra charge—

To cross and re-cross the Atlantic Ocean, in steamers or first class sailing-vessels;

To pass from any part of Europe to any other or from any part of North America to another within the limits above specified; also,

To pass to and from, but not to reside in any place which shall not be further south than 35 degrees of North Latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississippi River.
