A Common Cold

Is often the beginning of serious affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes, and Lungs. Therefore, the importance of early and effective treatment cannot be overestimated. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral may always be relied upon for the speedy cure of a Cold or Cough.

Last January I was attacked with a severe Cold, which, by neglect and frequent exposure, became worse, finally settling on my lungs. A terrible cough soon followed, accompanied by pains in the chest, from which I suffered intensely. After trying various remedies, without obtaining relief, I commenced taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was Speedily Cured.

I am satisfied that this remedy saved my life.—Jno. Webster, Pawtucket, R. I.

I contracted a severe cold, which suddenly developed into Pneumonia, presenting dangerous and obstinate symptoms. My physician at once ordered the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. His instructions were followed, and the result was a rapid and permanent cure.—H. E. Simpson, Rogers Prairie, Texas.

Two years ago I suffered from a severe Cold which settled on my Lungs. I consulted various physicians, and took the medicines they prescribed, but received only temporary relief. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking two bottles of this medicine I was cured. Since then I have given the Pectoral to my children, and consider it for Colds, Coughs, and all Throat and Lung diseases, ever used in my family.—Robert Vanderpool, Meadville, Pa.

Some time ago I took a slight Cold, which, being neglected, grew worse, and settled on my lungs. I had a hacking cough, and was very weak. Those who knew me best considered my life to be in great danger. I continued to suffer until I commenced using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Less than one bottle of this valuable medicine cured me, and I feel that I owe the preservation of my life to its curative powers.—Mrs. Ann Lockwood, Akron, New York.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is considered, here, the one great remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs, and is more in demand than any other medicine of its class.—J. F. Roberts, Magnolia, Ark.

The Heiress.

Continued.

"I hope so," murmurs that delinquent cheerfully. "He heartily deserves it. You may go and occupy yourself elsewhere, Jane: Mr. Luttrell and I will make this pudding. Now go on Mr. Luttrell; don't be shirking your duty. It is either do or die."

"I thinks it is odds on the dying," says he.

Silence for at least three minutes—in this case a long long time.

"I can't find anything in them," ventures he, at last, in a slightly dejected, one; 'unless they are so horrid sticky."

"Nothing in them! Nonsense! you don't know how to go about it. Look; I'll show you. Open them with your first finger and thumb—so; and now do you see them?" triumphantly producing a round brown article on the tip of her finger.

"Where?" asks Luttrell, bending too. Their heads were together. The discreet Jane has retired into her pantry. "It is the real thing. Can't you see it?"

"Scarcely. It is very small, isn't it?"

"Well, it is small," Miss Massereene confesses, with reluctance; "it is certainly the smallest I ever saw. Still——"

By this time they are looking, not at the seed of the raisin, but into each other's eyes, and again there is an eloquent pause.

"May I examine it a little closer?" Luttrell asks, as though athirst for information, possessing himself quietly of the hand, raisin-stone, flour and all, and bringing it suspiciously near to his lips. 'Does it—would it—I mean does flour come off things easily?"

"I don't know," returns Molly, with an innocent gravity that puts him to shame. Off some things it makes readily enough; but mind you, I can't say for certain, as I have had no experience; but I don't think——"

"Yes?" seeing her hesitate.

"Well, I don't think," emphasizing each word with a solemn nod," it would come off your moustache in a hurry."

"I'll risk it anyhow," says Luttrell, stooping suddenly to impress a fervent kiss upon the little powdered fingers he is holding.

"Oh! how wrong, how extremely wrong of you!" exclaims Miss Massereene, as successfully shocked as though the thought that he might be tempted to such a deed has never occurred to her. Yet, true to her nature, she makes no faintest pretence at withdrawing her hand until a full minute has elapsed. Then, unable longer to restrain herself, she bursts into a merry laligh—a laugh all sweetest, clearest music.

"If you could only see how funny you look," cries she. "You are fair with a vengeance now. Ah! do go and see for yourself." Giving him a gentle push toward an ancient glass that hangs disconsolately near the clock, and thereby leaving another betraying mark upon the shoulder of his coat.

Luttrell, having duly admired himself, and given it as his opinion that though flour on the arms may be effective, flour on the face is not, has barely time to wipe his moustache free of it, when Mrs. Massereene enters.

"You here," exclaims she, staring at Tedcastle, "of all places in the world! I owe I am amazed. Oh, if your brother officers could only see you now, and your coat all over flour! I hardly need inquire if this is Molly's doings. Poor boy!" with a laugh. "It is a shame Molly, you are never happy unless you are tormenting some one."

"But I always make it up to them afterwards: don't I now, Letty?" murmured Molly, sweetly, speaking to Letty, but directing a side-glance at Luttrell from under her long dark lashes this side glance a sinnet a promise. "Well so you have come at last, Letty. And how did you enjoy your 'nice long happy day, in the country,' as the children say?"

"Very much indeed—far more than I expected. The Mitchells were there which added a little to our liveliness."

"And my poor old mummy, was he there? And is he still holding together?"

"Lord Rossmere? He is indeed, and was asking most tenderly for you. I never saw him look so well."

"Oh! it grows absurd," says Molly, in disgust. How much longer does he intend keeping up the farce? He must fall to pieces soon."

"He hasn't a notion of it," says Letitia, warming to her description; "he has taken a new lease of life. He looked only too well—positively ten years younger. I think my belt he was 'done up.' I could see his coat was padded; and he has adorned his head with a very sleek brown wig."

"Jane," says Molly, weakly "be so good as to stand close behind me. I feel as if I were going to faint directly."

"Law Miss!" says Jane giving way to her usual expletive. She is a clean and worthy soul where pots and pans are concerned, but apart from them can hardly be termed eloquent.

"You are busy, Jane," says Mr. Luttrell obligingly, "and I am not. (I see you are winding up that long-suffering puddinn.) Let me take a little trouble off your hands. I will stand close behind Miss Massereene."

"He had quite a color, too," goes on Letitia, mysteriously, a very extraordinary color. Not that of an old man nor yet of a young one, and I am utterly certain it was paint. It was a vivid, uncompromising red; so that I think the poor old thing's valet must have overdone his work, for fun. Wasn't it cruel?"

"Are you ready, Jane?" murmers Molly with increasing weakness.

"Quite ready, miss," returns Luttrell, with hopeful promptness.

"I asked John on the way home what he thought," goes on Letitia, with an evident interest in her tale, "and he quite agrees with me that it was rouge, or at all events something artificial."

"One more word, Letitia," faintly—"a last one. Has he had that sole remaining tooth in the front of his mouth made steady?"

"No," cries Mrs. Massereene, triumphantly, "he has not. Do you too remember that awful tooth? It is literally the only thing left undone, and I can't imagine why. It still waggles uncomfortably when he talks, and his upper lip has the same old trick of catching on it and refusing to come down again until compelled. Sir John was there, and took me in to luncheon; and as I sat just opposite Lord Rossmere I could see distinctly. I particularly noticed that."

"You have saved me," cries Molly, briskly. "Had your answer been other than it was, I would not have hesitated for a moment; I would have gone off into a deathlike swoon. Thank you, Jane," with a backward nod at Luttrell, whom she has refused to recognize; "I need not detain you any longer."

"Mrs. Massereene, I shall never forgive you," says Luttrell.

"And is this the way you entertain your guests, Molly" asks Letitia. "Have you spent your day in the kitchen?"

"The society of the 'upper ten' is not good for you, Letitia," says Molly, severely. "There is a faint flavor of would be sarcasm about you, and it doesn't suit you in the least: your lips have not the correct curve. No my dear: although unnoticed by the nobility of our land, we too, have had our 'nice long, happy day in the country.' Haven't we, Mr. Luttrell?"

"Do you think he would dare say 'No' with your eyes upon him?" says Letitia laughing. "By and by I shall hear the truth. Come with me"—to Tedcastle—"and have a glass of sherry before your dinner, I am sure you must want it, after all you have gone through."

CHAPTER V.

It is four o'clock and a hush, a great stillness, born of oppressive heat, is over all the land. Again the sun is smiting the offending earth; the flowers nod drowsily or lie half dead of languor, their gay leaves touching the ground.

"The sky was blue as the summer sea,

The depths were cloudless overhead;

Their air was calm as it could be;

There was no sight nor sound of dread," quotes Luttrell, dreamily, as he strays idly along the garden-path, through sonted shrubs and all the many-hued children of light and dew. His revery is lengthened, yet not diffuse. One little word expels it all. It seems to him that it was ever upon the tips of his lips, the wind whistles it as it rushes faintly past, the innumerable voices of the summer cry carelessly for "Molly."

"Mr Luttrell, Mr Luttrell," cries some one, "look up." And he does look up.

Above him, on the balcony stands Molly, "a thing of beauty," fairer than any flower that grows beneath. Her eyes like twin stars, are gleaming, deepening; her happy lids are parted; her hair, drawn loosely back, shines like threads of living gold. Every feature is awake and full of life, every movement of her sweet body, clad in its white gown, proclaims a very joyousness of living.

HERE AND THERE.

Some Facts and a Few Other Good Things.

A great baseball mascot—total abstinence.

AN OPEN LETTER.—Messrs. T. Milburn & Co., Nov. 25th, 1886. I wish I had used B. B. B. sooner, which would have saved me years of suffering with eryspilas, from which I could get no relief until I tried B. B. B., which soon cleared away the itching, burning rash that had so long distressed me. Mrs. Edward Romkey, Eastern Passage, Halifax, N. S.

After all there is no finer couplet than the preacher.

PROMPT RESULTS.—"I was very sick with bowel complaint. Two physicians did me no good. I tried other medicines but all was no use until I tried Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry. The next day I was like a different man." Geo. H. Peacock, of Stroud, Ont.

It is the skirt of a lady's ball dress that costs; the corsage doesn't come high.

FRANKNESS.—"Last summer I was entirely laid up with liver complaint, a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters. I did so, and four bottles cured me. I cannot praise this remedy too much." John H. Rivers, Orr Lake, Ont.

A warm bath will often be found a valuable measure in case of sleeplessness.

KEEP YOUR HOUSE GUARDED.—Keep your house guarded against sudden attacks of colic, cramps, diarrhœa, dysentery and cholera infantum. They are liable to come when least expected. The safest, best and most reliable remedy is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

The total debt of Mexico is $150,000,000. Mexico must have started a two-horse newspaper in a one-horse town.

BROKEN DOWN.—"After suffering with dyspepsia, kidney disease, loss of appetite and pain in the head until discouraged, I heard of B. B. B., took two bottles and am happy to say I feel as well as ever." Mrs. Rufus E. Merry, New Albany, N. S.

Whenever a man says, "Now, I'n not a bit superstitious," prepare yourself for a hair raising ghost story on a remarkable dream.

AN OLD FAVORITE.—An old favorite, that has been popular with the people for nearly 30 years, is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for all varieties of summer complaints of children and adults. It seldom or ever fails to cure cholera morbus, diarrhœa and dysentery.

It takes, says the New Orleans Picayune, the highest tribunal to declare a law unconstitutional. One policeman and one barkeeper can declare it illegislative.

A NASAL INJECTOR free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Sold by John M. Wiley.

An American physician gives it as his opinion, founded on experience, that a sober person in the witness-box testifying to events that had occurred when he was intoxicated was less reliable than an intoxicated person testifying to events that had occurred when he was sober.

"HACKMETACK," a lasting and fragrant perfume. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by John M. Wiley.

An American paper asserts that in the State of Georgia "there is 'doafing' enough to bring on a famine in a section of the country less favored by nature"; and one may well believe the statement, if it be true that this state contains "one hundred thousand side lodged idiers."

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY—a positive cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria and Canker Mouth. Sold by John M. Wiley.

It almost seems as though good serviceable paper can be made from every kind of vegetable fibre. Grasses and woods of all sorts, and even peat, have been brought into requisition, while one of the latest introductions is crushed bamboo, which has been used with very satisfactory results.

SHILOH'S VITALIZER is what you need for Constipation, Loss of Appetite, Dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle. Sold by John M. Wiley.

To sharpen razors, says the Electrical Review, place in water to which has been added one-twentieth of its weight of hydrochloric acid, remove ofter one-half hour, wipe and rub upon hone. The acid acts like a whetstone and corrodes the whole surface uniformly. The process never injures good blades, and often improves bad ones.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS, made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. Sold by John M. Wiley.

To purify water in glass vessels and aquariums it is recommended to add to every 100 grammes of water four drops of a solution of one gramme of salicylic acid in 300 grammes of water. The Norsk Fiskeritidende, published in Bergen, Norway, says that thereby the water may be kept fresh for three months without being renewed.

ARE YOU MADE miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow Skin? Shiloh's Vitalizer is a positive cure. Sold by John M. Wiley.

The measles have done some good, as it brought about a marriage between a young couple lately. She has in the past been very cruel to him, playing fast and loose till he was almost crazy. It drove him into another place, and almost to suicide; but when he had the measles recently it opened her eyes to the real state of her feelings and now all is lovely.

We often read that a man has left a fortune to his wife 'during life or widowhood.' This, however, is a gauge at which the other sex can now play, and a wealthy lady who recently died at New York has set an example to others who are similarly circumstanced by bequeathing her possessions to trustees for the use of her husband "so long as he shall remain unmarried."

CROUP, WHOOPING COUGH and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. Sold by John M. Wiley.

Jefferson Davis, at a camp meeting on the gulf coast Sunday, after a rousing temperence speech by Mrs. Sarah T. Chapin, said:—"I endorse every word you have uttered and am heartily in sympathy with your great cause." He left for home soon after the silver badge of the W. C. T. U. which Mrs. Chapin had pinned to his breast. His reception as usual was flattering and enthusiastic.

SHILOH'S CURE will immediately relieve Croup, Whooping Cough, and Bronchitis. Sold by John M. Wiley.

In treating a negro in Leipsic for an ulcerous affection it was found necessary to replace portions of the skin with pieces taken from one or two white persons. These latter pieces gradually grew darker in color, and finally as black as the patient's own skin. This singular fact led to an experiment being made of transposing portions of black skin on a white patient, and it was found that after a few weeks these began to grow pale. In less than fourteen weeks they had, in fact, grown so white as not to be distinguishable from the patient's natural skin.

The remedy which most successfully combats malarial disorders, is Ayer's Ague Cure. It is a purely vegetable compound, and contains neither quinine nor any other deleterious ingredient. Warranted to cure chills and fever.

The British Museum is a rather hopeless subject of complete study, in the opinion of Oliver Wendell Holmes. Take lodgings next-door to it, he says—in a garret, if you cannot afford anything better—and pass all your days at the museum during the whole period of your natural life. At three score and ten you will have some conception of the contents, significance and value of this great British institution, which is as nearly as any one spot the nood vital of human civilization, a stab at which by the dagger of anarchy would fitly begin the reign of chaos.

The tonic and alterative properties of Ayer's Sarsaparilla are too well known to require the specious aid of any exaggerated or fictitious certificate. Witnesses of the marvelous cures effected by this preparation are to-day living in every city and hamlet of the land.

Meissonier, as has already been announced, is engaged in producing in water-colors his famous picture which formed part of the A. T. Stewart collection in New York. Although he has his rough sketches and photos, he is making his studies all over again. A few days ago he was seventy-five years old. A friend going to Poissy to congratulate him found him in the middle of a cornfield at noon, sketching. "I purchased this cornfield yesterday from one of my neighbors," said Meissonier. I petitioned the Minister of War to let me have the cuirassier as a model. This morning he sent me a detachment. I made them ride through the corn and trample it down. I have the effect now that I wanted." The picture is already sold to an English nobleman.

Why will you suffer when 25c. will buy a bottle of West's Pain King, and one dose will cure the worst case of colic or cramps and a few doses will cure summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhœa or flux. All druggists.

Miss Heathern, of Maidstone Eng., is called the Fair Maid of Kent. She is 103 years old and has broken, it is said, more military hearts than any maid in merry England.

Dr. Tanner fasted forty days and lived. It would not be safe at this season of the year to go a single day without a supply of West's Pain King in the house. Ready at a moment's notice and costs but 25c. All druggists.

Mrs. Annie Cummings, of San Francisco, once the champion roller skater of the country, now enjoys the distinction of being the only female employee of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company.

West's Pain King is a purely vegetable compound for the certain cure of chills, colds, flux, dysentery, diarrhœa, summer complaint, colic, cholera morbus, cholera and cholera infantum. 25c. All druggists.

Mrs. Hemm, of the Galatea, takes a stand every evening at Bar Harbor. Mrs. Henn comes ashore about six o'clock clad in a dark blue sailor's suit and a Tam-o'-Shanter cap and armed with a stout cane, and thus equipped seems ready to climb mountains. Her costume is undoubtedly comfortable and useful, but it is scarcely attractive.

Cholera will visit us this summer. Be prepared by securing a supply of West's Pain King, to be within reach. Disinfect your premises, as disinfectant and West's Pain King will carry you safely through. Only 25c. All druggists.

The chief fault with American hospitality, says a well-known writer, is its lavishness. The most enjoyable dinner should not exceed five courses, or six in the season for oysters. This menu should consist of soup, fish, a roast, a salad, and a dessert. Of course, when oysters are served they precede the soup. The average American dinner, given as a form of entertainment, consists of 15 courses. The guests feel gorged without satisfaction when they arise from the table.

Thousands of lives saved annually by the use of West's Pain King, the household remedy for chills, colds, flux, summer complaint, dysentery, colic and cholera. Only 25c. All druggists.

West's Pain King excels all other remedies in promptly curing dysentery, diarrhœa, flux, colic, cholera, cholera morbus and all diseases of the stomach and bowels. Price only 25c. All druggists.

The most admired bathing dress that has appeared at Long Branch this year was brought out by the pretty figure of a Philadelphia girl. It was of cream white boating flannel, scalloped out on the bottom in the shape of grape leaves, above which were bunches of grapes, tendrils and stems in embroidery. The leaves were shaded green, the grapes were purple, and the skeleton leaves were veined with threads. The stockings were cream white, with ankles of shaded violet, dark at the foot and getting paler as they went up. A straw hat had grape leaves and grapes twined around it. She had given to the artificial leaves and fruit three coats of copal varnish, and could go into the water all summer without shedding the dyes.

It is of the greatest importance that all bowel and stomach complaints should be attended to at once, especially at this season of the year. West's Pain King is prompt, reliable and certain never to fail. Only 25c. All druggists.

West's Pain King acts promptly, cures quickly. Never fails to cure bowel complaint, colic, cholera morbus, cholera. Costs but 25c., and is always ready. Enquire regarding its merits of any druggist.

Sara Bernhardt has little that is healthy in her passion for horrible things. While in San Francisco she made the rounds of the lowest holes of the Chinese quarter, accompanied by a detective. "It is a place for bravos with long daggers!" she exclaimed delightedly as they wound through the dark alleyways. As they groped their way among the bunks of the opium eaters, whose faces shone white and ghastly through the sickening smoke, she cried, "C'est magnifique!" and peered closely into the livid, hideous faces. She was looking with the artist's eye, and the woman had no part or lot in the ghastly pleasure. Later they came to a large restaurant near the theatre. She ran lightly across the floor and throwing herself on a gorgeous divan assumed the exact pose and appearance of the wretches she had lately seen in their living death.

All leading druggists will gladly inform anyone enquiring as to the wonderful merits of West's Pain King. The standard remedy for flux, dysentery, summer complaint, cholera morbus, cholera, colic, etc. 25c.

Fifty Millions Lost Annually.

Facts in possession of the government show that the loss of farm animals from contagious diseases exceeds fifty million dollars annually and that this enormous loss falls almost wholly upon farmers and poultry raisers. The loss from chicken cholera alone being almost beyond belief. Cases are mentioned where whole townships have been swept by chicken cholera and tens of thousands of fowl lost at one outbreak. In the case of pleuro-pneumonia and hog cholera, no absolute remedy has as yet been discovered, but in the cases of chickens, cholera and all diseases of chickens an unfailing remedy has been discovered. We refer to Sheridan's Condition Powder. This powder was a marvellous discovery. It will not only prevent and cure all diseases of poultry but there is nothing on earth that will make hens lay like it. If you desire to learn how to use this powder to prevent and cure chicken cholera, roup, gapes and all other diseases of chickens; how to detect symptoms of disease, and how to care for sick chickens; how to clean poultry houses and runs, and how to save your young chickens and turkeys, then send at once to I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House St., Boston, for a copy of the Poultry Raisers Guide, price 25 cents.

This work presents a matter of very great importance to everybody, but especially to women, children and invalids. for there is probably no way by which a small but constant cash income can be secured with so little effort as by keeping and caring for hens. This book will pay for itself twenty times over the first year.—Farm and Home.

DATELLE, Pa., June 17, 1887.

I. S. JOHNSON & Co.:

Enclosed find 25 cents. Send me another package of Sheridan's Powder; I never saw anything like it. I have 98 chicks; only lost two this spring, but my next neighbor has lost 32 out of 40. Before using Sheridan's Powder I lost more than half my chicks every year. My hens began to lay in their small coops when their chicks were but three weeks old.

"Cheap Drugs are the dearest things on Earth." MALTOPEPSYN —FOR— Dyspepsia, Indigestion, and kindred diseases, is unquestionably THE BEST REMEDY! Maltopepsyn is endorsed by all the leading physicians and prominent druggists throughout the Dominion of Canada, and we understand it has a large sale in England and the United States.

This is not a quack cure-all, but a reliable remedy for the cure of specific diseases, having its exact formula printed on each bottle label thereby enabling the purchaser to know just what he is taking.

We recommend Maltopepsyn to every sufferer from Dyspepsia or Indigestion, and know that a trial will demonstrate its value.
