he with this country. It is difficult to predict what will be the result. It has been imagined by some persons that President Polk has already a good understanding with the new Mexican leader. This we conceive to be highly improbable. That the Usurper may himself perceive, that the country is in no condition to contend with the power of the United States, and that he may consequently be anxious to bring the war to a speedy close is a supposable case; yet it is more doubtful whether he will consider it so compatible with the desire which he must have of consolidating his power, to propose an immediate peace, as it will be to place himself at the head of the army, and try the chances of war.

In one respect the probability of a speedy and solid peace is greatly strengthened by the improved prospect of a stable government in Mexico. Should the Mexican republic fall in pieces, an event which has lately seemed not improbable, it is difficult to see who would be able to guarantee to us a peace, even if we were powerful enough to dictate the term of it.

The report from Mexico of the surrender of Monterey and California to the American naval force in the Pacific, is highly probable, although it is related without any particulars. It is an event which for some time past there has been reason to anticipate. The American Squadron there had been loudly complained of, for its inactivity. It had been loudly demanded, that what Com. Jones did in time of peace, without orders, Com. Sloat should do, in the time of war, when specially ordered, and at the same time provided with a far superior force. It is not supposable that the Governor of California was in any condition to resist an attack from our Squadron in the Pacific.—Boston Daily Advertiser.
