Province Has Gone Ahead in Education

Interesting Report Submitted by Dr. W. S. Carter --Lure of the West Still Robbing New Brunswick of Many of Its Best Teachers, but Conditions are Steadily Improving-Some Statistics

The report of the Chief Superintendent of Education has been submitted to the legislature. In his report Dr. Carter says there has been another increase in the school attendance during 1910.

The total number of pupils attending the schools was 68,154. All the increases have taken place in rural schools as those of cities and incorporated towns with a few exceptions, all show decreases, a circumstance that is not explained. A tabulated statement is presented as follows:

The total number of districts for the Province is 1,535. Each of the cities and incorporated towns constitutes a single school district. 107 districts have graded schools of two or more departments. About 45 per cent. of all pupils enrolled in the public schools of the province belong to the graded schools, that is schools having two or more teachers each in charge of a separate department. Schools in charge of one teacher are classed as ungraded schools.

Money Spent For Education.

The total expenditure for education in New Brunswick which does not include the contributions to the schools for the blind and the dumb, is given as follows:

The special sum from the county fund apportioned to poor districts under the provisions of section 44 of the schools act was $5,198.75

Teachers Still in Demand.

The chief superintendent makes several important statements and suggestions in his report. Concerning teachers he says:

Notwithstanding the fact that last year's class at normal school was one of the largest in its history, the supply of teachers is not yet equal to the demand, especially during the winter term. I am confident that we would make a considerably better showing in school attendance if teachers could be obtained with facility when required. This applies more especially to the poorer and more remote districts. I regret to note that the trustees of the abler districts take advantage of this scarcity of teachers in some cases, either by delaying to secure a teacher of a higher class until too late in order to obtain a cheaper third class teacher, thus depriving some poorer and remote district of her services, or by closing their schools for the term altogether on the plea that they could not get a teacher.

The regulation regarding the employment of third class teachers in districts with a valuation of more than $15,000 is still evaded in some cases by both teachers and trustees on the plea of ignorance. Surely even third class teachers should be expected to have a better knowledge of the school law.

Many Good Teachers Going West.

"The drain upon our supply of teachers to the west has been noted by some of the inspectors and was referred to in my last report. This depletion still continues to an even greater extent than heretofore. The male teachers are particularly susceptible to this lure and out of a class of more than 50 teachers receiving military training here last summer, more than one-half are now in the west. I am in receipt of daily applications from the educational authorities there to report upon the standing and class of license of some of our teachers. It is the best and most ambitious of our teachers, those who hold the highest classes of licenses that are in demand.

"In view of this migration on the part of our best teachers and the cost and injury to the province thereby, a regulation is under consideration requiring those entering normal school to give bonds not to teach outside the province for three years, failing to comply with which, a certain sum shall be forfeited.

The Normal School.

The principal of the Normal school in his report for the year says: The total enrolment of students has been greater than during the previous year, there being 366 enrolled in the regular classes, as compared with 345 in the year before. Of this number, there were 64 young men in attendance, which is the largest number of young men yet attending the school in one year. In September, 1909, there were received into the different classes 299 students, and in January, 1910, sixty-seven were added to the enrolment. In the French department the first term sixteen were in attendance, and during the second term fifteen students were enrolled. The enrolment in the Manual Training Department is not included in these figures, nor those students who had returned for professional classification.

The counties of the province were represented as follows:

Albert..	14
Carleton..	32
Charlotte	35
Gloucester..	18
Kent..	16
Kings..	43
Madawaska..	11
Northumberland..	37
Queens..	20
Restigouche..	8
St. John..	17
Sunbury..	14
Victoria..	5
Westmorland..	36
York..	60
	366

It has long been the custom to give the number of students representing the different religious denominations.

Baptists..	111
Presbyterians..	69
Methodists..	41
Roman Catholics..	92
Anglicans..	48
Other denominations	5

For the final examinations for licenses issued by the Board of Education there were presented:

For Class I..	114
For Class II..	174
For Class III..	70

The students in the French department are included in the list of candidates for Class III.

Longer High School Course.

Respecting a four years' course for high schools, Dr. Carter says:

"In view of the fact that this province stands almost alone in having a three years' high school course, and that many demands in addition to its present provisions are constantly being made, increased requirements by many colleges, in law, medicine, longer holidays, less home work, shorter school hours agricultural and manual instruction, commercial and technical instruction and several others. I do not see that we can avoid much longer a four years' high school course. I would relegate the teaching of Latin and algebra to the high school and substitute for them in Grades VII and VIII agriculture, more English and commercial subjects. I strongly favor advanced commercial courses to parallel the classical courses in the high schools of St. John, Moncton and Fredericton. This change would not necessarily imply additional expense. I also favor, at first in each county, in connection with some consolidated, superior or high school, rurally or semi-rurally located, a small rented farm, with a skilled man in charge, and upon which the pupils could work and receive instruction. The farm should raise by the most approved methods of agriculture, such crops as are best adapted to successful growth in that neighborhood, and should be expected to pay expenses. After a period of three or four years in one locality, the farm should be "moved on." Such agricultural teaching would not only be the most effective for boys and girls, but would be an object lesson to the whole community.

For the past four years the number of students in attendance has been respectively 377, 341, 345 and 366. The average of these four years is at least greater by forty than in any four preceding years. The enrolment in September, 1910, is 319, the largest at the opening of any year in the history of the school. The number of candidates annually passing the Normal School preliminary examinations for the different classes has also been steadily increasing. There is, therefore, no likelihood of the attendance decreasing in the future. The accommodation, however, as far as the school building is concerned is that of thirty years ago when less than half the number of students were enrolled, and it is now entirely inadequate and insufficient to enable the staff of the Normal School to carry on the work as they would like to and as it should be carried on. There is no proper accommodation for our Manual Training Department. There is no laboratory. There is not a room in which the physical drill can be taught. The best that can be done is to permit the drill to be taught in the halls and corridors where there can be no proper ventilation, and of course this is very inconvenient for the teaching staff and those students who are not, at the time, taking the drill. There is no gymnasium. In fact there are but four rooms and an Assembly Hall. Under these circumstances the erection of a building to accommodate the Model School and the Manual Training Department, and in addition a room which would serve as a drill hall and a gymnasium seems necessary and essential to the welfare of the Normal School.

KILLED WOMAN WHO REFUSED

QUEEN HELENE, of Italy, Prostrated by the shock of the tragedy in High Life in Rome.

Rome, March 3.—Lieut. Baron Paterno, the youthful cavalry officer who shot himself after he had stabbed to death the Princess Giulia Trigonadi Santelia, one of the beauties of Queen Helene's court, yesterday, is improving today and probably will be restored to answer for his crime.

It was ascertained today that the immediate cause of the murder was the refusal of the Princess to give the baron $4,000 with which to pay his debts. This sordid development has intensified the popular distress over the whole miserable affair. Everywhere deep sympathy is expressed for Queen Helene, who it is known, had made every effort to bring to an end the unconventional alliance, and reunite the princess with her husband, Prince Trigonadi Santelia.

The two daughters of the princess, aged seven and fourteen years, are being shielded from knowledge of the cruel truth. Paterno is not without friends at this time. These point out that he was beside himself with infatuation and being only 24 years of age, was eleven years the junior of the woman whose beauty might have turned the head of an older and wiser man. He saw the princess frequently at court functions when she was at her best and no one denies that she encouraged his attentions.

The prince, who learned of the situation through attempted blackmail on the part, it is said, of one of Paterno's creditors, who held a check made by the princess, had instituted proceedings for a separation, but these were abruptly ended yesterday when the failure of the princess to appear was explained. Both the prince and princess were members of the court.

Vital Statistics.

Reports to Registrar Jones for the week ended Saturday, showed 4 marriages and 7 births, 4 males and 3 females. Twenty-two burial permits were issued this week by the board of health.
