the party should persue. The decision was fairly unanimous, but there were some members, of course, who expressed doubt as to the wisdom of opposing an agreement which they considered fair. These members were mostly from the west.

There is little doubt that the government will press the agreement. It is well known that the premier satisfied himself several weeks ago that it wasin the interests of Canada that the government should come to the assistance of the C. N. R. during the present financial stringency, and having come to the conclusion as to the method which the country should persue in the matter, he turned the work of framing the agreement over to Hon. Arthur Meighen, and solicitor general and through all these weeks of opposition on the part of Sir William MacKenzie to the hard terms which he exacted Mr. Borden stood as firm as rock, In just such a case as the present Mr. Borden excels, so that it may be taken for granted that there will be no weakening on the part of the government.

It is quite freely admitted by Liberals that the government has made an excellent bargain with the C. N. R. if it can be carried out to the letter and it is remarked that such a bargain could not have been driven except during a time of financial stringency as the present. The surprise is that such a bargain was possible. The battle will simply be over details, Ottawa, May 1—At the opening of the Commons today Hon. W. T. White introduced and secured first reading for the tariff bill which is intended to give effect to the tariff resolutions which appeared in the budget and which were approved in committee yesterday. In this connection the Finance Minister said he desired to correct a misapprehension in some of the newspapers with regard to what he had said last night in regard to readjustments of the tariff which might become necessary with the coming into effect of the new duties on structural steel. There would be no further tariff changes this session, he said.

Hon. Martin Burrell's dairy bill was taken up in committee and evoked some discussion over the clause which prohibits the manufacture or sale of oleomargarine. J. H. Burnham, of West Peterboro took the ground that if people wanted to buy cheap food like oleomargarine they should be permitted to do so.

E. W. Nesbitt of North Oxford said he thought there was a good deal of sense in this.

Andrew Broder of Dundas said it was not a matter of cheap food but of an imitation of a good food which was intended to deceive. If people wanted to eat lard they should buy lard. If they were buying butter thay wanted real butter.

It is announced from Rome that Most Rev. Louis Nazaire Begin, Archbishop of Quebec is to be created a Cardinal, by his Holiness the Pope, at a consistory to be held on the 25th of the present month. Mgr. Begin's numerous friends in this city and Province, as well as all over Canada will hail this intelligence with the greatest possible delight. It Seems most fitting that the learned, humble and pious Archbishop of the great and ancient See of Quebec should be elevated to the dignity of the cardinalate. The exalted ecclesiastical honor and dignity are here meritoriously bestowed and will be worthily borne. From the point of view of great learning, profound wisdom, Christian humility and exemplary holiness of life Mgr. Begin is amply qualified to take a seat in the Sacred college of Cardinals. Archbishop Begin is the son of the late Charles and Luce Begin and was born at Levis, Que., January 10, 1840. He was educated at the Levis Model School, the College of St. Michael de Bellechasse, the Little Seminary at Quebec and Laval University where he took the degree of B A and won the Prince of Wales Gold Medal, being the first to take this prize in 1862. He pursued his ecclesiastical studies in Rome and in the process of completing his education, travelled extensively in Europe and the Holy Land, and took degrees from several continental universities. He is a fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, a member of the Academy of the Arcades, Rome, and of the International Truth Society. He is a governor of the Catholic Church Extension Society in Canada and was elected president of Section 1 Royal Society of Canada in 1908 Mgr. Begin visited this Province some ten or twelve years ago and spent several weeks most enjoyably in our midst. All who came in contact with him on that occasion were charmed with his wonderful personality. We extend to Cardinal-elect Begin our humble and warmest congratulations.
