THE SKIPPER'S WIFE

How a Woman's Bravery Resulted in Saving Eleven Lives.

New York, Jan. 6.—A New Haven special tells of a striking instance of bravery, in which Capt. John Kelsey and nine seamen of the big New Haven schooner W. Wallace Ward owe their lives to the inspiring bravery of the skipper's wife.

For five days and nights the men worked at the pumps to save the vessel, and then gave up in despair and lashed themselves to the rigging.

Then Mrs. Kelsey rushed from the cabin and went to work herself, and her courageous example gave the men new life. They sprang to the pumps, and, by working with superhuman energy, kept the schooner afloat until the Norwegian steamer Themis hove in sight at the last moment and effected a rescue.

The unusually mild weather experienced in Manitoba this season has enabled elevator building to continue through the winter so far without interruption. New buildings are now finishing at Crandell and Miniota stations, recently opened on the Great Northwest Central road.

The final report of the New York State canal commission is ready, says the Press today. The report recommends that $60,000,000 should be expended in improving the inland waterway.
