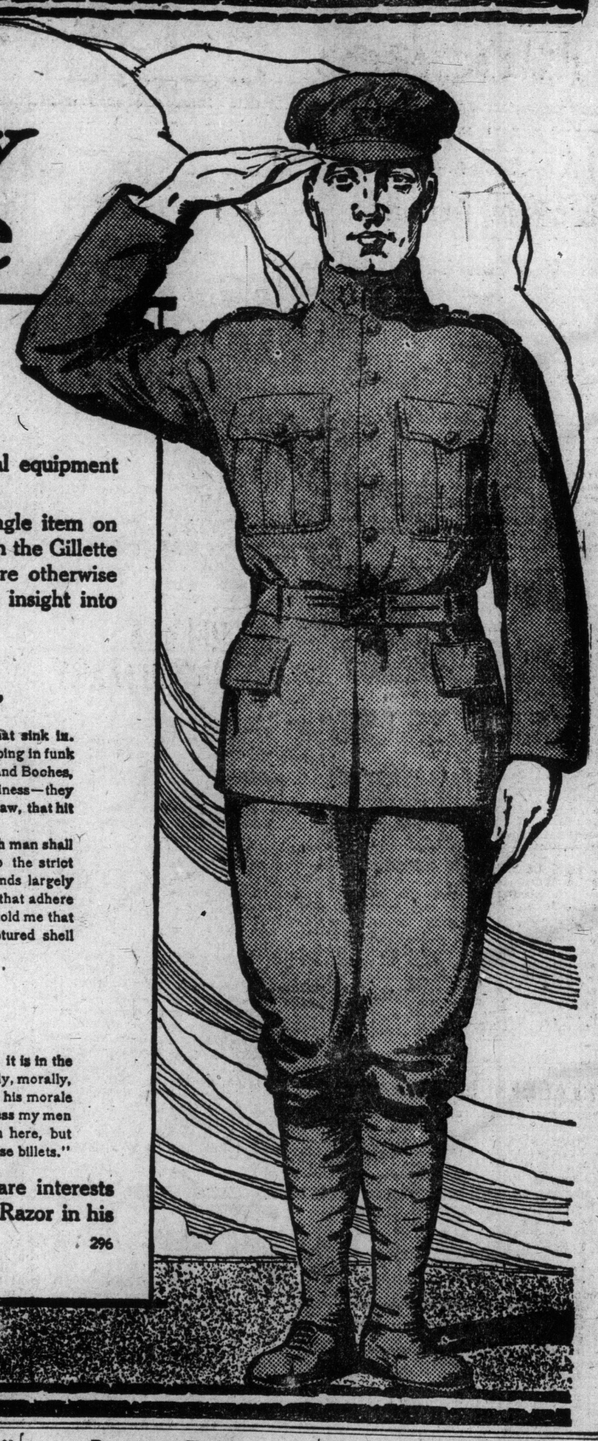
For Military Service



EXPERIENCE gained in the thick of the fighting, guides the training of the new Canadian Army, now reporting for Overseas Service. So, too, should it guide them and their friends in the selection of the personal equipment they will take away with them.

In this equipment, there is perhaps no single item on which the men "over there" are keener than on the Gillette Safety Razor. It makes shaving a comfort where otherwise it would be out of the question—and here is an insight into what that means to them:

The Canadian Idea

By George Pattullo, in "Saturday Evening Post"

"The Canadians at the Front shave every day. Let that sink in. Right up there in the trenches—often ankle-deep in mud, sleeping in funk holes, each man cooking his own meals, fighting lice and rats and Boches, with everything combined to break down habits of cleanliness—they rigidly observe the rule for smooth faces and chins. Of all I saw, that hit me hardest, because it meant so much.

It is a general order throughout the British Army that each man shall keep cleanly shaved when possible. Of course obedience to the strict letter of the order varies with the different regiments; it depends largely on the officer commanding. But there are many battalions that adhere to it strictly except in the heat of attack. A company officer told me that his own men shaved daily even while occupying some captured shell holes before new trenches had been dug."

An American Major's View

By Ring W. Lardner, in "Collier's"

"Daily shaving ought to be compulsory in our army as it is in the British. When a man hasn't shaved he isn't at his best, physically, morally, or mentally. When he has he's got more confidence in himself; his morale is better. Shaving has a psychological effect, and I try to impress my men with the importance of it. They say it's a difficult operation here, but I guess if the Tommies can do it in the trenches, we can in these billets."

Is there a man in the new army whose welfare interests you? See that he sails with a Gillette Safety Razor in his kit, and a good supply of blades. 296

SUNBRIAR CHOICE FOR THE DERBY

Counted on to Make Good Showing in Kentucky Classic.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 5.—No race run on the American turf carries with it as much interest as the Kentucky Derby. This historic event in the annals of practically the entire turf world at large, the running of which dates back to the year 1875, when that famous thorobred, Aristides, won the initial classic, has created such interest that thousands and thousands of people from every section of the continent come to Louisville each Derby Day to see the 3-year-olds contest for this rich stake, and confer their congratulations upon the winning owner.

While Aristides was victorious in the first Derby and the great English colt Omar Khayyam won the last, the race to be run during the present year promises to carry with it the greatest field which has ever faced the barrier in the history of the classic. While no official date has been announced for the running of the Derby and will not be announced until a meeting of the racing commission, it is practically certain that Saturday, May 11, will be set as the opening day at Churchill Downs and the running of the Derby. The present year will mark the forty-fourth running of the Kentucky Derby and will carry with it approximately $20,000, which surpasses all stakes offered for three-year-olds in this country. Each owner is compelled to pay an entrance fee of $25 and $250 additional to start on the day of the race. With $15,000 added, $2500 goes to the horse finishing second, $1000 to the third horse, while the one which finishes fourth saves his entrance fee.

The nominations to the Kentucky Derby usually close some time in February, and this year's list promises to run over the record mark. It will be remembered that 76 horses were nominated to go in 1917. Many of the best two-year-olds in 1917 are being pointed to start in this year's Derby. The most prominent being prepared for the event are Sun Briar, Escoba, Freecutter, Papp, War Cloud, Tippity Witchet, Jack Hare, jr., Ultima Thule, Tacola, Duke of Savoy, American, American Eagle, Boniface, Everest and James T. Clark.

The present winter favorite for the Kentucky Derby is the sensational racer, imported, Sun Briar, by Sundridge—Sweet Briar, owned by the eastern turfman, Willis Sharpe Kilmer. This wonderful 2-year-old was the leading winner of last year, accounting for the Hopeful Stakes at Saratoga, which was the most valuable stake to be run in 1917, having a value of $30,000 to the winner.

In addition to this great stake, Sun Briar won the Albany, Grand Union Hotel and Saratoga Special at Saratoga and the Great American at Aqueduct. The winning of these five stakes brought the total amount annexed by Sun Briar during the past season to $58,430, which shows that he was easily the best juvenile of the season and one that should make a great showing in the Kentucky Derby. Sun Briar is practically certain to go to the post favorite in the Derby, and in all probability will be ridden by the veteran jockey, Willie Knapp, who was the leading stake rider during 1917, his total stake winners annexing $77,301 to the pockets of the various owners.

WOOD SOLD ON MARKET.

Special to The Toronto World.

Woodstock, Jan. 6.—A feature of Saturday's market was the offering for sale of a number of loads of wood, the first for a long while. The coal situation is still acute and the wood sold readily. Stove wood sold at $4 a cord, while a load of fence rails brought $8. Mayor West has been asked to appoint a civic fuel controller. It is pointed out that some citizens have been hoarding the coal, while the poorer classes have been forced to suffer for want of fuel.
