Wolves Walked Off The Field

Owing to a Dispute in the Seventh Inning They Refused to Continue — St. George's Awarded Game.

The Wolves walked off the field in the City League game on the East End grounds last evening. In the last half of the sixth inning, with the score 7 to 6 in favor of the Wolves, Rourke, the first man up for St. George's, was safe at first on a high fly back of second base, which Bartlett was unable to handle. Ross, the next man up, hit the first pitched ball over first base. It was a red-hot liner which Tanzman tried to catch. Umpire Smith ruled the ball "fair" and repeated his decision so that it could be heard by every player. After passing first base the ball rolled to the fence on foul territory and Rourke and Ross both scored on the hit, which went for a home run. The umpire stated that the ball was touched by the first baseman's mitt. In this case it was certainly a fair ball, but Tanzman denied that he had touched the ball. Without issuing a complaint or continuing the game under protest, the entire team left the field, and the game was forfeited to the St. George's 9 to 0.

There is an arbitration board in the City Senior Amateur League, and the proper steps for the Wolves to have taken was to continue the game under protest and bring their grievance before the board.

The game itself was marked by heavy hitting on both sides. Gallagher's homer to deep centre with one on base in the first inning was the real thriller of the game. O'Rourke, Wiley and Corrigan did good work in the field. The score and summary follow:

Babe Ruth Hit Fourth Homer

Gives Up All Hope of Passing Last Year's Home Run Mark of 59.

Chicago, June 8—Babe Ruth hit his fourth home run of the season today with Robertson pitching in the game with the Chicago White Sox. No one was on base at the time. The ball sailed over the right field fence.

Ruth has given up all hope of passing his last year's home run mark of 59, he said here today. He is confident, however, that he will catch up with Ken Williams, of the St. Louis Browns, and Roger Hornsby, of the Cardinals, and lead both major leagues in four base drives.

Heretofore Ruth had insisted that, despite his six weeks' suspension, he might reach the sixty mark.

Breeding Ground Of Great Oarsmen

St. John Well Remembered by Ottawa Writer—Sculling Should Receive Every Encouragement.

The Ottawa Journal prints the following article on "Canada and Rowing":

"Defeat of Hilton Belyea, Canadian champion, for the amateur sculling championship of the world, rowed at Philadelphia recently, is a reminder that in recent years Canada has lagged somewhat behind in this great branch of sport. Time was when Canadian scullers were among the greatest in the world; the names of Hanlan, O'Connor, Scholes, Durnan, and Gaudaur, comprise a galaxy of rowing stars unequalled in their generation. St. John, N. B., the home of Belyea, was once the breeding ground of great oarsmen. Few Canadians, and certainly no Maritimers, but have heard of the exploits of the famous Paris crew, culminating in its defeat of the British on the Kennebecasis, an occasion made memorable by the sudden death of the mighty British oarsmen, Renforth.

Let us hope that the traditions of those great days will be revived. Sculling is a test of strength, of courage, of the grit and stamina which are the bone and sinew of greatness in a people; and Canada can poorly afford to neglect its encouragement and development."

Boston Golfers Appear In Court

Judge Barnes Found Them Not Guilty With Violating the Sunday Sport Law.

Boston, June 8—The golfers who appeared in the East Boston court today, charged with violating the Sunday sport law in Winthrop, were discharged after they had testified that no scores had been kept.

Judge Barnes rendered his decision of not guilty after consulting a dictionary, which he said, defined a game as a "contest according to set rules in which scores are kept."

After the judge had made his finding Chief of Police McNeil, of Winthrop, declared the finding would make it impossible to enforce the Sunday sports law.

ENTRY OF ORIENTALS FAVORED BY SOUTH AUSTRALIAN PREMIER

Tropical Territory in North Should Be Opened, Says H. N. Barwell in New York Interview.

New York, June 8.—H. N. Barwell, Prime Minister of South Australia, who has been in this country since Monday, left today for Vancouver, thence to sail aboard the steamship Makura for home. He was entertained by the English Speaking Union while here and made an impressive speech on the much-discussed subject of "White Australia."

Asked to elaborate his views, which have excited much interest in London and here, Mr. Barwell, who is a Liberal in politics, and has been Prime Minister of South Australia for three years, talked freely.

"What the rest of the world does not understand about 'White Australia'," he said, "is that we who advocate a mitigation of that policy confine our demands to that portion of the Australian continent known as the Northern Territory. Inasmuch as up to 13 years ago that territory belonged to South Australia, I have a special interest in it. It is a tropical country, now administered by the Australian Commonwealth, and in all its vast extent, three times the area of Great Britain and Ireland, there are today only 800 white settlers. This is less than there were ten years ago, and even then the white population was diminishing.

Limited Immigration Asked.

"What we ask is that restrictive immigration of laborers who can live and work in tropical climes be put in force, so that the world cannot say that the Australian people are keeping out of use a vast land of incalculable wealth which they can never hope to develop under their present policy. The resentment of Japan in particular against our Labor Government's dog-in-the-manger attitude is a distinct menace. Every year Japan has a birth rate greater than the whole population of Australia. Today the admission of Japanese into North Australia is not a diplomatic question, but some day it will be, and cooler heads throughout the Commonwealth are now getting together on the policy that we should remove Japan's resentment while there is yet time to do so with some degree of magnanimity. I recognize that once you let down the bars you can never get the non-white settlers out again. America's experience with the Negro population is sufficient evidence of that.

"But between the northern territory and the rest of our country there is a great natural barrier of barren land. Race mixture would thus never be a problem, and meanwhile this productive land, rich in every species of tropical wood and food products and in all the articles of exploitable wealth found in equatorial south seas would be one of Australia's greatest assets, and a strong security for the peace of the world in the south Pacific.

Fleet Is Sole Protection.

"America did a great thing for us in the Washington conference, but Americans do not realize that we are 5,000,000 wholly cut off from the rest of the white race by 6,000 miles of water. We belong to the British commonwealth of nations by virtue of the British fleet alone; failing that, we could not defend ourselves against Japan of any other great non-white power of the future.

"We approve of the Four-Power Pact heartily, but we have got to look farther ahead in the future than the mere ten years for which that provides. My experience in London taught me that Englishmen also keenly feel that that development of Australia is a world concern, and that this primary concession in the white Australia principle must sooner or later be made.

"For the rest of the continent I stand firm with my fellow countrymen of all parties for a policy of Australia for the Australians. In South Australia today we are making progress slowly in immigration, and we are restricting it to white settlers who are going to go out on the land. With our returned soldiers we have been as liberal, I believe, as any nation in the world. They are getting from us a sum of over $12,000 apiece, all told, to take up our undeveloped lands.

"One reason why this scheme is costing us so much is because we are giving them, as far as we can, land near the metropolitan area, for which we have broken up the great domains and parceled out the best tracts available. They get training in practical farming schools; they get liberal loan advances for building their houses and stocking their farms, and their repayments are spread over a period of forty years. The result is that our returned soldiers feel that their country has been generous with them for their four years' service across the seas, and the rock bottom of a great addition to our real wealth is assured.

Election Forecast Made.

"Actual immigration by 'nominated' settlers, that is, guaranteed by our own citizens, by immigrants who can qualify as trained agriculturists, by boys apprenticed to the land and later set up by the Government on farms of their own, and by women gith farm experience or who come as domestic help, are now taking care of the rest of our settlement problem. We made this emphasis on practical farming settlers since South Australia, like other parts of the world, shows a drift to the cities, where between fifty and sixty per cent of our people now live."

Asked about the coming election in Australia, Mr. Barwell said, "An election will take place in the Australian commonwealth either at the end of this year or the beginning of next. I think it will mark the end of the coalition government of Mr. Hughes. The Liberals have a splendid candidate in Wm. A. Watt, who was acting Prime Minister. In South Australia three years ago, we finished with coalition government; majority over all the other parties. I think this can also happen in the commonwealth, though, of course, much depends on what Mr. Hughes is going to do.

Intimacy With America.

"In the meanwhile, Australia is drawing closer to the rest of the world. The chief reason for my trip to the homeland and back through America, which is only another sort of homeland to us Australians, has been to establish closer connections with the rest of the family of nations to which we belong. This connection, if I can make it so, is going to be permanent. My commissioner of roads and bridges is going to spend six months more in this country; my commissioner of harbors is now making a long stay in England, and I plan to have the rest of my colleagues either come here more or less regularly or else go to work in South Australia with a world viewpoint that they already possess. This costs money, but we have convinced our people that it is worth it.

"I can confidently prophesy that America is going to see more Australian administrators in the next decate than ever before, for here, of all countries, we feel at home and acknowledge a common responsibility."

DANISH MINISTER TO UNTED STATES

Was a Great Soldier Fighting on the Side of the Allies.

Copenhagen, May 21—(By Mail.)—Prince Aage of Denmark, who according to rumors is to be the next Danish Minister to Washington, has been entertained at luncheon here by the American Club. Minister Prince, who presided, introduced his highness as "a great traveller, a great soldier fighting on the side of the Allies, and one of Europe's finest middleweight boxers."

In his reply Prince Aage recounted the happy impressions which he had obtained of the Americans whom he met in France during the war, and he appealed to America to assist Europe through the darkest hour she had experienced since the armistice with that same energy and intelligence she showed during the war.

ARRESTED ON WARRANT

John P. Ryan was arrested last evening on a warrant charging assault on his wife.

Merton of the Movies

"Merton of the Movies" is a book by Harry Leon Wilson, and one that will prove most interesting to all readers. Merton, the small-town general store clerk who goes movie-mad, learns how to register emotion through a correspondence course, dresses in mail order wild west clothes for "still" pictures of himself, and then finally goes to Hollywood to uplift the drama of the silver screen, is a character that adds to the joy of life. Merton almost starves to death before "Flip" Montague realizes the possibilites in him. He is delighted with his sudden rise to stardom until he sees himself on the screen in his first picture—a climax that is very funny and at the same time most dramatic. Mr. Wilson's penetrating appraisal of the art (?) of the silent drama and of the methods of the producers will delight any one with a sense of humor.
