

CONTENTS.

The Importance of Agriculture, &c....	73
Draining...	76
Absorption of Nutriment by Plants....	84
Neat Cattle: their Management, &c.....	87
Comparative Merits of Short Horns and Herefords in England..	90
The Comparative Advantage of Feeding Cattle with Grain, or with Oil Cake	92
Calves.	ib.
Insects injurious to Agriculture...	94
Agricultural Societies.	103
New South Wales as it is ...	110
Sydney, New South Wales Market Prices ...	112
Preservation of Grain... ..	113
Hemp and Flax... ..	ib.
Spring Tares and Vetches... ..	114
Orchards... ..	115
Sainfoin... ..	116
Mangel Wurtzel	ib.
Extract from Roget's Bridgewater Treatise	117
Emigration to British North America	123
Education	ib.
Application of Capital to Agricultural Production.	124
MISCELLANEOUS:—
Extract from the Memoir of Lucien Bonaparte... ..	127
Trade and Navigation,	128
Progress of Improvement in the Trade of Liverpool..	130
Improvement in Sheep	ib.
Agriculture in Sweden.	ib.
Winter in Scandinavia	131
Improvement of Time... ..	132
Crops, and Prices of Agricultural Produce in England.	ib.
Farming in the Olden Time.	133
Butter and Cheese exported from Holland	134
Agricultural Report for June and July	ib.

ADVERTISEMENT.

THE Proprietor of this Magazine begs leave very respectfully to state, that the publication of this work was undertaken from no other motive than a desire to promote, if possible, the improvement of Canadian Agriculture, and the prosperity of those engaged in it, as well as to advance the general interests of this community. Whether the work is calculated to assist in producing the objects he professes to have in view, he must leave to those who read it to judge. As, however, a considerable expense must be incurred in publishing, he would hope that if the work is considered worthy of encouragement, it will, at least, receive sufficient support from the public to pay the expense of publishing; otherwise he must, in justice to himself, discontinue the publication, having already expended on former Agricultural Publications more than perhaps it was prudent for him to have done.