GLADSTONE ON IRELAND.

An Irish Deputation Visit Hawarden—Powerful Speech by the G. O. M.—An Eloquent Appeal for the Green Isle—Honors for the Champion.

HAWARDEN, October 4.—Mr Gladstone and his wife to-day received Mrs T D Sullivan, wife of the Lord Mayor of Dublin, and the deputation of Irish ladies appointed by the women of Ireland to present to the ex-premier a mammoth petition in favor of Home Rule. The petition bears the signatures of half a million Irishwomen. Great crowds have flocked hither all day in view of the event. Accompanying the deputation were deputations representing the municipal councils of Cork, Limerick, Waterford and Clonmel. The place was perfectly alive with visitors, who were accorded the freedom of the lawn during the formal ceremonies. Mr Gladstone, Mrs Gladstone, Mr Herbert Gladstone, the Rev. Stephen Gladstone, Miss Helen Gladstone and the Rev. Henry Drew met the deputation as they entered the grounds, and conducted them into the library. When Mr Gladstone, with his family, emerged from the house to receive the deputation he was greeted with hearty and prolonged cheering by the multitude on the ground. Arrived in the library, Mrs Sullivan read the address of the Irishwomen. The Mayor of Cork, the Mayor of Limerick, the Mayor of Waterford and the Mayor of Clonmel then each presented Mr Gladstone with the freedom of their respective cities, and thanked him for

to restore Ireland's parliament, expressing the hope that he would soon visit Ireland to receive from the Irish people at their homes the thanks they all felt towards him. When Mr. Gladstone replied his voice was somewhat husky. He said he believed that the deputations and the nationalist members of the house of commons truly represented the Irish as a people. "At my age, however," Mr. Gladstone said, "the question of visiting Ireland is beset with uncertainties. Whatever may be my condition, whether of bodily presence or absence from among them, the Irish people will always share my interest and my affection." Mr. Gladstone added that he must deny the statement that he had renounced his former attitude by supporting the proposal to restore the Irish parliament. He said also that he was thankful for the share he took in passing such Irish measures as had been made laws during his public career. He continued: "The whole character of the Irish controversy has altered. We do not now contemplate the dreadful alternative our fathers faced a century ago, nor the alternative Wellington faced when he said he proposed Catholic emancipation as the alternative to civil war. It was necessary that the late government's Irish proposals should have been put forward in accord with the desires of the Irish nation, and also to make it clear what they proposed to do within the limits of imperial honor, safety and welfare. These aims were completely attained, and they have been sustained by the singular mildness and temperance of expression which have so far characterized the conduct of Irishmen at every stage of the agitation till now. (Cheers.) The

is the cause of order, of peace, of legality. It is the hope of conducing to the settlement of this great question which has kept me in my present position in political affairs. I am quite prepared to withdraw from public life if I could believe that it were better for Ireland, but I am unable to arrive at this conclusion. England's interest is as much involved as Ireland's. On the lowest grounds of civil and military economy, it is England's interest to change in some way the present civil government in Ireland, which costs the British tax-payer, yearly, sixteen shillings per head of the population, while civil government in England and Scotland costs yearly but eight shillings per head of the population. On far higher grounds, England ought to concede Ireland's request. England's character is concerned. There is a stain upon England in respect of her relations toward Ireland. I deny that the term separation, which our opponents unscrupulously use to describe the meaning of the late government's proposals, is correctly applied in this case. The promoters of the bill

NEVER THOUGHT OF SEPARATION.

We courted a careful comparison of Grattan's parliament with the parliament the bill proposed. The sphere within which Ireland desires free action, which is specially the sphere of local government, would have been attained under our bill better far than it was possessed under the Grattan parliament. The present government encourages Irish land occupiers to believe that the judicial rents will be reduced. That is embodied in the appointment of the present land commission, also in the Marquis of Salisbury's speech at the commencement of the parliamentary session in what he said concerning judicial rents. I do not accept this statement to any great extent regarding the legislation which he said his government proposed for the next session. I reserved judgment also in the wonderful encyclopædia delivered on Saturday by Lord R. Churchill, whose performances are less known than his promises. I am unable to gather from these statements a declaration of fresh concessions. I do not wish to close the possibility for a future modus vivendi, but I am unable to gather that anything remains to be done in that direction. It would still be wise to reconsider the pecuniary terms the late government's bill proposed. Full justice to Ireland requires careful investigation of her financial history before we reach a conclusion as to what should be accorded her. I hope that Ireland's triumph will come with promptitude, with cheerfulness and with joy, and I hope there will be no intervening period of gloom.

COLD-BLOODED MURDER.

A Sailor's Story of Alleged Brutality and Murder at Sea.

QUEBEC, October 4.—It has leaked out that a most atrocious and cold-blooded murder on the high seas was perpetrated on a vessel belonging to St John, N. B. A witness of the deed who was boarding in Little Champlain street, furnishes the following facts:

"I, John McKeown, able seaman, signed articles on the 8th of July last, at Antwerp, Belgium, to work as an able seaman on the Elia Milligan, bound for Quebec. I went on board and commenced my duties. The captain's name was Easten, and the second mate's name Moore. The latter, I perceived, when we left port, was a nervous man. One day a young German sailor, who was known by the name of Auguste, was on duty and in the act of coming on deck from aloft when an officer, without any provocation whatever, with an oath, ran at him and commenced kicking young Auguste in a most brutal manner. He kicked him so much that he actually burst open the poor fellow's stomach and his entrails fell out. Of course, none of us seamen could interfere, for if we did we would have been treated as mutineers and dealt with accordingly. Well, the poor fellow died and was thrown into the sea. When we reached Ste. Anne des Monts, I, having remarked that I would report the murder, was, as soon as we anchored, locked up in a room for three days without proper food or a blanket to cover me. On the night of the third day I was released by a watchman and told to leave the vessel, a boat being provided. I was rowed ashore by two men and left there. The next day I went to the resident magistrate, a Mr. Lamontagne, and lodged information. He took down my deposition, when I was allowed to go where I pleased without money or food. They, I suppose, thought that I was a poor ignorant sailor and would allow the matter to drop. The Magistrate Lamontagne loaded the ship and owned the cargo. I was sent to Quebec and my passage paid by the sheriff of that place, who was very kind to me. I was also furnished with a letter to Judge Chauveau. The clerk of the peace took my deposition, which was afterwards read by the Crown prosecutor, Mr. Dunbar, Q. C. I arrived in Quebec on the 17th day of September. I am going to Cleveland, O., and have left my address with High Constable Gale, so that they can communicate with the authorities at home, and if I am wanted I will certainly go and endeavor to bring the guilty party to justice."

AN ALLEGED PROCURESS.

A Woman Arrested on Charge of Enticing Young Girls to Ruin.

Montreal Star.

A young and well dressed woman, named Emma Girldstone, who claims she lives in Portland, Maine, was arrested Tuesday night by Detective Lapointe and Constable Bureau, while, it is alleged, in the act of enticing two young girls away from their homes for immoral purposes.

It appears that the woman entered a cab shortly after eight o'clock, and asked the driver to convey her to the home of any young French Canadian girl who would consent to accompany her to Portland to do work in a private family. A few moments after they came across one, Miss Clara Richer, and prevailed upon her to leave her home immediately and bring one of her friends named Philomene Duras along with her. They were promised lucrative situations in private families and $2.50 wages per week. Constable Bureau had obtained information of the whole affair, however, and traced the woman and her two alleged dupes to Bonaventure station, where, aided by Detective Lapointe, he placed them under arrest. The woman claimed this morning that she had acted in good faith and that she was by no means alluring the young girls away from their homes. She had been visiting her relatives in St. Eugene and was returning home. She is kept in prison pending the result of enquiries made by the Chief of Police, in Portland, who reported her of bad character.

THE MISSING ANCHORIA.

A Steamer with 549 Persons on Board Unheard From.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—There is no news yet of the missing steamer Anchoria. A deep feeling of anxiety for the safety of the passengers is every where manifested. She is now just twenty-two days out from Glasgow for New York with 549 persons on board. She has not been seen or heard from. Other steamers have crossed and re-crossed the ocean, but not one of them can report speaking her positively. It is now believed that the vessel, sighted by the Ethopian, was the Devonia which arrived on Monday. The anchor line people are now being subjected to some very severe criticism in regard to the negligence shown in permitting the Anchoria to proceed with her ocean trips in the condition she is reported to be in. Those who are well informed state positively that her machinery was not in first-class condition when she left Glasgow and had not been for some time, and that the company's officers were well aware of that fact. The company have already admitted that it was intended to make extensive repairs upon her when she reaches this port, and this seems to be taken as a tacit acknowledgment on the part of the company that the steamer was not in proper condition to transport safely hundreds of human lives, and at a season when severe storms are looked for constantly by experienced captains. Many still cling to the hope that the missing steamer was disabled by northwestery gales and has been towed or put into the Azores and will be heard from shortly. The City of Rome, a sister steamer of the same line, reached port yesterday but brought no tidings of the Anchoria.

"Isn't that Mrs. Holmes? I thought the doctors gave her up. She looks well now."

"She is well. After the doctors gave up her case she tried Dr. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' and began to get better right away. I heard her say not long ago, that she hadn't felt so well in twenty years. She does her own work and says that life seems worth living, at last. 'Why,' said she, 'I feel as if I had been raised from the dead, almost.' Thus do thousands attest the marvelous efficacy of this God-given remedy for female weaknesses, prolapsus, ulceration, leucorrhœa, morning sickness, weakness of stomach, tendency to cancerous disease, nervous prostration, general debility and kindred affections.

HERE AND THERE.

Some Facts, and a Few Other Good Things.

A noteworthy new departure in London is the use of omnibuses by ladies and gentlemen of fashon.

The steamship Mariposa, built at Philadelphia, has made the passage from New Zealand and Australia to San Francisco in 23 days and 12 hours, the fastest trip on record.

Specimens of steel rails from the South Carolina Railroad, twisted into a reversed curve by earthquake power, have been forwarded by Prof. Earle Sloane to the Smithsonian Institute.

Ninety-six pounds of iron ore were recently found attached to the end of a lightning rod removed from the ground. The soil was ferrugineous, and it is supposed that electricity attracted the ore to the rod.

Although there are more than 1,500 churches in London, yet if all the population decided to go to church on some one day, nine-tenths of them could not get into the edifices. As a matter of fact, however, the present church accomodations are ordinarily sufficient for all who wish to attend.

The Rev. W. Swanson, of the English Presbyterian Mission in China, in a recent speech in London, said 25 years ago, when he went to China, there were only five small churches at the treaty ports. Now, in going from Canton to Shanghai and travelling 20 or 25 miles a day, he could sleep every night, with one or two exceptions, in a village having a Christian church.

The World's Woman's Temperance Union has fixed October 16th as the day of prayer for the cause of temperance and purity throughout the world, and all women's societies everywhere are earnestly requested to unite. It is also desired that October 17th be observed as a temperance Sabbath, and that all clergymen and ministers be requested to preach sermons on temperance and purity.

An enterprising English parson has been very much taken to task for acting as a sandwich man to gather subscriptions for the rebuilding of his chapel, which is suffering from dry rot. He wanted £1,200, but his personal exertions between the boards only realized 2s. 9d. Still he has advertised himself pretty extensively, and will very likely pluck the lower success from the nettle failure.

There is a trace of utility, after all in the ornamental Order of Knights of the Garter, says a London paper. We have always regarded the order as a chip in porridge, as it gave the Knights consolation without corresponding inconvenience to anyone. It appears, however, that ordinary Knights of the Garter have to pay £1,000 each on becoming Knights —fees from which, we suppose, somebody gets the benefit.

The mother of Paganini is said to have seen a wondrous vision respecting the future of her marvellous son. She related her dream to him in these terms: —"My son, you will be a great musician! For an angel, radiant with beauty, appeared to me in the night and said that any request I might make should be granted. So I asked that you might become the greatest of all violinists, and the angel promised that my request should be fulfilled."

The notion of pronouncing the Latin v like the English w shocked a worthy bishop considerably some time since, in conjunction with some newfangled Latin pronunciation. The prelate in question was examining a class of girls at a school of which he was the visitor. The lesson was Latin, and some of the girls repeated "Vicissem" by turns, pronouncing the "v" as "w," the "i" as "e," and the "s" as "k." "Do you indeed!" inquired his lordship. "I hope they like it!"

The little monarch of Spain, young as he is, appears to be every inch a king. An English baronet was sitting on a seat in the park at Madrid when a nurse and baby sat down beside him. The child stretched out its arms for the baronet's silver knobbed stick, and was allowed to play with it. Afterwards the infant refused to give up the stick which it had annexed, and screamed so furiously that it was allowed to take the stick away, the gentleman giving his card so that it could be returned. The stick came back with a note from Queen Maria Christina thanking the gentleman for his courtesy to her son. We wonder what this promising infant will annex when he grows up.

Earthquakes.

A good number of jokes are being poked at the earthquake, but the Charleston papers are not copying any of them.—Detroit Free Press.

When the earthquake came the other night more than 30,000 women in Georgia were convinced that they had discovered a man under the bed.—Macon Telegraph.

The jury in the Gilbert Davis case were in their room at the court house unable to agree, and, it is said, there was no probability of their arriving at a verdict. After the earthquake was over, however, they agreed in about three minutes.—Eastman (Ga.) Times.

There is no remedy put into bottles that possesses as much merit as Minard's Liniment. It is both for internal and external use. It heals, cures and extracts pain, removes dandruff, restores hair and is a splendid hair dressing.

FISHERMEN.—Don't start out without a good supply of Minard's Liniment, Family Pills and Honey Balsam, which three articles make a medicine chest in themselves.

THE REV. GEO. H. THAYER, of Bourbon, Ind., says: "Both myself and wife owe our lives to SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE." Sold by John M. Wiley.

Handy to have in the house, Minard's Honey Balsam, the prompt and certain remedy for croup, colds and pulmonary affections.

IN GOOD REPUTE.—James McMurdock, writing from Kinsale, says: B. B. B. as a remedy for diseases of the blood, liver and kidneys, has an excellent reputation in this locality. I have used it, and speak from experience, as well as observation. It is the only medicine I want, and I advise others afflicted to try it."

WHY WILL YOU cough when Shiloh's Cure will give immediate relief. Price 10cts., 50 cts. and $1. Sold by John M. Wiley.

The Royal Inniskillen Fusiliers, stationed at Aldershot, went on riot Wednesday night in resistance to a draft being made for service in Africa. A savage fight ensued, and the Irishmen were only subdued after a number of soldiers and police were wounded. Forty-one of the rioters were arrested.

Margaret Halligan, employed in Toronto as a cook, has fallen heir to one of the largest cotton plantations in Tunica county, Mississippi, through the death of her brother a few days ago. Judge Gary, in the criminal court at Chicago Thursday afternoon, overruled the motion for a new trial in the cases of eight anarchists charged with the Haymarket massacre and confirmed the verdict of the jury that Spies, Parsons, Fielden, Schwab, Ergel, Fischer and Lingg should be hanged, and that Neebe should suffer imprisonment for 15 years. All declare they will die bravely as martyrs.

The Windsor, N. S., bark Montreal arrived in New Orleans on Thursday in charge of a Mexican captain and crew. She left the Colon in August in command of Capt Davidson and a crew of fourteen. After leaving port the captain and crew were stricken down with fever. The captain became delirous, jumped overboard and was lost. The steward, boatswain and chief officer died. The six remaining men were unable to manage the vessel and she drifted at the mercy of wind and wave. Caught in a hurricane she lost all her sails and was finally becalmed near Compreke, Mexico. Here she was found and floated and taken charge of by Capt Isadore Sutura, a Mexican, who refitted her in Compreke, brought her and her sick crew, after many delays, to New Orleans. The captain claims heavy salvage. The bark was in ballast, and is owned by C. Churchill & Sons, Halifax, N. S.
