Chinese Explanation of the Recent Missionary Outrages.

Blame Laid on the Chinese Missionary Interpreters Who Play on Missionary Zeal and Ignorance of the Language.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Sam Moy, a prominent Chinese merchant of this city, has received a copy of a Chinese newspaper published at Foo Chow, which gives four columns of space to an account of the attack upon the English and American missionaries in June. The article shows that the attack on the mission houses arose first from motives of robbery, and second by a revelation of the corrupt practices of some of the hangers-on of the mission stations. There are only two ways to get converts in China. One is to hire them; the other way is by kidnapping children and keeping and teaching them. Good missionaries don't allow any kidnapping, but most of the missionaries, while good people themselves, don't know how bad their native staff is. An interpreter sees a child, a girl 10 or 12 years old, and finds out that her parents are poor, or careless people not likely to make much of a fuss at her disappearance. He coaxes the child to visit the mission, and often force has to be used. The missionary is told that the child wishes to become a Christian, that she wants to live in the mission and be instructed, or some other invention which seems plausible to the ignorance and zeal of the missionary, and something is added to show the importance of guarding the new candidate from recapture by the heathen relatives, who the missionary is assured would do so to prevent the perversion of the child's faith. As the missionary cannot talk to the child, he trusts his interpreter. The latter practically gets the girl. She is his slave for the time being, and he induces the missionary to keep her safely and out of sight until he can sell her and get the money for her. The burning of the missions freed some of the girls, who told the stories of their kidnapping, confinement and the indignities to which they were subjected. The stories spread and aroused the ferocity of the Chinese. This started the great riot, and the mob attacked the missionaries and interpreters indiscriminately. The Governor of Fo-Kien sent 10,000 soldiers up to Min River to quell the riot and restore order, but the bandits joined with the rabble and whipped the soldiers. The soldiers lost half their number and had to retreat. At the time the paper was printed it was said the whole section was in the control of the mob.

"DADDY'S ON THE ENGINE."

A New Song That Has Captured Gotham Town.

There is a new song in town, says the New York Advertiser, and it is sung by sweet Kitty Rampone.

New songs come and go easily in New York. New singers are rare. We have one in sweet Kitty Rampone, whose picture is published herewith. You may not have heard the story of sweet Kitty, and "My Dad's the Engineer," but it is a story of human interest, just the same. Kitty is a dark-eyed lass, somewhere between 12 and 14 years of age. She is well proportioned, has a face that Corregio would like to have painted, and a voice as musical as a lark's.

"Oh, it is so strange," she said, as she finished singing the new song, to the reporter, "and you are really going to print my picture?"

Her father, the old professor, was in raptures. He is no longer young. He has had his battles with fate, his victories and his defeats. He is proud of his success, and prouder still of his daughter.

After all, New York is the best town in the world. Its heart is bigger, and it asks fewer questions than any other city, even when things go wrong. Now and then it does things that no other city would think of doing. That is because it is New York. But the heart pulse of New York is all right. It beats true all the time. It makes and unmakes its heroes and heroines in the most inconsequent sort of way.

But the man or woman who rings the bell at the right moment is sure to be heard, says the Advertiser. And it looks as though Kitty Rampone has rung the bell at the right moment. She has won more fame in a single night than her father, a fine musician, has been able in the trend of many years and on two continents to acquire.

Here is the song that has given Kitty Rampone success:

We were none of us thinking of danger
As the train sped on in the night,
Till the flames from a burning forest
Made the passengers wild with fright.
Then a tiny maid near a window,
With a smile said, "There's nothing to fear,
I'm sure that no harm will befall you
My Dad's the engineer!"

REFRAIN

Daddy knows what he is doing."
"Daddy's on the engine
Don't be afraid;
Said the little maid;
"We'll soon be out of danger,
Don't you ever fear;
Every one is safe, because
My Dad's the engineer!"

With the sparks falling closely about us,
Thro' the flames we sped on so fast,
And the brave little maid's father brought us
Thro' the danger all safe at last,
And the proud, sweet face of his lassie
And the words of the calm little dear
Will live in my memory forever
"My Dad's the engineer!"

REFRAIN.

"Daddy's on the engine
Don't be afraid;
Daddy knows what he's doing,"
Said the little maid;
"We'll soon be out of danger-
Don't you ever fear;
Every one is safe because
My Dad's the engineer!"

No one need fear cholera or any summer complaint if they have a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial ready for use. It corrects all looseness of the bowels promptly, and causes a healthy and natural action. This is a medicine adapted for the young and old, rich and poor, and is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine for cholera, dysentery, etc., in the market.

Concentration is the secret of strength in politics, in war, in trade—in short, in all management of human affairs.

A LIFE SAVED.—Mr. James Bryson Cameron, states: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs, and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine, and less than a half-bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me any good."

James Foster, a Tilbury farmer, threshed 78 bushels of oats off eleven acres.
