DESTROYER FROM ODESSA IS TO TORPEDO MUTINEERS

Senate Reading Room— S—541

Manned With Volunteer Crew, Will Give Battle to Kniaz Potemkine—Mutineers Are Now Divided Among Themselves and Are Forced to Leave Roumanian Port Without Provisions.

St. Petersburg, July 4.—(2.25 a. m.)—According to a despatch received by an official agency, the torpedo boat destroyer, Smetilvy, with a volunteer crew, has sailed from Odessa with the intention of sinking the Kniaz Potemkine.

With Kustenji and other unprotected ports of Roumania, Bulgaria and Turkey at the mercy of the battleship's guns, and with the inability of Vice-Admiral Kruger's squadron to interfere with her career tacitly admitted by retiring them from commission, this desperate expedient was seized upon to prevent international complications, and to rid the Black Sea of mutineers.

This problem for a single destroyer, which is difficult and dangerous at best, as she will have to encounter both the Kniaz Potemkine and her attendant torpedo boat, is now complicated by the departure of the battleship from Kustenji, and ignorance as to where she will next turn up; but the despatch from Kustenji throws a gleam of hope on the dark situation by intimating that a considerable number of her crew are anxious to desert their leaders and to escape the consequences of their mutinous actions.

The admiralty, however, it should be stated, does not admit that the Smetilvy has gone on such an errand, tho the officials say frankly that the Kniaz Potemkine must in law be regarded as a pirate.

As much as Russia, as a matter of principle, would like to see the provisions of the treaty of Paris, closing the Dardanelles, abrogated, the foreign office would oppose the passage of foreign warships as a temporary expedient, declaring the occasion did not warrant such a measure.

WHERE WAR INTEREST NOW IS CENTERED.

ROUMANIAN WAR SHIP SENDS SHOT ACROSS BOWS OF THE MUTINEERS

Authorities Refuse to Allow Provisions to Be Taken Aboard, and Black Sea Pirates Leave for Parts Unknown.

Bucharest, Roumania, July 3.—The Russian torpedo boat No. 267, accompanying the Kniaz Potemkine, attempted to enter the port of Kustenji to-day. The Roumanian cruiser Elizabetha fired on the torpedo, but failed to hit her. The torpedo boat then retired. The Kniaz Potemkine left Kustenji this afternoon. It is stated she is returning to Odessa.

These incidents followed the refusal of the crew of the Kniaz Potemkine to accept the government's offer, made thru the captain of the port, who positively announced that the mutineers would not be allowed to receive provisions unless they came ashore unarmed and delivered up the battleship and torpedo boat to the captain of the port. If these conditions were fulfilled the mutineers would be given their liberty to go where they pleased. The rebellions steamers conferred together to refuse the government's order, and renewed their demand for provisions.

This was again positively refused by the captain of the port, whereupon the Russian torpedo boat attempted to enter the port, but on being fired on by the Elizabetha and evidently awed by the firm stand taken by the authorities, she decided to retire.

Ready to Fight.

The port authorities at Kustenji, Roumania, were instructed to call upon the 750 mutineers on board the Kniaz Potemkine to land from that vessel without arms, informing them that they would be treated as foreign deserters while in Roumania. In the event of the refusal of the mutineers to submit to these conditions or of hostile action against the town, the Roumanian warships were ordered to use force.

There was much excitement on board the Kniaz Potemkine, where differences of opinion exist between the leaders, some of whom advocated landing in Roumania, while others proposed to return to Russia and join the other mutinous ships. The prefect of Kustenji permitted a delegation of the mutineers to enter the town. The sailors reported that the Black Sea fleet not only did not try to capture the Kniaz Potemkine, but that the crews of the ships openly rejoiced when the rebel battleship left Odessa.

The crew of the Russian gunboat Psezouape, new at Kustenji, met some of the crew of the Kniaz Potemkine ashore and fraternized with them, the sailors embracing one another.

Major Negru, the military commandant at Kustenji, reports that he was received on board the Kniaz Potemkine by an engineer cadet, attended by a numerous guard. The cadet informed him that the murder of the seaman Omilchuk was merely a pretext for the revolt, all having been previously arranged by a revolutionary committee.

Odessa Grows Brave.

Odessa, July 3.—(8.36 p.m.)—The fact that the Kniaz Potemkine remains on the high seas, in charge of the mutineers, is causing so much apprehension and uneasiness to the population of Odessa that the government has resolved to take the matter in hand and to show no further hesitation, even tho the measures adopted involve the loss of the battleship and the torpedo boat destroyer here. The torpedo boats received orders this afternoon to attack and sink the Kniaz Potemkine on sight. The torpedo boat destroyer now here was reinforced this afternoon by two torpedo boats, and others are expected. Sixty-seven mutineers from the Georgi Pobledonosetz were brought ashore and imprisoned in the citadel.

British Ship Freed.

The British consul-general this evening released the five vessels which had been held in readiness to remove the British subjects. The consul-general considers that all danger has passed. The Cranley incident is ended. The officials, in the presence of the vice-consul, carefully inspected the vessel and found no trace of revolutionists, and the Russian officials apologized to the consul-general.

Peasant Disturbances.

Peasant disturbances in the neighborhood of Odessa are giving rise to much apprehension. The peasants are forcibly occupying lands and seizing live stock. Troops have been sent to suppress the disorders. The authorities here are preparing energetically to clean up the town, and are giving work to 20,000 persons who have been out of employment as the result of the disturbances.

Turks Will Hold Fort.

Constantinople, July 3.—The Turkish officials at Anadoli-Kavak, Asia Minor, at the entrance of the Bosphorus, are taking precautions to prevent the possible use of that port by the mutineers of the Kniaz Potemkine. The Turks will not permit the battleship to pass thru the Bosphorus after sunset. They even stopped the Russian guardship at Constantinople with a blank shot when returning with Ambassador Zinovioff after a short cruise in the Black Sea.

More Mutiny at Cronstadt.

Cronstadt, July 3.—The crew of the Russian cruiser Minine refused to put to sea to-day with the other vessels of the active squadron, alleging that the age and bad condition of the Minine prevented her participation in gun practice and manoeuvring. Ringleaders of this mutiny were arrested, and the Minine was towed close to a fort, where she is now anchored.

St. Petersburg, July 3.—(7.30 p.m.)—Late this evening a rumor was current here that the port of Cronstadt had been closed to foreign shipping, and that all commercial vessels there had been ordered to St. Petersburg.

Strike in Ship Yards.

St. Petersburg, July 3.—The strike of the Nevsky ship yards, which began yesterday, became general to-day. There is marked excitement in labor circles. Leaflets are being scattered broadcast detailing the recent events at Lodz and Odessa.

During the afternoon there were several collisions between the police and strikers on the Schlusselburg causeway, and the Cossacks, who were summoned, charged and dispersed the workmen with their whips.

'Rah for the Glorious.

Hurrah for the fourth of July!
The day when our Yankee friends try
To take the long scoot by the fire-cracker route
Or put out the juvenile's eye.
When the fourth comes along it's a sign
That the sun's going to shed a warm shine.
Keep as cool as you can. The up-to-date man
Wears Dineen's sailor hat. It feels fine.

CHURCH AND STATE DIVIDE AMID INTENSE EXCITEMENT

After a Long Fight French Chamber of Deputies Pass Momentous Bill.

Paris, July 3.—The bill for the separation of church and state passed the chamber of deputies late to-night by the decisive vote of 341 to 233. The result was greeted by governmental cheers and opposition hisses, and there was intense excitement. When the result was officially given out after midnight, there was renewed clamor, participated in by those in the crowded galleries and lobbies, as well as by those on the floor of the chamber.

This most important legislation effecting the long established social and religious conditions of France becomes an accomplished fact so far as the chamber of deputies is concerned. Supporters of the government congratulated themselves on concluding before the long vacation the heavy task which has occupied almost the entire time of the lower house since March 22. The opponents of the measure utilized every means to prevent the bill becoming a law before the approaching general elections, moving no fewer than 250 amendments, which were rejected. The discussion of one of these amendments some times occupied whole sittings.

The committee charged with seeing the enactment of the bill thru the house showed a very reasonable spirit by accepting suggestions from all sides in order to render the bill as liberal as possible, at the same time taking every precaution to avoid leaving loopholes for political intrigue.

The system swept away by this bill dates from 1801, when the famous "concordat" was signed by Pius the Seventh and Napoleon. This gave religion governmental status, the churches being government property with the clergy paid by the state and the entire church administration being under the direction of a member of the president's cabinet. The new system abolishes all laws and regulation under the concordat and terminates the authority of the concordat itself.

The general principle of the measure as finally adopted by the chamber of deputies is as follows:

"The republic assures liberty of conscience and guarantees the free exercise of religion subject to the restriction of public order. The republic neither recognizes, pays stipends to, nor subsidizes any sect, but provides funds for colleges, hospitals and asylum chaplains. Otherwise, the public worship budget is abolished and public establishments connected with religion are suppressed."

The most active contest took place over the proposition whereby the priceless riches of the church, consisting of collections made during many centuries, tapestries and statuary, were to be passed to the state. This was finally modified so that civil organizations retain control of the goods of the church.

THREE BOYS ON A RAFT

Have Narrow Escape From Drowning in Georgian Bay.

Collingwood, July 3.—A drowning accident was narrowly averted to-day by the presence of mind of an 8-year-old boy and his two brothers, aged 4 and 6.

The three boys, sons of Policeman Willison, went down to the town park on the lake shore about 10 o'clock, and the two older boys went in for a swim, taking their little brother with them on a raft.

There was a severe strong wind blowing off shore and before the little fellows were aware of it they were drifting out into the lake.

Some one discovered their clothes, and a searching party was organized. The little fellows were given up for lost, but as a forlorn hope a launch was secured and steamed out into the bay. When darkness was coming on they caught sight of a tiny speck and made for it.

The three boys were still clinging to the raft, which was a very frail structure, and would have gone to pieces on the sea, which was becoming heavier as they went out.

They were nearly ten miles from land.

MAY COME TO ST. CLEMENT'S

It has been rumored in church circles in Toronto that Rev. E. H. Capp, a graduate of Wycliffe, now rector of St. Luke's Protestant Cathedral, Sault Ste. Marie, is to succeed Rev. F. C. Heathcott as rector of St. Clement's. Mr. Capp is one of the cleverest of the young men in the Anglican ministry.

A valuable addition to the historical lore of Canada has just been published by Rev. Mr. Capp, entitled "The Story of Ban-a-ting," being the annals of Sault Ste. Marie. The work shows a great amount of research into ancient history, and treats upon the Indians, their legends and traditions prior to coming of the French, the wars of 1812 to 1815, the Fenian raid and the growth of the town from its earliest inception. The Hudson Bay Company and its influence in the district is not overlooked, and the various events in wars touching the town have been well followed thru official archives. The book is well illustrated with ancien tand modern engravings, and contains much of interest to the present generation of the northern town. The edition has been limited to 300.

ONE DAY'S TRAGEDIES IN THE CITY'S LIFE

TIRED OF WAYWARD LIFE YOUNG WOMAN DRINKS ACID

Lulu Wilkinson, Discharged From Mercer, Commits Suicide Before Crowds on Simcoe Street.

Dead by her own hand, Lulu Wilkinson lies in the morgue of the Emergency Hospital. She had drunk the bitter dregs of a wayward life, and, to end it all, she swallowed carbolic acid in the sight of a passing crowd, and, tho rushed to the hospital, the poison had done its deadly work. She was then beyond mortal aid.

Shortly before 9 o'clock the woman went into the Hargreaves Drug Store on West Queen-street, near University-avenue, and asked the clerk for a quantity of carbolic acid. She was handed the bottle containing the poison and was asked to sign the record book. As she did so, her hand trembled. She signed her name "Lulu Wilkinson, 65 Ulster-street."

Walking quickly out of the door, she crossed Queen-street and stood for a moment on the other side. Afterwards she sought out a dark doorway, the entrance to the old Waverley Club, near Simcoe-street. Standing there in the shadow, she raised the bottle to her lips and swallowed the poison. In doing so, the acid spilled over her mouth and lower part of her face.

She walked to the pavement, and, half walking, half fainting, turned the corner of Simcoe-street, and sank to her knees, giving vent to a wild scream of agony. Pedestrians stopped and rushed to her aid.

P. C. Bob Graham, who was on Queen-street at the time, saw the crowd collect, and ran to the spot. Lifting her in his arms, the policeman carried her to the drug store, where she had bought the poison and telephoned for the ambulance. She was taken to the hospital, where she died in a few moments.

A policeman of the second district was sent to the address given by the woman when she secured the poison, and found that her uncle, Robert Armstrong, resided there. He said that the woman had been committed to the Mercer some time ago, and had finished serving her sentence only two days ago. She had not visited him since her release, and he was at a loss to give any reason for her act other than she was tired of the wayward life she had led.

GODERICH ELEVATOR BURNS.

Held Over 320,000 Bushels of Wheat —Loss Will Be Great.

Goderich, July 3.—The Goderich Elevator and Transit Co.'s elevator was totally destroyed by fire this afternoon, together with about 320,000 bushels of wheat in storage.

The elevator was valued at $130,000 and insured for $95,000. There was also $5000 insurance on the power-house adjoining, which was saved, slightly damaged.

It is impossible to ascertain to-night the amount of the insurance on the wheat, each owner having placed his own insurance, and most of it is owned by outside parties.

The wind happened to be blowing across the harbor, or the Goderich Milling Company's elevator would also likely have been destroyed.

London, July 3.—The fight between the Allan and Donaldson lines is attracting many emigrants at £3 10s per head. By going via Glasgow emigrants save over a £1. The diversion is so serious that the Liverpool lines, the C.P.R. and the Dominion are considering a like reduction. This, it is thought, would mean instant renewal of the rate war all along the line.

SEES LITTLE CHUM DROWN SAYS NOTHING OF ACCIDENT

Drowning of 7-Year-Old Harry Hale Not Discovered Till Four Hours Afterwards.

After seeing his 7-year-old chum, Harry Hale of 90 St. David-street, drowned in the Don in an effort to untie an old punt yesterday afternoon, John Scott, a 10-year-old lad, took to his heels and ran home. Neither Scott's parents nor the mother of the drowned lad knew anything of the fatality until four hours later, when the latter's anxiety over his absence prompted her to make a search. It was then that young Scott told of the drowning. The two lads had gone away together shortly after dinner to spend the first day of their summer holidays in play. They wandered down to the foot of Cornwall-street, where an old punt was tied to the bank.

"Come on for a row," said young Scott. "You untie the boat."

The younger lad tried to do so, but when he saw the accident imminent, but the body of the woman was then underneath the fore part of the boat. When the mangled form was pulled from beneath, it presented a most horrible sight.

The woman was picked up and carried to the sidewalk and was then removed to the hospital. Examination showed that the bones had been so mashed that amputation was necessary. The she is weak from the loss of blood, the woman has a chance for recovery.

JOLTED FROM HIS WAGON DRIVER DIES FROM SHOCK

Wagon Seat Upsets, Throwing Father and Son Out—Father Picked Up Dead.

Jolted off his delivery wagon, James Marchmont, aged 48, of 513 Preston-street, fell upon his head upon the pavement and died from the shock last night. The accident happened at the corner of Manchester and Ossington-avenue.

Marchmont, who was driving a light delivery wagon, came down Manchester-avenue, and when he turned on Ossington the wheels of the wagon struck the cartracks. When the wagon settled back it upset the seat of the wagon and spilled the man and a son, who was in the wagon, to the pavement. In the fall Marchmont struck one of the wheels, which caused him to fall headforemost upon the pavement. He lay there senseless, and when the son righted himself he called to his father to get into the wagon again.

Surprised at receiving no answer the boy lifted his father and noticed that he had lost consciousness. Persons who had witnessed the accident rushed to the side of the stricken man and took him to one of the houses of the neighborhood.

Dr. R. R. Conboy of Bloor-street was summoned, but the man was beyond the reach of medical aid by the time he arrived. Injury to the spine and the probable breaking of a small artery in the brain was the cause of death. The deceased leaves a wife and eleven children. DOCTORS ON THEIR METTLE WILL HOLD MASS MEETING

Hard Set Against Board of Control's Recommendation to Give $200,000 Toward New Hospital.

There are somed octors who do not want the city council to give $200,000 to aid a new hospital on College-street, near Queen's Park. A few of them met yesterday afternoon in the nurses' home, near the eWstern Hospital, and the outcome of the meeting was a decision to call a mass meeting of all the doctors in the city at some hall down town on Thursday afternoon. A circular will be sent to-day to all the local members of the profession, and also an invitation to the members of the Ontario Medical Council, now in session, to come and discuss the matter. The hall will be announced to-day. Another meeting will be held to-night at Grace Hospital.

Altho the doctors who are protesting, affirm that they are only doing so as ratepayers, who object to such a large sum being expended upon what they consider an extravagant and unnecessary project without the taxpayers of the city voting upon it, there is much more to the protest. They claim that the influence of the medical college was sufficient to have the bill railroaded thru the legislature in the dying hours of the session and that it is putting the city in the business of educating young men for the medical profession, and that if money is needed for this purpose the students should be asked to pay more fees.

There is no doubt about it. The opposition comes largely from the smaller hospitals in the city. They feel it will create a very hard competition for them if a new hospital is endowed on such a grand scale as is proposed, and at yesterday's meeting it was stated that it was designed to injure all the other hospitals, and possibly put them out of existence. They want it to go to the people, and then if the money is given, the rights of the medical profession must be respected and a strict provision made that doctors not on the staff of the hospital must have the privilege of seeing their patients in the hospital if the patients want them to. It was asserted that the privilege of attending private patients in the general hospital was only obtained "after some of your humble servants kicked the door open a few years ago." The doctors who protest are opposed to autocratic government of hospitals. They are not allowed to visit city patients in the general hospital who are entirely under the care of the hospital staff.

Say Students Should Pay More.

Dr. A. A. Macdonald, Dr. P. E. McKenzie, Dr. McCulla, Jr., and Dr. Palmer were appointed to arrange for a hall. Dr. Hunter, Dr. Spence and Dr. J. DIES AT ST. MICHAEL'S

Rev. Father Guinane, Well-Known Priest, Dies Aged 51.

The death of Rev. Father Guinane at St. Michael's Hospital last night removes a brilliant scholar and teacher from the Roman Catholic Church. Father Guinane was a son of John Guinane and was born in this city 51 years ago. His education was largely received at St. Michael's College, in which, after his graduation, he taught for a number of years. For a long time he was engaged in England as a teacher on the staff of Plymouth College. At the time of his illness he occupied the chair of philosophy in Sandwich College. Some six weeks ago he was removed to St. Michael's College. He is survived by three brothers, Dr. Guinane, William and John, all of this city.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

Day of Explosion Accidents Will Bring Visitors Here.

Boom of firecracker, toy cannon and the torpedo will announce the incoming of another Fourth of July in every city, town and hamlet of our sister country across the line this morning. This is the day they celebrate, the great national holiday. To those that wish to escape the din and noise that their more enthusiastic fellow-countrymen delight in, a trip to this country is counted upon as a good way of escaping.

By boat and rail this city has always been the great holiday point for those living close to this part of the border, and there is but little doubt that Toronto will be visited by thousands of their Yankee cousins to-day.
