City Council Takes No Action Regarding Stanley Street Track

Matter Awaits Arrival of President Currie — Council May Have Tracks Torn Up and Relaid—Vehicles Barred From Victoria Park.

The city council met twice Monday night for general business, and despite the two meetings took no action regarding paving the Stanley street track allowance other than deciding to await the arrival from Cleveland of Charles Currie, president of the London Street Railway Company. He will arrive here in the near future, possibly this week, when a consultation on the problem will be in order.

Secret Session.

The council met in the chambers at 8 p.m., and shortly thereafter adjourned to the public utilities commission rooms, where City Solicitor Meredith explained legal technicalities which are involved in the Stanley street controversy. Representatives of the press were barred from this private session, but Mayor Little informed the reporters afterward, that the solicitor has stated that the council may have the car tracks on Stanley street torn up and relaid or ballasted with paving placed on the track allowance, charging the company for same.

Following this information the council decided to await President Currie's arrival. The solicitor also informed the city fathers he was taking steps to collect the amount due the city for paving the track allowance on Rectory street, and it is possibly due to trouble over this account that the council shelved the Stanley street problem.

Paving Deferred.

Paving of Central avenue from Richmond to Adelaide streets, and Adelaide street north, was deferred, pending consultation with President Currie, as there are street car tracks on these thoroughfares. Considerable discussion was in order regarding the civic paving program, Ald. Cameron Wilson moving that tenders be called for this work, stating that prices as submitted by City Engineer H. A. Brazier seemed high.

Ald. W. A. Wilson declared that delay involved in calling for tenders would throw many civic employees out of work. Ald. Bridge suggested that sufficient work be authorized to keep the employees busy while tenders are called for other jobs. City Engineer Brazier stated that the sheet asphalt pavement to be laid on Grosvenor street from William to Adelaide would keep his department busy for two weeks, and that he purposed, if authorized to do so, to commence grading on this job today.

He declared that the same unit price is prevalent now as two months ago. Prices would drop in his prediction, particularly if labor wages dropped. He was instructed to go ahead with this work, but other paving was ordered to be sent to No. 2 committee for tenders to be called, with the exception of Cynthia street between Bruce street and Byron avenue, which has been petitioned for by the ratepayers.

Urges Call For Tenders.

Ald. Wenige urged that tenders be called on other jobs, and Ald. Cameron Wilson, supporting him, declared that it is time to call a halt on two-thirds votes for such work. He declared that the people do not wish the paving at high prices, and that to authorize it is an imposition on them. He suggested that the council await petitions before authorizing paving.

Ald. Watt ventured that although the workers on these jobs required consideration, the ratepayers require similar treatment. Ald. Ashton stated that civic employees must work in summer, and that unless they were given work would be required to accept charity.

Barred From Park.

The council enacted a bylaw closing Victoria Park to vehicular traffic. An amendment by Ald. F. E. Harley that only the corner entrances of the park be closed was lost. Ald. Cameron Wilson declared that three streets bounding the park are paved, and that the sides open to traffic by Ald. Harley's amendment included the sites of two fatalities due to autos in the park. He stated that the park is not safe for children with autos in any part of it.

"Keep them out," he urged. "Two side gates open will nullify the effect of the whole bylaw."

Ald. Watkinson declared the park to be public property, and as such no one should be deprived of entrance to it. He pleaded consideration for the aged, sick and infirm, who must go in autos. A reduced speed limit, in his opinion, would assist greatly. Ald. Wenige stated that while these people must be considered, the greater number of people must also be similarly treated.

Ald. W. A. Wilson favored closing the park to autos "whether a mossback or not." Yeas for the bylaw were Ald. Cameron Wilson, Wenige, Watt, W. A. Wilson, Childs, Drake and Ashton. Nays Ald. Watkinson Harley, Bridge and Boss. On motion of Ald. W. A. Wilson the council decided to request the Public Utilities Commission to install a drinking fountain for horses in the vicinity of Richmond street V at Central avenue.

Investigate Prices.

On the motion of Ald. Bridge, City Clerk S. Baker was instructed to write to Attorney-General Raney and to the department of justice at Ottawa asking what steps the council should take to secure the right to empower a commission to investigate the local bread situation. Ald Bridge opined that if the council has not this right it should have.

"Oh, well, we'll be selling bread at ten cents a loaf in London soon," commented Ald. Drake. "They are selling it at this price in Toronto now."

William Murray, architect, appearing on behalf of The London Advertiser, was granted permission to construct a safety elevator lift in the boulevard on York street near Richmond, at the site of the new offices of this firm. The Dairymen's Association was invited to convene at London, January 9, 1922, the council granting this body the use of a hall for the occasion.

Services Retained.

Recommendations of the London Board of Health that H. Boss be retained as assistant sanitary inspector, and that Dr. C. S. Tamlin be re-engaged at a salary of $2,000 per annum were passed after Chairman O. I. Cunningham of the board of health pointed out that these men are essential to carry out work required by law. Ald. Ashton complained of fishmongers tooting horns as a nuisance in city streets, but no action was taken on the matter.

I. B. S. DECIDES TO HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

Edward C. Killingsworth Installed As President Last Night.

When the executive of the Irish Benevolent Society met in the Tecumseh House last night, there was a suggestion that the annual picnic be held as usual, and it was decided that a meeting to arrange the matter be held at the call of the chair.

Edward C. Killingsworth was installed as president, taking the place of John Aitken, last year's officer. E. C. Carty remarked that the society never had a better president than Mr. Aitken, for he had made no enemies and many friends. He felt sure that Mr. Killingsworth would have equally as good a record when his term of office expired. The following new officers were elected: Treasurer, Ed. Geogehegan; third vice-president, Jack Greer; secretary, Harry Bennett.

THEATRES

AT LOEW'S THEATRE.

Despite the excessive heat there was a fairly large audience at Loew's Theatre yesterday. All of the vaudeville acts were good, the first one, Rainbow and Mohawk, two Indians, being slightly superior to the others. Wallace Reid in "The Love Special," as usual, delighted the patrons. It is a story of the rugged Rockies at the time when railroads were being built to connect the east and the west. Reid takes the part of an engineer who thinks nothing of changing the course of a river in a few days. Of course he meets the girl and there is a happy ending.

Rainbow, and Mohawk have a turn that pleases. They compare the Indians of the past and of the 20th century in song, story and the dance.

Dae and Neville present a sketch dealing with the storm and strife of domestic life.

Fred Rogers, a negro monologue artist and dancer, to use a common street expression, "Shakes a wicked pair of feet."

AT THE ALLEN.

In "Something to Think About," the headliner at the Allen Theatre, Theodore Roberts and Gloria Swanson have roles entirely different from those usually enacted by these stars. Unless one really knew, it would be extremely difficult to recognize in the bewhiskered blacksmith "Luke" the debonair society figure, or the keen businessman so often and so successfully portrayed by Roberts. It is a tribute to his ability that he brings to the part of the blacksmith the same finished interpretation that has made him famous in other roles.

There is comparatively little comedy but a great deal of human interest in "Something to Think About." The situations are such as frequently happen in real life and because they are true to real life, they are usually filled with pathos instead of humor. Gloria Swanson as Ruth, the little daughter of "Luke," has to make ac hoice between marrying a cripple who is really a fine chap and to whom she owes her education, and Jim Dirk, a handsome young farmer. She has promised her father, who is a warm friend of the cripple, that she will marry him. He is overjoyed at the prospect, as owing to his infirmity he would never have thought of asking her. He makes elaborate preparations for the wedding and buys the girl beautiful gifts. Dirk puts it up to her to marry the man she loves and on the eve of her wedding she flees with him to the city. A few month later Dirk is killed in an accident and the penniless girl after many hardships drifts back home to find that her father turns her out, being angered at her action in turning down the cripple. She is about to end her troubles when the cripple finds her and offers her a home, although he tells her his love for her is dead. She accepts and finally wins his love again.

In addition to the headliner there is a Snub Pollard comedy "Where's The Fire," and the Pictorial News.

SNELGROVE REUNION HELD AT SPRINGBANK

A most enjoyable time was spent at Springbank Park, when about 125 members and relatives of the Snelgrove family gathered to spend the day together. Members of the family were present from London, Mount Brydges, Strathroy, Glencoe, Windsor, Aylmer, Belmont, Lambeth and Delaware.

After a splendid dinner the family met in a pleasant spot, where Mr. Stanley Snelgrove of Aylmer led a meeting, at which arrangements were made for the next Snelgrove family reunion to be held on July 1, 1922, at Springbank. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President, Mr. Stanley Snelgrove, Aylmer; vice-president, Mr. Charles E. Rogers, Belmont; secretary, Miss Clara M. Waters, Mount Brydges; treasurer, Mr. A. R. Bond, Lambeth.

A sports committee, consisting of Messrs. George Snelgrove of Glencoe, Frank Snelgrove of Aylmer, and Gordon Rodgers of Belmont, was also elected.

After spending a pleasant afternoon in the park the family assembled again in the pavilion to enjoy another meal. In the evening all left Springbank, being delighted with the success of the day.
