HE WAS A POWERFUL EXHORTER.

Belfast, Me., used to have an eccentric citizen of whom many stories are told. This man, known as Archie Harden, was once told by a lady that somebody had stolen her axe. "O ho," said he, "I'll get it for you." He appointed a prayer meeting for the next evening and after talking a while, he stopped, looked over the congregation a moment, and said: "Somebody has stolen sister P's axe, and if it is not brought back to-morrow morning, I will tell who has it. Glory to God." The axe was leaning against the wood pile next morning. It is also claimed that he reformed a kicking cow by praying for her, and that he once corrected a brother minister by stopping him in the middle of a sermon and praying over the mistake which he said the preacher had just made.

If you wish a fine imported Havana cigar, three for a quarter mild or strong, call at Louis Green's, 59 King street; satisfaction guaranteed.

Party Feeling Aroused.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE GAZETTE.

Sir,—My action at the meeting in Carleton re the sending of a delegation to Fredericton to obtain a free ferry for Carleton, has aroused among a certain class of the electors of Brook's ward a feeling of bitter hostility to me which I very much regret, but this is only an excuse I fear, for it has been hinted that my active connection with a certain society, and the several speeches that I have made at its gatherings, would forever bar my re-enterance into public life; and I may add that threats have reached me to that effect. I now wish to state publicly that if I never am successful in a ward or other election until I cease to be an active working member of that society and publicly advocate what I hold dear, I will never be an Alderman or representative. Some of the friends of Mr. Timothy Donovan lay the blame of his not being appointed a delegate upon me. They are wrong. I from a spirit of fair play, said to Mr. O'Brien my co-committee man, that I felt that Mr. Donovan should be one of the delegates. He said "no! I will never agree to it." I then argued with him but he insisted. I then said, I don't want to go into that meeting without making a report and I dropped the further urging the name of Mr. Donovan and yet I am to receive for my pains all the blame in this matter. I did more than Donovan would have done for me and that class of people knowing that I did act as fair as I could consistantly in the matter I cannot but feel that there are other and stronger reasons why they intend to vote solidly against me. Let them do so. I never carried into the common council any feeling of bigotry, and can point to many instances of where I cast my vote while there to give that class of people their rights, and gave them the preferance for office when strongly urged and even threatened by my best friends not to do so. And as it was stated to night, my reward is to be they will vote solidly against you; for what? because I would not unduly urge the appointment of Donoran and give him a chance to air himself before a Committee of the Legislature on a subject that requires the best talent in Carleton to discuss successfully. And with due respect to Mr. Donovan, I think the men that are going are better adapted for the mission than he. Let me say, I regret exceedingly that I have been obliged to make this public, but when I find the "leaders" arousing such a feeling against me among the Roman Catholics, it is time for me to ask the solid Protestant vote of Brook's ward to stand by me for once, and show these men that improper and unfair canvasses shall not prevail against one who has strong opinions and is not afraid to act on them when called upon, but who has ever manifested a spirit of fair play toward those who are now seeking to arouse that feeling, and who never allowed those opinions to enter into the business of the Common Council, and would not unless some question arose between the two parties; in which event I should, of course, vote for what I believe in.

It has been said that a certain telegram which was signed by me and others has something to do with this feeling. Let me say to the "reporter" who has been secretly injuring me among the Roman Catholics that I under the same circumstances would sign another. I fear I have already taken up too much time but I want no votes on the understanding that I will ever change my opinions or be less active in the society of which I have the honor to be connected with. Thanking you for your valuable space.

I am your obt. servt.
G. A. DAVIS.

SPIRIT OF THE TIMES.

Skating

AN EXCITING CONTEST.

The "grand tournament" under the patronage of Frank Dowd, at Victoria rink last evening, was not wholly a success. The spectators numbered some twenty-seven, while the contestants were limited to three. However not to be overcome by difficulties the contestents amalgamated, and gave the spectators a half hour of exciting enjoyment—the three-mile race. Dowd, Dingee, and Foster struggled hard to see who would come in last, and Foster succeeded, leaving the track at the end of fifteen minutes, utterly exhausted. Dowd and Dingee continued amid the cheers of the multitude, gliding so rapidly around as to be lost to view for some time, and ending with one grand spurt calculated to impress on the minds of the awe-stricken cranks some idea of what a professional race means. Dingee won, Dowd second. More than seventy-five cents changed hands.

Baseball.

THE METAPHYSICS OF PITCHING.

An editorial writer in the London News—in the course of a column article, says of the American game of baseball:—The cunning of the good "pitcher" is almost beyond belief. He can pitch as from a catapult, but that is nothing. The ball that comes so swiftly may come with a treachery proportioned to its speed. What of the twist—not unknown, of course, in cricket—but more varied in this underhand style of throw? And what of the twist that not only baffles the eye, but the mind itself? For there are fair balls and there are foul balls in this as in most games and the twist, adroitly administered, may make fair seem foul or foul seem fair. Now, a fair ball counts; a strike, whether the batsman strike at it or not; and to decline it just because it has been artfully made to look like a foul by its mode of flight, is a ruinous business. The lawful treachery of this game, therefore, runs into metaphysics for subtlety, and it has not yet been settled by the moralists whether a first-rate baseball "pitcher" can possibly be a perfect man. It is understood that he has to exercise very severely for candor and openness of mind on leaving the field. Lest anything should be wanting to commend it, let us hasten to say that baseball is dangerous enough to necessitate the occasional use of a wire mask. When the catcher is playing close behind the batsman, some protection of this kind is required. The batsman too has his chance of hurt. The Americans are quite foolish about baseball, which is only another way of saying that they are wise enough to like it thoroughly. They spend immense sums on it, and the thousands in which they throng to witness a good game have been known to amount to thirty upon a memorable occasion.

In the run for the southern counties, (Eng.) championship for juniors, the Falcon Harriers won first honors, but the actual winner belonged to the club that finished fourth. H. Whittick was the man, and he ran the estimated distance of 10 miles in 57m. 46 1-5s.

DANGER!
People having Feather beds and Pillows do not seem to realize the danger there is in using them without being cleaned, especially in times of an epidemic, as feathers retain all the exhalations and poisonous matter exuding from the person, and by so doing spread sickness through the family.
Our steam cleansing process eliminates all the poisonous matter and leaves the feathers in a better condition than ever.
