PEDALING MADE EASY.

The Genius of Edison Goes to the Aid of Bicyclists.

It has been stated repeatedly that Thomas A. Edison had invented an electric attachment for propelling bicycles. The Wizard denies it.

"I know how the story started," he said to an Associated Press reporter the other day. "I have been experimenting with any attachment to a bicycle for my own personal use and for special conditions. My house in Llewellyn Park, Orange, is about one-sixth of a mile from my laboratory and 80 feet higher up on the mountain side. So, in order to save myself a heavy pull when I went home in the middle of the day, I designed a heavy spring, just large enough for the purpose, which was to be wound up by power from the laboratory engine, and attached to the bicycle before I started up the hill. I wanted this spring to supply most of the energy for the ascent. Of course, there is nothing electrical about it at all; it is a purely mechanical construction.

"The device is to be so arranged that when riding down hill, or even on a level, the rider can at will throw the spring into gear, and by degrees wind it up to its limit. Then, when a hill is to be climed, or the rider wishes to stop working for a short distance on the level, he can turn on the power and let the spring give back some of the energy stored up in it. It can be arranged so that the spring can be wound up gradually, so as not to make pedaling much heavier when on the level, and should, I think, be of sufficient power to carry a rider a thousand feet or so on a good road with no upgrade without his doing any work."

THE HORSELESS AGE.

New York Firms May Try a Gas Motor Delivery Service.

The horseless age is almost uponus. The fact is heralded by the needless improvements in the modern methods of locomotion, the cable, trolley, car, gas motors, the bicycles. Whether our useful equine friend will object to such a state of affairs remains to be seen, but certainly some of the specie, such as we daily see, bony, lame, knee sprung, dragging the heavy stage, the heavy street car, or the clumsy truck, will think the Millennium Dawn is surely here. Societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals will also have to seek other fields for their energies.

It is whispered in New York that an attempt is soon to be made to operate the department store delivery wagons by gas motors. The feasibility of such a move has been demonstrated by the numerous races for horseless carriages held quite recently in France. Some of these unique vehicles maintained an average rate of over fifteen miles an hour.—Hardware.

Art of Flesh Reducing.

It is much easier to acquire flesh than to lose it. There is no royal road to beauty for those inclined to plumpness, and many are the things they are obliged to do to scare off fat.

An Englishman reduced his weight in one year from 202 to 150 pounds, and kept it there. He lived on beef, mutton, fish, bacon, dry toast, poultry, game, tea, coffee, claret and sherry.

Dr. Schweninger, the famous German physician, who has established his reputation as a flesh-reducer through his succes in ridding Prince Bismarck of forty pounds avoirdupois in three months, without the slightest deleterious effect upon his distinguished patient's physical condition, restricts the consumption of liquids at all times, and deprives the patient entirely of fluids during or within an hour of meals, forbids starch and sugar and advises most heroic physical exercise.

Physical exercise will, we all know, reduce flesh. The reason is, that in unusual exercise, such as rapid walking, horseback riding, gymnastics or bicycling, the blood is more rapidly oxygenated and the result is the destruction or burning out of the fat; and you may have noticed that great walkers are never fat, and that people who live in high altitudes and mountainous countries, where they walk a great deal and consume quantities of oxygen, are always slim.

Sleeplessness is due to nervous excitement. The delicately constituted, the financier, the business man, and those whose occupation necessitates great mental strain or worry, all suffer less or more from it. Sleep is the great restorer of a worried brain, and to get sleep cleanse the stomach from all impurities with a few doses of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, gelatine coated, containing no mercury, and are guaranteed to give satisfaction or the money will be refunded.

Barnum & Bailey's Greatest Circus.

The Meers sisters are celebrated throughout Christendom as the most expert, graceful and exquisite principal trick bareback equestriennes, and a feature of the ring in the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth this year. The two charming ladies were engaged abroad by an agent of the show and make their American debut this season. Among their novel accomplishments are the latest French dances executed in long skirts on the bare backs of running horses. Sometimes both the young ladies are on one horse, again on separate horses, but all the while giving a series of highly sensational performanges. They will be here with the show on Monday next, on the grounds at King and Dufferin-streets.

Use the safe, pleasant and effectual worm killer, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator; nothing equals it. Procure a bottle and take it home.
