ported the contention of the states. He quoted Bluntschli, Riviere, F. De Martens, Sir Robert Phillimore, Sir Traverse Twiss, Sir Edward Creasy, Professor Westlake, and Dr. Oppenheim, who had recognized the right to fish in territorial waters of a state might constitute international "servitude" when the right had been granted inin perpetuity.

Mr. Turner said that Professor Pitt Cobbett, quoted by Sir Robert Finlay, was an English author who had written on the subject of American fishing rights after the question had been submitted to the court of arbitration, and declared his observations were distorted by national prejudice. Nevertheless he recognized this right to fish was "servitude." In the same way he said, Hall was influenced by national bias. Finally, Mr. Turner quoted American authorities—General Halleck, Dr. Barton Taylor and Wilson Tucker. All, said, were in favor of his argument.

In conclusion, he said this doctrine of "servitude" was so firmly established and so universally recognised that refusal to apply it in this special case would constitute a departure from or modification of existing international law.

COMMERCIAL

Financial Bulletin.

New York, June 25—Careful investigation by us up to this writing fails to reveal any serious reason for the selling movement that took place in the stock market yesterday beyond the fact that professionals had covered in many cases and gone long of stocks in anticipation of a Morgan demonstration that "forgot" to materialize after he returned, with the result that the aforesaid professionals sold out on each other and produced the reaction that occurred, as reactions will occur in a highly professional market like this one, upon the slightest pretext. There have been no new developments to justify the setback. The crop news to say the worst, is only conflicting, while the Wickersham address presents nothing new. There is little left in rumors to make up as excuses. We must expect sudden reversals sometimes without any reason in professional markets, dominated largely by technical conditions as at present. We could buy on heaviness today with stop order protection. The market may reverse itself again and suddenly. We do not find any change in the optimistic attitude of powerful financial interests.

Wall Street Notes.

New York, June 25—Congress expected to adjourn today.

Rains reported more general in Northwest.

J. J. Hill gone fishing in Labrador with Geo. F. Baker and Charles Steele, of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Bradstreet says in industrial lines there is little evidence of improvement yet to be seen. In cotton goods the movement is still in the direction of curtailment.

Duns' say business confidence gains in strength as crop outlook improves and adjournment of congress draws near.

TO REFORM WOMEN

Startling Innovations in a Glasgow Prison—Fortress Without, Fairy Palace Within

A prison for women, where there is a remarkable amount of freedom, where every woman has a looking-glass and where the prisoners are taught by a calisthenic instructor to walk gracefully and to regain their self-respect is one of Scotland's latest efforts at prison reform.

According to Charlotte Smith-Rossie, who writes on the subject in the "World's Work," the new gaol for women in Glasgow is a model prison. It is built on one of the most startling styles by an architect who understands that the most perfect discipline means the most perfect freedom.

"Outside, the model prison looks like a stone fortress; inside, like a fairy palace of white painted balconies and light, open iron staircases. It is built without the usual interior staircases and corridors—built in a series of radiating star-like wings divided from each other by lofty courts covered with glass. One single warder seated at the centre can control the whole 300 or 400 inmates at a glance. It needs no espionage, no watching, no degrading sense of suspecting and 'peeking' at each cell door." The cells are not kept fastlocked, like the English prison cells; yet the discipline is strict.

"Every kind of industry is taught that is possible—first-class laundry work, and the 'getting up' of fine linen—contracts being taken from the chief hotels, and the long lines of the laundry hung with the beautifully-ironed and startched blancherie. Professional cooks are hired to give instruction in the making of dishes, and especial stoves are brought into the prison chapel, where the demonstration takes place."

BATTLE OF ALIENISTS IN CHARLTON CASE

New York, June 25—As Porter Charlton entered this morning upon his full day as an inmate of the Hudson County Jail awaiting arraignment next Tuesday on a charge of murdering his wife, it seemed probable that his fate was to be decided by celebrated alienists. Judge Paul Charlton, the young prisoner's father believes young Porter to be mentally unbalanced, but has asked the alienist to determine the exact truth.

On the other hand, Capt. Henry Harrison Scott, the murdered woman's army officer brother, indicates his determination to press the charge against Charlton, secure his extradition to Italy, if possible and his trial for the crime.

A HINT

(Detroit Free Press.)

You needn't be rich to be good,
You needn't be great to be kind,
Big things you would do if you could,
But shirk not the small ones you find.
Waste never a chance to be sweet
By dreaming of what you would do,
If fortune should fall at your feet,
Be kind with what's given to you.

For it's not in the substance you give
Or the size of the gift you bestow,
The poorest and humblest may live
The kindliest lives here below.
Sweet charity's born of the heart
And not of the purse full of gold;
The point is, do your part
With what has been given you to hold.

Don't say that if riches you had
You'd make many happy today,
Right now you can make people glad,
If only you'll see it that way.
Be kind to the ones that you meet,
Be gentle, considerate and true,
Do the most in the home or the street
With what has been given to you.

Mrs. Fred. K. Smith and daughter Dorothy, arrived from Boston this morning to spend the summer with her mother, Mrs. C. Gleason. Mrs. Smith's sister, Miss Laura Gleason, who spent the winter with her, also came to St. John.

A despatch says that Abe Attell and Owen Moran fought ten rounds in Los Angeles last night. Attell won the newspaper decision.

SALE OF MORSE FURNISHINGS

First Day Brings In $13,850—One Couple Buy $8,000 Worth

(New York American).

The entire furnishings of the home of Mrs. Charles W. Morse, at No. 728 Fifth avenue, were placed on sale yesterday, when an auctioneer began at the top of the house and asked for a bid on every object he laid hands on. The house was crowded all day, and when the sale closed, at 6 p.m., $13,850 had been realized.

This morning the sale will be continued, when the furniture, art objects etc., in the lower part of the house will also go under the hammer.

Mrs. Morse was present through the sale. Her son, Harry, just from Yale, where he graduated this year, was with her. When asked which of the many hundred objects she was parting with was valued most from a sentimental point, she answered:

"Mere furniture cannot arouse my sympathy these days. For me there is only one sentiment—only one thing that interests—and the public knows full well what this is."

She referred to her husband, the convicted banker, who is serving a term in the Atalanta penitentiary for the commission of a felony. She has fought heroically—tirelessly—in the interests of this man, and now her one hope in life is to free him. The beautiful pictures, rugs, bedroom sets and other articles, all of which sold for such insignificant prices that the women present fairly gasped in amazement, failed to interest her—seemingly—at all. She sat in a little room, off from the place where Mr. Clarke, the auctioneer, sang out the bids offered, and was apparently the most uninterested person within sound of his voice.

But when the hammer fell upon her own particular belongings — —articles in her bedchamber, an exquisitely furnished room, done in rose brocade satin, it was evident that her heart nearly broke. Her jewel casket, a little ormolu case with perfume bottles, and her magnificent Venetian state bedstead, solid mahogany, with life-sized figures at the corners—were just a few of the articles there.

The bedstead was purchased—for only $750—by Mrs. Clarence M. Busch, of Great Neck, L. I. She and her husband bought, in all, about $8,000 worth of goods, and after the sale for the day was closed she was asked for an interview.

"I have nothing to say, except that I think these articles for sale here are simply wonderful. It seems to me it is a midsummer night's dream, so cheap are they, and of such gorgeous quality. Who am I? Simply Mrs. Busch, of Great Neck, formerly Miss Melbourne."

Some of the other articles Mrs. Busch bought were a mahogany writing desk, $88.50; mahogany Louis XVI, twin bedroom set, bureau, toilet table, commode, chairs, taboret, $940, and a massive mahogany bureau for $62.

THE INGLENOOK PHILOSOPHER of Kennebeccasis Bay.

"Did you ever know Tom Bumblebee?" asked Little Laura.

"I have known several Bumblebees," I replied, "but of Mr. Tom I have no distinct recollection."

"He lived in a tumble-down cabin on our hill; his wife and children were at the mercy of wind and rain, and frost; they never had honey enough in the cellar at night for their breakfast, and they were a starved and fretful and dejected looking lot. Tom said 'the spine of his back was weak, and that he was unable to do much work.' So he never got out to work before 10 or 11 o'clock in the morning, and when he set about to harvest his honey he found that Bill Honeybee had been there before him and he only got enough for his own dinner. When he had done this he would curl himself up in the heart of a rose or a clover blossom and sleep there till near sunset. Then his wife would put the children in bed supperless and devise a speech with which to welcome Tom when he got home. Altogether, it was a very unhappy household.

"One day the King of the Ants, whose castle stands not far from Tom's hovel, came upon Tom, asleep in a pumpkin blossom. He woke him by a smart punch with his cane.

Said he, "Tom, I was at your house the other day and found your wife fretting her heart out because her children were starving, and here I find you fast asleep in the middle of the day. Get up this instant and go to work."

"Tom rubbed his eyes and raised himself lazily. Said he: "It is of no use to work. When I come out in the morning I find that that villain, Joe Honeybee, has got ahead of me, and gathered all the honey, so what can I do but lie down and rest?"

"What can you do?" said King Ant, indignantly. "You can get up in the morning and get ahead of Joe Honeybee! I shall keep an eye on your family and if you don't provide for them properly, remember, there is a cell for you under my castle, and into it you go, and very soon after that you will find yourself in the soup."

This made Tom tremble, for he knew the Ants were very fond of Bumblebee soup. But Tom was lazy clear through, and he doubted if King Ant meant what he said; so he continued to neglect his family as before.

One day Tom disappeared, and not long after there was an odor of Bumblebee soup in the air around King Ant's castle, and on the hill Tom was seen no more forever. His children grew up and were industrious and they and Widow Bumblebee are living very happily in a new house which they keep very tidy, and it is said they set the best table in the neighborhood.

"If you don't like this story," said Little Laura," I shall never tell you another."

Whitehead, K. C., June 22.

ONE ON THE BOSS.

A quaint story of a master builder and a British workman is told by a trade journal. Having heard that the men did not start work at the proper time, the employer thought he would drop down about 6.30 one morning and see. Going up the yard he caught sight of a joiner standing smoking, with his kit not even opened. Simply asked his name which he found to be Malcolm Campbell, he called him into the office, and, handing him four days' pay, ordered him to leave at once. After seeing the man clear of the yard, he went up to the foreman and explained that he had made an example of Malcolm Campbell by paying him off for not starting at the proper hour. "Great Scot, sir!" ejaculated the foreman, "that chap was only lookin' for a job."

Mrs. McNeil, of Brussels street, has been reported for having a ferocious dog and letting it be unmuzzled. Yesterday it bit a boy named Bell.

COUNTESS OF WARWICK REJOINS SOCIALISTS

The Countess of Warwick, who has again returned to the Socialist party, in a recent speech characterized socialism as "the greatest cause in the world," but declared that she was heartily sick of the stereotyped party warfare now going on.

The countess declared that she was unable to understand how Christians could defend the present social system, which allowed the existence of starving children, homeless people, and foul slums as a suitable state of affairs in a Christian country.

S. L. Shannon, comptroller and treasurer, C. F. Burns, auditor of disbursements, and W. H. Estano, traffic auditor of the I. C. R., left Moncton on Wednesday for Colorado, to attend the Railway Accountants' convention.

The funeral of Mrs. J. McIntosh was held from her late home, 137 Orange street this morning. Service was conducted at 11.30 by Rev. A. A. Graham and the body was taken to Moncton by the C. P. R., for interment.

The janitor of City Hall, George Clarke, appeared today resplendent in a new uniform, which was recently ordered for him by the safety board. The suit is navy blue with brass buttons and the peaked cap bears the title "City Hall." It presents a very neat and smart appearance.

The Fourth General Re-union of the Colpotts Family will be held at the old homestead, Colpitts, Albert Co., on Thursday, August 25, next. Hon. C. W. Robinson and others will address the gathering. At the last re-union nearly 500 were in attendance. Dinner and tea will be taken on the grounds.

In the police court this morning the case against John T. McGoldrick, charged with buying junk from a minor, was postponed until Wednesday for judgment. D. Mullin, K. C., is appearing for the defendant. Daniel O'Leary and Matthew Patchel, charged with fighting in Mill street, were allowed out on deposit. Their case will probably come up on Monday.

A man proceeding down Main street, North End, bare headed in last evening's heavy downpour of rain, attracted considerable attention. Two men followed him. At the foot of Indiantown he was lost sight of near one of the wharves and the suggestion was that he might have done away with himself, but all has turned out well.

A considerable number of subscriptions have been received for membership in the newly formed Arboriculture Society, and a meeting will be called soon to organize, elect officers and draw up by-laws. Arrangements will also probably be made for addresses to be given by men qualified to deal with the subject. It is probable that H. E. Gould, of Sussex, and A. G. Turney, provincial horticulturist, will be heard.

The mayor received this morning an application from the St. John Pipe Band, asking that they be considered in the list of bands to be engaged by the city to play on the band-stand in King square. As arrangements had been practically completed for the money appropriated for the purpose to be divided among the five brass bands of the city, it is not known what action will be taken with the communication.

Red Head

Many people find it to their liking to spend the warm summer period at Red Head, along the shores of Courtenay Bay and farther along at Anthony's Cove. In this vicinity may be found: T. Percy Bourne, Miss Furlong, Mrs. C. J. Coster, James L. McAvity, Mrs. Gillis, C. A. Clarke, S. J. Smith, John Bradbury, Geo. W. Colwell, John Johnston, LeBaron Wilson, H. H. Reid, Dr. H. G. Addy, W. A. Simonds, Dr. J. A. McIntyre, J. H. D. Turner, J. Walter Holly and delt. Carritte. The families of Messrs. Holly and Carritte will move into their summer quarters on Monday.

At Boar's Head, Ragged Point, Bayswater and at many other pretty spots on the river there are small summer colonies, those patronizing them doing so largely to escape the crowded districts. In places of this kind one can enjoy plenty of quiet and solitude. At Boar's Head, Charles Huggard and I. Walton Kierstead and their families are occupying cottages.

MAY BE BUT LITTLE ADVANCE IN RUBBER IN THE DOMINION

Montreal, June 22—The leading rubber officials of the city state that there is a misunderstanding regarding the announcement from Ohio to the effect that rubber goods, including automobile tires, are to be advanced some 25 per cent, on July 1.

As a matter of fact there may be very little advance at all in Canada, for the reason that an advance of from 10 to 12 per cent. had already been effected in the dominion. The future, however, depends upon the condition of the raw material market.

The Canadian manufacturer, said a leading rubber man today, is not so dictatorial as on the other side of the line. In other words, he does not say that on such and such a date the market will be advanced to a certain figure, all this being influenced by the state of the raw rubber market.

CHIEF KOHLER OF CLEVELAND ACQUITTED

Cleveland, June 25—Chief of Police Fred Kohler, known throughout the country as the "Golden Rule" chief, has been acquitted of charges of grossimmorality and habitual drunkenness by the civil service commission.

An hour after his acquittal he was reinstated by Mayor Baehr, who had suspended him. It was charged on the one hand that Chief Kohler, as a firm ally of former Mayor Tom Johnson, had built up the police department into a formidable machine, and on the other hand, that the charges were the outcome of a secret political cabal which had for its aim the ousting of all Johnson's supporters.

The trial lasted almost two weeks and about two hundred witnesses were examined.

SUSPECT IN BOWERY MURDER ARRESTED

New York, June 25—J. B. McCosh, chief of police at Middletown, N. Y., today sent to police headquarters a telegram announcing the arrest in Middletown of a man supposed to be John J. Murphy, and a woman who accompanied him.

Murphy is charged with complicity in the shooting and killing of Frederick Devlin of Oakland, Cal., in a Bowery hotel on Feb. 18. Wm. J. Duffy is now in the tombs waiting trial in connection with the crime.

Two men and two women entered the hotel early in the morning and demanded money of Devlin. When he handed over ten cents he was shot down and then a clerk, James Desmond, was beaten with revolver butts and robbed.

The Work on the G. T. P.

Fredericton Gleaner:—Harry F. McLean, superintendent of the Toronto Construction Company, arrived from McGivney today and is at the Queen hotel. The rainy weather has greatly interfered with the company's operations on the G. T. P. and means considerable of a monetary loss. It is expected to have steel laid between Plaster Rock and Chipman next month, all but seventeen miles being now completed. The company will have their work completed by this fall.

CROUCHVILLE

A Transformation Has Taken Place at the Corner of Mount Pleasant Street and Red Head Road

An attractive small store will be opened about July 1 at the corner mentioned. A great many residents in the locality of St. John will be interested in this, on account of the happy times they enjoyed in the building which is going to be used as a store, namely the Wyandotte Club House, used previously for dancing, etc.

The building has been remodeled throughout and moved from its old foundation twenty feet forward, and placed on a good solid foundation made of concrete.

Rupert Taylor, who has been in the employ of Mr. Grondines, gold and silver plater, Waterloo street, for the last four years, last two as partner with Mr. Grondines, is the owner, and he will run the store.

He purposes keeping in stock all kinds of goods that are liable to be called for in that locality. 7-1

BORROWED MONEY TO GIVE AWAY

"For some years prior to his death," Robert Louis Hoguet, his son, says, "he had practically retired from business life except for the supervision of various estates of which he was trustee. He also continued to discharge his responsibility to several corporations and businesses in which he was interested, but which were not profitable.

"He also carried in his books open accounts of various institutions, estates and persons toward whom he felt some personal interest or moral obligation."

In his real estate, worth $1,220,280, he had an equity of only $541,375. His personal estate was $258,121. When his debts, amounting to $455,220, and certain life interests were deducted from his assets, there remained $279,312.

Mrs. Marienoel Hoguet, the widow, receives $92,437. Certain Catholic institutions get bequests of $1,000 and $500. The six children share equally in the residue of the estate.
