SAYS HE NEVER SAW ANY BETTER

jor-General Hutton and staff, Cavalry staff, "A" Battery, G.G.B.G., 2nd Dragoons, 3rd Dragoons, 12th Batt., 31st Batt., 34th Batt., 35th Batt., 36th Batt.

It was noticed that Major-General Hutton was the only staff officer to carry a drawn sword. When he had marched past he joined Lord Minto and Dr. Borden and viewed the picture presented.

The bands were now changed, and the 4th Brigade's band took a turn at the music. On came the 4th Brigade detachments as follows: 20th Batt., 29th, 44th, 77th.

The 37th, the Indians, were reserved for the last to make an impression upon His Excellency. They did that, for they are strapping, fine-looking chaps, though a trifle shady in complexion. They marched well, perhaps the best of the 4th Brigade.

Cavalry Gallop the Feature.

The march past was re-done with the battalions turned to the rear, led by the 37th and brought up by the cavalry.

Then the special feature of the afternoon came in the trot past and gallop past of the Cavalry Brigade. The band playing worried the horses a little, but good horsemen kept them well in hand, and they went along merrily. They were cheered for both movements, but more especially for the gallop.

The infantry were then drawn up in review order. Each battalion presented a face of one company all along the line. The officers and the colors were brought to the front. A general advance was made; a halt called, and the general salute given to the command of "General salute! Present arms!"

The massed bands took up the strains of "God Save the Queen," the whole assemblage uncovered and the review was finished.

Praise From His Excellency.

The commanding officers representing the whole strength were called forward and gathered around Lord Minto. To them His Excellency spoke briefly and tersely. He said he was very glad to have the opportunity of being present. He referred to his ebing with the cavalry yesterday and to the pleasure that he then experienced. This pleasure was augmented to-day by his seeing both arms of the service. He thought in to-day's review the men had marched past in excellent shape.

"I never saw a fined body of men, nor any better for service. In another year I hope to see, if I may hope, a better turnout," was his most important utterance.

He complimented the officers upon their corps and upon the work they had done.

Then he rode away. The cavalry made an impromptu charge upon Fort George, with all the vigor of a real thing and a full accompaniment of "Hi-yi-yi-yi!"

They Had the Sham Battle.

Then the General indulged the men in a sham battle. He pointed out that the old church to the west of the fort was supposed to be occupied by the enemy. The cavalry were sent home. The artillery was ordered to open fire upon the enemy's position, to prepare the way for the infantry. The 3rd Brigade was formed into the firing line with the 34th Batt., the battalion of direction, and Captain Bick's company from Cannington in the centre of the line. The 4th Brigade was swung around near the grove and formed a reserve.

Four or five rounds were poured out from the two cannon. The 3rd Brigade threw out detachments and the whole attacking force moved on.

The men were in extended order and the commands were conveyed to them by sounds from whistles in the possession of officers and section commanders.

A black flag and a blue flag were placed in front of the firing line to aid the aim. Firing was done by all the 3rd Brigade. The men receiving the command loaded and fired to suit their own sweet will, and, though no enemy fell, yet the privates felt as happy as a schoolboy with a pea shooter.

The Drill All Over.

The attack was kept up for half an hour, but, owing to the lateness of the afternoon, the command to fix bayonets, charge and cheer was withheld. The lines were reformed and each battalion went to its parade. The very last drill was done.

On their own private parades, the colonels addressed a few words to their commands, praising them for their work during the camp. Then they were dismissed, gave three cheers for their officers and gleefully sought the canteens and their suppers.

It Has Done the Men Good.

It is no flattery to say that the men in to-day's exercises showed the good effects of solid training, as they kept step, held their eyes off the ground, swung their arms and swaggered along in style not unbecoming regulars. The raw recruit has had a little discipline knocked into him, has contracted a few habits befitting a man and has learned not a little drill, all of which will tend to his physical and moral uplifting. He has also caught a whiff of patriotic and military breze, and is the more fitted to-day to be a loyal, law-abiding citizen of Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria. Should he ever be called to go to the front in the defence of his home he will be ready, willing and able to respond, as he never would have were it not for the schooling he has received at this camp. Hence to the military training some roses are due.

Lord Minto and Dr. Borden left to-night at 6.30 by special train over the M. C. R.

At the hospital there were but five patients: Pte. Brown of No. 5 company, 34th Battalion, was slightly cut by a stake to-day, and is the latest patient. The others are doing well.

Those who are really sick were in a weak state before reaching the camp, though it is only just to state that the drill increased their debility. Sergt. Duggan of the G.G.B.G. is still suffering much from rheumatism, caused by the route march. He will require considerable treatment when he gets home.

Last Night in Camp.

To-night is the last night in camp, and it is given over to sport. A picnic is patrolling the town, because his soldiership has a naughty way, they say, of staying out late on the last night.

The men in companies have been warned to camp on their accoutrements, for it is a tradition that a helmet, rifle or a blanket that is lost must be recovered, even if it has to be borrowed from a neighboring company. The borrowing takes place on the last night.

The Cooks' Parade.

A peculiar feature to-night is the cooks' parade. All the cooks of battalions arrayed themselves in fantastic costume, and, to the din of beaten tins, paraded their lines. The men followed them about and urged on the fun. This parade is time-honored, and is allowed by all officers. No harm is done, and the cooks feel pleased.

Sentry Has a Hard Job.

If it were to the brigades to-day that Kipling had addressed his enquiry :

"Wot makes the soldier's 'eart to penk?
Wot makes 'im to perspire?"

he would have been answered, "Hit's sentry duty!"

The sentries on guard at the parade ground this afternoon had no picnic. It isn't ice cream soda to walk up and down and round for two hours under a blazing sun, and over dust that puffs up at every step. It is a dull, deadly grind. To-day the public were to the sentries' eyes the enemy. A sentry looks upon each civilian with suspicion. On the other hand, the civilian sees in the sentry a legitimate source of useful and interesting information. This bores the soldier.

For five minutes to-day the writer stood beside a sentry, and heard him asked among other things, when the game was to begin; if the General was there; how he liked to be a soldier; was his gun loaded; how much he was paid for carrying it; whether he was hired or stayed there right along; whether a fellow had to buy a nag to get into the cavalry, with variations on all these themes.

But the worst was a little old lady in an antiquated sunbonnet, who trotted up to the sentry, held out 50 cents, and piped :

"Give me two 25-cent tickets, young man, and I want my seats in the shade!"

CAMP NOTES.

Warden Couthard, Councillors Long, Gibbs and Johnston, from Ontario County, were among the visitors to camp to-day. Many of the officers of the city battalions were in the lines and watched the review this afternoon.

Major Howard of Gatlin gun fame was an interested spectator of to-day's exercises. He left to-night for Toronto.

The Redcoats own the town to-night, and the pretty girls of the town have mild attacks of heart failure.

The soda water fountains are not doing all the business to-night.

Each company commander received the pay for his men this morning, but the wise one will not pay them till the company's headquarters are reached.

The White Star will take the 34th Battalion home Saturday morning, at 7.

"Rough-and-Ready" is the Style.

Rustic straws in rough and ready braids are among the most popular straw hat styles for men this season. They are what you call the sweltest, they are light and cool. J. & J. Lugsdin, 122 Yonge-street, are showing a splendid lot of them in the finest English makes, and everything is marked at the closest cash price because these are "moving sale" days and the firm want to clear out the biggest end of this summer stuff before moving down to 84 Yonge.

Two-Fifty Pearl Hats at Lugsdins'.

The $2.50 pearl soft hat made by Christy, London, which you buy at J. & J. Lugsdin's, 122 Yonge-street, during the moving sale, are the identical hats that you buy in most other hat stores about town at $3. The firm would rather make this cut on the real value of such lines than take the chances with dust and dirt necessary to moving. Remember this, that moving sale prices mean a considerable saving on the most stylish and most seasonable hats in the house.

THE MOST EXPENSIVE

course through life is taken by those who continually buy the cheapest of everything. It isn't the rule that the highest price must be paid to get the best dental work—but the kind you should buy ought to cost more than the kind you don't want at any price—and will always be worth it.

Let us give you some ideas about our moderate and fair charges—our modern methods—our perfect work—and our guarantee.

HAMILTON NEWS

STRIKE AT SMELTING WORKS

Forty Workmen Went Out as a Protest Against the Appointment of a New Boss.

TROUBLE ABOUT POLICE BIKES.

Aldermen Interfered and Chief Smith Has Washed His Hands of the Matter—General News.

Hamilton, June 16.—(Special.)—About 40 workmen at the Smelting Works struck this morning, being dissatisfied with a new boss who was appointed over them—Peter Peterson of Tonawanda. There was no trouble about wages. It is said a number of other hands will quit to-morrow.

Trouble Ahead.

It is said there is likely to be trouble over the purchase of three new bicycles for the police department. Some time ago Chief Smith asked for three bikes, and the Police Commissioners voted $150 for the purpose. The Chief, however, has dodged the responsibility, as meddling aldermen have interfered. Anyway, the matter is now in the hands of a committee of aldermen. A good many think that the Police Commissioners should make an enquiry and see who is to blame for the state of affairs.

Minor Matters.

This morning the police were notified that Charles Pile, John-street, had not been seen by neighbors for some days, and that the house was locked up. The police made an examination and enquiries. There was no cause for alarm, as Mr. Pile is visiting in Toronto.

Thomas Hickey of Dundas died this morning.

The deal for the City Street Railway is completed, it is said, and the Cataract Power Company now owns it.

The Bricklayers' and Masons' Union have voted $25 to the G. T. R. trackmen who are on strike.

Jail and Court House Committee.

The Joint Jail and Court House Committee met this afternoon and transacted considerable business. The chairman announced that R. L. Gunn had paid $300 on back rent since the last meeting and that at present only $66 was owing. Mr. Gunn disputed $50 of the balance. It was decided to give him a full receipt for $16.

A special committee was appointed to report on the duties of the engineer and the caretaker of the court house, both having refused to raise the Dominion flag on the Queen's Birthday, although ordered to do so by the warden.

The committee decided to put cement walks in front of the court house.

A Farewell Banquet.

This afternoon A. M. Mackay, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., who is leaving to take a position in a life insurance company in Montreal, was tendered a farewell banquet. S. F. Lazier, Q.C., occupied the chair, and speeches or regret were made by Messrs. George Rutherford, Adam Brown, C. Booker, J. Green, H. J. Henley and others. Mr. Mackay was presented with a set of Chambers' encyclopaedia.

No More Sunday Funerals.

There will be no more Sunday funerals at Hamilton Cemetery unless doctors give orders for them in cases of contagious or infectious disease. The Board of Governors of Hamilton Cemetery so decided this evening, when the bylaw prepared by a sub-committee was adopted.

Alex. Craig, the aged caretaker, was appointed superintendent at a salary of $600. It was decided to appoint an assistant superintendent, who will do the book-keeping at the cemetery, his salary to be $720. An assistant superintendent will be advertised for.

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY.

Report of Committee on Bills and Overtures, Fixing the Program for the Work.

REPORTS OF COLLEGES PRESENTED.

Rev. Dr. Caven Tendered That From Knox—Prof. McFadyen's Appointment Commended.

Hamilton, June 16.—(Special.)—The first business of the Presbyterian Assembly this morning was the reception of the second report of the Committee on Bills and Overtures. It arranged the program of sederunts for the day, Saturday and Monday evening.

Following this came the reports of colleges, the first one represented being that of Manitoba College, at Winnipeg, the speaker being Sir Thomas Taylor. The Board asked the Assembly to sanction the appointment of Rev. Thomas B. Kilpatrick, D.D., minister of Ferryhill Free Church, Aberdeen, Scotland, as professor of systematic theology and apologetics in the department of theology and joint lecturer on philosophy in the arts department. It was stated that he was willing to accept the position.

The total ordinary receipts for the year were $22,496.32, which was about $300 less than the year before. The total balance on hand amounts to $3354.88. The number of students in theology was 39.

Rev. Dr. Torrance moved a resolution adopting the report, and recommending the appointment of Rev. Dr. Kilpatrick to the professorship referred to. The resolution was seconded by Rev. Dr. Lyle, who emphasized the points referred to in the report, and urged that the church support the colleges. The motion carried.

REV. DR. CAMPBELL OF RENFREW, ONT.,

The New Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly.

Knox College Report.

Principal Caven of Knox College, Toronto, reported for that institution. In the year past the number of theological students was 71. The graduating class numbered 20. Satisfactory reference was made to the recent appointment of Prof. John E. McFadyen, B.A., to the position of professor of Old Testament literature and exegesis.

The scholarship fund is somewhat behind, but the hope was expressed that friends would come forward and make up the deficiency of something like $150. The endowment fund for the year amounted to $243,420.40, and the balance, after disbursements, was $233,019.44. The receipts of the ordinary fund were $17,739.02, and the balance on hand, after settlement of accounts, is $64.42. Principal Caven moved the reception of the report, and John Charlton, M.P., was called on to second the motion. He proposed a reconstruction of the Presbyterian colleges in such a manner as to increase their powers for good, and talked for a considerable time on the subject of the relation of the church to the colleges. He made the broad assertion that there are too many colleges in connection with the Presbyterian Church in Canada. [Cries of "No, no," and "Hear, hear."]

Mr. Charlton: I hear my friend, Principal Grant, say no—

Principal Grant: I beg your pardon. I never interrupt a speaker.

Mr. Charlton: I apologize. I might have known it was not Principal Grant. He is always such a model of propriety. At the same time, I make the statement from a business man's standpoint that there are too many colleges, and none of them sufficiently well endowed.

At the afternoon session, Rev. L. H. Jordan presented a request from the Toronto Presbytery, asking for an expression of opinion as to whether ruling elders should be permitted to occupy the position of moderators of presbyteries, as ministers do. The question was referred to a committee to report at the next assembly.

About Morrin College.

The governors of Morrin College in their report stated that no steps have been taken to add to the financial resources of the college, and they advised that the department of divinity be suspended unless the General Assembly comes to its rescue. The report was presented by Rev. Dr. McRae, and a committee was appointed to consider the question.

Halifax College.

The report of Halifax College was presented by Prof. Faulkner, and it showed the receipts last year were $11,813.50.

Rev. Dr. Milligan, Toronto, moved the adoption of the report, and spoke of the great need for more education in the ministry. Emotional preaching will not last long with any people. To be a leader of religious thought, a man must have a strong mental equipment, that can only be gained by persistent study.

Women Appeal Against Cigarets.

The W.C.T.U. wrote, asking the assembly to go on record as being opposed to cigaret smoking to the extent of petitioning the Government to prohibit the manufacture and sale of same in Canada. The union also asked the assembly to co-operate in an effort to suppress the army canteen. In this connection, the recent military camp at London was referred to as being a disgrace to Canada.

Another letter was received from the Dominion Alliance, asking that the assembly go on record for prohibition.

Foreign Missions.

The evening session of the assembly was devoted to foreign missions, upon which reports were presented and addresses given.

LIBERALS MUST HAVE MAJORITY IN ONTARIO

sus had shown that it considerably exceeded the unit in population, while West Bruce had not increased in anything like the same proportion.

As Regards Bothwell.

Mr. Mulock next took up the case of Bothwell and had a tilt with Mr. Clancy, who rather attacked the Postmaster-General by pointing out that Bothwell was represented from 1867 until 1896 by the present Minister of Justice (Hon. David Mills), with the exception only of the session after the election of 1882.

Mr. Mulock said that no person could look at the map of Ontario in the gerrymandered district and form any other conclusion than that it was a measure designed not to secure but to defeat the will of the people.

Coming to the present bill he said its principle was very simple. It was in uniformity with the Liberal principle not to disturb county boundaries.

He then went on to deal with some of the details of the bill, amid a running fire of questions, causing him to lose his temper.

The City of Toronto.

Getting to the city of Toronto, he said it was proposed to divide it into five constituencies, and, in answer to a question by Mr. Haggart as to where the extra seat was to come from, said that, as Bothwell was disappearing and its fragments going back to the counties from which they came, it was proposed in the original draft of the bill to give the County of Kent three representatives, but in order to meet the views of those who think that Toronto should have another seat, it had been decided to take one seat from Kent and give it to Toronto.

Mr. Clancy: That fixes it all right now, does it?

Mr. Mulock next referred to the Province of Quebec, merely saying that the bill proposed to return to certain counties in the province a number of municipalities that had been detached from them from time to time, and was passing on to the Province of Prince Edward Island when Mr. McNeill said that he would like to ask whether the judges are to take into consideration the increase of population since the last census, or whether the increase or change of population during the last eight years was to be left out of consideration altogether.

Based on the Census of 1891.

Mr. Mulock: The bill contains the matters that are referred to the judges. The census deals with the subject of population. This is a measure proposed to be passed in the year 1899. It ought to have been passed in the year 1892. The judges will sit as if they were sitting in 1892, having before them the census of 1891, the map of the provinces, the history of the country, and such other circumstances as they may deem a proper guide to aid them in arriving at a fair judgment.

Mr. Maclean: Will the judges sit as a court, and hear both sides or in secret conclave and decide for themselves.

The Postmaster-General: I am not able to say whether they will sit as a court.

Mr. Maclean: If the matter is referred direct to the judges, are they to meet by themselves and settle it among themselves, and not as a court?

The Postmaster-General: It is not desirable they should sit as a court, I presume, but as commissioners.

Mr. McNeill: I did not understand the honorable gentleman's answer with regard to the population. Am I to understand that the judges are to take into consideration any change of population that may have occurred during the last eight years, or are they to be allowed to take into consideration any such change that may be brought to their notice?

Mr. Mulock: This is a measure being passed nunc pro tunc. They will sit and undo what my honorable friend succeeded in accomplishing in 1892. They will be asked to assume that they are sitting there after the census of 1891.

Mr. Clarke Wants Information.

Mr. Clarke: Will the honorable gentleman give us some information respecting the constituencies of Ottawa and Hamilton, which are now represented by two members each. Is it intended to have them divided into two constituencies, each returning one member?

The Postmaster-General: It is not intended to drop anything with the bill which is not indicated by it.

Mr. Clarke: The intention, then, is that there shall be two members representing Ottawa and two Hamilton, and they are to be elected by the city at large.

The Postmaster-General: The bill will not interfere with anything it does not purport to interfere with.

Mr. Maclean: How are the judges going to deal with the city of Toronto?

The Postmaster-General: The judges will assign five seats to the city of Toronto.

Mr. Maclean: Will they be free to give West Toronto two members, and some other portion one member?

The Postmaster-General: There will be three, unless the bill should otherwise circumscribe their powers.

Mr. Maclean: Does it?

The Postmaster-General: I find nothing in it. If the hon. gentleman will read the bill—

Mr. Foster: But the hon. Minister is explaining the bill.

The Postmaster-General: Quite right, and I do not object to the question. If the hon. gentleman does not understand, let me tell him that the bill proposes to ask the judges to take the city of Toronto and divide it, as in their judgment seems right, into the number of constituencies the bill assigns to that city.

Mr. Maclean: Can the judges give to West Toronto two members and East Toronto only one?

The Postmaster-General: They will be asked to give five separate seats.

Mr. Maclean: That is the very point.

Mr. Clarke: Will the judges be asked to divide the constituencies of Ottawa and Hamilton and make two in each?

Simply the Game of Gerrymander.

The Postmaster-General: I have explained that the Government on this occasion is not dealing with the whole province, but seeking to deal with the more glaring abuses of the Gerrymander Act, but, if the bill does not go far enough to satisfy the hon. gentlemen opposite, perhaps the Government will be prepared to revise it.

Mr. McNeill: Would the hon. gentleman say whether it is to be left to the judges to determine whether they will hear evidence or not, or whether they are to be precluded from hearing evidence?

The Postmaster-General: The bill contains all the necessary provisions to guide the judges. The subject, no doubt, will be discussed fully in Parliament, and, if the arguments are sufficiently cogent to suggest any wiser course, no doubt a wiser course will be adopted.

Mr. McNeill: What is the course intended by the bill?

The Postmaster-General: I refer my hon. friend to the measure.

Mr. McNeill: I am asking for an explanation, and I am sure the hon. gentleman does not want to be discourteous. He says that if some wiser course is suggested such course may be adopted, but I want to know what the course now provided is. Are the judges to determine under the bill, as my hon. friend understands it—as he is supposed to be explaining it to the House—whether they will admit evidence or not, whether they precluded from admitting evidence?

The Postmaster-General: I refer the hon. gentleman to sub-section 2 of section 2 of the bill. The letters patent appointing the commissioners shall be to direct them in making the directions, to consider the distribution of population according to the latest census of Canada, the public convenience and such divisions as appear to them best calculated to do substantial justice.

Will They Take Evidence?

Mr. McNeill: Are they to take evidence in reference to that or not?

The Postmaster-General: The clause of the bill contains those instructions, and they will interpret it.

Mr. McNeill: What is the intention in the mind of my hon. friend, who has charge of the bill?

The Postmaster-General: My intention would not override any provision of the measure.

Mr. McNeill: What I want to know is what, according to the hon. gentleman who is explaining the measure, is its intention with regard to this matter?

Mr. Foster: Then let some one else take hold of the bill.

The Postmaster-General: I desire, Mr. Speaker, to continue my remarks.

Mr. McNeill: My hon. friend refuses to give the explanation.

As to Prince Edward Island.

The Postmaster-General: I referred to the bill. I next come to Prince Edward Island. The bill restores the county lines to the province of Prince Edward Island. That province is entitled to five members, and the counties have until very lately been represented each by two. A change was made, portions of one county were detached and given to another, and the number of members reduced from six to five. It is now proposed to restore to each county those portions of the county necessarily belonging to it, and to give representation accordingly, one to Kings, which has the smallest population, and two each to the
