ELEVENTH YEAR. MONDAY MORNING, JANUARY 13, 1890. PRICE ONE CENT.

A FATAL CASE IN THE CITY.

A VETERAN'S DEATH SUPERINDUCED BY AN ATTACK OF GRIPPE.

Sergeant Attewell of "B" Co., London, Passes Away After a Short Illness While on a Visit to Toronto—How it Affected the Churches and Sunday Schools.

La grippe claimed a victim in Toronto last night, at least the death that is recorded was superinduced by the prevailing sickness.

The slim attendance at the churches and Sunday schools yesterday was not solely owing to the inclement weather. The prevalent sickness in Toronto accounted to a large extent for the diminished attendance. This was the more noticeable as there were quite a number of preachers from a distance and special services at many of the places of worship. Prayers were offered for members of churches and whole families which were sick. Many were the empty pews, and it was with difficulty that teachers were found to take the places of those who were laid up. Bloor-street Baptist Church may be taken as a specimen. Pastor Trotter announced that Superintendent John Stark needed eight volunteers to teach in the Sunday school, as this number were confined to the house with la grippe. A similar state of things prevailed at the Church of the Ascension, and at the Bible class in the afternoon the attendance was the smallest on record. Several of the choirs in the city were thinned, and what with friends sick and thin attendances, there was more than the usual depression of a winter's day in many sanctuaries.

Legion is the number of tradespeople, merchants and well-known citizens who have the influenza.

It was thought that the cold wave which struck the city Friday would "knock out" old grip. This it did in a measure, but with the return of the soft weather Saturday evening and yesterday the cases began to multiply. Yesterday the drug stores were besieged with persons clamoring to have prescriptions filled for their sick friends at home. At one King-street chemist's a reporter was told that the compounders at work had enough prescriptions on hand to keep them going for over two hours.

Death of a British Veteran.

Sergeant Attewell of "B" Co., London, came to Toronto about a week ago, and was stopping at No. 240 Munro-street, in St. Matthew's Ward. A couple of days after he reached Toronto he contracted what was at first supposed to be a severe cold, but it afterwards turned out to be the epidemic now prevalent here and known as the influenza or la grippe. He kept in the house until Thursday evening last, when feeling no better he called on Dr. Latimer Pickering. On Friday the case had developed into pneumonia, followed by bleeding of the lungs. Dr. Pickering telegraphed yesterday morning to Col. Foote, commanding officer at London, advising him of Attewell's dangerous illness, but received no reply. Every care and attention was given the man, but he died last night shortly after 7 o'clock. Col. Foote was at once apprised of the fact, and that officer telegraphed back that he had communicated with Col. Otter, D.A.G., who would look after the body.

Sergeant Attewell is a pensioner of the British Army. He served in England, India and at Gibraltar for 23 years and left there to come to Canada some thirteen years ago. Shortly after he came here he enlisted in "B" Co. of infantry at London as a private, and he was afterwards promoted to be corporal and five years ago was made sergeant. He was in Toronto on a week's furlough and expected to have gone home on Saturday night. The only relative he is known to have is his wife in London, England.

Victims in the Police Force.

Policeman Davey, attached to Wilton-avenue station, neglected an attack of la grippe eight days ago and is now dying of congestion of the lungs. Detective John Cuddy very foolishly on Thursday last got out of a sick bed, the result of la grippe, to give evidence in the McMillan forgery case before the Grand Jury and yesterday he sustained a relapse and his condition is serious. There are from 40 to 50 of the rank and file of the police suffering from the epidemic, several of the cases being far from laughing matters.

The Prophet Will Preach on the Grip.

The Bond-street prophet was again in his elements last night on "The lost ten tribes of Israel." Many of the congregation seemed to be "gripped," a fact which the pastor noted when he announced the subject for next Sunday evening's discourse, "La grippe and its lesson." Said he: "Some of you are getting it very badly."

More particularly did the worthy divine deal with the utterances of Prof. Goldwin Smith anent his favored topic, as set forth in The January Bystander. He read extracts from the number, tersely commenting thereon. The prophet's well-known theory, that the English race is the lost ten tribes of Israel did not meet the views of Prof. Smith. "What the Professor should do," advised the speaker, "is to tackle any one of our proofs or arguments and disprove or try to disprove them and we will rally to their defence at any time." [Applause.] For himself, the preacher did not care five cents whether he was of the seed of Israel or not.

Gossip of the Grip.

Coupe Charley Brown is laid up with grippe.

Ald. Dodds is just recovering from a severe attack of influenza.

According to the statement of G. W. Mingay, grippe is on the decrease in Parkdale.

City Hall Clerks Sanderson and William Bell have it bad. Assistant Treasurer Paterson is still unfit for duty.

Dr. O'Reilly, superintendent of the General Hospital, and Dr. Meek, who were laid up with grippe, are improving.

THROUGHOUT ONTARIO.

The Epidemic Becoming Very General—Many Fatal Cases in Ohio.

La grippe is getting down to work in earnest in Ontario. Nearly all the cities, towns and villages report from 50 to 500 cases each. There are over 150 cases in the Penitentiary at Kingston, 100 in the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb at Belleville. No fatal cases have, however, been reported except in cases of complications with pneumonia, lung inflammation or other dangerous diseases.

Confirmation Classes Discontinued.

MONTREAL, Jan. 12.—Bishop Bond announced in Christ Church Cathedral to-day that confirmation classes throughout the diocese would be discontinued on account of la grippe.

The Ohio Record.

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 12.—Specials from 83 towns in Ohio outside of the large cities show 4000 cases of la grippe and 86 deaths to-day.

Manufacturers, by warehousing their surplus stock with Mitchell, Miller & Co., receive negotiable warehouse receipts.

Officers Installed.

At the last regular meeting of Toronto Circle No. 12, O.C.H.C., held in Occident Hall, these officers were installed by G. Downard, past leader: Sister A. E. Cameron, leader; T. Slean, vice leader; G. Hinton, chaplain. John Atkinson, secretary; A. E. Cameron, treasurer; R. Dunlop, financial secretary; B. Wilkinson, marshal; R. Atkinson, warden; J. Ralston, guard; C. Hunter, sentinel.

THE QUEBEC CABINET.

A Rumor that Owen Murphy is to be the Irish Representative—Notes of the Session—The Berthier Election.

QUEBEC, Jan. 12.—Rumors are being circulated that Mr. Owen Murphy, member for Quebec West, will shortly enter the Cabinet as Irish representative in the Local Legislature. Hon. James McShane, who lately filled that position, was interviewed to-day by your correspondent. He at first refused to speak on the question and when asked what the Irish electors of Montreal would do should Mr. Murphy enter the Cabinet, he stated that when the time came an effectual protest would be made. He refused to personally say anything regarding Mr. Murphy, who is alleged to be his bitter enemy and formidable rival.

Several members are down with la grippe, but so far the session has been characterized by sharp attacks and able repulses by the two parties. The session promises to be a short one.

Great interest is manifested in the Berthier election. The Nationalists are unusually confident and claim they will carry the constituency by an increased majority.

One criticized feature in the Speech from the Throne is the long-talked-of settlement of the boundary line of the province. It will be remembered that Hon. Francois Langelier was sent to Ottawa to settle the question and that his fee, although he did not once open his mouth, was $3000.

THE WORK OF THE WIND.

St. Louis Visited by a Hurricane—Several Lives Lost.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 12.—This afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock a hurricane struck this city, unroofing houses, tearing out trees by the roots, blowing down the steeples of churches, levelling telegraph poles and doing considerable damage generally. All the eastern telegraph wires entering at East St. Louis are blown down, and a rumor comes from the little town of Venice, 3 miles north of East St. Louis, that several houses were destroyed there and three or four persons were killed. Several lives were lost here during the storm.

The list of victims secured up to 9.30 p.m. is as follows:

Dead—Mrs. Maggie Conners, aged 40; Bernard McConnell, aged 40; Joe Weaver, aged 9.

Injured—Teresa Weaver, aged 6, both legs broken, will probably die; Mrs. Charles Miller, badly cut and bruised, serious condition; Annie Connors, Maggie Connors, Francis Connors.

MURDER IN CHICAGO.

James Prendergast Runs a Knife Through His Rival's Heart.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—While walking along the street to-night with John Baines, James Prendergast suddenly turned and ran a long knife into Baines' heart. The assailant withdrew the weapon and tossing it aside said: "There, I guess that went through him." Baines expired on the sidewalk before the eyes of half a dozen horror-stricken people, while Prendergast for the time being escaped, but was captured soon after by the police. The men had been rivals for three years for the favor of a certain woman.

THOUGHT BETTER OF IT.

Compositors in the Government Printing Bureau Talk Strike.

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—The compositors in the Government printing bureau, who have been demanding an increase of wages from $11 to $13 per week, failed to get a satisfactory reply from the superintendent this morning and refused to go to work. Under instructions from Ald. Farrell, president of the local union, however, they went to work again, pending the result of an interview with Sir John Macdonald.

The Louisville Disaster.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 12—Three more bodies were taken out at the wrecked caisson yesterday. The first was Monroe Bowling who was lying uppermost at the bottom entrance of the air shaft. It was noon when Bowling's body was sufficiently loosened to draw out. At 1.30 Thomas Smith's body, which with Thomas Sopers' was wedged in the very entrance of the shaft, was drawn out. The operation was difficult on account of the air pressing up and closing the door and escaping. Much air escaped while Smith was being extricated, and it required an hour more of pumping before Sopers' body could be gotten out. Thomas Ash was taken out late at night. His body was pulled in two.

Losses Caused by Flames.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 12.—Seven business houses at Luzerne were destroyed by fire last night. The inmates had narrow escapes with their lives. The loss is $27,000, insurances $18,000.

MUNCIE, Ind., Jan. 12.—The Boyce block, containing five large stores, was ruined by fire here yesterday. Loss $110,000. One theory is that the fire was caused by the electric wires.

PEORIA, Ill., Jan. 12.—Fire to-day in the Monarch distillery burned seven copper stills and appurtenances and 100,000 gallons of untaxed spirits.

The End of a Debauch.

UTICA, N.Y., Jan. 12.—Last night at Trebes Hill, Montgomery County, Thomas Link, proprietor of the Central Hotel of that place, wound up a protracted debauch of several months by cutting his wife's throat from ear to ear with a razor and then cutting his own. Link died in a few minutes. His wife lies in a very critical condition.

PORTUGAL BACKS DOWN.

ENGLAND'S ULTIMATUM PRESENTED ON SATURDAY.

An Answer Demanded Within 24 Hours—A Hasty Cabinet Council—Portugal Yields to Strong Pressure—The Announcement Causes Riotous Demonstrations in the Portuguese Capital.

LISBON, Jan. 12.—Mr. Glynn Petre, the English Minister, on Saturday imparted to Senhor Gomes, Minister of Foreign Affairs, England's ultimatum demanding the recall of the Portuguese forces and officials and expeditions of every kind from the banks of the Shire beyond the confluence of the Ruo and south of the Zambesi and from Mashonala. If Portugal failed to reply in 24 hours the British legation would board the Enchantress and await a reply at Vigo.

The King immediately convened a Cabinet Council to consider the ultimatum. The council sat until 1 o'clock this morning. The Government replied to Minister Petrie that Portugal, yielding to strong pressure from a power of the first rank, being too weak to withstand it, would order the withdrawal of the Portuguese from the Shire and Mashonal while reserving to the Portuguese, crown its claims in those territories.

It is asserted that this decision was further influenced by reports of an intention on the part of the British to make naval demonstrations at Quilimane, Deloga Bay and St. Vincent. It is reported that the Opposition in the Cortes will make a strong attack on the Government for its attitude in this matter.

This evening, as a result of the action of the King and Council, riotous disturbances occurred in the streets of Lisbon. The British consulate was attacked and the royal arms torn down. The police ultimately secured protection to the consulate, but afterward the Portuguese National Council building was attacked and the resignation of the Council was demanded.

It is rumored that Senhor Gomes, the Minister of Foreign Affairs will resign. Negotiations with England over the situation in Africa were in regular course till Jan. 5, when Glynn Petre, the British Minister, presented unexpected demands to which Portugal replied on Jan. 8 as already announced and negotiations appear to have been still in progress when England's ultimatum arrived.

The Situation Critical.

LISBON, Jan. 11.—The Diadeclares that fresh British demands, accompanied by menacing preparations for a formidable naval demonstration, have aggravated the difficulties, that the situation is delicate but that the resources of diplomacy are not yet exhausted.

The Warships Leave Zanzibar.

ZANZIBAR, Jan. 11.—The British squadron sailed south to-day.

Press Comments.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The Standard, referring to the result of the controversy between England and Portugal, says that Englishmen will be far more disposed to feel sorrow for the incident as a humiliation of a friendly power than to rejoice at England's triumph.

The Daily Chronicle approves Lord Salisbury's action.

The Herald's Prediction.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The Herald asserts that the Government intends to dissolve Parliament immediately after the Budget is passed or before the Opposition renders that course necessary.

Queen Victoria's Health.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The Queen has completed her preparations for a six weeks sojourn at Wiesbaden by the advice of her physicians, who recommend the waters of that resort as a panacea for the trouble with which Her Majesty is affected. It is stated that the Queen has lately experienced so much difficulty in locomotion that she assented to the trip only when assured by her medical advisers that the treatment prescribed was imperatively necessary as a means of averting complete helplessness.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The Tribune's London special says: It does not surprise the public that at the last moment the Queen decided not to open Parliament in person. Her Majesty's rheumatism increases every year, and in the highly contagious condition of the metropolis, it would be most imprudent for a rheumatic subject to be present at an aggregation of the contagious multitude. It is probable that the rumor is correct that as soon as possible the Queen will visit the Homburg baths.

Hartington Dangerously Ill.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The Marquis of Hartington is dangerously ill at Merton Hall, Norfolk, the seat of Baron Hirsch. He has been the guest of Baron Hirsch for a week and caught cold while shooting. The cold was neglected astrival but has developed into congestion of the lungs. The Marquis has a very high fever and the local doctors see so much gravity in the case that they have cabled London doctors in consultation. Doctors Powell and Roose went down this afternoon. Great alarm is felt and the Queen has telegraphed her sympathies and earnest enquiries.

MONTREAL, Jan. 12.—Despatches from Nor fork state that the condition of the Marquis of Hartington shows improvement, and that unless a relapse occurs he is in a fair way to speedy recovery.

Gladstone's Hawarden Speech.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Mr. Gladstone's speech at Hawarden was remarkable for two features. He not only girded at land nationalization, but he formulated a heavy attack against single ownership. Read between the lines, the latter was an argument against land purchase in Ireland. Mr. Gladstone stood to his guns about the duality of landlords' and tenants' interests. He expressly laid down the ideal of 3 per cent for the landlord and 10 per cent for the tenant. It was not stated whether Mr. Gladstone's own tenants were obtaining 10 per cent, but if they are the Hawarden estate must be an agricultural paradise. Mr. Gladstone's denunciation of the cultivator being the owner of the soil has provoked the inquiry whether it be really true that Mr. Gladstone himself, when last in office, formulated a purchase scheme which was to cost between fifty and one hundred and fifty millions. These points are challenging a good deal of criticism. Outside of them the speech was in general clever and unusually full of interest, even for Mr. Gladstone.

Must Disclose Its Circulation.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—In the libel suit brought by Mr. Parnell against The Times the court has refused The Times, appeal against answering an interrogatory regarding the circulation of The Times at the time of the publication of the articles on "Parnellism and Crime." The court, however, allowed an appeal of The Times against disclosing the names of the parties from whom it received the information on which the articles were based.

A BRANTFORD D.D. GULLED.

Rev. Dr. Cochrane Swindled by a Clever Adventuress—"Mrs. Blaine" and Her Operations in Various Towns.

BRANTFORD, Jan. 11.—The Courier tells this story of the way in which Rev. Dr. Cochrane was imposed upon by an adventuress:

On Dec. 28 Dr. Cochrane was telephoned for from the Young Ladies' College that a lady desired to enroll two students. On going up he found the lady, who represented herself as Mrs. Blaine from Brampton, her husband being a barrister there, but frequently in Toronto, where he was that day on business at Osgoode Hall. She stated that her father was Dr. Stewart of Montreal, and that Dr. Stewart of Madison avenue, New York, was her brother. Another brother had been for many years in Bombay, India, where he held a government position. It was his twin daughters, aged 14, she wished to place in the Brantford college for a term of years. They had arrived in England from India last summer, where she met them and brought them out on the steamship Vancouver, which had on that trip, among other passengers, Hon. Oliver Mowat, Dr. Potts and other celebrities. The evening before she had been at the house of Dr. Pattullo, College-street, Toronto, and in speaking of ladies' colleges, he strongly advised her to place her nieces in the young ladies' college at Brantford. When asked by Dr. Cochrane if she desired to see through the college, she stated that the housekeeper had taken her over the building, and she was perfectly satisfied, and would leave Miss Lee, the lady principal, to assign her nieces whatever studies she thought fit.

She then told Dr. Cochrane in the hurry of leaving Brampton that morning her niece who bought her ticket for Brantford neglected to return her reticule and purse, so that she was unable to proceed as intended to New York by the evening train where the two young ladies awaited her coming for them. She had, however, telegraphed Mr. Blaine to Toronto to send on money through one of the banks and expected it every hour. It was after all this and many other things had been stated that Dr. Cochrane offered to furnish her with money to go to New York instead of allowing her to pledge her gold watch with the Grand Trunk Railway agent, as she expressed her willingness to do. Accordingly he went with her to Major Snartt's, bought a through ticket for her to New York, telegraphed for a Pullman, gave her a letter to Mr. Morice, the station agent at Niagara, to see her safely across the line, and $10 in American money, all of which she promised to send or bring with her at the opening of the college on Jan. 8.

She spent the day at Dr. Cochrane's, where she was hospitably entertained, and proved herself an extremely lively conversationalist. She said she had been educated at Brompton, near London, and after that took a year at the famous Girton College, Cambridge, where she gained a scholarship, and showed the gold watch presented to her on that occasion. Mrs. Cochrane's brother, the late Dr. John T. Balmer of Princeton was, she said, a fellow-student of her brother's at Toronto. She went over her history to Mrs. Cochrane, and on hearing of the illness of her sister, Mrs. William Watt, jr., said that her father, Dr. Stewart of Montreal, was coming up soon to treat professionally Mrs. Innes of London, wife of Canon Innes of the Anglican Church, who was afflicted similarly, and she would have him come to Brantford to see Mrs. Watt.

Dr. Cochrane saw her off at 5½, putting her in charge of J. B. Hay, who was going as far as Hamilton. At the Brantford station she had re-checked three or four pieces for New York, and pointed out one trunk to Dr. Cochrane that looked somewhat battered as having come all the way from India with her niece.

Up to this point the doctor says he had no suspicions whatever that possibly he had been imposed upon, but at 7½ that evening he was telephoned that no person of the name of Frank Blaine could be found at Osgoode Hall. He then had the telegram sent on to Brampton, when another reply came that no such person could be found in Brampton. He then gave further instructions to have it sent out to his country house, 2½ miles distant, as Mrs. Blaine said they lived not in, but out of Brampton.

On Monday morning he was again telephoned that no such person could be found in or around Brampton.

That the doctor had been swindled seems clear for during the past week he has been in receipt of letters which clearly go to show that this is not the first episode in the career of a skilled, professional adventuress. One gentleman writes: "There is no person in Brampton named Mrs. Frank Blaine. I fear the lady who called upon you is the same one who was here a few weeks ago and victimized some of the people. She afterwards went to Barrie or Orillia, and with stories about Brampton and Toronto, obtained money from persons there." Another letter from John Fingland, county constable of Brampton asks for a description of her appearance, as he holds a warrant for the arrest of Miss Dolly Beely. In Brantford she gave her name as Dolly.

Mrs. Blaine is a smally, natty, good-looking woman, evidently English by birth.

FUNERAL OF THE EMPRESS AUGUSTA AT BERLIN.

The Condition of Spain's Young King More Hopeful—A Censorship of Telegrams—Efforts to Prevent a Republican Uprising—The Russian Budget—General Cable News.

BERLIN, Jan. 11.—Public attention was concentrated to-day upon the funeral of the Empress Augusta to the exclusion of all other topics. The religious service was concluded in the Schloss Chapel at 12.30, and amid the tolling of church bells the cortege moved at once for Charlottenburg. Unter den Linden, through which the procession passed, was profusely draped with mourning emblems. The street was lined by troops and by various trade guilds, by students from the public schools, by members of veteran societies and behind these thronged thousands of silent sympathetic spectators.

The ecclesiastical services as well as the military part of the scene, was a repetition of the honors paid to the renowned husband of the deceased, while the throng of family and official mourners was nearly as large and as illustrious. The Emperor laid upon the cofin a magnificent palm branch with long white silk ribbons bearing the imperial arms and crown in gold. Baron Levebow, President of the Reichstag, laid upon the coffin in behalf of the Reichstag, a wreath of palms, white roses and camellias, upon the ribbons of which was this inscription:

THE REICHSTAG TO THE FIRST EMPRESS AUGUSTA:

Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy.

Prince Bismarck sent a large wreath surrounding a cross of violets, the Princess Bismarck a wreath of roses and lilies of the valley, the Kings of Italy and Roumania each sent exquisite tributes of flowers as did sovereigns of almost all the German and foreign countries.

At the junction of the Charlottenburg-road and Lieges-allee the procession dispersed. The Imperial Family in carriages accompanied the remains to the mausoleum at Charlottenburg. The Fourth Grenadier Guards, of which the dead empress was honorary colonel, escorted the coffin.

UNEASINESS IN SPAIN.

The King Better—Republican Uprising Feared.

MADRID, Jan. 11.—The King passed a quiet day without fever. The latest bulletin is that the prostration continues but that he shows more animation at intervals. Crowds throng the street and surround the royal palace waiting for bulletins. There is a censorship of telegrams and many hundreds of them have been stopped. None are allowed to pass but those that give the short official bulletins. This is done to prevent a panic in the provinces. The effect has been to greatly increase the public anxiety and give rise to many rumors that the King is dead.

The government has telegraphed to all provincial and colonial authorities to exercise great vigilance in regard to possible republican movements and to repress them promptly. There are many and various opinions in regard to the strength of the republican party. All the leading Conservatives met at the house of Canovas del Castillo and agreed that in case of necessity they would support the government in the effort to maintain order.

MADRID, Jan. 12.—At 2 o'clock this morning the King's condition was encouraging. He asked for food during the night and was more cheerful, talking and playing with his sisters. His pulse was much stronger.

A small Republican band has cut the railroad at Venta Cardena in the Province of Jaen. The band is being pursued by the civil guard.

At noon it was reported that the King continued to improved and the Queen Regent had been enabled to secure a brief rest. A special mass was celebrated this morning for the recovery of the King. Hundreds of telegrams of enquiry have been received.

Serious Trouble Feared.

LONDON Jan. 11.—Though there is nothing in the dispatches sent out from Madrid to indicate any variation from the normal condition of affairs, it is learned through private mail advices that matters are in a vastly more desparate state than the authorities will permit to become known if they are able to prevent it. The action of the Cabinet in deciding to retain office sensibly pending the uncertainty of the condition of the King, but really because of their complete backdown from the position the Ministry has assumed on tariff and official matters, has not improved the situation, but rather has had the effect to increase the popular distrust of the continuance of internal harmony. On the part of the Government it is feared that the death of the King, the succession of a female to the throne and the extension of the regency will create an agitation, so fiercely violent to spur even the most lethargic of the Republicans to action, in which they will be joined by the Republican malcontents of Portugal, to the imminent danger of both thrones. This feeling is, of course, not admitted, but it exists, nevertheless, and the worst of it is, there is no alternative to the succession of Princess Mercedes and the regency of her mother. To oppose the legitimate rights of Princess Mercedes would surely result in revolution, where there is a possibility that her succession may be quietly acquiesced in; therefore it is deemed best to let things take their natural course and trust to fortune to avert the uprising which certain leaders stand ready to precipate upon any pretext, or no pretext at all. Meanwhile everyone is praying that the King may be spared, since upon that little fellow's life rests the best guarantee of peace within the borders of Spain.

The Russian Budget.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 11.—The budget statement says that in accordance with the wishes of the Czar the budget of 1890 provides for no increase of taxation and imposes no fresh burdens upon the people. In making these dispositions His Majesty has given a fresh proof of his unalterable resolve to continue his efforts to maintain a peace honorable to Russia and to maintain order. Under its shade all plans made by His Majesty to develop the resources of the country and to increase the welfare of the people may be carried out without impediment.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The Journal des Debats of Paris, referring to the Russian Budget, says it gives evidence of a pacific policy on the part of Russia. The St. Petersburg papers make similar comments. The Journal de St. Petersburg says: The Bulgarian loan prejudices Russias rights, Article 22 of the Berlin Treaty, assuring Russia of the expense of occupying Bulgaria for which the revenues of the Bulgarian railways were assigned. The payments of these revenues have been in arrear since 1886.

Cable Flashes.

M. Bajat, Governor of Southern Senegal, who was imprisoned by the King of Dahomey, has been released.

The strike is extending at Charleroi. The strikers threaten the men who are at work, and it is reported the use of dynamite has been attempted.

A POOR PROFESSOR

Makes a Still Poorer Exhibition of Himself—Baldwin of Illinois—Unrelenting Hatred Part of His Philosophy.

Professor Baldwin is a candid man. He says he has no use for The World. This is one of the first enunciations of the Baldwinian philosophy. And it was voluntarily made and with malice aforethought. Thuswise it came about:

The new Professor gave his inaugural lecture at Toronto University on Saturday afternoon. From beginning to end the affair was a failure. The audience, despite legions of invitations, was very slim. Outside the University staff there were not two score of adults; the ladies were more numerous and the students a mere handful. This circumstance in itself was depressing; but more so were the truisms and platitudes rolled off monotonously and in monotone by the new-fledged Professor. True, he pleaded he had la grippe and had to subside till a stimulant was brought him, which immensely tickled the sprinkling of students.

The Professor resumed and soon concluded. "Philosophy: Its Relation to Life and Education" was the theme, on which he said nothing new, and the only portions of his address which were applauded were his praise of what the University is doing in aid of philosophy and a tribute which he paid to the character and influence of his predecessor, George Paxton Young, whom he had never met, but in whose steps he would endeavor to tread.

At the close the Professor invited the reporters to his sanctum, where he said he would give each of them a type-written copy of his lecture. This he did to the other reporters present with a request to give him "a good show"; but when he found that The World's Philosophical Young Man was among the prophets he withdrew the proffered copy, replaced it in his pocket, avowed he wanted none of The World or its editor, brandished into a passion as he declaimed: "The World treated me harshly, unfairly, tried to prevent me getting the post I now hold, and I want to have nothing to do with that paper. I don't want a word about myself or my lectures ever to appear in its columns."

"Is this the first exemplification of the Baldwinian philosophy," blandly I asked.

"Yes, it is," retorted the irate Professor, "it is both philosophy and fact," and you can tell Mr. Macleay that from me. Tell him not to put a word of my lecture in his paper."

And always wishful to oblige a real gentleman, The World does not inflict a couple of columns of a dry philosophical disquisition on its readers, but gives the Professor a free advertisement as a failure as a public lecturer, and not possessing that virtue extolled by Solomon the Wise: "Greater is he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city."

Because Professor Baldwin hath got Naboth's vineyard, it is no reason he should exhibit Nabal's manners.

Such amenities may suit the Illinois wilderness, but do not grace professorial chairs in Toronto's University.

Prompt Payment.

It is with regret that we had to chronicle a few days ago the death of James T. Russell of this city, one of the advertising agents of The Mail newspaper. We are now pleased to call the attention to the prompt payment of $1000 to the widow by the Provident Savings Life Assurance Society of New York. The late Mr. Russell's many friends will be pleased to hear that his life was insured in a company that hesitates not to pay its claims immediately on receipt of the proof of death. The Provident is doing a very successful business; last year's report shows over $19,000,000 of new business. Canada contributed nearly $800,000 in the few months' operations in this country. And Mrs. Russell's letter is a further evidence of the high opinion we have always entertained of that company and its management.

TORONTO, Jan. 7, 1890.

Mr. Sheppard Homans, President Provident Savings Life Assurance Society:

DEAR SIR: I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your check for one thousand dollars in settlement of claim under policy 31,774 in the Provident Savings Life Assurance Society, on the life of my late husband, James T. Russell, who was only insured a few days before his death. I sincerely thank you for the speedy payment, and also thank your manager for Canada, Mr. Matson, for his kindness and courtesy in this matter.

Yours very sincerely,
(Signed) JANE RUSSELL.

NO TRACE OF THE MURDERERS OF OLD MRS. JANE SPEERS.

Her Two Bank Books, However, Found in a West End Hotel—She had $1800 on Deposit—Her Nephew "Sent For" by the Detective Department, but he Fully Explains His Movements.

The only development in the Speers murder mystery since Friday night has been the finding of the dead woman's bank books in a corridor of the Gladstone House at Gladstone-avenue and Queen-street. About 6 o'clock on Friday evening a small leather hand satchel was picked up in the lower hallway near the stairs. Finding no claimant around it was handed to the police. On being opened it was found to contain, concealed under scraps of cloth, the bank books belonging to the victim. One was issued by the Freehold Loan and Savings Company and the other by the Canada Permanent Loan and Savings Company, showing deposits aggregating $1900. The last withdrawal was on Nov. 3, when
