BASE BALL

IMPROVED BASEBALL GAME.

The improved baseball game suggested by "Kid" Elberfeld some weeks ago has been tested by Joe McGinnity, who is now training the young how to pitch at Princeton, and the Iron Man is enthusiastic.

"Run the bases either way and increase the science," is the meat of the scheme which Elberfeld and McGinnity are fostering, according to Boseman Bulinger, writing in the New York Evening Mail.

Here is the idea in a nutshell.

When the first batter in an inning comes to the plate, he shall have the right to run to first or third, as he pleases, keeping the selection to himself until he starts. Each succeeding batter in that inning is compelled to run the same way.

"You see," explains Elberfeld, "the first man who played baseball and the fellows who decided on the nine positions must have been right-handed; otherwise, why should a runner be compelled to run to the right, and why should the shortstop be placed between second and third to stop hits by right-handers?

"It is a big handicap," argues McGinnity, "for a right-hand batter to run to first base, and it would be equally hard for a left-hander to run toward third—"

"Therefore," chimes in Elberfeld, "the batters who come up first in an inning should have the choice of running either way."

As both Elberfeld and McGinnity argue, it would certainly increase the science of the game, as the first baseman would have to be able to play third and vice versa, with the third baseman.

For a while the bunters would have a picnic, as the third and first baseman would be puzzled as to which should play in close, and the second baseman and shortstop wouldn't know which should be ready to cover third or first bag when the third or first baseman went in to field the ball. Now, wouldn't that be a pretty mixup.

Another advantage in this new game. Elberfeld maintains, would be the effect it would have on the crowd if the game was close.

The fans would be in a continuous state of anxiety trying to figure out which way the batter would run.

McGinnity says he has tried it, and it not only causes amusement, but a lot of excitement.

FOOTBALL

ANOTHER FOOTBALL VICTIM.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23—William Hull, of the St. Patrick's Football team, who was discharged from Water Street Hospital on the 9th. inst., was taken to the hospital again yesterday. Since Sunday he has been unconscious, and there is grave fear that he may not survive. Hull was injured in a scrimmage while practicing with St. Patrick's on Wednesday, October 3. A clot on the brain is feared. He was very low at a late hour last night.

MONCTON AND MOUNT A.

A good game of foot-ball is expected at Sackville today, when Mt. Allison and St. Joseph University teams will do battle on the gridiron. Mt. Allison won easily the first game, but since then it is rumored that St. Joseph's have improved greatly, having played an almost even game with U. N. B. Jack McBeath, of Moncton, will referee today's game.

CURLING

MONTREAL CURLERS TO HOLD BIG BONSPIEL.

The Montreal Curling Club has sent out a circular giving particulars regarding the bonspeil which it will hold during the week beginning January 21 next. This bonspeil will celebrate the centenary of the club.

The circular is being sent out at this early date in order that the committee in charge of the bonspeil may have some approximate idea of the probable entries from the various clubs. Adequate arrangements must be made for the reception and entertainment of the visitors, and until some idea of the probable entries is available it will be difficult for the committee to proceed with this work.

One of the special features of the centenary celebration will be a dinner to be held on Thursday evening, January 24th, which is expected to be the greatest gathering of curlers the continent has known.

The draft programme contained in the circular issued by the hon- secretary, W. M. Taylor, is as follows:—

Centenary Cup (irons)—Presented by the Montreal Curling Club. Open to any regularly organized clubs; Montreal clubs to enter six, and outside clubs four rinks. To be played for annually during the week of January 21st, and to be held by the winning club for one year. Four miniature cups to accompany the trophy, possession of which will be determined by a play-off amongst the rinks representing the winning club.

Club Cup (irons)—Open to all regularly organized clubs, and each club to be represented by two rinks. First prize, silver cup; second prize, silver cup, to become the property of the winning club.

Club Cup (granites)—Open to all regularly organized clubs, and each club to be represented by two rinks. First prize, silver cup; second prize, silver cup; to become the property of the winning club.

Single rink championship (irons)—Open to all members of regularly organized clubs. First prize, four gold medals; second prize, four silver medals; third prize, four bronze medals; to become the property of the members of the winning rink.

Single rink championship (granites)—Open to all the members of regularly organized clubs. First prize, four gold medals; second prize, four silver medals; third prize, four bronze medals; to become the property of the members of the winning rink.

Points competition (irons)—Open to all members of any regularly organized club. Three prizes, each a real copper mug (gold lined).

Points competition (granites)—Open to all members of any regularly organized club. Three prizes, each a real copper mug (gold lined.)

ATHLETIC

COALES MAY BE CHAMPION LONG-DISTANCE RUNNER.

William Coales, a schoolboy of Thrapston, England, is heralded as the coming long-distance runner of the world. At the recent sports of the South London Harriers he entered in the three-mile handicap and was placed on the 60-yard line, with Guy Holdaway to keep him company. There were 84 starters in the race, and when the gun went off Coales and Holdaway were virtually the scratch men.

Many wondered why the youth had been placed on such a short mark as 60 yards, but the handicapper had "doped him" right. Never since Shrubb's performance had such fine distance running been seen in England.

Holdaway dashed off at the start, but Coales soon got on even terms, and quickly disposing of his co-marker, began to draw away. There was no gallery play. Coales simply ran right through his field, and, taking the lead in the last half mile, won, easing up in the hollowest fashion. His time was 14m. 47s. Allowing for the 60 yards, but considering the big field Coales had to get outside of, he is easily inside of 15m., which, for a schoolboy, is race going. A couple of years ago Fred Coales, an older brother of the youngster, was a prominent runner of the Alpine Harriers, so the distance work is a family trait.

THE RING

BERGER AND KAUFFMAN POST MONEY TO FIGHT.

Same Berger and Al Kaufmann, two of California's promising heavyweights, have been matched to fight in San Francisco on Oct. 31. They will battle for 50 per cent. of the gross gate receipts, 60 per cent. of which will go to the winner and 40 per cent. to the loser.

Jack Welch has been selected as referee. Both men have posted $1,000 each with Harry Corbett to guarantee their appearance in the ring at the appointed time.

A BITTER BATTLE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. — In a terrific early morning battle, held shortly after daybreak near Bloomfield, N. J., "Kid" Moore, of England, knocked out Hugh Dwyer, of New York, in the seventeenth round, with a terrific right hand smash to jaw. The ring was roped off in a field on the boundary line between two towns, so that in a raid the authorities of either place could be evaded. Two hundred and fifty New York sporting men saw the battle. The men wore five ounce regulation gloves. Thomas Wilson, of the New York A. C., was referee. Both fighters tipped the scale at 128 pounds. Moore was the aggressor from the start, and early in the fifth closed Dwyer's right eye with a left hook. At the end of the eighth round Dwyer's face was fearfully bruised. He showed gameness, however, and by constant jabs cut Moore's face in several places. As the battle progressed Moore showed great strength and was more shifty. The end came shortly after the seventeenth round opened, when Moore caught Dwyer with his guard down and put across a right swing which put Dwyer to sleep.

BOWLING

An interesting bowling match was played at Black's bowling alley yesterday evening in which a North End team defeated an aggregation from the city by 56 pins. The score was as follows:

Mr. Black has courteously offered the use of his bowling alley to the newspaper men of the city for a three-string game some afternoon at an early date. The matter will no doubt be taken up by the scribes who are experts at the sport.

QUEBEC ELECTION A NATIONLIST VICTORY SAYS BOURASSA

Montreal, Oct. 24—When Henri Bourassa, M. P., returned to Montreal tonight from Quebec he was met at the Place Viger station by about seventy-five admirers, who called for a speech. The member for Labelle then said a few words. He recalled that some newspapers had said that the defeat of Mr. Amyot at Quebec was a Nationalist victory. If that were true he was quite satisfied.

THE SCHOOLS IN ENGLAND

Prof. Leacock Says the Education Bill be "Amended to Death."

Professor Steven Leacock, of McGill University, gave an address on 'The English Education Bill,' at a meeting of the Canadian Club of Montreal, held in the Queen's Hotel, Monday afternoon. He said that the whole of the controversy in England turned upon the question whether the church or the state should assume supreme guidance of the national education. It was, therefore, similar to the controversy in Canada over the separate schools, so that Canadians need not flatter themselves that they possessed the superior wisdom in this matter, or think that the controversy was simply an anachronism of English life. With this brief preliminary statement, he proceeded to trace the history of education, started as it was by the church, and given for many years only to the governing classes, it being considered unnecessary to educate the common people. Gradually government assistance was given to education, but the whole system was very unsatisfactory at the time when Mr. Gladstone's government turned its attention to the rectification of English education. That government did not do away with ecclesiastical schools, but set up alongside them a system of government schools, governed by locally elected bodies called school boards. In these schools no formula of religion was to be taught. That was to say, the Bible might be read, but in explaining it, no particular kind of explanation was to be explained into it. As to what constituted a formula of religion opinions differed. Mr. Gladstone himself considered the Athanasian creed a formula because there were many doubtful things in it, but did not consider the Apostles' creed a formula, 'because we all believe it.'

Now the board schools, besides having, like the church schools, an annual grant from the government, were able to raise money by local taxation, and were thus in a superior position to the church schools, which had to rely on voluntary contributions. Presently, therefore, the board schools began to threaten the existence of voluntary schools, and in order to remedy this state of affairs, Mr. Balfour's government passed the act of 1902, which allowed church schools to share in the proceeds of local taxation.

There were nine million people living in places where there were no board schools, and the Nonconformists were obliged to send their children, therefore, to church schools, where they had the religious teaching of the Established Church. There was a 'conscience clause,' it was true, which allowed children to vacate the classes while religion was being taught, but the experience of 'silly conspicuousness' which this caused was stronger with the children than their religious scruples, so they nearly always remained in the classes. The Nonconformists objected to being compelled to pay for such schools, and Mr. Birrell had now introduced into parliament a bill to put the educational clock back to where it was in 1870—that is to say, it aimed to give church schools the choice of ceasing to be supported by local taxation or becoming undenominational schools. The question was what the house of lords, which was overwhelmingly conservative, would do with this bill. It was doubtful if they would take the grave step of altogether rejecting it, but it was extremely likely that they would 'amend it to death,' for it had been bitterly denounced by leading conservatives.

MRS. HARTJE SWEARS FORMER COACHMAN LIED

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 24—Mrs. Mary Scott Hartje, respondent in the recent sensational divorce suit instituted by her husband, Augustus Hartje, a millionaire paper manufacturer of this city, was the principal witness today for the commonwealth in the perjury case against Clifford Hooe, a negro and former coachman of Hartje. She emphatically denied the allegations of intimacy alleged by Hooe in a deposition. She was subsequently corroborated by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Scott, and a number of former house servants of the family.

Charles J. Fullwood, for thirteen years a court stenographer, was called. He took the deposition and said the man who had made it looked like the defendant. As the witness began to read the deposition from the official notes, the court room was cleared, only those connected with the case and reporters were permitted to remain. This was done because of the nature of the deposition. The testimony of Mr. Fullwood caused several sharp arguments between Assistant District-Attorney Robb and Attorney Ferguson, the debate becoming so heated at times that Judge Frase was compelled to interpose.

When court adjourned until tomorrow, Edgar Ray, a private detective, was testifying as to Hooe's trip through Ohio immediately after he is alleged to have made the deposition.

Mrs. Alexander Murray, of St. Stephen, is visiting her relations on the west side.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE OF S. S. ASSOCIATION

T. S. Simms, chairman of the executive committee, read the following report:

Annual report of the executive committee of the New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island Sunday School Association, October, 1906.

Since the convention in Moncton, one year ago, your committee has held regular monthly meetings with a fair average attendance. It is to be regretted that the P. E. I. members have been unable to attend.

Office and office help.—Having found it impracticable to continue the arrangement with the treasurer, A. H. Chipman, for the work of the association to be done in his office, the committee secured rooms in Ritchie's building, Princess street, St. John, and employed Miss A. Maud Stilwell to do the clerical work. This has been found to be a wise step, and the office will probably be continued. Members visiting the city are cordially invited to call.

County Conventions—The tour plan having been given up, for the present at least, the county conventions have been held at times best suiting the people, the dates being arranged in conference between the counties and this committee, so as to permit the Field Secretary to attend as far as possible. The president, Rev. H. E. Thomas, was able to visit Restigouche county convention, and the superintendents of the adult bible class and primary departments, and the chairman of this committee, were present at several of the other county conventions.

In Prince Edward Island the district conventions were brought in line during the months of June and July, and the field secretary attended them all, with encouraging results.

Departments—While there has been a decided advance in our work along all lines, and every department has encouraging reports, there remains much yet to be done, especially in the organization of the counties, so as to put into practical effect in every school the methods which have proved to be effective in the best and most successful Sunday schools.

But just here your committee would urge upon all the importance of not depending on methods only, but of relying more fully on personal effort with the aid of the Holy Spirit.

A school may be perfectly organized with a large and growing attendance, and yet not accomplish the purpose for which it was established. Unless it brings its scholars to Christ, and forms in them solid Christian characters, able to withstand evil, and earnest in the prosecution of God's work in the world, it is not accomplishing its purpose.

The motto, "To bring our scholars to Christ, and to build them up in Christ" should ever be kept before us.

The Adult Bible Class Department, organized last year, has been vigorously prosecuted by the president, J. N. Harvey, with gratifying results, as his report will show. There is reason to believe that through this agency large numbers of men will be attracted to the Sunday school, and induced to pursue the study of God's word.

Field Secretary.—The addition of Prince Edward Island to our association has increased the work of the field secretary, and his time has been fully occupied. He has been enabled, however, to visit all the counties, and many testimonies have been received, appreciative of his labors.

Our Official Organ—The Advocate has been published regularly, a report of which will be submitted by the business manager, Robert Reid. Your committee wish to express their appreciation of the able manner in which the business of the paper has been managed, and the untiring efforts of Mr. Reid to make it a success. They also wish to express to Rev. B. Glover their appreciation of his services as editor, and their deep regret that he is obliged in consequence of his removal from the province, to resign that position.

Your committee suggest the appointment of a committee to consider the advisability of changing the Advocate from a monthly to a quarterly paper, with power to act, if in their judgment this would be advisable.

Summer School—In last year's report, reference was made to the probable establishment of a summer school under the auspices of the association, in which all the denominations would co-operate. So far, nothing definite has been done. There is great need of a convenient centre where the Sunday school workers of the whole province might assemble in large numbers and spend a brief time under competent instructors, receiving instruction along the line of work of the Sunday school teacher, and teacher training, and general Sunday school management.

There is good reason to believe that, by all uniting in the inauguration of this plan, New Brunswick could have a summer school, doing for our workers what Chatauqua has done for so many years for the workers of the Empire State. The importance of the question deserves careful consideration by this convention.

Finance. — The recommendation made last year that a budget, covering all probable outlays for the year, be prepared, was attended to by the finance committee, and the amount apportioned among the counties.

At the writing of this report it is too early to give a forecast of the results for the year, but a full statement will be submitted by the treasurer.

The counties are taking up the work of collecting funds, thus relieving the field secretary of such work, and enabling him to devote his whole time to the work of the association.

Conclusion. — In submitting this report to the convention, the chairman, who has been a member of the executive committee, continuously, since the organization of the association, twenty-two years ago, wishes to bear testimony to the faithful and conscientious work of the members. The monthly meetings make quite a demand on the time of a busy man, and it has been suggested that the meetings of the executive committee be held quarterly instead of monthly.

It is thought that the business can be as well attended to, and the field secretary be enabled to be present, where it has been found inconvenient and expensive for him to attend monthly.

In closing, the chairman wishes to express his thanks for the considerate and courteous treatment he has always received at the hands of the committee, and, as he will be unable longer to serve in this capacity, anticipates for his successor the same considerate treatment and loyal support.

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

At yesterday afternoon's session of the Sunday School Convention, R. B. Wallace, of Fredericton, gave a helpful address on the need of system in the preparation of Sunday school programmes, A discussion followed the address.

In the absence of Mr. McLean, the address on How a Pastor Can Help a Superintendent was delivered by T. S. Simms. The subject was also discussed by Rev. Dr. Fotheringham, W. S. MacFarlane and Rev. Z. L. Fash.

Rev. C. P. Wilson spoke on the Teacher's Pastoral Relation to the Class. Rev. R. G. Strathie not being present, the address on the Pastor and the Teachers' Meeting was not given, but an interesting discussion on the subject was conducted by W. C. Cross.

The afternoon session closed with a prayer by Dr. Inch.

The evening session was opened with a service of praise, conducted by Tuller and Meredith, followed by an interesting address by the president, who in the course of his remarks welcomed W. N. Hartshorn, of Boston, and W. C. Pearce, of Chicago. Rev. A. D. McLeod was introduced as the representative from P. E. Island. Rev. Mr. McLeod said that Sunday school work in the island province was flourishing. W. N. Hartshorn discussed the work of the international executive committee, of which he is president.

W. C. Pearce delivered an interesting and stirring address on general Sunday school work. He said that with the same feeling as the soldier advances to meet the enemy—with the same feeling of the companionship of human hearts—the Sunday school army had moved to victory. Japan had been conquered, and he was looking forward to see the world's Sunday school convention held in China. A recent convention in Mexico, was attended by 750 delegates. The West Indies was being evangelized and the work is being carried on in South America. Mr. Pearce also spoke of organization in Sunday school work and the work of different committees of the international convention. He made a strong plea for co-operation, and took up the subject of education giving some interesting figures as to the number of conventions held in a single year and the attendance.

The address was replete with forcible illustrations.

The following committees were appointed:

Nominating committee—R. T. Hayes, A. A. Graham, Miss Addie Calder, Mrs. M. J. Steeves, W. L. MacFarlane and Rev. J. H. Brownwell.

Credential committee — Miss Ethel Hawker, Robert M. Currie, J. Hunter White.

After Mr. Pearce's address and the usual exercises the gathering adjourned.

COUNTY REPORTS.

Reports were read from the various county secretaries and showed that, in the province of New Brunswick there were 610 Sunday schools, and of this number 365 were kept open during the entire year. The number of officers and teachers totals 4099, the number of scholars 28,650, and a total attending membership of 19,603. The average attendance figures at 19,389. There are 87 home departments with a total membership of 2718. There are in the province 61 cradle rolls, having a total membership of 1259. Seventy-one Sunday schools observe decision day and 638 members have been received into church from Sunday schools. One hundred schools have separate primary class rooms; twenty-eight have classes for training teachers, and the number qualifying for teachers is 206. There are 231 I. B. R. A. members and the Temperance Army membership has reached 1764.
