PASS THE HAT FOR SOLDIERS OFF TO FRONT

St. John Citizens to Provide for Families of All Men Selected for Active Service.

STRONG COMMITTEE TO SOLICIT FUNDS

Movement launched at meeting held in Imperial Theatre yesterday morning—Committee will meet again today.

The people of St. John have decided to make some tangible recognition of the service rendered to the Empire by the volunteers for war duty from this city. At a meeting in the Imperial Theatre yesterday morning it was decided to take up a subscription in order to create a fund to provide for the families of soldiers who leave for the front. A committee of one hundred was selected to take up a subscription, and the work of collecting will be started at once.

It was decided to distribute part of the money among the men and the rest will be retained to provide for their families. The committee was empowered to make the fund provincial if it wished, but for the present at least the fund will be for the aid of St. John soldiers.

What Was Done Before.

Mayor Frink presided and explained what had been done at the time of the Boer war by the people of St. John. By means of the fund raised, the pay of the men had been increased 50 cents a day. Before the men left for the front $4,000 had been raised and each man was given a sovereign.

Judge Forbes expressed the opinion that the fund should be a provincial fund chiefly to aid the wives and children of the men who go to the front. He moved that a committee of 100 be appointed to solicit subscriptions.

Allan Schofield in seconding the motion, thought that the amount should be raised through the taxes and then a subscription fund could be proved for.

Col. E. T. Sturdee was not of the opinion that the amount should be raised through the taxes. "We should have more information before we decided about the distribution of the fund. The men should be put in a position before they go that they may know that their families will be provided for while they are away." The motion was put and carried unanimously.

The matter of the appointment of a secretary and treasurer was left to the committee.

The mayor read the names of 100 men in the province who might make an efficient committee. On motion of Walter Golding the name of Raymond Tobias was added to the committee.

The Committee in Charge.

The Mayor was selected as chairman, and power was given for the appointment of an executive and officers of the committeee.

The committee appointed was as follows:

Sir Frederic Barker, Hon. J. D. Hazen, Hon. William Pugsley, Senator W. H. Thorne, Senator Daniel, Dr. Murray MacLaren, Col. E. T. Sturdee, John McAvity, E. C. Church, Miles E. MAY MATCH MURPHY

San Francisco, Aug. 16—Promoter Jim Coffroth is trying to arrange a twenty-round contest for Labor Day between Charley White, the Chicago lightweight, and Harlem Tommy Murphy. The winner, according to Coffroth, will get first chance with Willie Ritchie when the former champion returns to the ring. Buckley, Murphy's manager, cabled from England that the terms would suit him.

PARIS GIVES FIELD MARSHAL FRENCH AN ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION

FIELD MARSHAL SIR JOHN FRENCH.

Field Marshal Sir John French is commanding the British army now on the continent. It is reported he has joined General Joseph Joffre, the French commander-in-chief, at the headquarters of the allied armies, the location of which is not disclosed.

London, Aug. 18—The official war information bureau announces that the British expeditionary forces have landed safely on the French shore.

Mr. Smith's statement continues:

"Field Marshal Sir John French arrived in Paris shortly after midnight on Saturday, to convey the salutations of the British nation to France. The commander-in-chief of the British expeditionary army was welcomed by several distinguished officers of the French general staff, the British ambassador in Paris and a number of French cabinet ministers.

"As Sir John French, dressed in his khaki uniform, stepped from the train in the French capital, a roar of cheering for England and France rose from the great crowd which had assembled and then people then sang the national anthems of the two countries.

"Sir John French drove to the British embassy, and his motor car all the way through the streets was the centre of a human whirlpool. Even the police were excited, and they were wholly unable to restrain the populace, which surged around the car, shouting clamorously 'Hurrah for General French, hurrah for England, hurrah for France.' Women held children above the crowd to see the famous English general, whose motor car was soon filled with small flags and cockades.

"The coincidence of the British commander-in-chief's name being French is regarded as a happy augury for the allies.

"After sleeping at the embassy, Sir John French paid a visit to the Palace of the Elysee, where he had a long conference with President Poincare.

"When the death of General Grierson from heart failure was announced today, as having occurred while travelling on a train, everybody in official circles understood that the general had been stricken in France. His death will be deeply deplored by the nation."

Paris, Aug. 18—Sir John French, after a conference with the general staff, which lasted a good portion of last night, left for the front. A big power motor car with a racing chauffeur was placed at the disposal of the British commander. As he entered it a huge crowd on the streets cheered him. All information regarding the whereabouts of the British forces is withheld for strategic reasons, neither is it known where General French went.

Emergency Session of Parliament Opens

Looking down from the press gallery upon the scene below one's mind instinctively went back to another and different scene hardly twelve months ago. There in silence were the men upon whose shoulders must rest the blame, the responsibility, the stigma of witholding aid from England. Perhops one could detect on the faces of some of them a shadow of remorse, a wish that they could wipe out the record of Hansard with its strife, its petty politics, its shameless protests against rendering assistance to the Motherland. And what would not every patriotic Canadian give today if our three Dreadnoughts were at Jellicoe's command in the fighting line in the North Sea.

Tomorrow the real business of the session, the business of war, will be taken up, the government will ask for a credit vote of $50,000,000, and it will be given with ten times fifty millions if required, for such is the depth and intensity of Canadian loyalty today.

The address in reply to the Speech from the Throne will be moved by Donald Sutherland, an Ontario Scotchman, and seconded by D. O. Lesperance, a Quebec French-Canadian.

It will be a business session and little time will be given to oratory. There will be no vain glorious boasting; parliament and the government realize that they are about serious business. Ever since the fateful day when England resolved to stand between Europe and a conqueror, whatever the cost, Sir Robert Borden and his colleagues have faced the situation in a manner worthy the best traditions of the breed. Knowing that out of great cataclysms great good has come, that the clearest sunshine follows the darkest storms, and that though the crisis be burdened with human tears, it will be followed with a wider freedom and a surer peace.

(Canadian Press)

Canada's war vote for the present emergency has been raised $50,000,000. Sir Robert Borden gave notice of a resolution hereafter providing appropriation of that amount, to be devoted to the defence and security of Canada to the condition of military or naval operations in or beyond Canada, for promoting the continuance of trade industry and business communications, whether by means of insurance or indemnity against war risk, or otherwise and for the carrying out of any measures deemed necessary or advisable by the governor-in-council in consequence of the existence of a state of war. It is further resolved that the government be empowered to raise, by way of loan, such sums of money as are required under the appropriations. It is evident that the government does not intend for the present, to increase the revenue, either by tariff adjustment or by way of imposing any war tax.

How Canadian Contingent Will Be Constructed

The order in council providing for the Canadian expeditionary force of one army division defines the number of officers and men in the various units. The total embarking strength of the force is to be 22,218 although upwards of 25,000 men will mobilize at Valcartier. Commanders and staffs total ninety, cavalry 157, artillery 3,888, engineers 442, signal service 160, infantry 12,025, army service corps 567, army medical service 698, army veterinary service eleven, ordinance corps eighteen, army pay corps two, postal corps fifteen. In addition to these there will be 1,750 officers and men at the overseas base, and 2,395 in the administrative units available for reserve or reinforcing purposes.

Copies of orders-in-council passed since the outbreak of the war and tabled in the Commons this afternoon, show that the government paid $1,050,000 for the two submarines purchased from Chile, that an order was placed with the Ross Rifle Company for thirty thousand rifles and bayonets at $33.25 for each rifle complete, aggregating approximately $1,000,000, and that a third war expenditure was an order to the Canada Tool and Specialty Company, of New Glasgow, for the conversion of 10,000 long Ross rifles and sights to correspond with the present Mark III. rifle at $3.50 per rifle for the conversion. This work is to be completed by April 1st, 1915. The total expenditures on these three items is about $2,100,000. The expenditure for the submarines, which had to be made at once, was covered by Governor-General warrant. The dimensions of the submarines are given as follows:

Displacement 313 tons, length 144 feet and 152 feet respectively; beam 15 feet, speed 13 knots submerged. The order-in-council ratifying the purchase was passed on August 7th, or three days after the war had actually been declared by Great Britain. As a matter of fact the purchase had been actually made just on the eve of the declaration of the war by Sir Richard McBride, acting for the British Columbia government. Thus international complications from the purchase of war vessels in a foreign country when Great Britain was actually at war was avoided. The correspondence between the Canadian and the Imperial governments since the outbreak of the war, as tabled in the Commons this afternoon by Sir Robert Borden, dealt for the most part, with the question of Canada's expeditionary force.

Canada's Offer and its Acceptance.

The first question raised was in regard to despatching of such a force was in a cable to the colonial secretary on August first in which it was stated that the Canadian government would welcome any suggestions and advice which the imperial naval and military authorities might offer. It was pointed out that under section 69 of the Canadian Militia Act, the active militia could only be placed on active service abroad for the defence of Canada, and as a means of obviating the letter of the act, it was suggested that the Canadian regiment might enlist as imperial troops with the Canadian government making all necessary financial provision for their equipment, pay and maintenance.

On the same date was cabled the offer of the Canadian government on behalf of the Canadian people, to put forth every effort necessary to insure the integrity and maintain the honor of the Empire. It evoked the reply already published, declaring that the imperial government gratefully welcomed the assurance. On Aug. 4th the following cable was received from the Colonial Secretary:

"Though there seems to be no immediate necessity for any request on our part for an expeditionary force from Canada, I think, in view of their generous offer, your ministers would be wise to take all legislative and other steps by which they would be enabled, without delay, to provide such a force, in case it should be required later."

Two days later, on August 6th, there came the definite request for a Canadian expeditionary force. It was couched in the following words:

"With reference to my telegram of August 4th, His Majesty's government gratefully accepts offer of your ministers to send expeditionary force to this country, and would be glad if they could be despatched as soon as possible."

One Army Division Asked For.

It will be noted that the cable asked for the despatch of the forces as soon as possible, "and that it is requested that the force be sent to Great Britain. The size of the expeditionary force was stated in the cable of August 7th, in which one army division was asked for.

So far as the correspondence shows, no further cables have been received since August 7th in regard to the despatching of the force.

On August 8th the Canadian government asked the colonial office for advice as to whether the army reservists in Canada should be sent home at once, and the following day a further cable was sent asking if the war office would allow the army reservists to enlist in the Canadian expeditionary force. In reply to this a cable was received on August 12th stating that the imperial army council would be glad to have all army reservists sent home at the first opportunity. If transport could be arranged at once, it was requested that they should return with the expeditionary forces.

In the correspondence there is a cable, under date of August 8th, from the governor-general to the colonial secretary, stating that the Canadian government wished to place the two submarines at Esquimault at the disposal of the admiralty for general service. On August 9th this offer of the submarines was gratefully accepted by the admiralty.

The only other item of general interest in the correspondence is a request for information of the imperial government as to whether the Dominion Coal Company should be given permission to export coal to Norway, Sweden and Denmark. The reply received on August fourth stated that there was no objections to the exportation of coal to the countries mentioned.

A cable from Hon. Mr. Perley, high commissioner to London, to Premier Borden states in reply to the latter's request for information as to the effect of the British moratorium, that no debt due from outside the British Isles is postponed unless incurred in Great Britain by any person or company having a business establishment or branch business in the British Isles. This applies also to dividends or interest payable in response of trustee stocks and to bank liabilities and government.

KAISER THANKS STATES FOR ITS OFFER

Washington, Aug. 18.—President Wilson has issued an appealing address to the American people calling upon them to refrain from any expression or act that might reveal the slightest partizanship towards the nations in conflict. Leaders of Congress of parties voiced similar views.

Official information came from Berlin that the Japanese ultimatum had been sent to the German government and it was intimated in the diplomatic messages that war between Japan and Germany was not unlikely. The Japanese minister at Berlin, apparently foreseeing such an eventuality asked Ambassador Gerard to be prepared to take over Japanese interests in Germany. The president received from Emperor William a long message transmitted through Ambassador Gerard, the contents of which were guarded closely, but which it was learned expressed the greatest appreciation of Germany for the tender of good offices made by the U. S. officials admitted that there was nothing in it which could be construed as an indication of whether or not the Emperor would at any future time accept the tender of good offices.
