IRELAND BRITAIN'S MASTER.

THE CONSERVATIVE VIEW OF THE HOME RULE BILL.

Mr. Gladstone's Astounding Inconsistency—Result of the Retention of Irish Members at Westminster—Mr. Chamberlain Saves the Government, But Bitterly Taunts the Premier.

From The Sunday World.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Smalley cables The Tribune as follows:

LONDON, July 16.—"I will not be a party," said Mr. Gladstone at Manchester, on June 25, 1886, "to setting up a legislative body to manage Irish concerns, and at the same time to having Irish members in London acting and voting on English and Scotch questions."

The Stultification Complete.

No declaration could be more public or binding. It is, for Mr. Gladstone, extraordinarily explicit. He does not deny it. He does not even attempt to explain it away; yet he has now done precisely what he said in 1866 he would never do. The legislature he is setting up in Dublin is to manage Irish concerns and they are to be at the same time Irish members in London acting and voting on English and Scotch questions. The attempt to limit their right of voting to Imperial questions has been abandoned and the abandonment makes a fourth Home Rule bill.

Ireland All in All.

The too famous ninth clause has been turned inside out. Mr. Gladstone does his best to minimize the importance of the last transformation, but Mr. Gladstone sees all things from a purely Irish point of view. He cannot be got to fix his attention on England, nor does he seem to care deeply what effect his fantastic experiments may have on the constitution of the kingdom. To him Ireland is the kingdom. He has now proposed in succession three methods of dealing with Irish representation at Westminster. The first in 1886 was to exclude them altogether. The second was the original "in and out" arrangement to the bill first brought in at the beginning of the session. They were to be in for some purposes and out for others. The third is that carried on Thursday, by which eighty Irish members remain in for all purposes.

An Act of Political Rascality.

He announced his final decision on this momentous subject on Wednesday and on Thursday carried it by the closure. Six hours for a constitutional amendment. One of his supporters who declined to support him in this, Mr. Wallace, whose brilliant speech made a realization, described it in the House as an act of political rascality. The word is not very happily chosen. I should prefer to describe it as an act of inconceivable political levity. Nobody denies that it alters, and alters profoundly, the present constitution of Parliament. Mr. Gladstone was well enough aware of this when he introduced the bill, for he then discussed it in terms which showed him alive to some of the risks he was running.

A Blow at the Constitution.

It strikes at the roots of the principle of representation on which the House of Commons is founded, namely, that members shall be elected by the people whose affairs they are to administer and to whom they are responsible. But the control of the House and of English business and the power of making and unmaking ministers now passes into the hands of an Irish contingent, elected by people whose affairs are administered by another legislature. Mr. John Morley described it at Newcastle as a scheme which would weaken the legislature in Ireland and demoralize the legislature in Great Britain. It does more than that. It destroys the value, slight enough already, of every safeguard guarantee for the minority in the bill.

Veto a Farce.

Professors of politics like Mr. Bryce, in such intervals of leisure as he could spare from packing the Lancashire bench, tested the validity of the veto on the ultimate authority of Parliament. It was to be exercised in emergencies under the advice of a minister responsible to Parliament. Yes, and now Parliament itself is to be controlled by the Dublin Legislature. Eighty Irish members are to have the right of vetoeing on every English question. The Irish districts are so gerrymandered in the bill as to increase the present Nationalist preponderence; but half of the whole number would be more than enough to turn out most ministries. English questions will be determined by purely Irish consideration. "We voted on Egypt but we were thinking about Ireland," said an Irish member on one memorable occasion. It will never be otherwise.

England Deprived of What Ireland Gets.

Mr. Gladstone is not content to give Home Rule to Ireland. He takes it away from Great Britain. This is part of the "discipline" which the "pure Scotchman" feels called upon to mete out to the English. It was Mr. Gladstone himself who explained in luminous language that such a plan opened the door wide to political intrigue. That was one of his reasons for rejecting it last February. It ceases to be a reason in July, when political intrigue has reached a height never before known in this country. Yet it is certain to be surpassed should this bill, or anything like it, ever become law. Mr. Chamberlain has summed up in a sentence the true character and the certain consequences of it: "The issue is whether the interests of Great Britain are to be controlled by delegates from Ireland, nominated by priests, elected by the illiterate and subsidized by the enemies of this country."

The Guillotine and the Gag.

The majority of 27 for this new scheme was much larger than expected, and Mr. Gladstone was jubilant. If all the Gladstonians who were opposek to it had voted against it there would have been no majority at all. Tremendous pressure was used to bring the wanderers back to the fold, and only four held out. But the whips know, and many others know, how serious is the discontent and with what searchings of conscience the best men in the party make themselves accomplices in the work of the gag and the guillotine. They thought it high-handed to apply the closure to a bill which had been before the House since last February. They were forced on Thursday to apply it to a new measure and a new policy and a new revolution, which had been sprung on the House only the day before. Several of these members were driven into the lobby by a kind of persuasion which fell little short of violence. Never has such pressure been put on men's consciences and acts. Then the guillotine was again started, and by majorities of 33 to 35, some 17 or 18 clauses, even the exact number is uncertain, were worked off, and then the executioner went home to bed and slept soundly.

Chamberlain, the Government's Saviour.

The most critical moment through which the Government had passed before Thursday was on Monday, when they proposed to reduce the Irish representation in the House of Commons from 103 to 80. Their saviour was Mr. Chamberlain. By his own confession he saved them. The Irish naturally enough intended to vote against this limitation upon what they regard as their inalienable right to an unequal and excessive number of members in that House of Commons which in their patriotic moods they commonly refer to as a foreign assembly. Mr. Redmond moved to retain the present number. Mr. Gladstone told him that 80 and not 103 was the figure corresponding with the population of Ireland, and that Ireland would suffer no injustice if placed on the same footing to the House as the rest of the United Kingdom.

Mr. Chamberlain's Bitter Taunt.

But, expecting to be beaten, Mr. Gladstone declared that he was willing to abide by the judgment of the House in this matter. In other words, he did not mean to resign office or abandon the bill if defeated. These are now his invariable tactics. Mr. Chamberlain taunted him with: "In there," cried he, "anything but office to which the Government will stick? Is anything a question of principle to them? Have they a principle except to get a majority when they could, if they are in a minority, to say it does not matter?"

And so he went on in a tone of triumphant sarcasm, which finally made it clear to Mr. Sexton that a defeat might be very serious to the ministry. No matter how meekly Mr. Gladstone was prepared to accept it. So when Mr. Chamberlain sat down, up sprang Mr. Sexton, said he should not vote with the Government. The whole party followed him, the Redmonites excepted, and Mr. Redmond was left in a minority of 14. It was the closest shave the ministry has had.

A Humiliating Position.

If Mr. Gladstone cared for consistency he might, nevertheless, think his position sufficiently humiliating. He admits that Ireland has at this moment 23 more votes in the house than she is entitled to. Deduct them and his majority vanishes. But he does not deduct them. He goes on using them to coerce the house and override the opinion of Great Britain and to overthrow the constitution. The majority by which, against the wish of England, he does all this is not merely an Irish majority, but by his own admission a dishonest majority. What does it matter to him? A majority is a majority, no matter how obtained, or how used. He can still write letters to Midlothian and lay on unctuous emphasis on the "moral forces" of a verdict thus fraudulently extorted from a House, in which the true will of the majority of the whole people is tramped contemptuously under foot.

A MURDEROUS CONVICT.

He Nearly Kills an Instructor at St. Vincent de Paul and Vows General Vengeance.

MONTREAL, July 16.—Some months ago Detective Lafontaine was stabbed with a pitchfork at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary by a prisoner named Laframboise, but the officer's badge prevented the blow doing serious injury. This morning the same prisoner committed a murderous assault on Mr. Sigouin, one of the instructors at the penitentiary.

Laframboise was employed in the stonecutters' shop, when shortly after 8 o'clock he seized a piece of stone and flung it at his instructor, breaking his jaw and prostrating him. In falling Sigouin struck his head on a large block of stone, thus receiving further injuries. Seeing his victim powerless Laframboise seized a heavy hammer and rushed with savage fury to administer what would probably have been a deathblow. Fortunately Gagnon, another convict, who happened to be near, rushed to the rescue and seized Laframboise before he could proceed further. Getting away from Gagnon, Laframboise, who had by this time reached the climax of rage, gave further vent to his fury by breaking with his hammer some fine stone ornaments, valued at about $600. The furious convict was speedily overpowered and taken before the warden, who sentenced him to receive 40 lashes of the cat-o'-nine-tails. Laframboise was then placed in the dungeon, but not before he had vowed vengeance, and declared that before leaving the penitentiary he would have the life of both Warden Ouimet and Dr. Gaudet, the penitentiary physician.

THE STREET PAVEMENTS.

Business Men Desire the Work To Go On At Once.

At the council meeting to-night the proposal to alter the existing agreement between the city and Toronto Railway Company will receive its quietus, and the council will order the work now under contract for the paving of the track allowances to be commenced forthwith.

This action will meet with the approval of the public, but the council should not rest nor be satisfied with simply ordering the commencement of the work. It should add a proviso that the work not only be got under way at once, but that it be carried on and completed with all possible despatch.

Toronto has suffered in the past from having her streets torn up, and kept in a disgraceful state by dilatory contractors in the past, and more than one merchant has suffered from this, and some can attribute their failure to pay 100 cents on the dollar to this cause.

Ald. Hallam spoke very strongly on the subject on Saturday to a World reporter. He is willing to allow the contractors two weeks in which to commence operations, but he should not lose sight of the fact that the work can be commenced by tearing up the streets and leaving them in that condition.

Ald. Lamb is still of the opinion that the work should have been divided, as recommended by the Board of Works. As it is now there is no telling in what condition the streets will be in for the balance of the summer, as no contractor without a large plant can carry on the work rapidly.

The council owes it to the public, after the many delays, that some vigorous measures be taken to urge on a rapid carrying on of the work.

TOTALLY DEAF.—Mr. S. E. Crandell, Port Perry, writes: "I contracted a severe cold last winter, which resulted in my becoming totally deaf in one ear and partially so in the other. After trying various remedies and consulting several doctors without obtaing any relief I was advised to try DR. THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL. I warmed the oil and poured a little of it into my ear, and before one-half the bottle was used my hearing was completely restored. I have heard of other cases of deafness being cured by the use of this medicine."

Granted Bail.

The application for the bail of Margaret Laker, now in custody in Guelph, charged with infanticide, was granted yesterday. Mr. Justice Meredith fixed the bail at $4000, to the satisfaction of the County Crown Attorney at Guelph. The case will be heard at the next General Assizes there.

Mrs. H. Hall, Navarino, N.Y., writes: "For years I have been troubled with Liver Complaint. The doctors said my liver was hardened and enlarged. I was troubled with dizziness, pain in my shoulder, constipation and gradually losing flesh all the time. I was under the care of three physicians, but did not get any relief. A friend sent me a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and the benefit I have received from it is far beyond my expectation. I feel better now than I have done for years."

A Firemen Injured.

Saturday night while on the way to the Bay-street fire the Portland-street reel collided with a trolley car. Alexander Smith, a fireman, was thrown from the reel and badly bruised. He was taken into Truss' drug store and afterwards removed to his house

A HIGH SWELL ABSCONDS.

Bert Saunders, Who Claims to Have Been an Army Officer in Egypt, Commits Forgery and Flees.

MONTREAL, July 15.—The police are looking for Bert Saunders, who has been for some time a high swell in Lachine. He was staying at Cornwall some weeks ago, and when the police went to arrest him for forgery he had fled, but had left behind in his hotel a sealed package addressd to Admiral Hopkins of H. M. S. Blake. Bert Saunders three weeks ago worked for Drummond, McCall & Co., car wheel manufacturers, Lachine, as clerk. He boarded with Mr. Wallace at Lachine, and was very fond of female society and social entertainments. Before he left Lachine for Cornwall he was engaged to be married. He was gentlemanly, and claimed to have been in various battles in Egypt, and for a number of years to have been in the British army. He said that he was drawing a large pension from the British Government. This renowned warrior has been found to be both an absconder and a forger. The day after he left Lachine to spend a few days in Cornwall his books were inspected and he was found to be $125 short in his cash. He was also discovered to have forged a note and to have drawn the money on it on another office in Lachine. On enquiry it was found that while Admiral Hopkins was in New York a young man named Francis Saunders had deserted from his ship and the package was sent on to the Admiral. It is supposed that Francis was a brother of Bert and had given him this package, but Bert has fled, it is supposed, to Boston.

IT ISN'T IN THE ORDINARY WAY that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to the weak and suffering woman who needs it. It's guaranteed. Not with words merely; any medicine can make claims and promises. What is done with the "Favorite Prescription" is this: if it fails to benefit or cure, in any case, your money is returned. Can you ask any better proof that a medicine will do what it promises?

It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and strengthening nervine, and a certain remedy for the ills and ailments that beset a woman. In "female complaint" of every kind, periodical pains, internal inflammation or ulceration, bearing-down sensations, and all chronic weaknesses and irregularites, it is a positive and complete cure.

To every tired, overworked woman, and to every weak, nervous, and ailing one, it is guaranteed to bring health and strength.

Monroe, Miller & Co. of New York send the following despatch over their private wire to their Toronto office, No. 20 King-street east:

NEW YORK, July 15.—Stocks opened fractionally higher than the close, becoming dull and selling off. London was ¼ to ⅜ lower at opening, with limited dealings. W.U.R.I and N.W were the weaker industrials. Sugar weak. General Electric and Distillers fairly well supported. Manitoba was erratic, recording its usual ½ per cent. fluctuations. Time money was slightly better supply. The general marketwas stronger on small transactions. Traders were disposed to operate for further improvement. But the market shows no disposition to respond.

12 noon—Continued reports of heavy failures in the west have depressed the market which sold off half to one per cent., closing very unsettled at slight gains from the lowest figures. The bank statement for the week shows that the banks have increased in surplus reserve $812,925 and are now $4,260,100 below legal requirements. Loans $413,494,800, decrease $5,186,100; specie $62,268,900, increase $565,300; legal $82,005,500, decrease $878,600; deposits $394,174,000, decrease $4,505,900; circulation $5,826,300, increase $177,000.

Failures for the week in the United States were 268, against 319 last week. The Western States lead with 134 of the failures, 78 per cent. represented capital of $25000 or less. Money closed offered 5.

GOSSIP FROM CHICAGO.

R. Cochran received the following despatch from Kennett, Hopkins & Co. to-day:

CHICAGO, July 15.—Wheat—Bank failures at Kansas City is holding prices down. Everything else bullish. It is stated as a reason why wheat does not move out of Chicago that about 8 millions of the stock here is owned by capitalists, who bought it for investment, without selling futures against it as a hedge, and that this wheat is not on the market, and will not be even if materially higher prices prevails. We believe that next week wheat will see considerably higher prices.

Corn—Continues dull. Light trade, but market holds its own and we see little encouragement for shorts.

Provisions—Rather more active in consequence of rumors of impending corners in pork and lard for September delivery.

John J. Dixon & Co. received the following despatch from Walker & Co. to-day:

CHICAGO, July 15.—Dulness has been the rule again in wheat pit; outside trade was so light that the market only fluctuated ¼ cent all day and about the only trading has been by scalpers against the puts. Prime's weekly report bullish; weather continues warm in winter wheat belt, slightly cooler through the Northwest. Clearances for the week and to-day were big. Reported considerable gold will come this way next week. Visible should show decrease Monday.

Corn receipts did not come up to the estimates, but they were big and expectations are for continuation. Some talk of dry weather west, but do not bull market so far.

Receipts of hogs under the estimate, but prices lower.

Provisions have ruled active with quite large trade in lard and ribs. The features have been the selling of ribs early by Wright and buying of lard by Cudahy. The purchase of lard amounted to about 9000 tierces. Toward the close of the session and at the decline Wright was an open buyer of ribs. The provision deal is not dead but sleeping and when awakens look out for music. We expect lighter receipts of hogs.
