WOMAN BOOKMAKER IRISH MORAL PEST

Meets Servants on Street, En Route from Work, and Relieves Them of Their Money

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Commenting on the disclosures as to the gambling between girls made yesterday at the Quarter Sessions at Naas, Ireland, in the course of a slander case against a woman bookmaker, Judge Barry said that the vice of gambling had gone so far in many towns that women bookmakers did a large business with domestic servants, who thus frittered away their wages. He blamed bridge whist for fostering the love of gambling in the upper classes, characterizing it as a 'moral pest." It was well known that the ready money bookmakers did a large business among the factory girls in the large cities, going to meet them as they left their work on pay days. Women in the factories often acted as their agents.

RAILWAY PRESIDENT GUILTY OF BRIBERY

Pittsburg Graft Case Continues in Sensational Manner.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 12.—Chas. S. Cameron, president of the Tube City R. R. Company, charged with conspiracy and misdemeanor in attempting to bribe former city councilman William A. Martin, in connection with the passage of an ordinance granting a franchise to the Tube City R. R., was found guilty today as indicted.

Attorneys of Cameran gave notice of an appeal and the convicted man was held in $20,000 bail.

Former Councilman W. A. Martin, who is serving a sentence for accepting a bribe and C. R. Richardson, a broker, who is awaiting sentence for his part in the Tube City R. R. scandal, were the principal witnesses at the trial today.

A declaration by Martin, that he was honest in selling his honor to Cameron and that he considered it very cheap at $70,000 was the statement with which Martin concluded his testimony. When asked if he would not have had to distribute the money among some of his brother councilmen, Martin said that perhaps he could have footed them but Cameron fooled him. He refused to mention any name, declaring he did not show Cameron a list of councilmen. Any hopes that the district attorney's office might have had that some confirmation would be drawn from Martin, which would be of assistance in the prosecution of the seve councilmen and two former bankers now under indictment on charges instituted by the Voters League of this city, of attempted bribery and corruption, were shattered when Martin foiled all efforts to make him involve or incriminate others.

Richardson related the story of the loans made by Cameron for the purpose of hoodwinking Martin.

KIER HARDIE SPEAKS TO NEW YORK AUDIENCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Before an audience made up in part of members of the so-called "Privileged Classes" and in part of workingmen and Socialists for whom the cry of "equal opportunity for all" is a slogan, J. Keir Hardie, member of parliament and chairman of the labor party in the British House of Commons, tonight reviewed the growth of the labor party in Great Britain during the past two years and pointed out the moral to be drawn on this side of the Atlantic from the achievements which that party had already to its credit in the form of new legislation.

The address which was the second in the season's series of civic forum addresses, was received with marked signs of approval and established here the reputation of Mr. Keir Hardie as a speaker.

Rev. Chas. E. Aked, pastor of the 5th Avenue Baptist church, introduced the British labor leader, comparing him to Gladstone.

Mr. Keir Hardie proceeded to analyze what he termed the recent revolution in British politics.

TRACING HIGH FINANCE METHODS OF BOOTH & CO.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 12—Whether a check for $100,000 which enabled Phil. Chancellor to establish the Globe Packing Company at Cleveland was high finance of philanthropy on the part of A. Booth and Company, could not be established definitely at the Master in Chancery's hearing today. Receiver Chalmers, who has charge of A. Booth and Company's business, is endeavoring to discover what became of $690,000, shown to have been paid by A. Booth and Company to their attorneys, Thornton and Chancellor. Justus Chancellor, of the law firm, a brother of Phil. Chancellor, who established the Globe Packing Company, was on the witness stand.

Phil. Chancellor, a law clerk, according to the testimony, received $100,000 with which to buy several struggling fish houses which were combined into the Globe Packing Company. Chancellor received a salary as manager of $15,000. The $100,000 became sixty per cent. of the capital stock of the new concern. Three years later this stock was turned over to A. Booth and Company as security for the loan. Witness denied that the Globe concern became a part of A. Booth and Company's alleged monopoly.

Mr. Newman stated that Phil. Chancellor was no longer head of the Globe Company, his removal following closely the appointment of a receiver for A. Booth and Company.

MOTHER CANNOT BELIEVE HER DAUGHTER A SUICIDE

ORANGE, Mass., Jan. 12.—The body of the woman who was found last night in the railway station suffering from internal pains, which resulted in her death a few minutes later, was identified today as that of Mrs. Lizzie E. Smith, 28 years old, of Old Mystic Conn. Mrs. Smith had been staying with her mother, Mrs. Leon Dodge, for more than a month.

Mrs. Dodge discredits the reports of physicians that her daughter died as a result of poisoning. She says that Mrs. Smith was in the best of spirits when she left home.

Medical Examiner Stanton J. Brock, is absent today but will hold an autopsy tomorrow. The funeral will be held Wednesday in Everett.

Mrs. Smith was born in South Thomaston, Maine.

LURE AND PROFIT OF THE HUNT INSPIRE INGENIOUS TRAPPING TRICKS

Wildcats Trained to Catch Muskrats and 'Possums to Capture 'Possums—Girls Make Money From Skunk Skins.

TRAINS WILDCATS TO GET MUSKRATS.

FURTOWN, Pa., Jan. 12—There are scores of trappers now engaged in capturing muskrats for the fur market, but none of them is having the success of Fred Perkins. This woodsman, who formerly lived in Vermont, says it is a poor day that does not bring him in sixty pelts, and there have been times when the catch reached eighty-five.

Mr. Perkins attributes these results to conscientious work and the additional fact that he uses wildcats to catch the muskrats.

"It may not be generally understood," said Mr. Perkins, "that the wildcat is the natural enemy of the muskrat and delights in killing for the pure sport of the thing, just as the common house cat finds pleasure in life killing ordinary rats and mice.

"Of course, it required some pains to teach the wildcats not to tear the pelt and to bring the muskrats to the cabin after they had been caught. By being patient and treating my wildcats gently, I at last brought them to a high state of development.

"Indeed, they went further than I hoped for. Finding that much time was lost in travelling from the lake to the cabin, they divided up the work, some of the wildcats devouting all their time to slaying, while the others acted as laborers and brought in the carcasses."

HOMING POSSUMS TRAINED HUNTERS.

BUCKSKIN, Pa., Jan. 12—Charley George has two homing possums which he is using to catch other possums. They work conscientiously, and are bringing him in a steady income.

Mr. George acquired the trained animals from a dealer, who had spent much time in educating them. For several weeks they were kept confined until they became familiar with their surroundings. They were also fed upon wholesome but not rich food, and no pains were spared to make them contented and happy.

After a little while they were released one night. They seemed to know just what was expected of them, for they struck out for the woods. Next morning Mr. George went out to the pen and found two strange possums sleeping with the trained animals. The wild ones were killed and their hides taken off.

Every night since then the homing possums have taken their trips into the surrounding country and have lured to the George home many fat possums whose pelts are worth considerable money.

SCARES FOXES TO GET SILVER PELT.

SKINNEM, Pa., Jan. 12.—One of the rarest of fur-bearing animals is the silver gray fox, whose skin is worth from $200 to $600. That it was possible to artificially produce a silver gray fox skin was not thought within the range of man's ingenuity until this winter. M. F. Murphy, late of Stamford, Conn., has shown that it can be done.

He simply takes a fox of ordinary breed and average intelligence and places it in an enclosure with a muzzled hound dog. The hound pursues its prey with fierce intensity, without being able to harm the fox and in good time scares the animal so much that its hair turns white. This can often be done in a single night.

Mr. Murphy is rapidly buying up all the live red foxes that can be purchased in the open market, as well as a plentiful supply of wicked hound dogs, and he will shortly go into the business on a large scale.

He tried the same experiment on minks, hoping to transform them into ermine, but the minks wouldn't scare worth a cent.

RATTLES LINKS TO CATCH LYNX.

FERVID CROSS ROADS, Pa., Jan. 12.—Morton Watkins, a woodsman and trapper of some note, has been having fair luck since winter opened catching lynx. This is a wary animal and quite rare, but the high prices given for the pelt amply repay the hunter's efforts.

In taking the beast cunning must be used. The method usually employed by Mr. Watkins is to walk through the woods, dragging a log chain behind him. Hearing the rattling, the cautious animal, convinced that other links are near, wanders forth from his place of concealment and thus falls an easy prey.

When there is snow on the ground, and it is difficult to use the chain trap, Mr. Watkins, who is something of a vocalist, conceals himself behind a fallen tree and sings a song entitler "Links of Love."

This, too, lures the fur-bearng animal to its doom, and as it comes within reasonable distance, the trapper, with one mighty swoop, fells it with a club. As a rule he does not like to kill the lynx with music, since one or two sharp notes are very apt to cut the skin and ruin its worth.

GIRLS PROFIT BY SKUNK TRAPPING.

PELTIERSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 12. — A number of society girls of this community have adopted a unique method of raising funds for the free library. They are trapping skunks and are selling the pelts to fur houses. Already this season the young women have picked up $46.

This has been an especially good year for the cute little animals. They can be found along the mountain creeks by the hundreds, and expert judges say the skins were never in better condition. While the ordinary black and white pelt is not worth more than 60 cents, a pure slack skin sometimes brings as much as $4.

The young woman set the traps in the evening in places where their keen sense leads them to believe skunks may be found, and in the morning they trip out daintily and collect the animals. The pelts are then removed and packed away in bundles, to be sold later to a fur dealer.

In addition to being profitable, the girls say, the outdoor life improves their health and complexion.

They believe the fad might be taken up with profit in other communities during the winter. It is a grand substitute for social functions, and none of these has been held here thus far.

BRAZILIAN RAILWAY MEN GO ON STRIKE

41,000 Native Workers Out—Wrecked the Office of English Owners.

PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, Jan. 12—The Brazilian employes of the Great Western R. R. of Brazil, a British concern, employing 4,000 men, went on strike this afternoon. Race feeling against the English runs high in the state and the police were called out to preserve order. They were powerless, however, to prevent the raiding of the company's main office. The strikers have seized the rolling stock and practically are in possession of the terminals. Further violence is feared and the federal government has troops in readiness.

WERE FOUND GUILTY OF LIBELLING ROCKEFELLER

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—On the ground that the publication of their names as the responsible heads of the Star Publishing Company, which publishes William R. Hearst's New York American, made them personally liable for libellous matter appearing in that newspaper, Magistrate Moss today found S. S. Carvalho, Bradford Merrill and Edward S. Clark guilty of criminally libelling John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and technically committed them to the Tombs prison. On notice that the defendants would apply for a writ of habeas corpus in order to test validity of the law under which they had been sentenced, the magistrate allowed them to remain in the private reception room of the prison, while their counsel, Clarience J. Shearn, went before Justice Davis in the supreme court and obtained the writ.

Upon the granting of the writ, Messrs. Carvalho, Merrill and Clark were paroled in the custody of their counsel until Thursday morning, when argument on the writ will be heard.

The offense for which Messrs. Carvalho, Merrill and Clark were found guilty of criminal libel was the publication in the American of an article charging Mr. Rockefeller with having been instrumental in the instituting of a system of peonage by a certain breakfast food company in Illinois. Young Mr. Rockefeller himself took the stand to testify in the case and refused to withdraw the charge even after the newspaper had printed a retraction.

BATTLE OF TIGER AND BULL WITNESSED BY 5,550 PEOPLE

Terrible Spectacle in Ring in Mexican City —Both Animals Will Die— A Ferocious Struggle

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 12.—The fight between a Tiagua bull and a Bengal tiger in the bull ring in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, opposite El Paso, this afternoon, was most ferocious and will result in the death of both animals. The sickening spectacle was witnessed by 5,500 people, largely Americans, and many of them tourists, who stopped over here especially to witness the barbaric spectacle. After three bulls had been despatched in the regulation manner the star performance was pulled off. The two animals, inclosed in an iron cage about thirty feet square, were brought together, and the battle between the enraged brutes commenced.

The bull was first taken into the enclosure and given the usual bull fight tortures to arouse his ire, and then the iron cage containing the tiger was wheeled up to the entrance, but the tiger refused to get out and open the battle, and the bull attempted to get into the small cage and get at his adversary. The bull was badly scratched about the face. Finally the tiger came from his cage and the bull gored the cat with a long sharp horn as he emerged. With a screech of pain, the cat with a powerful lunge, broke the bull's right leg in return and then the two animals went into the fight for their lives. The tiger was able to spring out of the way of the bull in a number of instances, but when the big, heavy animal caught his adversary it went hard with the tiger. The bull stepped upon the tiger in one instance and there was a crunching of ribs audible in the seats of the amphitheatre.

The bull also disabled the tiger in the back in a short time, and after that the fighting was very tame and was soon stopped by the cries of the Americans for pity, while the Mexicans cheered the brutal performance and wanted it to proceed. It was declared a draw by the judges, and where anything was wagered on the result the money was pulled down.

MOCKING BIRD GUIDES LOST CHILD

Little Schoolgirl in Missouri Led Back by Songster After Wandering Away.

CLAYTON, Mo., Jan. 12—Clayton is still marvelling over the queer story told by seven-year-old Eloise Preiss, who says a mocking bird guided her to her home after she was lost on her way from school.

A fairy story that had been related by her teacher, Miss Williams, caused her to follow the bird after a sort of inspiration told her she had seen it often near her home.

Eloise is the daughter of Mrs. Louisa Preiss and is considered one of the brightest puplis in the Clayton public school. Her home is in Central avenue, four blocks west of the school and one block north of St. Ferdinand avenue, the street which leads direct from the school to her home.

"At three o'clock Friday afternoon I left the school," she said. "I walked west on St. Ferdinand avenue until I came to the Hanley road. I was thinking about something our teacher had told us and I turned into the Hanley road.

"I walked about a half a mile before I knew I was lost. It was getting dark and I didn't know what to do. All of a sudden I saw a bird that was flying round and round right over my head. I remembered that Miss Williams read us a fairy story a few days ago.

"It said that when a little girl was lost she could find her way home if she would follow a bee or a bird.

"The mocking bird kept flying around, and it came so close to me that it almost touched me. It seemed to me that it said, 'Come with me, come with me.'

"When it flew right in front of me I could see that it was a bird that I saw every day in our yard. it always sits in a tree there and sings when I go to school and when I come home. It seems like it tells me goodby and waits for me to come back.

"It flew back along the road and I turned around and followed it. At first it flew very fast, and I had to run to keep up with it. When I was so tired I couldn't run any more I saw the bird look back at me. Then it flew so slowly that I could walk and keep up with it.

"I followed it until I came to Curve No. 7 on the street car line. That's right on Central avenue, and when I got there I knew where I was.

"The bird seemed to see that I knew the way. It flew around over my head and went back. This morning it was on the tree in our yard, and it sang when it saw me."

The little girl seemed filled with awe as she told her story.

"It is true," said her mother, "that she did not return home until half-past five o'clock yesterday evening. I was greatly worried about her. There has been a mocking bird around here all season, and Eloise is sure that it guided her home. She never told a remarkable story like this before."

PACIFIC MILITARY BASE

Morning Post Discusses Britain's Delay in Choosing.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Lord Strathcona has written The Morning Post respecting its allegations regarding the meagre garrison and neglected state of Esquimalt, and has called attention to the answers to Mr. Ralph Smith's questions in the Dominion House of Commons on January 15, 1908. The Post declares Sir Frederick Borden's replies practically endorse all its statements, and notes from these answers the significant feature that the responsibility for under-garrisoning Esquimalt has been shifted from the Canadian Militia Department to the British War Office which, however, is in close communication with Sir Frederick Borden. The crux of the situation, the Post says, is, in effect, the complete uncertainty which still characterizes the whole direction likely to be taken by the development of the Pacific. At present the authorities are engaged, in watching these developments, and the utmost deliberation is being exercised prior to a definite choice of a permanent British military base in the Pacific. Latterly the garrison at Hong Kong has been increased, and it has appeared to careful observers as though the Army Council has definitely decided to make this Pacific base its choice. It may doubtless be criticized on strategic grounds, but such arguments do not affect the present issue. Should the army council in conference with the Defence committee decide on development farther afield in the Pacific doubtless this decision will be arrived at in view of the interests of the defence of the empire as a whole. The Morning Post adds that the present distribution of the permanent Caandian force does an injustice to Canadian citizens on the Pacific coast.

LABOR LEADERS AND THEIR COUNCIL PLAN NEXT MOVE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12—Every phase of the recent decision of Judge Wright in the contempt proceedings and the appeal therefrom will be considered at a conference here tomorrow between the executive council of the American Federation, now in session and of counsel in the case, including Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York.

The most important action of the executive council's session here today, was the selection of a committee to consider and report to the council upon a report of the three labor leaders in the contempt case. This committee is composed of Vice-presidents Duncan and O'Connell and Treasurer Lennon.

A resolution was adopted recommending to the conference committee of the organizations having such matters in charge the advisability of establishing a union label department of the American Federation of Labor.

RAILROAD DOG DEAD

Bob, Well Known Canine, Killed in Montreal Recently

Knew the Ways of the Road and How to Get to and From Different Places

(Bangor Commercial.)

Bob, the Railroad Dog, probably one of the most intelligent canines ever in this part of the country, is dead. He was killed a few weeks ago in Montreal by being run over by a train. Railroad men in Bangor have learned of the canine's death and there is considerable mourning over Bob's death, even if he is only a dog.

Bob was the property of Miss Ethel Mann of Grand Works. He was not a thoroughbred, but was of the coach dog variety, black and about the size of a good sized bulldog. Although Bob had no special pretentions to blue blood or the aristocracy of dogdom, he had about as much intelligence as they make 'em.

Bob succeeded Owney, the most famous railroad dog in the affections of the railroad men, in this part of the country and now that he is dead many are the tales that the railroad men tell of his sagacity and intelligence.

When Owney died almost a decade or so ago, it was thought by railroad men in this part of the country that another canine of his intelligence could never be found, but after Bob came on deck they commenced to change their opinions. Bob started his railroad career like all dogs of his kind—several trips on the trains and then his life work was marked out for him.

Bob started his travels in a small way by travelling between stations in the immediate vicinity of Bangor. He made friends with the baggagemasters on the different trains, and they always looked to it that he came back home safely. He never rode in any other car but the baggage car and seemed to know that that was the best place for him.

As Bob learned the ropes he became more proficient in learning the ways of the road and accordingly travelled all over Maine. Eventually he knew how to get to any place in Maine and how to get back. Bob always had a great liking for West Sebois. He would jump on one of the B and A. trains at the station here and when West Sebois was reached he would jump off. After several days spent there during which friends fed and looked after him, he would jump on a southbound train and return to Bangor.

Although West Sebois was one of his favorite destinations, Bob travelled to many other places which were more difficult of access. No matter how many changes he had to make to get a place, Bob knew how to get there. In talking of the dog Monday, a number of railroad men said that he seemed imbued with almost human intelligence. He appeared to maintain a well defined schedule of visitations to different points and visited them so often.

Up to within a year's time Bob maintained his travels on the Main Central and Bangor and Aroostook trains but since he developed a fondness for traveling on the Canadian Pacific trains which later led to his death. Although he liked Canada Bob always managed to come home and see his friends.

NEW YORK, Jan 13—Wall Street.—Most of the Standard railroad stocks were very little changed from last night's prices in the opening dealings, but there were wide movements in some of the minor stocks. Wisconsin, Central pfd., advanced 2 3-4, National Biscuit, 2, and Toledo, St. Louis, and Western 1 1-2. A decline of 3-4 in St. Paul was the largest change shown in the mixed results in the general list.
