New Advertisements

Notice—T. Adamson.
Gleanings—W. Kay.
Shower Baths—W. Lee.
Hay Cows—Alex. Grant.
Instruct Nature—R. Gibbons.
Property for Sale—R. Galbraith.
List of Convictions—D. Lizars.
Local Notice—Devlin & Johnston.
To Whom it may Concern—Wm. Rudd.
Agricultural Insurance Co.—D. C. Macdonald.
Stamps—W. S. Ireland—J. V. Deyler & Son.

Law Reporting Newspapers

1. Subscribers who do not give orders to the contrary are supposed to wish their papers continued.

2. If subscribers order papers to be sent to their post office and refuse to take the paper, they are held liable for the subscription until they pay up arrears and order the paper to be stopped. This shows that newspapers are not sent to the post office against the will of those who take them.

3. If any subscriber orders his paper to be sent to other places without informing the Publisher, and this information is not given, he is held responsible for the subscription, that is, he must pay it.

4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the Publisher, and this information is not given, they are held responsible for the subscription, that is, they must pay it.

5. If subscribers order their papers to be stopped, they must pay up arrears, or the publisher may continue to send them on credit, and may recover the whole subscription by law.

6. If subscribers take papers from the post office, whether they have ordered them or not, they are responsible for the subscription.

7. If any person takes a newspaper from a post office, whether it is addressed to his name or another's, or whether he has ordered it or not, he is responsible for the subscription.

8. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

9. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

10. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

11. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

12. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

13. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

14. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

15. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

16. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

17. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

18. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

19. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

20. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

21. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

22. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

23. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

24. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

25. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

26. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

27. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

28. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

29. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

30. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

31. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

32. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

33. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

34. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

35. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

36. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

37. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

38. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

39. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

40. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

41. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

42. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

43. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

44. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

45. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

46. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

47. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

48. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

49. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

50. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

51. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

52. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

53. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

54. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

55. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

56. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

57. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

58. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

59. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

60. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

61. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

62. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

63. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

64. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

65. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

66. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

67. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

68. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

69. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

70. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

71. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

72. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

73. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

74. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

75. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

76. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

77. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

78. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

79. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

80. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

81. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

82. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

83. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

84. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

85. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

86. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

87. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

88. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

89. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

90. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

91. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

92. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

93. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

94. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

95. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

96. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

97. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

98. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

99. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

100. The Publisher is not responsible for the publication of any article which he may insert from a correspondent, until he has received the subscription for the same, that is, he may, if he chooses, insert an article which he knows will do his subscriber more harm than the price of his paper, and his subscriber has no redress, but to pay for the paper.

Huron Signal.

GODERICH, June 17, 1874.

Dr. Sangster.

In accordance with a provision of the School Act passed at the last Session of the Ontario Legislature, the Public School teachers will shortly have the privilege of electing a person to represent them in the Council of Public Instruction, (several candidates are before them, the principal of whom are Professor Gilbert Smith and Dr. Sangster. With reference to the former of these we have only to say that Mr. Smith is a man of great literary ability, natural talent and unimpeachable character. There are others we would prefer seeing in the position, but as between him and Dr. Sangster there is no room to hesitate in favour of the former.

Dr. Sangster is a man of some ability. He was for a time head master of the Normal School and proved to be a successful teacher. This however was perhaps more owing to his thorough system of discipline than to any great ability on his own part. He has never been regarded as an original thinker, and his lectures, which latterly he has been delivering throughout Ontario, are merely recitations from an old Edinburgh work entitled "Course on Common School Education." His school books, which were at one time extensively used in the Public schools, have been all but banished, and the most practical and best informed educationists unite in condemning them as utterly unfit for our schools.

In respect to his moral character Dr. Sangster cannot present a clean sheet and it is on this ground that we object to him as a suitable person to sit on the Council of Public Instruction. His conduct for some time before he resigned the Headmastership of the Normal School was anything but becoming. Teachers know very well that morality is very much better taught by example than by precept. How can they expect their pupils to be influenced by their teachings of morality if they support a man who has been guilty of gross immorality. Dr. Sangster carried on a flirtation with one of his pupils, a girl in her teens, to such an extent as to cause a great scandal in Toronto and bring grief and reproach on the girl's family. Mrs. Sangster also reproached him with his folly, and he thereupon set himself about getting rid of her in order that he might marry the girl. He went to the States, secured a divorce, and in a short time returned to Canada, married to the girl for whose sake he had put away his wife. Our law does not recognize divorces obtained in a foreign country, and were it to do so our social arrangements would all be upset. It is true Dr. Sangster has charged his first wife with unchastiness and claims he has a document signed by her acknowledging this, but he has never produced it, nor can he do so. We have only his own word as to the character of his first wife.

The matter has resolved itself into this. Will the teachers of Ontario support for an important public position a man who has violated the laws of God and man by crossing the lines and obtaining a divorce after having lived with his wife for a score of years, then marrying a young girl whom he takes with him, and returning after a short time to live in the country whose laws he has openly had wantonly violated? If they do, we can only say that the legislature has made a sad mistake in intrusting them with the franchise which they prostitute to such a purpose.

At a meeting of the Huron Teachers' Association held in Goderich last week, we are sorry to say that Dr. Sangster's candidature was endorsed by a vote of 51 to 9. A committee had been appointed to interview him, which they did by a series of questions, which, with the answers, will be found elsewhere. We do not think that the publication of these questions and answers will justify the teachers in the eyes of the public for deciding to support the doctor. Of course he would give a plausible answer to the questions, but there are some very important points in connection with his conduct which he has never explained. He owes that explanation, and the fact that he has never given it, but depends on the personal influence he can wield over teachers by coming in contact with them at their meetings, shows that his conduct has not been correct. Surely the teachers of this province will not stultify themselves by electing him, and we would strongly urge the teachers of this county to consider themselves. Surely they are not so lost to morality as to support a man of such grossly immoral character as Dr. Sangster.

Scandal.

It will be remembered that at the close of the election last January the Mail made a furious onslaught on Rev. Mr. Dewart, editor of the Christian Guardian, because he saw fit to vote for Mr. O'Donoghue, the Reform candidate in East Toronto, and demanded that he should be dismissed from his position as a minister. The Wesleyan Conference has just shown that it repudiates the grandiose and impertinent advice of the Mail and other supporters of the Ministry, by re-electing Mr. Dewart, without discussion, by an overwhelming majority. As long as he attends to his duties (and he has made the Guardian an excellent church paper) the Conference rightly judged it had nothing to do with his political sentiments.

Rev. Mr. Parker, editor of the Brownsville Observer, the organ of the Bible Christian denomination, also came in for a share of abuse from the same source in consequence of certain editorials which appeared in the paper which he conducts. The Conference with which he is connected also sustained his action at their recent meeting and passed a resolution to that effect.

Wesleyan Conference.

The Wesleyan Conference after an existence of half a century in Canada, disintegrated itself at its recent in Hamilton. Henceforth there will be three Conferences as follows, Toronto—Conference composed of the Toronto, Owen Sound, Collingwood, Barrie, Bradford Whitby, Cobourg, Peterboro, Bellville, Bay Quinte, Saskatchewan and British Columbia Districts; London Conference composed of the Hamilton, Niagara, Brantford, London, St. Thomas, Chatham, Sarnia, Guelph, Wellington and Goderich Districts; Montreal Conference composed of the Montreal, Kingston, Brockville, Perth, Pembroke, Ottawa, Quebec, Stanstead and French Districts. These local conferences will meet annually in June. They will send delegates, lay as well as clerical, to a general conference to meet every four years. The first meeting of the General Conference will be held in Toronto in September.

Lucknow.

It was announced in the papers that the village of Lucknow has been attached to the County of Bruce, contrary to the wish of a large majority of the inhabitants, and much indignation has been expressed against the Government, the Attorney General in particular, for the dilly-dallying policy pursued in the matter. The proclamation has not yet issued, and we understand the question is not yet finally settled. Of course Ashfield and Wawanosh are opposed to having any of their territory attached to Bruce, and ask for an investigation into the whole circumstances connected with the incorporation. Had the Attorney General acted with a little more promptness and firmness at the outset all this trouble would have been saved. As it is, he has alienated many of his political friends by the hesitating course he has pursued.

Presbyterian Union.

The result of the Conferences between the Supreme Courts of the Presbyterian Churches assembled at Ottawa is that the union is sure to go on. Some slight modifications have been made in the basis, to suit the minorities in both bodies. The basis as altered will be sent down to Presbyteries, Sessions and Congregations for their approval, and special meetings of the Supreme Courts will be held in Toronto in November to receive their reports and make arrangements for consummating the union.

LOCAL NEWS.

PERSONAL.—The proprietor of this journal returned to town last Thursday somewhat improved in health by his short respite from work.

CONCERT.—We understand the Wesleyan Methodists intend having a concert of sacred music in their church to-morrow evening.

PERSONAL.—We understand that when the North Riding Registry Office is closed, W. T. Hays, the Registrar, will resume the practise of law at Wingham.

CROPS.—From all party of the County cheering reports come to hand of the crops. There will be a poor yield of fall wheat but the spring crops look splendid.

COLD WEATHER.—Last Friday was so cold that those who had not taken down their stoves, or had a grate, were glad to have a fire in them. A brisk north wind prevailed.

CRICKET.—A cricket match between players from the east and west sides of the town is being arranged for Saturday next. A challenge has been sent to Seaforth for Dominion Day.

THE TECUMSEH.—The steam barge Tecumseh arrived on Saturday last with a cargo of 40,000 bushels of wheat consigned to parties in Scotland, which was discharged at the elevator.

MR. BAY'S REPORT.—We have the report of Mr. Bay, County Engineer, presented to the County Council at the late session, but as it is somewhat lengthy we are obliged to hold it over till next issue.

STORM SIGNAL.—The storm signal was hoisted on Thursday last by order from Toronto. Sure enough on Friday a gale of wind prevailed. The warnings of the signal will be found generally correct.

CLOSED.—The shutters are up on a certain jeweller's shop on West Street a few doors from the Post Office, the proprietor having taken "French leave." Thus it is

"Friend after friend departs."

DOMINION DAY.—The Committee who have in hand the preparing of a programme for Dominion Day are actively at work. Excursions from Brantford and London have been arranged for and a grand day's sport may be expected. We hope to see a large turn out of our friends from the country.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.—The congregation of St. Andrew's church taking advantage of there being no service for the last two Sabbaths in consequence of the absence of the pastor at the meeting of Synod, have had the church thoroughly repaired and cleaned. It looks much improved inside.

BY EXPRESS.—Crofts & Johnston received by express a choice lot of goods which they purchased at a great discount for cash. Dress goods, Black Grenadine Shawls, Lace Shawls, Lace Capes, Honiton Lace Collars, Honiton Lace Sets, Maltese Lace Collars, Silk Ties and Sashes, &c. Trimmed millinery at reduced prices.

GODERICH, KINCARDINE AND SOUTHAMPTON.—Great inconvenience has been experienced this season in consequence of the withdrawal of the Wm. Seymour from the Goderich, Kincardine and Southampton route, especially as the Southern Extension is not yet opened. To meet the wants of the public the steam barge W. S. Ireland will make semi-weekly trips between these ports for the present, also going to Sarnia once a week. The days of sailing may be learned from an advertisement in another column. The tug George Mapthorn will also make tri-weekly trips between Goderich and Kincardine, extending its trips to Port Elgin if necessary.

built of stone. Mr. Hutchinson, the representative of Messrs Ogilvy, received a telegram last week to have the plans altered so as to enlarge both the mill and elevator. We trust the enterprise of the firm may be amply rewarded.

BEATTY LINE.—Serious complaints are being made with reference to the Beatty line of Lake Superior boats. They advertised the beginning of the season that they would sail from Sarnia twice a week, on Tuesday and Friday, a thing it is impossible for them to do with only two boats. The announcements of their sailing are published only in the city dailies, which few of those who contemplate moving west see, and we know of frequent instances of people being kept waiting for days, and finally taking some other route in disgust, just because the Beatty line does not keep the public properly informed as to their time of leaving. The Kincardine press complains that the Ontario has not called there this season though advertising to do so. There is a good reason for her not calling and that is simply that there is not a sufficient depth of water. When she left Goderich on her last trip up she was drawing 11½ feet, while, if we are correctly informed there is only 10 feet of water at Kincardine. Of course they should not advertise to call there when they cannot do so. We would advise the Beattys to be a little more liberal in their advertising. It will amply repay them.

WESLEYAN STATIONS.—The only change in the stations of the Wesleyan clergy in this district for the ensuing year is at Clinton. Rev. W. S. Blackstock, who removed from Goderich to that village last year, goes to Napanee, his place being taken by Rev. Thomas Brock from Perth. The following is the list of stations and ministers in the district,—

Goderich—Jas. Graham.
Clinton—Thomas Brock
Londesboro—Isaac Crane (Clinton).
Holmesville—Charles E. Stafford.
Seaforth—Charles Lavell, M. A.
Mitchell—Samuel Wilson; Assist Hurlbert, superannuated.
Fullarton and Hibbert—Coleman Bristol, M.A.
Monckton—R. Pinch.
Stratford—William C. Henderson, M.A.
Harmony—D. W. Thompson.
Bayfield—Luther O. Rice.
Dungannon—James Broley,
Kincardine—George A. Mitchell, B.A.
Berrie—Andrew Milliken.
Teeswater—James Laird.
Brussels—Robert Day. One to be sent.
Wingham—Henry Kellam, Samuel Sellery.
Lucknow—John S. Fisher.
Kippen—Robert Reynolds.
Exeter—William Lund, Wm. Goodwin.

Clinton.

THE G. T. R. R. STATION.—For a length of time, great complaints have been uttered against the inconvenient locality of the railway station in this village. During the past six months a number of accidents have happened in consequence of its proximity to the most public thoroughfare, and in consequence of the necessity of shunting cars, travel is often delayed for a considerable time. By its removal a few hundred yards to the west, it would be brought much nearer to the business portion of the village, and would also be far enough from much travelled roads to avoid danger. The railway authorities should at once look into this matter, and remedy the evil before any calamity happens that might cost them much more than the removal of the station would be.—New Era.

THE HIGH SCHOOL.—A meeting of the High School Board took place on Monday evening to take into consideration Mr. Turnbull's tender of resignation, in consequence of a higher salary being offered him at Dundas. After a short debate the resignation was not accepted, and a small addition was made to his salary in consideration of increased duties being imposed upon him.—New Era.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—An accident, which resulted fatally, occurred at Clinton station, on Tuesday afternoon last, to Mr. James Yule, of East Wawanosh, who was occupied in unloading lumber from his wagon, when a train entered the station, frightening the horse, and causing them to start forward, throwing him down, and rolling him over in such a way as to injure his spine. He was at once conveyed to Mr. Turner's Hotel, where he expired a short time afterwards.

After the 27th inst. the Cunard line of steamers will sail from New York instead of Boston.

County Court and General Sessions.

The June sittings of this County Court opened in the Court House, this city, on Tuesday morning, the following gentlemen being empanelled as the Grand Jury:—

G. H. Davis, Foreman.
W. Ashman, Walter McDougall,
Thos Finch, [illegible] Hill,
John Fraser, John McDonald,
John Farrow, Wm Shiell,
Wm Green, Thos Scott,
Wm Gaffney, John Patterson,
Jas Gilmour, Antony Sage,
John Hodgins, Thomas Sims,
John Hamilton, Jas Campbell, jun.,
Hugh Hill, Alex. Wilson,
Edwin Kent, Jas. Young.

There were no cases to come before the Sessions, and, therefore, the Grand Jury after swearing, were reporting on the state of the jail when discharged. It is rather curious for there to be no criminal cases to come before the County Court, but such is the fact. The following is the list of cases for the Court:—

Term of Queen's Bench for Plff. by consent for Deft. with immediate execution. Blake & Sproule for Plff. Cameron & Gibbons for Deft.

McCormick vs Gibson et al—Action on promissory note. Verdict for Plff for $297.24. W. R. Squier for Plff. Holmes and B. L. Doyle for Deft.

Harvey vs McKenzie—Action for damages resulting out fire. Left to the Judge to decide on the evidence taken at a former sitting of the court, without a jury. B. L. Doyle for Plff. Cameron & Garrow for Deft.

MACKENZIE vs CORPORATION of HURON—Action to recover for stationery and furniture supplied by Plff for his office as Master in Chancery. After hearing of the evidence had been taken Mr. Cameron was allowed to amend the declaration and to further trial of the case was postponed till next term. W. R. F. Walker and M. C. Cameron for Plff. Sinclair & Seager for Deft.

MACKENZIE vs MASSON—Action to recover money lent. Verdict for Plff for $150. B. L. Doyle for Plff. W. R. Squier for Deft.

FERGUSON vs Brown et al—Action on