SHORT ENDS.

There is probably nothing in this transitory world that yields larger and quicker returns on the amount invested than petting a wasp with your linger to see if he feels well.

A boarding house proprietor who had long fed his lodgers on matton, remarked that it was very strengthering, especially to the legs. The lodgers proved this by walking thirty miles to seek a new board-rigehouse. The Ehnia Advertiser asks very in-normly, if sweets are served without a family jar? They couldn't! But the trouble is there are not usually enough sweets in the average family to full up-one small jar. There's where the trou-ble lies

Five years ago a man at Hartford.
Coma fell and became insensible. A suggeon then found a slight wound in his body, close by the heart, and thought the man had been eitherstatibled on slide. ### RAILROAD NOTES.

A St. Louis mule tried to kick an engine off the track, and seemed sur-prised that it didn't budge.

A train on the Michigan Central was stopped the other day by a farmer, who asked the engineer what time it was.

A conductor on the Pennyslvania total, who was recently married, was presented with a purse containing $150 by the commuters on the road.

Foreigners, travelers on the railroads, often accept books and newspapers from the train boys under the impression that the literature is gratuitous.

Tempson spends hours on a single line. But that's nothing. We have known men who spent their whole lives on a single line. They were generally conductors.

Vermont is also getting its rapid transit. An express train ran from St. Allans to White River Junction the other day, a distance of 120 miles, in 108 minutes, making thirteen steps on the route.

The route, A (rest old conductor on the Pennsstania Raihond was presented with a hardsome casy chair by the commutes of last line on Chistmas moning i but, boying an idea that the donors thought be was too poor to buy one, he rudely refused the gift, and ordered the brakeman to put it off at Raihway.

"if you was a decent person," re-marked a shrill female voice on the rath-wity. "you would shift down that window and not expose me to the draft. "Machane." was the reply, as the window was southy lowered, "I thought took you face that you were over forty-five, and therefore out of the draft." And notwithstanding the fact that this wretch was on the train the ears did not run off the track, or locomotive burst its boiler.
