EXPLOSION ON GUNBOAT 39 DEAD AND 100 HURT

Boiler Disaster in San Diego Harbor Results in Harrowing Scenes—Wounded Conveyed in Open Wagons to Hospitals—Horrible Spectacle.

39 DEAD.

One officer and thirty-eight members of the crew of the United States gunboat Bennington were killed and nearly one hundred sailors injured, some fatally, yesterday morning by a boiler explosion that disabled the vessel in San Diego, Cal., harbor. Fifteen sailors are missing.

There were more than 250 men aboard when the accident occurred, and many were hurled or forced to jump into the sea by the terrific explosion, which lifted part of the deck and compelled the beaching of the ship.

San Diego, Cal., July 21.—One of the most frightful disasters in the peace history of the American navy, excepting the sinking of the Maine in Havana harbor, occurred in San Diego Bay shortly after 10.30 a.m. to-day, on board the United States gunboat Bennington. At a moment when the warship, lying at anchor, was the object of interest to hundreds of observing people on the piers and pleasure boats, a cloud of steam suddenly burst from a point just forward of the smokestack, out of which the spectators were horrified to see bodies and human fragments hurled high in the air and scattered over the surrounding water. The outburst was accompanied by a roar as of thunder and a shock that rocked vessels nearby. The air was filled with shrieks of pain from the wounded, which could be heard ashore, and with flying fragments of human beings and pieces of the ship's superstructure. The next moment bleeding sailors were fighting, crippled, in the water against death in a less sudden form that that from which they had escaped, while rowboats, gallant in the courtyard of the mosque, and that his majesty escaped uninjured, while some members of his suite were killed or injured.

ARRESTS MADE.

Brussels, July 21.—A despatch from Constantinople says:

"During the selamlik here to-day a bomb was exploded in the courtyard of the mosque, close to the sultan. His majesty was not injured, but several members of his suite were killed or injured. Several arrests have been made."

BOMB THROWN AT SULTAN WHILE GOING TO PRAYERS

Was Lucky and Escaped Uninjured, Tho Members of His Suite Are Reported Killed.

London, July 22.—The Turkish censorship is evidently suppressing the news regarding the attempt on the life of the sultan, for no further press despatches from Constantinople have reached London. A despatch received by the Turkish embassy says:

"As the sultan was issuing from the mosque at the conclusion of the ceremony of the Selamlik a bomb burst in the courtyard of the mosque. Divine providence miraculously preserved his majesty, who displayed his usual self-possession and courage. Himself driving the phaeton, his majesty returned to the palace, graciously bowing as if nothing had happened.

"A few persons were killed or injured. The whole population is indignant at the infamous and dastardly deed."

SULTAN ESCAPED

Cologne, July 21.—A despatch from Constantinople says:

"As the sultan was proceeding to the midday prayers, a bomb was thrown at his majesty, but he escaped uninjured."

SOME WERE KILLED.

London, July 21.—The Turkish embassy has issued a statement confirming the report from Constantinople that, during the selamlik there to-day, a bomb was exploded close to the sultan in the courtyard of the mosque, and that his majesty escaped uninjured, while some members of his suite were killed or injured.

ARRESTS MADE.

OTTAWA'S WHIRL OF GRAFT AND LOOT MINISTERS TO ATTACHES REVEL IN IT

REIGN OF EXTRAVAGANCE FOR CORPORATION BENEFIT

How Both Parties and Leaders Have Fallen and What the Lesson is to the People of Canada.

Because The World has started out to tell the people of Canada the truth about the reign of graft and loot at Ottawa, and of the connection of the party leaders to the salary grab of Monday last, a lot of enterprising newspapers and politicians have started in to hustle W. F. Maclean, the M.P. for South York. To hear some of these gentry talk yesterday you'd think he had introduced the grab, had voted it thru, and that he was to be the main beneficiary. They say a man cannot be a good Conservative and expose the grafts and grabs that Conservative leaders are a party to, and beneficiaries thereof. They say it is all right to expose the Liberals, but that the line must be drawn when it comes near Conservatives.

SAMPLE CRITICISM.

Then there are other critics of The World and of the M.P. for South York:

Globe, July 21: The Toronto World on Tuesday cordially approved the pension law as "justifiable," but on Wednesday it called it a "shameful proceeding," "hatched by members of both parties, who had a personal interest in making the emoluments as large as possible," and in the hashing process "Conservatives sat cheek by jowl with Liberals," "and the country will hold Sir Wilfrid Laurier and R. L. Borden responsible." This is certainly a violent swallowing of itself within one hot day, even for The World. But will W. F. Maclean, M.P. for South York, return the $1000 cheque for extra indemnity for which the Conservatives signed the round robin?

If it is any satisfaction to The Globe to know it, W. F. Maclean did not sign the round robin; refused to sign it; kept away from any caucus where it was discussed, and "cannot return the $1000 cheque for extra indemnity," because he has not taken it. He never saw nor heard of the proposed increases until they were uncovered in the house on that happy Monday morning.

ASLEEP AT THE SWITCH.

Winnipeg Tribune, July 18: Who heard the tempestuous roy kicked up by "Billy" Maclean, M.P., when he found himself forced to accept an additional $1000 indemnity graft from the people whose rights he professes to hold dear? "Billy" must have fallen asleep, exhausted by his labors in the interests of Canada, when those infamous resolutions were introduced. Otherwise he would have had to be bound in chains and strong cords, like another Sampson, to prevent his tearing down the pillars and wrecking the house.

Mr. Maclean may have been asleep at the switch. As a matter of fact he contented himself with a mild protest against the proposal to pay a "recognized leader of the opposition" a salary. He was quickly answered by Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Fitzpatrick, who assured him that the prerogative of the crown was not to be interfered with. Perhaps he has become tired watching the switch and being called a lot of polite names for his trouble. Perhaps, also, instead of watching the switch and throwing over the danger signal he deliberately decided to let the two party engineers run their trains into the ditch. He has had so many favors from the two party machines in the house whenever he attempted to bring up a public grievance, or attempted to get the eye of the Speaker, that it is not difficult to even imagine him smiling at the wreck that has suddenly piled up alongside the political railway!

CARNIVAL OF GRAFT.

But what has this to do with the carnival of extravagance, of graft and of loot now at its height at Ottawa? The Liberals who declared nine years ago by resolution that forty millions was an extravagant annual budget for the Dominion have in their tenure of office run it up to over eighty millions. The Liberals who said that public office was a public trust have showered fortune upon members of their party and have seen some of their ministers grow suddenly rich, "rich beyond the Dulmage's Pitiable Craving for Liquor Ended in Mildly Ill-Judged Attempt at Correction, Details of Which He and Lawyer Luridly Exaggerated.

Wheatley, July 21.—(Special.)—A confirmed dipsomanias; a quiet secluded little town astride the boundary line between Kent and Essex; 800 people, no one of whom would not sooner have given Tom Dulmage a $5 note than a blow with a whip; a decision on the part of the villagers to take Spartan measures with the inebriate. These, in a nut-shell, are the facts of the so-called white-capping outrage which has made the name of Wheatley a by-word in the province.

As to the publicity which was given the whole affair, Tom Dulmage told The World man to-night: "It was Lawyer P. A. Gahan of Tilbury who sent the first white-cap story thruout the province, and P. A. Gahan wrote the unsigned letter to a London paper, grossly exaggerating the whole affair in order that the case against the men who attacked me might look stronger."

The whole unhappy story is bound up in the story of Thomas S. Dulmage. It is not a pleasant story, nor one which the people of hWeatley are pleased to publish even for their own vindication. Dulmage is, when sober, one of the finest men in the village of Wheatley. As a merchant he has no equal, and he was made president of the Liberal-Conservative Association of Wheatley. The love of liquor grew upon him until he would, for want of alcohol, take even camphor. Means without end were taken to straighten him up. His friends sent him to a sanitarium. It was of no use. Goaded to an effort, he went to the backwoods and for six months fought the craving. Back he came and fell. He was placed on the Indian list, and no one was allowed to sell him liquor. This failed. His wife spent money on the drugs which she placed in his tea. These were a failure.

The Real Assault.

Finally, in desperation, they hit upon the scheme of physical violence, and plan was eagerly taken up. His own relatives, it is said, endorsed it, and Monday night was arranged for the effort. As Dulmage walked along the street from a little restaurant to his store half a dozen of the young men of the town leaped upon him and bore him away into a field behind a blacksmith shop. Tying a rope around him, they dipped him three times in the well. The ducking over they pulled him out and beat him with a buggy whip.

A prominent doctor who was passing by on his way home called "That will do boys." Without a word the party left their victim and trooped away in the foolish hope that it was a good deed done. It was not late at night, but shortly after dusk, that the whole affair happened. The ingenious despatch that found its outlet in Chatham said "dragged him fro mhis bed." Dulmage had never been to bed, and, most amazing of all, Mrs. Dulmage sat on her verandah, not a hundred yards away, her lips quivering but her heart steeled to what she thought was good for her husband. The two little children cried as tho their hearts would break at the terrible ordeal of their father, unthinking, unknowing, save that men were beating their papa.

Worked the Wrong Way.

But, good as their intentions were, the lawmakers did not know Tom Dulmage. They had not reckoned on the proud, sensitive man, whom they had flogged like a cur. The measure brought not regeneration, but an unconquerable bitterness of heart. He went to Lawyer Gahan of Tilbury, and told his story. Then, he says, came the first despatch, the story of the whitecapping. It was by Gahan's pen, and placed on the wire to create a sensation and a feeling in favor of his client. It was grossly enlarged upon, but it was nothing to the anonymous letter that went to The London Free Press, and was non-committally published in that journal. Dulmage confessed that it was the work of Lawyer Gahan.

What Didn't Happen.

The following are excerpts therefrom:

He was held on the ground by part of the gang, while the rest drew pails of refuse and pitched them upon the helpless victim.

He was flung head first into the hole and then kept for some time.

DISSOLUTION IN OCTOBER BALFOUR'S LIKELY COURSE

Convinced of Hopelessness of Attempting Another Session—Lulled Into False Confidence.

London, July 22.—It is understood that Premier Balfour has decided to remain in office until the end of the session and to dissolve parliament in October. No authoritative statement, however, will be made until Monday, and in the interval this decision may be modified.

The crisis has assumed a serious aspect owing more to the circumstances attending the defeat of the government Thursday night on the vote for the support of the Irish land commission than the intrinsic importance of the vote itself. The vote was actually due to the slackness, or rather, to the indifference of the government's own supporters, who, despite the strongest possible whip enforcing the necessity of their attendance on that particular night, allowed themselves to be lulled into a false confidence by the ruse of the Liberals and Nationalists in keeping their men in the background until the critical moment arrived.

That this was allowed to happen immediately after Mr. Balfour had called a meeting of his party to impress upon his supporters the need of their absolute loyalty seems to convince Mr. Balfour of the uselessness of attempting to face another session of parliament; but as the holding of elections in August on account of the harvest and for other reasons would be most inconvenient to the country, he decided to wait until the autumn before dissolving parliament.

Premier Balfour's audience of King Edward yesterday lasted only 10 minutes and it is supposed that he intimated the foregoing decision to His Majesty.

BLAZE IN A PRIVATE CAR AT THE UNION STATION

Cook Stove Set Superintendent Tiffin's Car on Fire Last Night—Other Little Blazes.

There was a fire sensation at the Union Station at 9 o'clock last night, and the private car of District Superintendent W. R. Tiffin of the Midland division was considerably damaged. A cook stove started it, and the policeman at the west end of the station discovered the car ablaze. An engine was procured, and the burning car was shunted out to the foot of John-street, to prevent the blaze spreading to the other passenger cars in the station. The firemen from Queen and Portland-street stations were there, and put out the fire after it had caused about $600 damage to the car, which is worth about $10,000.

Yesterday afternoon a fire was found on the premises of the Canada Chemical Company, at the foot of Parliament-street. The firemen were summoned and prevented it becoming serious. The damage is estimated at $300. It is surmised that tramps, having a quiet smoke around the place, caused the fire.

There is an old frame house at 40 Lombard-street, and somebody doesn't seem to want it there. Yesterday afternoon it was set on fire, but the blaze was discovered early, and quenched by the firemen before it had caused much damage.

AWAY AHEAD OF AUSTRALIA.

Visitors Greatly Interested in Canadian Industries.

Messrs. J. S. Larke, E. J. Maugher and G. E. Wise, the Australian manufacturers, who are visiting the city, yesterday looked over the works of the Gutta Percha and Rubber Co., and had a drive around the city. Mr. Larke has gone down to Oshawa. Mr. Wise said last night that our ways of manufacturing are a revelation to them. They were pleased to accept Premier Whitney's invitation to visit the parliament buildings. During their short stay they have visited a number of industries, and on their way here they were great yinterested in the Ogilvie mills at Winnipeg and the Clergue works at the Soo. Mr. Wise has no hesitation in saying that Canada is infinitely ahead of Australia in manufacturing. On Monday the gentlemen go to Montreal, and from there they will go to New York, Boston and Philadelphia. They will return here for the Industrial Exhibition.

Australians are greatly interested in Canada, and this year there are a large number of them visiting us. At present there are ten at the Queen's Hotel.

U.S. STEEL WON'T BUILD LEST GOVT. REFUSE BOUNTY

Plans for Big Ontario Plant Abandoned, But Going Concern May Be Acquired.

New York, July 21.—(Special.)—Owing to the hostile attitude of the Canadian government, the United States Steel Corporation has abandoned its plan to erect a $1,000,000 steel plant in Canada. It is likely that if the corporation establishes a footing there, it will have to be thru the purchase of a going plant.

Information has been conveyed to the Steel Corporation, thru unofficial sources, that the Dominion government will not allow the Steel Corporation to share in the Canadian bounty on steel. Should the corporation decide to establish a new plant in the Dominion, it is pretty clearly intimated that the government would change the bounty laws so as to restrict its application to existing steel companies. In the event of the Steel Corporation purchasing a going steel plant in Canada, it is difficult to see how it could be shut out from participating in the bounty system. It would be an easy matter for it to be shut out if it should erect a plant.

The growing importance of the Canadian steel trade, thru the rapid development of the country, and the plans for new railroad construction, induced the Steel Corporation to take up the question of a Canadian subsidiary two years ago. It has inspected various sites suitable for the location of such a plant as it contemplated erecting.

This latest development, however, has checked all plans for construction, and will bring up anew the purchase of a going plant.

Want 'The Law' on Ottawa To Void Electric Venture

Ottawa Electric Co. Issues Writ Against the City of Ottawa to Call Into Operation Conmee Act Provisions—Business Will Go On.

Ottawa, July 21.—(Special.)—The somewhat-anticipated legal action to restrain the city from going ahead with the operation of the plant of the Consumers' Electric Co. was instituted at noon to-day, when the Ottawa Electric Company issued a writ against the defendant corporation, asking for several injunctions and for a declaration that the whole process of acquisition of the plant is invalid. The Ottawa Electric Company claims that the special act under which the city has gone about the purchase does not empower it to lease power, and further, that the provisions of the Conmee Act, so called, apply in its case.

G. F. Henderson states, as a matter of form, application will be made for an injunction, restraining the city from going ahead with the proposition, but that it was not his intention to press for the granting of the same in the time intervening between now and the trial at the fall assizes. It was not desired to embarrass the city. The formal application for injunction will be heard at Toronto next week.

Speaking of the proceedings, Mayor Ellis said that what was asked for really meant that the city must buy out the Ottawa Electric Company, as provided in the Conmee Act.

"We have always contended," he stated, "that the city is not bound by this act, because we proceeded under a special act passed before the Conmee Act, while the latter states that it shall not apply to a special act. The only thing that can happen will be to compel us to buy by arbitration.

"The purchase having been completed, I think the Ottawa company will find it impossible to have it set aside, but it would have been a comparatively easy matter to have obtained an injunction to restrain the city from completing the purchase, if the application had been made before the transaction was closed.

"The present proceedings by the Ottawa Electric do not mean that the city is restrained from carrying on the Consumers' business, and it will be carried on. Whether the city will have to buy the Ottawa company, or not, remains to be determined by the court."

The formal document asks an injunction, restraining the corporation from using and supplying to others, to be used, electricity for any purpose, and particularly in competition with the existing business of the plaintiff company, and for an injunction restraining the corporation from levying a special rate, and particularly from levying such rate against the property of the plaintiff company; and from expending any of the moneys of the corporation in connection with the carrying on of an electrical business; also, to have it declared that the Conmee Act "does not authorize the provisions of the said bylaw, or either or any of them, and that defendant corporation is bound by the provisions of section 566 of the Municipal Act, in respect of the matters covered by the said bylaws."

The plaintiff company sues as such, also as a ratepayer of the City of Ottawa, on its own behalf, as well as on behalf of all others, the ratepayers of the said city.

BLACK RUST REPORTS ARE CANARDS

Wild Stories of Damaged Crop Are Declared To Be Emanating From Minneapolis Sources—Some Red Rust But Nothing Dangerous.

Winnipeg, July 21.—(Special.) — Reports of black rust in the Western Canadian crop, which were wired to Chicago from this city, are entirely without foundation.

For the past few days, local representatives of Minneapolis houses have been scaring up all the bad crop features in this country that they could. Rust reports from here are nothing more or less than canards.

The crop is a bit backward, and, in some sections, the weather latterly has not been all that could be expected, but, with the exception of some red rust in spots, which happens every year, there are no signs of the blight.

INTER-IMPERIAL TRADE TO TIGHTEN FRIENDSHIP

Earl Minto, at Union Club, Says He Cannot Understand How Certain Views Get Abroad.

(Canadian Associated Press Cable.)

London, July 22.—Lord Minto had a hearty reception at the dinner in his honor given by the Liberal Union Club. He said he had spent six years in Canada during a very eventful period in the history of the empire. It had been a period of development of her great resources and wealth. From one end of Canada to the other he had found intense affection for the flag almost impossible to describe to the people of this country. It was deep-rooted affection, which led to the earnest wish to keep up the connection with the motherland, and to share in its future history. Everywhere he had found that worship of the flag thruout the Dominion.

He might fairly say the universal feeling of those entitled to form an opinion was that closer intercourse between the King's possessions beyond the seas would be found in some arrangement for the encouragement of an inter-imperial trade. On his return to this country he was told by some people that he was entirely wrong in the conclusions he had formed. He discovered that travelers who had wandered about the Dominion for the extensive period of some two or three days had then written books and had expressed opinions which were quite new and to him absolutely contrary to every opinion he had heard there. He had done his best to contradict those views and to explain the enormous resources of the Dominion.

Our Temptations.

He had also done his best to indicate the temptation to Canadians, however loyal, to fall in with overtures which might perhaps be made to them from our friends across the border, with whom he found no fault, except that they were perhaps a little bit sharper than ourselves. He believed in some form of preference, however slight, which would not affect the price of foodstuffs in this country, but would have the effect of diverting all Canada's enormous product into British channels. A very large proportion of the inhabitants of these islands would benefit if they could learn something of the sentiment and feelings of their kinsmen beyond the seas.

Too Bad.

He could not understand the statements made in Great Britain that no offer in the direction of a preference had been made by Canada, and he much regretted that this question had been made a party question.
