We have received the Yankee Farmer and News Letter, with the following note:—

BOSTON, January, 1838

DEAR SIR,

We forward this number of our paper as a Specimen, with the hope that some of the Agriculturists, in your vicinity, may be induced to patronize it. The paper will contain a large quantity of Agricultural matter—many useful articles on other subjects, useful to every one—interesting Miscellany, and the News of the day, together with correct reports of the Cattle and Produce Markets. The topics treated upon, are highly interesting and important to every one.—There is not a farmer in the country, of common intelligence and enterprize who takes an Agricultural paper, that is not more than remunerated for his subscription by the useful information which he acquires from it.—You will perceive that this paper is very cheap, containing 416 large pages at the low price of Two DOLLARS. The same quantity of reading, at the book-store price, would cost Fifteen Dollars! Clubs of five will be furnished at 10 per ct. discount.

CHARLES P. BOSSON, Publisher.
34 North Market Street, Boston.

This paper is well got up, and abounds in useful miscellaneous matter, besides the leading subject to which its name more immediately refers. We should like to see it, and similar publications, in the hands of our farmers instead of the numerous foreign prints so frequently to be met with, and of so little value. Altho' it is said that the Agriculturist is properly the theorist, and the husbandman the operative, yet the latter can never suffer by obtaining all the knowledge of the farmer. In the United States this knowledge is widely spread by means of such publications as the above; and at exceedingly cheap rates too, as where six join, instead of paying 2 dollars each, they will only pay $1 66 or about 8s. 3d. of our currency. We should think this fact would induce those in the country to be laying up for themselves so useful a library.

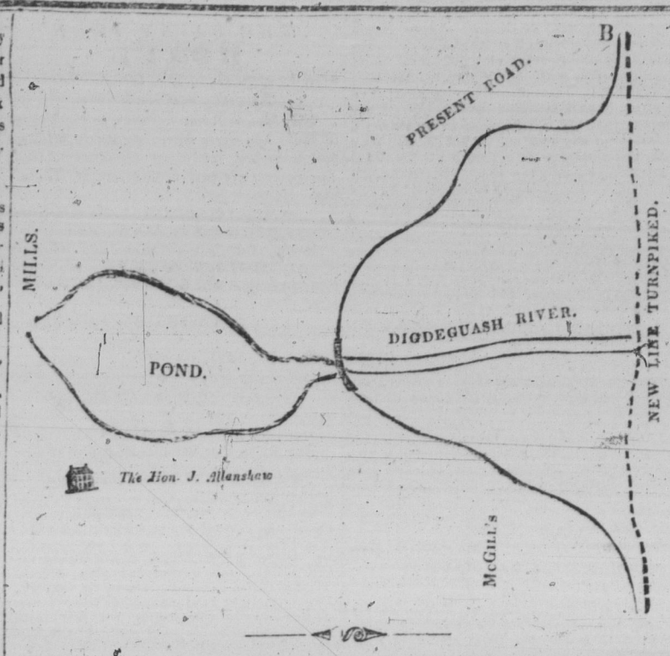
GEORGE McCULLOCH.

Feb. 22 1838 6ri.



One thousand years before the era of Christianity it was said by the son of David that "in the multitude of councillors there is safety," and this maxim has remained uncontradicted for eighteen hundred years more; but it has lately been discovered that it does not always agree with the axiom that "the happiness of man is the end of civil government;" at least some of the doings of the House of Assembly respecting the Great Roads are calculated to warrant such a conclusion.

The sketch placed above shews by the crooked line the direction of the present road on each side of the Digdeguash River, and the dotted line shews the new road already turnpiked. From McGills to the Bridge over the neck of the Pond is a long, steep hill; and from the bridge to B is a succession of hills and hollows "twisting and twining like a tortured eel." The new line, in addition to its straightness, has only a moderate declivity to the river, on each side of which is a natural pier for sustaining a bridge. The new improvement cannot fail to carry conviction of its propriety to any disinterested observer at the first glance; but it has found opponents, as thousands of beneficial projects have done before, through interest or prejudice, or both. A petition against the alteration by P. McCallum and others was laid before the House, and referred to a committee appointed to take such matters into consideration. This Committee (as given in our last paper) not only reported in favour of the petition, but from allegations set forth in it, regretted that the Supervisor had made the alteration.

What these allegations are remain between a few of the inhabitants on the Digdeguash and the Committee, we should say, for we are certain that two thirds of the people who know any thing of the Road in question, and these form a large number not only in this County but in that of Saint John, would sign a Counter Petition in favour of the alteration. Indeed we have just seen such a Petition, and from the statements set forth in it, we are spared from making any further remarks at present.

PROSPECTUS,

OF A PAPER

TO BE DEDICATED EXCLUSIVELY

To the Cause of Temperance,

And published on the second Wednesday of every Month, to be called the

TEMPERANCE MONITOR.

He of their wicked ways
Shall them admonish, and before them set
The paths of righteousness.—MILTON.

The principles which guide such publications (now happily so numerous) are so generally known, that little is left us to announce further than the local arrangements we contemplate, which are especially to promulgate the proceedings of our County Societies—to watch over their efficiency—to notice any short comings—and stimulate their exertions.

The general progress of Temperance will be exhibited in extracts from all the papers which we can procure, and we can confidently say that our collection will embrace the principal publications not only of these Colonies and of the United States, but occasionally of the great advocates of the cause in Europe.

Disquisitions from celebrated works will be quoted to prove that men of the highest acquirements have devoted their powers to rescue their fellow beings from the most debased thraldom to which human nature willingly submits, and to shew that medical science has pronounced that immediate disuse of any intoxicating beverage is not injurious to health, but on the contrary conducive to longevity; and thus dissipate one of the most fruitful incentives to intemperance.

Biographical anecdotes—instances of fatality by means of liquor—every thing baneful to society arising from the use of wines and alcohol—every thing healthful by the observance of sobriety—authentic information on the deleterious adulterations practiced by liquor venders—and in short, whatever will serve to enforce conviction of the value of being temperate in all the duties of mankind, will be the chief aim of the TEMPERANCE MONITOR.

THE PRICE of this Paper will be so low as TWO SHILLINGS AND SIX PENCE per annum, paid in advance; the first number of which will appear on Wednesday the 14th of MARCH next. Lists for subscription will be sent to the Presidents of Temperance Societies and other known friends to the cause, which it is hoped will be numerously signed, and in order that the impression may be regulated, returned at their earliest convenience to

DEBATES OF THE

House of Assembly.

INDUCED by the pledge of the late House of Assembly, (as contained in their Resolution of last Session, to provide for the Reporting of their debates, and to furnish them gratuitously to any Printer who would undertake to print them daily in Fredericton,) we had made all the necessary preparations for issuing a daily publication of the debates of the present Session; and Mr. Blatch, who originally established and has for seven years executed the Reporting, was prepared to furnish us with the Debates, as reported by himself, agreeably to the intentions of the same Resolution. Our first Number would have appeared about ten days ago; but owing to the House of Assembly having shewn by their discussions on the subject, a reluctance to follow up the intentions of the late House, by patronizing our attempt, our project was delayed. We have however, again determined to prosecute the work, as far as lies in our power: convinced that a daily publication of the Debates of the Assembly will be interesting and useful to the public generally, and confident that we need fear no competition with regard to the style in which we are enabled to execute it. Mr. Blatch, the Reporter, who is at present attending on the House, furnishes us with his manuscript reports, and we have therefore commenced the publication according to our original intentions. The work will be printed in large quarto, four pages of which, containing twelve closely printed columns, will be issued daily; provided there is sufficient matter in debate; printed with new type, imported expressly for the purpose, and on fine paper, with a full and copious index to the work. The subscription price will be Twelve Shillings and sixpence for the entire session, exclusive of Postage. Persons wishing to subscribe to the work will please transmit their names to either of the following Agents; and upon the list being returned to this Office, the Reports will be forwarded them from the beginning, and regularly continued thence forward.

We shall occasionally introduce into the columns of the Gazette, such of the Debates as may be interesting and important to the constituency of the Province generally, and more particularly such as bear upon the Commercial and Agricultural interests of the Community.

Persons desirous of obtaining these Reports will have their names forwarded on application at the Standard Office.
