THE STREET CAR HABIT.

Street cars kill more people than they run over

It is against nature for men in ordinary good health to step from their homes to the street car and from the street car to their offices in the morning and back again, with the order reversed, in the evening.

Everybody's slavery to street cars inevitably tends to abolish the ancient and healthful exercise of walking.

The street car habit wastes money, which is important enough, but it wastes health, which is more important still, by encouraging its victims to neglect the manly and womanly art of taking a walk.

REVIEW OF YEAR'S TRADE YEAR '04 WAS PROSPEROUS

Signs Point to Continuance of Healthy Conditions That Have Existed.

Bradstreet's gives the following review of the financial and trade conditions of the year just closing:

While a falling off in some lines of trade and industry has occurred, the year, as a whole, has been a prosperous one for Canada. Stock-taking has shown that where the year's volume of trade has been smaller there has been an increase in the value of goods traded in, and the net returns have been as great, if not greater. Last year's prosperity enabled the consuming public to afford higher-priced commodities. Among the more noticeable of the adverse circumstances which a review of the year's trade presents is that found in the lumber trade, in which there has been some depression consequent upon competition from the United States. There has also been reason for dissatisfaction with prices that have prevailed for dairy products, and exports of live stock showed a very heavy falling off while those of grain were also smaller. In dry goods the volume of business has increased, while the percentage of profit has been narrower. A mild open fall, too, was responsible for some quietness in general trade at the latter end of the year. But against these factors must be set the evidences of prosperity in other lines. That the wealth of the country has increased is shown by the larger public bank deposits, and that the country is growing is evidenced by an increase in general domestic trade.

A balancing of total imports and exports shows that the foreign trade has suffered somewhat, the balance being largely in favor of imports. Immigration of a desirable class has increased the population by about 130,000 to 150,000, and as the great majority of these newcomers have taken up land in the newer portions of the country, they have entered the ranks of producers of national wealth. The expansion in trade generally is well evidenced by the very great activity which has existed thruout the whole year in building operations at all centres. This has been phenomenal in the west, straight thru to the Pacific coast. At Toronto it followed on the disastrous fire of April last, which was something of a blessing in disguise. The warehouses burnt were old and generally inadequate. One instance of the effect of the fire is found in the fact that a firm which before the fire carried a stock of about $600,000 will open the new year with one the value of which will be $1,000,000.

The Export and Import Trade.

Canadian foreign trade, imports and exports, for the year ending Sept. 30, 1904, the latest for which official statistics are issued, amounted to $455,637,237, against $381,059,335 for the previous year, a decrease in the total volume of $23,422,322. The total imports, not including coin and bullion, amounted to $240,719,037, an increase of $2,272,741 over the previous year. Exports of domestic products show a decline of $25,288,221. This establishes a trade balance against Canada of $27,561,062. Exports to the United States for the last fiscal year amounted to $73,173,549, as against $71,783,000 for the previous year, an increase of $1,390,549. From the United States goods to the value of $150,826,515 were imported, as against $137,605,000, an increase of $13,221,515. Exports to Great Britain are those in which the most serious decline is felt. This year they amounted to $117,591,376, against $131,202,000 for 1902, a decrease of $13,611,734. Imports from Great Britain amounted to $61,770,379, an increase of $2,883,478.

Security Values.

During the earlier part of the year values of Canadian securities continued the decline, beginning in 1903, until about June, when the bottom seemed reached. Since then improvement has continued almost without reaction until the end of the year, and, except in one or two cases, stocks show an appreciation of two to thirty-three points. The improvement in the steel trade was largely responsible for a steady advance in the issues of the Dominion Iron & Steel Company, which had fallen disastrously in the preceding year. The Lake Superior Company practically went out of the market, but reorganization, under the name of the Lake Superior Corporation, has opened up a more hopeful prospect for this concern, altho its stocks are not now listed on Canadian exchanges. Commercial Cable, always prosperous, has been reorganized as the Mackay Company, and its new stocks, on a basis of the old capitalization, show a heavy gain in value for the year. The following shows the closing prices of some of the leading Canadian securities, compared with prices ruling a year and two years ago:

Bank and Conditions.

The Canadian chartered banks have passed thru another prosperous year, as shown by the net earnings reported in the annual statements, and along with other stocks banking issues have lately appreciated in value, altho they were not so seriously affected by the slump earlier in the year. The total reserve fund has grown considerably. A year ago it was 64 per cent. of the total paid-up capital; it is now 67 per cent. Foreign deposits in Canadian banks also considerably increased. Call loans in Canada have decreased slightly. The note circulation is limited by law to the amount of paid-up capital, and it has very nearly reached this limit, rendering it necessary that capital be increased in order to allow of a circulation large enough to carry on the business of the country. The following figures show a year's satisfactory increase in the banking business:

The Outlook.

All signs point to a continuance of the healthy trade conditions now existing. The farmers of the country are prosperous. The western wheat crop was about 60,000,000 bushels, an increase of almost 20,000,000 over that of 1903, and prices were high. The Ontario grain crops were light, but values were good and the country will have plenty of money to spend. On the Pacific coast prospects suffer thru depression in lumber, but the inauguration of new enterprises, such as fishing, fruit-farming and ranching, will in time offset this. The building of the new transcontinental railway is to commence immediately, and the millions of money to be spent will have a far-reaching effect on trade. The mild fall, while not tending to help wholesale trade, enabled the farmers to make complete preparations, and the area of western land prepared for wheat in 1905 has been particularly increased. With a reasonably favorable season there should be a good increase in the yield. Retailers thruout the country have not been carrying particularly heavy stocks, and holiday goods having moved well, the year is likely to open with a good wholesale trade.

The House of Huck Finn.

Clifton Johnson in January Outing: Two or three negro families now live in it, and I made the acquaintance of one of the women inmates who was sitting out in front lunching on bread and a dish of greens.

"This is the Huckleberry Finn house, isn't it?" I inquired.

"It sholy is," was the reply, "an' las' year Huckleberry Finn and Mark Twain both was hyar to see it. Dey come eogedder in a two-horse coach, an' dey each one give me a quarter."

"Yo' doan' know nothin' what yo' talkin' about," said an irritated male voice from inside the lower room. "Huckleberry Finn is daid long ago."

"No he aint," was the woman's reply. "He was hyar las' year an' give me a quarter. He had whiskers an' look some like Santa Claus. You seen Santa Claus picture, aint yo', mister? He was a little dried up ole man. Mark Twain is a heap bigger'n Huckleberry Finn."

"He's daid, I tell yo'!" said the voice indoors in gruff anger.

From a window upstairs a disheveled young colored woman was looking down. The window glass was mostly gone, and she had her head thrust thru a hole left by a missing pane and one arm thru a similar opening just below, so that she could rest her chin on her hand, and she made a very grotesque sort of tableau. The woman below referred the matter in dispute to this looker-on, who said it was Huckleberry Finn who called with Mark Twain, and no mistake. Her response maddened the man inside past endurance, and he began swearing and stamping about and finally slammed the door.

The woman with the lunch rolled up her eyes deprecatingly. "He git plumb crazy over his own mistakes,' she declared. "He doan' know he wrong when I tell him so, an' when all de neighbors tell him so, too. God has sent a judgment on me for marryin' dat man. I gwine go away to St. Louis and join a show if it aint nothin' but a hoochy-koochy!"

ONE PROFESSOR'S VIEWS.

(Canadian Associated Press Cable.)

London, Dec. 30.—Prof. Hans Delbruch, discussing Anglo-German antagonism, says: In Great Britain people grew up in the idea of converting the world in the future, directly or indirectly, into British territory. The British were so certain of their world mission that they permitted the children of other nations without any narrow-minded scruples to participate in their profits. In this they acted not only generously but wisely, for it was precisely the others, German merchants, for instance, by repeatedly reporting they were treated in British colonies on an equality with the British, and that they had no complaints to make, who strengthened the general assumption that the trans-oceanic world was destined to become British. They felt so certain of their possessions that they began to allow themselves to think they could divest themselves of political burdens entailed by the colonies, which they expected in the natural course of affairs would continue to render the world British. The rivalry of Russia, nor the sproutings of American imperialism, nor the progress made by France, but Germany, who destroyed this more or less conscious British idyll of the future.

YORK COUNTY AND SUBURBS

CIDER OR THE REAL THING

If the Former, Then Liquor Detectives Have Either Poor Palates or Are Telling Tales

Toronto Junction, Dec. 30.—Chas. A. Kelly to-day pleaded guilty to having more liquor on his premises than the law allows. Magistrate Ellis fined him $25 and costs or 15 days in jail. Frank Watts of the Peacock Hotel had three charges against him. To two, one for selling liquor on Dec. 2 and the other on Dec. 14, Watts pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs or 15 days in jail for the first and $50 and costs or three months in jail for the second. The third charge was adjourned for one week. W. J. Brown pleaded not guilty to three charges of selling liquor contrary to law. The dates were Nov. 30, Dec. 3 and Dec. 9. The charges of Nov. 30 and Dec. 9 were adjourned for one week. Hartley Dewart, K.C., prosecuted and James Haverson, K.C., and A. J. Anderson appeared for the defence. The evidence of Fred Brown and Charles Smith, two liquor detectives, was to the effect that they visited Brown's Hotel on Dec. 3 and got drinks of ale and whiskey at the bar, for which they paid. They treated two or three others, including Mr. Brown. In rebuttal, W. J. Brown, John A. Brown and Walter Hisson gave evidence, the first two asserting that it was cider they drank, and Mr. Brown said it was cider he gave to the detectives. Hisson was in a room at one end of the bar and saw Brown drawing cider from a cask. License Inspector Frank Smith's testimony was to the effect that the defendant, W. J. Brown, held a license for the hotel until May 1, 1904, when local option came into force, since which time no licenses have been issued in Toronto Junction. He did not say that Mr. Brown was now proprietor of the hotel, but when he and the Junction police force searched the place a couple of months ago the defendant acted as tho he were the proprietor. Magistrate Ellis reserved decision, which will probably be given at the time the other two cases are tried on Friday next.

The Rev. Beverley Smith, the new rector, will take charge of the services in St. John's Church on Sunday. This is a little earlier than was expected, and the congregation are very much pleased.

The Toronto Junction Gun Club will have a shoot at blue rocks on Monday afternoon next.

An enjoyable and successful at home was held in St. James' Hall to-night under the auspices of St. Cecilia's Club.

The Conservatives of Ward 2 held a successful banquet at the Heydon House to-night. J. F. Goedike presided.

A banquet was given at the Heydon House to-night by the Conservatives of Ward 2. The large dining-room was tastily decorated with flags and bunting. Mr. Fred Goedike presided. Others present included: J W St John, M L A; W F Maclean, M P; Dr Godfrey, W J Dalton, Councillor J R Bull, George Syme, Councillor Jesse Wright, Mayor Chisholm, Dr W T Hackett, W A Baird and a number of other prominent local Conservatives. The guests included a large number of ladies. Speeches were delivered by W F Maclean, J W St John and by several local Conservatives. The banquet was a great success, and does credit to the ward, which Mr. Goedike humorously referred to as the noble ward of Toronto Junction.

Norway.

The ratepayers of No. 1 division, Township of York, will meet to-night at the schoolhouse, Norway, at 8. The candidates for the new council have signified their intention of being present.

Balmy Beach.

Rev. Canon Dixon will preach in the Church of England pavilion on Spruce-avenue, Balmy Beach, to-morrow morning. Holy communion at the close of service. J. Bennett Anderson will conduct a service of praise to-morrow evening.

Richmond Hill.

Watch night services will be held in the Methodist Church this evening, beginning at 11.15.

W. E. Stoddart of The Cookstown Advocate and Mrs. Stoddart spent a few days at the home of Mr. Glass.

The introduction of a late service on the Metropolitan Railway, leaving the C. P. R. crossing at 11.30, and running thru to Newmarket, was begun on Thursday night. Some 25 passengers availed themselves of the late car, which it is proposed to send out every Thursday night at the hour named.

With the election of P. G. Savage by acclamation, the contest this year will be confined to the members of the council alone. For this William Innes, J. P. Glass, J. Pauline, T. H. Trench, Edward Barker, A. J. Hume and Isaac Crosly are candidates. H. A. Nicholls having declined nomination for the board of school trustees, J. A. Sanderson, George McDonald and D. Lynett will constitute the board for the ensuing year.

The Christmas tree and entertainment held in connection with the Methodist Church netted $40.

The Richmond Hill firemen will hold their annual benefit and entertainment in the Masonic Hall on Monday evening. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be presented by an excellent company.

Thornhill.

The annual supper and entertainment of the Methodist Church will take place on Monday evening. An excellent program will be given, following the supper, at which Lucie A. Lillie, Francis M. Lillie, E. Birmingham, Mrs. Davidson, J. B. Nelson, Ida Hunter and Arleigh Ramsden will contribute selections. On Sunday anniversary services will be held at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., at each of which Miss Sweatman of the Deaconess' Home will conduct the services.

Scarboro.

Municipal affairs in the Township of Scarboro at the present time are exciting more general interest than for a number of years. The withdrawal of Councillor Alex McCowan creates a vacancy which it will be difficult to fill. The old members of the council seeking re-election are: W. H. Paterson, W. A. Annis and John Lawrie. Reeve Andrew Young being returned by acclamation. The candidates seeking election, who were not in the previous council, are: J. Cowan, Henry Harding, Tom Jackson, A. J. Reynolds. The new candidates are all well fitted to worthily fill the position of councillor, but Tom Jackson and W. H. Paterson are generally regarded as especially qualified to represent Scarboro Township during the year 1905. The commutation of the statute labor and the extension of the Radial Railway line are live topics. In some quarters there is a disposition to move for the selection of a new location for the holding of council meetings, accessible by trolley or railway lines, but with Woburn as the municipal hub for the past fifty years, the change is likely to be long deferred.

Markham Township.

In Markham Township there is a three-cornered fight for the reeveship. Jonathan Slater, ex-warden York County; Abner Summerfelt, the present reeve, and Councillor Edward Francis are aspirants. Mr. Slater has for a number of years taken no active part in municipal affairs, but largely by reason of the attitude of the present council toward the commuted statute labor question, Mr. Slater has consented to re-enter the lists. Along the western side of the township, Francis is regarded as especially popular, and the contest has practically narrowed down to Messrs. Slater and Francis. In the council, William Stiver, John Eckhart and George Morrison are favorites for the position. The nomination proceedings developed a strong opposition to the present council, and it would not be a matter of surprise if some sweeping changes resulted.

Newmarket.

Newmarket, Dec. 30.—Sir William Mulock on Christmas Day distributed 228 pounds of beef, 140 loaves of bread and 22 pounds of tea to the poor of Newmarket.

Owing to the illness of Mrs. C. E. Cane, the January meeting of the W. C. T. U., of which Mrs. Cane is president, will be canceled.

The model and primary pupils of Newmarket contributed $15 to the Sick Children's Hospital as a Christmas offering.

Newmarket public library closed the year with only $9 of liabilities.

Dr. Clarke has bought 50 feet on Park-avenue, and will erect a residence thereon in the spring.

The Newmarket Driving Club will hold their annual races on Thursday and Friday, Jan. 5 and 6. The track is in excellent condition, and some good horses are expected.

Credit Sale.

A lot of fresh-calved cows, springers and horses, the property of Robert Bell, will be sold by public auction at his residence, Dundas-street, Lambton Mills, Tuesday, Jan. 3, '05, at 1 p.m. Four horses, heavy draught and general purpose, 17 springers, 15 milkers, calves at foot. 823 Miles on Horseback.

Major Henry Romeyn, U.S.A., in January Outing: "General Kearney was ordered from Santa Fe across to California with the Dragoons, and wanted to get his report back to Washington as soon as it could be done," relates Thomas Tobin, "and asked me if I would carry it to Fort Leavenworth. I agreed to do it, and started with only one day's notice. I carried only a blanket, a lariat, knife, Hawkin's rifle, with about 100 rounds, a dragoon pistol, and about two spoonfuls of salt. I depended on my rifle for meat, and on finding Indian herds for fresh horses. I weighed about 140 pounds, and was tough as leather. I got my first remount from St. Vrain at Mora, about 80 miles from Santa Fe, and rode it two days, till I found a camp of Utes hunting buffalo and got a fresh horse from their herd in the night. I had to be very careful about falling in with any Indians, for they would have killed a lone man for his outfit, and half a dozen times or more, I hid in some draw on the prairie until night, or rode miles off the trail to keep away from their hunting parties or camps. It was very risky, too, riding into their herds and roping a fresh horse, and I always led him away some distance before I tried to change my saddle, so that if he made any noise it wouldn't stampede the herd and wake the camp. I didn't dare make a fire in the daytime, but at night could cook a little meat on the coals, and the little I slept was while lying on my lariat, so that my horse couldn't get away with it out of my reach. I followed the Arkansas as far as Big Bend, and then bore off across the country to Council Grove, and from there northeast, following the plain trail to Fort Leavenworth; in all, 832 miles, as measured later. I rode it in little less than eleven days, and used nine horses; the last two I got from government trains which I overtook after leaving the Arkansas."

FOLEY MAY GET IT.

Ottawa, Dec. 30.—It is announced here that Foley Bros., the well-known contractors, have been given the contract of double-tracking the C.P.R. from Fort William to Winnipeg. The contract price is $7,000,000.

Killed by Collapsing Walls.

Berlin, Dec. 30.—During a recent violent storm in North Germany, four persons were killed and a number injured by collapsing walls.

NO DIFFERENCE.

New York, Dec. 30.—Rumor mongers in Wall-street and in financial circles in Boston had it yesterday that Ridgway & Thayer, publishers of Everybody's Magazine, had disposed of their interest in the publication, presumably to Thomas Lwson, and that the latter, having compounded his differences with the Amalgamated Copper crowd, was prepared to desist from his attacks and to that end would take a trip to Europe with his family.

Erman J. Ridgway emphatically denied the story in these words: "We could not honorably withdraw from the publication of Everybody's at this time. We have started in a campaign, and even if we were offered a price which might be considered temptin. we could not accept. The present control of the magazine will continue to guide its policy. As to Mr. Lawson's reported trip to Europe I cannot say, as I have not been informed of his intentions. But whatever he may do will not interfere with his narration. Please state that no change whatver, either at present or in the nea future, is contemplated."

Away Above the Average.

Philadelphia, Dec. 30.—Frederick C. Croxton of the United States bureau of labor, in a paper to-day before the American Association for the Advancement of Science, said: "The retail price of fresh beef at the present time is about 120 per cent. above the average for the period of 1890 to 1899."

To Extend to Canada.

New Oleans, Dec. 30.—The Sigma Nu Fraternity decided to-day upon extending into Canada.

COPYRIGHT.

London, Dec. 30.—The Standard has opened its columns to a discussion of the alleged injustice done to British authors by the American copyright law. Numerous prominent writers are airing their viwes upon the subject, without, howeve, displaying any unanimity regarding the remedy.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is strongly fo and Hall Caine stongly against retaliation. Andrew Lang confesses that the whole question of protection is too metaphysical for him.

The single point upon which there is a semblance of agreement is in a suggestion by Mrs. W. K. Clifford, approved by Hall Caine and others, that a clause should be inserted in the American law giving British authors the privilege of copyright within one year.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

Board of Education
1905

To the Electors of the City of Toronto

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

At the urgent request of a large number of electors of all classes, who are interested in educational matters, I have decided to become a candidate for the Board of Education for 1905.

As the vote extends over the entire city it is simply impossible for me to make a personal canvass, so take this means of laying my views before you in the hope that you will extend to me your cordial support.

I served for several years as a member of the High School Board and was Chairman of the Property Committee during a very important period.

I believe that all subjects on the school curriculum should be made subservient to the proper teaching of spelling, reading, writing and arithmetic, and if elected I will do all in my power to serve the citizens faithfully and well to the best of my ability, and advance the interests of our Public, High and Technical Schools. I respectfully solicit your vote and influence in my behalf.

Yours faithfully,
HENRY E. SMALLPEICE
