FISHERIES DEP'T INVESTIGATION ON

The Chief Clerk's Charges Against Mr. Bastedo.

ACCUSES HIM OF PARTISANSHIP

Books and Documents Mutilated—Correspondence With a Political Flavor—Commissioner Judd.

Toronto, Jan. 30.—Only one side of the evidence was heard in the commission opened yesterday at the Parliament buildings by Mayor Judd, of London, into charges brought by Mr. James S. Webster, chief clerk of the fisheries branch, against the deputy minister, Mr. S. T. Bastedo. Mr. Bastedo's counter-charges will follow the hearing of Mr. Webster's case. The gravest charge alleged was perhaps that of falsifying the returns of refunds made during five years to the extent of $4,000. The mutilation of letters and public books and the removal of letter copies from public letter books to Mr. Bastedo's private letter book were other charges made and supported by exhibits.

Messrs. I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., and E. C. Cattanach appeared for Mr. Bastedo and Mr. J. E. Jones for Mr. Webster. The first charges entered were by Mr. Webster, to the effect that the deputy commissioner permitted, or directed, letter books containing copies of letters written in the course of the official business of the fisheries branch to be mutilated and burned, in order to remove evidence of improper conduct in the business of the branch. This phase of the case was laid over for a time, in order to allow Mr. Jones to make a further examination of the letter books.

One exhibit was the steamer Gilphie's log of the week ending Dec. 3, 1904, which, according to Mr. Webster, had been clipped of a few lines of information before they reached his hands. Mr. Bastedo had handied the letters previous to Mr. Webster receiving them.

Another log of the same steamer for the year 1903 was similarly clipped.

Letter book 13, running from October, 1901, to February, 1902, was produced and verified the claim of Mr. Webster that pages would be "found missing."

Mr. Webster said that there was no reason why the book should be mutilated unless to hinder evidence coming out of wrong-doing in the fisheries branch. From this book there were seven pages missing.

From this book Mr. Webster said he saw Mr. Ellis, a clerk, take leaves some two years ago. Ellis gave the letters to Mr. Bastedo, and they were pasted in what was known as a private book.

Questioned, Mr. Webster testified that he had remonstrated with the clerks generally for interfering with the letter books, but to Mr. Ellis he had said nothing because the latter had evidently received his instructions from the deputy commissioner.

In pressing his second charge, Mr. Jones delved out the copy of a letter written from Collingwood, which dealt in some timely topics, considering that it was an election season along the Georgian Bay shore, as well as time to put in the nets.

Overseer P. Howard, under date of May 17, wrote Mr. Bastedo about Jas. Doonan's domestic license, and inclosed a dollar, the letter being registered. Among other information therein set down was the fact that Howard had been "down at Vespra in Davidson township," where the seven men who fished had votes. He also had been a visitor at Midland, Sunnydale and Floss, where there were five or more votes, "which were all coming our way."

Mr. Bastedo's reply said nothing about the votes, but said for the overseer to go down if his official business demanded it, or "in any other way."

The production of letters from any other source than the general letter books and files, Webster classified as wrong.

Letters in several instances reappeared with punch marks upon them, showing that they had been replaced in their old places. Webster knew these to have been secretly kept. There could be no question that these were public documents.

From Wolfe Island, on March 11, 1902, Overseer D. Cattanach wrote that he had seen his seven men, and "they will vote for Shibley." He added that his method of handling the matter had not committed the Government or any of its officials.

Mr. Cox's initials should have appeared on Cattanach's letters, Webster thought. He was likewise of the opinion that the letter paper, originally foolscap, had been scissored.

Overseer A. J. Flood, of Delta, as late as Dec. 19 of last year, wrote letters that seemed to have been carved of details of some sort.

One epistle concerned one James Judd, the mention of whom caused the commissioner at the head of the table to announce: "He's no relative of mine."

Donald Cattanach informed Mr. Bastedo on Jan. 27, 1903, while sending along other information, that the six applicants for licenses, which he was then submitting, "were all British subjects." The rest of the details were scissored out of the middle of the page.

Other documents similarly cut were also placed among the exhibits, notably among them being logs of the fishery boat Gilphie, and letters of her skipper.

One June 11, 1902, Mr. Bastedo wrote to Mr. G. P. Graham that he would be glad to know the political faith of Jackson & Co., of Brockville, as the boiler of the Eva Bell was out of repair, and a new boiler might be needed before the season was over.

ASTHMA

Won't you let us send you a free sample of the remedy that will cure you?

We want you to try it—to see what instant relief it gives—to prove that Clarke's Kola Compound is a positive and permanent cure for Asthma. Surely you must know that we could not afford to do this if we did not know absolutely that Clarke's Kola Compound would cure, and cure completely. Just write us that you want a free sample. We'll send it without cost to you.

"For more than twelve years, I had been troubled with Asthma and during the last two years, the attacks became so severe and frequent that I had to lay off work for weeks at a time. Many nights I could not sleep lying down. Nothing gave me relief until the C.P.R. doctor prescribed Clarke's Kola Compound. I took three bottles which helped me from the start, and by the time the third was finished, was completely cured. I have not had an attack of Asthma for three years."

THE KING IS DEAD, LONG LIVE THE KING

Dies of Heart Failure.

Copenhagen, Jan. 30. — The following official bulletin was issued last night:

"His majesty died at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. After his majesty had brought the morning's audience to a conclusion he appeared to be quite well, and proceeded to luncheon as usual. Towards the end of the meal he gave evidence of indisposition, and was compelled to retire to bed at 2:30 p.m. His majesty passed away peacefully, the symptoms indicating heart failure."

This brief bulletin tells concisely the story of the death scene, which found every one, even those who realized the increasing feebleness of the King, unprepared for the sudden shock. The death of King Christian has plunged the courts of Europe into the deepest mourning, and brought a sense of personal loss, as well as of sincere grief, to every one throughout the Kingdom of Denmark, reaching even to the humblest cottage, evidences of which are shown everywhere tonight.

It has cast a pall over the palaces of the monarchs of Great Britain, Russia, Norway and Greece. The quick taking away of this distinct personality, who has for so long been a center of interest, not only in his own country, but throughout the civilized world, almost paralyzed the community and unnerved the business world of Denmark. Even late tonight the men of affairs are only recovering from the shock and beginning to prepare for the changed conditions. Every flag in the city is at half mast, all the places of amusement are closed, and the people walk the streets as though they were passing through the chamber of death itself.

This afternoon when the flag flying over the palace was placed at half-mast the news spread rapidly. It was not believed by the great crowds which gradually assembled in the square in front of the Amalienberg Palace, but when uncertainty gave place to certainty those in the assemblage shed tears and dispersed in respectful silence, many baring their heads and saluting the palace as they went by.

Health Had Been Failing.

King Christian appeared to be in usual health this morning. After taking breakfast he held a public audience, which it had been his habit to do every Monday morning. The reception today was largely attended and his majesty conversed freely and affably with a number of officials and other persons. When the function was over the King, though appearing to be slightly fatigued, attended luncheon with the members of his family, among whom were the Dowager Empress of Russia and his brother, General Prince Hans.

During the meal his majesty complained of indisposition and was assisted by the Dowager Empress and Prince Hans. A court physician was quickly summoned, but by the time he arrived the King had collapsed. The physician used prompt restoratives, but his efforts were useless and King Christian expired almost without uttering a word in the arms of the Dowager Empress, and in the presence of the court physician and Prince Hans. Just as the King breathed his last Crown Prince Frederick, who had been summoned, entered the room, and the other members of the royal family arrived shortly afterwards.

Nothing is definitely known tonight concerning the arrangements for the funeral and it will necessarily be some time before anything concerning the arrangements is officially announced. Telegrams and cablegrams of condolence are pouring in tonight, including messages from all the sovereigns of Europe and the Danish colonies.

Premier Christensen tonight tendered his resignation of the cabinet to the new King, who expressed a wish that the present ministry should continue to carry on the affairs of the Government. Both Houses of Parliament will assemble tomorrow, when their respective presidents will formally announce the death of King Christian. At 3 p.m. the members will assemble in the hall of the Folkething to receive the royal message announcing the accession of Frederick the Eighth.

Public announcement of the death of King Christian and the accession of King Frederick will be made at noon from a balcony of the Amalienberg Palace. It had been known for some time that King Christian's health was failing. His physicians recommended a change of air and the King decided to take their advice.

The News in London.

London, Jan. 30.—In Great Britain the death of King Christian of Denmark is regarded as a personal loss. Many of the London newspapers today appear with mourning borders.

The news is generally announced as the death of the "Queen's father," and everywhere the strongest sympathy goes out to the Queen. King Edward received the news at Windsor from M. D. Debille, the minister from Copenhagen, yesterday afternoon.

His majesty had commanded several guests, including War Minister Haldane, to dinner, and it was too late to give a countermand, but their majesties sent excuses and dined alone. M. Debille, the Danish minister to London, thinks it unlikely that Queen Alexandra will go to Copenhagen until the funeral arrangements shall have been made.

It is stated that, while deeply grieved at the death of her father, Queen Alexandra bore up with the greatest fortitude. Miss Charlotte Knollys, her faithful companion, was with her last night.

Several newspaper editorial articles this morning refer to the Schleswig-Holstein trouble and the late Queen Victoria's refusal to help Denmark.

The subject is touched lightly, but the tendency is to express regret over Queen Victoria's policy.

The Times says bluntly that "England did not play a particularly distinguished part in the tangled skein of European politics in the sixties."

The correspondent of the Times at Copenhagen says: "The late king always held clearly to the opinion it was to the true interest of Denmark to maintain the best possible relations with Germany. When he ascended the throne it was only with the greatest reluctance that he consented to sign the Schleswig constitution, which inevitably led to the second Prussian war. When he finally yielded to his cabinet he said, 'I sign because public opinion demands it, and the result was the loss of three German duchies."

Grand Dukes for Funeral.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 29.—Nowhere has the sudden death of King Christian of Denmark caused a greater surprise than in St. Petersburg.

It is doubtful, according to high officials of the court, whether Emperor Nicholas will personally attend the funeral.

It is probable that he will be represented by his brother, Grand Duke Michael and several other grand dukes, as well as by the Dowager Empress, who has been at Copenhagen for several months.

The Sieversk Regiment of Dragoons, of which King Christian was honorary commander, will be represented by its colonel and a deputation of officers and men.

The Russian Order of St. Andrew, of which the King was a Chevalier, will also be represented.

BURNS OUT HIS EYES

Iron-Nerved French Soldier Desired to Escape Work.

Marseilles, Jan. 29. — A remarkable story of a "nerveless" soldier who chose to undergo terrible agonies and ultimate blindness rather than perform a disagreeable task has come to light at Tunis.

The soldier, whose name is Delbasse, is in the French disciplinary battalion. He had been ordered to work on the roads, and in order to get out of this he asked his comrade, Pape, to blind him in one eye.

This Pape did by thrusting in a red-hot knitting needle while Delbasse sat stoically in his chair.

Delbasse told his officers that he had blinded himself by accident with a piece of broken glass, but the doctor discovered that the wound had been purposely inflicted. Delbasse escaped with a reprimand and was sent back to work.

He then asked Pape to blind his other eye, and Pape again used the red-hot knitting needle. Delbasse was then totally blind, and was sent to the hospital. He has been dismissed the army.

Pape was court-martialed, and was sentenced to eight years' hard labor at Tunis yesterday.

OWES ALL TO MOTHER

Mr. Andrew Carnegie Pays Loving Tribute to Her Memory.

Pittsburg, Jan. 30.—In response to the action of the board of trustees of the Carnegie Institute last week in deciding to name the women's departments of the Carnegie Technical Schools "The Margaret Carnegie School for Women," in honor of the founder's mother, Andrew Carnegie has paid an affectionate tribute to the memory of his mother in a letter to the trustees as follows:

"The Cottage Dungeness,
"Fernandina, Fla., Jan. 22, 1906.

"Dear Mr. Church,—The tribute to my mother is exquisitely fine and one she would have rejoiced in receiving. The interest she took in women wherever we lived was extraordinary. She became the sage of the neighborhood, and was continually in demand in times of trouble by her neighbors. I am delighted with the action of the trustees. Please say to one and all that I am deeply touched by this remembrance of one to whom I owe everything that a wise mother ever gave to a son who adored her. Always yours,

"ANDREW CARNEGIE."

PARKHILL,

Parkhill, Jan. 29.—Sunday afternoon the town hall was filled to repletion. Mrs. B. D. Livingston, of Tillsonburg, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., gave a fine address, which was concise and logical, and was given with a clear sympathetic voice. Mrs. Livingstone has a pleasing personality.

The late Baron Alphonse Rothschild used to say long ago that the days of the millionaire in Europe were about over, but he left a fortune of, approximately, $190,000,000.

The Red Rose Flavor and Strength

NO Ceylon tea nor Indian tea alone can have the "rich fruity flavor" of Red Rose Tea, because neither variety in itself possesses all the qualities of strength, richness, delicacy, and fragrance. Each has its own peculiar qualities, but each has its weaknesses.

By combining the two in the Red Rose proportions, I produce a tea with the "rich fruity flavor" and strength of Red Rose Tea, a flavor and strength found in no brand of Ceylon alone.

EXPRESS HITS HIS REAR WHEELS

Woodstock Minister Escapes Death by Narrowest of Margins.

Woodstock, Jan. 29. — The C. P. R. morning express, due here at 10:45, crashed into a carriage occupied by Rev. William Johnston, of South Zorra, at the dangerous grade crossing on Vansittart avenue. The rear wheels were thrown off, and the vehicle, with its occupant and horse, thrown over an embankment. Marvelously, Mr. Johnson escaped absolutely unhurt.

The crossing has long been known as a dangerous one, and it has been the scene of numerous tragic deaths. Over the crossing is a huge sign, erected by the company as a safeguard against accidents, which reads, "Stop and look out for trains." Mr. Johnson exercised the usual care in approaching the crossing, but did not hear nor notice the approach of the train until he was right upon the crossing.

A warning screech from the whistle and the ringing of the bell on the engine attracted his attention when it seemed too late to avert being struck. The horse gave a bound, with the result that the front of the buggy cleared the rails just as the big engine raced over the crossing. The horse was unhurt, but the buggy was wrecked.

Roller Company's Affairs.

Toronto, Jan. 29. — Chief Justice Falconbridge this morning granted a stay of three weeks in the winding-up proceedings against the Henderson Roller Bearing Company, upon the understanding that, if the reorganization of the company is proceeded with favorably, there will be another stay of three ways.

The judge decided that any money paid or stock subscribed for in the new company into the Trusts and Guarantee Company in the event of the failure of the organization, will be held without prejudice to claims that may be disputed.

OFFERS TO SUFFER FOR ANOTHER

Young Man Would Go to Jail for Ten Years for Captain Van Schaick.

New York, Jan. 29.—John Short, of Brooklyn, who said that he had never made the acquaintance of Captain W. H. VanSchaick, of the steamer General Slocum, today offered to serve the captain's ten-year sentence to imprisonment in the penitentiary, which was imposed on Saturday.

Short said that he was aboard the steamer at the time she burned, with great loss of life, in June, 1904. Today the United States marshal, to whom he made his offer, Short said: "I saw and heard Captain Van Schaick ring the alarm bell at the fire, and I know he is innocent. He is an old man, too old to go to prison, and I am a young man ready to take his place and serve his sentence."

Short's offer was not accepted, and he was led out of the room. VanSchaick, who had been found guilty of criminal negligence, was commander of the burned steamboat, General Slocum. He was released in $10,000 bail today.

MAY POSTPONE OPENING

Death of Danish King Interferes With British Commons Plans.

London, Jan. 29.—Owing to the death of King Christian the official and other engagements in which the British court is concerned will be postponed or canceled, although nothing affecting the arrangements has yet been given out.

It is said that the opening of Parliament cannot take place Feb. 19, according to the original programme, but it may be opened by a royal commission, as in the later years of Queen Victoria's reign.

It is expected that a memorial service in honor of the late King Christian will be held in the Chapel Royal, St. James' Palace, simultaneous with the funeral services held in Denmark.

A LIFE WAS SAVED

The Astonishing Cure of Mrs. David S Murphy, of Elgin.

"I have been subject to chronic constipation all my life," writes Mrs. Murphy. "Ordinary remedies hadn't the slightest effect. I would never have been well if I hadn't used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They helped me in a short time. The old constipated condition has entirely vanished since I used Dr Hamilton's Pills. I consider they saved my life. To anyone suffering from bowel trouble I can recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills. No better pills are made."

(Signed), MRS D. S. MURPHY.
