Could Not Digest His Food

Suffered For Years From Indigestion Until Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. J. D. S. Barrett.

If you suffer from chronic indigestion, forget about the stomach and pay attention to the condition of the liver and bowels. Ten to one that is where the real trouble lies.

The liver gets sluggish and fails to filter the bile from the blood, the bowels become constipated and the whole digestive system is upset.

As to cure, you cannot do better than to read of Mr. Barrett's experience with Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no treatment so prompt and thoroughly effective.

Mr. J. D. S. Barrett, Nelson, B. C., and formerly of Twillingate, Nfld., writes:—"For several years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. The least bit of food caused me considerable trouble and often I could scarcely eat a meal a day. The many remedies I tried proved futile until in 1906 I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using about eight boxes I was completely cured. Since that time I have not been troubled with indigestion, which I consider a great blessing."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmanson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

PEOPLE AND PLAYS ON THE LONDON STAGE

Alexandra Carlisle's Wedding To a Dentist Comes As Surprise

SHAW AND THE CRITICS

Lena Ashwell Seriously Ill And Will Not Be Before Public Again This Year—Tree's Unrest When Not at Work

(Times' Special Correspondence)

London, Oct. 23—At last we have had Charles Frohman's famous Shaw-Pinero-Barrie bill at the Duke of York's. During the last week another of Shaw's plays has bobbed up elsewhere, namely, "Captain Brassbound's Conversion," revived at the Little Theatre by Gertrude Kingston. Always a fighting man, Shaw seized upon the occasion to make a fresh attack upon his declared enemies, the critics. Of course, it is to be understood that all this is merely Shaw's way of playing the game; as a matter of fact he was not only a dramatic critic himself for some time, but still numbers among the fraternity several valued friends.

He would now have us believe that when "Brassbound" was produced at the Court, six years ago, with Ellen Terry in the leading part, its meaning was entirely misunderstood and distributed by the press. But seeing that most of the critics of that remote period are either dead, superannuated or thoroughly ashamed of themselves there is, he believes, a fair chance that the play will at last be properly appreciated. Personally, I don't think it will unless it be much better acted than it was at the Little Theatre the other night by Gertrude Kingston and her company.

Beerbohm Tree returned to town at the beginning of this week. A more unhappy mortal than he when not engaged in acting, or at least rehearsing, was never known. He drifts in and out of His Majesty's like an unquiet spirit, who, having no work of his own to do, takes a diabolical pleasure in keeping others from getting on with theirs. However, peace again reigns in the theatre, as two days ago Tree suddenly made up his mind to take a trip to Paris. His chief object in going there is to have a chat with Edward Knoblauch, author of "Kismet," who is now busy on a big play designed for Tree. I learn from Knoblauch that he is very well satisfied with the progress he has made so far. The piece is at any rate sufficiently far advanced to afford Tree a fair impression of its scope and intention.

Alexandra Carlisle Married

It is still a profound secret, known only to a few intimate friends, but I daresay by the time this letter is published the truth will have leaked out. Even if not you may as well have the first of it. The secret is, then, that a few days ago Alexandra Carlisle, now appearing as "Everywoman" at Drury Lane, once more entered into the bonds of holy matrimony. I am not sure that the use of the word "holy" in this connection is quite right, seeing that the ceremony took place at a registrar's office without the knowledge or the sanction of the church.

Anyhow, Alexandra Carlisle's destinies are, for a time at least, bound up with those of a gentleman who practises the business of a dentist in London. For some years the fair Alexandra has been Mrs. Joseph Coyne. I asked a friend of mine when the divorce between the two had taken place, but, although an authority on such subjects, he was unable to give me any information on the point. Oddly enough Arthur Collins himself was not aware that his leading lady had taken so important a step until I informed him.

Lena Ashwell has been, and still is, seriously ill. On Monday last she had to submit to an operation for appendicitis. Unfortunately the trouble did not end there, grave complications having subsequently arisen. Up to Wednesday morning her life was despaired of, and five doctors, not including her husband, who is himself an eminent physician, were in attendance. Later news is, however, of a more encouraging character, although even now it hardly can be said that she is out of danger. In any case it means quite a long period of convalescence; there is not the slightest prospect that Miss Ashwell will be able to reappear in public before next year.

While Tree slips across to Paris, Alfred Butt is off to Berlin to view a rehearsal of the Reinhardt production to be done at the Palace in the course of the next fortnight. The novelty is much in the nature of "Sumurun," although the story is modern and located in Venice. The piece contains thirteen scenes. It opens with the arrival of a bride and bridegroom in Venice, and you see at once that the former has attracted the attention of two men, one named The Lover and the other The Stranger. There is a good deal of fun got out of the wedding festivities, but, these concluded, a tragic note is struck. However, as the audience know that whatever follows of a serious nature is merely the outcome of a dream they have always the assurance that, ghastly though the sequel may seem, no possible harm can come of it. The book is by Carl Vollmoeller, Reinhardt's pet playwright, and author of "The Miracle," and the music by Friedrich Bermann.

Lauder as Hamlet

Harry Lauder, after announcing his intention to appear at a special matinee in "A Scrape o' the Pen," now publishes the sensational statement that he is going to play "Hamlet." Nevertheless, the foundations of London remain unshaken. If one could only believe that the attempt were a serious one on Lauder's part there would be something in it. As, however, the performance is to be given for a music-hall charity with several variety artists in the other parts, it may be conjectured that Lauder and his friends are merely out for fun. For my own part, having had some experience of such endeavors, I am somewhat doubtful as to whether the fun will get over the footlights.

Tonight George Edwardes will produce his new musical play, "The Dancing Mistress," at the Adelphi with Gertie Millar and Joe Coyne as his stars. Lionel Monckton has done the music, and the music, if I may say so, has as nearly as possible done him. All along he has been extremely seedy, and it was only with the utmost difficulty that Edwardes succeeded in extracting the final numbers from him. Edwardes himself has been far from well; he is suffering from a nasty attack of influenza and, although able to attend the last rehearsals of "The Dancing Mistress," he has not by any means been in his usual form.

Expensive Obedience

By RUTH CAMERON

OBEDIENCE in a child is certainly a splendid quality; more irritating than a mosquito's sting is it to have a disobedient child. And yet there are many ways of exacting obedience that seem to me even worse than putting up with disobedience. Cowing a child is one of these, and lying to a child is another.

The other day I was making a call on a woman of some social standing and presumably of some intelligence and education, when her little son came into the room sucking his thumb.

"Philip," said my hostess sharply, "take your thumb out of your mouth. If you keep putting it in, I shall certainly cut it off."

What do you think of that?

Don't you think that mother is paying a pretty high price for her son's obedience?

I do.

And yet I know a great many grown people with a belief in their own integrity who seem to think nothing of forcing their children's obedience by lying to them about the consequences of their acts or the punishment that will follow.

"If you touch anything on the parlor table I'll tar and feather your hands," is one woman's pleasing threat to her seven-year old daughter.

"If you don't behave the bugger man that lives in the dark will catch you," has saddled thousands of children with a lifelong fear of darkness.

Lying to children is so unfair. You are their superiors in mentality anyway, and yet you take that further advantage of them. Besides, lying to children is dangerous. Sooner or later it simply must bring trouble. The child must either believe or disbelieve. If he disbelieves, he loses faith in you. If he believes he is likely to get into trouble with your falsehoods as a guide.

I remember a little anecdote in which I delighted when I was a child, largely, I think, because I had a dim notion of its poetic justice. A father traveling with his son on a train accidentally dropped his hat out of the window. By a quick motion of his hand he caught it. The child was astonished to see the hat reappear and the father told him he had whistled it back again. A few minutes later the boy summoned his father from behind the paper he was reading by announcing, "Oh, father, whistle your hat back again. I'v dropped it out of the window."

Again, I once knew of a woman who was crossing the Atlantic with two children, a baby of two and a child of six. To hush the baby she repeatedly threatened to throw it out the porthole into the sea if it did not stop crying. On returning to her stateroom after a brief absence, what was her unspeakable horror to find that the older child had carried out her wicked threat.

Lying to children is ticklish business. If you must lie, take someone your mental size. Obedience enforced by threats is not much good, but it's even less desirable when the threats are lies.

GROWING TOBACCO IN ONTARIO

In the south-western peninsula of the province of Ontario tobacco growing has become a very profitable branch of farming. In order to place the industry on a substantial footing the dominion department of agriculture some three years ago established an experimental station at Harrow in the county of Essex. The station has been equipped with a suitable barn, a drying shed and other necessary facilities. This is but one of several tobacco experiment stations operated by the tobacco division which is in charge of F. Charlan, a tobacco specialist. The Harrow station is in charge of W. A. Barnet, B. S. A., who has prepared a report of the work carried on under his supervision in 1911.

The station, which comprises thirty-eight and a half acres, is carried on to some extent as an ordinary farm. Last year fifteen acres were devoted to tobacco experiments in which nine of improved Burley and six of Warne varieties were dealt with. Tests were made with different kinds of beds, methods of curing, various combinations of fertilizers, seed selection, combating the tobacco worm, etc.

Referring to the returns from bright tobacco as compared with Burley Mr. Barnet concludes that white Burley is preferable for the average farmer to grow. During the last three years the average price secured for this tobacco has been twenty-five cents a pound or an average gross return of $250 an acre.

This report, which is designated Tobacco Bulletin A-14, is available to all who apply for it to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

ELDERLY FOLKS! CALOMEL, SALTS AND CATHARTICS AREN'T FOR YOU

Harmless, Gentle "Syrup of Figs" is Best to Cleanse Your Stomach, Liver and 30 Feet of Bowels of Sour Bile, Decaying Food, Gases and Clogged-up Waste

You old people, Syrup of Figs is particularly for you. You who don't exercise as much as you need to; who like the easy chair. You, whose steps are slow and whose muscles are less elastic. You must realize that your liver and ten yards of bowels have also become less active.

Don't regard Syrup of Figs as physic. It stimulates the liver and bowels just as exercise would do if you took enough of it. It is not harsh like salts or cathartics. The help which Syrup of Figs gives to a torpid liver and weak, sluggish bowels is harmless, natural and gentle.

When eyes grow dim, you help them. Do the same with your liver and bowels when age makes them less active. There is nothing more important. Costive, clogged-up bowels mean that decaying, fermenting food is clogged there and the pores or ducts in these thirty feet of bowels suck this decaying waste and poisons into the blood. You will never get feeling right until this is corrected—but do it gently. Don't have a bowel washday; don't use a bowel irritant. For your sake, please use only gentle, effective Syrup of Figs. Then you are not drugging yourself, for Syrup of Figs is composed of only luscious figs, senna and aromatics which can not injure.

A teaspoonful to-night will gently but thoroughly, move on and out of your system by morning all the sour bile, poisonous fermenting food and clogged-up waste matter without gripe, nausea or weakness.

But get the genuine. Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," Refuse, with contempt, any other Fig Syrup unless it bears the name— prepared by the California Fig Syrup Company. Read the label.

WOMEN IN ENGLAND NOW PLAY POKER

Craze For Gambling Seems To Be Increasing—Making Trouble in Homes

(London Standard.)

The passion for gambling among women has become so epidemic in all the larger cities of Europe that the police authorities of Vienna were recently compelled to close several women's clubs and arrest some of the members. These drastic measures were taken on the petition of many unhappy husbands, who resented the absence of their wives from home every evening and the use of housekeeping money for wagers.

"Practically the same conditions prevail in London today, though perhaps not so openly as on the continent," said the manager of a well-known detective agency, in discussing the subject with a representative. "It is doubtful, however, if the example of the Vienna police will be followed here. No official action can be taken in any case without the filing of a formal complaint, and Englishmen, as a rule, prefer to settle their family differences at home, without airing them in the courts. Yet there are many husbands and fathers in London who have ample cause for such complaints, for the gambling craze seems to have bitten deep into the younger women of the present day. Perhaps the swiftness with which we move in these times of whirling civilization has something to do with it by creating a high nerve tension that can only be relaxed by the keenest excitement. Gambling seems to supply this need, especially with women, who are denied the thrills of the stock exchange and other masculine safety valves.

"As a result, gambling, and high play too, often of the most reckless character, are to be found in almost every grade of London's feminine life. There are as yet no large clubs like those just closed in Vienna, where gambling is the custom, but there are many small ones. A few of them have permanent quarters, but, of course, their real purpose is disguised. Most of them, however, are small groups of intimate friends, who have informally organized to preserve a measure of secrecy. These groups hold their gambling sessions at each other's homes in regular turn, usually twice and sometimes three or four nights a week. It all depends on how tight a hold the passion for play has taken on them.

"There are also many instances where otherwise respectable women make a comfortable living by having regular poker parties at their rooms on certain nights. A percentage of the play always goes to the 'house,' and this frequently amounts to a very considerable sum by the time the party breaks up at sunrise. Moreover if Saturday night happens to be chosen for the party, the game is often prolonged throughout Sunday and Sunday night without a break. The players drop out singly in turns for their meals, but somebody is always playing and the game never stops.

"To become a member of these parties one must be personally known to the 'hostess' or vouched for by some of the habitual guests. Sometimes an especially favored man or two is allowed to take part in these meetings, but as a general rule the players are all women, a few elderly ones, but mostly young matrons and girls who have passed the butterfly age. The recklessness with which these women play is amazing. Many a professional gambler of the mining camps would be staggered, especially when poker is the game. Poker, in fact, is rapidly taking the place of the once popular bridge whist at these sessions, for the appeal to the true gambling spirit is more subtle. There is greater temptation to take a lucky chance in the drawing of a card or the filling of a hand. As a consequence, the losses are frequently heavier than the player can afford, and all sorts of deceptions are necessary at home to conceal the deficiency."

HAPPY DAY IN EXMOUTH STREET METHODIST CHURCH

The services in Exmouth street church yesterday marked the completion of the work and redecorating the edifice and the installation of a new pipe organ. The occasion was also made memorable by the fact that contributions not only paid off the balance of the cost of these improvements but left $100 on hand. The work cost about $1,500 of which $800 was contributed by a former member of the congregation on condition that the balance be raised by voluntary contributions.

Rev. Neil McLauchlin of Fredericton, president of the conference, preached in the morning and Rev. Dr. J. A. Morrison at the evening service.

EXTRACT FROM ENGLISH FIRM'S LETTER RECEIVED HERE

"The item from the St. John Times dated Oct. 5 in reference to the comparative cost of sugar all over the world is very interesting to us, and we take pride in the fact that sugar is cheaper in England than anywhere else in the world. That is what free trade does for our country and we can never understand why it should be to the advantage of any country to make its food supplies dear, especially to the poor."

MORNING LOCALS

The monthly meeting of the Holy Name Society was held last night in the Cathedral, when Rev. A. Meahan, chaplain of the society, continued his series of addresses on the history of the church.

It is announced that James P. DeMill, formerly in the employ of the I. C. R., and who was said to have been suspended for political reasons, has been reinstated and will be messenger in the freight shed in place of the late John McManus.

The awards consequent upon the examinations held in September in the faculty of arts, McGill University, Montreal, on Summer Readings, have been announced. Clara W. Fritz, of St. John, won the third year Exhibition, $150 for one year. Her subject was Zoology and Botany.

Dr. T. E. Bishop's automobile was slightly damaged yesterday afternoon, when in an attempt to keep clear of three young women who were crossing Main street, he ran it into Fort Howe. The wind shield was broken and the front damaged a little. None of the occupants of the car was hurt.

Two of the employes of J. A. Pugsley Company, Herbert Barr and Harry Ryan, returned on Saturday from Seven Mile Lake, bringing with them a handsome deer, which when dressed weighed 250 pounds. It had a fine spread of antlers, and was said to have been the finest brought down in that section of the province.

The Social Study Movement, organized at a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on October 24, is rapidly gaining ground. A. W. Robb of the Y. M. C. A. addressed a meeting in St. David's church yesterday afternoon, dealing with the juvenile question. Rev. F. H. Wentworth addressed a class in the Waterloo street Baptist church. The matter is also being taken up in the Brussels street and St. John Presbyterian churches.

The Fortnightly Club will meet tonight for the first time this season. The programme will include papers by Herbert J. Smith on "France as a World's Influence" and by A. H. Chapman on "The Morality of Social Pleasures."

Rev. Dr. W. E. McIntyre, Rev. Dr. Joseph McLeod, Rev. Dr. Hutchinson, Rev. F. S. Porter, Rev. M. F. McCutcheon, Rev. Wellington Camp, Rev. B. H. Nobles and Mrs. David Hutchinson will leave this evening for Toronto to attend a Canadian Baptist foreign mission meeting. J. W. Spurden of Fredericton and Mrs. Mary Smith of Amherst will also attend.

For an Immigration Boom Here

Rev. Father O'Reilly gave a very interesting address on Catholic Immigration into New Brunswick to the members of the Y. M. S. of St. Joseph in their rooms in St. Malachi's hall yesterday afternoon. George Cunningham, president of the society, presided, and there was a good attendance. Father O'Reilly urged the society and others to make a strenuous effort for a greater New Brunswick by securing at least 100,000 families from Europe and the United States to settle in the province. He also said that in his opinion the Catholic societies in St. John would, before long, send a gigantic petition to the C. P. R. and I. C. R. and to the dominion and provincial governments with the object of obtaining for the province her share of immigration.

It has been decided to erect a permanent memorial at Ladysmith to Sir George White and Sir Redvers Buller

WOMEN'S CANADIAN CLUB ACTIVITIES

The executive of the Women's Canadian Club met on Saturday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. E. A. Smith, to arrange for their winter's work. The first lecture of the season will be held on November 12 when Mrs. Adam Shortt of Ottawa will speak on "Women's Responsibilities to Women."

The immigration committee is to arrange immediately for the erection of an electric sign bearing the words "Welcome" where it can be seen by passengers arriving by steamer at Sand Point.

The educational committee will arrange for a series of lectures for the benefit of school children and their parents and will also conduct a campaign for the extermination of flies. In addition to the other lectures a series on historical subjects by local people will be arranged. The convenors of committees include the following: Educational, Mrs. G. A. Kuhring; Immigration, Mrs. J. H. Frink; Press, Mrs. Lawrence; Tea and Social, Mrs. H. A. Powell; La Tour Memorial, Mrs. E. A. Smith.

STOMACH SOUR? GOT INDIGESTION ALSO?

"Pape's Diapepsin" Will Make Your Disordered Stomach Feel Fine in Five Minutes. Time It!

If what you just ate is souring in your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only fifty cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases, then you will understand why dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for indigestion or gastritis or any other stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion.

ZION ANNIVERSARY.

Anniversary services in connection with Zion Methodist church began yesterday. Rev. H. Wigle, of Amherst (N. S.), occupied the pulpit both morning and evening, when large congregations were in attendance. The Sunday school rally took place in the afternoon and the scholars were addressed by several city clergymen. Special music was a feature both morning and evening. Members of Court La Tour, I. O. F., attended the morning service.

CONSTIPATION Can Be Cured.

You cannot expect to be well if you allow your bowels to become clogged. What is necessary is to have a free motion of them every day, and to keep them in this condition all the time if you wish to be strong and healthy. If you don't keep them open the system will become clogged up with poisonous matter and produce constipation, headache, dyspepsia, bad blood, etc.

Keep the bowels in good condition by using Burdock Blood Bitters; the remedy that has built up an unrivalled reputation, during the past thirty-six years, as a cure for all troubles arising from a constipated condition of the bowels.

Mrs. Thomas Calder, East Lower Fort Garry, writes:—"I am writing you to let you know what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I suffered very much from constipation and none of the medicines I took agreed with me. Now I am glad to say that there is nothing like B.B.B. Since taking it I have not been troubled."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
