PTE. R. LEACH SEES FAMILY HEIRLOOM IN NATIONAL MUSEUM

Soldier From Plympton Tp. Tells of Edinburgh Visit.

WYOMING, June 27.—An interesting letter from one of Lambton's soldier boys, Pte. R. J. Leach, written while on furlough in Scotland, tells of his having traced, in the National Museum of Antiquities at Edinburgh, the valuable heirloom for so many generations the possession of the Dewar family, and which was brought by them to this new land.

In 1876 the late Alexander Dewar, London road, Plympton Township, was approached by a representative of that historical society, who prevailed upon him for a handsome sum, to assign the relic to that society for safe-keeping in trust, there to remain for all time to come, for the use, benefit and enjoyment of the Scottish nation.

This hereditary possession, called the "Quigrich or crozier of St. Fillan," has remained in the Dewar family since the days of Robert Bruce, descending from father to son. Only one other Scottish crozier is known to exist.

The Quigrich is the head of a pastoral staff, nine inches high, and consists of an external casing of silver inclosing an earlier crozier head of bronze or copper, and is distinctive of the Celtic Church.

The original Quigrich or crozier was given to a progenitor of one Finlay Jore (Dewar) of the parish of Glendochart, a common term in those early days, being "Jore Cogerach," or keeper of the crozier of St. Fillan. This office gave the keeper great authority while within the bounds of Scotland, so long as he bore the Quigrich which stood for "obedience to the law, both civil and religious, authority and justice."

It is interesting to note how, with the changing years and generations, the family name "Jore" has become changed—more in spelling than in pronunciation—to the "Dewar" (pronounced Jewar) of the present day.

Mr. John Dewar resides on the homestead, Plympton Township, and had the relic not been transferred to the Scottish Historical Society by his father would now be "keeper of the crozier," which in due time would have descended to his son George. It, however, remains in the Dewar name in the museum with other historical treasures, and during these troublous times is securely packed away as a precaution against possible damage from air raids.

Pte. Leach urges the present generation of Dewar to a greater appreciation of its significance.

WOMEN VOLUNTEER AT ST. MARYS TO HELP SAVE THE FLAX CROP

Meeting Will Be Held at Wingham Tonight For Aid.

ST. MARYS, June 27.—S. F. Glass, M. P., East Middlesex, and H. R. Horn of the Ontario Organization of Resources Committee, addressed a well-attended meeting in the park adjoining the town hall tonight in the interests of the campaign to secure volunteer workers to assist in harvesting the flax crop of the district.

On motion of Dr. P. T. Coupland the following committee was appointed to take hold of the campaign locally: Mayor Dale, W. L. Branden, J. K. Richardson, A. Paynter, James Meighen, F. E. Maclean, W. R. Carr, H. Maxwell, Fred Richardson, Ed Kinsman, W. A. McNell, E. Hardisty and Dr. Coupland. The committee afterwards met and elected James Meighen chairman, Fred Richardson vice-chairman, and Mr. Hardist secretary.

A number of women, boys and girls who were present promptly enrolled, and are prepared to help out at flax-pulling. Fifteen dollars an acre is being paid this year for pulling, which is three times the normal price. A. L. McCredie, one of the largest flax growers in the district, who has 570 acres in flax this year, double his crop of last year, made a plea for generous response to the appeal for volunteer helpers, and stated that for lack of help some of his crop was not taken off until November last year, which resulted in an inferior grade of fibre for airplane construction. The crop should be pulled from July 20 to August 20. It was announced that the Dominion Government had just received an urgent cable from the flax and fibre department of the British war office for 200,000 tons of flax fibre from Canada. This is urgently needed for the construction of wings for airplanes.

A similar meeting is to be held at Wingham tomorrow night, and on Saturday morning the Ontario Flax Growers' Association is to meet Mr. Tutt of the London Government labor employment bureau for the purpose of co-ordinating all the volunteers secured for flax-pulling in the district.

The attractive remuneration, $15 per acre, is expected to prove a strong inducement to prospective volunteer helpers.

BETTER EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM ADVOCATED BY PROF. OSBOURNE

High Ideality Should Be Instilled in Youth of Our Land.

That Canada should launch forth on a scheme of education which would produce in her people an unselfish spirit and high ideality was the burden of an address delivered yesterday afternoon before the Women's Canadian Club by Prof. Osborne, president of the faculties of the University of Winnipeg. His address was delivered on the green at "Thornwood," the beautiful home of Mrs. Becher in North London.

"I am here in the interests of a big educational idea, now being forwarded by a group of men and women in Winnipeg," declared the speaker. "With no disparagement of the educational system of the past, I am proceeding on the supposition that in order to keep a good thing it is necessary to make it better, to meet the new requirements of the future. I am also proceeding upon the supposition that much of the noblest blood of this country has been spilled and will be spilled during this present war, and that in order to make the best of our manhood and womanhood left in this nation we must make our educational system better.

"If we do this we are but following in the steps of old England, who, in the very vortex of the world's trouble, has been able to work out a new program of education involving an expense which before the war would have been thought of as impossible. Is it not only right that we of this young country should follow in the footsteps of the motherland? And we men in Winnipeg who have launched this idea count on the women of Canada to help carry it out. We shall be highly disappointed if the women do not succeed in shooting the Canadian institutions full of a new ideality, in accordance with their fine ideals.

Tendencies to Disunion.

"In a country of the extent of Canada, there are always operating tendencies of disunion, which we must meet and master. In this country there is a tendency to a social fissure between the sexes themselves. There are even people who predict an internecine struggle between the sexes, and in order to prevent such a struggle steps should be taken to educate the people away from it. There is also a sharp fissure between the life in the city and the life in the country. There is a fissure between the French-Canadian and the English-speaking Canadian, which has almost become a chasm. And only a great common spirit of aspiration and high ideality will bring about unity. There is a fissure which will probably develop between the foreign born and native born of Canada. Indeed, we can hardly call it a fissure, for what has never been united cannot be severed, and it can scarcely be said that we have become united with the foreign born within our borders. We invite them into our country with promises of good land on which to make a living. We speak to them only in dollars and cents, and what wonder then that they are not bound to us. We should be able to appeal to them through the high ideals and noble spirit of our land, to which their coming will aid much. The Poles, for instance, are members of a race which has produced many great men, and do you mean to say that they would have nothing to contribute to Canada? We should ask our foreign-born Poles, Icelanders, Ruthenians, etc., to contribute to make this Canada of ours better.

Boys and Girls Educated Alike.

"One of the subjects which we should discuss is the teaching which we have given to the boys and girls. Is it not anomalous that we should pour our girls and our boys through exactly the same educational crucible, although they are so differently constituted and their mission in life is so different? If a great state is to be maintained, woman's great function will always continue to be mothers of noble men and gracious women. Then should not their enducation tend in this direction?

"Another subject which might be discussed is the differentiation between the courses of study in the country and city schools. For example, the arithmetic problems taught in the country schools dealing with city business questions. What wonder then that the country boy begins to look on the occupation of his father as undesirable, and chooses rather to go to the city, where he may come into actual contact with business life there? Our educational system must be changed to arrest the great aggregation of people in the cities.

Great National Convention.

"The men of Winnipeg are advocating a great national convention to discuss a plan of education which will impress on the citizens of the land a spirit of unselfishness and high ideals, and which will meet the many problems which are confronting the nation today. There is proof these days that Canada has become an integral part of the world. And the world has been thrown into a great war as an outcome of a selfish and pagan diplomacy. If this selfishness persists in the world, if it persists even in one country of ours, in a few years new strife will be brought about and the young manhood of the nation will again be sent to slaughter. Are we prepared to keep our eyes closed, and by so doing send the men of our land to slaughter again? A nation cannot be unselfish in foreign diplomacy which is selfish at home. Therefore let Canada's influence be felt in the building of a new social order in the world, which shall be peace. Let not your young boys of 10 and 12 be dedicated to slaughter a few years hence. I ber of you to use all your influence today towards the furthering of an educational system which will instil in the youth of our land a high ideality and unselfish spirit."

Tea on Lawn.

Miss Grace Blackburn, appearing yesterday for the first time in the presidential chair of the Women's Canadian Club, introduced Professor Osbourne to the members. After the address tea was served on the lawn, Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Bingham presiding at the tea table. An orchestra furnished music and the guests were privileged to wander at will about the beautiful paths and rose gardens of Thornwood. Mrs. Becher and Miss Blackburn received the guests.

FUN FOR EVERYBODY AT ANNUAL OUTING OF MOCHA SHRINERS

Many Novelty Races Kept Spectators in Laughter.

BAND WINS BALL GAME

Two Home Runs Were Made by the Team's Heavy Hitters.

Yesterday was a big day in the local Masonic circles, when Mocha Temple Shriners journeyed to Springbank Park for their second annual picnic. There were about 500 in attendance, practically all the Shriners for miles around being on the scene, with their wives and children, and it was a merry outing to say the least. There was ice cream, crackley-nut and ginger ale for everybody, and all availed themselves of the opportunity to have a good time. The Mocha Patrol Band was out in full force and helped make the various sports more interesting. It was a great day for the children, and even the animals in the zoo were in the best of spirits.

The sporting events were numerous, there being many groups on the program, which called for strange antics on the part of the contestants. The snowshoe race was very amusing to the spectators, and the spectacular finish of Josh Craig, who, armed with snowshoes, slid across the line, brought peals of laughter from the sidelines. The three-legged race was open to the world, and the four females who had the courage to enter were almost crushed to death beneath the feet of the oncoming nobles in the rear.

A Difficult Race.

The clothesline race was a very difficult undertaking, the male contestants being required to run a short distance with their hands tied, pick clothes pins off a line by means of their teeth, and carry them back to their respective partners who cheered them on. When time was up, the number of clothes-pins collected counted for the winners.

The smoking contest was the feature of the day, the participants having a time limit set in which to smoke as many cigars (in name only) as possible. The so-called cigars consisted of a tobacco wrapper which cleverly camouflaged the contents, and an interior decoration of sawdust, rags and other articles of torture.

Jack Dyer received a dose of his own medicine, and it is said that he learned yesterday how to appreciate the delicate aroma of a good smoke. There were no casualties in this event, but it was noted that several husky nobles turned green in the vicinity of their collar buttons, and many lost their appetite for the excellent supper which followed.

Had Good Supper.

The supper was a splendid one. It may be stated here that a Shriner fears not when it comes to eating. At the conclusion of the banquet fancy drills were demonstrated in Charlie Chaplin style by a selected squad under Lieut. A. Skelton.

The picnic ended by a ball game between picked teams from Mocha band and patrol, which ended in a victory for the former by a score of 7 to 4, and incidentally in a riot, the losing team chasing Umpire Moran off the field. When last seen, he was hiking toward the zoo, and still going strong. A feature of the game was homes runs by Sam Hueston for the patrol and F. Gammage for the band.

The Prize Winners.

The following is a list of the results of the sports run off:

Boys' race, 8 to 12 years—1, George Baker; 2, Sternie McDougall.

GARDEN PARTY AIDS PRISONERS' RELIEF FUND

The garden party given on Empress avenue under the auspices of the Fidelis class and Gideon Band of the Empress Avenue Methodist Sunday school last evening was very largely attended.

Capt. Lattimer, a returned prisoner of war, gave an address on the conditions in Germany and how the Canadian prisoners are treated by the German military authorities and the German civilian population.

"The men near the lines in Germany are the lucky people of Germany," he said. "They are fed well and receive fairly good treatment, but those back of the lines are not so well fed and treated. The parcels sent from home were a great help to the prisoners, and the boys are glad to receive the boxes."

The music was furnished by Trevome orchestra under the direction of Jack Chapman.

W. G. Moore, chairman for the evening, gave an address of welcome to those present.

Miss Annie Bell gave a solo, which was well received. A cornet solo by Wilton Robinson and Scotch and Irish dances by Miss Jean MacLean made up an enjoyable program.

A substantial fund was received at the gate for the prisoners' relief fund.

MELROSE TEACHER HONORED BY PUPILS

HYDE PARK, June 27.—Miss Esther Bycroft who recently resigned as teacher of S. S. No. 6 to take a position in the school at Lobo, was the guest of her pupils at a largely-attended farewell gathering on the school grounds this afternoon. A large number of adults from the district were present and supper was served by the women. During the afternoon Miss Violet Robertson, on behalf of the pupils, presented Miss Bycroft with a handsome set of ivory, while Miss Birdie Venner read an address.

The members of the Hyde Park Women's Institute visited the Byron Sanatorium yesterday afternoon, and, after making an inspection of the wards treated the soldiers to a supper of strawberries. The Girls' Club of Alisa Craig, which was also visiting the institution, entertained the soldiers and Hyde Park visitors for an hour with a splendid varied program, which was thoroughly enjoyed.

CHARACTER COUNTS MORE THAN EVER NOW, SAYS PASTOR

Londoner Gives Fine Address at Strathroy Convention.

STRATHROY, June 27.—The annual convention of the Strathroy District Epworth Leagues held yesterday in the Methodist Church was one of the most successful in the history of the organization. There are fifteen leagues in the district, and all were well represented. About 50 delegates from the Strathroy leagues attended. Splendid reports were presented, indicating steady growth. More than $600 was raised for the forward movement.

The delegates were entertained by the members of the Strathroy League.

Rev. W. E. Pescott of London gave an address on "The Challenge of the Hour." He struck an optimistic note and declared that conditions are not half as bad in the world as some people claim.

"Truth," said Mr. Pescott, "is at the root of all life today more than ever before. Integrity and character are being pushed to the front today more than ever, and more value is placed upon honor than upon material strength."

Rev. W. E. Donnelly of Alvinston gave an address on "The Meaning of Free Citizenship or Life's Best," emphasizing the greatness of free citizenship in the social, political and economic life of Canada.

The evening session was well attended, and Rev. W. R. Osborne of Thorndale, Rev. G. N. Hazen of Sarnia, and Rev. W. J. Ashton of London gave rousing addresses on "What the Epworth Leagues May Do to Solve the Rural Problem," "Our Obligation to the Forward Movement," and "Personal Evangelism."

The banner this year was awarded to Shiloh League, Oil Springs circuit, with over 1,100 points.

Mrs. F. Thompson rendered a solo in the afternoon, and in the evening a quartet from the Methodist Church choir gave a selection. The choir was assisted by the Thomas Orchestra of Strathroy.

LONDON NURSE TELLS OF GERMAN RAID ON ALLIES' HOSPITALS

Girls Had To Sleep in Wood After Quarters Bombed.

Miss Christene Mackenzie, daughter of J. H. Mackenzie, 120 Mamelon street, who was on duty in No. 1 Base Stationary Hospital, France, at the time it was bombed on May 20th, has written to her mother in regard to this and subsequent events. Notwithstanding the terrible experience through which she has passed her letter breathes invincible courage and indomitable humor. She says, writing under date of May 27th:

"Should have answered letters long ago, but during the last week have been camping from pillar to post, and we had an awful raid, and as you will no doubt hear rumors which will probably make you worry about me, wish to say I am in the pink of condition, and still kept busy for which at present I am thankful. Two of our sisters were killed, one Miss MacDonald, from London, Ont., I believe, and she had come here so recently I really did not know her well. Others were badly wounded. I was on night duty at the time, and must say the patients were good as gold. Numbers of our boys of the personnel were killed and wounded.

"Oh, there is so much I could tell you, but suppose even this may be cancelled. However, since that awful night the girls are all sleeping out in the wood many miles from here. I am now off night duty, for which I am rather glad. Most of the girls cannot sleep on the hard ground, but of course from the minute I hit the earth until I am called in the morning I never wake. We look like nothing else in the whole world starting off at night to the tall timbers, several blankets in a shawl strap. Talk about rusticating! Home was never like this. Our turn arrives once a week to sleep for one night at a beautiful hotel near there. We surely look like wearers Willies walking into this gorgeously furnished hotel. Again, I ask you, was home ever like this?

"This whole affair has cast a terrible gloom over everyone, and it is rather hard to carry on work in the same spot. I do hope you are all well, and do not worry about me, for I am all right. Last night I slept at the hotel, tonight in the timbers."

May 31, Miss Mackenzie wrote: "Since the air raid we have been fairly comfortable, and now that the moon is on the wane, we will have peace. The weather is simply beautiful, with no rain for weeks."

The following week she received special leave, which she was spending in London and in Scotland.

The letters from which the foregoing extracts were taken arrived all together this week.

Much anxiety was felt by Miss Mackenzie's family for her safety when it was first learned here that the hospitals had been bombed.
