Sioux Indians Commemorating the Custer Massacre.

Omaha, Neb., June 26.—Six thousand Sioux, the remnant of the most powerful fighters of the American Indians, are celebrating the great event in their war history, the twentieth anniversary of the annihilation of Custer's command on the Little Big Horn, June 25, 1876. They are gathered at the scene of the horrible massacre, and, though peaceable, are indulging in all the fantastic dances and ceremonies incident to their traditions. There will be another big celebration on July 4.

ALBERT WALES, D.L.

A Great Day for the Prince of Wales—Made a Chancellor.

Aberystwith, Wales, June 26. — In honor of the visit to this port of the Prince and Princess of Wales, and their daughters, on the occasion of the installation of the Prince as Chancellor of the University of Wales, the town and port were brilliantly decorated and crowded with visitors. The royal party arrived by special train at noon, and were received with salutes from the ships in the harbor. The installation took place in a large marquee, where there was a great assemblage of university dignitaries, prelates, municipal officers and others.

The Prince of Wales wore the robes of Chancellor, and the Princess wore the gown and hood of Doctor of Music. They were both enthusiastically cheered as the Prince was installed, and when the degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon the Prince, and the degree of Doctor of Music was conferred upon the Princess. The degree of Doctor of Laws was also conferred upon Mr. Gladstone, Earl Spencer, the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Herschell, Lord Salisbury and Mr. A. J. Balfour.

Good News for Londoners.

In our news columns today we give interesting particulars of the visit of Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, of the G. T. R., General Manager Hays and their distinguished party to London. The information elicited during their stay and inspection of the company's properties in the city is most important. The chief point settled beyond a doubt is that the construction of the car shops, which are to be concentrated on the company's grounds in East London, will be proceeded with expeditiously. This means much for London. A new era of progress is now in sight. We congratulate Mayor Little on this, the crowning achievement in his official career.

The belt line service was interfered with in consequence.

At 11:25 picnickers from Toronto and the east passed through in large numbers, and were joined by many Londoners.

ASPHALT FOR WOLFE STREET.

The residents of Wolfe street feel that they should have a pavement in keeping with the beauty of that thoroughfare, and a petition to that effect has been signed by nearly every property holder on the street. The present block pavement is in a disgraceful state, and the Wolfe street property owners think the city should assume the three years' balance still due on it. If this is done, they will agree to pay their proportion of the cost of asphalting. It may be stated that the asphalt proposal is purely voluntary on the residents' part, and that there has been no communication with the Barber or any other company.

Advertising on Trees.

Youth's Companion.

One of the most disagreeable of spectacles along village streets and country roads is the sight of noble trees disfigured by flaring advertisements, and notices of all sorts. A splendid oak, which commanded the landscape long before the revolution, and arouses the sentiment of veneration in the mind of anyone who has a love for the beautiful relics of the past, receives no respect from the village people. To this tree a local tradesman attaches a hideous advertisement of a clothing store. Below that the advertisement of some fertilizer, rudely printed on cotton cloth, flaps in the wind, offending the eyes of human beings and frightening passing horses.

Upon a great elm in a village green are tacked all manner of announcements—of local concerts and meetings, of lost breast-pins and jackknives, and of auction sales. Its gray and venerable sides are furrowed and defaced by the nails driven there by several generations. Seeing a tree served in this manner, the correspondent of a contemporary has proposed that a placard to read as follows be added to the rest:

LOST—THE DIGNITY OF THIS TREE THROUGH THE DISRESPECT OF THE TOWNSPEOPLE.

This ill-treatment of old trese is generally the result of thoughtlessness, and not of deliberation, and it is possible that such a placard might lead people to think. There should certainly be a convenient place in every village for such announcements as those described; but that place is not the most graceful and venerable tree in town—nor, indeed, any tree at all.

WHERE WAS HE?

Longman's Magazine.

The Forfarshire lairds of a remote day were wont to go weekly to great Dundee, not so great then, to dine early, but too well, and ride away home, not in every case fit for the saddle. The road ran eastward for some miles on a height above the Tay; a steep grassy slope down to the Firth; One of the old gentlemen (they were gentlemen) rolled off his horse and rolled away down the declivity. The water at the edge was only a few inches deep at that season only a tide, and there he lay. By and bye, some one remarked that the laird's saddle was empty, although his horse was trotting on with the others. So the party turned back, looking for the missing man, and exclaiming, "Faar are ye, Balnawiggin? Faar are ye?" At length a voice was herd, coming from far below. "The Lord knows faar I am. But I canna be in hell, for here's water!"

HE WANTED TO KNOW.

"The tiger is eating the station master; wire instructions." This is the form of a message which Commander Booth-Tucker, in one of his stories, says was dispatched by a telegraph boy at an Indian station somewhere in the jungles. The lad, while at work, had seen a tiger leap into the station and seize his master.
