LONG SERMONS.

The pulpit needs a lecture from the people on the length of sermons. Probably ministers don't know it, (if they do, they don't act upon it), but in nine cases out of ten a sermon more than half an hour wearies an audience and is voted a bore. The number of clergymen who can interest an audience longer than that time is very few, and even that class might make their efforts doubly effective by shortening them. Twenty minutes are often better than thirty if they are filled with vital, stirring thought, which an audience can hear and go home refreshed, instead of exhausted, at the close. It is somewhat with preaching as with eating: the mind is as disgusted with a surplusage of pulpit pabulum as the stomach with overloading, and a strong but moderate diet is usually the best in either case.

One grand cause of this evil is the want of condensation in preparation. Some, either from habit or ease of mind, are unable to separate their actual thought from wordy dross; their ideas wander in an inextricable labyrinth of verbiage, until they become hopelessly lost to themselves and the bewildered listeners who try to follow them. Let us have a reform here. A single topic treated pointedly, forcibly, briefly, will carry conviction to an audience which will nod or sit under the other kind of "dropping." The pulpit may double its power and influence for good in this way if it choose. Will it do it?—[Springfield Republican.

Awful Scene at an Execution.

New York, Jan. 20.—The execution of Martha Grinder at Pittsburg yesterday is described by the Herald's telegram as an awful scene. The wretched woman fell a distance of about three feet, owing to an oversight in adjusting the rope connected with the upright under the trap. Her fall was not sudden. The neck was not dislocated, and she slowly strangled to death. Her contortions and writhings for several minutes were most agonizing to behold; the knot, too, had slipped, and the circulation of the blood on the right side of the neck was wholly uninterrupted. Her death was literally a hard one

SPECULATION IN APPLES—THE SPECULATORS USED UP.—The Rochester Democrat says:—"The failure of Marshall of New York, who thought his agents, purchased a very large amount of apples, in this region of country, has been announced. Some of his agents in this and other counties are ruined by the operation. One of them, before taking the agency for Marshall, was worth at least $30,000. He loses every dollar of his property, and will then be greatly involved. Many farmers who trusted the agents lost the price of their entire crop. Some of the country banks, it is understood, have an unpleasant amount of this apple paper, which will lock up a portion of their capital for a time. That it would fall somewhere was believed by every prudent man when he saw such immense quantities of apples purchased at prices wholly unwarranted by the state of the Eastern market. There are many parties who will long have occasion to remember the apple trade of the past season in the apple business in Monroe, Orleans, Niagara, Genessee and Ontario counties, if it could be ascertained, would foot up a large sum. Speculation, on the supposition of a short crop, when there was every indication of a large one to any person not blind in the cause.

Railroad to Oil Springs

Notice is give in the Gazette to day of an intended application to Parliament for a charter to construct a Railway from Oil Springs to Sarnia. The Globe says as the Grand Trunk and Great Western Railways are taking no steps to construct branches from their main lines, according to the powers granted them, Parliament will hardly refuse the privilege to private individuals.

COMING TO CANADA:—Not a few Americans may be expected in Canada next spring in consequence of its becoming more difficult to "make both ends meet." Dwelling houses, which rent in this Province for from $100 to $150 per year, are there worth from $400 to $500; servant girls receive from $10 to $12 per month. Beef and mutton sell at from 20 cts. to 35 cts per pound; turkeys at 25 and 30 cents per pound; geese at $1 to $1 50 a piece, and other articles at proportionately high rates.—Trade Review.

HORRIBLE DEATH OF A YOUNG LADY IN MEMPHIS ON THE EVE OF HER BRIDAL.—A heart-rending accident occurred at Memphis Tenn., last week, which resulted in the almost immediate death of a Miss J. Denman, of Port Gibson, Miss. Miss Denman came to the city several days ago, and was to return home on Monday, to make preparations for her approaching marriage with Major Warner, of Port Gibson, to whom she had been engaged for some time. She had purchased her bridal trousseau, and was happily contemplating the event so soon to transpire. In company with two young ladies of the city—Miss Capera and Miss Walker—she visited the mills of Mrjor Warner; an inspection of the premises was suggested, to which ready assent was given. Approaching too near the machinery she was drawn between two wheels and mangled in a horrible manner. She survived but a few minutes.

☞A man has been sent to prison for seven days for begging from the Prince of Wales. He put his head into the Prince's carriage and said, "Now, your Royal Highness, you must give me something to night." He got something—but not what he wanted.

☞A thief attempted to steal a tombstone on Saturday night at Ottawa, but detective O'Neil seeing him with it he dropped it and decamped. It was five feet long, two broad, and six inches thick.

NEARLY FATAL ACCIDENT AT A CONCERT.—Port Hope, Jan. 20.—Last night as the benevolent concert given by Mr. Koerbern was in progress down came one of the galleries, containing about 175 people—men women and children. Only one was badly hurt, and two or three badly frightened; the confusion was intense. The great wonder is that nobody was killed.

A writer in a recent English periodical, in describing the office of the London Times, speaks as follows about a department not usually considered essential to a newspaper office:—"We pass along a corridor and a gallery, from the latter of which we look down upon the unexpected sight of a huge kitchen, with a batterie de cuisine, glowing fires, huge cauldrons and burnished vessels of copper, which gleam like gold. Farther on, we pass a venerable door, behind which, as our conductor tells us, is the descent to that vital part of the establishment—the beer-cellar."

☞The Emperor of the French receives every day a resume of every leading article in the foreign papers.

☞The people of Leyden, Holland, recently made a raid on the cats of the town, and in one night slew six hundred.

☞A man has died in London from "black fever," caused by inhaling the vapour from gas-works' refuse floating down the Regen's canal.

The statistics in regard to prostitution, place Buffalo in the van as a very immoral city, and to be shunned by the virtuous. Think of it ye moralists, in a city of 75,000 inhabitants, 1,500 females are leading a life of shame. In the face of these figures how can the Buffalo papers sublimingly prate about the immorality of other cities?

☞Havana advices of the 13th instant report that a telegram has been received announcing the death of Admiral Pareja, the Spanish commander of the Chilian coast. It appears that upon learning that one of his vessels had been captured by the enemy he could not endure the result and shot himself, although not personaly responsible for what had occured. The Spanish war steamers at Havana have their ammunition on board and have four of them were about to put to sea to look out for the American pirates said to have been fitted out in New York to prey on Spanish commerce.

☞Thirteen dead bodies were taken from the surf at Nantucket last week, ten of which were thought to have belonged to the ship Newton, wrecked there. The immense number of small fragments of the ship which drifted ashore appeared as if they had been subjected to an explosion (cargo kerosene oil). Everything goes to favor such an opinion. Large spars were broken off short, and an iron truss, the size of man's arm, was broken off short as a pipe stem. It is estimated that about two thousand two hundred barrels of kerosene, together with a quantity of tustic, staves, &c., have been saved.

HOW TO PAY THE NATIONAL DEBT.—The Washington Chronicle presents the following important facts to be considered in the payment of the national debt:—Lander Hill, situated near Austin, Rees' river district, Nevada, contains at least one hundred and fifty silver bearing veins, which with an average width of two feet, and length of 5,000 feet, and a depth of 4,000 feet, following the dip of the veins, or 2,000 feet vertical depth, contains 6,000,000 cubic feet, which, at 200 pounds per cubic foot, would give 1,200,000,000,000 pounds, or 600,000,000 tons of silver ore, which, at $200 per ton, gives the snug little sum of $120,000,000,000. That amount of ground would be worked out by a system of tunneling in fifty years, with a capital to start with not exceeding $5,000,000.

☞George Parker, a soldier of the 30 regiment, has been committed for trial at Montreal on a charge of coining, which he carried on in a cellar connected with the barracks. The pieces coined are very rough, and but little calculated to decieve.

Much of the best literature of the day is found in the English and Continental magazines and periodicals; and it is the design of the Publishers of this new journal to reproduce the choicest selections from these for American readers, in a form at once attractive and inexpensive.
