FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 14.

A Political Pet.

Edward Blake is a political pet. He was sent to Parliament by two constituencies, was offered the leadership of his party, left the Government after helping it through the elections, and has incurred no censure from the party organs for erratic movements that have been highly annoying to the Government. When Mr. Blake was a supporter of Sir John he used to vex his leader, by splitting constitutional hairs on every possible occasion, and his habit has not changed since. But he has gained, or been given, in the mysterious manner in which pets of all kinds easily get favors, a reputation for character, fairness and ability which he has done little to deserve. He gained credit for standing aloof from the clerk-bribing and letter-stealing tactics of his party, and yet he showed himself to be thoroughly unscrupulous in making use of all the material so acquired. He, in common with his party, made high-sounding professions of purity, economy and honesty, and his voice has not been raised once against the corruption, extravagance and fraud practiced by the men he helped to power. On the Riel question, and on the New Brunswick school issue, he has shown himself capable of sacrificing every principle of constitutional law and public policy to personal and party ends. He gets credit for disinterestedness by refusing a seat in the Cabinet, when the fact is that his legal practice is so profitable that he can not take a portfolio without a pecuniary sacrifice. Practice in the courts, unlike the importation of hardware, can not be conducted more profitably in the Cabinet than out of it. Mr. Blake's refusal, therefore, instead of being an evidence of lack of desire for personal advancement, is proof of his being more devoted to making money than serving the public or guiding his party. As he has been offered the Chief Justiceship of the Court of Appeals it may be well to examine his claim to that distinction—to see whether it is as a political pet or as a jurist that he is offered the place. Here is a synopsis of a few of the important questions on which the highest legal authorities of the Empire have condemned Mr. Blake:

(1) When the Nova Scotia resolutions were passed in the Local Legislature of Ontario, Mr. Blake moved them but the law officers of the Crown of England declared them unconstitutional. (2) In 1873 Mr. Blake favored the introduction of Mr. Costigan's school resolutions, the powers of which were declared unconstitutional by Imperial authorities. (3) The Oath's Bill introduced in 1873 and warmly espoused by Mr. Blake was declared unconstitutional. (4) Regarding the prorogation in 1873, Mr. Blake denied the constitutionality of the Governor General's course in this matter not only in Parliament but out of it; in every city, town, village and hamlet his voice was heard denouncing it; he was one of the first to protest against such prorogation. In a speech delivered at London on the 23rd of August, a few days subsequent to the prorogation, Mr. Blake said "the Government advised His Excellency to reject that appeal; to prorogue the House and to issue a commission, and he agreed to follow their advice. He answered those who had made the representation, as to manner, graciously enough, for the manner was his own; but as to matter most unhappily; the matter was his ministers'. I suppose that the reasonings of a Viceroy are not free from criticism; but had these been the reasonings of the Viceroy himself, I confess I should have felt some embarrassment in the choice of an epithet with which to characterize them." Mr. Blake here admitted that Sir John's advice had been taken and blamed Lord Dufferin for acting upon it. The entire case having been submitted to the Imperial Government the law officers of the Crown declared his course to be strictly in accordance with constitutional practice. (5.) Mr. Blake gave as his opinion that the Dominion Government could arrest and try Riel, but Sir John McDonald's judgment was that the matter was vested in the courts of Manitoba—and Lepine was afterwards tried and convicted there. (6.) Again in the creation of Queen's counsel for Ontario, Mr. Blake held that he as Premier of that Province had the right to confer such honors. The question was referred to the law officers of the Crown of Great Britain, and they upheld Sir John Macdonald, who claimed that the right belonged to the Dominion Government and in accordance with this, the Dominion Government issued commissions to those who had been unconstitutionally appointed by Mr. Blake.

It is clear that Canada's political pet would not be a success as Chief Justice, and that it was for the purpose of shelving him, or of flattering him, and not because of his judicial mind, that Mr Mackenzie offered Mr. Blake the highest seat on the Canadian bench.

Late news from Japan is to the effect that the Government has authorized the formation of a Parliament, consisting of two houses and constituted somewhat like that of Great Britain. The upper house will probably consist of the heads of departments, with other persons of high rank appointed by the Mikado; while the members of the lower house will be elected by popular vote. Certain educational qualifications will be required by voters, but otherwise the ballot will be free. We may expect, therefore, that Japan will soon be made acquainted with ballot-box stuffing, Salary Grabbing, and other features of civilized legislation.

In the Beecher case the witnesses for the defence contradicted all the statements of the witnesses for the prosecution; then the witnesses for rebuttal gave the lie to those for the defence; and then the witnesses for sur-rebuttal denied the assertions of those for rebuttal. The lawyers' contradictory interpretations of law and evidence will come next, after which the Judge and jury will be left to answer the conundrum if they can.

International Copyright.

The deputation of authors that waited on Mr. Disraeli Monday to make representations, and obtain his views in regard to international copyright, consisted of Messrs. Blanchard Jerrold, Tom Taylor, Charles Reade, Charles Dickens, G. A. Sala, and Chas. Mackay, and Miss Braddon and Mrs. Wood, and many other well known literary persons. Mr. Edward Jenkins, M. P., addressed Mr. Disraeli on the part of the deputation. He pointed to the appropriation and mutilation of the works of British authors by the book publishers of the United States, and asked if some remedy could not be found for the grievances. Mr. Disraeli replied that the subject had already come before the Government on the question whether a revision of the copyright law in regard to dramas was desirable. The Government would give the matter full attention, and strive to remove the annoyances and vexations now existing; but it must have time to consider what method to adopt. He was of opinion that a royal commission would be better than a Committee of the House of Commons, because it would be more likely to be well acquainted with the subject.

The Sackville Post has been enlaaged and is now a 32-column paper.

The St. Martins and Upham Branch railway has been commenced, the first sod being turned yesterday.

Complaints are made of the indiscriminate manner in which cattle are permitted to walk the streets of St. Stephen.

A two-story house owned and occupied by Mr. J. B. Given, at Welsford, was destroyed by fire on Wednesday night. It is insured in the Provincial for $500.

The new Fredericton Board of Health consists of Geo. E. Fenety, Esq., Chairman; S. D. McPherson, Esq., Hon. Judge Steadman, Thos. Harrison, L. L. D., Alfred B. Atherton, M. D. And to the Board thus constituted James S. Beek, Esq., has been appointed Clerk, and Mr. James Farrel, Inspector.

The Westmorland revival continues. The Post says that Rev. G. F. Miles baptized eight persons at Upper Sackville last Sunday. Next Sunday morning services will be held at the same place, when more baptisms will take place. Fifteen have been baptized into the First Coverdale Baptist Church within a few days.

CURRENT COIN.

A man asked his friend why he married so little a wife? "Why," said he, "I thought you knew, that of all evils we should choose the least."

It is reported that a young man in Dartmouth, N. S., has fallen heir to a fortune of $20,000 through the death of a relative in Australia.

A lady having remarked in company that she thought there should be a tax on "the single state." "Yes, madam," rejoined an obstinate old bachelor, "as on all other luxuries."

Orton Demonstrator: "I don't care whether he's Orton or Tishbo'n or Cashtr', or who he is, bu' I don't like t' see a po'r man kep' out of's property!!" Second Orton Demonstrator: "Jesh sho!" (They retire to refresh.)

A young gentleman, visiting his intended, met a rival who was somewhat advanced in years, and, wishing to insult him, inquired how old he was. "I can't exactly tell," replied the other, "but I can tell you that an ass is older at twenty than a man at sixty."

A person in company said, in a violent passion, to another, "You're a liar and a scoundrel!' The other, with great composure, turned round to the company and said to them, "Pray, don't notice what this poor fellow says; it is a way he has; he frequently talks to himself."

Mr. Weston walked one hundred miles, in New York, Tuesday, without making a stop, finishing the last mile at 5:55:58. He completed 117 miles within 24 hours from his second start, and 120 miles in 7 minutes less than 25 hours. He finished his 150th mile at 6:01:19, and at midnight had walked 173 miles.

A churchwarden's wife went to church for the first time in her life when her husband was made churchwarden. Being late the congregation were getting up from their knees at the time she entered, when she said, with a condescending smile: "Pray keep your seats, ladies and gentlemen; I think no more of myself than I did before."

Says a wife to her husband as the curtain descends on the prostrate form of Juliet, "Ah, when we were married, you vowed that, were I taken from you, you would kill yourself on my tomb, as Juliet did on Romeo's. You wouldn't do so now?" "Only kill yourself, my dear, only kill yourself," replies the husband, "and see whether I wouldn't keep my vow."

A Shields ship being caught in a heavy gale, the captain called the crew together and told them to pray to God to save them. They all complied but one, who refused; but on further pressing, he knelt down and said, "O Lord, aa'm not like these beggars constantly axin' for things. Aa've never axed ye for owt before; and if ye save us noo, aa'll never axe ye for owt else!"

The Berlin Press and the Bourse Gazette report that the authorities have procured the arrest abroad of the principal conspirator in the plot to assassinate Bismarck and Falck. The Gazette says the prisoner is a relative of Archbishop Ledochowski, while the Press states that he is related to Mgr. Dunin, who was Ledochowski's predecessor. Both journals assert that the plot included the assassination of the Emperor William.

A surgeon's assistant in Newcastle once astonished the weak mind of a keelman by giving him a glimpse through the keyhole at a skeleton which hung in the doctor's study. A few days afterwards, the keelman happened to meet Dr. Thorpe, who was a tall gentleman of exceedingly attenuated form and cadaverous hue, and whom he accosted as an old friend. The doctor, of course, expressed his ignorance of his friend, who thereupon exclaimed, "Na, na, man! aa knaw thee, for a' thou's gotten thy claes on!"

About the year 1845, Seaton Sluice was a thriving shipping town, and had a great many pilots. The following anecdote is told of one who, on taking a walk along the road towards the bottom of the avenue, met a gentleman who inquired the way to Seaton Sluice. "Turn to the right hand," said the pilot. "You belong to Seaton Sluice, sir?" asked the stranger. Receiving an answer in the affirmative, he proceeded, "Have you the influenza there?" "Darned if au knaw," returned the pilot; "thor's se mony new ships yen disn't knaw yen nyem from t'other."

The legislative committee appointed to investigate the alleged frauds in the repair of the Massachusetts State House on the part of various contractors and others, after an exhaustive hearing reported, disallowing over $15,000 worth of claims for labor, &c. An additional report, signed by three of the committee, censures the commission under whose jurisdiction the bills were contracted, for acting contrary to the recognized principles of law and justice in allowing such exorbitant charges to be made with their ostensible endorsement.

Two rustic dames, who were on a visit to a local exhibition, were at a loss to decide the subject of a painting which peculiarly attracted their attention. Each at length came to an opposite conclusion, and stuck to it, till a lady came near, who was provided with a catalogue. The fair referee, turning to the number of the picture, informed them that it was "Peter the Great and his Empress." "Aye, I tell'd ye so!" exclaimed one of the old connoisseurs, with an air of triumph: "Aa said it was yen o' the 'postles!"

The Post says that to obtain a decision in an interesting law point, an action of trespass, Milner vs. Luttrell was tried Thursday before Justice Bent. The locus in quo is the railway station grounds. The point is whether the Dominion Government has power to appropriate lands by virtue of Act of Parliament, the B.N. A. Act assigning to the Local Legislatures exclusive power to legislate on civil rights. The Justice decided such an act is not ultra vires, and the case will of course go up to obtain a Supreme Court decision.

He left the spelling bee at 10 o'clock and stopped in a saloon on his way home. Here he met several friends who "set 'em up" divers times, and he reached home about midnight with a confused brain and a very demoralized pair of legs. Then he swore that somebody had stolen the keyhole, but his wife, with a fearful scowl on her brow, and a lamp in her hand, admitted him. "Drunk!" she exclaimed. "D-r-u-n-c (hic) drunk. Thaz easynuff." "Brute!" "B-r-o-o-t (hic), give us harder one." "Idiot!" "Tharz harder (hic), but I kin spellum. I-d—I-d-g—I-d-i-g-t, Idiot. Now give us a stunner (hic)." She picked up a poker and gave him a "stunner," and the spelling bee adjourned sine die.

During the last great war the crew of H.M.S. Flora were treated to a performance of "Othello" at the Portsmouth Theatre, but the conduct of the Moor towards the gentle Desdemona was opposed to all nautical ideas of what was due to lovely woman; and a jolly tar, sliding down from the gallery over the boxes, dashed across the pit towards the stage with a shout of "Hands off, you bloodthirsty nigger," and a vociferous demand to his brother blue-jackets "to clear the stage." No sooner said than done. Crash went fiddles and flutes, crack went the footlights, and onward swept the riotous crew, to the terrible alarm of the representative of Othello, who fled in costume, dagger in hand, through the streets, while the gentle Desdemona, for whose sweet sake all the tender feelings of the honest Jack tars had been aroused, was far more alarmed by the excitement of her would-be preservers than she had ever been of a stage dagger. Never had the last act of Shakspeare's tragedy closed with such a terrific uproar.

The Missing Steamer Metropolis Drifting about at the Mercy of the Winds and Waves—Sufferings of the Passengers and Crew.

Telegraphic advices to the Boston Journal from Providence, dated the 12th inst., report the safe arrival of the steamer Metropolis, from Hamilton, Bermuda, for New York, with merchandize and passengers, at Dutch Island Harbor, Naragansett Bay, at 5 o'clock that morning, 27 days out. Grave fears had been entertained for this boat and her 26 passengers. Captain Ellis furnishes the following report of the passage:

Left Hamilton, Bermuda, April 15, with merchandise and 26 passengers.

On the following day, during a heavy gale, lost head of foremast and the main topmast. On the 17th our circulating pumps were disabled, but we made temporary repairs so that our engines were still available.

A few days out from Bermuda the coal gave out and the rolling of the steamer broke some of the steampipes and started bolts. The steamer could not carry sail enough to give her good steerage, and in this unmanageable condition she drifted about in the roughest sea that Captain Ellis ever saw. Since she was driven across the Gulf Stream she has passed through hail storms of almost unprecedented violence.

The steamer sprung no leak and is sound and seaworthy in spite of her rough usage. The Metropolis is a wooden screw steamer of a little less than 900 tons burden. The supply of meat gave out about ten days ago, and since then the bill of fare has consisted mainly of potatoes and onions.

Mr. Albert Murdock, of Halifax, N. S., a passenger, makes the following statement:

The first week we experienced rough weather, doing considerable damage to our rigging and carrying away the foretopmast; the engines becoming unfit for use after we had been out about a week, and were repaired several times.

About the 24th or 25th the coal gave out, and after that time all the fuel we had for pumping and cooking was what lumber could be gathered on the vessel from places where it could best be spared. On the 25th an Austrian bark took five of the passengers and supplied us with some provisions.

Now alternate hope and fear reigned from day to day, as our provisions were getting short. On the 1st day of May the barque Lognadilen supplied us with what lasted for some time, but for the last week we had subsisted on potatoes and onions and tomatoes almost entirely.

Too much cannot be said in praise of Capt. Ellis for his kindness and management during the voyage.

Fatal Quarrel of Kansas Editors.

LEAVENWORTH, May 11.—At about 10 o'clock last evening Col. D. K. Anthony, who is editor of the Times and the Postmaster here, and William Embry, editor of the Appeal, met on the stairway of the Opera House, when the Colonel asked Embry if he wished to see him. Embry replied, "Just as you say, Col. Anthony; if you wish to see me we will go down stairs." The Colonel then stepped up one step, and Embry said, "No, you don't shoot me in the back," and stepped up by his side. Col. Anthony then struck Embry a severe blow on the upper lip, when three shots were fired by Embry, two of which took effect in Col. Anthony's breast, and, it is supposed, will prove fatal.

REMOVAL.—The Business Office of the DAILY TRIBUNE has been Removed up stairs, on the same Floor with Editorial Rooms.

Brevities.

Carleton will spell next week.

Two false alarms of fire last night.

The Chief is trying to put down ball playing in the streets.

Dorchester street extension is to be closed up until it can be made safe to travel at night.

A lad named Voto had his leg broken in Portland yesterday, an iron knee having fallen upon it.

Policeman McManus succeeded in catching one of the McGinnis witnesses, Mrs. Burgess, who is now in jail.

Mr. Geo. H. Clark, late conductor on the I. C. R., has been presented with a gold watch and chain by the employes of the road.

The entertainment at St. Paul's Church S. S. room last night was well attended and much enjoyed by the audience. Both the musical and literary portions were given in excellent taste and received enthusiastic applause.

At the City Police Office, yesterday, Messrs. Wills & Rubens appeared to answer the complaint of Mr. W. H. Scovil for violating the building law. The facts of the case were published in THE TRIBUNE some days ago. Justice McAvity, before whom the case was heard, reserved his judgment.

The News says that James Fowles, of Amherst, who was before the Police Court on Wednesday, went on another spree that evening, and when taken to his boarding house was cut and bleeding. When he came to his senses yesterday morning he complained of losing $60 in cash and a number of gold rings. The last time he remembered having the property was when in a Church street house of questionable repute.

Dr. Arnold requests us to state, that he will give attendance and medicine free to all the poor of the Province, at the Victoria Hotel, from 2 till 4 o'clock every day, during his stay in St. John, which will be until October next.

Shipping Notes.

A Good Freight.—A new bark named Albert Russell, now at Newburyport, Mass., has been chartered by the Cape Breton Company, of Sydney, C. B., to load a cargo of coals for Singapore at $7 per ton, American gold. The bark goes to Boston to be copper sheathed; from thence she proceeds to Sydney in ballast.

The Bark Sarah B. Cann, Eldridge master, which put into Plymouth, E., on the 7th March, in distress, having completed her repairs, proceeded for her destination on the 10th inst.

Steamers.—The Hibernian is the R. M. steamer now on her passage from Liverpool for Halifax, with mails for Canada.

The new steam Dredge for Nova Scotia arrived at Halifax on Wednesday evening, 25 days from Glasgow. They encountered very rough weather on the passage, and were several days in the ice, during which time had cutwater carried away and bows stove in, filling the fore compartments with water.

Record of Wrecks.—The number of wrecks reported for the week ending April 24th is 17, making the total for the present year 540.

Point Lepreaux, May 14, 9 a. m.—Wind W., light, clear; one steamer, one ship, two brigantines, Addie and Nellie and ten other schooners outward; two schrs. inward.

New Vessels.—Mr. Joseph R. Dunlop has on the stocks at his yard, Courtenay Bay, a handsomely modelled ship named King Ceobric, registering about 1650 tons, and measuring in length 222 feet, breadth 40 feet, depth 24 feet. She is owned by James A. Moran, Esq., of St. Martins, her builder and others. It is expected she will be launched in the course of a week or so.

The expenditure of brain power too early or too severely in children often results in physical debility; the use of Fellows' Hypophosphites exerts a singularly happy effect in such cases.

Barnabee To-night.

The re-appearance of Barnabee at the Academy to-night cannot fail to be appreciated by an overflowing audience. Everybody who has once heard him ought to be there, and those who never enjoyed the felicity of his company should not miss this excellent opportunity.

The best selected stock of Cigars, including the celebrated brands Henry Clay, Prof. Morse and Flor del Fumar, meerschaum and briar pipes, tobaccos and smokers' articles, will be found at Robertson's, 74 Prince Wm. street.

The Coming Spell.

The spelling match at the Mechanics' Institute on the evening of Loyalist Day offers substantial inducements to competitors. It is probable that the match will be a thorough success, as a number of champion spellers have signified their intention to participate.

THE DAILY TRIBUNE and all the most popular Canadian, English and American newspapers and magazines can always be obtained at the bookstore of Mr. W. K. Crawford, King street. aug 8

City Police Court.

Alexander Blank, drunk on Water st., was fined $4.

Alex. White, drunk on Prince William st., was fined $4.

Patrick Smith, drunk and begging on Charlotte st., was fined $6 or ten days jail.

"ALAS FOR THE RARITY OF CHRISTIAN CHARITY UNDER THE SUN."—A few days ago an old man might have been seen going round town begging cents; his plea was that he was sick and wanted to buy medicine. After many unsuccessful attempts he at last accosted a gentleman at the corner of King and Germain streets with the same plea. He was asked, What do you want the medicine for? He replied that he had Catarrh very bad and wanted to raise thirty five cents to buy a box of Reder's German Snuff. The gentleman, having been cured himself of that disease with this wonderful compound, readily gave him the amount and sent the old man on his way rejoicing.

Portland Police Court.

John Campbell was fined $10 for assaulting James McGuire.

Mary Donnelly, a squaw, found drunk in Main street, was fined $4 with the option of going to jail.

Rural Cemetery.

MR. SPRAGG will run the two first class omnibuses, ONWARD and UNDAUNTED, to the RURAL CEMETERY, every fine day during the season, beginning on Monday, May 3rd., for the accommodation of visitors. Hours for leaving the Bell Tower (head of King street) will be as follows: Half-past one, two, half-past two and three o'clock, p. m. Mr. Spragg also runs a 'bus' regularly to Fairville twice daily, leaving Market Square at 9 a. m. and 3.15 p. m.

Progress of the Revival.

The Intelligencer says that the revival interest still continues in the church on Waterloo street, one of its marked features being the strength and decision of the converts who have found Christ during its progress. Bro. Parsons has, up to the present, baptized thirty.

None but a physician knows how much a reliable alterative is needed by the people. On all sides of us, in all communities everywhere, there are multitudes who suffer from complaints that nothing but an alterative cures. Hence a great many of them have been made and put abroad with the assurance of being effectual. But they fail to accomplish the cures they promise, because they have not the intrinsic virtues they claim. In this state of the case, DR. J. C. AYER & Co., of Lowell, have supplied a COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA, which proves to be a long desired remedy. Its peculiar difference from other kindred preparations in the market is that it cures the diseases for which it is recommended, while they do not. We are assured of this fact by more than one intelligent physician in this neighborhood, and have the further evidence of our own experience of its truth.—Nashville (Tenn.) Farmer.
