THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

THE MAYBRICK CASE FIND ITS WAY TO THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

A Question by Lord Fitzgerald as to a Court of Appeal in Criminal Cases Arouses the Anger of the Lord Chancellor.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.

August 16.—A London special to the Herald says; The Maybrick case found its way into the House of Lords to-day (Thursday) and ruffled the temper of the Lord Chancellor.

Lord Fitzgerald asked if during the coming recess the question of instituting an effective court of appeal in criminal cases would be considered, and if it were deemed expedient, would a measure to effect that object be presented.

The face of the Lord Chancellor became covered with that hue that betokens the rapid approach of apoplexy. He could only imperfectly express his regret, he said, that such a question should be raised. It was a matter he preferred not to discuss at such a time.

Lord Herschell coolly stated that it was impossible to obtain attention to the necessity of any particular reform, except when the public mind was excited on the subject. He trusted the matter would be seriously considered by the Government at the coming recess, as there was undoubtedly a wide spread feeling that such a tribunal would give an additional surety against injustice and against such an agitation as the suspicion of injustice created.

The importance of the remarks made by Lord Cross, lies in the fact that he has been Home Secretary, though the little he did say was of such extraordinary character as to deserve no attention, if he had never occupied such a position. Having said that he would be prepared to express his ideas at the proper time he added, "I am not quite sure that with the existing state of things, criminals do not gain an advantage, rather than lose one, by the want of criminal appeal" He failed to explain however what criminals could possibly lose by such a change for the better in their behalf. After Lord Cross had spoken, the matter was dropped.

To-day's London Lancet, after a thorough review of the medical testimony says:—"We can have no desire that the Royal prerogative of mercy should not be exercised in this case, but as a duty to the living relatives of the deceased, to the painstaking, fearless, and honest jury and to one of the greatest ornaments of the English bench, we solemnly assert as our unbiased opinion, that the verdict arrived at in Mrs. May's evidence.

He further announced that in compliance with the request of his Lordship Bishop Sweeney, he, Father O'Neil would celebrate Mass at St. George on Sunday next, Father Laverty, the priest of that parish having just returned from the retreat.

A MURDEROUS CONSPIRACY DISCLOSED.

A Man Hired for $5.00 to Poison Five Farmers and Burn the Oddfellows Hall.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.

WINAMAC, Ind., Aug. 16.—A conspiracy to kill five farmers of this vicinity was made known yesterday by Charles Lyttle who files an affidavit against John Sutton charging the latter with hiring him (Lyttle) to put strychnine in whiskey and give it to 5 men, neighbors of Sutton, and then to burn their barns and also the Odd Fellows building at Stave City.

Lyttle was to receive $5 for his work when completed.

Lyttle had the strychnine in his possession and he gave it to Sheriff Burton last night. Sutton is one of the wealthiest farmers here and is owner of about 1000 acres of land.

A quarrel with his neighbors it is alleged is Sutton's reasons for forming the conspiracy. Sutton is under arrest.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE

LONDON, August 16.—Home Secretary Matthews, Mr. Justice Stephen, the Lord Chancellor and medical experts are today holding a conference at the Home office with a view to arriving at a decision in the Maybrick case.

The Lansdowne Theatre.

"Uncle's Will" and "Engaged" formed the bill for the closing performance of the season at the Lansdowne last night. The occasion was also a complimentary benefit to the energetic manager Mr. E. A. McDowell and his charming wife. The house was literally packed, every seat being sold long before the curtain raised.

"Uncle's Will" is a one act piece and full of funny incident and dialogue and the acting of Mr. and Mrs. McDowell was a rich treat. Mr. Sterner too was well as in his work, played the part of Mr. Barker very happily. Before the curtain fell Mrs Reeves (Mrs. McDowell) was presented with an elegant bouquet by Mr. Harrison on behalf of the orchestra as a tribute of their respect and esteem for that interesting lady. "A hunting scene" also well rendered by the orchestra during the interval between the first and second pieces, that the leader was obliged to bow his acknowledgement of the deserved applause. "Engaged" was well played and was bright sprightly and sparkling throughout. It would scarcely be fair to find fault with an occasional lapse in dialect as it is not by any means an easy matter to imitate the lowland manner of speech. The play was a delight, however, and Mr. McDowell played Cheviot Hill, the amatory and impressible youth though a parsimonious one, to the life. Miss Reeves justly merited the applause given her in the role of Belinda Treherne. Mr. Hight gave an excellent interpretation of Major Symperson and Mr. Cleveland, a St. John amateur, acquitted himself admirably in the difficult role of Belvawney.

Miss Hampton made a winsome Scotch lassie and on her appearance was presented with a beautiful bouquet, amid enrapturing applause.

Mrs. Godard played Minnie Symperson really well and she looked beautifully. This lady has a fine stage presence and there is little doubt will make her mark in her chosen profession in the near future. A magnificent basket of flowers was presented to this lady by admiring friends.

Mrs. Jamieson was received with hearty applause when she appeared as Mrs. MacFarlane and there was a perfect outburst of rejoicing when a splendid bouquet was also presented to her. Everyone in the house applauded and some cheered vigorously. Miss Hunter, who appeared with those engaged in the cast, in a farewell salute, was also the recipient of a beautiful bouquet.

The orchestra played "Auld Lang Syne" as the curtain slowly shut out from view the stage and the performers, and the Lansdowne season for 1889 was ended.

The Circuit Court.

The Criminal docket was taken up this morning as arranged and the Queen vs. Rolston for aggravated assault is now before the Court.

Solicitor general Pugsley is acting for the crown. A. A. Davis, Q. C. is defending.

The civill suit of McGrigor vs Harris which was unfinished last night will be resumed at the conclusion of the criminal business.

The jury returned a verdict of "guilty in re Queen vs Rolston; sentence was deferred.

The Equity Court.

Before His Honor Mr. Justice Palmer in the Equity Court this morning in re McLaughlin vs Shaw, Mr. A. C. Fairweather acting for the heirs of the estate of James Shaw, made application for a commission to take evidence, but as the Solicitor General, who appears for the executors, was engaged in the criminal cases before the Circuit Court to-day, the matter was postponed until to-morrow morning.

His Honor read his judgment in the Lewin and Howe matter. By his judgment an order for the sale of more land was refused and His Honor holds that the costs of the appeal to the Privy Council are a personal liability.

The Weather.

WASHINGTON, Aug16—Indications; Light local showers, slight changes in temperature, south westerly winds.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.—This morning about 5 o'clock Mrs Joseph Cain, whose husband keeps store on the corner of St. Andrews and Carmarthen streets, discovered a young fellow busily engaged in helping himself to a number of articles of their stock. The young fellow, who lives in that vicinity, hastily made his exit through the trap and escaped into the street. Besides the several articles a small sum of money was discovered to be missing. Later in the day the articles were returned and the affair settled up to the satisfaction of both parties. But can the matter rest here?

NOW AT MCADAM.—Wm. Foster who was committed for trial a few days ago at the city police court for working the shell and pea racket on a Queens County man and for whom $200 bail was found by John Chamberlain and James Duhlop appears to have left the city. Foster departed with the main street Baptist church picnic on Tuesday last up river. There he made for Welsford on the N. B. R. and yesterday he was seen at McAdam. Whether or not William will return to stand trial is as yet unknown, but as appearances go he deems it better to be on the safe side.

AUCTION AT THE EXHIBITION BUILDING.—This morning at the Exhibition building Auctioneer W. A. Lockhart sold the machinery, belts, pipes and other articles remaining on the premises after the late electric exhibition. Good prices were commanded and everything was disposed of.

WATCH STOLEN.—On Sunday last the steward of the schooner "Annie W. Akers had his watch stolen while the vessel was lying at the wharf, near Miller & Woodman's mill, above the falls. No proof has yet been found, as to who the thief could have been.

GOT AWAY WITH THE TOOLS.—Last night some unknown person entered the house of J J McGaffigan which is being erected on Princess street, and stole therefrom three saws belonging to the workmen.

THE WORK of sheathing the old deal sidewalks with spruce boards laid crosswise goes on apace at Indiantown.

THE DRAMATIC SEASON.

A RESUME OF THE WORK AT THE LANSDOWNE.

A Very Successful Season of Nine Weeks.—The Plays Produced and the Actors Who Made the Hits—Who the Members of the Lansdowne Theatre Company Are.—An Energetic Manager—The Orchestra.

When the curtain dropped upon the last act of "Engaged" at the Lansdowne theatre last night the dramatic season for 1889 at this theatre was brought to a close. This will be a matter of real regret, not only to the crowded house that was present in testimony of their appreciation of the beneficiaries of the evening, but to all others who have had occasion or opportunity to visit the theatre during the season and see the very excellent manner in which the various plays have been put on and performed by the management and members of the company. A short resume of the season's work will probably prove not uninteresting to all Lansdowne patrons and lovers of the drama generally, and will be a record for reference, if so required, for future use.

The personnel of the company and management with which the season opened, on June 17, 1889 is as follows:

LANSDOWNE THEATRE.

F. R. Fairweather, Lessee and Manager.
E A McDowell, Director of Amusements.

Ernest Sterner,	Stage Manager.
Scenic Artist,	William Gill.
Master Carpenter,	Alex. Rankine.

THE COMPANY.

Miss Percy Haswell	George Fawcett
Mary Hampton	T. D. Frawley
Carrie Jamieson	Ferd Hight
Bessie Hunter	John H. Bunny
Helen Mowat	D. R. Whipple
Alice Greame Godard	J. C. Edson
Linda Bainbridge	W. B. Hagan

Master Campbell Clarendon.

The theatre has been fully described in a former issue of the GAZETTE and it is but necessary to say now that the season opened with David Belasco's Madison Square success called "May Blossom" with a young lady who had never been seen here—Miss Percy Haswell—in the title role—a new leading lady and a new play. The test was satisfactory as applied, in respect to both, especially in regard to the lady who created a most favorable impression on her audience.

From the moment of her appearance, her first words, her sweet voice and clear, distinct articulation and her ladylike demeanor made it a certainty that she was and would remain an absolute favorite with the people of this city and no matter what luminary might shine, her light could not be dimmed and she could never be deposed from the high place she occupied in public regard. "May Blossom" was played June 17, 18 and 19, and at the matinee June 22, and again at the carnival matinee and on the evening of July 24th.

When this young lady made her last appearance on August 10, she was the recipient of a magnificent bouquet, and later on she was again called before the curtain and presented with an elegant floral token in the shape of a horseshoe, amid the delighted plaudits of the whole house.

"May Blossom" was followed on June 20, [illegible] This play, which was the medium of introducing another charming young lady, who is also a solid favorite in St. John Miss Mary Hampton, in the character of an American heiress in England, was persented again on the evening of July 16.

June 24th, 25th and 26th and matinee June 29th, The popular, military comed "Our Regiment" was performed. In this play the services of the Band of the 62nd Fusiliers and a company of soldiers rendered effective aid.

June 27, 28 and 29 and July 1st (holiday matinee) the grand scenic production of "The Two Orphans" was given. This play was again given July 26th for the last time.

July 1, 2 and 3 Daily's great comedy "The Big Bonanza".

July 4, 5 and 6 (Irwing's great success) "The Lyons Mail" in which real horses were introduced and driven across the stage.

There was no performance on July 8th, the theatre being closed out of respect for the memory of Mayor George A. Barker, whose funeral took place on this date.

July 9 and 10—The Windsor theatre success, "Gwynne's Oath," was produced in which Miss Hampton played the part of Gwynne most cleverly and was called before the curtain. Master Campbell Clarendon was distinguished in this play also. He was shown to be a most clever child. This play was repeated by request at a matinee 27 July.

July 11, 12 and 13 and matinee July 13—Great Scenic and dramatic production of Dicken's novel, David Copperfield, "Little Emily" was given.

July 15—Little Emily was repeated, by request and was again played on July 25 and 27th.

July 17, 18, 19, 20 and matinee July 20—The Colleen Bawn, which proved the play of the season and on which Mr. Bunny made a decided hit as Myles-na-Coppeleen and in which Mr. Sterner was a splendid success as Danny Mann.

In this production of the Colleen Bawn a large tank of real water was used for the first time in this city, and the regular header which Mr. Bunny, as Myles, took when plunging to the rescue of Eily (Miss Haswell) never failed to "bring down" the house and the applause when he holds her on his arm was loud and long. Miss Haswell, Mr. Bunning and Mr Sterner were on every presentation of the piece called before the curtain and then indeed all doubt possible as to the reality of the water was removed. This play occupied the boards until the 23rd July inclusive.

On July 29th Miss Fanny Reeves (Mrs. McDowell) began a special engagement and made her first appearance in the Lansdowne as Lady Teazle in "The School for Scandal" a play that is recognized as one of the English classics. Miss Reeves was greeted with a house crowded in every part, numbers being unable to obtain admission, and she fully merited the grand reception given her, by her graceful yet intense acting and her power of interpretation, making most effective many lines of the part that other actresses have usually slight or disregard entirely. This lady had been seen in St. John before and was always admired. The admiration was renewed during the present engagement and she continues until this last night most popular and holding a high place in the esteem of all who have seen her. She has played the principal roles of the different plays put on by the management since her engagement began.

These plays were:—

Aug. 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, Lester Wallack's great military comedy, Rosedale. A company of the 62 Battalion of Fusiliers rendered most efficient aid also in this play.

Aug. 5 and 6, Mrs. Langtry's Great Success, A. Wife's Peril.

Aug. 7,8,9 and 10 and matinee, "Pique."

Aug. 10, "The Shaughran," in which Mr. McDowell gave his ever pleasing impersonation of Conn, and in which Miss Haswell played Moya making her last appearance on its first presentation.

August 12 and 13—George Ohnet's great play: Le Maitre de Forges in its most successful English version—"Claire and the Forge Master."

August 14—Matinee and evening the favorite comedy—first time in many years—"Our Boys," which was given to a house crowded in every part.

August 15—The last night of the season, and the occasion of a grand complimentary benefit to Mr. and Mrs. E. A. McDowell; there was the double bill of "Uncle's Will" and "Engaged"—in which latter play a local amateur, Mr. G. M. Cleveland played the part of Belvawney.

On this occasion another bumper house witnessed the performance. The seats being all disposed of at an early hour last evening.

It will thus be seen that the Lansdowne company, under the management of Mr. McDowell, has done an enormous amount of hard work, which people generally, who see a play smoothly performed, have no idea of and as a matter of fact seldom think about. Days of earnest rehearsal after sleepless nights of hard and close study, have been the rule with every member of the Lansdowne company, but as they were all conscientious in respect of their work and desired but to please, they have all received their reward, so far as it may be considered reward, in the hearty applause and appreciation of all who have had the pleasure of seeing them in any of their performances.

Besides the ladies already named in this article there is the favorite of all favorite members of the company,—Mrs. Jamieson,—who to-day, in America at least, holds the high position of being the best on the stage, in her especial lines of "old lady." She is facile princeps and this is admitted on all sides. No higher testimony can be paid to the merit of Mrs Jamieson's ability, and she will always be accorded a hearty welcome in this city.

Miss Bessie Hunter is another lady whose work is always thorough and conscientious, and who contributed, by her clever work, her familiarity with society life and her ready intelligence, in a difficult situation many times, to relieve a situation, which might, without her, have been awkward, and thereby added materially to the success of every play in which she participated. She also is a favorite, and in her roles it would be difficult, indeed, to find her superior.

To Miss Helen Mowat, is due the tribute of unlimited praise as an actress of a very clever type. Every part this lady has played has been well done and while in a general way she will be remembered for the happy hit she made as Mrs Micawber, yet she will be specially recognized as giving a remarkable impersonation of Mrs. Candour in the "School for Scandal," a role which devolved upon her by the indisposition of Mrs. Jamieson, and a role for which she had only five hours given her to prepare. A similar instance of this lady's cleverness and ability was the playing of the part of "Moya," in the "Shaughraun," left vacant by the departure of the little favorite Miss Haswell. Miss Mowat, performed this part on the second performance of the play as cleverly as though she had been rehearsing it for weeks.

Mrs. Graeme-Godard is so well known in St. John as an amateur of especial merit that little can be said of what the public are not already aware. This lady has adopted the stage as a profession and made her first appearance here in that capacity with this company. She has [illegible] especially in "The Two Orphans" and as Duchess Sonnaz in "Moths."

Miss Linda Bainbridge too, though quite a child in point of years, gave a very satisfactory performance in every part allotted her. There is a bright future in store for this young lady.

Of the gentlemen of the Company it is almost unnecessary to say much beyond a general statement that they are all good and of a calibre that could not fail to score success. Some of them appeared for the first time in Saint John this season. Some of them have been here before and are well assured favorites in this city.

In the matter of seniority at least Mr. Ferd Hight, that conscientious performer and genial man, takes precedence. The various characters he has portrayed during the season, stamp him as an actor of a high order of excellence and his presence on the stage was always a guarantee of good, faithful work.

Mr. Geo. Fawcett, also gave a masterly performance in any part for which he was so well adapted. A heavy part such as Du Bosc in "The Lyons Mail" suited him well and he ever gave the part for all that was in it. His "Mathew Standish" in "Pique" was another specially good performance. He is a genial good fellow and "one of nature's noblemen."

Mr. John H Bunny is no stranger to St. John. He is a comedian of a high order, thorough in his work, does everything well and is one of the greatest favorites ever here.

Mr. T. D. Frawley, appeared in St. John for the first time, this season and in all the company there is not one who has taken better hold of the audiences than he. He has played "a thankless part" sometimes but he has ever done it justice, His clear voice and his distinctness of articulation made it ever a pleasure to see him in the cast.

Stage Manager Sterner, who is quite a young man has perhaps done more real solid hard work than any other member of the company outside of Mr. McDowell. Mr. Sterner came here a stranger but the successful manner in which he played every part entrusted to him, has endeared him to every theatre goer in the city. His performances were all good, and he was specially successful as Uriah Heep, Danny Mann and Fouinard the Chicken.

Mr. Whipple is another actor of merit who does his work quite acceptably. His Mr. Corrigan in "The Colleen Bawn" was perhaps one of his best characters.

Mr J. C. Edson, who is a Canadian by birth, had his best opportunity of the season in the part of Miles McKenna in "Rosedale" and he gave full satisfaction to the crowded houses that witnessed each performance of this play.

To Artist Gill, who labored behind the scenes but the beauty of whose work was seen from the front, a large measure of the success of the season is due; the special scenery and the particular beauty and completeness of the sets in "The Two Orphans" "Little Emily" "Moths" "School for Scandal" "Shaughraun" "Rosedale" "Claire and the Forge-master" and "The Colleen Bawn," (for which all new and special scenery was provided,) is due to his gentleman's taste and skill as well as to the well known ability and untiring energy of Director McDowell.

Yet another factor in the pleasure derived by all our Citizens and visitors, who have attended the Lansdowne during the season, is the excellent music furnished by the orchestra under the leadership of Mr. Morton L. Harrison. They have been untiring in their devotion to their work and must have played at least 200 pieces during their engagement. To Mr. Harrison's skill is due the orchestral arrangement of the dance music for the Minuet in the "School for Scandal" and the accompaniments of the various songs rendered during the season.

In conclusion it must be said that the citizens who have been favored with such a Dramatic treat this summer, are indebted directly for such a delight to the pluck, enterprise and perseverance of Mr. F. R. Fairweather, of this city, who is the Lessee and Manager. This gentleman has faith in the future of St. John and in its capacity to keep on a level with cities elsewhere of no greater population or extent. The venture has been a business one and Mr. Fairweather is to be congratulated on its success and on the fact that no accident or unpleasantness of any kind has occurred during the season of nine weeks which closed last night. It is earnestly hoped he will repeat this success next summer and in doing so bring back every member of the present company, each of whom likes St. John, likes our people and now leaves us with profound regret.

BONAPARTIST BANQUET.

BOULANGER'S NAME GREETED WITH ACCLAMATIONS.

The Speech made by General Dallarall, who Presided was received with Cheers and Cries of "Vive Boulanger."

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—A grand Bonapartist banquet was given here last night, at which 1000 persons were present. Every mention of the name of Boulanger by the speakers was greeted with acclamations.

Gen. Du Barail presided. In his speech he said that Boulanger alone among the Republicans remained faithful to the national traditions of the plebiscite. What could be conceived more odious? he asked, "than the traitorous judiciary trap called a trial by the High Court of the senate as an old soldier he felt wounded in his millitay honor upon seeing an officer and high dignity of the Legion of Honor, after serving his country for thirty years put in the balance against the evidence of swindlers and abject spies? Never before had such a humiliation been inflicted upon the army. Everything was compromised; justice, the magistracy, and the national finance. "Those domineering us, he said, "understand naither their perils nor our pride. Let us with strong hearts make violent efforts to deliver ourselves." At the conclusion of his speech there were cheers and repeated shouts of "Vive Boulanger,"
