Contest will close on November 15th, 1911, and as soon as possible thereafter, prizes will be awarded.

Be sure and get a copy of our Contest Circular, telling all about the contest. Ask your dealer for one or use the attached coupon, if you find it more convenient.

In writing us, mention whether you have received your copy of "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete," a profusely-illustrated 150-page book, which tells you how to build with concrete, so that you can do much of the work yourself. It's a mighty handy and useful book, and should save you many a dollar. Farmers who have received it, say it is splendid. Write to-night and it will go back to you with Prize Contest Folder, by return mail.

Foreign Secretary Leaves to Dominion Question of Rush-Bagot Treaty.

A despatch from London says: Sir Edward Grey, Foreign Secretary, replied in the negative to Rowland Hunt, M.P.'s, question in the Commons on Wednesday as to whether he was aware the United States were making a naval station on Lake Michigan, and whether this was a breach of the Rush-Bagot treaty, and whether any communication had been received from the Canadian Government concerning the United States still continuing to break in threefold the Bagot treaty.

Sir Edward Grey added:—"I cannot make any promise about this matter without an opportunity for communication with the Canadian Government. Their interests are mainly affected by any question connected with the Rush-Bagot treaty. I would deprecate being pressed for answers to this House which I would have to give without consultation with the Canadian Government, with whom I am keeping in the closest touch."

Mr. Hunt—Will the Right Hon. gentleman inquire of the Canadian Government whether the statement is a fact?

Sir Edward Grey—The Canadian Government will keep us fully informed of their wishes.

Mr. Hunt—Will or will not the Right Hon. gentleman call the attention of the Canadian Government to the matter and ask whether they are willing that the treaty should be broken?

Sir Edward Grey—No, sir. I propose to leave to the Canadian Government the initiative in matters which concern directly its own interest, and to show our regard for our desire to act in harmony, sympathy and co-operation with them by not making statements about what they may or may not wish.

HAY SHORTAGE IN BRITAIN.

Opportunity for Canadian Exporters to Extend Connection.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Department of Trade and Commerce has received a cable from the Canadian High Commissioner containing the information that the Board of Agriculture will shortly issue returns indicating that the hay and root crops of Great Britain were only 75 per cent. of the usual total. Consequently feed will be very scarce this winter. Canadian hay was selling for 90s to 95s per ton, with prospects of a further rise. Canada and the United States are practically the only outside sources of supply, as the imports from all European countries are prohibited owing to foot and mouth disease. Belgium has made inquiries in the United Kingdom for supplies, and it is quite probable that other European countries are also short in their expected supply.

VEGETABLE DIET BEATS MEAT

Brothers Demonstrate the Relative Value of Foods.

A despatch from Denver, Col., says: That vegetables are more nourishing than meat is being made evident by Jesse Buffum and Warren H. Buffum, brothers, who are walking across the continent as an experiment under the direction of Harvard University. They proceeded from here on their journey toward the Pacific Coast on Wednesday. One is eating meat and the other vegetables. They arrived in Denver on Tuesday night and slept on the roof of a local hotel. They have not slept in a bed since they started from Boston, they say. When they started west there was only three pounds difference in their weights. Warren Buffum, the vegetable eater, is now fifteen pounds heavier than his brother.

MONUMENT TO KING EDWARD

Sum of $60,000 Already Collected in Montreal.

A despatch from Montreal, says: At a meeting of the Board on Control on Thursday afternoon, a letter was read from Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, chairman of the committee, which is collecting funds for the erection of a monument to King Edward XII., stating that $60,000 had already been collected and suggesting a civic grant of $5,000. The board recommended such a grant.

ONTARIO'S SUBSIDY GROWS.

A despatch from Toronto says: Ontario's subsidy from the Federal Government will be increased by $270,000 as a result of the growth of population shown by the recent census. As the population now exceeds 2,500,000, however, the rate of payment will be reduced from 80 cents to 60 cents a head. Until 1907 the subsidy was paid at the rate of 80 cents a head on the basis of the population in 1861. At the Provincial Conference of 1907, however, it was arranged that the subsidy should always be calculated upon the population as indicated by the last previous census. Until the present it has been paid on the number of people in Ontario in 1901. The increased subsidy will be paid for the first time next year.

WOLVES NEAR COCHRANE.

Section Boss on Transcontinental Was Visited.

A despatch from Cochrane, says: The work of the section boss on the Transcontinental is not merely a matter of watching the track. The section boss at eighty-four, about fourteen miles east of Cochrane, was visited in his shack by a pack of about twenty timber wolves, who killed his two dogs and devoured to the last ounce an old cache of meat left by the railroad contractors. He shot one with his rifle. The next day he had to climb a telegraph pole to escape the attentions of the same pack. The fact that there are no red deer in the country may account for the ferocity of the wolves.

STATE TERMINAL ELEVATORS.

Government Will Shortly Discuss Demands of the West.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Government will shortly take into consideration the demand of the west for state ownership of the terminal elevators at the head of the lakes. The cost of taking over the elevators is variously estimated at from eight to fourteen millions.

SHORTAGE OF MILK.

There is More Money in It Than in Wheat.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: A serious shortage of milk exists about the city. The Health and Food Department is advising farmers that they can make more money out of milk than they can out of wheat.

BITTER ATTACK ON BRITAIN

Inflammatony References to Mr. Lloyd George's Morocco Speech.

A despatch from Berlin, says: During the course of the debate in the Reichstag on Thursday Herr Basserman, the National-Liberal leader, insisted upon the Reichstag's constitutional rights and raised the question of amending the constitution in the direction of Ministerial responsibility. The debate called out many sharp attacks upon Britain, where were greeted with applause by the house and galleries. The chief attack was made by Herr Von Heydebrand and was astonishingly bellicose. Referring to Chancellor Lloyd George's well-remembered speech, he said that Germany now knows where to find the enemy. "Germans," he continued, "are not accustomed to submit to such things. The German people will give a German answer to this English question. The Government will know what answer to give when the hour comes. When it comes is for the Government to say, but its duty is to decide for the honor of the German nation. We Germans will be ready to make whatever sacrifices are necessary." (Long continued applause). The Persident of the Chamber had to beg the members to retain from their demonstrations. The speaker went on: "I can declare in behalf of all my political friends that we are ready when honor requires to make sacrifices not only of blood, but of treasure. We are ready to makt such sacrifices whenever demanded."

PEAT AS FUEL.

Canadian Pacific Railway May Take Over Government Lands.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has opened negotiations with the Mines Branch of the Government to purchase its entire peat plant at Alfred, Ontario. The company desires to continue the industry on commercial lines, and supply the City of Montreal in particular with peat fuel. It regards the success of the Government experiments as incontrovertible proof that peat production in Canada has now become a commercial enterprise of much importance.

TRADE WITH SOUTH AMERICA

Direct Steamship Line and Trade Agents Promised.

A despatch from Montreal says: George F. Johnston, who has been working to arouse the Canadian manufacturers to go after the trade of South America, is back from Ottawa with the assurance from the Minister of Trade and Commerce that, if the merchants show that they are after the trade, he will provide a direct South American steamship service, and will appoint a trade commissioner in each of the South American countries.

STEAMERS IN COLLISION.

The Empress of Britain Collides With a Steamer.

A despatch from Liverpool says: The Canadian Pacific Steamship Company's steamer Empress of Britain arrived here on Friday afternoon after being in collision with a local steamer off Calf of Man, a small island in the Irish Sea near the southwest extremity of the Isle of Man, on Friday morning. The liner sustained very little damage, but the other vessel was less fortunate and put into harbor in the Isle of Man in a waterlogged condition.

ZERO WEATHER IN DAKOTA.

Much Wheat and Flax in Fields Yet Unthreshed.

A despatch from Minot, N.D., says: Threshing in North-western North Dakota, where thousands of acres of flax and wheat lie in the fields unthreshed, is at a standstill as the result of the heavy fall of snow. The thermometer on Friday morning registered 9 degrees below zero, which is said to be a new record for this time of the year in the State.

DRAGON FLAG IS LOWERED

Fuchow Taken—Growing Excitement in Forbidden City.

A despatch from Hong Kong, says: Canton, the capital of Kwangtung province, and the largest city in China, formally declared its independence at noon on Thursday, when the Dragon flag was lowered and a salute in honor of the new Government was fired. Canton is a manufacturing centre especially for silks, fireworks and wood and iron wares. The city's trade in 1908 exceeded $55,000,000. It has a good waterworks system, which was constructed by British engineers at a cost of over $1,500,000, and also an electric lighting system. The city has now a population of 1,900,000 and dates back 2,700 years.

A despatch from Amoy, China, says: The city of Fuchow, capital of Fokien province, is in the hands of the revolutionists. After taking it they wiped out the entire Manchu district. The foreign settlements have not been disturbed, but fires have broken out in several sections of the native city, threatening its destruction. Fuchow is one of the most important cities in the south, having a population of 700,000. It is a great commercial centre, and the seat of a naval arsenal, Government shipyards, a mint, a school of navigation and a large drydock.

A despatch from Pekin, says: The excitement is growing. The residents of the Forbidden City are taking in great quantities of rice and other stores. Fifteen hundred infantry and 500 cavalry of the Manchu First Division, who fled from Shikia, after the assassination of General Wu Lu Cheng, arrived here on Thursday and entered the city. The Legations consider that all hope for the Manchu dynasty has vanished.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, NOVEMBER 19.

Verse 15. Gathered them—The previous part of the chapter is devoted to a list of the heads of the fathers' houses, who went up with Ezra to Jerusalem. Ezra's first step was to assemble his company on the banks of one of the artificial rivers, or canals, in the neighborhood of Babylon, at a place called Ahava. This enabled him to make a review of his forces before actually beginning his march. The interval of three days, lasting from the ninth to the twelfth of the first month, gave him time to secure the services of Levites.

The sons of Levi—Zerubbabel brought back with him 4,289 priests, of whom only 74 were Levites. Ezra has difficulty in obtaining even fewer. The reason seems to have been their absorption in the service of the high places, and other forms of idolatrous worship. In the later reforms this class took a prominent place. They were chosen men of patriotic impulse and religious spirit, who were willing to sacrifice their position in order to serve God.

16. Then sent I for Eliezer — The proposition here has a peculiar value, the meaning being, apparently, not that Ezra summons these leading men into his presence befor sending them upon a definite mission, although the English says so much; but, that he actually commissioned them, on the spot, the following verse giving the details of their mission. The marginal reading of verse 17, "I gave them commandment," is in that case preferable to I sent them forth.

17. Iddo—He held some position of authority, perhaps over the young Levites, and Nethinim (a body of temple servants who were detailed to do the more menial tasks, such as drawing water and hewing wood). At Casiphia, a small settlement in the vicinity of Babylon, there may have been a kind of college of these young men. We need not suppose, however, that Iddo belonged to this second class of mere drudgers. The text is difficult at this point. But the meaning must be that Iddo presided over all these young men, the brethren mentioned being the Levites.

18. The good hand of our God upon us—This is a frequently occurring phrase in the chronicles of these times. It signifies the merciful favor of God. In times of adversity, the hand of God is represented as turned against his people. It is looked upon as a providential occurrence that a man of discretion (which, as the margin suggests, may be the name, Ishsechel, of this otherwise unnamed descendant of Levi), together with thirty-eight Levites and two hundred and twenty Nethinim (19 and 20), are found to accompany the Jews on their journey. Although these were all mentioned by name on the list before the writer, he does not think it worth while to take up space with their names.

21-36. Events of the journey, including preparations, and a description of the journey itself, and the arrival at Jerusalem.

21. A fast—That it was a strictly spiritual exercise is evident in the language used to describe its purpose. It was a symbol of humble submission before God, a season of prayer for a course free from dangers and hindrances.

22. A band of soldiers—Such as Nehemiah had (Neh. 2. 9). The enemy in the way was not any specific foe, like the Samaritans, but bands of robbers in the desert. Ezra had confidence that, if they sought the Lord with faithful hearts, they would need no help of kings and armies, for the Omnipotent hand would be upon them for good. The great leader had already intimated this to the king. If now they were unequal to their foes, it would be an evidence of the wrath of God turned against them for forsaking him.

24. Twelve . . . priests—It is difficult to decide which is meant, whether that priests mean Levites (margin), and that there were twelve of them, including Sherebiah and Hashabiah, who have already been mentioned as Levites; or, that there were twenty-four in all, one group consisting of twelve priests, besides (margin) which there were the two Levites named and ten others.

25. Weighed—Money was reckoned largely by weight. The offering of silver and gold and vessels, made by the king and others, has already been described in Ezra 7. 15-19. The sum has been estimated at about five million dollars.

28. Holy unto Jehovah—The priests and Levites were by this act separated unto the sacred service of the Lord's house. The solemnity of this votive offering was intensified by an appeal to their hereditary connections. The mere mention of the God of their fathers would cause their memories to turn back upon a past in which the hand of God was evident.

29. Watch ye, and keep them — They are precious treasures, consecrated to a high purpose, and are to be vigilantly and jealously guarded.

Chambers—Storerooms (1 Kings 6. 5) connected with the outer buildings of the temple.

31. Departed . . . on the twelfth day—The actual march did not, therefore, begin until this day. Ahava was simply a convenient place of assembling and taking preliminary steps for the long journey. The first month was Nisan and corresponds to our March-April.

32. We came to Jerusalem—This was on the first day of the fifth month, or about the middle of July. In all about 108 days were consumed in going a distance of not less than 900 miles. It was in the midst of the heated term, the company was large and the caravan was heavy.

33. Weighed . . . into the hand of Meremoth—He and his three companions were doubtless chosen by the leaders to receive the offerings, after carefully determining if they corresponded with the written lists, and to convey them to the treasury. There were two priests and two Levites, corresponding to the two groups commissioned by Ezra. The number (34) of the vessels and gifts, and the weight of the silv and gold were exactly inventorie and the list preserved.

36. They furthered the people — This was a new turn in events. It was a great thing to have officials like the satraps, and governors beyond the River Euphrates, helping instead of hindering. The royal decree determined everything. The king's commissions are set forth in Ezra 7. 21-24.

LUMBER IMPORTATIONS.

Ruling of Customs Board Aimed at Alleged Evasions.

A despatch from Ottawa says: An alleged evasion of the Customs act is aimed at in a ruling of the Dominion Customs Board on Friday in regard to lumber importations. Lumber dressed on one side only comes in free, but when also dressed on the edge it is subject to a duty of twenty-five per cent. The Canadian Lumbermen's Association claims that the Americans after dressing the lumber on the side and edge afterwards roughen the latter slightly to qualify under the free classification. Collectors are instructed to closely inspect all shipments and apply the duty to lumber edged in any way in addition to being dressed on one side.

The Ontario Gazette contains notice that the sale of snipe, quail, woodcock and partridge is prohibited for three years. from Sept. 15th last.

In 1875 there were 6,185 licenses granted in the Province of Ontario. To-day there are about 1,187. Involved in the present local option contests are 259 licenses.

The London Free Press of Friday last stated that Rev. Mr. Dewey of that city had declined the invitation of the James street church, Exeter, although he had previously accepted it.

Rev. Kettlewell preached in James St. Methodist church on Sunday. The sermons were in keeping with Temperance work, the day being set apart for that purpose in many of the churches.

Now that the streets are getting muddy drivers of delivery rigs and farmers as well are taking to the sides of the road and spoiling the lawns of many of our citizens. The road is the place for all rigs.

A mild summer day on Saturday, followed by a rain Saturday evening, which turned to snow and wind and frost on Sunday, was all that was necessary to usher in a real old time winter. Monday was a really cold day.

A new provincial loan of nine million dollars will be authorized by the Ontario Government at the first session of the new legislature. The new loan will be a domestic one, to be floated in Ontario at four per cent. It will be free from succession duties.

An exchange says the biggest trust on earth is country newspapers. It trusts everyone, gets cussed for trusting, mistrusted for cussing, and if it busts for trusting, gets cussed for busting. There is only one way to bust the trust—pay your subscription.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Gordon of Ottawa, evangelists, begin special services in connection with the two Methodist churches here on Sunday next The work of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon is very highly spoken of and it is expected that a great and good work will be accomplished.

The amended Act passed March 19th, 1910, does not repeal the annual tax of $1 for a dog, Consolidated Stat., Chap. 271, but the words "and $2 for a bitch" are repealed, and these words are substituted therefor, "if only one and $2 for each additional dog, and The tax, therefore, on the first dog is $1.

Six comets, three of which have been quite recently seen with the naked eye are now within the neighborhood of the sun. One of the two brightest ones has been visible just after sunset, north of the sunset point. It has a bright head and a tail about seven degrees long The second is said to be brighter than the famous Halley's comet, and was discovered last July.

Mr. George Moir, who returned from Crystal City, Man., last week is among the many who speak in high praise of the West and thinks the possibilities for the young man who wishes to go farming much exceed anything he has ever seen. He is very much taken up with the western mode of farming and says if he were to start farming again it would be in the West.

The entertainment given in Caven Presbyterian church, under the auspices of the Young Men's class, on Wednesday evening of last week was a high class affair and was well attended. Mrs. Jeanette Jewell Kellogg, elocutionist of Buffalo, gave several choice selections which were greatly appreciated and heartily applauded, as were also the solos by Miss Edna Follick and Miss Murray and the instrumentals of Messrs H. Steer and Latimer Grieve.

The Clinton News Record says —It has been reported that the title of The Hensall Observer is to be made more imposing by the addition of the Blake Advertiser, Kippen Globe, Varna Chronicle and Hillsgreen Standard. It is hoped by this means, so the rumor runs, that local patriotism will be so tickled that the whole countryside will run in to subscribe without regard to quality or quantity of news or any other consideration whatsoever that appeals to the level-headed citizen."

Several important amendments to the the criminal code will be authorized at the next session of Parliament, if the recommendations of the newly organized association of police magistrates of Ontario count for anything. At present the magistrates have power in certain cases to impose a six months' term of imprisonment, while should the prisoner desire to be tried before a county judge he may be given two years for precisely the same offence. The limitation of authority of magistrates has had the effect materially of lessening the number of offenders of a certain class, who fully aware of this phase of the law, prefer to have their cases tried in the police court rather than by a judge. Another important ammendment which will be suggested is a clause making it a criminal offence to "jump" a board bill. Heretofore offenders of this class have been amenable only to the civil law. If the unlawful evasion of board bills is placed on a similar plane to the law in Michigan there will be considerable less complaint from hotel keepers and others on this score.

Mrs. Cudmore is much taken up with Vancouver and thinks the climate of that city ideal. She also visited a son in Alberta and a daughter in Crystal City, Man.

THE BUSINESS HEN.—The hen that is going to do the heavy laying the coming winter was hatched early last spring. During December and January pullets usually lay about four times as many eggs as an equal number of hens One of the United States experiment stations made a year's laying test, beginning with pullets and one and two year-old hens, giving each of the three lots equal advantages. The pullets laid about twice as many eggs as the two-year-old hens, while the second lot had a record about half-way between. In rare cases a hen may pay for her keeping after she is two years old.

GUY BROS. MINSTRELS—Everybody enjoys a good minstrel show, and this season Mr. George R. Guy has certainly got a first-class one, which he will present in the Opera House, Exeter, this Wednesday evening, Nov. 15th. No expense has been spared to secure the very best people, of which there are 35 in the company, and everyone a singer, dancer, acrobat, comedian or musician. The Olio consists of two big acts that will please old and young. The orchestra is the best on the road to-day. Do not miss seeing the only real minstrel show on the road to-day. Prices 35 and 50 cents.

Mrs. A A. Ericson, nee Loraine Hooper, of Rochester, N. Y., is here this week attending the funeral of Mr. William G. Bissett, and Miss Mary Alberta Snell.

Guy Bro's Minstrels who appeared in the Opera House on Wednesday night of last week put on a very fair show, quite well worth the price of admission. The house was well filled and those in attendance were well satisfied with the evening's entertainment. The tenor soloist, the contortionist "Zello the Frog," are hard to beat, while the bunch of musicians is first class. The orchestra, particularly, is a good one, and is seldom excelled in Exeter. It is several years since Guy Bros. visited our town, and we hope the flattering reception they received, will induce them to return regularly.

The rebellion in China and danger to missionaries there, suggests reference to the number of missionaries in that country. Within the bounds of the the Chinese Empire there are 4,600 Protestant missionaries, with their wives, and 4,501 Roman Catholic missionaries There are 41 American and Canadian foreign missionary societies carrying on work in China, represented in that country at the present time by over 1,080 foreign missionaries. The American missionaries occupy 252 places, including the principal great cities of China. Among the largest societies named as carrying on work in China is the missionary society of the Methodist church, Canada, with headquarters in Toronto, with a total of 93 missionaries in the field.

HICK'S FORECASTS FOR NOV.—A reactionary storm period is central on the 27th, 28th and 29th. This period comes under the influence of the Mercury equinox and will most probably bring storms of autumnal rain and wind, merging into sleet and snow, as storm areas advance from west to east. There are no unusual reasons to expect abnormal storms, and the month of November promises to bring more than an average of fair and pleasant weather. The precipitation of rain and snow will be below the average, generally. The storm period will, however, be distinctly marked by the regular changes, with more or less rain, sleet and snow. The month will close with Mercurial cloudiness and much colder, threatening weather.

DEATH OF LIDA QUANCE.—Early Thursday morning the people of Exeter were sadly surprised to learn of the demise of Lida Quance, daughter of the late William Quance. Heart trouble was the cause of death, her serious illness only extending from the previous Saturday, although she had been ailing for some time. It was expected, however, that her youthful energy would have enabled her to shake off the fell destroyer, but it turned out otherwise and she sank very rapidly at last. The deceased, who was aged 28 years, 1 month and 18 days, was a general favorite and was an ever welcome visitor to any circle. She was of nice appearance, lady-like in manner; energetic and industrious and always cheerful. In her position as milliner she made many warm friends where ever she held positions, and all will mourn deeply her early demise. The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon to the Exeter Cemetery. Besides her mother she is survived by three sisters—Mrs. Wesley Lamport of Stephen; Olive of Allsa Craig, and Laverna of Saskatoon, Sask., all of whom have the sympathy of their many friends.

DEATH OF MRS. GEORGE BISSETT—On Thursday morning last a telegram was received here that Mrs. George Bissett of Winnipeg, Man., was very low and not expected to recover, followed a few hours latter by another announcing her death, having died at the Winnipeg City Hospital where she underwent a critical operation on November 2nd, for the removal of a tumor. The deceased had been in her usual health up to a short time previous to the operation hence her sudden and unexpected demise will not only come as a shock but will be deeply regretted by many both here and in Winnipeg. Deceased was a daughter of the late John Sanders and was born in Exeter in the year 1863, consequently she was 48 years of age. Shortly after her twentieth year she married her now bereft husband, who, together with a family of three sons and one daughter, are left to mourn her demise—Harry and Grover of Winnipeg, Will, of Crystal City, and Miss Millie of Winnipeg. She is also survived by her mother who resides in Winnipeg, four sisters and two brothers—Mrs. Wm. Down, Mrs. M. Morgan, Mrs. Lindsey and Miss Emma, William J. and Samuel Sanders, all living in the west. The greater part of deceased's life was spent in Exeter, having resided here up to the time the family moved to Winnipeg, which was about seven years ago. Mrs. Bissett was of a bright, cheerful and hopeful disposition, kind hearted and true and her sudden demise is deeply regretted by all who knew her. Interment took place at Winnipeg.

FARMER MEETS WITH BAD ACCIDENT

Mr. Samuel Cudmore of Usborne met with an unfortunate accident at his home on Monday morning last, by which he was badly mangled up. He has a cement tile manufacturing machine and in some manner he got caught in the machinery, with the result that both bones of the right leg are broken above the ankle, his right shoulder joint and shoulder blade are broken, the whole shoulder being mangled, the side of the head and body are badly bruised. The injuries caused by a chain which became wound around his body, are very many. His physician was immediately summoned and the injuries cared for. The patient is doing as well as can be expected, but he will be confined to his room for a long time.

LETTER FROM UTAH BY F. H. NEIL

Mr F. H. Neil, who, several weeks ago, left Biddulph to spend the winter in Utah, in writing to the Advocate from Salt Lake City, under date of November 16th in part says.—We get the London Free Press every day, as well as several stock papers, but there is none of them like the Advocate and we should miss it very much were it not to arrive. Our weather has been beautiful till last Saturday, when we had two inches of snow, which went off again, but it rained last night and it is trying to snow some more to-day, but it isn't cold. The fall flowers are still in bloom and everybody seems surprised to see snow so early. Last year the first snow fell Dec. 22; but it often snows up on the mountains around the city, when there isn't even rain in the valley. They grow quite a lot of fruit in Utah—in fact the way they are planting out orchards it will be only a matter of time when this will be the banner fruit state in apples, pears, peaches, quince, plums, apricots, cherries, prunes and all small fruits. Oranges are grown in the southern part of the state. The elevation of Salt Lake City is about 4200 feet above sea level. Further south they are growing the finest of peaches on a 6400 ft. level, and then you drop down to what they call the tropic countries, which gets pretty hot, and it is there that the oranges and other California fruits are grown in such abundance. The chief crops grown in Central and Northern Utah are the same as we grow in Ontario with the exception that they do not grow as much timothy or clover, but they do grow a large amount of Lucerne clover as they cut three crops a year and it yields a large tonnage. They also grow a large acreage of sugar beets, as there are, I believe, eight large sugar factories in Utah. There are still hundreds of thousands of acres of the finest of land, which has been lying idle, growing only sage brush which the State is providing water for and opening up to settlers under the Cary Act; and some file on streams of water and locate the land adjoining it under the Desert Act. Business is not as good in general in the West, nor as far as I can learn, in any of the States as it is in Canada. Their system of government does not compare in any way with our Canadian system, as they have a tendency to keep the business interests in a very unsettled condition owing to political agitation of one kind or another. At all times crops were good this year and prices are also good. I will send you an occasional Salt Lake paper so as you will be able to compare the market reports. There are several large papers printed here, some Gentile and some Mormon. Utah as a state has a majority of Mormon population, although Salt Lake City, according to statistics has only 40 per cent Mormon. The city at present has a population of about 100,000, and is a fine business centre. It will, I think, be only a matter of time until it will be one of the four prominent cities in the U. S., viz.—New York, Chicago, Salt Lake City and San Francisco. They have some very fine buildings here. Hotel Utah is credited with being the most handsome and and one of the best equipped hotels on the American continent; and they are just building the foundation of a twenty one story office building. I expect to travel through Idaho, Oregon and probably California in my stock business this winter, although our home will be in Salt Lake City. We are all in excellent health and I believe this to be a very healthy climate. My family enjoy it very much, and I think when they return to "Maple Avenue" next summer they will carry the most pleasant memories of their winter visit in Utah with them.

F. H. Neil.

GRANTON—John Dewan, who has been farming just west of here for several months, has received word of his appointment by the Provincial Government as supervisor of the asylum farm at Brockville. He will take up his duties immediately.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Wharf at Goderich, Ont., will be received at this office until 4.00 P. M. on Monday, December 11, 1911, for the construction of a wharf at Goderich, Huron County, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of J. G. Sing., Esq., District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont. H. J. Lamb, Esq., District Engineer, Windsor, Ont., and on application to the Postmaster at Goderich, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and place of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary

Department of Public Works,

EXETER COUNCIL

Special meeting of the Council held at the Town Hall, Nov. 9th. Members all present except Mr. Walper. Day—Rivers—That the Council as a body attend the funeral of the late W. G. Bissett, Saturday, Nov. 11, and to meet at the Town Hall at 10 o'clock a. m., and from there proceed to the house.—Carried.

Council met in Town Hall Nov. 18th. Members all present, excepting Mr. Walper. Minutes of two former meetings were read and approved. Communication was read from Mr. F. W. Farncomb, re. water for domestic purposes. On motion of Rivers and Levett same was ordered filed. Mr. Thos. Harvey waited on the Council, asking if something could not be done to have some kind of a cheap switch run from the G. T. FARQUHAR.

Death of Mrs. Cameron.—Another of the oldest and most esteemed residents of Usborne has passed to her reward in the person of Mrs. John Cameron, who died on Monday last at the age of 86 years. Deceased has since the death of her husband about ten years ago, been residing with her sister, Mrs. John Cameron, and has enjoyed her usual good health until only a very short time previous to her demise, when a general breaking up of the system set in and the vital cord was snapped. Mrs. Cameron was a native of Scotland and on arriving in this country first settled in Dalhousie, and between forty and fifty years ago came to the Township of Usborne, and has continuously resided here since. Deceased was kind-hearted and true and esteemed by all who knew her. The funeral took place yesterday to the Exeter cemetery.

THE SHADOW OF POOR HEALTH

Dispelled Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

When the shadow of poor health falls on your life, when hope begins to fade and friends look serious, then is the time you should remember that thousands just as hopeless have been cured and restored to the sunshine of health by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich blood which brings a glow of health to anaemic cheeks, cures indigestion, headaches and backaches, drives out the stinging pains of rheumatism and neuralgia, strengthens the nerves and relieves as no other medicine can do the aches and pains which only women folk suffer from. In any emergency of poor health give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and they will not disappoint you. Here is a case that will bring hope to many a weary sufferer. Mrs. F. K. Sanders, St. Thomas, Ont., says: "About four years ago I took a serere cold which I neglected, thinking that I would soon be all right again. But instead I found myself in a weak and run-down condition. I seemed to have no ambition to do anything and my heart and nerves became so bad I was forced to bed. The doctor who was called in said the trouble was chronic anaemia, but in spite of all his skilled attendance I was unable to sit up and eat, but had to be fed with a spoon. One day a visiting friend suggested my trying Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I sent for a half dozen boxes. In a short while I began to eat better and feel better, and by the time the pills were used I felt altogether different; my heart did not bother me, my lips and cheeks regained their natural color, and everybody who saw me remarked on how well I was once more looking. Wishing to be on the safe side, I took two more boxes of the pills, which made a complete cure, as I have had neither ache nor pain since, and I now weigh 146 pounds. I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I hope that this letter may be the means of suggesting relief to many of my sisters who suffer as I did."

Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Pill for All Seasons.—Winter and summer, in any latitude, whether in torrid zone or Arctic temperature, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills can be depended upon to do their work. The dyspeptic will find them a friend always and should carry them with him everywhere. They are made to withstand any climate and are warranted to keep their freshness and strength. They do not grow stale, a quality not possessed by many pills now on the market.

No doubt there are cheerful givers—but did you ever see one?

A MODEL SCHOOL HOUSE.

A school building in which every room has a direct connection with the ground, without first entering the main hall has just been built just beside the site o the famous Collingwood, Ohio, school in which 175 children perished by fire in 1908. It represents many unique features of construction and is said to be as fireproof and panic-proof as it is possible for a school building to be.

PERPETUAL MOTION MACHINE

A Pupil of Sir Hiram Maxim Has Success.

Perpetual motion is a recognized impossibility, but a quality that nearly approaches it is claimed for the invention of a twenty-two-year-old Englishman. He has obtained a patent for a motor which, he asserts, will run as long as its iron and steel last. The young man's name is Stanley J. Hitchcock and he lives in a London suburb.

"The Patent Office would not accept the title 'Perpetual Motion,'" he said, "and it is right, for perpetual motion in its ordinary sense is impossible. My machine is therefore called a self-acting motor." There is no limit to its power and it will continue to run until it falls to pieces. Its principle is magnetism, and the secret of the discovery lies in the shape of the magnets, which makes them grow stronger the more they are used. The motor revolves in response to the same forces that make the world go round.

"From experiments made as a boy with penny magnets, milk cans, and fittings from incandescent gas jets, my father encouraged me and sent me as a pupil to Sir Hiram Maxim. There I worked in the laboratory.

"The machine can be fitted up in private houses and used to work a dynamo and so supply electric light, work the lift or sewing machine, do the cooking or pumping, or anything required of it at no cost at all.

"Its power is unlimited, and it could be built inside the ordinary motor omnibus bonnet. The only cost after installation is for lubrication."

MOTHER'S PRAISE FOR BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Every mother who has once used Baby's Own Tablets readily admits that there is no other medicine to equal them. They are a never failing cure of all stomach and bowel complaints and many a precious little babe owes health and even life itself to their use. Concerning the Tablets Mrs. Fred Dove, Broadview, Sask., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my little girl and have found them of such great benefit I would not be without them. They are truly a wonderful remedy for little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

COMMERCIAL SUICIDE.

"Wombat has retired from business."

"Voluntarily?"

"I suppose so. He stopped advertising."

They Soothe Excited Nerves. — Nervous affections are usually attributable to defective digestion, as the stomach dominates the nerve centres. A course of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will still all disturbances of this character, and by restoring the stomach to normal action relieve the nerves from irritation. There is no sedative like them and in the correction of irregularities of the digestive processes, no preparation has done so effective work, as can be testified to by thousands.

CANAL OF STEEL.

In connection with the Nile irrigation system at Wadi Kom-Ombo there has been constructed a canal of steel, five thousand two hundred feet in length, whereby water from the service reservoir is distributed to the earth canals. In section this metallic canal is U-shaped, twenty feet broad and twelve feet deep. It is made up of seventeen sections, connected by expansion joints, and the riveted stel plates of which it consists are six millimeters in thickness. During the construction the engineers were troubled among other things by the unequal expansion of the metal. The expansion was greatest on the side where the sun happened to shine full upon the plates and the inequality was often sufficient to displace the end of a section about to be joined as much as four inches to one side or the other.

THEY ACT QUICKLY AND ALWAYS CURE

POSTMASTER TELLS OF QUICK RELIEF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS GIVE.

Two of them taken before going to bed clears away his Pain in the Back—Why they always cure more serious Kidney Diseases.

Buck Lake, Ont., Nov. 20 (Special).—How quickly Dodd's Kidney Pills relieve pain in the back when taken in time is evidenced by Mr. James Thomas, the well-known and highly respected postmaster here.

"I wish to inform you that I always find relief for pain in the back by taking Dodd's Kidney Pills," says Postmaster Thomas. "Sometimes in the mornings I cannot straighten up for hours, but if I take two Dodd's Kidney Pills before going to bed the pain all disappears and I have no trouble in the morning."

Dodd's Kidney Pills act directly on the Kidneys. Where pain in the back is caused by slight Kidney disorders the pain is relieved at once. Where the complaint is of longer standing and the Kidneys are diseased the cure takes longer, but Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail. Thousands of Canadians tell of the cure of Kidney Disease of all forms, from pain in the back to Bright's Disease, by Dodd's Kidney Pills. There is not on record a single case of Kidney Disease or of diseases resulting from diseased Kidneys, such as Rheumatism or Dropsy, which Dodd's Kidney Pills have failed to cure if taken regularly and according to directions.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Even in the darkest hour there are only minutes.

Some men marry for money and some others are married for it.

It's surprising how easy it is to kiss a girl that won't let you.

Some women never get homesick because they are not home long enough.

In case you should ever become a ghost, have you decided whom you will haunt?

And many a man treats a stranger better in a barroom than he treats his wife at home.

Once in a great while there is a father who would be glad to have a son follow in his footsteps.

We have often wondered how many wives Solomon had annexed before discovering that there was nothing new under the sun.

The efficacy of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup in curing coughs and colds and arresting inflammation of the lungs, can be established by hundreds of testimonials from all sorts and conditions of men. It is a standard remedy in these ailments and all affections of the throat and lungs. It is highly recommended by medicine vendors, because they know and appreciate its value as a curative. Try it.

GETS HARDER AND HARDER.

"The average man," says one of the philosophers, "is generally busy making a living."

It is a curious fact that practice hardly ever seems to make it any easier.

Sore Throat is no trifling ailment. It will sometimes carry infection to the entire system through the food you eat. Hamlin's Wizard Oil cures Sore Throat.

In order to live a man must work—even if he only works somebody else.

Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator will drive worms from the system without injury to the child, because its action, while fully effective, is mild.

ON EXPENSIVE GIFT.

"Yes," said the young wife, proudly, "father always gives something expensive when he makes presents."

"So I discovered when he gave you away," rejoined the young husband.

MAKING HER HAPPY.

"It is the duty of every one of you to make at least one person happy during the week," said the Sunday School teacher. "Have you?"

"I did," said Johnnie promptly.

"That's nice. And what did you do?"

"I went to see my aunt, and she's always happy when I go home again."

ALWAYS.

"After all success is a disgusting thing."

"Why do you say that?"

ARE YOUR HANDS CHAPPED?

Zam-Buk Will Cure Them.

The particular danger of chapped hands and cold cracks (apart altogether from the pain) is that the cold is likely to penetrate and set up inflammation, festering, or blood-poison. Directly the skin is broken by a cut, graze, or scratch, or chafed and cracked by the action of the cold winds and water, the one necessary precaution is to apply Zam-Buk freely.

The pure herbal juices from which Zam-Buk is prepared are so perfectly combined and refined that the immediate effect of these Zam-Buk dressings is soothing, antiseptic, and healing.

Mrs. O. M. Phoen, Neuchatel, Alta., writes:—"I must tell you how pleased I am with Zam-Buk. My husband had an old frostbite on his foot for many years, and had tried almost every known remedy without any effect, but the first application of Zam-Buk seemed to help him so much that he persevered; and the sore is now cured. We would not be without Zam-Buk in the house."

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for piles, eczema, ulcers, abscesses, scalp sores, blood-poison, bad leg, eruptions, etc. Its purely herbal composition makes it the ideal balm for babies and young children. All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk 50c. box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Try also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

SPEEDILY.

Teacher—"What is velocity, Johnny?"

Johnny—"Velocity is what a chap lets go of a wasp with."

Internally and Externally it is Good.—The crowning property of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is that it can be used internally for many complaints as well as externally. For sore throat, croup, whooping cough, pains in the chest, colic and many kindred ailments it has curative qualities that are unsurpassed. A bottle of it costs little and there is no loss in always having it at hand.

YOUR POCKET-KNIKE.

You'd hardly credit what a lot of labor has been expended on the pocket-knife you carry. If, for example, it is a three-bladed knife, it may have involved no fewer than one hundred operations, and, as like as not, it has been handled by as many different workmen. Even the blade has to go through six different processes. First it has had to be forged, then laid on the "tangs"—that part which is inserted into the handle, and through which the blade is riveted—next marked or stamped with the name of the manufacturer, afterwards "croiled"—a depression in the neck of the blade between the sharp edge and the heavier part of the "tang" filled in—next tempered, and finally ground. So accurate is the eye of the man who forges the blade into shape, and so exact his hand, that the blade does not deviate a hair's-breadth from the little brass pattern before him, and to which each blade must exactly correspond.

THOSE WHO BUY BONDS

¶ An investment safe enough for a Canadian Chartered Bank or an Insurance Company acting under Government Charter demands your attention.

¶ Every bond issue we make is partially taken up by institutions such as these. They know that the security is unquestionable and that the rate of interest is profitable. It is the business of these institutions to find the safest and most profitable form of investment. They buy bonds.

¶ We continually offer you bonds of the same nature and description as the banks and insurance companies buy.

¶ Whether you have a large or small amount to invest, we want to hear from you. We have literature covering specific issues, giving particulars of price, rate of interest and property covered, also literature on bonds in general. Write for it.

STORY OF SELF HELP.

Scissors Grinder Who Died Worth $100,000 Through Thrift.

A man who began his working career as a scissors-grinder in Sheffield, England, and married on a wage of only $6 a week, has just died worth $100,000, and has left bequests of $2,500 each to four charitable institutions of the city.

He was Mr. David Fenby, glass and china dealer, the proprietor of a very large business, which he acquired as a result of hard work and thrifty habits, in which his wife shared.

When he was earning his small wage the couple always managed to save something, and when they had a little capital they started a small general grocery business in a back street. He purchased a donkey and hired a cart, and after two years in business was able to take a grocer's shop with an off-license. After nine years he had saved enough to buy the shop and nine adjoining houses. At the same time he was carrying on a business as furniture remover, his wife looking after the shop.

He was afterwards able to move to bigger premises and became a wealthy man, but he and his wife continued to live in very moderate style.

PERHAPS HE IS.

"De man dat talks about hisse'f an' how honest he is," said Uncle Eben, "allus sounds like he was runnin' kind o' short o' references."

WERE ALL READY FOR WAR.

Close Shave for England and Germany Last September.

A despatch from London says: In the course of a debate at the Radical M. P.'s new Reform Club, which aims at greater Parliamentary control of foreign affairs, Arthur Augustus William Harry Ponsonby, the member from Stirling Burghs, referring to the Anglo-German irritation, asserted that the countries were on the very verge of war in September. The British North Sea fleet was cleared for action, and had torpedo nets out, expecting an attack from German torpedo boats. William Pollard Ryles, of North Salford, quoted the Kaiser as saying recently: "I am the only friend that England has in Germany."

FIRST WIFE IS FORGIVING.

Will Take Husband Back After He Serves Term for Bigamy.

A despatch from Montreal says: Charles Mann, the ex-detective, who pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy, will eat his Christmas dinner with his first wife, but in the meantime will have the opportunity of developing an appetite for the occasion by breaking stones with a little hammer. He appeared for sentence before Judge Choquette on Wednesday, and on his first wife's offering to take him back was sentenced to thirty-five days in jail.

ENGINEER A FUGITIVE.

Responsibility for Fatal Wreck Placed on His Shoulders.

A despatch from Medicine Hat, Alberta, says: A coroner's jury has rendered a verdict in respect to the Radcliffe wreck, in which Fireman Bishop and Bravesmen Begin were killed last week. The finding places the blame on Engineer Carr for running into the yard at high speed. Carr has jumped the country.

RARE RELICS STOLEN.

A despatch from Brussels says: The Church of Ste. Macle, at Stavelot, in the Province of Liege, has been plundered of brass wares and enamels of the value of $200,000. There is no clue to the robbers.

OPENING OF PARLIAMENT

Everything Combined to Make First Official Appearance of H. R. H. a Success.

A despatch from Ottawa, says: Special eclat marked the formal opening of the first session of the twelfth Parliament of the Dominion, on Thursday, owing to the circumstance that for the first time in the history of the Dominion, the Vice-regal throne in the Senate chamber was occupied by a Prince of the blood, who read the speech from the throne, first in English and then in faultless French, much to the delight of the French-Canadian members of the House.

TEXT OF ADDRESS.

The address reads:

Honorable gentlemen of the Senate, gentlemen of the House of Commons:

It is with much satisfaction that I meet for the first time the Parliament of Canada, and avail myself of your advice and assistance in fulfilment of the important charge which has been entrusted to me by his majesty the King. I can assure you that I esteem it a privilege to be called upon to administer to the affairs of this prosperous and growing Dominion, and to associate myself with you in the important duties which you are about to approach.

It affords me great pleasure to congratulate you upon the continued and increasing prosperity of the country. Our trade, both with British and with foreign countries, is rapidly expanding, and there is every prospect that its volume in the present year will be largely in excess of that attained at any time in the past.

CROPS AND CENSUS.

Although there has been some damage to the crops in certain districts, the harvest has on the whole been abundant and it is believed that the returns to the husbandman will exceed those secured in any previous year.

The results of the census taken during the present year will be laid before you, so far as they have been tabulated. While the increase in population has not fulfilled all the sanguine expectations that had been formed, yet it has been substantial and encouraging.

REVENUES BEST YET.

You will be pleased to learn that the revenues for the current fiscal year have, up to the present, largely exceeded those during any similar period in the past, with every prospect that this increase will be maintained.

The advantages that would result from a wider exchange of products between the various countries of the Empire are undoubted, in view of the wonderful variety and extent of those productions, and negotiations have been opened for improved trade arrangements with the British West Indies and British Guiana, which should prove advantageous to those colonies as well as to this Dominion.

The importance of providing our country with better highways is manifest. A bill will be introduced for the purpose of enabling the Dominion to co-operate with the provinces in the accomplishment of this desirable object.

It is essential to recognize that, in a country possessing so great an area of fertile land as that with which this Dominion is happily endowed, the great basic industry is agriculture. My advisers are convinced that the time has come when greater aid and encouragement should be given to those who are engaged in the cultivation of the land. To this end a measure will be introduced under which it is hoped that there may be co-operation between the Dominion and the various provinces for the purpose of assisting and encouraging our farmers to secure the best results in production, and at the same time preserve the fertility of the soil.

OWNERSHIP OF ELEVATORS.

A measure will be introduced revising and consolidating the acts relating to the inspection of grain and providing the means by which the Government can secure, through a commission, the control and operation of the terminal elevators upon the great lakes.

A bill will be introduced to produce a permanent tariff commission, whose duty it shall be to ascertain by investigation and enquiry such information as will furnish a more stable and satisfactory basis for tariff legislation than has heretofore been available.

Bills will be laid before you with respect to the department of external affairs, the archives and other subjects.

The selection of the best route for the Hudson Bay Railway is engaging the attention of my advisers, and an announcement will be made to you of the result of their enquiry.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons: The accounts of the last year will be laid before you. The balance of the estimates for the current fiscal year, as well as the estimates for the coming year, will be submitted for your approval at an early date.

FINAL COMMENDATION.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate, Gentlemen of the House of Commons: I commend the subjects which I have mentioned to your best consideration and I trust that your deliberations under the blessing of Divine Providence may tend to the welfare and good Government of this Dominion.

AUTOMOBILES BURNED.

Fifty Thousand Dollar Fire in a Garage at Ottawa.

A despatch from Ottawa, says: Fifty thousand dollars' worth of automobiles were burned on Friday afternoon, when the garage of Park and McVeity on Sparks street caught fire by the explosion of a gasoline torch held by a mechanic. Fifty automobiles were stored on the premises, but half of them were saved. Three hundred gallons of gasoline were stored in the tanks below, but they proved the worth of a fireproof construction. The value of the building burned was $15,000.

COAL STRIKE AVERTED.

Delegates of British Miners Voted Against a Ballot.

A despatch from London says: A national strike in the coal trade was temporarily averted on Wednesday when the delegates of the miners who have been in session here for three days voted against a ballot of the men as to whether a strike should be called. Such a ballot undoubtedly would have resulted in favor of the cessation of work at the mines throughout the country. Negotiations with the mine-owners will be reopened, with a prospect of a compromise being reached.

THE PERRIN ESTATE.

Mrs. Perrin of Lindsay Looking After Big English Fortune.

A despatch from Brantford says: Josiah Armitage, acting for his sister, Mrs. J. J. Perrin of Lindsay, is here looking up members of the Perrin family, the members of which, according to a recent despatch from San Jose, Cal., are heirs to four and a half millions, which have accumulated in England in the past two hundred years. Mrs. Perrin is the wife of the late John James Perrin, said to have been a cousin of Drs. Charles and Thomas Perrin, who are direct heirs to the estate. Prior to the announcement made from California she had sent a lawyer to England to inquire into the fortune. Mrs. Perrin says that direct trace of her family is available back as far as 1777.

GOING HOME TO FIGHT.

Over Two Hundred Patriotic Italians Sailed From Montreal.

A despatch from Montreal says: Over two hundred Italians, most of them from the Montreal colony, sailed for their native land on Wednesday on the Canadian Northern Railway steamship Royal George. In the party, which crowded into the steerage were about twenty women and a few children. One who understood a little English said they expected to join the colors and engage in the war with Turkey, and from other sources it was learned that most of them belonged to the military reserves, and so were trained in military matters. Their cabins presented a very warlike aspect, for guns and rifles of every description and calibre were taken home with them.

DOMINION FIRE INSURANCE

Report of Superintendent Shows How Business Is Increasing.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The annual report of the superintendent of insurance on companies other than life shows that during the year 1910 the business of fire insurance in Canada was transacted by sixty companies. Of these twenty-five were Canadian, nineteen British and sixteen American. Cash received for premiums during the year in Canada amounted to $18,726,531 being greater than that received in 1900 by $1,676,067, and the amount paid for losses was $10,292,393, which is greater than that paid in 1909 by $1,645,567. The gross amount of policies, new and renewed, taken during the year by fire insurance companies was $1,817,055,685, which is greater by $237,079,818 than the amount taken in 1909. The premiums charged thereon amounted in 1910 to $24,684,296.40, being $2,390,663.15 greater than the amount charged the previous year. The rate of premiums (1.358) is somewhat lower than that of 1909 (1.431). The loss rate (54.96) is 4.24 per cent. greater than the loss rate of the previous year (50.72), and 8.67 per cent. less than the average loss rate (63.63) for the past twenty-five years.

THURSDAY, NOV. 23, '11

The recently opened session of the Dominion Parliament will naturally be a comparatively short one. A few Government just taking hold cannot be expected to at once prepare important constructive legislation. The reciprocity issue decided by the last election will die a natural death without any action being required by the Government. The Tariff resolutions died with the session and they will not again of course be presented to Parliament. Canada had a standing offer of reciprocity upon her statute book for eighteen years which the United States Congress and Government simply ignored. The United States may or may not permit their offer of reciprocity to stand but the act that it remains open does not call for any action by the Dominion Government. Possibly a bill may be introduced at the coming session to establish a tariff commission but until the Commission has been created and has had time and opportunity to investigate the fiscal question there is no likelihood of any important tariff changes being inaugurated. Indeed during the last campaign it was quite evident that the existing tariff was in the main working well although there may be industries which stand in need of more protection. The farmers, for example have long been complaining that the United States duties upon agricultural products were much higher than the Canadian duties upon the same and similar products.

This is about the time of the year the rural population may expect a call from the "shoddy" pedlar. These men make a house-to-house canvas selling an inferior quality of goods, and in the past have succeeded in disposing of quite a quantity. The same class of goods can be had from any of the clothing houses or merchants tailors in any of the surrounding towns and villages on order. Business men seldom stock such material, because the goods cannot be made up in a satisfactory way, nor is it a durable article, but if you want it, they will get it for you. In Exeter, and we venture to say in everyone of the surrounding places, the merchants will meet the prices of the shoddy man, and with it you have the guarantee of your local merchant or your tailor, where wrongs can be made right. To the farmer, we would say, patronize your market town, and give the shoddy pedlar a cool reception. He is here to-day and away to-morrow with no interest in your welfare.

The young man who has no confidence in himself will never have much else.

It takes the average man altogether too long to find out that he has been a fool.

GOOD FOR COMPLEXION

Of all the skin beautifiers we have had in our store there is none that we can recommend more highly than the D. D. D. prescription.

D. D. D. is such a logical remedy for all kinds of skin trouble and so scientifically compounded that it clears up the complexion over night.

D. D. D. is most widely known as the most reliable treatment for Eczema, but it has also been found invaluable for all kinds of minor skin troubles. We do not hesitate to give D. D. D. our special recommendation. In fact, we are convinced that D. D. D. will give relief that no other remedy can.

Surely if you have any skin trouble you should give D. D. D. Prescription a trial.

Don't delay, for if not promptly checked, minor skin troubles often develop into serious disease, difficult even for D. D. D. to cure.

Better drop into our store anyway and get posted on this wonderful remedy. Ask also about D. D. D. Soap, which is so invaluable in keeping the skin in healthy condition.

Or write the D. D. D. Laboratories, Dept. E. A. 49 Colborne St., Toronto for a free trial bottle. In either case, don't put it off, but act at once.

NERVES UNSTRUNG. WAS "DOWN AND OUT."

Feels 10 Years Younger

After Taking Morriscy's No. 14 Blood Tablets.

MONTREAL, P. Q., May 16, 1911.

I was all rundown and felt all out of sorts. My appetite was bad—my complexion sallow—my spirits low, and I didn't seem to have any ambition to do my ordinary housework. I was in this condition for about a year, although several physicians prescribed a tonic for me, and I tried several well advertised remedies, but all without success. About three months ago one of your booklets was left at my house, and I read of the wonderful success of Dr. Morriscy and of the remarkable cures that his medicines were making, and decided to try his No. 14 Tablets. I used one box, and before it was half gone I began to feel better, and it gave me courage to keep on. I have just finished the third box, and only wish I could tell you how much better I feel. My work is now a pleasure to me, and I feel 10 years younger. You certainly have the best real Blood Tonic and blood maker that I have heard of, and anyone in need of such a remedy will find yours the very best and most reliable. Mrs. Anna Hafferty.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

Price, 50c per box at your dealers or Father Morriscy Medicine Co. Limited, Montreal. 600

DASHWOOD

Mr. Ed. Nadiger has sold one of his driving horses to Mr. Joseph Amy for which he received a good figure.—Mr. William Musser has accepted a position as clerk in W. R. Siebert's store. — A great many people are now doing their annual butchering, and the sound of the squealing hog can be heard on every hand.—Mr. Wm. Nadiger is being congratulated by his friends upon the arrival of a first-born son into the household. Both mother and babe are doing well.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Daniel Truemner on Friday last was largely attended despite the inclemency of the weather. The family, which is held in the very highest esteem in this community will have the sympathy of the entire community in this their severe trial and loss.—Miss Alice Truemner of Toronto, who has been home attending the funeral of her aunt, left on Tuesday to resume her position at Eaton's.

The announcement of Mrs. Truemner's death was a surprise to this village and community, when first announced, particularly when it was persistently reported that she had taken her own life in the barn. This rumor was repeated by neighbors and friends, much to the sorrow of the family, as the report was not correct. Mrs. Truemner had been ailing for a long time, and her death was looked for at any time. She had been unable to leave her room for days and Tuesday morning, about five minutes after her daughter had been up to see her, a noise was heard from the room, and upon investigation it was found that she had fallen from the bed and died. There was evidence—but very, small evidence—that she had committed self destruction, which no doubt started the rumor, but one closely related to the late Mrs. Truemner has assured the public that the lady died very suddenly from natural causes, and says that the family physician will bear out his statement.

HARPLEY

(Too late for last week.)

Mr. Henry Jennison of the Nor'west visited at Mr. J. J. Taylor's over Sunday.—Mr. Gratton had the misfortune to have the front axle of his stage broken between Greenway and Harpley on Monday evening, the road being so rough —Peter Murray and family last week moved down to the farm lately purchased from Mr. Wm. Baker. Winter is calling around Harpley at time of writing. Hope it won't stay long.—During the high wind on Sunday afternoon the wheel on Mr. Mansel Hodgins' windmill became loose, making it necessary at the risk of his life that he should go up and tie it secure with a chain.

Pursuant to Sec. 38 of Chapter 129 of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1897 notice is hereby given that all creditors and others having claims against the estate of William G. Bissett, late of the Village of Exeter in the County of Huron, gentleman, who died on or about the 7th day of November, A.D. 1911, are on or before the First day of January, A. D. 1912, to send by post, prepaid, to the undersigned solicitors herein for E. Frances Bissett and Frank L. Taylor, executors under the Will of the said deceased, their christian names and surnames, addresses and descriptions, the full particulars of their claims, a statement of their accounts and the nature of the securities (if any) held by them, and that after the day last aforesaid the said Executors will proceed to distribute the assets of the said deceased among the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to such claims of which notice shall have been given as above required, and the said Executors will not be liable for the said assets or any part thereof, to any person or persons of whose claim or claims notice shall not have been received by them at the time of such distribution.

CLINTON —The funeral of the late Mrs. William Townsend took place from the residence of her son, Mr Amos Townsend, Isaac street, on Tuesday. Mrs. Townsend died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. White Nesbit, Man., with whom she had been making her home for some time. Deceased had passed her eightieth year. For many years she and her husband, who died some nineteen years ago, lived on the 2nd of Tuckersmith where they reared a large family.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble, Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. 840, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

A VALUABLE ASSISTANT.

At the Winter Fair at Guelph is given information along all lines of live stock production and crop cultivation that is valuable to any farmer who desires to keep up-to-date. The Weekly Sun of Dec. 19 will contain a carefully prepared and easily understood summary of the chief points brought out at the next Fair.

If you are engaged in any branch of farming with a view to making money you will find The Weekly Sun a most valuable assistant. Do not miss the issue of December 19.

LATEST PICTURE OF BORDEN

This is the season to subscribe for a newspaper, or to renew if already a subscriber. Our paper is as good as any, and better than many. Why not take it.

It represents the welfare and progress of the community and district with which it is identified, and is, apart from its local value, an all-round up-to-date newspaper.

The recent change of Government has made the Hon. Mr. Borden the central figure of our Canadian public life. Many would like a good picture of him. We can supply one free. We will send anyone our paper for a year, and The Weekly Mail and Empire (the regular rate of which is $1.00 per year) for the same period, the two to-gether, to include free picture of the New Canadian Premier, for $1.55.

Soap will not do the work properly because soap only cleans the surface—it does not dig deep after germs and hidden impurities like GOLD DUST—the greatest of all sanitary cleansers.

To keep bath tub and lavatory shiny-white and inviting—To keep metal pipes, fixtures and taps brightly burnished—To purify metal bowl—

To keep tiling and woodwork spotless and beautiful—

Simply add a heaping teaspoonful of GOLD DUST to a pail of water. You will be surprised at the ease with which it does the work. GOLD DUST sterilizes as well as cleans—and saves you one-half the labor.

GOLD DUST is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package offers greater economy.

Try the flour that holds the confidence of thousands of home-cooks

THE present huge demand for PURITY FLOUR shows the confidence in which it is held by thousands of home-cooks.

Those who have used PURITY FLOUR have come to believe in it. They look on PURITY as a friend. They feel they can trust it implicitly, because each and every lot of PURITY FLOUR has always been uniform—always up to the high standard of quality that has made it famous.

Wouldn't you, too, like to use a flour you could always rely on? Wouldn't you like to feel certain that your bread, cakes, and pies were going to turn out exactly right? That's just how you'll feel when you become a user of PURITY FLOUR — the confidence-creating flour.

PURITY FLOUR gives high-class results, because it consists exclusively of the high-grade portions of the best Western hard wheat.

On account of the extra strength of PURITY FLOUR please remember, when making pastry, to add more shortening than an ordinary flour requires.

And when making bread add more water, and PURITY FLOUR will expand into more loaves than the same weight of ordinary flour can produce, thus making "more bread and better bread."

PURITY FLOUR
"More bread and better bread"

Make your next flour order spell P-U-R-I-T-Y F-L-O-U-R. It costs slightly more, but it's worth the difference. Add PURITY FLOUR to grocery list right now.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER VIII.—(Cont'd)

To his acute brain there came an immediate confirmation of his theory. Evidently the diamonds had not been previously in the Turk's possession. The little Frenchman had just delivered them, and this in itself was a strange circumstance in view of the fact that the genuine stones must have been in Paris at least three days.

Brett concentrated all his dramatic faculties in look, voice, and gesture.

"You fools!" he cried. "You have been swindled by a device which a child might suspect. These are not the Sultan's diamonds. These are frauds—cleverly concocted bits of crystal and alum—intended to keep you happy until you return to Constantinople and discover how thoroughly you were deceived."

"You lie!" roared the little Frenchman. "They are genuine."

Brett wanted to punch the diminutive scoundrel heavily in the face, but he restrained himself. Turning with a magnificent assumption of courteousness to Hussein-ul-Mulk, he said—

"Come, I told you you were acting childishly: this proves it. A most outrageous attempt has been made to swindle you, if I may use such a term to persons who confessedly are plotting to rob another. Surely this will convince you that you have nothing to fear from me. I am here as the agent neither of the Sultan nor the police. It is a simple matter for you to verify my statement. All that is necessary is for one of your party to take any of these alleged diamonds—I would suggest the smallest one, so as not to create suspicion—to any jeweller in the district, and he will test it for you immediately, thus proving the truth of my statement. Look here; I will convince you myself."

He took the monster diamond irreverently in his hand before Hussein-ul-Mulk could prevent him and turned to the window. He pressed the stone against the glass and tried to make it cut. It failed. He placed it against his cheek. It was warm. A pure diamond would be icy cold. More than this, a small portion of the composition of which the imitation had been hastily concocted, broke off in his fingers.

"You see," he laughed. "Do you require further proof?"

Even while he spoke the diminutive little Frenchman turned and bolted. One of the Turks drew a revolver and rushed after him, but Hussein-ul-Mulk uttered some authoritative words which prevented the man from firing. The Frenchman was evidently an adept in the art of dodging pursuit. In the passage he ducked suddenly and threw the Turk heavily to the ground. Then, without further interference he slipped the latch of the door and slammed it hastily behind him, leaving Brett silently laughing at Hussein-ul-Mulk.

"Can it be possible that what you say is true?" said Hussein-ul-Mulk, in such piteous accents that Brett was moved to further mirth.

"Surely you do not doubt the evidence?" he said. Take any of these stones; they will crumble to pieces on the hearth if struck the slightest blow. See, I will pulverize one with my heel."

And he did so, though the amazed and despairing men whom he addressed would have restrained him, for they still could not bring themselves to believe.

Hussein-ul-Mulk was the first to recover his scattered senses.

"We can not choose but believe you, Mr. Brett," he said. "We are even indebted to you for making this disastrous discovery at such an early date. We paid our agents so highly that we thought their honesty was assured. We find we are mistaken, and consequently we apologize to you for using threats which were unnecessary. We rely on your honor not to incriminate us with the police. All we can tell you is that your friend is not dead, but we do not know his whereabouts."

"Nonsense," cried Brett angrily. "Why do you seek to mislead me in this fashion?"

"Sir," said the Turk, "I am telling you the truth. We believe that Mr. Talbot is a prisoner in London, but we do not know in what locality. My friends here and myself, as you have already surmised, are merely members of a political organization. It was necessary for us to secure possession of the Imperial diamond and its companions. We spared no expense, nor hesitated at any means that would accomplish our purpose. We have been foiled for the moment. I can tell you nothing else, and I advise you to leave us and forget that such persons exist, for I swear to you by the beard of the Prophet that had events turned out differently you would now be a lifeless corpse in this room, whilst your body would not be discovered for many weeks, as we intended to leave Paris this afternoon as soon as the diamonds came into our possession."

The Turks gazed at each other in affright. None of them moved to open the door. But the knock was not repeated, for the door itself was thrown bodily from its hinges, and the stalwart form of Lord Fairholme accompanied by two policemen, appeared in the passage.

"Ah," cried Brett, intervening with ready tact, "I had forgotten you, Fairholme. I see you kept your appointment. These are not required," he rattled on pleasantly, turning towards the stern-looking sergents de ville; "I am quite alive and uninjured. My friends here and myself had a few earnest words, but we have settled matters satisfactorily."

The suspicious policemen glanced from the smiling Englishman to the perturbed Turks. At the first sound of danger Hussein-ul-Mulk had closed the case in which lay the spurious diamonds, so these pretentious-looking gems did not excite the curiosity of the men of law.

The senior officer demanded from Lord Fairholme an explanation of the exciting statements which induced them to accompany him, but Brett stepped into the breach.

"It is quite true," he said, "that my friend was anxious on my account. It was even possible these Turkish gentlemen here and myself might have proceeded to extremities, but the affair has ended satisfactorily, and if you will allow me——" He put his hand into his pocket and a slight monetary transaction terminated the incident pleasantly for all parties.

Soon Brett and Fairholme found themselves in the street, and again did the barrister draw in deep and invigorating draughts of Paris air.

"Where now?" said Fairholme.

"Tell me," cried Brett eagerly, "did you notice in which direction the little man who left No. 11 about ten minutes ago?"

"Better than that, I heard where he was going to. He was in such a fiendish funk that he paid heed to nobody but flung himself into a passing cab and yelled, 'Take me to the Cabaret Noir, Boulevard Montmartre.'"

"Good. You are a splendid detective. You have saved me hours of search and perhaps days of failure. Come; let us, too, go to the Cabaret Noir."

CHAPTER IX.

The exterior of the Cabaret Noir belied its name.

Originally, no doubt, it was one of the vilest dens in a vile locality, but the fairy hand of the brewer had touched the familiar wineshop, and it glistened to-day in much mahogany, more brass, and a dazzling collection of mirrors.

"Here we are," said his lordship cheerfully. "Let's take them by surprise and run over the whole show before any one can stop us."

"No," said Brett; this is Paris, and the police here has ways more mysterious than those of Scotland Yard. We will gain nothing by drastic measures. Indeed, had I known the sort of place we were coming to I would have visited it to-night and in disguise. As it is, we have been seen already by any one interested in our movements, and it would be useless to adopt any pretence, so follow me.

He boldly entered through the main door, and found himself in a light, airy room, filled, in three-fourths of its area, with little marble-topped tables surrounded by diminutive chairs, whilst a bar counter was partitioned off in a corner.

The attendant in charge was a dreary-eyed waiter, who seemed to think that the presence of a couple of sight-seeing Englishmen at such an hour was another testimony to the lunatic propensities of the Anglo-Saxon race.

"This is the Cabaret Noir?" questioned Brett.

"But yes, monsieur."

"A gentleman, a friend of mine, came here a few minutes ago in a fiacre. He was small, slight, so high"—illustrating the stature by his hand. "He was dressed in dark blue clothes with shiny boots. He was—"

Brett's eager description was cut short by the appearance of a new character. Through a narrow door leading into the bar came a handsome dark-eyed woman, aged perhaps twenty-five, well dressed, shapely, and carrying herself with the easy grace of a born Parisienne.

Her hair was jet black. Her large dark eyes were recessed beneath arched and strongly pencilled eyebrows. Her skin had that peculiar tint of porcelain white so often seen in women of southern blood.

Yet there was nothing delicate in this lady's appearance or manner. A rich color suffused her cheeks, and her language was remarkably free both in volume and style.

Her manner changed somewhat as she addressed herself to Brett and his companion. There was sufficient of the landlady in her demeanour when she said, "And what would messieurs be pleased to command?"

Now, if there was one type of femininity more than another which Brett thoroughly understood it was the saucy, quick-witted, handsome adventuress. He knew that the woman scrutinizing him so coolly came well within this category.

He could not tell, of course, in what way she might be associated with the gang whose proceedings contained the explanation of Talbot's fate, but he instantly resolved to adopt a determined position with the lady who half-petulantly, half-curiously, was awaiting his reply.

He came nearer to her.

"I am glad," he said, "that I have met you."

The woman looked him boldly in the eyes. "Was it for the happiness of seeing me that monsieur has visited the house?"

"That might well serve as the reason, but the pleasure is all the greater since it was unexpected."

"You are pleased to be facetious," she replied. "Will you not tell me your business? I have affairs to occupy me."

This attack, so direct and unencumbering, did not fail to have its effect. A ready mask of surprise fell across the woman's impudent, pretty face.

There was just a tinge of stage laughter in her tone when she cried: "Really, how interesting! And where in the Rue Barbette, monsieur? In what way am I concerned with—No. 11, did you say?"

Brett well knew how to conduct the attack upon this lady. His voice fell to a determined note, his eyes looked gravely into hers as he answered—"It is useless to pretend that you do not understand me. You are losing moments worth gold, perhaps diamonds! Within a few minutes the police will be here, and then it will be too late. Help me first and I will let the police take care of themselves. Refuse me your assistance, and I will leave you and your friends to the mercy of the district commissaire."

"Monsieur is pleased to speak in riddles," she said. "This is a restaurant. We can execute your orders, but we are not skilled in acting charades. You will find better performers in the booths out there;" and she swept her hands scornfully towards the boulevard, with its medley of tents, stalls, and merry-go-rounds.

COFFEE HEART

As Dangerous as the Tobacco or Whiskey Heart.

"Coffee heart" is common to many coffee users and is liable to send the owner to his or her long home if the drug is persisted in. You can run 30 or 40 yards and find out if your heart is troubled. A lady who was once a victim of the "coffee heart" writes from Oregon:

"I have been a habitual user of coffee all my life and have suffered very much in recent years from ailments which I became satisfied were directly due to the poison in the beverage, such as torpid liver and indigestion, which in turn made my complexion blotchy and muddy.

"Then my heart became affected. It would beat most rapidly just after I drank my coffee, and go below normal as the coffee effect wore off. Sometimes my pulse would go as high as 137 beats to the minute. My family were greatly alarmed at my condition and at last mother persuaded me to begin the use of Postum.

"I gave up coffee entirely and absolutely, and made Postum my sole table beverage. This was 6 months ago, and all my ills, the indigestion, inactive liver and rickety heart action, have passed away, and my complexion has become clear and natural. The improvement set in very soon after I made the change, just as soon as the coffee poison had time to work out of my system.

"My husband has also been greatly benefited by the use of Postum, and we find that a simple breakfast with Postum, is as satisfying and more strengthening than the old heavier meal we used to have with coffee."

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

HOUSEHOLD

SEASONABLE DISHES.

Fruit Cake.—Two cupfuls of brown sugar, one cupful of molasses, one and three-quarter cupfuls of butter, one cupful of sweet milk, four cupfuls of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, five eggs, three pounds of raisins, one pound of dates, one pound citron, one-half pound of orange peel, two pounds of currants; brandy and spice to taste. Steam three hours.

Cranberry Conserve. — Chop coarsely five pounds of berries and two of seeded raisins, thinly peel rind from five oranges, then take the pulp and juice of six, boil the rind in water, changed until it is no longer bitter. When tender chop fine. Place the fruit and rind in kettle with five pounds of sugar, heat and simmer slowly until reduced to jam.

Christmas Loving Cup—Chop and melt twelve marshmallows in one pint of fruit juice. Boil one pound of sugar and one-half pint of water to 220 degrees Fahrenheit, then stir in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, the fruit juice, and juice of one lemon. When cold fold in one-half pint of whipped cream, pack in ice and salt for three hours. Fill sherbet glasses half full of thin slices of orange, bananas, pineapple and marschino cherries. Cover with teaspoon each of lemon juice and liquid honey. Over this heap the frozen mixture.

Nut Creams.—Dissolve one and one-half tablespoons of gelatin in one gill of boiling water, strain into a basin, add six tablespoons of sugar, two tablespoons each of chopped pecans and pistachio nuts, one teaspoon of vanilla extract, and one pint of whipped cream. Stir until beginning to grow firm. Pour into individual molds. Turn out on serving plates, garnish with whipped sweetened cream, and sprinkle over with finely chopped pistachios.

Taffy.—Two cupfuls granulated sugar, one cupful vinegar, one tablespoonful of butter. Boil until crackles when dropped in water.

CAKE.

Spice Cake.—Two cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of butter or lard, three cupfuls of flour, one cupful of sweet milk, four eggs, one teaspoonful cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful cloves, three teaspoonfuls baking soda.

Cinderella Cake.—Three-quarters of a cupful of melted butter, four whole eggs beaten, one cupful of granulated sugar, one cupful of sweet milk, two and one-half cupfuls of flour, and two and one-half teaspoonfuls baking powder. Sprinkle top with cinnamon, sugar, and chopped almonds; bake three-quarters of an hour; serve hot.

Spice Cake.—Two cups brown sugar creamed with one-half cup butter, two eggs, one cup sour milk one teaspoon soda dissolved in milk, two and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoon allspice, one of cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of cloves, one-half nutmeg grated. Icing.—The white of one egg beaten stiff. Cook one cup sugar and one-half cup water until it threads, add to white of egg, and beat until thick; flavor with vanilla.

Lady Baltimore Cake.—Two-thirds cup of butter, five eggs, two cups of sugar, four cups of flour, one-half cup of milk, two level teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar, one level teaspoonful of soda, cream half of the sugar with the butter, beat the remaining sugar into the yolks of the eggs; sift the cream of tartar and the soda twice through the flour; beat the eggs and sugar together with the butter and sugar and add the milk slowly; now beat in the flour, add the stiffly beaten whites, flavor half of this mixture with rose and into the other half beat one teaspoonful of powdered cinnamon, one of cloves, one grated nutmeg, flavor with vanilla or almond; bake in four layers, two rose and two spiced. Filling for cake—Cut fine one cup of seeded raisins, one small cocoanut grated, citron, one cup of blanched almonds, make boiled icing; beat these ingredients in reserving the almonds; these put on top layer stuck and sprinkle this layer with powdered sugar.

Graham Loaf Cake.—Two and one-half cups buttermilk (or sour milk), three and one-half cups graham flour, one cup brown sugar, one pound dates, cut; two level teaspoons soda, pinch of salt. Makes two small loaves. Bake in slow oven thirty-five or forty-five minutes.

Cream Cake—Beat the yolks of four eggs, to which has been added one even cup of powdered sugar for five minutes. Then add the whites, which have been beaten thoroughly, one cup of flour with one teaspoonful of baking powder, and lastly add one tablespoonful cold water. Filling: Two cups of milk into which has been beaten the yolks of two eggs, two tablespoonfuls cornstarch, one-half cup sugar, one teaspoonful vanilla. Bake cake in three layer tins.

WHERE THE ITALIANS SUSTAINED HEAVIEST LOSSES.

Soldiers firing from the trenches in the bumeliana, the Italians' most advanced point in Tripoli It was here that the Turks attacked the Italians and drove them in after a terrible cavalry charge with fearful losses on both sides. In the background are the houses of the town, where Turks, supposed to have surrendered, fired at the Italians in the rear, causing the latter to take revenge by slaughtering all the men, women and children in the place. The officer in the foreground is Major Pisani, who a short time after this photograph was taken was killed by one of the Arab riflemen in the rear.

TESTED RECIPES.

Mush Biscuits.—To one quart of boiling water add one teaspoonful of salt and one and one-fourth cupfuls of corn meal; boil till like mush, remove from fire, and add a scant cupful of sugar and three-fourths cupful of lard. When this has cooled add one cake of yeast that has previously been soaked. Mix this about noon; let stand till night, then mix stiff with flour, as for bread; let rise over night; in the morning cut into biscuits, let rise again, and bake.

Grandma's Doughnuts.—One cupful of sugar, one cupful of warm mashed potatoes, three cupfuls of flour, one-half of milk, one egg, one teaspoonful of butter, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful of ginger, one teaspoonful of nutmeg; roll rather thin, cut, fry, then dust with powdered sugar.

Oatmeal Cookies.—One cup brown sugar creamed with one-half cup lard and one-quarter cup butter, yolks of two eggs well beaten. One teaspoon soda, one-half cup hot water, two cups oatmeal, two cups flour, one teaspoon of baking powder, one teaspoon cinnamon, pinch of salt, two tablespoons chocolate dissolved in the one-half cup hot water, two cups raisins and one cup nuts put through grinder.

USEFUL HINTS.

Alcohol will remove candle grease.

Keep tacks in bottles. It saves opening many boxes to find a particular kind.

When cleaning house use plenty of turpentine in the scrub water. It means certain death to moths.

To remove fly specks from varnished surfaces use equal parts of water and skim milk, warmed.

Discolored china baking dishes can be made as clean as when new by rubbing them with whiting.

Add borax to the water in which the dish towels are to be washed, and it will aid in making them white and soft.

The cushioned back of a Morris chair has been found valuable in the sickroom to place back of the invalid in bed.

Rub the bottom crust of a pie with the white of an egg, and it will prevent the juice of the fruit from soaking in.

To remove an ink stain from a colored waist, put the stained portion in sweet milk and let it stand until the milk sours.

When baking individual custards, put a thin buttered square of bread in the bottom of the cup to avoid the custards being soggy.

Dark stains, of however long standing may be removed from silk by rubbing with an old silk handkerchief dipped in kerosene.

Place a box of lime in the closet in which jams, preserves, etc., are stored away. It will prevent mold from gathering on the fruit.

To clean leather, first dust leather with soft cloth, then use another cloth dipped in sweet milk, and spot will be easily removed. Let dry.

Stains on flannels may be removed by applying yolks of egg and glycerine in equal quantities. Leave it for half an hour and then wash out.

Salt or coffee grounds sprinkled on the stove when a kettle or pot boils over, will prevent any disagreeable odor from spreading through the house.

To prevent rust go over the nickel parts on stoves with a cloth dampened with linseed oil, and then wrap in paper before putting away for the summer.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, NOV. 28.

Lesson IX.—Nehemiah's Prayer, Neh. 1. Golden Text, James 5. 16.

Verse 1. The words—The margin has "history," a rendering that of course alters the sense considerably. As a matter of fact, the book does not consist entirely of the words of Nehemiah, there being a break of several chapters (7. 73 to 12, 31) in which the writer has drawn from other sources besides the personal memoirs of Nehemiah. "The history of Nehemiah" might mean either a historical book by him or a record of his deeds. Whichever reading is preferred it doubtless should be regarded as an editorial heading.

Son of Hacaliah—This is simply a designation, differentiating this Nehemiah from others of the same name (Ezra 2. 2, Neh. 3. 16). We know nothing of the father, and can only make conjectures as to his tribe. Some have thought Nehemiah belonged to Levi, others, to Judah. The more important fact about him is, that being an exile, occupying a place of prominence in a foreign court, he should still have entertained his own people.

Now—The abrupt manner in which the book begins is an evidence of its close connection with the story which precedes. The month Chislev was the ninth in the Jewish candar, and corresponded nearly to our December. It was in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes Longimanus, or B. C. 445. It was in the seventh year of the same reign that Ezra was given permission to return.

Shushan—See Word Studies for November 5. Since the days of Cyrus, it had been the principal capital of the Persian empire, and was used by the kings as their winter residence. The word palace here, however, signifies more than a royal abode. It was a special designation given to Shushan, and refers to its being a stronghold as well as a city of kings. The remains of the ancient city, near the modern town of Dizful, eighty miles east of the Tigris, are said to be of astonishing magnitude.

2. Hanani—Nehemiah 7, 2 speaks of him as "my brother," meaning something more than a mere fellow countryman. The phrase, one of my brethren, makes it seem unlikely that he was own brother to Nehemiah; but he may have been a cousin or other near relative.

He and certain men out of Judah—The language implies that they came expressly for the purpose of seeking, and obtaining if possible the aid of their influential countryman. Nehemiah questions them, first, as to the welfare of the Jews who were in their own land and had survived the captivity; and, secondly, concerning Jerusalem. His eagerness for some scrap of news is apparent in his not waiting to hear their story before putting his questions.

3. And they said—Their reply, like his question, is twofold, and relates to the remnant, and the wall and gates of the city. Within the city the people were in a sad plight, and from without they are subjected to the reproach of their enemies. The walls have been broken down at vulnerable points so as to admit some foe and deprive the city of its means of resistance.

4. I sat down and wept—Compare Ezra. 4. 2. His sudden dismay indicates his complete surprise. He must have known of the expedition of Ezra and the attempt to rebuild the wall, also of the edict of Artaxerxes prohibiting further work in that direction. But it was an unexpected blow to hear of Jerusalem defenceless and dishonored.

Before the God of heaven—The interest of this title for the Deity is in its frequent occurrence, not alone in the writings of Nehemiah but also in the Persian inscriptions, and in the edicts of Cyrus, Darius and Artaxerxes. While it can hardly be shown that it is of Persian origin it almost certainly originated with the Jews under Persian rule It is a title of universal soverignty, and indicates that the wider experiences of the Jews tended to enlarge their conception of God, so that he is no longer to them a divinity whose away is limited by the boundaries of Palestine.

5-11. Nehemiah's prayer. Compare with the prayer of Daniel (Dan. 9. 4-19), and that of Ezra (Ezra 9. 5-15). The prayer may be analyzed as follows: (1) address; (2) humble invocation; (3) confession of sins; (4) appeal to the divine promises; (5) closing supplication for immediate help.

5. Great and terrible God—An idea of God borrowed from Deut. 7. 21. In times of calamity the human heart is visited with a sense of the might and terror of Jehovah. These awe-awakening attributes, however, are blended with hope-inspiring thoughts of God's mercy and faithfulness. He will surely keep his convenient and loving-kindness with those who keep his commandments. The sentence is also derived from Deuteronomy. With God the keeping of the covenant consists in his continuing to show mercy. This mercy is vouchsafed only to those who return to their allegiance in the spirit of obedience and love.

6. Thine ear . . . attentive, and thine eyes open—This is somewhat in the temper of the courtier, but it is full of earnestness. This is evident in the plea that the prayer is offered day and night. The faith and humbleness of heart of such reiterated supplications cannot be overlooked.

I confess the sins . . . we have sinned—He identifies himself with his own erring people. In its consciousness of sin the entire race of men is one. That is one notable thing about the confession. Another is the kind of national conscience manifest in the expression, I and my father's house. Neither the individual nor the family can escape responsibility. Nothing is said about the enemies at home. The real foes of Nehemiah's people have been their failure to keep the commandments, and statutes, and ordinances (7). So their sin has been a violation of the Law. But primarily it consisted in their dealing corruptly against Jehovah himself (7). Nehemiah is thinking, not so much of recent events, as of the whole course of Israel's history.

9. Yet will I gather them — The gracious promise of restoration, as well as the threat of dispersion, is found in various places in the Pentateuch. The only condition is that the penitent return, and that he keep the commandments as a practical evidence of his sincerity. The whole transaction is national, the sinning, the suffering, the returning, the merciful restoration. The place chosen by Jehovah is Jerusalem.

10. Thy people, whom thou hast redeemed—Their claim to the fulfilment of promise, therefore, rests upon no insecure foundation. They are not aliens, but direct descendants of his own chosen ones, whom he had snatched out of the hands of the Egyptians.

USING CEMENT IN WINTER

CONCRETE WORK IN FREEZING WEATHER.

Simple Precautions on Using It When Thermometer May be Below Zero.

Until a few years ago, although concrete had already been generally adopted throughout the country by contractors and farmers for almost all structural work, it was the practice to stop all work on this form of construction as soon as the cold weather set in.

It has been found, however, that concrete work may be carried on in cold weather successfully, and with but very little more trouble than under ordinary circumstances.

This fact is of great benefit to the farmer, as it is in the colder period of the year that he is able to find time for building and making the many articles around the farm to which concrete so readily adapts itself.

With a few simple precautions it has been found that concrete can be used, not only in freezing weather, but when the thermometer has been actually below zero.

If concrete freezes before it starts to "set" it will not be injured, but if the freezing takes place after the "setting" action has started up, the concrete is likely to be damaged when it thaws, owing to the expansion of the melting water forcing the particles apart and making the concrete crumbly. On the other hand, if the concrete has a chance to become thoroughly "set" before freezing, no harm will be done. To give it this chance you must first of all prepare the materials as described below, and secondly, you must protect the concrete after it has been placed in the "forms."

PREPARATION OF MRTERIALS.

Concrete will, on its own account, develop a certain amount of heat in the "setting" process. But in cold weather, some outside assistance, in the form of artificial heat, is necessary. The best way to develop this artificial heat is to warm the materials before mixing. This shortens the time that it takes the concrete to "set" and lengthens the time necessary to bring it to the freezing point. Bear in mind that the less water used, the quicker concrete "sets." Therefore, it is advisable to use as little water as possible in the mixing during cold weather.

Fig. 1. Showing simple method of water heating.

HEATING WATER.

A simple and easily-made vessel for heating water is shown in the accompanying drawing. (See Fig. 1.) A coil is made of one-inch pipe with the ends fastened in the barrel and made water-tight. A small fire built under the coil will heat the water rapidly and will keep it in circulation, thus keeping all the water heated.

For this purpose it is wise to use a length of malleable iron gas-pipe, because it is easily bent into the required coil. This is done by taking a log or fence-post about the size of the coil and bending the pipe around it. This method prevents the pipe from "buckling," and makes the coils more regular in size.

Where concrete work is being done on a large scale, it is advisable to use the two-barrel heater shown in Fig. 2. This allows the water to be constantly replenished without reducing the heat of the water in the barrel from which the hot water is taken.

Fig. 2. Showing two-barrel method of heating water.

Most farmers, however, possess large boiling kettles, used during butchering time, or for making soft soap, etc. One of these will do equally well.

Fig. 3. Showing how materials may be heated by means of a fire in an old stove-pipe.

HEATING SAND AND STONE.

Sand and stone may be very easily heated by making use of two pieces of stove pipe, one piece for the sand and the other for the stone. The pipes are laid on the ground in such a position as to allow the wind to make a good draft. The fire is then built in one end. The flames pass through, heating the whole pipe, and as fresh fuel is added, the cinders are pushed along the pipe and gradually work out at the other end. The sand and stone should be piled on top of the stove pipes, and will soon thaw out and become heated.

In very cold weather, the cement may be heated by laying the bags on top of the sand, but this is not absolutely necessary, as the cement itself must be kept dry until used, whether the weather be hot or cold.

TEMPERTURE REQUIRED.

Materials should not be heated to too high a temperature. A good way to judge the proper amount of heat is to make them just hot enough to be comfortable to touch. Care should be taken not to use any frozen lumps of sand.

PROTECTING CONCRETE IN POSITION.

After the concrete has been placed in "forms" it should be protected so as to keep the heat in as long as possible. This is more essential in thin structures than in massive walls and foundations; for the latter will hold their own heat longer on account of their thickness.

Wooden "forms" are non-conductors, and will retain the heat in the concrete up to a certain point, but the concrete should be protected on top by a covering of canvas or heavy paper, with a layer of ten or twelve inches of manure on top of this. Straw will also answer the purpose. If manure is used, care should be taken to prevent it from coming in contact with the concrete, as it will discolor it, and possibly even seep through sufficiently to weaken the structure.

PROTECTING THIN STRUCTURES.

In the case of thin walls where extra cold weather calls for additional protection, heavy paper should be nailed to the vertical posts of the forms, (see Figure 4), thus leaving an enclosed air space between each pair of posts. These air spaces will have about fifteen degrees higher temperature than the outside air. The "forms" should always be left on longer in cold weather, as it takes longer for the concrete to harden.

There is no reason why concrete cannot be used with complete success in cold weather if these simple precautions be followed.

"Doctor, I want you to look after my office while I'm on my vacation." "But I've just graduated, doctor. Have had no experience." "That's all right, my boy. My practice is strictly fashionable. Tell the men to play golf and ship the lady patients off to Europe."

No More Dandruff

W. S. COLE KNOWS WHAT IS MAKING CLEAN SCALPS

In order to rid your scalp of filthy dandruff you must kill the germ. There is a hair dressing called Parisian Sage which is now sold in every town in Canada. It is guaranteed by W. S. Cole to eradicate dandruff, stop falling hair splitting hair and scalp itch in two weeks or money back.

If you have dandruff get a large 50c. bottle to-day and rid yourself of it. Remember that if dandruff germs are not destroyed in time, the hair will surely fall out and baldness will follow.

INFORMATION WANTED.—A letter has been received by the Advocate from Chas. N. Page of Des Moines, Iowa, asking for information regarding the decendants of Thos. Page, who formerly lived at Leominster, Mass., but moved to Ontario in about 1795. It is supposed that some of his decendants now live in this locality, though possibly those now here are not named Page, but may be of some other name, who married into the Page family at an earlier date. It appears that a large property amounting to several million dollars reverts to this branch of the family, and has been lying dormant for many years past. It is supposed that Thos. Page lived until about 1830, but it now becomes important to trace the time and place of his death and names of his decendants.

EXETER THAT WAS THAT IS THAT IS TO BE

To the Advocate,—

A very brief history of Exeter's past will reveal the fact that it possessed men of excellent qualities, men with with broad vision, men who were town builders, who hewed the town out of the woods and knew how to appreciate a good thing when they had it, who placed the affairs of the town under the administration of men of capacity, during whose time our fine stores and other public buildings were made a reality. Exeter once had a population of two thousand people, or very near that it had two flour mills, two sash and door factories, a chair factory, furniture factory, woolen mill, bending and turning factory and foundry that employed a large staff of men, as well as other industries of a minor nature. What population, markets and opportunities had Canada then as compared with now?

Are we satisfied with Exeter "that is" with the whole country abounding with opportunity for expansion? Are we getting our share in supplying the thousand and one things that our rapidly growing population in the West require, many lines of which could be as well made in Exeter as a pound of butter, or a suit of clothes. Exeter is surrounded by as good—if not better—agricultural district as there is to be found on the American continent, and I venture to say there is as much money on deposit in our banks and sent to the West for investment as any other district in Canada and sufficient to finance a good sized industry each year. We have also a large number of first-class workmen, who are compelled to be idle during the winter months for lack of industries, and the growth of our town checked from the same reason. People would rush here if there were employment. Ontario, the natural home of industries, will be outstripped by the less advantageous, but more progressive people of the West, who are putting forth every effort to secure industries by offering free utilities, such as tax exemption, free water, light and power, or at cost. In addition to that Calgary subscribed $85,000 in a single day to be spent in securing industries; Lethbridge $45,000; Bossano and many other places large sums, knowing that industries make cities.

The National Canners Convention in Milwaukee last February collected from the different concerns represented $100,000 for a publicity fund, and passed a resolution to spend the first $25,000 in brains to conduct the campaign.

Calgary selected their very best men to form their Industrial Committee and other places likewise.

Exeter has workmen, capital and brains. Have we not men who will rise to the occasion and combine their forces and set them in motion.

It becomes our duty to refer to the sad death of the wife of Mr. G. K. Kenzie who died in St. Joseph's Hospital, London on Tuesday morning, the 28th inst. after having gone through an operation but took sudden attacks of vomiting which finally resulted in her death. The death has come as a great blow to the family who are highly respected in this neighborhood. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, one son and four daughters who have the sincerest sympathy of the entire community. At time of writing funeral arrangements hadn't been made but the funeral will probably take place at the Evangelical Cemetery on Friday.

Council meeting will be held next Saturday, the 2nd of Dec. The change has been made on account of the 4th being the Nomination Day for the Provincial Elections.

Snell and Sheardown have been working hard the past week at the skating rink. A good bottom has been prepared and all that is necessary to make good skating is cold weather. On Friday evening a very enthusiastic meeting was held in the Bankers' Rooms where a Hockey Club was organized. The following are the officers,—Hon. Pres., H Eilber, M.P.P., Pres., Chas. Zwicker; Sec.-Treas., Fred Irish; Manager, H. Graham; Captain, Everett Fahner. We have a husky lot of fellows, who ought to give the clubs of the neighboring towns an interesting time. Just now subscription lists are being passed to help the boys in buying an outfit. They deserve to be patronized, Crediton has always been known as a town of good clean sports, and we must keep up our reputation.

The poor pig's days are numbered. Its dying squeal can be heard early in the morning. The metzersup is quite a treat.

Rev. Burn preached an eloquent sermon on the essential points required to make a success in life, in the Evangelical church on Sunday evening. In the morning a special effort was made to wipe out the debts on the new sheds. A considerable quantity of money was raised.

Our farmers are wearing wide-wide smiles these days when they are handed their cheques for the alsike, clover and sugar beets they sell. They average $500 to $600 apiece. Who would not be a farmer? There ought to be quite a number more autoes in this neighborhood next year.

DASHWOOD

Messrs. Henry and John Ehlers left Saturday morning to attend the funeral of a relative near Clifford.—Mr. D. Campbell of Komoka had an auction sale of cows here on Saturday. In all there were 22 cows, for which the average price was $45. Mr. Campbell expects to return in the near future with a load of young cattle.—Mr. Arthur Edighoffer and Miss Eilber of Zurich were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Edighoffer on Sunday.—Miss Jessie Baker, who has been engaged in Goderich for some time is spending a few days at her home here.—Miss Ida Goetz left on Saturday for Sarnia to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Humble.—Mr. Arthur Doam of Parkhill spent Sunday with friends here. Arthur, Arthur, what meaneth those regular visits?—Monday next, Dec. 4th will be Nomination day at Hensall, when the two candidates, H. Eilber and E. Zeller will be the candidates. That Mr. Eilber, the present popular member, will again be elected by a large, or larger majority than before is a foregone conclusion. The progressive and straightforward policy of the Whitney government has been so satisfactory to the masses that they are as likely as not to go back with an increased majority.

Rev. H. A. Kellermann, son of Mr. G. Kellermann, of Dashwood has been transferred as pastor of the Evangelical Church at Walkerton, to the Berlin charge. Mr. Kellermann is a young man, having been preaching less than a year, and it is a matter of gratification to his friends that the bishop of this church, recognizing his ability, has given him this promotion.

MOUNT CARMEL.

Miller—Querrin—On Tuesday morning, 21st, the R. C. Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Miss Susie Querrin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Querrin, was married to Mr. Henry Miller, a prosperous farmer of Hay township. The bride looked charming gowned in white satin and wore a beautiful white hat. She was assisted by Miss Tillie Wild, niece of the groom, who was dressed in pale blue silk, with black hat. Little Mary Wild made a very pretty flower girl. P. J. Querrin, brother of the bride, supported the groom. Rev. Father Forster performed the marriage ceremony and afterward sang the Nuptial Mass. The choir, under the able leadership of Miss J. Doyle, rendered elegant music. The large number of presents from relatives and friends were fitting testimony of the popularity in which the bride and groom are held. Their many friends wish them many happy years of wedded life.

Mr. Robert Patton is seriously ill at his home. His many friends wish for him a speedy recovery.—The Box Social held in the Hall on Tuesday night was largely attended.—Mrs. Joseph Glavin, who has been so seriously ill, we are pleased to say, is recovering.—Mr. Patrick Sullivan left on Wednesday for St. Thomas, where he intends to remain for some time.

LUMLEY.

Our nice little bit of sleighing left us on Monday.—Mrs. Thos. Dickson and daughter, Miss Maude of Seaforth were visitors here over Sunday.—Mr. Nicholas Horton of Harpurhey spent a few days at the end of the week with his brothers here.—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jacksonof Listowell spent Sunday with the latter's mother, Mrs. Glenn.—Miss Nettie Shillinglaw was the guest of Miss Nan Horton on Monday.—Mr. Fred Simmons returned home from the West on Wednesday of last week.—The neighbors of Mr. Miller made a wood bee on Saturday and cut about twenty cords of wood, which was a very kind act, as Mr. Miller is in poor health and confined to his bed all the time.—Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Bell of Tuckersmith were visitors at H. G. Bolton's on Sunday.—A young son has come to brighten the home of Mr. Grant Ryckman.—The remains of the late Mrs. Henry Pybus were interred in the cemetery here on Saturday afternoon last.—Mr. Angus McCaig and family of Chiselhurst spent Sunday at Noah Horton's.—Mrs. Henderson and niece, Miss Taylor of Pt. Elgin were pleasant visitors with relatives here for the past week.—Wedding bells will soon be ringing in our midst.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoggarth were the guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. Simmons on Sabbath last.

KIRKTON.

Mr. Geo. Mills has purchased the shoe shop from Messrs. Doupe and Co. and has moved it to his own premises.—Mr. J. Doupe of Chatham is visiting friends in this vicinity. He has purchased a farm in Manitoba and intends removing there early in the spring.

The Parsons-Davis Company are handling large quantities of fowl this season, and have three or four teams on the road the most of the time. The fowl is being shipped to Vancouver, B.C.—Mr. T. Carling of Exeter spent Sunday with friends in the village.—Mr. Wes. Parkinson of Elimville spent Sunday the guest of Mr. Seth Brown.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Hutchinson of Whalen spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Brock.—Special arrangements are being made for the coming anniversary services of the Sunday School, which are to be held on Dec. 18th.—Inspector J. E Tom of Goderich made his usual visit to the school on Tuesday. The school is in a good flourishing condition, which speaks well for the teacher, Miss Marshall.—Rev. Blatchford's horse got into a little mix-up at T. Boyes' on Monday evening, and resulted in some broken harness and shafts.—Mr. and Mrs. W. Fraser of Exeter visited friends in the village on Sunday last.

A PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

An investment that guarantees good returns is a year's subscription to The Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal. This Journal—The family Herald and Weekly Star for a whole year and the beautiful picture "Home Again" all for one dollar is the very best dollar's worth that can be had. The picture "Home Again" is certainly a beauty. Such value has never before been offered in Canada. The Family Herald and Weekly Star is a most wonderful combination. It appeals to all classes, all ages, and brings pleasure and profit to every home it reaches.

ITALIANS ARE HEMMED IN

A Correspondent Says They Are Besieged By the Turks.

A despatch from Paris, says: That the town of Tripoli is virtually besieged by the Turks, and that Homs is in on better situation, is the opinion of a correspondent of The Temps, who has succeeded in joining the Ottoman forces near Zouagher. He telegraphs regarding the Turkish side of the war, and says it is certain that after a month and a half of war, after large expenditures and serious losses, the Italians are no farther advanced than on the day following their disembarkation. If the Turkish forces are inferior in numbers to the Italians, they make up in confidence what they lack in numbers.

"I expected to find disorder and discouragement. On the contrary, everywhere I met order, discipline and contentment. Patient and ready for everything, the Turkish soldiers is accepting all without complaint. If he suffers he knows it is for the Empire of Islam, while the Arab knows that if he dies paradise with Mohammed will be his."

The food of the Turkish army is frugal but sufficient. Arms are adequate, many carrying rifles captured from the enemy. The correspondent did not find any dissensions among the Arabs and the Turks. The Arabs, whose forces had just been swelled by the fierce, war-loving natives of Misrata, are most enthusiastic, insisting that they should be marched towards Tripoli to recapture it.

The correspondent is unable to divulge the numbers or plans of defence and offence of the Turks, merely saying that their foreign military attaches must have made helpful observations.

WORK FROM SMALL POWER

Can Run Street Cars With Current Found in Telephone Circuit.

A despatch from New York says: The most recent invention that Prof. M. I. Hupin, of Columbia University, expects to spring on the world was spoken of by him at Wednesday's meeting of the National Academy of Sciences, in the lecture-room of the new library. He said he was not ready to go into the particulars just then, but by the next meeting of the Academy in April he would be prepared to explain to the scientists how he could get incredible amounts of work done by the use of small quantities of electricity. The machine that would do this, said the professor, had been discovered almost through accident and in fact his first one was broken into bits at the first application of a small current. As an example of the utility of his machine he spoke of running street cars with the current which was found in a telephone circuit. The principle had not been known before, he was sure.

SHIPMENT OF MILK.

Board Makes Order Respecting Handling and Return of Cans.

A despatch from Ottawa says: An order of great interest to farmers has been issued by the Railway Commission as a result of an application made on June 22 by the Montreal Milk Shippers' Association. This provides that every can shipped must have the owner's name stenciled on it, and covers firmly attached. They must all be loaded on the cars by shippers, and the empty ones will be returned by the railway companies without extra charge. If there are under twenty empty cans the railway will unload these; if there are under forty the shipper must supply one man to aid; if there are over forty the shipper must supply two. If any train is delayed over thirty minutes the trainmen must load the milk. After the 1st of September next year the railway companies will not be forced to take any can less than eight gallons.

MURDERER MUST HANG.

Duke of Connaught Declines to Interfere With Sentence.

A despatch from Ottawa says: On the advice of the Cabinet, his Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught has declined to interfere in the sentence of death passed upon James A. Leak, a Hungarian, who murdered his wife and her parents near Saskatoon. There were no extenuating circumstances. This is the first capital case to come before the new Governor-General.

SIXTY PERISHED.

Austrian Steamer Wrecked in Sirocco Which Swept Coast.

A despatch from Vienna says: The Austrian steamer Roumania was wrecked on Friday near Rovigno. It is reported that sixty persons were drowned. A sirocco has swept the coast of the Adriatic for three days and caused much damage to shipping.

THE WORLD'S GRAIN CROPS

Cabled By the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome.

A despatch from Washington says: The International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, Italy, has cabled to the United States Department of Agriculture its estimates of world's crop of production as follows:—

Wheat, 100.2 per cent. of last year's production, or 3,055,733,000 bushels.

Rye, 93 per cent. of last year's production, or 1,324,000,000 bushels.

Barley, 99.4 per cent. of last year's production, or 1,208,067,000 bushels.

Oats, 90.8 per cent. of last year's production, or 3,334,500,000 bushels.

Corn, the estimated production in Hungary is 69,032,000 cwt., or or 138,046,000 bushels of 56 pounds.

Wheat, estimated area sown in Argentina, 617,043,000 acres; in Chile, 1,863,000 acres, and in Australia, 7,905,000 acres.

Oats, estimated area sown in Argentina is 2,547,000 acres, and in Australia, 689,000 acres.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

MUNICIPALS HAVE NO GREAT PROSPECT OF APPRECIATION, BUT ARE READILY CONVERTIBLE INTO CASH.

The "Yield" Basis on Which Bonds are Usually Sold Eliminate a Great Part of Prospective Appreciation—Stable in Price Owing to Fact That They are Unaffected by General Conditions — Recapitulation.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By Investor.)

When one buys an investment, strictly speaking, one looks merely at the rate of income. Prospect of appreciation, when present to a high degree, usually indicates danger, perhaps remote—in the extent of realization not measuring up to anticipation—of severe loss from a drop in value. An investment should be free from any such danger. As a rule, really high-class investments altogether fail to take into consideration prospect of appreciation, and, of course, as the better class of municipal bonds are strictly "gilt-edged" investments, the question of appreciation is one very remote from the thoughts of the average investor who buys this class of security. To be sure, they are by no means as rigid in value as real estate mortgages, but they are not likely to any extent to appreciate in market price. In the first place, they are usually sold on the basis of their "yield." One buys City of Toronto 4 per cent. bonds to yield 3.96 per cent., and then by the aid of tables which every bond dealer has—and most bond buyers—the price is worked out afterwards. As was pointed out in an early article in this series, "yield" represents the taking into consideration, in the return on the investments, the gain—where the bonds are sold below par or the loss where a price greater than par is paid—resulting from the purchase at 95, say, and the ultimate redemption of the bonds at par. At the risk of being tiresome, it may be pointed out shortly that when purchasing a bond due a year hence at 99, the purchaser receives 100 at the end of the year. He thus makes 1 per cent on his purchase. If the bond pays 4 per cent. the "yield" on the investment is not 4.00 divided by 99 or 4.04 per cent., as in the case of a stock which is never redeemed, but 400 divided by 99 + 1, or 5.04 per cent. So that the prospect of appreciation in purchasing a bond at 95 due to its redemption at par is duly taken care of in the "yield." On the other hand, the growth of a city whose bonds formerly sold on a 5 per cent. basis may make these bonds appreciate so in value that a 4 1-2 per cent basis is the proper price, and in that way an investor may make through appreciation. But as a rule, however, this element is one that has a decidedly unprominent place in the handling of municipal bonds.

The question of convertibility into cash, however, is very different. The great safety of municipal bonds make them so desirable as security for loans that bankers will loan on them at a rate from one-half to 1 per cent., lower than they loan on security of shares of stock in a sound company, and at the same time require only about one-fourth the margin. So that the investor in municipal bonds has always available a security which his banker would be glad to accept as security for a loan at around 95 per cent. of its value at a rate but little over the rate of interest which the bond pays. Furthermore, practically all bond dealers are glad to repurchase municipal bonds at about half a point below their market value, and so the marketability of this class of investment is very high. The only question left, then, is that of stability of market price.

This point is easily determined. These bonds do not depend for their security on general business conditions, as do those of most industrial companies, and are, as a rule, affected only by the loaning value of money. As this alters but little in Canada it has little influence on these bonds. Then, too, except for a few large issues sold in London, there is no open market for municipal bonds. But they are being bought and sold daily by dealers trained in estimating their values and so, although there are no quoted prices for these securities, there are no fluctuations in their prices as there are often in the case of unlisted shares at different times. As a rule, therefore, these bonds do not alter materially in value, and certainly are not subject to violent fluctuations. Just at the present time an investor could probably sell municipal bonds bought earlier in the year for a better price than he paid, owing to the great scarcity of this class of security when compared to the demand. For example, during the past week the sales of municipals to investors by bond dealers in Toronto alone must have exceeded $500,000, while the bonds purchased from municipalities to replace them for local consumption have amounted to under $200,000. As this has been going on for several months now, the dealers are growing pretty short of bonds, and so there is a ready market at good prices for those of clients who wish to convert them into cash.

To recapitulate we have decided in these articles on municipal bonds that as a class,

Their safety is great, both as regards principal and interest.

Their rate of income is low for the most part, but high as compared with other forms of investment in other countries of equal security.

They are readily convertible into cash.

They have little prospect of appreciation in value, but are not like mortgages in this respect, which have absolutely none. And finally,

Their market price is stable to an unusual degree for securities unquoted or exchanges which, in some cases, suffer severe fluctuations without reason.

Certainly, after taking account of these considerations, municipal bonds—and this includes provincial and Dominion government obligations as well—are a very desirable form of investment for estates and trustees, and particularly for women whose sole source of income is derived from investments, and whose comfort and livelihood may depend on the safety of their capital.

100 KILLED AND INJURED

The Bibby Oil Coke Mills, Liverpool, Totally Wrecked by an Explosion.

A despatch from Liverpool, England, says: Forty-three workers are known to have been killed and upwards of 100 others injured by a boiler explosion which occurred on Friday at the oil cake mills of J. Bibby & Sons. The force of the explosion was so terrific that the roof of the great mill was blown off, while the walls split and crumbled, and the bodies of the victims hurtled high into the air mingled with the flashes of flames which instantly followed the bursting of the boilers. Nearly 400 workers were engaged in the building at the time. Every one was hurled to the ground through the violence of the explosion. Those in the near vicinity of the boiler-room had their arms and legs torn off, and their horribly mangled bodies fell into the adjoining streets together with the showers of brick and debris. Fire immediately broke out and the whole building was soon in flames. Men frantically appealing for help could be seen at every window with fire raging behind them. Fire escapes were quickly on the scene and many of the men were saved. The scorched clothing and burned hair of those brought down told of the terrible ordeal through which they had gone. Many of those who were taken to the hospital are suffering from shocking injuries. Some of them have lost legs and arms and others are fearfully burned, so that many of them are not expected to recover.

EXPRESS PACKAGE STOLEN.

Contained $5,000, and Disappeared While Clerk was Absent.

A despatch from Regina, says: An express package, said to contain about $5,000, was stolen from the office of the Canadian Northern Express Company about 3.30 a.m. on Thursday. The night clerk, a man named Cameron, was absent from the office but a few seconds, when he returned to find the package gone. Nothing else was disturbed, and the only person about was a brakeman, who was sitting on a chair near the safe. The Mounted Police and the city police were both notified. No arrests have been made.

30-KNOT GERMAN CRUISER.

Armored Ship Moltke Exceeds Her Contract Speed.

A despatch from Danzig, Germany, says: The armored cruiser Moltke, a sister ship of the Von Der Tann, is said to have attained a speed of thirty knots an hour over a measured mile here on Thursday. Her turbine engines developed 50,000 horse power, her contract calling for only 45,000. On the previous trial she made twenty-nine and one-half knots.

The Quickest, Surest Cough Remedy You Ever Used, or Money Refunded. Stops Even Whooping Cough Quickly.

You may not need the $2 which a 50-cent bottle of Pinex saves you, but you do need the wonderful effectiveness of this famous cough remedy. It will usually stop the most obstinate deep-seated cough inside of 24 hours, and has no equal for whooping cough.

A 50-cent bottle of Pinex, mixed with home-made sugar syrup, gives you 16 ounces—a family supply of the most pleasant and effective cough remedy you ever used. Easily prepared in five minutes—directions in package.

The way this takes hold of a cough and gives instant relief will make you regret that you never tried it before. Stimulates the appetite, is slightly laxative and tastes good—children take it willingly. It has a wonderful record in cases of incipient lung trouble and is splendid for croup, asthma, bronchitis, throat trouble, etc.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of Norway White Pine extract, rich in guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Simply mix with sugar syrup or strained honey, in a 16-ounce bottle, and it is ready for use. Used in more homes in the U. S. and Canada than any other cough remedy.

Pinex has often been imitated, but never successfully, for nothing else will produce the same results. The genuine is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Certificate of guarantee is wrapped in each package. Your druggist has Pinex or will gladly get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

THE STAIRCASE TEST

If You Cannot Pass It Your Health is Failing.

When you suffer acute palpitation of the heart, dizziness or faintness every time you go up stairs; when exertion of any kind leaves you breathless and trembling, it is a warning that your blood is defective—that you are anaemic. If these warnings are neglected worse disorders will follow—perhaps decline and deadly consumption. If you are in this condition you need the new, good blood of health that has been given to thousands of sufferers by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills banish all the ailments arising from poor blood, tone up the system and make weak men and women well and strong. Miss Elizabeth Campbell, Almonte, Ont., says: "I was living in Pembroke at the time my health failed me. I kept growing weaker every day until I at last grew so weak I could not walk up stairs without help, and I could not go down street without sitting down and resting. My mother got quite anxious about me and took me to a doctor who said he was quite sure he could restore my health. He gave me a little bottle of medicine, and I continued its use until I had taken four bottles, but instead of getting stronger I was growing weaker all the time, and was only a mere shadow of my former self. My parents believed I was in a decline and could not get better. My mother had heard so much about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that she decided I ought to try them. I did not notice much change until I had taken five or six boxes, when a decided improvement set in, and from that on I grew stronger and stronger each day, until through a continued use of the pills I was back to my old-time health and strength. I believe Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the best remedy on earth for sick people, and cannot too strongly urge other weak girls to give them a trial."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DEPENDS ON WHERE HE IS

"How old would you say she is?"

Away With Depression and Melancholy.—These two evils are the accompaniment of a disordered stomach and torpid liver and mean wretchedness to all whom they visit. The surest and speediest way to combat them is with Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, which will restore the healthful action of the stomach and bring relief. They have proved their usefulness in thousands of cases and will continue to give relief to the suffering who are wise enough to use them.

A FULL REPORT.

One day an 8-year-old girl, who had been taught to report her misdeeds promptly, sought her mother with an aspect of grief denoting great penitence.

"I broke a brick in the fireplace," the youngster explained, between sobs.

"Well, that isn't beyond remedy," smiled the parent, "but how on earth, child, did you do it?"

"I was pounding it with father's watch!"

DON'T LET THAT COUGH ROB YOU OF SLEEP

You probably know all too well how it goes. Just as you doze off, the tickling starts in your throat. A gentle cough, still asleep. A harder cough, and then another. First thing you know, you're wide awake, coughing your head off.

A few nights of that and you're so worn out and weakened that the cough takes a tight grip on you.

But why endure it?

Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne will soothe that exasperating tickling, loosen the phlegm and cure the inflammation of the mucous membrane. It not only stops the cough quickly, allowing you to get sound, refreshing sleep, but it goes to the root of the trouble and drives out the cold completely. Children willingly take Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne, because it tastes so good. Your Druggist has it or can quickly get it for you in 25c. and 50c. bottles. LONDON'S STREETS.

Polished Surface of Thoroughfares Show Great Care.

After a spell of dry weather the streets in London, England, paved with wood and asphalt, become polished to a very high degree, and the sheen upon Victoria street and Piccadilly, and some other roads, is so remarkable that at night they shine almost like ice in the glare of the lamps, writes Lord Montague in London Car.

If an unused section be observed over which motors do not run, no plush will be seen, but in the middle of the street the surface, though curiously enough, not slippery in its dry state, is polished like the floor of a ball-room, the natural effect, when one comes to think of it, of rubber and steel in juxtaposition, and the slight but continual slipping of wheels over a surface of hardwood. One effect of this polish is to make it impossible for any light or loose matter to rest upon it when there is any wind at all.

The centre of the streets has become marvellously clean, and all the horse refuse is blown into the gutters near the pavement, which, being often flushed with a trickle of water, collects most of this light and dangerous detritus which would otherwise be blown farther afield. I have often written of the Ebony Way down the Champs Elysees in Paris. We have now in London many ebony ways, but not being given as a nation to so much overlubrication as our Gallic neighbors, our roads are not as black, owing to dripping oil on the surface. The surface of our streets is becoming more like polished ivory than polished ebony. The effect of the Road Board and its grants is already to be seen all over England in regard to the making of main roads dustless.

A WARNING TO MOTHERS

No mother can expect her little one to escape all the ills of childhood, but every mother who accepts fair warning as to the treatment of these little ills can save her baby such suffering. Thousands of mothers of young children keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house—all mothers should do so. The Tablets are a never-failing cure for all the minor ills of babyhood and childhood. They can be given with perfect safety—they always do good; never harm. Constipation, indigestion, colic, simple fevers, colds, etc., all rapidly disappear under treatment with the Tablets. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SURPRISE 'EM.

"He makes a fine appearance."

"Yes. You'd never guess he'd come to borrow money until he makes the touch."

A Simple and Cheap Medicine.—A simple, cheap and effective medicine is something to be desired. There is no medicine so effective a regulator of the digestive system as Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They are simple, they are cheap, they can be got anywhere, and their beneficial action will prove their recommendation. They are the medicine of the poor man and those who wish to escape doctors' bills will do well in giving them a trial.

GOOD.

"He has a good wife, hasn't he?"

"I should say so. He can always borrow money from her when he goes broke himself."

BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES NOW.

It is stated that Messrs. Krupp, of Essen, Germany, are now manufacturing a type of steel for safes which resists the action of quick-cutting drills and breaks the best bits like glass. It is equally proof against the blow-pipe. To cut it in this way a length of time is required not at the disposal of the burglar. To cut a plate 40 mm. thick with a blow-pipe it takes six to fourteen hours, 12,000 litres of hydrogen and 13,000 of acetylene. This would involve the conveyance of six steel cylinders of compressed gas, each weighing 70 kilos., which is presumably beyond the resources of the average burglar at any rate.

Quebec Postmaster was confined to bed when he started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills—They cured him.

Tippins, Pontiac Co., Que., Nov. 27 (Special).—Postmaster F. Tippins, of this place, who for three years has been more or less of an invalid, and who for some time was confined to his bed, is up and around again, a healthy and hearty man. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

"After recovering from an attack of Grippe," the Postmaster says in telling the story of his cure. "I took a pain in my back and I suffered for nearly three years, finally getting so bad that I was confined to my bed.

"One day I told my wife to go and get me some Dodd's Kidney Pills, as that would be the last medicine I would try. After using about half the box I began to feel better, so I kept on taking them. When I had taken two boxes I was able to get up, and ten boxes cured me completely."

The principal danger of Grippe is the after effects. The way to guard against this is to strengthen the Kidneys so they can strain all the dregs of the disease out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills are always the last medicine anyone takes for Kidney Disease. It always cures and no other medicine is needed.

Often what appear to be the most trivial occurrences of life prove to be the most momentous. Many are disposed to regard a cold as a slight thing deserving of little consideration, and this neglect often results in most serious ailments entailing years of suffering. Drive out colds and coughs with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the recognized remedy for all affections of the throat and lungs.

A Power of Its Own. — Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has a subtle power of its own that other oils cannot pretend to, though there are many pretenders. All who have used it know this and keep it by them as the most valuable liniment available. Its uses are innumerable and for many years it has been prized as the leading liniment for man and beast.

MEAN THING.

He—"I suppose, wifey, you wouldn't care to go to the theatre in your old dress?"

She—"Oh, dear, no. Of course not."

He—"That's what I thought, so I—"

She—"Yes, dear—"

He—"So I only bought one ticket for myself."

HINTS FOR THE HOME.

A great convenience when cleaning house is a stick with a notch in the end that will lift picture cords off from hooks without so much stepping up and down.

When patching wall paper tear the edges of the piece about to be used. When pasted upon the wall a tear in paper shows less than a cut with knife or scissors.

If a meal has been taken within two or three hours of going to bed to sleep on the left side is to give the stomach a task which is difficult in the extreme to perform.

Pillow slips should be a half inch narrower than the pillows they are to cover. This snugness in fit insures the pillows standing upright when the bed is made up.

A clean brick represents an excellent makeshift stand for a flat-iron. Brick retains heat better than the perforated metal rests which are usually employed for the purpose.

If cooked meat is ready for the table before it is required, place in a dish and set over a pan of boiling water placed on the back of the range and covered with cloth.

If baby has swallowed a fishbone and is in danger of choking, use your forefinger in the form of a hook, and even at the risk of considerable pain relieve the little sufferer.

A little kerosene added to warm water when washing windows, especially outside, will remove the sticky condition often found better than alcohol, ammonia, or whiting.

Try washing of the hands with a little sugar added to the soap. This greatly increases the lather and cleansing power, and will remove dirt and chemical stains in a wonderful manner.

A never failing rule to follow in placing sleeves is to measure one-inch back of the shoulder seam, measure one-half of the arm hole, and place the underseam of sleeve at this point.

BONDS PAY BETTER INTEREST ON YOUR MONEY

¶ In point of security and interest return, the small investor in bonds is on the same footing as the institution or individual with thousands or tens of thousands to invest.

¶ Until Bonds in their present form were devised, it was not an easy thing to find an investment, safe, easily convertable into cash, and simple in form, and yielding as high as 6 per cent. interest.

¶ It is a matter of importance to you to know that we generally have on hand bonds in denominations of $100 and upwards, paying interest of from 4½ to 6 per cent.

¶ These are seasoned securities, bonds that have demonstrated their ability to pay interest and principal.

¶ If you have any money, no matter what the amount, earning less than this, you should ask us how to re-invest it in a way to afford better interest with as good, or better security.

The Ideal Reading Lamp

Opticians agree that the light from a good oil lamp is easier on the eyes than any other artificial light.

The Rayo Lamp is the best oil lamp made.

It gives a strong, yet soft, white light; and it never flickers. It preserves the eyesight of the young; it helps and quickens that of the old.

You can pay $5, $10, or $20 for other lamps, but you cannot get better light than the low-priced Rayo gives.

Made of solid brass, nickel-plated. Easily lighted, without removing shade or chimney. Easy to clean and rewick.

NEW ATLANTIC NAVAL BASE.

Harbor for British Home Fleet in The Firth of Clyde.

It is stated on good authority at Glasgow, Scotland, that the admiralty has decided to make a new naval base at Lamlash Bay, in the Isle of Arran, in the Firth of Clyde. Heavy moorings are being laid down there, and everything points to the intention of the Admiralty to provide safe accommodation for a complete squadron. This new Clyde base is to become the headquarters of the third division of the home fleet.

Hitherto, the east coast has for obvious reasons been the scene of the most vital changes in the disposition of Britian's Naval strength. At Rosyth, on the Forth, there are, as is well known, immense works going forward which will make this place a very important and strong naval base for the largest ships.

At Dundee smaller craft, including submarines are concentrated, while Scapa Flow, in the Orkney Islands, has also of late received considerable attention from the admiralty.

Lower down the coast, at Harwich, in Essex, is the very important headquarters of the destroyer flotillas.

At its nearest point the sun is 91,250,000 miles from the earth.

THURSDAY, NOV. 30, '11

There never was anything quite so vicious as the attacks of The Globe on Premier Whitney, whom Mr. Rowell, the Liberal Leader, says we must acknowledge is a bluff but honest statesman. The Globe does not attack his administration but satisfies itself with calling him names. The reverend editor is still peevish over the defeat of his own peculiar set, Reciprocity.

The Dominion Governemnt and the Manitoba Government have come to an arrangement by which the "postage stamp" province is to have a large increase in area, the new territory extending to Hudson Bay. The province will then have an area of 240,000 miles, as compared with 80,000 square miles. By the same arrangement the Province of Ontario is increased by 146,400 square miles. This large addition is equal in size to about two-thirds of the whole of the old Province. The new territory is largely unknown excepting along the rivers Severn, Winnipeg and Attawabiskat. The Severn with its branches drains the larger part of the area. It is believed that there is iron and copper in the new territory while there is abundant pulpwood in the southern portion. As to agricultural possibilities little is known.

The Expositor is vainly endeavoring to argue that because Harry Ellber has given fourteen years of efficient service as a member of the provincial legislature, that because he is the municipal clerk of the Township of Stephen, and that because he is manager and secretary of the Hay Insurance Company he should be defeated at the approaching election. Now, are those not weighty reasons why he should not be re-elected? It is successful men we want in the Legislature. The Expositor seems to forget that success breeds success. The sentiments expressed by the Expositors surely cannot be those of M. Y. McLean who has so often been the candidate for parliamentary honors. But since there is not a single reason why Mr. Ellber should not be re-elected any old excuse seems to be good enough for the Expositor to offer.

It is strange that American naval officers should make the statement that "there has been no increase of the number or character of the American warships on the Great Lakes recently such as would come under the Rush-Bagot agreement" The treaty provides for only one gunboat on the lakes and from the signing of the treaty, 1818, until a few years ago the only American gunboat on the lakes was the old Michigan. Within the past five years a fleet of ten or a dozen gunboats has been established on the Upper Lakes, most of them taken through the Canadian canals. Several are quite large, up-to-date vessels carrying guns. The American naval officers may simply be playing on words by designating these warships as "training ships" but they are warships," in every sense of the term, and now completely dominate the lakes, as Canada has lived up to the treaty.

Skin a Mass of Fire

Horrible torture—pain unendurable—days when the whole body seems to be burning up—long nights of sleepless agony—Then—

INSTANT RELIEF—The skin cooled and refreshed—all burning and itching gone.

Thousands testify to this—thousands who suffered from Eczema, Psoriasis and other skin troubles, until they heard of that simple cooling wash of Wintergreen, Thymol and other ingredients known as D. D. D. Prescription.

J. Samuel Lewis, writes,—"I used three bottles of D.D.D. Prescription, and now my skin, once a mass of fire and irritation, is as smooth and soft as a child's."

Of all remedies for the skin that we know we can especially recommend the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema. Just a mild, soothing wash—but it cleanses and cools the skin as nothing else can. And it takes away the itch instantly.

We would like to tell you more about D.D.D. Prescription if you will call, or write the D. D. D. Laboratories, Dept. E. A., 49 Colborne St., Toronto, and get a free trial bottle.

Official figures of the late election show that the Conservatives had a popular majority of 43,383. In Ontario alone it was 65,904. The Conservatives had a majority of votes in Ontario, Manitoba, British Columbia and Prince Edward Island, and the Liberals in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. The Liberal popular majority in 1908 was 24,000.

The Ross Government in 1904 gave for educational purposes $949,000. The Whitney Government for 1910 gave $1,750,000.

GRAND BEND.

Mr. Emery Carriere left Tuesday for Toronto, after spending two months with his parents.—Mr. David Baird has hired with Mr. Dale near Lucan for a year.—Mr. Rau was here hunting Monday.—Mrs. Wm. Buchanan arrived home Tuesday from the Sanitorium much improved in health.—Miss Dale, who has been visiting at Mr. Amos', left for her home Monday.—Mr. D. Wilson of Arkona visited with Ed. Gill, jr., last week.—Mrs. Ross, who has been sick, improving.

FULLARTON,—The funeral of Mrs. Georgette McLean, relict of the late John McLean, held to-day to Roys church Cemetery in Fullarton, was largely attended. Mrs. McLean was in her 91st year, and died on Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John H. Melville, of Mitchell.

AILSA CRAIG—Percy Parker, an old Craig boy, who has spent the last four years in the west, was brought home by his physician, suffering from a nervous breakdown.

FULLARTON—Margaret Campbell, relict of the late John McDougal, one of the pioneer settlers of this township, died in Filmore, Sask., on Nov. 17th, in her 92nd year. Her remains were interred in Fullarton cemetery last Wednesday.

KIPPEN—A number of men are busily engaged cutting the timber on the Paul Doig farm and drawing it to the station for shipment to London, where the owner, Mr. Beck has it manufactured into boxes.—Mr. Bruce Berry narrowly escaped being caught by a rolling log at the station last week as it was his boot was caught and the sole torn off.

CLINTON—Mrs. A. Forces, of Clinton, and formerly of Seaforth, has just had a letter from her sister, Mrs. W. C. Kyle, of Stroma, Alberta, giving the melancholy particulars of a sad affair which happened her second daughter, Edna A. It seems the young lady was burned to death. She was using coal oil to light a fire when the can of oil in her hands exploded, setting fire to her clothing.

SEAFORTH—A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on November 22nd, at high noon at the home of Mr. Robert Barnett, Seaforth, when his daughter, Miss Susannah Mae was united in marriage to Mr. Hiram Charles Lombard, of Buffalo.

Grand Trunk Brakeman, Louis Witty met with a very serious accident here while coupling cars. The cars came together with such force that the brake bar broke and piece struck Mr. Witty on the side of the head, tearing one of his ears off and inflicting terrible cuts. He was stunned by the blow.

Village of Exeter

By-Law No. ... 1911

BY-LAW TO AUTHORIZE THE ISSUE of Debentures of the Corporation of the Village of Exeter to the amount of Five thousand dollars, for the purpose of extending the present Water-Works System of the said Corporation.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Village of Exeter deem it advisable to extend the Water-works System of the said Corporation and in order thereto it will be necessary to issue debentures of the said Corporation to the extent of Five thousand dollars (5000), as hereinafter provided, which is the amount of the debt intended to be created by this by-law, the proceeds of the said debentures to be applied to the said purpose and no other.

AND WHEREAS it is desirable to make the principal of the said debt repayable by yearly sums during the period of twenty years, being the currency of the said debentures, said yearly sums being of such respective amounts that the aggregate amount payable in each year for Principal and Interest in respect of the said debt shall be as nearly as possible, equal to the amount so payable in each of the other nineteen years of the said period as detailed in Clause 4 of this By-law.

AND WHEREAS the total amount required to be raised, annually by a special rate for paying the said debt and interest is the sum of Four hundred and one dollars and twenty-two cents.

AND WHEREAS, the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Corporation of the Village of Exeter, according to the last revised Assessment Roll, is $575.588;

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing Debenture debt of the said Coporation of the Village of Exeter is $35,256.38 of which no part of the principal, or interest, is in arrear.

1. That for the purpose of raising the said Debentures of the said Corporation of the Village of Exeter, to the amount of Five Thousand dollars, Debentures shall be issued in sums of not less than One Hundred dollars each, and such debentures shall be signed by the Reeve of the Said Corporation for the time being, and countersigned by the Treasurer for the time being of the said Corporation and duly sealed with the Corporation Seal thereof by the Clerk for the time being of the said Corporation.

2. The said debentures shall be dated upon the date of the issue thereof and as to both Principal and Interest shall be payable in annual instalments within 20 years from the date of the issue thereof, such instalments to be of such amounts that the aggregate amount payable for Principal and Interest in any year during the said period of 20 years shall be as nearly equal as may be to what is payable for principal and interest during each of the other years of such period of 20 years, as set out in said clause 4 of this By-law.

3. The said debentures shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum per annum from the date of the issue thereof, and the said interest shall be payable yearly on the day of the month on which the said debentures are issued, and as to both principal and interest the said debentures shall be payable in annual instalments at a chartered Bank in the said Village of Exeter, the first of such instalments to become due and be paid in one year after the date of the issue of the said debentures.

4. During the currency of the said Debentures there shall be raised annually by a Special rate on all the rateable property in the said Corporation of the Village of Exeter, the sum of $401.22, for the purpose of paying the amount due in each of the years for Principal and Interest in respect of the said debt, as follows.—

CATARRH STAMPED OUT!
LOATHSOME DISEASE CURABLE.
Chronic Cases Cannot Exist with Morriscy's No. 26 for Internal and External Use.

ROGERSVILLE, N. B., April 6, 1910.
"A few words as to the merit of your Catarrh Cure. For the last 10 years I was troubled with Catarrh of the head and stomach, and during that time tried all kinds of remedies with no results. I was, however, determined to find a cure, and hearing of your No. 26 decided to give it a trial, and am glad to say it has cured me, and I highly recommend it to all Catarrh sufferers."
A. C. Thibodeau,
General Merchant

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

FREE TO YOU AND EVERY SISTER SUFFERING FROM WOMEN'S AILMENTS.

I am a woman.
I know woman's sufferings.
I have found the cure.

I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from women's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—you, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourself at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhœa or Whitish discharge, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths, also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weakness peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete 10 days treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer, if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all, old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhœa, Green Sickness, and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plumpness and health always result from its use.

Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all women's diseases and makes women well, strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten days' treatment is yours, also the book. Write to-day, as you may not see this offer again. Address:

SOME people have attempted to judge PURITY FLOUR before knowing the facts about it—before using it. So we ask you to be fair and to buy a sack or barrel of PURITY FLOUR and give it a thorough try-out before attempting to arrive at a judgment.

Look at the beauty and loftiness of the golden-crusted, snowy-crumbed loaves, fit for a king. Count them and see how many more of them PURITY yields to the barrel than ordinary flour does.

Taste the creamy, flaky pie crust, and the deliciously light cakes PURITY FLOUR rewards you with. My! How they make your mouth water!

Such high-class results can only be obtained when using a flour consisting exclusively of the high-grade portions of the best Western hard wheat berries.

And remember, that, on account of its extra strength and extra quality, PURITY FLOUR requires more water when making bread and more shortening when making pastry, than you are accustomed to use with ordinary flour.

PURITY FLOUR
"More bread and better bread"

Buy a bag or barrel of PURITY FLOUR. Test it for a week. Then pass judgment. Add PURITY FLOUR to the grocery list right now.

HOUSEHOLD

DAINTY DISHES.

Indian pudding is excellent for this season. Grease a pudding-dish and line it with a light suet crust. Put in alternate layers of sliced apples, quarters of orange, and pieces of figs. Scatter sugar over all and add a pinch of ginger. Cover with suet crust and boil for two hours. Turn out, and serve.

Russian Mince.—Cut one pound of cold meat into small pieces, also any cold vegetables, ham, bacon, or a suet pudding. Fry all in a little dripping, season highly with pepper, salt, finely chopped onion, parsley, and a tablespoonful of vinegar. Stir all together over the fire, and serve very hot on toast.

Tapioca gruel is most useful in some cases of illness. Take a heaped tablespoonful of tapioca, put it into a quart of cold water, and let it come slowly to boiling point, after which let it simmer slowly till the tapioca is very soft. Strain it, rejecting any tough pieces, and add, if liked, a little salt and cream.

Fried Beef Rashers.—Cut some slices of cold beef, roast or boiled, brush each over with ketchup, and season with pepper and salt. Fry some rashers of bacon, take them up, and in the fat fry the beef. Make a mould of mashed potatoes and arrange the slices of beef and bacon on it. Serve very hot.

Cranberry Sauce.—Wash and pick over carefully a quart of cranberries. Put into the inner vessel of a farina kettle; add a cupful of water and cover. Fill the outer boiler with hot water, and cook until the berries are soft and broken to pieces. Now stir in sugar to taste; cook for a minute—no longer—and turn out into a bowl.

An Economical Stew.—Cut one pound and a half of gravy beef into small pieces as for a pie, dip each into flour, pepper, and salt, and put into a stewing-pan. Fill up with chopped vegetables, the greater variety the better, but no water. Add, if liked, a little powdered allspice. Put on the cover, tie it over with buttered paper, and set the jar in a moderate oven for about six hours. Serve very hot.

Doctor's Soup.—Pick over and wash three ounces of rice and place it in a saucepan with one quart of water. Let this cook till the water is reduced to one pint, add a quart of milk, a little chopped onion and celery, a pinch of salt, and a suspicion of mace. Place the saucepan on the side of the stove, and simmer the soup till the vegetables are thoroughly cooked. Before serving add a lump of butter, rubbed into half an ounce of flour, and a teaspoonful of chopped parsley.

Pumpkin Pudding—To a full pint of stewed pumpkin that has been put through the colander, add the beaten yolks of four eggs and a cupful of sugar. Stir into this a quart of milk, a teaspoonful of ground cinnamon, mace and nutmeg, and if you like, a little ginger. Lastly stir in the whites of two eggs whipped stiff. Turn into a buttered pudding dish and bake, covered for half an hour, then brown. A few minutes before drawing it from the oven spread on the top meringue made of the reserved whites, two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, and a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Shut up in the oven long enough to form the meringue and to tinge it lightly with golden brown. Eat cold.

Batter Currant Pudding.—Six ounces of flour, four ounces of currants (picked and washed), two eggs, half a pint of milk, one teaspoonful of baking-powder, a pinch of salt. Mix the baking-powder and salt into the flour in a basin. Break the eggs and place in a hole in the middle and add the milk, then beat till all is a smooth batter. Pour into a well buttered baking tin, sprinkle the currants over, and bake in a moderate oven for half an hour. Turn out the pudding to serve, and cut it in squares. Serve with white sugar sifted over.

Mock Oyster Bisque.—Scrape and trim a bunch of oyster plant, cut into inch lengths, and after leaving it in cold water half an hour, cook very soft in a pint and a half of salted water. Drain, and rub the vegetable through the colander or "press" back into the water in which it was cooked. Set over the fire and bring to a gentle boil. Season with celery salt and white pepper before stirring into it two cupfuls of hot milk scalded with a bit of soda dropped in to prevent curdling. Lastly, stir into the saucepan a white "roux," made by heating two tablespoonfuls of butter in a pan, working into it while it is over the fire a tablespoonful of flour and stirring smooth. Give a final boil of a minute, beating and stirring meanwhile, and pour out.

Mock Roast Duck.—Grind or chop together a pound of lean, raw beef and half a pound of sausage meat. Shell and blanch half a pound of almonds, let them dry out in an oven and grind them fine. Mix all these together and season with a teaspoonful of powdered sage, one of strained onion juice, and salt and pepper to taste. Form with your hands into an oblong roll. You may exercise young ingenuity by molding it into something that may be recognized as the form of a duck. Sift fine crumbs all over it, and lay in the covered roaster. Strain a ten-cent can of chicken soup; heat it to boiling, and pour about the "duck" when it is in place. Bake slowly for an hour, covered, basting six times, carefully, not to dislodge the crumbs. Then uncover and cook half an hour longer, basting often. Transfer to a hot platter and set over boiling water, while you thicken the gravy in the pan with browned flour, adding a teaspoonful of kitchen bouquet. Boil up and pour a few spoonfuls over the "duck," the rest into a gravy-boat.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Garnish boiled mutton with beetroot cut in slices and a little chopped parsley on each slice.

The flavor of salad dressing is greatly improved by the addition of a very little chopped capers or pickles.

Grease on a floor can be removed by scrubbing with a solution of unslacked lime, soda and water.

When peeling lemons for cooking purposes, be sure never to cut any of the white skin, as it has a bitter flavor.

When cleaning furniture wipe it over with tepid, soapy water, and dry it before polishing it with beeswax and turpentine.

If the oven does not brown, sprinkle a good handful of sugar on the bottom of the oven. It will then brown anything.

Turpentine is an excellent cleanser for many things. It will remove the marks of black lead from a marble mantelpiece, amongst other things.

Eggshells should always be carefully saved, for they are useful for clearing soup and jelly, and, if crushed and mixed with salt, for cleaning enamelled pans.

Bread should always be kept in an earthenware pan with a wooden cover. Wash the pan out every week, and dry thoroughly before replacing the loaves.

Tough meat should be laid in vinegar a few minutes before cooking. This is a particularly useful hint for summer, when meat cannot be hung till tender, as in winter.

Clothes should never hang longer in the kitchen than is necessary for airing them, for unpleasant odors of cooking will get into them, and cannot be got rid of without washing.

Young housekeepers will find it a good plan to keep an account book and enter, with regularity, all housekeeping expenses, adding up accounts every evening and making a weekly summary.

Good Polish for Oilcloth or Linoleum.—Save all ends of candles and melt in the oven. Mix with it sufficient turpentine to make a soft paste. This is really an excellent preparation.

Scratches on tables are very annoying. Keep a supply of rounds of dark green felt, on which to stand china jars, flower vases, and so on. These will not be noticeable, and will vastly save polished surfaces.

Thick blotting-paper under doilies will keep hot dishes from marking a polished table. The blotting-paper should be cut the same size as the various doilies. It takes the place of asbestos mats.

Table linen is apt to wear in the creases. Before signs of wear appear, cut a little off one side and hem it. This will bring the creases in a different place, and save the wear. The same may be done with the ends.

The flap of the sirloin should be cut off before it is cooked. It should be rubbed with salt for a few days, and then boiled very gently with herbs and spices in just enough water to cover. When done, press till cold. Garnish nicely before serving.

Great care should be taken to dry towels thoroughly before putting them away. If placed in the linen presses without being well aired, while still damp, a mould is likely to form upon them, which, it is said, produces skin diseases.

Ironing may be made easy by several thicknesses of newspaper, instead of cloth, being used when pressing. This prevents the shiny appearance which often follows the use of a damp cloth. Using a newspaper when pressing tucks in dress skirts instead of cloth will render the iron much easier in use.

In choosing footwear for your children, it should be remembered that lace boots are better for them than buttoned footwear. The shanks of the buttons are apt to press on the instep or ankle and cause discomfort, while better support is naturally given to the ankles when it is possible to draw in the laces at will.

To wash blankets cut up some soap and boil till dissolved, then add as much as is required to a tub of warm water to make a nice lather, then add about a tablespoonful of ammonia. Squeeze the blankets in this till clean, then rinse, wring out and hang in the air to dry. Only do two or three at a time as it is rather tiring work.

Curtain Stretching.—First make dining or extension table the desired length, place table padding over this, then put wet curtain down, spreading it out the original length and width. It will cling to the padding, no pins being used. Four curtains may be dried at a time by placing one on top of another, being careful to make each exactly as the one underneath.

How to Mend Gloves—If you wish to mend your gloves neatly, turn them inside out and sew them over and over with fine cotton thread. Silk seems to cut the fabric. If there is a tear, set a piece of kid under it and secure it with a few stitches; if you have not the kid of the right color, use a bit of the ribbon or silk. Save the best part of the old pair to mend the new. Court plaster will mend a break nicely, but always stiffens the kid.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, DECEMBER 3.

Lesson X.—Nehemiah rebuilds the wall of Jerusalem, Neh. 4 Golden Text, I. Cor. 16. 13.

Verse 1. Sanballat—He is the first mentioned of the malignant enemies whom Nehemiah encountered (compare Neh. 2. 10). It was not so long since all the Syrian colonists in Palestine had joined hands to obtain from Artaxerxes an order for the stoppage of the work of restoration in Jerusalem. There was great jealousy of Jerusalem throughout Samaria, and the heathen in general were angry at Ezra's severe strictures on intermarriage. But now that Nehemiah had come with royal authority, hostility had to take a new form, that of cunningly devised intrigue. The leader of all this renewed opposition was Sanballat, called "the Horonite" from his dwelling in Bethhoron, a town on the borders of Ephraim. He was a moving spirit in the city of Samaria, possibly governor.

Mocked—At first, we are told, Sanballat and his fellows were deeply grieved over the coming of Nehemiah (Neh. 2. 10). But this soon gave way to wrath and indignation when they saw that the people actually responded to the young governor's appeal to rise and build the wall. In their rage they resorted to the weak weapon of raillery.

2. Will they sacrifice?—This taunt amounts to a question as to whether these Jews expect simply to propitiate their God with burnt offerings and their work will be accomplished. Surely they cannot think to make both a beginning and an end in the short space of one day? For one thing the stones were burned and they could not revive them. And think of the heaps of rubbish! Almost a century and a half had passed since the walls had been razed. Huge building stones were strewn in every direction, while dust and refuse buried the ancient foundations many feet deep—explorers have stated that in some places the accumulated rubbish now reaches the great depth of 125 feet.

3. Tobiah the Ammonite—He was chief of a small tribe on the other side of the Jordan, a people who had gotten into Samaria after the Babylonian invasion. He is mentioned as the second of Nehemiah's enemies, and is called a servant, perhaps because he had held some position under the Persian governor (Neh. 2. 10). All these neighboring communities were now combined in order to prevent the reinstatement of Jerusalem as the dominant power of Palestine.

If a fox go up—It is possible there was some truth in the inference that even the soft tread of a light animal would be sufficient to bring the wall down. So hastily had it been put together that strength was wanting.

4. Hear, O our God—It was characteristic of Nehemiah, that, in face of grave danger, he turned to heaven for help. Similar parenthetical prayers are found in other parts of Nehemiah (5. 19; 6. 9; 13. 14, 22). It may seem to us that he was inexcusably vindictive. Such maledictions, as elsewhere in the Old Testament, display a spirit that comes short of the Christian ideal. Prayers that our enemies may not be forgiven their iniquity (5), and that their sin may remain as a permanent record in the divine book of remembrance, are not in harmony with the injunctions of him who said: "Love your enemies." But we have to make allowances. Nehemiah certainly felt himself justified. To him the reproach was not merely his, nor his people's. It was one God shared with them—we are despised. It was so clearly God's work he was doing that Nehemiah represents Sanballat and Tobiah as provoking God to anger publicly when they sought to withdraw the builders by mockery.

6. So we built the wall — Nehemiah had succeeded because he had gotten the co-operation of all the people. The work proceeded at a rapid pace because of the eagerness of the workers. The governor, with characteristic generosity, disclaims any credit which may be due him. At this point, all the wall had been completed, without gaps anywhere, to half its height. The ancient wall reached a height of two hundred feet.

7. The Arabians—These are the third class of foes mentioned in chapter 2. To those already cited, there are now added the Ashdodites, who were dwellers in a strong city near the sea. When these heard of the repairing of the walls (the figure being that of the healing up of a wound, as seen in the closing up of the breaches), they were more worth than at first.

8. They conspired—They quit their ineffective taunts, and got down to active business. Their plan was, first, to carry on an actual fighting campaign. Besides this, they hoped to cause confusion in the city, by winning over those disaffected therein, and by drawing the builders away from their work.

9. We made our prayer—Nehemiah sets at the forefront of his defensive measures the force of prayer. Up to this time we have mention only of his own private prayers. But now the infection of his habit seems to have spread. United prayer is a mighty engine in the work of the kingdom. But it is necessary for the workers to keep their eyes ceaselessly on the watch against the intrigues of the enemy. Prayer is meant to inspire duty, not to replace it. Nehemiah's posting of sentinels in the surrounding country was prayer in action. Ten plots of the enemy were reported to him, and every one was foiled.

10. Judah said—Here was another kind of difficulty. The Jewish community complained of exhaustion. The work of clearing away the rubbish was such a burden that no strength was left to build the wall.

11. Our adversaries said—From spies, no doubt, Nehemiah learned that a surprise attack was being planned.

12. Ye must return—The apparent meaning is, that the Jews who lived by them (that is, the Samaritan and other enemies) began to be fearful for their own homes; accordingly, they insisted again and again that their fellow townsmen from all those places from which they had gone up for the rebuilding of the wall, should come back and protect their homes from the perils of attack.

13. The lowest parts of the space—This was a general defensive precaution, intended to guard against secret attacks. Where the walls were lowest, and the attacks therefore most likely to be made, and where the places were open and free from dwellings, he set his men according to families. This would guarantee co-ordination of movement, because of the intense clan spirit.

14. I . . . said—Nehemiah's brief speech was pointed, and contained three points: (1) Let them not be afraid; because (2) they are to remember the terrible might of their Lord; and (3) they are not to forget that it is for the very existence of their homes and race that they must fight. By such words Nehemiah dispelled the general disheartenment.

15. It was known to us—Their plan to make a secret attack.

16. Coats of mail—Probably nothing elaborate, but rather tough, specially prepared leather doublets, which offered protection down to the knees, leaving the arms free.

The rulers were behind—They were the chief magistrates and officials of the city, and in this case were stationed in the rear of the men of Judah who were engaged in building, so that, in case of emergency, they might give immediate orders and so repel any onslaught.

17, 18.—The apparent contradictions here are easily avoided by distinguishing between the classes of workers, those that bare burdens, of rubbish or building material, and those who actually laid the blocks of stone, the builders who would require the use of both hands.

23. Went with his weapon to the water—The text here is obscure, and various meanings have been suggested. Perhaps the best is, that for a certain length of time, say a full month, no one laid down his weapon.

ARRIVAL OF VICEROY AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE, CALCUTTA.

Every summer the representa tive of his Majesty in India goes to Simla and the healthier life of the hill, returning in the winter to the splendid palace reared by Lord Wellesley for the Emperor's deputy and viceroy at Calcutta.

STORY OF OLD GARMENTS

Found in a Hidden Cupboard They Recall a Tragedy of The Past.

It had been papered over and forgotten so many years ago that no one had even guessed of its existence until the old wall had needed some attention at the hands of the builder, and in stripping off the paper he had found the closed door of the cupboard. Even the key was lost. With keen interest and vague wondering as to what secrets we were penetrating, my cousin and I watched the workmen force the lock, says a writer in the London Chronicle.

The door sprang open and showed the shelves piled with neat boxes covered with quaint checkered blue paper. My cousin took up a box and opened the lid. It was full of strings of dull black beads.

"What ever are these?" she asked, as she lifted up a string.

"Look at the box," I suggested, and she read out the word pomanders. We were no wiser, but on referring to a dictionary we found that pomanders were perfumed balls formerly carried in the pocket, or else worn around the neck, or suspended from the girdle. A faint old-world perfume still scented them, in fact, the whole cupboard was still full of vague sweet scents as of half forgotten memories. Somehow the presence of our unknown ancestress appeared to haunt the spot where she had stored her treasures. Was she young or old? Had she in the heyday of youth closed the door and concealed it under a layer of paper, hiding them until ages after her descendants should find her treasures? Or was it some dame, frail and feeble with the weight of years and the trouble that had been the lot of the family in those days, that had laid the things there and in dread of the vandal's hands had sealed them up for centuries?

We laid aside the box and its pomanders and took up a leather bound volume, and opened it. In a quaint old-fashioned handwriting, and in faded ink were written the words, "Dooratie B—'s Book of Simples."

We turned over the pages with reverent fingers and read recipes for curing all manner of evils. How some hair from the dog that bit you, chopped finely, and laid between slices of bread and butter was an infallible remedy for hydrophobia. A handful of snails sprinkled with salt and placed in a clean linen handkerchief hung up by the four corners, and the liquid that drained away taken fasting would stop the ravages of consumption.

"I'm glad I didn't live then," observed my cousin with a grimace. "I am sure I should have died at the very thought of taking such awful things."

We laid down the Book of Simples and turned to the boxes that filled the shelves. They all contained something of the personality of the dead and gone Dooratie. Dainty fans, with porcelain figures daintly tinted and fixed to the silken surface. Gorgeous flowers and still more vivid birds covered others. Ribbons and laces in sandalwood boxes that scented the air as we lifted the lids. Feather flowers that rivaled Nature in their dainty coloring and marvelous imitation. Stores of glittering beads and embroideries.

Last of all we drew out a large box that stood at the bottom of the cupboard. We lifted the lid, and the heavy perfume rose like incense. It was full of handsome clothes. We lifted up the first. It was a petticoat heavy with jeweled embroidery. Among gorgeous silken flowers quaint peacocks and pheasants strutted. It must have taken years to work, and the thick white silk was stiff with the embroidery, while the weight of the whole was enormous. We laid it tenderly away as we picked up the next garment. It was a man's cloak. A deep wine color outside; simple and plain. But the lining was literally a piece of golden cloth. The flowers of the precious metal covered nearly the whole of the white silk on which they were either woven or worked. Perhaps it was such a coat Raleigh had laid under the feet of his queen.

Hester, my cousin, shook out the heavy folds and made as if to throw the cloak over her shoulders. As she did so a gash in the lining showed up grimly. The dark stains around the edge showed that the wearer had been stabbed in the back. With a shudder we hastily folded up the cloak and laid it aside, wondering what tragedy had left its marks on that fair cloth of gold lining.

We took out the treasured garments that formed the store in the box. Evidently they had illustrated some life story, for among the clothing of grown men and women were dainty half-worn shoes and baby robes. Just the things a wife and mother might hoard as relics of the tragedies and events of a saddened life—relics of baby feet that had trodden life's thorny way too short a time to have felt the pricks. We sadly replaced them, and had almost filled the box again, when from the folds of the petticoat dropped a slip of paper. On it was written in a trembling hand in the crabbed and ill-spelled writing of the day:

"I am growing old and weary with much marrying and the loss of children. I lay my treasures in these boxes and seal them up. I have none to care for them, and my husband's sons' wives would spurn them as they are of no value. Only they are precious to me, and I beg those who find them in days to come to treat them tenderly as they would receive an old woman's blessing.—Dooratie B—."

"I'm glad she didn't put a curse upon the finder," added Hester, as she finished translating the missive. "I know who she is now. She was old Sir John's third wife, only she is always called Dorothy in the family stories. No wonder she was weary of much marrying. She was married first at ten years old, and then, when her husband died, she was married while still little more than a child to another man—handed over as a reward to one of the King's favorites. Then, when she was again widowed, the king married her to our ancestor, who was a bigwig of some importance, and a favorite of the king's. Poor Dooratie, I think her children were those of her second marriage. She outlived them all."

Then we shut the door of the cupboard and went sadly away, haunted by the memory of the weary woman who had been so much married, and into whose life had never come the joyousness of a love match.

The death is announced of Mrs. Dring, Rockgrove, co. Cork. Deceased was well known for her good work among the poor.

Private Neale, of the 2nd Wiltshire Regiment was buried in the Garrison Cemetery, Phoenix Park, Dublin, with full military honors.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

CHAPTER IX.—(Cont'd)

Brett smiled. "You are a stupid woman," he said. "You think you are serving your friends by adopting this tone. In affect you are bringing them to the guillotine. Now listen. If I leave you without our further words you do not see me again. You will know nothing of what is going on until the police have lodged you in a cell. Neither you nor your associates can escape. I promise nothing, but perhaps if you tell me what I want to know there may be a chance for you. Otherwise there is none. Shall I go?"

And he turned as if to approach the door.

For an instant the woman hesitated, and Brett thought that he had scored.

"Wait," she said, lowering her voice, though there was still the menace of subdued passion in her accents. "Who is your friend?"

"A gentleman whose identity in no way concerns you. You must deal with me, and it will be better if you ask who I am."

"I know," she said, laconically. "Come this way, both of you."

She raised a flap-door located at one side of the counter. Brett followed her into a passage behind the doorway that led into the bar. Fairholme succeeded him.

The trio passed rapidly through the door at the end of the passage, and quickly found themselves in a long, low room, usually devoted to billiards. The place was dark and smelled evilly of stale tobacco. Daylight penetrated but feebly through the red blinds that blocked up three windows on one side. The woman drew two of these blinds, and thus illuminated the interior. The windows opened onto a yard, and the place was thoroughly shut off from all observation from the street.

"Now," she said, "I will show you something."

She walked toward the fire-place at the end of the room. On the mantlepiece was a square of iron sheeting, painted white and studded with curious-looking spikes in circles, triangles, and straight lines. From a box at hand she took half a dozen small glass bulbs, red and blue. She placed them in a line on some of the spikes at intervals of two inches. Then she retired to that side of the room where they had entered. The distance of perhaps thirty feet.

Before Brett or Fairholme could vaguely guess her intention she whipped a revolver out of her pocket. It would be idle to deny that they were startled, but the woman paid not the least attention to them.

She steadily leveled the weapon and fired twice, smashing the two outer balls of the six. Then she transferred the pistol to her left hand and smashed another pair. Then she turned her back to the target, adjusting a small mirror attached to the butt of the revolver, and smashed both of the remaining bulbs by firing over her left shoulder. Sweeping round with a triumphant smile towards the barrister, she said, "I can do that in fifty other ways, but six will suffice."

"It is very clever, madame," he said. "May I ask why I am indebted to you for this display?"

She placed the revolver in her pocket. "It is my answer to your question, monsieur," she said. "That is the way I and my friends often talk to people who annoy us; and now I shall wish you good-day. You will find other sights in Montmartre to interest you."

Brett laughed easily, and bowed low.

"Believe me," he said. "I will find few performers so expert and, may I add, so discreet. We will meet again, and perhaps test your skill."

Without another word the party returned to the front room of the restaurant, and Brett and Fairholme passed into the street, where their cab was waiting.

"I suppose she meant," said Fairholme "that if we were not jolly careful she would put a bullet through our hearts as easily as through those glass bulbs."

"Such was her intention," said Brett, dryly. "But women never have a true dramatic genius. That was a piece of melodrama which might suffice with many of her class. It amused me, but it was a waste of time on her part."

"Anyhow, we shall not get much out of her in the way of information."

"Oh, yes, we will. She will tell us everything. She has told me a great deal already."

He directed the driver to wait for them at a street corner some little distance farther on. Close to where they stood an itinerant vendor was selling some mechanical toys.

Brett bought one. The price was twenty sous. He gave the man a two-franc piece and refused the change.

"Do you know," he said, "who is the proprietor of the Cabaret Noir?"

"Certainly, monsieur," replied the gutter-merchant; "it is Gros Jean. His name is Beaucaire."

"Ah! And the lady who lives there, a dark pretty woman with white skin, who is she?"

"That is his daughter," said the man. "She is known as La Belle Chasseuse." "Why such a name?"

"Because she is clever with firearms. She used to be in a circus, but she left the profession a year ago."

"And does she live here constantly?"

"I cannot say, I think she goes away a great deal. She was travelling recently; she came back—let me see—last Tuesday night."

"Thank you," said Brett. The two re-entered their cab, and Brett told the driver to proceed as rapidly as possible to the Rue St. Honore.

"I hope to goodness," he said to Fairholme, "that Captain Gaultier has not left Paris already; these Foreign Office Messengers are liable to be despatched to the other end of the earth at a moment's notice."

"Why do you wish to see him?" said Fairholme.

"Simply to obtain definite confirmation of my theory. La Belle Chasseuse was the woman who accompanied the man made up to look like Jack Talbot during his journey from London. If Gaultier can see her and assure me that I am right I will be convinced concerning that which I already know to be true."

"By Jove!" cried Fairholme, "that never occurred to me. I wonder if it is so?"

"Mademoiselle Beaucaire is quite an adept in two things: she can break tiny glass bulbs and she can flirt. She chose to exhibit the first of these accomplishments to us, and convey what was intended to be a warning; in reality, she gave us some valuable information."

"I suppose," said Fairholme, "that this crowd will watch us pretty closely, won't they?"

Brett leaned back in the cab and laughed heartily.

"We are the most interesting persons in Paris to them at this moment," he said. "That poor fellow who sold us the toys will have to change his position, I am afraid. One of them is following us now. Let's see who it is."

At the next street corner he stopped the cab suddenly, and jumped out, followed by Fairholme. A minute later another vehicle dashed into the street. In it was seated a lady, closely veiled; but a large feather hat and a grotesque pattern of a black veil could not wholly conceal the pretty, determined face of La Belle Chasseuse.

Evidently she had no one at hand to undertake the mission, so she followed Brett in person. He signalled to her and her driver. Astonished, the man pulled up. Brett instantly advanced and took off his hat with that pleasant smile of his which usually went straight to the female heart, but which now thoroughly lost its effect on the furious young woman who looked at him from the interior of the voiture.

"Allow me," he said, "to offer my friendly services. It is a close day, and mademoiselle has, I am sure, many other calls on her time. I will save you at least an hour, and myself nearly the same period. I am going to secure the presence of a witness to identify you as the lady who crossed the Channel last Tuesday in company with a gentleman. You both drove to the Grand Hotel, and your companion signed the register there in the names of Mr. and Mrs. Talbot; is it not so?"

She bent forward and looked at him viciously. Her eyes sparkled with annoyance at being caught so easily in her self-imposed piece of espionage.

"Monsieur is clever," she snapped.

"Thank you," he replied, still smiling. "I can occasionally hit the mark with a guess as well as mademoiselle can with her pistol. But, believe me, I only intend at this moment to be polite. Of course, the presence of a witness to identify you is unnecessary. Mademoiselle can now return to the Carbaret Noir, whilst my friend and I will proceed direct to the Grand Hotel. It saves so much trouble, does it not?"

For a moment the woman looked as though she would have liked to produce that infallible revolver and shoot him on the spot. Then she angrily commanded her driver to return.

Fairholme surveyed the scene with open-eyed amazement. "Well," he said, "that beats everything. You really have a splendid nerve. The whole business reads like a chapter out of one of Gaboriou's novels."

"That is the way people live in Paris, my dear fellow. Life is an artificial matter here. But all this excitement has made me hungry. Let us have dejeuner.

CHAPTER X.

On their way to the hotel, Brett, yielding apparently to a momentary impulse, stopped the cab at a house in the Rue due Chaussee d'Antin. Without any explanation to Lord Fairholme he disappeared into the interior, and did not rejoin his companion for nearly ten minutes.

"It is perhaps not of much use," he explained on his return, "but I do not like to leave any stone unturned. The man I have just called on is a well-known private detective, and I can trust him to look after my business without taking the police into his confidence. Two of his smartest agents will maintain a close watch on both the Cabaret Noir and No. 11, Rue Barbette, during the afternoon. We are tracking some of the most expert and daring criminals in France. It is hopeless to expect them to provide us with clues; they simply won't do it. No one but a genius in criminality would have risked such a dramatic move as the personation of Jack Talbot, or dared to put in an open appearance at the Grand Hotel. So my agents here can only hope, at the best, to get sight of any messenger or assistant scoundrel who may turn up at either of the places indicated."

It was evident that whilst he rattled on in a careless strain his active brain was busily employed in discounting the future.

CALENDAR REFORM IN CHINA

Its Year to be That of Western Nations.

From Pekin it is announced that the Chinese Government is about to drop the troublesome moon from its calendar and follow the practice of western nations in using only the sun. The present Chinese year began on January 30, and is the year 48 of the seventy-sixth cycle, a cycle consisting of sixty years, and the first year of the first cycle occurring B.C. 2637. But owing to the use of the moon the number of days in the year varies considerably. Ordinarily there are twelve lunations or months, but once in thirty lunations a thirteenth lunation is added to the year, as a result of which the year can be as short as 354 days or as long as 384 days. The months are more regular than our own, alternating between twenty-nine and thirty days. The Chinese year completely fails to keep the seasons within proper bounds.—Westminster Gazette.

EUROPEANS TOO SALT.

A Swedish scientific expedition which for many months past has been making a study of the aborigines in the back blocks of Australia, has found cannibals there of a distinctly Semitic cast of countenance. They do not care for the flesh of Europeans, however, declaring that it is "too salt."

A POSSIBLE REASON.

"I wonder how Adam and Eve came to name their eldest son Cain," said Wattles.

"They probably knew what they were raising," said Dingbats.

A BRAIN WORKER.

Must Have the Kind of Food That Nourishes Brain.

"I am a literary man whose nervous energy is a great part of my stock in trade, and ordinarily I have little patience with breakfast foods and the extravagant claims made of them. But I cannot withhold my acknowledgment of the debt that I owe to Grape-Nuts food.

"I discovered long ago that the very bulkiness of the ordinary diet was not calculated to give one a clear head, the power of sustained, accurate thinking. I always felt heavy and sluggish in mind as well as body after eating the ordinary meal, which diverted the blood from the brain to the digestive apparatus.

"I tried foods easy of digestion, but found them usually deficient in nutriment. I experimented with many breakfast foods and they, too, proved unsatisfactory, till I reached Grape-Nuts. And then the problem was solved.

"Grape-Nuts agreed with me perfectly from the beginning, satisfying my hunger and supplying the nutriment that so many other prepared foods lack.

"I had not been using it very long before I found that I was turning out an unusual quantity and quality of work. Continued use has demonstrated to my entire satisfaction that Grape-Nuts food contains the elements needed by the brain and nervous system of the hard working public writer." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Which is Your Choice?

Wooden drinking troughs are about as reliable as the weather.

They are short-lived and require replacing every few years—not to mention continual patching to keep them in repair.

The best of wood cannot withstand, for long, constant dampness and soaking. Its tendency to rapid decay soon shows itself in leaks and stagnant pools of water around trough.

Contrast with this the durability, cleanliness and well-ordered appearance of Concrete.

A specialist regarding well-water says —"Out of a thousand samples of well water of eastern Ontario I found two-thirds of them to be polluted, and in one village eighty per cent. of the wells were polluted. In eastern Ontario nearly all the wells are surface wells, and this accounts for the bad condition of the water. There is more typhoid in our rural districts than in any of our cities and the cause of this is that in many cases the wells are too near the pig pen, the horse stable, or worse still, the barnyard."

OFFICERS ELECTED.—Lebanon Forest Lodge, No. 133, A. F. & A. M., elected the following officers on Monday evening,—W.M., W. D. Sanders; S.W., R. G. Seldon; J.W., W. B. Weidenhammer; Sec., W. J. Heaman; Treas., W. H. Levett; Tiler, S. Sweet; Auditors, C. H. Sanders and N. D. Hurdon; Exam. Board, R. N. Creech, D. W. Collins, and J. A. Stewart. The remaining officers will be appointed, and all the officers installed on December 27th.

FINGERS BADLY SMASHED.—C. H. Sanders of the Advocate while running a Gordon press on Tuesday morning met with an unfortunate accident by which he had the last three fingers of his left hand badly smashed. A printed sheet had fallen from the grippers and in reaching for it his ring became caught in the machine and held his hand until the press closed, thus squeezing the three fingers, breaking the bones and bruising the flesh greatly. The accident will prevent the hand being used for a considerable time. It is hoped, however, that the fingers will not need amputation, although it is feared two of them may always be stiff.

A PLEASANT NIGHT.—The Exeter Encampment of Oddfellows enjoyed a pleasant time Monday night, when they were visited by Past Grand Patriarch Spackman of Toronto, Grand Patriarch Thompson of Windsor, Grand High Priest Clapp of Toronto, Grand Master Poplestone of Blyth, Grand Secretary Brooks of Toronto, and Grand Marshall Crocker and Grand Junior Warden Graham of Toronto. Eight candidates were made acquainted with the mysteries of the three degrees, the work being largely done by the Grand officers. A pleasing feature was the presentation of a Past Grand Patriarch's jewel to Bro. Spackman, and in connection therewith several interesting addresses were given. In the interval between the second and third degrees all adjourned to the Commercial Hotel, where a sumptuous banquet was served by Mine Hosts Newell, the dining room and tables being very handsomely decorated, and pleasing music being furnished. The work was then resumed in the lodge room and concluded about 4.30 in the morning.

LETTER OF CONDOLENCE

Exeter, Nov. 30, '11

To Mrs. S. Quance of Exeter Council No. 94, C.O.C.F.—Dear Madam and Friend,—We, the officers and members of Exeter Council, No. 94, C.O.C.F., wish to express to you our heartfelt sympathy in the great loss you have sustained by the death of your beloved daughter. And, while we may sympathize with you we cannot realize your great loss. He alone who is the source of all comfort can bring to you the comfort that is needed, and by bowing to the will of Divine Providence you will be able to say, "Thy will be done." We hope that you will be able to submit to the inevitable and lean on his promises, and that some day you will meet with Lida where meetings and partings are no more. Signed on behalf of the Exeter Council, C.O.C.F., R. N. Rowe, Recorder.

CREDITON.

Alonzo Hodgins, the Township Tax Collector, is a busy man just now, taking in the Taxes. There is no use grumbling at the high taxes, just grin and bear it.—The Revs Hicks and Burn attended the Ministerial meeting in Exeter on Monday.—Quite a number from here attended the Nomination in Hensall on Monday, Henry Eilber, our popular citizen, who has represented the riding the past fourteen years, was again nominated and his re-election next Monday is assured by a substantial majority.—On Monday evening, the neighbors on the 4th con. met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Short to bid them farewell prior to their departure to their farm on the South Boundary Concession. A presentation address was read after which they were presented with a handsome mantle clock as a small remembrance from their friends and neighbors. A suitable reply was made by Mr. and Mrs. Short after which the evening was pleasantly spent and a splendid lunch was served.— A Bazaar was held by the ladies Aid in the Methodist Church on Wednesday evening. Beautifully decorated booths were erected in which different useful articles were offered for sale. A considerable sum was collected. —Council meeting was held in the Town Hall on Saturday. Considerable business was transacted. The last meeting for the year will be held on the 15th. After that the municipal pot will begin to simmer and boil.—The four W's met at the home of Miss Ella Link on Monday evening and had a pleasant time.

Mr. W. J. Carling is feeling anything but well these days.

QUICK RELIEF FROM THAT PERSISTENT, HACKING COUGH

We mean the kind of cough it gives one a cold shiver just to hear—the dry, deep-seated hack—hack—hack—that seems as if it were tearing the very vitals. That's the kind of cough that means business.

Fortunately, though, that is also one of the kinds of cough for which Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne was first prescribed, and which it has been relieving with great promptness and regularity ever since.

Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne is absolutely free from harmful drugs of any kind, and is safe even for children. It is pleasant to take, and acts quickly, relieving the irritation, loosening the phlegm, promoting expectoration, and so stopping the cough. Thousands declare it to be the best cough syrup they have ever tried.

Your Druggist will gladly recommend it, and will supply you with either a 25c. or 50c. bottle. The National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited. 116

"Do you mean to tell me you want soap?"

"Yes'm. Me partner's got de hiccups an' I want to scare him."

The Oil of the People.—Many oils have come and gone, but Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil continues to maintain its position and increase its sphere of usefulness each year. Its sterling qualities have brought it to the front and kept it there, and it can truly be called the oil of the people. Thousands have benefited by it and would use no other preparation.

THE REASON.

Mrs. Fijit—How do you account for the fact that a woman can make a doller go farther than a man can?

Fijit—I guess it must be because she makes it go faster.

Thousands of Consumptives die every year. Consumption results from a neglected cold on the lungs. Hamlins Wizard Oil will cure these colds. Just rub it into the chest and draw out the inflammation.

HOW SWEET OF HER.

Harry—"You do look nice in that frock, dear; but it cost me a heap of money."

Mrs. Harry—"You dear old boy! What do I care for money when it's a question of pleasing you?"

A Pill for Brain Workers. — The man who works with his brains is more liable to derangement of the digestive system than the man who works with his hands, because the one calls upon his nervous energy while the other applies only his muscular strength. Brain fag begets irregularities of the stomach and liver, and the best remedy that can be used is Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They are specially compounded for such cases and all those who use them can certify to their superior power.

TALKING THROUGH ROCK.

An invention which should prove of the greatest value to the various industries in which men are forced to works underground, has been perfected by an Englishman named Grindell Mathews. It is called the aerophone, and differs from the telephone in that it carries the human voice through long distance without wires, and with the aid alone of the natural elements. Stone walls "do not a prison make" for this new instrument, for exhaustive tests have shown that the voice can be carried through any obstacle, even including five miles of solid rock.

SCOTT'S "BLACK DWARF."

Character Was David Ritchie, Native of Tweeddale.

How many of Sir Walter Scott's readers believe that "Black Dwarf" is not altogether an imaginary character. Such is the case, however. The poor man's name was David Ritchie, a native of Tweeddale. He was the son of a laborer in the slate quarries of Stobo. Sometimes his mis-shapen form was imputed to ill-usage, and sometimes to having been born that way. He was taught the trade of a brush maker at Edinburgh; but his extreme ugliness of form and face caused such painful attention, that he wandered from place to place. Finally he settled himself on a bit of wild moorland on the farm of Woodhouse in the vale of the small river Manor in Peebleshire, where he built himself a little house. The late Sir James Nasmith was proprietor of the ground. Poor David had built without leave; but Sir James allowed the encroachment. The dwarf hated children on account of their insults. He was 3½ feet high and was hideous to look at. Yet he was not destitute of intellectual true force and finer feeling.

He was a true lover of the beauties of nature. David never refused gratuities from strangers, and at his death in the beginning of last century he possessed $100. His living favorites were a cat and dog, and he was very fond of his small garden and bees; of which he took great care. He first wished to be buried in the glen, where he had his little hermitage; but changed his mind, and was finally interred in the burial ground of Manor Parish.

He died some years before Scott sketched the character of "Elshie of the Mucklestane Moor" from David Ritchie.

If Your Baby Is Sick Give Baby's Own Tablets.

The little ills of babyhood and childhood should be treated promptly, or they may prove serious. An occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets will regulate the stomach and bowels and keep your little ones well. Or they will promptly restore health if sickness comes unexpectedly. Mrs. Lenora M. Thompson, Oil Springs, Ont., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my little girls as occasion required, and have found them always of the greatest help. No mother, in my opinion, should be without the Tablets." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WHY, INDEED?

He—"I'm afraid you are cold. Shall I take off my coat and put it round you?"

She—"You may put your coat round me, but why take it off?"

HIS BRIEF PEDIGREE.

He was a gentler specimen of his class than you usually meet. When he made his request for something to eat at the kitchen door, he was asked by the good-natured cook to come in by the fire. As he sat there she said:

"You don't look as if you had always been a tramp."

"I haven't," he replied, without offense. "I came from a very good family."

She let him eat on without interruption, but after he had finished, she said:

"You say you came from a good family. May I ask the name?"

"It was Blankleigh," he responded.

"Why," she said, in surprise, "that's the name of the man who lives next door to us!"

"Yes," he replied, "I noticed it on the door-plate. That's where I came from. He threw me down his steps just before I called here."

"That young lady is angry with me. The episode happened at a reception. I couldn't see her face under her big hat." "And you mistook her for another young lady, eh? Nothing in that to get mad about." "I mistook her for a piano lamp."

NEWFOUNDLAND TOO SENDS GOOD NEWS

OF THE GREAT WORK DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ARE DOING.

J. C. Green, a sufferer from Rheumatism and Lumbago for five years, finds quick relief and complete cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Clam Bank Cove, Bay St. George, Nfld., Dec. 4 (Special).—Newfoundland contributes its share of the splendid cures made by Dodd's Kidney Pills. There is a striking example at this place. Mr. J. C. Green, a well known resident, suffered from Rheumatism and Lumbago for five years. To-day he is a well man, and does not hesitate to give Dodd's Kidney Pills all the credit for the cure.

"My trouble was caused by strain and cold," Mr. Green says, in telling his story. "And for five years I suffered from Rheumatism and Lumbago. I was always tired and nervous. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing and the pains of neuralgia added to my distress.

"I was in very bad shape indeed when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, but they soon gave me relief. It is because I found a cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills that I recommend them to my friends."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure Kidney ills no matter where it is found or in what stage it is in.

ROGUES IN HIGH PLACES.

Blue Bloods Who Have Been Convicted of Robbery.

The recent sentence on a Russian calling himself Prince Alexander Makaieff for shoplifting in London recalls the fact that Giovanni Passi, who has been called in Italy "The Prince of Swindlers," is really a prince by birth. But extravagance in his youth led to his robbing a banker of $20,000 for which he was arrested, and his subsequent career of over forty years has been one long record of crime.

Then there was the discovery, which so horrified all Germany a few years ago, of great quantities of stolen goods in the Castle of Basedow, in Mecklenburg. Suspicion was at the time thrown on the wife of Prince Adolf Vrede, who owns the castle. Knives, forks, cream-jugs, silver plates and dishes, and even napery, all purloined from fashionable hotels, were taken by the police from the castle. Kleptomania formed the only possible solution of the scandal, for the princess is immensely wealthy.

At a charity bazaar, some time ago, the news leaked out that a lady of title, given a large tray of Japanese trinkets to dispose of, returned the empty tray, with but 93 cents in cash, and coolly explained that she had pocketed the first $50 taken!

"Why, I always supposed old Tyte-Phist had more than his share of the good things of this world."

"These good things? Mister, he hain't got a blamed thing but a barrel of money and an appetite for another barrel of it."

Many inherit weak lungs, and as disease usually assails the weakest point, these persons are continually exposed to attacks of cold and pulmonary disturbances. The speedy use of Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup will be found a preventive, strengthening the organs so that they are not so liable to derangement from exposure or abrupt atmospheric changes. Bickle's Syrup is cheap and good.

WAY TO CHASE 'EM.

Maid—"O, missus here comes some of your husband's relatives! Looks as if they were prepared to stay a week."

Mistress—"That's all right; just put away the chicken and lobster salad and boil some turnips for dinner."

MEATS.

Mock Sweetbread.—These are made of lean veal. If the sinews and tendons are removed carefully and the meat finely minced they are excellent. Add half a cup of veal suet to a pound of the meat and chop all together; soak a baker's roll in milk and beat it light; add the grated rind of a lemon, a dust of grated nutmeg, pepper, salt, two eggs; add the veal shaped into sweetbreads; dip in egg and bread crumbs and fry in boiling fat. Serve rather dry or with a gravy made of the bones of the veal, boiled and highly seasoned.

Chicken Dumplings. — Stew chicken until tender, make gravy, before taking up, then pour all in baking pan. Make dumplings with two cups flour, heaping teaspoon baking powder, two tablespoons of butter, rub in thoroughly and make soft with sweet milk. Roll thin, cut in squares, put over chicken, and bake in hot oven. They can be eaten cold and are always light and puffy.

Left Over Beef.—Take pieces of cold beefsteak, cut in small pieces, place in frying pan until bottom of pan is covered. Dredge with flour, a little salt and pepper, and one onion chopped fine. Then slice cold potatoes and lay in layers on meat; cut up a few tomatoes and place on top of potatoes; season all with salt and pepper. Cover all with water, put cover on, and cook twenty minutes. You will have a delicious pan stew.

Boil potatoes with the skins on the day before using. When the meat is boiled save some of the stock and put in when meat and potatoes are mixed.

THE MAGISTRATE'S STORY.

What He Owes to Zam-Buk.

Mr. C. E. Sanford, of Weston, Kings Co., N.S., a Justice of the Peace for the county, and a deacon of the Baptist Church in Berwick, says: "I have used Zam-Buk for piles and found it a splendid remedy. It cured me."

Mr. Thomas Pearson, of Prince Albert, Sask., writes: "I must thank you for the benefit I have received from the use of Zam-Buk. Last summer I had a fever, which left me with piles. I started to use Zam-Buk and found it gave me relief, so I continued with it. After using three or four boxes it effected a complete cure."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, eczema, blood-poison, varicose sores, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse substitutes.

INCREASE IN TEA PRICES THE REASONS WHY!

The ever-increasing consumption of tea throughout the world—particularly of British Grown Tea—has created a demand much greater than the supply, which, among other causes, prevents really good tea being sold at former low prices.

Russia and Australia are buying tremendously of British grown teas in place of China teas, and the consumption in Great Britain is larger than ever.

The shutting out of over 15 million pounds of colored China Green Tea by the United States Government, the increased use of tea due to higher prices of coffee, the greater acreage given over to the planting of rubber in Ceylon, the shortage in the Japan crop this year and the labor problem in all tea-growing countries are all factors which account for the much higher primary markets.

The present revolution in China may also mean much smaller crops there next year and present indications are for still higher prices in the future. All these conditions either mean a lower quality at the same prices, or the same quality at higher prices.

Our experience shows that the tea drinking public prefers the latter.

The Beauty of a Clear Skin. — The condition of the liver regulates the condition of the blood. A disordered liver causes impurities in the blood and these show themselves in blemishes on the skin. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills in acting upon the liver act upon the blood and a clear, healthy skin will follow intelligent use of this standard medicine. Ladies, who will fully appreciate this prime quality of these pills, can use them with the certainty that the effect will be most gratifying.

CLOTHING TO BE UNSINKABLE

Is Claim of German Inventor of New Fabric.

A remarkable demonstration was given the other day in the Spree, near Berlin, Germany, of a new fabric designed to make clothing so buoyant that it will keep its wearer afloat in the water, writes a correspondent of the London Illustrated News. The composition of the invention which brings about this result is a well guarded secret. To don a garment lined with it is to become unsinkable.

On the occasion mentioned infantrymen in full marching kit, clad in uniforms lined with the material, which rendered the clothing neither heavier nor thicker than usual, threw themselves into the water, and not only did not sink, but were able to "march" in the water and to fire. At the same time coffee was served to a party in the water, waiter and guests being clad in the special fabric.

It is reported that recently the inventor, wearing his suit, jumped into the water before the Kaiser's steamer to demonstrate the value of his devices, and that the police arrested him for impropriety.

It is true that it costs you more to live now than it cost your great-grandfather, but it wouldn't cost as much if you lived as he did.

McNAMARAS PLEAD GUILTY

Sensational Ending to Case That Has Aroused World's Interest.

A despatch from Los Angeles, Cal., says: James B. McNamara pleaded guilty on Friday afternoon in connection with the death of Chas. J. Haggerty, a victim of the Los Angeles Times explosion and fire. His brother, John J. McNamara, jointly indicted with him, pleaded guilty to dynamiting the Llewellyn Iron Works.

James B. McNamara probably will get life imprisonment. John J. McNamara, it was rumored, will get fourteen years. Each pleaded guilty on the charge of which he was extradited from Indianapolis.

Within fifteen minutes after the court opened on Friday afternoon one of the greatest criminal trials of modern times had ended so abruptly that many officials supposedly in the heart of the matter did not know it was going to happen. The prisoners were taken back to jail, Judge Walter Bordwell retired to his chambers, and opposing counsel went to their rooms.

"The McNamaras have pleaded guilty because they are guilty," was District Attorney John D. Frederick's crisp comment.

"If I had seen any way out of it we would not have done it," said Attorney Clarence S. Darrow after court. "We have had it under consideration since a week ago Monday."

CHICAGO CATTLE SHOW.

Canadian College Teams Win Three Out of Five Trials.

A despatch from Chicago says: Canadian colleges won three out of five trials in the college team judging contest at the Live Stock Show Saturday night. In trial No. 1, "all classes of live stock," Macdonald College of Quebec won first honors, Manitoba College took second place, and Missouri University won a close third. In swine-judging Manitoba College won first place. Montana Agricultural College took second, and Macdonald College of Quebec third. In sheep-judging Ontario, Macdonald and Manitoba Colleges took first, second and third respectively. Uncle Sam won first honors in horse and cattle judging, but the Canadian colleges won second and third place in both classes. This is the first year the Macdonald College team was entered.

WILL JOIN GRENFELL.

Wealthy American Girl to Become Nurse in Labrador.

A despatch from Boston, Mass., says: To give up a life of luxury and become a nurse in one of Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell's hospitals in Labrador is the plan of Miss Amelia Forbes, daughter of the late J. Malcolm Forbes, the well-known yachtsman and capitalist of Boston. At present Miss Forbes is training for her chosen profession in the Waltham Home for Nurses, and when she completes her course she is to start for the North and begin her duties among the Eskimos, Indians and fishermen. Miss Forbes first became interested in the work of the Labrador medical mission while attending a lecture by Dr. Grenfell, and she volunteered her services.

ONTARIO HOLDS PINE SUPPLY

Represented 65 Per Cent. of Canada's Total Lumber Cut.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Concerning Ontario's 1910 lumber cut, the Forestry Bulletin says that Ontario still produces a little over one-third of the quantity of the lumber cut annually in Canada, but its annual cut, while increasing, is increasing more slowly each year. In Ontario, during 1910, 1,642,191,000 feet of lumber were cut, being worth $30,011,000. The diversified forests of Ontario have enabled it to hold the supremacy up to the present. White pine of Ontario formed 85 per cent. of Canada's cut and nearly half of the hemlock cut came from this province. Ontario provided 90 per cent. of the red pine.

FOOLED WITH DYNAMITE.

Montreal Youth May Die as a Result.

A despatch from Montreal says: Harry Seigel, aged 11, whose home is at 150 Murray Street, found a stick of dynamite on Friday, and experimented with it, with probably fatal results. Taking it to a neighboring blacksmith shop, he placed it on a table and struck it with a hammer. He was taken to the hospital badly burned about the face and suffering from a severe abdominal wound.

TEACHER SENTENCED.

Miss Nora McCrea Convicted of Assault on Girl.

A despatch from Brockville says: Miss Nora McCrea, a young school teacher residing in Merrickville, was found guilty by Judge McDonald on Friday afternoon of assaulting nine-year-old Helen McCoubrie, a pupil at Soper's School, near Frankville, on October 19 and 23 last. A sentence of one week in jail was imposed. Four pupils swore to witnessing the chastisements, which were administered with a blackboard pointer, some of the blows falling on the child's head. Two physicians also testified to the injuries received by the McCoubrie child. She was laid up for several weeks.

BRITISH NAVAL LOAN.

Anglo-German Shipbuilding Rivalry May Lead to It.

A despatch from London, says: The probability of a big naval loan in the near future is revived by The Pall Mall Gazette, which anticipates that $150,000,000 and possibly more will be raised supplementary to the usual naval estimates. It is argued that in view of the campaign in Germany in favor of an increased navy for that country it is necessary for Great Britain to show that she is determined to preserve the "two-in-one" standard. The provision of adequate docks for the Dreadnought battleships also necessitates heavy expenditure.

CONCESSION TO HINDUS.

May be Permitted to Bring Families to Canada.

A despatch from Ottawa says: It is understood that, as a result of a conference between the Hindu delegation now in Ottawa and British Columbia members held in the office of Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of the Interior, on Wednesday morning, it is possible that an arrangement may be arrived at under which the Hindu people now in British Columbia will be allowed, under strict regulations, to bring their wives and families to Canada.

MURDER AT SYDNEY.

Negro Shot Down During Progress of Drunken Row.

A despatch from Sydney, N. S., says: The second murder within a week has occurred in the manufacturing district. During a drunken row among the colored residents of the coke ovens, on Wednesday, Geo. Halford, colored, was shot and killed by another colored man whose name is not known. The police have arrested five in connection with the affair.

FRENCH WARSHIPS COMING.

Squadron to Visit Three Canadian Ports Next Year.

A despatch from Montreal says: It is announced that a squadron of French warships will visit Canada next summer, and will spend eight days in Halifax, five days in Quebec, and eight days here.

STATISTICS OF POSTOFFICE

A despatch from Ottawa says: The annual report of the Postoffice Department shows that the net revenue totalled $9,146,952, and the expenditure $7,954,222. During the year there was an increase of 437 in the number of post offices, of 284 in postal note offices, and 189 in money order offices.

The increase in the number of letters is estimated at 52,357,000, or 10 per cent. The revenue increased by $1,188,404, and the expenditure by $738,885. Postage stamps issued totalled 648,764,669, as against 584,264,774 while the value increased from $9,942,435 to $11,011,042. At the end of the fiscal year 13,324 offices were in operation.

In the postoffice savings banks the aggregate balance to the credit of depositors at the end of the year was $43,330,599 or a decrease of $255,778. The accounts numbered 147,478, decrease of 1,415.

AMERICAN BILLS.

Government Will Impose Discount of One-half Per Cent.

A despatch from Ottawa says: In order to discourage the circulation of American National Bank bills and silver certificates in eastern Ontario, the Postoffice Department has issued an order to postmasters instructing them to charge a discount of one-half per cent. on all such money presented at their offices. The action is due to the refusal of the Bank of Montreal to accept large deposits of American bills from the department.

BOMBAY GREETS ROYALTY

The King and Queen are Wildly Cheered on way Through City.

A despatch from Bombay says: King-Emperor George and Queen-Empress Mary, as they are officially styled since their arrival in their great eastern empire, landed from the steamer Medina on Saturday at the quay at the Apollo Bunder at 4 o'clock. They were met by the Governor of Bombay and a large gathering of high officials belonging to the civil and military service, and at once proceeded to a huge amphitheatre which had been erected opposite the landing stage and which was filled to its utmost capacity with many thousands who had come to welcome their Majesties. The scene was a remarkably brilliant one. The handsome levee dress of the officials and the uniforms of the naval and military officers, together with the bright toilettes of the women, only served to emphasize the gorgeous hues of the ceremonial attire of the Indian chieftains. Behind these were massed an immense throng, composed of Hindus, Mohammedans, and Arabs, all attired in richly-colored festival costumes. Addresses of welcome were presented to the King-Emperor and Queen-Empress by the municipality and other bodies, to which his Majesty replied.

A Royal procession was subsequently formed. It was a mile in length and comprised representatives of all branches of the European and native arimes in India. It subsequently traversed all parts of the gaily decorated city. The native quarters presented a particularly quaint appearance, forests of masts along the streets bearing a multitude of native religious symbols representative of the various sects. Enormous crowds everywhere heartily acclaimed their Majesties, who returned to the Medina at 5.30 in the evening.

N. B. SECTION COMPLETED.

First Trop Over the New Transcontinental Railway.

RABIES STILL PREVALENT.

Examinations by Health Officer Gave Positive Signs.

A despatch from Toronto says: Recent examinations have disclosed the prevalence of rabies in Toronto and throughout Ontario. Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Chief Health Officer of the province, stated on Wednesday that a dog which had bitten a woman in Rosedale, and had been destroyed, had been examined, positive signs of rabies being found. Another dog's head sent to the laboratory by Mr. A. W. Reilly, V.S., Grand Valley, had given a positive analysis.

FEAR SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC.

Held Entire Province of Quebec is Threatened.

A despatch from Montreal says: "The entire Province of Quebec, and, as a consequence, the city of Montreal, is threatened with an epidemic of smallpox this winter," declared Dr. Pelletier, Provincial Medical Health Officer, on Wednesday morning. "This condition of affairs has resulted from the sheer neglect of the necessary precautions in a great many municipalities. Not a day goes by without cases being reported."

SCENE IN BRITISH HOUSE

The Uninists, Lead by Mr. Bonar Law Retire in a Body.

A despatch from London, says: There was a remarkable scene in the House of Commons on Thursday night when the Government applied the guillotine to 470 amendments in the report stage of the insurance bill. Mr. Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, heatedly accused the Ministers of acting in obedience to the Redmondites in thus flouting Parliament in order to clear the road for home rule for Ireland. Mr. Lloyd George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, as hotly replied that the Government was only following the example set by Unionist Government.

The excitement was intense, and the members faced amenedment, when, on the Speaker putting the first amendment, the entire Opposition rose and made a dramatic exit from the House, pursued by derisive Ministerial cheering. Then in a dreary monotone the Speaker began formally putting the amendments, and when he became fatigued the Deputy Speaker relieved him. The entire 470 amendments were adopted, and in only a single case was the division challenged by the Laborites. This concluded part one of the bill.

THURSDAY, DEC. 7, '11

SOUTH HURON

It is well known that the defeat of M. Y. McLean at the last Dominion election was due in a considerable measure to the fact that the present Conservative candidate, H. Elber, in a careful and convincing manner explained the whole matter of the "Farmers Bank", and Mr. McLean's connection therewith when the investigation was being discussed in the House. That defeat has made Mr. McLean so sore that he is blindly putting forth in his paper, the Seaforth Expositor, all kinds of unreasonable arguments why Mr. Elber should be defeated now. Two weeks ago he reasoned that Mr. Elber should not have all the good things going—that because he was clerk of the Township of Stephen and Manager of an Insurance Company, he should be defeated as a candidate for the Legislature. A wonderful argument surely. Last week he was very much exercised because he considered that Mr. Elber was monopolizing a position "to the exclusion of at least a dozen men in his (Elber's) own party who are as capable and some of them more capable of creditably representing the riding." Mr. McLean does not seem to be aware of the fact that Mr. Elber has been the unanimous choice of his party always, and no other Conservative in the riding has ever expressed himself as being desirous of being the Conservative candidate. Not so with Mr. McLean, who became the choice of his party at their last Dominion convention by the narrowest kind of a majority. And yet McLean likely did not consider that he was monopolizing in the matter. He goes on to say that Mr. Elber has been a disappointment to his friends. Regarding a wise statement like that we can only give an unqualified denial, unless Mr. McLean can be considered a friend. Perhaps he is but he has an odd way of showing it. And then he goes on to talk about the Farmers Bank—about the last subject one would imagine Mr. McLean would mention,—but no, he goes at it just as though it was all Elber's fault, instead of the fault of the late Dominion Government, an investigation into which Mr. McLean assisted to balk. The Farmers Bank does not need any more discussion in South Huron. The people have said their say on that topic, and M. Y. McLean is no longer "monopolizing" the Ottawa seat in consequence. The electors of this riding have long recognized the worth of Henry Elber as a representative, and will continue to give him their unqualified support, notwithstanding anything Mr. McLean may say to the contrary. In fact, a politician so discredited as Mr. McLean, would accomplish more by a discreet silence than by abuse of Mr. Elber, possibly the most popular member of the House.

Roll up a big majority for Elber.—He is worthy of it.

Vote for Elber and keep a good man in the Legislature, and a strong man as Premier.

OH HOW I ITCHED

What long nerve-racking days of constant torture—what sleepless nights of terrible agony—itch—itch—itch. CONSTANT ITCH, until it seemed that I must tear OFF MY VERY SKIN—then—INSTANT RELIEF—my skin cooled, soothed and healed. The very first drops of D. D. Nature Stops

WHEN THE KIDNEYS GIVE OUT.

Do you feel that you simply can't go any farther—that you must have rest for that lame and aching back — relief from that constant dead-tired feeling—freedom from those stabbing, darting pains?

It is nature's warning that the kidneys are giving out and you need the help of Booth's Kidney Pills, the guaranteed kidney remedy. In every machine there is one part that works the hardest and gives out first. The kidneys work night and day, and naturally a life of unusual activity doubles the duties of the kidneys and in time the strain tells. The kidneys give out and nature cries "stop." Booth's Kidney Pills are sold by all dealers, 50c. post paid from The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. There is no pill just as good. Send for a Free box. The test will prove the truth of our statement.

Sold and guaranteed in Exeter by W. S. Cole.

In five years Huron County has received no taxes from railways $12,770. Under the Ross government we received nothing. Add to this the fact that the Whitney Government has never had a scandal, or the misappropriation of a dollar. The Whitney Government has a record of progress in agriculture. In education, in the control and administration of water powers and mining and pulpwood lands for the benefit of the people, that has not been equalled in this or any other province.

WILL BE A CANDIDATE.—Mr. W. R. Elliott, one of Stephen's most progressive farmers, at the request of a large number of ratepayers, has signified his intention of becoming a candidate for municipal honors in that township in the capacity of councillor at the forthcoming municipal elections. Mr. Elliott is a man of advanced views, and in every way qualified to fulfil the duties of the office he seeks, and without doubt will make a good man for the position.

USBORNE TOWNSHIP DRAINAGE—Through the good offices of Mr. H. Elber the Ontario Government has made a grant of $1000 to assist the Township in the making of their big Aux Sauble drain. The Township treasurer received the money a week or so ago.

MOUNT CARMEL.

Mr. Matthew Ryan is all smiles at the arrival of a daughter on Nov. 29. —Miss Pearl Breen was the guest of Miss Clara Glavin on Sunday.—Misses Maggie and Mae Patton of London attended the funeral of their uncle Saturday.—Mr. Arthur O'Neil with his family moved to Parkhill this week, where Mr. O'Neil intends to make his home.

Mr. Garfield Steeper disposed of a two year colt last week, receiving for same a handsome sum.—Miss Mary Houlihan is visiting her sister Mrs. J. Horan.

Mr. Anthony Patton of Detroit was here on Saturday to attend the funeral of his uncle, the late R. Patton.—Miss Kate Campbell is at present visiting her parents at Parkhill.—Quite a number from here attended the Ball at Exeter on Friday night.—Miss Mary O'Brien is visiting her aunt Miss Nora Doyle of Exeter.—Mr. Joseph Glavin was in London this week on business.

It is our painful duty to chronicle the death of one of McGillivray's most respected residents in the person of Mr. Robert Patton, at the age of 46 years. The sad event took place on Thursday Nov. 30th, from stomach trouble, and later paralysis of the bowels. Mr. Patton was unmarried and resided in McGillivray all his life. He leaves to mourn his loss two Brothers, Richard of Skipka and Thomas with whom he lived, who have the sincere sympathy of their many friends here. The funeral took place on Saturday to the R.C. Church cemetery. The pall bearers were Neil Melaaar, John Pickering, Thomas Morrissey, Lewis Rowland, Joseph Carty, and Alex McDonald.

WOODHAM

Edgar Hoops has been suffering from blood poisoning in his right hand, but it is better now.—John Skinner of this place has purchased the Coward Store business at Winchelsea and will take possession shortly.—Rev. GREENWAY

C. H. Wilson, of Greenway, died on Friday evening. About a year ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis at the Greenway post office on his way home from a funeral. He was soon able to be around, but never regained his full strength. He was a strong man physically, but failed very much last summer. He left in August to visit his brother, W. J. Wilson, in Alberta. The change did not help him. Mrs. W. J. Wilson accompanied him home three weeks ago. The deceased was a county constable for the County of Huron for years. He was a popular auctioneer of the counties of Huron and Lambton, and was a past president of the North Middlesex Farmer's Institute. He had also served for over 20 years as a director of the Parkhill Agricultural Society. The deceased was in the prime of life, being about 55 years old.

FARQUHAR.

(Too late for last week.)

Mr. Edgar Fanson is having the material placed on the ground for the enlargement and improvement of his barn the coming summer.—Mr. and Mrs. H Hunkin of Mitchell attended the funeral of Mrs. Cameron last week.—Miss Ettie Allen of Stratford is visiting in the vicinity.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stewart visited friends in Seaforth on Saturday and Sunday.—Mr. Thos. Hunkin is engaged in the poultry business at present for Jones & May of Exeter.—Mr. Lamport has had placed in his store a new gasoline lighting system which adds much to the appearance and accommodation of the place.—The residents of our burg were somewhat surprised when it was learned last week that a former resident, Miss Ada Tucker, was united in marriage to Mr. George Wright. The marriage ceremony was performed in Exeter on the 14th by the Rev. Mr. Powell. Miss Tucker was presented on the eve of her marriage by two handsome pieces of furniture, given by members of Bethany Church, where she has been a faithful worker.—Mr. and Mrs. Truman Fletcher have settled down on the home farm, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fletcher having moved to Exeter to live.

WINCHELSEA

The following from the Comber Herald gives the particulars of the marriage of an Usborne boy,—"Francis—Parish — The marriage of Miss Maud Parish of Strangfield, to Mr. B.M. Francis of Usborne, took place on Nov. 22nd at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs R. Parish. The bride who was given away by her father, took her place under an arch of evergreens interspersed with white roses. She wore a plain dress of white mull trimmed with white ribbon and insertion; the wedding march was played by Miss Annie Laura Ainsle of Comber. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Eddington of Blythwood at four o'clock in the presence of only a few near relatives, after which all sat down to a sumptuous wedding supper. The bride's going away suit was blue Venetian with hat to match. The newly married couple left Tuesday for their home in Usborne." The Advocate joins with the many friends in congratulations and best wishes.

In Trouble.

"Tes," he said regretfully, "I'm in a tight corner. My sweetheart is wild on the subject of germs and microbes, and she insists that I must choose between her and my mustache. I'm to lose one or the other."

"Lose the mustache, my boy."

"That's just the trouble. If you ever saw me without it you'd pity my haunting fear that when it's gone I'll lose the girl too."

The Simple Answer.

A society man at a luncheon said of a well known suffragist:

"She accomplishes a great deal, but some of her methods are not quite fair. A man once inquired of her husband:

"'Do you give your wife an allowance, or does she ask for money when she wants it?'

"'Both,' was the simple answer."

In Doubt.

"Were you ever up before me?" asked a magistrate.

"Shure, I don't know, yer anner. What time does your anner get up?"—London Answers.

Pay what you owe, and you'll know what you owe.—Franklin.

Mr. Richard Billings of Woodstock is in town this week in connection with the installation of th organ at the Presbyterian church.

CHISELHURST.—Another much esteemed resident of Chiselhurst neighborhood Mrs. Henry Fyfan, passed away on Thursday, Nov. 23rd, aged 59 years. Her maiden name was Elizabeth Pengelly and she had resided here since her girlhood.

NO OTHER LINIMENT

Could Do What Morrisey's Did says Blacksmith.

BELLE COVE, C. B., Dec. 16, 1910.

"I was laid up for several days with a severe pain in the bone of my right arm, and was unable to perform my work. I procured a bottle of Father Morrisey's Liniment and after 3 applications was able to return to work and shoe 12 horses in one day. I cheerfully recommend it to all who suffer from sore muscles, stiff joints, backaches, muscular rheumatism, etc., etc., because I know you will get relief and we sure you can find no other Liniment as good as Father Morrisey's."

Kenneth T. Phillips.

The above prescription is not a "cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morrisey prescribed it for 40 years and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Village of Exeter

By-Law No. ... 1911

BY-LAW TO AUTHORIZE THE ISSUE of Debentures of the Corporation of the Village of Exeter to the amount of Five thousand dollars, for the purpose of extending the present Water-Works System of the said Corporation.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Village of Exeter deem it advisable to extend the Water-works System of the said Corporation and in order thereto it will be necessary to issue debentures of the said Corporation to the extent of Five thousand dollars (5000), as hereinafter provided, which is the amount of the debt intended to be created by this by-law, the proceeds of the said debentures to be applied to the said purpose and no other.

AND WHEREAS it is desirable to make the principal of the said debt repayable by yearly sums during the period of twenty years, being the currency of the said debentures, said yearly sums being of such respective amounts that the aggregate amount payable in each year for Principal and Interest in respect of the said debt shall be as nearly as possible, equal to the amount so payable in each of the other nineteen years of the said period as detailed in Clause 4 of this By-law.

AND WHEREAS the total amount required to be raised, annually by a special rate for paying the said debt and interest is the sum of Four hundred and one dollars and twenty-two cents.

AND WHEREAS, the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Corporation of the Village of Exeter, according to the last revised Assessment Roll, is $575,586;

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing Debenture debt of the said Coporation of the Village of Exeter is $36,256 38 of which no part of the principal, or interest, is in arrear.

THEREFORE the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Village of Exeter enacts as follows.

1. That for the purpose of raising the said Debentures of the said Corporation of the Village of Exeter, to the amount of Five Thousand dollars, Debentures shall be issued in sums of not less than One Hundred dollars each, and such debentures shall be signed by the Reeve of the Said Corporation for the time being, and countersigned by the Treasurer for the time being of the said Corporation and duly sealed with the Corporation Seal thereof by the Clerk for the time being of the said Corporation.

2. The said debentures shall be dated upon the date of the issue thereof and as to both Principal and interest shall be payable in annual instalments within 20 years from the date of the issue thereof, such instalments to be of such amounts that the aggregate amount payable for Principal and interest in any year during the said period of 20 years shall be as nearly equal as may be to what is payable for principal and interest during each of the other years of each period of 20 years, as set out in said clause 4 of this By-law.

3. The said debentures shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum per annum from the date of the issue thereof, and the said interest shall be payable yearly on the day of the month on which the said debentures are issued, and as to both principal and interest the said debentures shall be payable in annual instalments at a chartered Bank in the said Village of Exeter, the first of such instalments to become due and be paid in one year after the date of the issue of the said debentures.

4. During the currency of the said Debentures there shall be raised annually by a Special rate on all the rateable property in the said Corporation of the Village of Exeter, the sum of $401.22, for the purpose of paying the amount due in each of the years for Principal and interest in respect of the said debt, as follows.—

7. That Friday the 29th day of December, 1911, at the hour of 11 o'clock in the forenoon, shall be the day, and the Clerk's office in the Town Hall, in the Village of Exeter, shall be the place where the Reeve will attend to appoint persons to attend at the various polling places aforesaid, and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk on behalf of the persons interested in promoting, or opposing the passing of this By-law, respectively.

8. That the Clerk of the Corporation of the said Village of Exeter shall attend at his said office at 12 o'clock Noon, on Tuesday, the 2nd day of January, A. D. 1912, to sum up the votes given for and against this By-law.

NOTICE

The above is a true copy of the proposed By-law which has been taken into consideration and which will be finally passed by the Council of the Corporation of the Village of Exeter, in the event in the assent of the Electors being obtained thereto, after one month from the first publication thereof in the Exeter Advocate Newspaper, which, first publication, shall be on the 30th day of November A. D., 1911 and a true copy posted at the Town Hall, Post Office and each of the Chartered Banks in the Said Village of Exeter, and a Poll will be held at the hour day and places therein fixed for taking the votes of the Electors.

Every Leaseholder entitled by law to vote on the proposed By-law shall at least ten days, next proceeding the day of polling, file in the office of the Clerk of the Municipality, a Statutory Declaration stating that his Lease meets the requirements by law entitling him to vote on such By-law, neglecting which, his or her name shall not be placed on the Voters' List for such voting.

Dated at Exeter, this 29th day of November, A. D. 1911.

"DADDY'S GIRL."

Are you one of the hundreds who have written to The Globe for a copy of "Daddy's Girl"? This is probably, without a single exception, the most popular picture ever published in Canada.

A few years ago the Christmas Globe published a limited number of them. The demand was so great that every copy was ordered before it was put on the market.

A sample copy of this picture, which is from the photograph of a child with the sweetest and most expressive face that can be imagined, may be seen at this office.

To see it is to want it.

This beautiful picture will be given free with each new subscription, or renewal sent in for the Weekly Globe and Canada Farmer before Dec. 31, 1911.

Remember the edition of this picture is limited, and the first come the first served.

The Weekly Globe and Canada Farmer has been enlarged, the staff of writers increased, and many new features have been added. These improvements are in keeping with the progressive management that has made the Daily Globe one of the first half-dozen newspapers on the continent. The Weekly Globe and Canada Farmer, with its Illustrated Magazine Section, has always had a fore most place among the metropolitan weeklies in Canada. It will now be classed with the best on the continent. When the Illustrated Magazine Section, with its forty or fifty pictures of current events every week, is taken into account it is certainly a lot of reading to be given for only one dollar per year.

PLATFORM OF PROGRESS

To the Electors of South Huron:

Gentlemen,

As the Liberal Candidate of this Riding, I appeal to you, irrespective of party, for your support. It will be in the best interests of the Province to elect a numerically stronger opposition than the Whitney Government has had in the past. I will briefly set before you some of the measures of Progressive Legislation, which the Liberal Party will bring forward at the first session of the new Legislature.

Appeal to You Irrespective of Party

1. Restoration of the County Model Schools. Through the abolition of these schools, the Whitney Government has not only demoralized the Public School System, but has also worked a great injury to the poor scholar, who under present conditions is often unable, for financial reasons, to take up teaching. There are at present over a thousand schools in the Province, that are being taught by teachers without certificates.

Restore Model Schools

2. The Fripp Bill, allowing Municipalities to adopt, on a majority vote, the system of taxing lands at a higher rate than buildings should have been allowed to become law. Over 300 municipalities and about 200 newspapers have petitioned the Whitney government to pass this reform measure, but Premier Whitney steadfastly refuses to pass this legislation.

Tax Reform

3. Provincial Owned Telephone Trunk Lines. Owing to the rapid increase of Municipally owned Telephone Systems, all connecting lines should be owned and controlled by the Province.

Owned by the Province

4. The abolition of the Three-Fifths clause in the Local Option Act. Majority Rule is British Justice and Fair Play. The present system of administrating the License Law is out-of-date, and steps should be taken to place the same under the control of an Independent Commission.

Majoriry Rule is British Justice

5. As all the principal water powers are owned by the Province, a flat rate should apply to all power users. Under present conditions, all the large manufacturing concerns will eventually have to locate close to the source of power in order to place themselves on an equal footing with those more favorably located. Electric power will cost close to $50.00 per h. p. in Huron, while near the Falls the cost is less than $20.00

CHAPTER X.—(Cont'd)

"I hate to be beaten at the final stage," he continued. "And I have a premonition that were I in England—had I but the power to proceed unchecked and unhindered by officialdom—I would soon lay my hands on the man who originated the Albert Gate mystery. But we are in France—in a country of queer legal forms and unusual methods. At home I can always circumvent Scotland Yard; here I am in the midst of strange surroundings, and know not what may happen. Therefore, we must possess our souls in patience and wait developments. The agent I have just employed has promised me to report every two hours at the hotel until eight o'clock. Then I will take personal charge of the Cabaret Noir, and——"

"What about me?" cried Fairholme.

"You, my dear fellow, will remain at the hotel and await orders."

"How long am I to sit chewing cigars in our rooms, then?"

"All night, if necessary. If I do not appear by seven o'clock to-morrow morning you had better go to the Embassy and tell one of the secretaries everything connected with out visit to Paris. He will then take action through the police in proper form, and after that you must simply await developments."

"Do you mean to say," said Fairholme, anxiously, "that you are contemplating another risky bit of business to-night?"

"Once I take my stand outside the Cabaret Noir about 8.30 I cannot tell where Fate may lead me. If I am lucky I will certainly return, whatever be the personal outcome. If, on the other hand, I learn nothing, you may certainly expect to see me about two in the morning."

At the hotel Brett found awaiting him a letter delivered by the midday post. It was from his elderly assistant in London, whom he had told to make a close scrutiny of all inhabited houses within a certain radius of the Carlton Hotel. The man had done his work systematically, and in only three instances was he called on to report doubtful cases.

Two foreign restaurants in side streets contained a number of residents concerning whom it was difficult to obtain specific information.

One of these establishments he believed to be the resort of Continental gamblers driven from Soho by the too marked attentions of the police. The other was a place of even more questionable repute, and in both instances he had utterly failed to obtain the slightest information from the servants, who apparently "stood in" with the management.

The third dwelling which courted observation was a flat situated above some business premises in another quiet street. So far as he could learn, it was tenanted by an elderly lady who was a helpless invalid, waited on by a somewhat curious couple.

"They are Italians, I think," wrote the ex-policeman, "and very uncommunicative people. I have twice called, on one pretext or another, but when the door is opened it is always kept on a chain and I cannot see more than the face of a man or woman and a few inches of wall beyond. Still, I have no reason to doubt that the view taken by the milkman and baker is correct, namely, that the owner of the flat is confined to her bed and is suffering from a nervous disease, which renders it imperative she should be shut off from all noise. The landlord informs me that these people have occupied the place for nearly two months. Their rent is paid in advance, and they have not given the slightest cause for complaint. There are, of course, in this district a large number of private lines, and, although some of their patrons might well demand closer observation, I have come across nothing suggestive of any suspicious circumstances whatever with reference to them. I have detained my report until I was able to give details concerning the other houses in the district, and I will now fall back on the second part of your instructions, i.e., to maintain a close watch on the three establishments which I have picked out as being more unusual in their habits than the others." This was all.

Soon after three o'clock a report arrived from the agent in the Rue du Chaussee d'Antin. It read—

"Nothing unusual has occurred in the vicinity of the Cabaret Noir. The customers frequenting the place are all of the ordinary type and do not call for special comment.

"A Turkish gentleman quitted the house No. 11, Rue Barbette, at 1:45 p.m., but returned shortly before two o'clock. Half an hour later a man, whom my assistant recognized as a member of a well-known gang of flash thieves, entered the place. His name is Charles Petit, but he is generally known to his associates as 'Le Ver.' He is small, well-dressed, and of youthful appearance, but really older than he looks. He is still in the house inhabited by the Turks."

"What is the meaning of 'Le Ver'?" said Fairholme.

"It means 'The Worm,'" answered Brett.

"I must say these chaps do find suitable nicknames for one another. I wonder if he is the fellow we followed to Montmarte this morning?"

"Possibly, though I am puzzled to understand why he should trust himself in that hornets' nest again. Most certainly the description covers him, but we shall probably hear more details later. I wonder where the Turkish gentleman went whom 'Le Ver' seems to have followed. He could not have gone to the Cabaret Noir in the time!"

Brett's curiosity was answered to some extent by the next report, delivered about five o'clock. It read as follows—

"Le Ver is still in the house No. 11, Rue Barbette. My agent explains that he did not follow the Turk, who left and returned to the place earlier, because his definite instructions were not to leave the locality, but to report on all persons who entered or left. Absolutely nothing has transpired in this neighborhood since my first report.

"Gros Jean, the father of La Belle Chasseuse, arrived at the Cabaret Noir soon after four o'clock. My agent ascertained from the cabman who drove him that Gros Jean had hired the vehicle outside the Gare de Lyon. Otherwise nothing stirring."

At seven o'clock came developments.

"Three Turkish gentlemen have quitted No. 11, Rue Barbette, but the Frenchman is still there. As it might be necessary to follow another person leaving the house, I stationed another watcher with my assistant, and this second man followed the Turks to a restaurant in the Grand Boulevard. So far as he could judge, they seemed to be excited and apprehensive. They drank some wine and conversed together in low tones. At 6:15 they quitted the cafe and rapidly jumped into an empty fiacre, being driven off in the direction of the Opera. So unexpectedly did they leave their seats that before my agent could hire another cab they had disappeared in the traffic, and although he drove after them as rapidly as possible, he failed again to catch sight of them. I have reprimanded him for his negligence, although he did right in coming at once to me to report his failure. In accordance with your instructions, I have ordered the watchers at the Cafe Noir and in the Rue Barbette to be in this office at 8.15 p.m."

"Now I wonder," said Brett, "why the Turks left the Frenchman alone in No. 11. It is odd, to say the least of it. Since the dramatic discovery of the spurious diamonds this morning they must be even more in the dark than I am. It must be looked into, but I cannot attend to it now. At this moment, if I am not mistaken the centre of interest is the Cafe Noir."

The two men occupied a sitting room on the first floor of the hotel, and their respective bedrooms flanked it on each side. Brett explained that he could not tackle the table d'hote dinner, so he made a hasty meal in their sitting-room and then excused himself whilst he retired to his bedroom to change his clothing.

He was absent some twenty minutes, and Fairholme amused himself by glancing over the copies of the day's London newspapers which had recently arrived. Suddenly the door of Brett's bedroom opened, and a decrepit elderly man appeared, a shabby-genteel individual, disfigured by drink and crumpled up by rheumatism.

"Who the devil——" began Fairholme.

But he was amazed to hear Brett's familiar voice asking—

"Do you think the disguise sufficiently complete?"

"Complete!" shouted Fairholme "why, your own mother would not know you."

"That is all right," said the barrister cheerfully. "I will now proceed to get quietly drunk at the Cafe Noir. Good-bye until seven o'clock to-morrow morning—perhaps earlier, and perhaps—well, no—until seven o'clock!"

They shook hands and parted, and not even Brett, the cleverest amateur detective of his day, could have remotely guessed where and how they would meet next.

Montmartre by day and Montmartre by night are two very different places. It flourishes by gaslight; by day it is garish and forlorn.

Prominent among the regular houses of entertainment was the Cabaret Noir, which, between the hours of 9 p.m. and 1 a.m., usually drove a roaring trade. Situated in the heart of a mountebank district, its patrons embraced all classes of society, from the American tourist with his quick eyes noting the vagaries of demi-mondaines, to the sharp-witted Parisian idler, on the alert for any easy and dishonest method of obtaining money which might present itself.

Among such a crowd a wine-sodden and decrepit old man was not likely to attract particular attention.

He sprawled over the table close to one of the windows which commanded a view of the side passage leading to the rear of the building. Although none of the noisy crowd in the cafe could suspect the fact, the half-closed eyes of this elderly drunkard noted the form and features of every individual who entered or left by the main door, whilst at the same time he paid the utmost possible attention to the comings and goings of any person who used the passage by the window.

Brett began to feel that his diligence that night would not be rewarded.

At five minutes past eleven, however, a pink-and-white Frenchman, neatly attired, unobtrusive both in manner and deportment, entered the cafe and seated himself quietly near the door. He ordered some coffee and cognac, and lighted a cigarette.

The barrister, of course, took heed of him as of all others, and he would soon have placed him in the general category that merited no special attention had he not noticed that the newcomer more than once glanced at the clock and then towards the corner bar, whence, it will be remembered, a small door led towards the billiard saloon in which La Belle Chasseuse had displayed her prowess with the pistol.

In such a community the stranger's self-possession and reticence were distinguishable characteristics. So Brett watched him, largely for want of better occupation.

"That is a man of unusual power," was his summing up. "He is elegant, fascinating, unscrupulous. Although apparently out of his natural element in this neighborhood, he has some purpose in putting in an appearance in such a place as this at a late hour. His hands are large and sinewy, his wrists square, and, although slight in physique, I should credit him with possessing considerable strength. Being a Frenchman, he should be an expert with the foils."

Brett had hardly concluded this casual analysis of the person who had enlisted his close observation, when the private door into the bar opened and Mlle. Beaucaire entered.

Without taking the least notice of any of the numerous occupants of the cafe she turned her back on them, and apparently busied herself in checking the contents of the cash register. Beyond this useful instrument was a mirror, and Brett at once perceived that from the point where she stood she could command a distinct reflection of the pink-and-white Frenchman.

The latter was gazing at the clock, and whilst doing so stroked his chin three times with his right hand. Immediately afterwards La Belle Chasseuse three times rang the bell of the register, and then, having apparently concluded her inspection, quitted the bar as unceremoniously as she had entered. Half a minute later the Frenchman finished the remains of his cognac, and passed into the street.

It was with difficulty that Brett restrained himself from following him, but he was certain that no one could leave the residential portion of the building without using the passage—a view of which he commanded from his window—and he resolutely resolved to devote himself for that night to shadowing the ex-circus lady.

His patience and self-denial were soon rewarded. A light, quick step sounded in the passage, and a shrouded female form shot past the open window.

Then the inebriated individual, now hopelessly muddled by drink staggered towards the door and lurched wildly round the corner just in time to see mademoiselle crosse the Boulevard.

CANCER NON-COMMUNICABLE.

Fourth Report of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund:

The fourth scientific report of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund has just been issued in London. It contains important papers by Dr. Haaland, Dr. Murray and Dr. Bashford. These are highly technical and profusely illustrated with drawings of microscopic preparations which will convey little to the lay mind. But every one may learn something of their cancer problem as a whole from Dr. Bashford's general introduction. Among questions which were early set at rest were that cancer was not due to a common casual parasite; that it was not a recent acquirement, and that the age incidence of cancer in man and animals is in the absence of communicability, compatible only with the recognition of the intrinsic cellular nature of cancerous prolifiration. Another conclusion from experiments is that each tumor is peculiarly and genetically related to the individual in which it arises. The individuality of cancer, both as regards the organism attacked and the tumor, seems to have been placed at last beyond all further doubt. Such a relationship has long been maintained in various forms on the basis of deductions drawn from microscopical examination of the tissues at the site of the primary lesion and from the nature of dissemination; but this interpretation of the findings has been as vehemently disputed. The combination of the results arrived at by microscopical investigation and experimental study appears to complete the demonstration a long step has thus been taken in defining the direction in which the future investigation of cancer is alone likely to be profitable.

The study of the occurrence of cancer in mankind and in domesticated animals in widely separated parts of the globe has shown that the practice of peculiar customs, involving the application of chronic irritants to particular parts of the body, provokes the disease in situations and organs from which it is absent when these customs do not obtain. It is reasonable to suppose that the frequency of cancer would be diminished if such practices as the use of the Kangri in Kashmir, chewing betel nut in India and eating very hot rice in China were discontinued. It is also reasonable to assume that the introduction into England of these exotic customs would greatly increase the frequency of cancer in this country.

THE RISE IN TEA PRICES.

One of our reporters has interviewed Mr. Melville, the chief representative of Thomas J. Lipton for Canada and the United States, who, when asked for the cause of the increase in price of tea, said: "The day of good tea at a cheap price has passed by, more particularly of British-grown teas, their increasing popularity has created a greater demand than the supply. Russia and Australia are buying tremendously of these instead of Chinas, the consumption in Great Britain is larger than ever, the shutting out of over 15 million pounds of colored China green tea by the United States, the larger use of tea due to high coffee prices, the growth of rubber in Ceylon, the shortage in the Japan crop this year and the labor problem in tea-growing countries, all these factors account for the much higher primary markets, and the present revolution in China may mean smaller Chinese crops next year. It either means lower quality at the same prices or the same quality at higher prices, and our experience shows the public prefer the latter. The future indications are for still higher prices. Even with the advance in price, tea will still be by far the cheapest popular beverage."

PRICE BROS. & COMPANY OF QUEBEC, CANADA
Manufacturers of Paper, Pulp and Timber

First Mortgage Five Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

Due November 1st, 1940 — Interest Payable Half-Yearly

PRICE TO YIELD 6% ON THE INVESTMENT

We consider that these Bonds present an exceptional opportunity for absolutely safe and most remunerative investment on account of the strong features following:

First— The convertible nature of the Company's assets, consisting of 6,000 square miles of pulp and timber lands distributed throughout the Province of Quebec. These properties could to-day be subdivided and sold in the open market for almost twice the amount of the First Mortgage Bonds. The timber limits are fully insured with Lloyds of London, England, against loss through forest fires.

Second—The net earnings from the Company's present business are equal to approximately twice the amount required for payment of Interest on the First Mortgage Bonds. The new paper and pulp mills now in course of construction will double this earning power.

Third— The First Mortgage Bonds can to-day be purchased at a substantial discount price and they are retired by a Sinking Fund capable of redeeming practically the entire issue at 102½ and interest by yearly drawings.

Fourth— Price Bros. & Company is the largest industry in the Province of Quebec, where they have been in business for over one hundred years. Their First Mortgage Bonds have been purchased by the most conservative investors in England and Canada, among whom are many of our strongest Banks and Insurance Companies.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

INDUSTRIAL BONDS BETTER THAN REAL ESTATE MORTGAGES IF VALUE OF LAND IS SUFFICIENT.

Must be in Excess of Bonds, However, to Make this True—"Industrials" Form a Popular Investment in Canada Where Railroad Bonds are Practically Unknown.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By Investor.)

The relative popularity of investments in Canada differs very materially from that in the United States. Here, for example, railroad bonds are practically unknown. One can carefully scan the lists of bond dealers' offerings and the advertisements in the financial press without seeing any railway bonds offered for sale. In the States, on the contrary, they stand first in the estimation of conservative investors. And after railroad mortgage bonds come railway equipment bonds. In Canada, investors often have opportunities to invest in railroad equipment bonds, but as a rule these are eagerly taken in large amounts elsewhere, and so Canadians cannot give these the position in their scheme of investing that they deserve. As a result, they must fall well down in rank of relative popularity, coming after industrials, and even real estate mortgages and investment stocks, not in security, of course, but only in popularity.

And so, as we are treating these securities in accordance with their relative popularity and not according to their relative merits, we come now to the study of industrial bonds. "Industrial" bonds are bonds secured by mortgage of some manufacturing, mercantile or miscellaneous company of a private character. The consideration of an industrial bond as an investment from the point of view of safety involves a more thorough investigation than that of a municipal. The safety depends, of course, on the success of the security on which the mortgage is based, over the amount of the outstanding obligations. But this margin is by no means easy to determine. "Even when determined," says a writer on this subject, "the rule is difficult of application, because a margin which may seem insufficient from the point of view of physical valuation may be satisfactory when considered as the equity of a working concern." That is to say, the "good-will" of an active business, while it should not be reckoned as a proper security for a mortgage, may be of sufficient value to render the bonds amply safe when the good-will stands as a marginal security. Then, too, machinery is valuable only where it is being used. A negative example of this may be seen in the unfortunate position of the bondholders of the Amalgamated Asbestos Corporation. This company—primarily a mining concern, but with many points in common with the ordinary industrial—has valuable properties and good machinery; but its business is one in which "good-will"—i.e., business connection, satisfied customers, etc.—counts for little. Consequently, when the demand for asbestos products fell off the corporation was unable to sell its output in the face of competition, most of its customers preferring, apparently, to buy from any other company than the so-called "trash." Had it had a "good-will" worthy the name it might have tided over the dull times in the asbestos trade. It must be borne in mind, however, that good-will is not a proper security for a bond, but is valuable only as an "equity."

In estimating the safety of industrial bonds the most easily estimated asset is its real estate. The first point, therefore, to be determined is the value of the company's real estate holdings, on which, of course, the bond is a first mortgage. Should, as is sometimes the case, the value of the real estate—exclusive of buildings—equal or exceed the amount of the mortgage the security is ample, and the bond has all the good features of a real estate mortgage, with none of its drawbacks. Of course, any first-class banking house handling an industrial issue will not base this determination on the cost of the land or the value at which it stands in the company's books. It is only the appraised value which is of any importance. For example, the property and plant of the Amalgamated Asbestos Corporation stood on the books last year at $17,000,000. Let us say that the plant took up $7,000,000—an excessive figure, of course. We have $10,000,000 for the property to stand behind a bond issue of $7,500,000. But the $10,000,000 may represent the PAR VALUE of securities paid for the property at the time of the amalgamation, while those may have been given at a value of only 50 cents on the dollar. In this way the actual cost of the property may be only $5,000,000, whereas the real worth of the property as determined by appraised value may be much less than even this amount. If, then, the appraised value of real estate is less than the mortgage the investor must consider several other factors.

CONFECTIONERY.

Sea Foam.—Use two cups of best brown sugar, put enough water on to melt sugar, boil until it can be made in soft ball; beat white of an egg stiff, pour the syrup on in small stream, beating hard at the time. Beat until almost cool, then drop in little cakes on buttered plate.

Kneaded Fudge.—Two cups of granulated sugar, one cup of milk or cream, two tablespoons of grated chocolate, butter the size of an egg, a 10 cent box of marshmallows. Put these in when fudge is boiling. Test the fudge in a cup of cold water and when it forms a ball, take off fire and beat hard until it is thick enough to take into your buttered hands and knead. After kneading put in a buttered dish and cut in squares.

Crisp Popcorn.—To keep popcorn crisp when already buttered, keep it in the warming oven of a range. Pop a large quantity at a time, then put some aside in a crock and in two weeks it may be placed in a moderate oven and heated, then buttered, when it becomes more delicious than when first popped.

Popcorn Balls.—Pop corn and select carefully all the best part; make syrup with one pound of light brown sugar, one-half cup of water, one-half cup of vinegar. Let boil until it strings, pour over corn, stir well, let cool a little, dip hands in cold water, and make balls quickly.

Coffee Pontea.—A simple dessert and a most excellent one is made with one cup rich cream, one cup sugar, one-half cup strong coffee; have cream and coffee chilled, add sugar, whip stiff. Pour in mold, pack in snow, and salt or ice for several hours.

Banana Royal.—Take one pint of cream, three well beaten eggs, one cup of sugar, and one teaspoon vanilla. Stir thoroughly and freeze for twenty minutes, then divide into six parts. Take six small bananas and cut them lengthwise and lay two halves on each dish; then add preserved fruits to suit taste.

WHEN TURKEY RULED OCEAN

OTTOMAN FLEETS WERE A TERROR TO NATIONS.

Battle of Lepanto Was First Death-Knell of Turkish Sea Power.

It is difficult in these days of Turkish naval degeneration to imagine that there was a time when Turkish seamen and Turkish fleets dominated the Mediterranean to the terror of the Christian nations that bordered it and traded upon it. There are many famous seamen in the annals of the Ottoman Empire, and many naval actions of great magnitude—in fact, the most stupendous maritime conflict of historic times was the Battle of Lepanto, fought in 1571, in which the Christian League of the nations at the Western end of the Mediterranean finally overthrew the Turks and practically put an end to the period of his naval domination.

The first of the great Turkish sea kings was Uruj Barbarossa, who was born on the Island of Lesbos toward the close of the fifteenth century. For some time he cruised in the Archipelago, following the not unusual occupation of a buccaneer, but he soon grew ambitious, and, sailing with an increased force along the African coast, he fixed up an agreement with the King of Tunis, under which he had free use of that port on condition that he handed over a fifth of his booty. The first exploit of Uruj at this end of the Mediterranean was the capture of two richly laden galleys belonging to Pope Julius II., whose crews were so astounded at the sight of Turkish turbans in such Western waters—the affair took place off the Island of Elba—that they made

HARDLY ANY RESISTANCE.

The Turk put his prisoners to work the oars and set out for more plunder. His next considerable capture was that of a Spanish galleon carrying 500 soldiers, but the unfortunate people were so horribly seasick that they, too, put up no opposition to the Turk. In the course of a year or two Uruj was at the head of a squadron of eight ships, and naturally began to turn his thoughts to something better than the paying of tribute to the King of Tunis.

He, therefore, set out to assist the dethroned King of Bujeya to regain his country from the Spaniards, but thanks to a wound he himself received and to the arrival of the great Genoese Admiral, Andrea Doria, he failed, and his power was for the time broken.

Uruj had a worthy successor in his younger brother, whose name is variously rendered Chiaraddin, Kheyred-din or Hairreddin. By a series of cunning diplomatic moves of which this peroid is so full, Chiaraddin obtained much assistance from the Sultan, and gradually regained all that had been lost in the battle where his brother lost his life. Having established himself ashore he equipped a fleet of 18 galleons, and with these he scoured the Mediterranean every year from May to August in search of Christian booty, and so greatly did he increase his power that in a few years he laid successful siege to the Spanish port of Algiers, which fell after a continuous day-and-night bombardment of a fortnight. A couple of weeks after the place had fallen nine transports full of re-enforcements arrived, and after the Turks had watched them for some time sailing up and down outside trying to locate the now unrecognizable fortress, they pounced out and took the whole flotilla, with NEARLY 3,000 PRISONERS.

Concurrently with these successes in the west the Turkish fleet at home had been busying itself. Lepanto was taken from Venice, Egypt was conquered, and, last rock of all in the Christian rule of the Mediterranean, the Island of Rhodes, garrisoned by the Knights of St. John, was taken in 1522 after a long siege, in which were engaged 400 ships and over 100,000 soldiers.

Chiaraddin was then recalled by the Sultan to undertake the reconstruction of the Turkish fleet. In 1538 a great fight was fought off Preveza between him and Andrea Doria, but nothing decisive occured, the Genoese sailing away and leaving the Turks in command of the waters. The great Admiral died in 1546, when he was about 90 years of age, after adding greatly to his reputation by daring and successful exploits in France.

The year 1571 was a vital one in the history of Turkish sea-power. It began with a great Turkish success—the taking of Cyprus; it ended with Lepanto and the practical annihilation of the Moslem fleet. Before its capture Cyprus was a Venetian possession, and when the attack was begun Pope Plus V. set out to organize a Christian league against the Turks. On previous occasions the Christian powers had been sorely hampered by divided command, but on this occasion, however, the Pope succeeded in placing in chief command of the Papal, Spanish and Venetian forces, Don John of Austria, who though only 25 years of age, already had earned a great reputation for leadership. On Sept. 16, 1571, weighed anchor from Messina—a force of 243 ships of various classes, carrying nearly 41,000 fighting men and 43,000 rowers, and armed with 1,815 cannon. The Turkish fleet consisted of 274 ships, but 66 of these were piratical craft constructed for the undoing of merchantmen, and not to stand up against legitimate fighting ships.

The opposing flagships set at each other—the Reale of Don John and the Fanal of Ali Pasha. Each was boarded, each drove the boarders back, and the fight waxed fairly even until Ali's ship was rammed by a third vessel with such force that the crew were all thrown off their feet. In the confusion Don John found no difficulty in subduing the Turkish flagship; Ali was killed, and when the Turks saw the Christian flag flying at the Fanal's masthead they began to lose heart. Everywhere they gave way, everywhere the Christians relentlessly pursued and killed.

Lepanto was the death-knell of Turkish sea-power. In one form or another—principally in the shape of pirate colonies on the North African coast—it survived until the beginning of the last century, when European powers—ourselves included—were willing to pay tribute to secure immunity for their merchant shipping. Curiously enough, it was the United States that finally cleared out the nest.—London Express.

CAMERA WONDERS.

Used As an Aid in Uncovering Evidences of Crime.

It is a well-known fact that the photographic plate is much more sensitive to certain distinctions in color than the human eye, says the Scientific American. This remarkable property has found extended and important use in the tracking of criminals. Professor R. A. Reiss has published an account of a large number of examples of most striking character, a brief review of which appears in a recent number of Die Umschau, and is cited below:

"A handkerchief which has been washed with soap is to be examined as to any possible traces of blood. The linen appears uniformly white without any stains. A chemical examination in such a case would be quite unavailing, as there is no information at all as to where the stains may be located. A photographic copy of the handkerchief taken through a dark blue light filter shows distinct stains, which are then cut out from the linen and separately tested by a special method which establishes their true character.

"In another case a search through the living apartment of a person suspected of forging 100 franc notes, disclosed the presence of a number of lithographic stones, the surface of which had been fresh-cover. All efforts, aided by the context, to recall the character of the picture, proved fruitless, and the only resource left open was to endeavor to reconstruct by photographic means the vanished picture from any impression which it might have left upon the tissue paper cover. This task was accomplished with complete success by photographing through a blue filter and reinforcing the contrasts by the successive perforations of positive and negative copies. This resort was rendered possible through the fact that the grease of the printers' ink had been partially absorbed by the tissue paper, and had, by oxidation, imparted to the same a slight yellow coloration quite invisible to the eye. The engraving was later ly scraped and polished. The ordinary methods for bringing out old drawings upon lithographic stones yielded an entirely negative result. It was only by photographing the slab after special chemical treatment, that the pattern of the bank notes was disclosed. Among these was one which had been engraved no less than twenty years previously.

"At one of the public libraries it was discovered that a copper engraving had been abstracted. The thief had, however, omitted to remove the protecting tissue paper discovered in the thief's possession.

"The examination of a drowned woman by photography disclosed distinct evidence of strangulation marks which were absolutely invisible to the naked eye. On the basis of this evidence it was subsequently established that the drowned person had been thrown into the water after a previous struggle.

"Among other instances of the use of photography to detect crime or unravel mysteries may be briefly mentioned the discovery of the traces from pencil characters upon paper over which actual writing paper had lain during the act of writing; the detection of postmarks upon postage stamps chemically treated to renovate them; the development into visible form of previously invisible ink impressions; the detection of fraudulent tampering with sealed mail matter; the regeneration of the text of charred documents, etc."

KITCHEN.

If new tinware is rubbed all over with fresh lard, then thoroughly heated before use it never will rust. If the bottom of new tinware is rubbed over with lard before setting on fire the black can be rubbed off with paper.

The importance of clean dish cloths, now that diseases are known to be caused by germs, cannot be too strongly impressed upon the minds of all housekeepers. If it is black and sour throw it into the fire. Keep your dish cloth clean.

Before you commence to prepare your meal spread a paper at one end of your kitchen table, let all scraps and parings go on it. Take this paper up and burn in furnace and you have no scattered refuse to clean up. Also have newspaper spread when sweeping rooms to put all dust in. Spread paper over cold air register of hot air furnace when sweeping to keep dust from drawing down.

China Cement.—Make a paste by stirring powdered lime into the white of an egg. Let it harden well, and neither hot nor cold water will affect it.

To clean sink drains use one pound copperas, one gallon boiling water. Do not use lye for that purpose, as it has a tendency to form soft soap when sink drain is greasy. Copperas is poison, so if kept on hand it should be labeled.

When boiling cabbage, kraut, turnips or other loud smelling substances, put a lump of charcoal or red pepper pod in the kettle to neutralize the odor therefrom.

Turn your colander over eggs or hominy or anything that spatters while cooking. They will not steam and will brown nicely and not fly out and burn you. You can raise handle a little to turn.

If you would retain the wholesome acidity of the cranberry, thicken with cornstarch and sugar. When the latter is used alone the pleasant, agreeable flavor is lost in a heavy, unpalatable sweet.

To cook steak or chop quickly press down with weight, set over a cover smaller than frying pan.

RELIEVED HIM.

"I say, old man, I need $50 badly and haven't the least idea where I can get it."

"Glad to hear that. I thought perhaps you had an idea you could borrow it from me."

BONDS THAT INCREASE IN VALUE

¶ When the demand increases for a bond of a certain denomination, the price goes up. A new issue of 5 per cent. bonds may be made which will sell at $98, on which basis they would yield 5.05 per cent. Future demand for these bonds would probably force them up to $105. The original purchasers could then sell at a profit and re-invest the funds.

¶ We will be glad to place your name on our mailing list and advise you when new issues of bonds are made.

¶ This will keep you in touch with the Bond Market, which is unquestionably the form your investments should take if you value security and a high rate of interest.

The new station is rapidly being erected. The walls, roof and much of the interior have been completed, and it is expected to be in shape for occupation by Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Gordon, of Ottawa evangelists closed a very successful series of special meetings on Monday evening last in the James street Methodist church. Much good was accomplished.

At this time of year, when taxes and other accounts must be paid, the Advocate is much in need of money, and we would esteem it a personal favor if subscribers would look at the labels on their papers and remit amounts due at once.

Next spring there is bound to be a big demand for seed grain at good prices. The hot wave which passed over Ontario while the grain was filling caused a lot of it to shrink. Phump well-filled grain will likely be at a premium.

The hardest customer an editor has to deal with the man who never comes into the office except when he has an axe to grind and wants some one to turn the crank. His best friends are those who visit his office often and agree to disagree without any bad after effect.

From a Wallaceburg paper we note that Mr. James Hibbard, under the direction of Mr. Peter McDonald, formerly of Exeter, succeeded in cutting 6,000 sets of No. 1, 11½ hardwood headings in less than 10 hours at the Cooperage Company's plant. People who were familiar with the work when the Sutherland Innis Company was here, know that from three to four thousand was an average day's work.

Students receive the best positions and the demand for them is many times the supply. Thousands of ambitious young people, who work during the day, are preparing for useful careers by studying in the evening. The Winter term of this popular school begins Jan 2nd, as will be seen in an advertisement on page 4. Spotton schools are located in the towns of Wingham, Clinton, Walkerton, and Orangeville and the cities of London and Peterboro.

HICKS' FORECASTS FOR DEC.—A reactionary storm period is central at the magnetic and electric crisis of winter solstice, on the 11, 12 and 13. Look at this time for a spell of continued threatening, stormy weather. Navigation on the Atlantic Ocean will be perilous, and inland storms will be bitter and prolonged. Volcanic unrest and outbursts, with earth currents and auroral illuminations, will be at maximum, causing seismic periods.

TWENTY-FOURTH YEAR. EXETER, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1911. SANDERS & CREECH

Local Items

Mr. Archie Hodgert, traveller, is home, being laid up with an injury to his foot.

A young lady of town informs us that on Sunday last she picked several dandelions, which is certainly very unusual for December 10th.

The newly-organized band made their first appearance in public on Monday evening at the Conservative meeting for hearing the returns and played several selections in excellent style. All were loud in their praise of the remarkable progress the band has made under the leadership of Mr. E. Treble.

Mr. Shute, who is engaged in installing the large pipe organ in the Presbyterian church, assisted the choir of the Trivitt Memorial Church on Sunday evening last. During the service he rendered a solo in magnificent voice, and in a manner that delighted the large congregation. Mr. Shute has a deep bass voice of remarkable volume.

Thos. A. Edison, who recently startled the world by saying he would make it possible to build a concrete house for $1000, now declares that in the near future he will put on the market concrete furniture. The concrete surface can be stained so as to look like any kind of wood desired, and Mr. Edison says, that newly-weds, instead of adorning their homes on the instalment plan with $750 worth of dubious chairs tables, etc., can invest $200, and rival "palatial residences" with their display.

A GOOD THING IN STORE.—Mr. J. H. Markham, who has under training a number of scholars of the Trivitt Memorial Church Sunday School and others, will present the Pantomime, "Snow-white and the Ten Dwarfs," in the Opera House on Thursday night, Dec. 21st. The people of Exeter have not yet forgotten the excellent performance of a similar nature put on under the same auspices last year, and this promises to far excel even that affair. This interesting pantomime has been staged by those in charge with remarkable completeness of scenic detail and effect, and is bound to prove interesting and entertaining to both old and young. To miss it would be to miss a treat.

The Advocate will be sent to any address in Canada till January 1913 for $1.00.

ANNUAL BAZAAR—The Ladies Guild of Trivitt Memorial Church held their Bazaar in the Opera House last Friday. The building was beautifully decorated with bunting and ornamental paper designs and festoons. The usual sale of articles was carried on in the afternoon and evening. From 5.30 to 8 a very elaborate tea was served, the tables being beautifully arranged and decorated in the lower part of the building, which lends itself admirably for banquetting purposes. The program which began at 8.30 was highly appreciated. Mr. Shoot contributed three solos. His fine rich base was pronounced the best Exeter has heard for a long time. Mrs. Manson and Mr. Hurdon gave readings which were well received. Miss Elliott of Centralia, who is always a favorite with Exeter audiences, sang two numbers with splendid effect, while the duet by Misses Moncur and Follick was much appreciated. Miss Bissett gave two piano solos in excellent form. Miss Kinsman accompanied all the singers in her usual efficient manner. The proceeds amounted to about $115.

HEARING THE RETURNS

The Liberals had the Town Hall and the Conservatives the Opera House on Monday evening to hear the returns of ing of instrumentals by Earl Spackthe election. In the latter place an impromptu program was given, consistman, solos by Morris Senior, duet by Tom Carling and Herb Southcott, selections by the town band and the 12th July band, and addresses were delivered by the chairman L. H. Dickson, W. B. Weidenhammer and Rev. D. W. Collins The results being just about as expected there was no great amount of enthusiasm in either camp, although the Conservatives were well pleased with the outcome

PUBLIC UTILITIES

The people of Exeter will have an opportunity at the coming municipal election of deciding in favor or against a further expenditure to extend our water system, and also the introduction of Hydro-Electric in our town. The proper time to discuss questions of this kind is while they are before us, not when they have passed. The first duty of our citizens as well as municipal authorities should be to secure the greatest good to the greatest number. After all the great purpose of municipal officers is to secure for its people that which contributes the most to their comfort, convenience, happiness and contentment The first step to these is to encourage industries It is decidedly against business principles to assist competitive ones with public funds, but such as will produce a new line of goods, or better still one whose finished product will be raw material for another, and this is eventually what will be the natural result when industrial activity is once set in motion In order to make industries a possibility, cheap water, power and light are utilities that must be present to attract investors Every citizen should see to it that the opportunity of securing these utilities should be seized as they are the modern means of success. What do industries mean to a town? Charles Kingsley, a noted man, once said, "Work will breed in you temperance and self-control, diligence and strength of will, cheerfulness and content, and a hundred virtues which the idle never know." Municipal officers should be prepared to cope with big deals and to carry them to a point where they will not be burdens, but to serve the people and become revenue producers. This applies to public utilities and industries as well. An industry in this town paid out last year over $51,000. It is not so important a question how much of the people's money is spent annually but how much do the people get back on their investment. We should not lose sight of the fact that the people, and not the piles of bricks and mortar, constitute a town and if we can spend $10,000 of the people's money to establish industries that will return to the people an amount similar to the above annually, directly or indirectly, can this not be considered a permanent improvement, or an asset which can be taken into inventory annually, and if we had half a dozen more of this class of industries in town who would worry about paying taxes? S. M. S.

EILBER AND MILLS SPEAK HERE

The political meeting in the Opera House on Wednesday night of last week was a most enthusiastic one. The meeting was in the interests of Mr. H. Eilber the Conservative candidate. The hall was well filled and the chairman was Mr. W. B. Weidenhammer, principal of the Exeter School. The speakers were Mr. Eilber and Mr. Walter Mills, K. C., of Ridgetown, son of the late Hon. David Mills.

Mr Eilber in a fine speech showed conclusively the fact that the Whitney Government had done a great deal of good work for the people of the Province in the seven years of their being in power. He named and explained much of the good legislation, dealing particularly with the effects of such legislation in Huron County. Both the railway taxes and the educational grants had been doubled. $12,770 had been given Huron County as their share of the railway taxes. $14,693 in one year came to Huron for educational purposes.

Walter Mills delivered the most eloquent, well prepared and convincing address ever delivered from a political platform in Exeter. Whitney had proven to be the same in power as in opposition—a strong, fearless, and honest statesman, determined to do his best to give the province good government, in which he had eminently succeeded. He complimented the riding upon their representative, and paid a very high tribute to Hon. Adam Beck and Hon. W. J. Hanna praising the Hydro-Electric scheme, the prison farm, the enforcement of the license laws, and the Whitney Educational policies. He showed by comparison with other professions and callings the need of the increased training for teachers as afforded by the Normal Schools.

MUSGROVE AND PROUDFOOT KEEP THEIR SEATS

CONSERVATIVES WIN S. PERTH

The result of the Ontario election on Monday was nothing more than was expected. The Whitney Government was endorsed by almost the same large majority. A few changes were made here and there, with the result that the Liberals made a net gain of four seats making the Government majority in the next Legislature 60 instead of 68, as in the last session. The cabinet ministers were all returned.

The next Legislature will be as follows,—

DEATH OF MRS. J. A. WILLIAMS

A death which cast a deep gloom over the village of Zurich and surrounding community occurred last Thursday at 9.40 a.m., that of Mrs. J. A. Williams, who has been a resident of that place for about twenty-nine years. Two years ago her health failed; two operations were performed and all that medical aid could possibly do was done During that time she was able to be up and around with the family until ten weeks ago, when she became confined to her bed. A week ago she took convulsions from which she never fully rallied although at times she knew her loved ones, who all came home and gathered around her. On Tuesday a comotose condition set in, she gradually sank and became unconscious until on Thursday morning she slept into eternity. hTe deceased was of a kind, loving cheerful, Christian disposition and was a favorite with old and young. This was attested during her last illness by the kindness of friends, by the floral offerings at the funeral, and by the large concourse which gathered to pay their last respects and follow her to her last resting place. She was a Christian for many years and while in health attended the services of the church regularly. She was also a member of the W.C.T.U. since its organization here, in Zurich, and was always willing to do part in the work. She leaves besides a sorrowing husband, six children—three daughters, Mrs. R. H. Whiteside, Kempt ville, Ethel and Eva at home, three sons Calvin of Buffalo, Leslie and Robert at home; one sister, Mrs. A. S. Ehnes, three brothers, Jake of St. Paul, Minn., Daniel of Caro, Mich., David of Buffalo. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. S. F. Brown Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the family residence, thence to the church where a funeral sermon was preached from Rev. 14—13, the choir and Rannie sisters singing appropriate music, after which interment was made in Bronson Line cemetery.

ST. VITUS DANCE

Chorea, or as it is more generally known, St. Vitus dance, is a disease that usually attacks the young children, though older persons may be afflicted with it. Its most common symptoms are a twitching of the muscles of the face and limbs. As the disease progresses this twitching takes the form of spasms in which the jerking motion may be confined to the head or all the limbs may be affected. The patient is frequently unable to hold anything in the hands or to walk steadily, and in severe cases even the speech is affected. The disease is due to debility of the nerves and is always cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, tone and strengthen the nerves and thus restore the sufferer to good health. The following is a striking instance of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do in this trouble. Mrs. Chas. Phipps, Pelee Island, Ont., says:—"At the age of fourteen my eldest daughter, Edith, became much run down, and the trouble developed into St. Vitus dance. First her left arm became affected, then the left leg and entire left side. She grew so bad that she actually could not hold anything in her hand, and could only go about with a sliding, jerking motion. Notwithstanding that we were giving her medicine, she seemed to be growing worse, and finally her speech became much affected. We became so much alarmed about her that finally her father got a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and we began giving her these. In the course of a few weeks she was much better, and before all the pills were gone she was again enjoying perfect health. This was in 1908, and as she has not had a symptom of the trouble since I feel justified in saying the cure is permanent."

Be sure you get the genuine pills which are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MODERN MANCHURIAN CITY.

Dairen is Being Organized on a Truly Up-to-date Plan.

The city of Dairen, formerly called Dalny, is said to be the most up-to-date town in Manchuria. Here the Japanese are spending large sums annually on street, sewer and lighting improvements. Good hotels are maintained by the South Manchuria railway (which is a semi-official organization). This line now runs express trains four times a week to connect with the trains of the Siberian railway; they are unsurpassed in the Far East, being equipped with pullman coaches, dining cars and sleepers. The railway also operates a twice-a-week steamer service to Shanghai. The wharves of Dairen are said to be the finest in the Far East, vessels drawing up to twenty-eight feet being moored alongside the quay. The port is open the year round, as the ice that forms in the bay is never thick enough to interfere with navigation. During the year 1910, 1,362 steamers entered this port with cargo, and 487 in ballast, their tonnage aggregating 1,637,719.

BRITISH STATISTICS.

Report of the Registrar-General of the United Kingdom.

There has been a striking falling off in the natural increase in the population of England and Wales this year. In a report issued by the Registrar-General of the United Kingdom it is shown that in the quarter ended September 30 births exceeded deaths by only 81,645, as compared with 123,022 excess of births over deaths in the corresponding quarter of 1910 and 123,309 and 124,054 in the third quarters of 1908 and 1909 respectively. The number of births registered in England and Wales in the third quarter of 1911 was 222,601, a rate of 24.4 annually a thousand of population, or 2.9 a thousand below the average birth rate in the third quarters of the ten preceding years. It was the lowest birth rate ever registered in any third quarter since the establishment of official civil registration. In four large cities of the United Kingdom outside of England and Wales the birth rate to the thousand of population was 20.4 in Edinburgh, 26.6 in Glasgow, 28 in Dublin and 28.3 in Belfast. The death rate in these places was Edinburgh, 14.2; Glasgow, 16.2; Dublin, 21.5, and Belfast, 16.9.

French statistics just issued indicate that there will be an actual falling off of 40,000 in the population of France in 1911 as compared with 1910. Last year the official registration figures showed that there was a slight decrease, not enough to justify belief that the trend would be downward permanently. The figures now presented, which cover the first six months of 1911, show that there were 14,000 fewer births and 26,000 more deaths than during the first six months of 1910. This made a net loss of 18,270 in the population.

According to the British figures the estimated population of the United Fingdom at the beginning of the second half of 1911 was 45,311,078. Subdividing this total England and Wales are given 36,168,750, Scotland 4,766,860 and Ireland 4,375,468. The natural increase in population—that is the excess of births over deaths—was 104,550. The birth rate for England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales combined in the third quarter of 1911 was 24.3 a thousand of estimated population and the death rate 15.2 a thousand.

Sores Flee Before It.—There are many who have been afflicted with sores and have driven them away with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which acts like magic. All similarly troubled should lose no time in applying this splendid remedy, as there is nothing like it to be had. It is cheap, but its power is in no way expressed by its low price.

A Cure for Rheumatism.—A painful and persistent form of rheumatism is caused by impurities in the blood, the result of defective action of the liver and kidneys. The blood becomes tainted by the introduction of uric acid, which causes much pain in the tissues and in the joints. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are known to have effected many remarkable cures, and their use is strongly recommended. A trial of them will convince anyone of their value.

JAPANESE DENTISTS.

Extract Teeth With Their Fingers at a Great Rate.

Japanese native dentists conduct their business in a manner which would undoubtedly cause any European practitioner to open his eyes in amazement. The victim is seated on the ground. The dentist bends over him and forces his left hand between the patient's jaws in such a manner that the mouth cannot possibly be closed. Then he grasps the doomed tooth between the thumb and forefinger of the right hand and with one deft wrench removes it and throw it upon the ground.

So great is the skill of these native dentists that many of them are able to remove six or seven teeth per minute. Indeed, their skill is hardly to be wondered at when one considers the course of preparatory training they are obliged to undergo.

A number of holes are bored in a stout plank and this is fixed firmly to the ground. In the holes are driven wooden pegs and the would be dentist has to extract them with his fingers without dislodging the board. This process is repeated with a board of pine wood and finally with one of oak, and it is only when he has succeeded in extracting the pegs from the oak plank that the Japanese considers himself qualified to practice upon his fellow men.—Pearson's Weekly.

NOTHING LIKE THEM FOR A SORE BACK

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS STILL DOING GREAT WORK.

Mrs. T. G. Alexander, of Hawthorne, after twelve years' suffering, tells the public what they are doing for her.

Hawthorne, Ont., Dec. 11 (Special).—"There is nothing like Dodd's Kidney Pills for a sore back." That is the statement of Mrs. T. G. Alexander of this place, and all her neighbors agree that she should know. "I suffered for twelve years from a pain in my back, Rheumatism and Heart Disease," Mrs. Alexander continues. "I was always tired and nervous and my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. Since taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I am feeling so much better that I feel I must say a good word for them."

No matter how long you have suffered Dodd's Kidney Pills cannot fail to help you if your trouble is of the Kidneys. If you use Dodd's Kidney Pills early the cure will be quick. If your trouble is of long standing it will take them longer to cure you. But they always cure. People from all parts of Canada who have been cured are telling about it in the newspapers almost every day.

MAKES MONEY ON TREES.

German Municipality Grows Fruit Along the Highways.

There is a town in Germany that makes money on its shade trees. Consul Thompson writes that in Linden, adjoining Hanover, the roadside fruit trees owned by the municipality yielded this year $4,906. The Consul adds: "This application of the beautiful, practical and economic possibilities embraced in the control of such public property as roads is a fine illustration of the community thrift of the Germans. During the three or four weeks' period of ripening sharp-eyed old watchmen on bicycles patrol the roads, being particularly active on Sundays, when the people are out in large numbers. It is forbidden to pick up fruit from the ground, and to knock it from the trees is subject to a fine of 100 marks ($23.80) or more for each offence. Laws and regulations for the general good, however, excite such respect on the part of the German that cases of theft of fruit from the highway fruit trees rarely occur."

NATIONAL ANTHEMS.

Both the Chinese and Japanese national anthems have the merit of brevity. The length of most national anthems is in inverse ratio to the size of their proprietary countries. The Belgian "Brabanconne" is much longer than the "Marseillaise" and "God Save The King." While there are only sixteen bars in the Russian anthem and twenty-eight in "Hail, Columbia," the Siamese require seventy-six bars to proclaim their loyalty, and the record for length is held by the San Marino anthem, which has ninety-seven, or more than four times as many bars as there are square miles in the republic.

REST CURE FOR TRAMPS.

Loafers and Lunatics in Denmark Have Special Treatment.

About eighteen months ago the Government of Denmark, acquired the Island of Llyoe, of 1,000 acres, and placed Prof. Kellers, the well-known psychological expert, in charge. There were sent to him for treatment a number of professional tramps and lunatics from the State workhouses and asylums.

Prof. Kellers has for some time been a persistent advocate of the out-of-door treatment of lunacy. His chief contention is that fresh air tones up the nervous system, while the varied natural objects are calculated to arrest the attention of the patients and dissipate the more distressing symptoms of monomania ofttimes prevalent. The authorities, however, preferred to effect a compromise, relegating to the new sanitarium many of the criminal lunatics hitherto held in practically solitary durance. A peculiarity of the system is that under the comprehensive classification adopted by th authorities men of the more degenerative class, both as regards crime and vice, are removed to Llyoe for treatment. The method of "cure" of confirmed laziness is somewhat Spartan. Either the men must settle down to regular habits of work—chiefly of a rural character—or the "rest cure" is pushed home to its logical result—they are forced to lie in bed for a term varying from a day to three or four days. By that time the ennui become simply unbearable, and the men are glad to escape from the torture of sheer inactivity.

COLD SORES AND ULCERS ARE HEALED BY ZAM-BUK.

Cold sores, chapped hands, ulcers and winter eczema are common troubles just now, and for all these Zam-Buk will be found the surest and quickest remedy. Sometimes cold sores arise from chilblains on the toes or fingers, and in the former case, where colored socks are worn, there is a danger of blood-poisoning from the dye. Zam-Buk being so powerfully antiseptic removes the danger as soon as applied.

Mr. W. J. Halliday, of Ash Grove, Ont., says: "I had my little finger frozen, and it cracked at the first joint, causing a bad sore, which discharged freely and would not heal. The pain was very bad, and the whole of my hand became swollen.

"A friend advised me to try Zam-Buk, and in a very short time it healed the sore."

Miss Lillie May, of Stoney Creek, Ont., says: "A few weeks since, several nasty, disfiguring cold sores suddenly broke out on my lips, which became much swollen. I tried Zam-Buk, and after a few applications of this balm, every sore was healed."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for eczema, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse harmful imitations and substitutes.

Use also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet. Best for baby's tender skin!

PHILOSOPHER.

"My! you wanted fried potatoes, didn't you?" said the careless waitress, as the customer in the restaurant finished his meal and rose to leave.

BONDS WILL INCREASE YOUR INCOME

¶ Your surplus money, your savings, float most of the big undertakings in Canada. The banks, loan and insurance companies, etc., use the money you deposit with them to buy bonds.

¶ The government charter under which these companies act, restricts them to certain kinds of investment. They cannot invest where their money is not quickly available when wanted. They can and do buy bonds.

¶ When you increase the yield of your money it is equivalent to increasing your principal. When you can do this without any sacrifice of security, as is the case when purchasing bonds, it is a matter which demands your close and immediate attention.

¶ Literature on the subject of bonds which we will send you on application, describes fully this premier form of investment.

NIAGARA'S BIG LEAD.

What is the true comparison between the power of Niagara and the Victoria Falls in South Africa? The answer is that the flow at Niagara varies between 62,000,000 and 104,000,000 gallons per minute; that at Victoria is as low as about 5,000,000 gallons in August. The mean available drop at Niagara is 160 feet and at Victoria 380 feet. Hence, while the minimum Niagara flow represents about 3,000,000 horse power, the Victoria flow in August represents only 580,000 horse-power, and accepting the statements of local authorities that in November the flow of Victoria drops to only 2,500,000 gallons per minute, the minimum horse-power, there can be only about one-tenth of Niagara's minimum. The maximum of Victoria is not given

INDIA ACCLAIMS THE KING

State Entry to Delhi Made Amidst Magnificent Surroundings.

A despatch from Delhi, says: George V., King of England and Emperor of India, and the Queen Empress made their State entry into the city on Thursday amidst magnificent spectacular surroundings and were cheered by thousands of natives. The most gorgeous part of the procession, which was several miles long, was made up of ruling princes, clad in shimmering silks, wearing priceless jewels and mounted on horses caparisoned with gold and silver trimmings. The Emperor rode alone on a magnificent charger and the Empress followed immediately behind in a State carriage drawn by six horses. The Sovereigns were delighted with the welcome accorded them.

The route to the camp was lined alternately by British and Indian regiments, under the command of Lieut.-General Sir J. Willcocks and General Sir E. G. Barrow. In providing guards of honor and escorts, native troops were also given an equal share with the British soldiers.

The King-Emperor and Queen-Empress were received on the elaborately decorated platform by the Viceroy and Vicereine, the Governors and heads of provinces, the commander-in-chief, and a number of high military and civil officials. After a series of presentations, their Majesties proceeded to a pavilion within a wall of the fort, where 150 ruling chiefs were introduced. Then began the great procession to the camp four miles away. Throughout India a holiday had been declared, and hordes of natives had gathered. They formed a striking background to the gorgeously uniformed procession, which was headed by Lancers with bands playing. Then came General Peyton, the herald, in silk and gold tabard emblazoned with the Royal coat-of-arms, and sixteen British and native trumpeters mounted on black chargers. Next followed the native escort of the Viceroy, in scarlet and gold, preceding the Imperial Cadet Corps, composed entirely of princes and their sons. Their Majesties' and the Viceroy's suits succeeded.

As their Majesties approached, the command to present arms was passed along the line of troops. European spectators took off their hats, and the natives bent deep towards the ground. The King, the Queen, and the Viceroy bowed right and left in acknowledgment.

The body guard of Indian princes, who followed immediately after, outshone in splendor all that had passed. In strict order of precedence came 150 maharajahs, rajahs, nawabs, and other chieftains. The column was closed by a band of savage-looking Afghan and Pathan chiefs, mounted on wild ponies, and a detachment of natives and British troops. Their Majesties and the Viceregal party then repaired to their camp, of which Circuit House, built by Lord Curzon in 1903, is the centre.

The Emperor's tent does not differ greatly in appearance from the others. Internally, however, it is palatial. Great canvas halls stand near by for official receptions and banquets.

About a quarter of a million persons have taken up their quarters in the canvas city, which is broken up by green lawns, polo grounds, fountains and avenues of trees.

BANK OF MONTREAL.

Ninety-fourth Annual Meeting of Shareholders.

The Bank of Montreal has just completed 94 years of business in Canada, which in the history of a young country is no inconsiderable period. The 94th annual meeting was held on December 4th with President R. B. Angus in the chair. In many ways the meeting was one of the most memorable in the history of the bank owing to the fact that the net profits for the year were the largest on record, and that the retirement of Sir Edward Clouston as general manager was announced. Another feature of more than ordinary interest was the re-adjustment of the values of the bank premises. For years these were valued at $600,000, but a recent appraisal increased this to $4,000,000. The $3,400,000 thus secured was partly used in increasing the rest account, which now stands at a sum equal to the paid up capital, while the balance was carried to the profit and loss account.

The total assets of the bank now stand at $230,000,000, making it one of the strongest financial institutions on the continent. A more detailed examination of the report shows that the net profits for the year amounted to $2,276,518, as compared with $1,797,992 for the previous year. The balance of profit and loss carried forward for the present year was $1,855,185, or practically double the figures for 1910, which amounted to $961,789. Premiums on new bank stock issued by the bank during the year amounted to $365,677, while the re-adjustment of the bank premises account brought in an additional $3,400,000. Thus a total of slightly over $7,000,000 was made available for distribution this year, of which $1,440,000 was expended in dividends, $3,000,000 credited to the rest account and $708,000 to new premises account, leaving a balance of $1,855,000 to be carried forward as balance of profit and loss. A further examination of the report shows that the bank has deposits bearing interest of nearly $136,000,000, while its deposits not bearing interest amount to over $46,000,000. The amount of call and short loans in Great Britain and the United States consists of over $42,600,000, while the current loans and discounts in Canada and elsewhere amount to over $121,000,000. The latter shows an increase of over $9,000,000, which indicates that the bank continues to do its full share in furthering the development of the country, and that it continues to grow with the country. To call and short loans, which the bank keep in New York and London, while returning only a small rate of interest, is found to be a wise provision. The call of these loans placed in London and New York is far less disturbing to Canadian business than if they were on call in Canada.

Altogether the showing made by the Bank of Montreal is a very satisfactory one, and reflects the highest credit upon the directors and upon the general manager, who is now relinquishing the position, which he has held for so many years. His successor will be Mr. H. V. Meredith, who has been associated all his life with the bank whose affairs he will in future direct.

The address of President R. B. Angus was as usual a careful resume of the financial, commercial and industrial expansion of the Dominion. The Bank of Montreal, with its many branches scattered throughout the country and its intimate relationship with every phase of our national life, is able to present authoritative reports regarding the country's growth and development. Without exception, this year's report by the president was full of optimism. That this was not unfounded is shown by the bank's record for 1911, which was the most successful in the 94 years of its history.

SERIOUS SITUATION.

Montreal is Hedged in With Smallpox Cases.

A despatch from Montreal says: Dr. Pelletier of the Provincial Board of Health states that the smallpox situation in the Province is serious in the extreme, in some districts amounting to an epidemic. He declares that Montreal is literally hedged in with smallpox-stricken municipalities, and he is actively waging a vaccination campaign. In one small town close to Montreal, he says, there are thirty-nine cases in quarantine. The spread of the disease, he says, can be accounted for by the fact that it often appears first in a very mild form, and is either unnoticed or diagnosed as chickenpox. There is also a great deal of opposition in some of the outlying communities to vaccination, and the people live under very unsanitary conditions.

There was a glut of poultry at Brockville Fair and several farmers took their loads home again.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

"NET QUICK ASSETS" A MOST IMPORTANT FEATURE OF A BALANCE SHEET.

What is Shown by a Critical Examination of an Industrial Company's Balance Sheet—What Constitute Quick Assets and Current Liabilities—Care Needed in Taking These Into Account—An Example.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

When, as we noted last week, an industrial bond has behind it security in the form of land valuated at the amount of the mortgage, the bond has all the good points and practically none of the drawbacks of a sound real estate mortgage. Few bonds, however, attain this high rank as investments, and so it is necessary to consider other points before being able to pass upon the safety of the large majority of industrial issues.

Glance at the balance sheet of any industrial company—you will, of course, inspect this very important document before investing. You will see under the head of assets—usually in the following general order—accounts for "real estate and buildings," "machinery, tools, patterns, furniture, etc.," "paterts, trademarks, good will, etc.," and, perhaps, some other similar accounts. You will also notice that usually these accounts are summed up and under liabilities in an opposite column. You will find accounts for "Capital stock, common and preferred;" "bonds," "mortgages," etc. The first are the fixed assets, the liabilities are usually known as capital liabilities. Below these accounts and usually separately summed up are what are known as the current assets which include accounts for such property as "stock on hand," "raw materials," "cash on hand and in banks," "accounts and bills receivable," etc., everything in short which can be quickly converted into cash. On the opposite side of the balance sheet may be seen "current liabilities," which comprise, "bills and accounts payable," including borrowed money, pay-rolls, interest and taxes accrued, but not due.

As one authority puts it, "The real strength of every industrial concern is to be learned from the figures relating to its current accounts. Property assets and capital liabilities are not of the same significance. If the cost of the plant and equipment, as shown by the books, exceeds its real value, the market usually makes the necessary adjustment by putting a price less than par on the company's bonds and stocks." No such process is possible in the case of the current accounts." Says the same authority: "If the current liabilities exceed the current assets the company shows a deficit, whatever its surplus may show on the books." On the other hand, should the company possess current assets—often called quick assets (i.e., readily convertible into cash)—in excess of its current liabilities, it possesses working capital equal to the difference between the two usual called "net quick assets."

Now these net quick assets are a most important feature of the balance sheet of an industrial company, for no matter how great its quick assets, if they are exceeded by the company's current liabilities, the company is in daily danger of being forced into liquidation. But one must be sure that what are taken in the balance sheet are really "quick" assets. Usually, this is a simple matter. Take again, for example, the unfortunate Amalgamated Asbestos Corporation. In its balance sheet, soon to be forthcoming, there will no doubt be shown "inventories and refined asbestos on hand" to a very considerable sum; but the fact that the market for asbestos is highly congested and, therefore, this asset could not be readily converted into cash, renders it no longer "quick." This fact could be readily ascertained by a prospective purchaser of asbestos bonds, were anyone so hardy as to consider them at present. So, leaving this account out of the comparison of current assets and current liabilities, it will be seen, when the balance sheet comes to light, that there is an excess of liabilities over assets—so much so that the bond interest due on December first has of necessity been defaulted.

Space forbids further consideration of this important question this week, and other significant points of net quick assets will be taken up next week.

DAIRY EXPERTS.

Resolutions Adopted Dealing With Conduct of Cheese Factories.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The convention of dairy experts recommended the grading and quality payment system for all cream-gathering creameries; the pasteurization of whey in all whey tanks at cheese factories; the pasteurization of all dairy products to improve the keeping qualities, and the use of balances or scales for weighing in the Babcock tests instead of reading the glasses, as is in common practice. Another resolution was drafted recommending payment of cheese factory patrons by the fat and casein test, but as some evidence was brought to light reflecting upon the present method of testing casein the resolution was left on the table for discussion at a future conference.

The Quickest Cough Cure—Cheap, But Unequaled

Sixteen Ounces of It for 50c. Saves You $2. Does the Work Quickly or Money Refunded.

For quick, positive results the 16 ounces of cough syrup that you make with a 50-cent bottle of Pinex, cannot be equaled. It takes hold instantly and will usually stop the most obstinate deep-seated cough inside of 24 hours. Even croup and whooping cough yield to it quickly.

The user of Pinex mixes it with home-made sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of better cough remedy than you could buy ready mixed for $2.50. Easily prepared in five minutes—full directions in package.

Pinex soothes and heals the inflamed membranes with remarkable rapidity. It stimulates the appetite, is slightly laxative and tastes good—children like it. Excellent for hoarseness, asthma, bronchitis and other throat troubles, and has a wonderful record in cases of incipient lung trouble.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of Norway White Pine extract, rich in guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Simply mix with sugar syrup or strained honey, in a 16-oz. bottle, and it is ready for use. Used in more homes in the U. S. and Canada than any other cough remedy.

Pinex has often been imitated, but never successfully, for nothing else will produce the same results. The genuine is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Certificate of guarantee is wrapped in each package. Your druggist has Pinex or will gladly get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

THE DYNAMITERS' RING

The United States Government Is After the "Inner Circle."

A despatch from Los Angeles, Cal., says: Post-office inspectors are to take charge of the probing of the dynamiters' ring by the Federal Government. The reason for this is the fact, it is said, that the postal laws make possible the preparation of a stronger case than those governing interstate commerce. The use of the mails in plotting crime, which is a violation of the postal laws, will lay the foundation for the proceedings planned. The Federal probe into the dynamiting outrages which are alleged by the National Erectors' Association and the National Manufacturers' Association to have been the result of an "inner circle" within the ranks of organized labor promises to overshadow even the original McNamara cases within a few days.

McManigal's story is carefully guarded by the Burns men, and declared to be a chronological story of travel from one side of the country to another, leaving behind a trail of explosions. While some of McManigal's story has been told, the details, the Burns and Federal detectives say, will electrify the public. Meanwhile 500 secret service men have been placed at the disposal of Oscar Lawlor, special deputy attorney-general. Lawlor expects the indictment of a dozen San Francisco labor leaders.

FELL FROM HIGH ALTITUDE.

English Aviator and Passenger Killed in Yorkshire.

A despatch from London says: Hubert Oxley, the aviator, and a Mr. Weis, who was a passenger, were both killed at Filey in Yorkshire, on Wednesday. They were flying at a considerable height when the machine became unmanageable and fell to the ground. Death was instantaneous.

RUSSIAN MINT WRECK.

Two Killed and Forty Injured by Explosion of Gas.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: The Imperial mint was wrecked on Wednesday, two employes were killed and 40 injured by an explosion of gas in the gold-testing department.

THE CHRISTMAS STAMP.

Archdeacon Cody Head of the Stamp Campaigning Committee.

At a meeting of the committee in Toronto, Archdeacon Cody was elected Chairman, and the work on behalf of the Free Hospital for Consumptives in Muskoka was commenced at once.

$11,000 was realized last year—a sufficient sum to care for forty free patients. It is hoped to largely increase the amount for this life-saving work.

The cut above is the design of the 1911 stamps, though the original is in three colors.

The stamp does not carry any mail—that is, it does not pay postage—but if you place it on your letter with the regular stamp it conveys the message of your good will and assistance.

Buy these stamps and help. They are one cent each. Write for them to Secretary-Treasurer Muskoka Free Hospital, 347 King St. W., Toronto.

AUSTRALIA'S HEADQUARTERS

Splendid Site Acquired in the Strand, London.

A despatch from London says: Australia has acquired the freehold of a magnificent site in the Strand, and intends to erect thereon at the cost of $1,820,000 a great building which will include an exhibition hall and the headquarters of the High Commissioner and of all the Australian States. New Zealand has been told by Australia that she will be welcome if she cares to come under the same roof. Meanwhile, The Morning Post is urging the importance of grouping the London offices of all the overseas dominions in one building, thereby making an Imperial centre in the Empire's capital.

BRITISH INSURANCE BILL

Third Reading Carried in the Commons by 324 Votes to 21.

A despatch from London says: Mr. Lloyd George's national insurance bill passed its third reading in the House of Commons on Wednesday night by a vote of 324 to 21. In return for a contribution of four-pence per week the insurance bill provides that the worker shall receive ninepence worth of benefits. These benefits are made possible by a contribution in aid from the employers and the State of eighty-five million dollars annually. The benefits include free medical attendance, two and a half dollars a week allowance for temporary sickness, a weekly payment of a dollar and [illegible] in case of com[illegible] of the workmen themselves. health, free treatment for consumptives in a sanitarium, a sum of seven dollars towards the workman's wife in case of maternity, and aid for families deprived through the illness of the breadwinner of means of support. Provision is also made for unemployed benefit in precarious trades. After all these benefits are paid out there will still be available out of the jointly contributed funds a sum of ten million dollars, which will be allocated to approved friendly societies for such further benefits as the members thereof shall determine. The salaries and expenses of State officials will be borne by the Treasury, and the fund will be administered [illegible]

VOTE FOR HYDRO-ELECTRIC

Probably the most important by-law that has ever been submitted to the ratepayers of Exeter will be that of the Hydro-Electric on January 1st. That the by-law should receive the hearty support and endorsation of the ratepayers entitled to vote on such on such a by-law goes without saying. It has been said that opportunity raps at a man's door, but once, and the same mode of reasoning applying to the individual applies to a town. This is an opportunity that we as a town cannot afford to view lightly, for on it depends to a greater or lesser extent the future prosperity and the business life and progress of Exeter. Many villages, towns, and cities throughout Ontario, are at present enjoying cheap power, and in every instance where it has been established the citizens are loud in their praise for the many advantages derived and enjoyed. Let there be no half hearted or peace meal enthusiasm in the matter of Hydro-Electric for Exeter; but let every citizen get out, and vote and work to carry this important by-law on January 1st, and embrace an opportunity within our reach of securing cheap power and facilities our town cannot afford to be without. A vote for the Hydro-Electric By-law on January 1st is a boost for your town, a boost for cheap power and a boost in the right direction.

Among the municipal reeves spoken of for the position of warden of Huron County are Henry Willert of Stephen Thos. Strothers of Ashfield and W. Glenn of Stanley. It is the turn of a Conservative, but it first becomes necessary that they secure re-election in their respective municipalities.

Having disposed of the Dominion Elections and the Provincial Elections the good people will be able to think about the approaching municipal elections, which, mark you, have a direct and more loosening effect on your pocket-book than either of the others, and in many ways are just as important. Don't let them pass without a thought.

The department of agriculture at Washington in 1907 asked the question of 164 rural boys and 174 rural girls, "How many wish to stay on the farm?" 157 boys and 163 girls answered that they would have nothing to do with the farm. The teaching of agriculture was then commenced in the schools, with the result that in 1910 the same question was asked, when 162 boys out of 174 and 161 girls out of 178, said that they wished to stay on the farm. There could be no more conclusive evidence than this that the teaching of agriculture in rural schools will do what is claimed for it—induce boys and girls to remain on the farm

HOW TO LIVE LONG

With healthy kidneys one has a good chance to live long, but weak kidneys afflict old age with great discomforts. The back becomes bent and lame, rheumatism is chronic, eyesight fails and too frequent or involuntary passages of the urine cause embarrassment by day and loss of sleep at night.

Booth's Kidney Pills

Booth's Kidney Pills bring new strength to old backs and quick relief to weakened kidneys. They banish backache and rheumatic pain, regulate the bladder and urine.

The remarkable endorsation of the Whitney Government on Monday goes to show the view that the people take of the progressive government at Toronto The government may justly feel proud of their record, as the people have shown that they are

CREDITON.

The elections are a thing of the past In spite of the very disagreeable weather, a good vote was polled in this Township. Crediton did well for its member by giving him a good majority The full result shows that Mr. Elber has been re-elected by a majority of 285 There is now considerable talk of the Municipal elections and no doubt there will be more fun and excitement then than at the election just held A good ticket is expected, which will keep the voter guessing for whom he shall cast his vote

Mr Whiting of Victoria College, Toronto, preached a very instructive sermon in the Evangelical Church on Sunday evening Mr. Whiting is no stranger here We are always pleased to have the opportunity to hear him preach.

It is expected that the City Fathers will ask the people to vote on The Hydro-electric at New Years. Prospects are bright to have electricity in our midst in the near future and our people should not be slow in grasping this opportunity.

Joseph Dauncey is visiting his brother in Hyde Park for a few weeks.

Tuesday morning found some of our boys busy settling their election bets. As a rule the bets were small and no one became rich through his gains.

Mr. Klose of Blenheim has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Hauch and other relatives in the village the past week.

Harry Beaver and Harry Elber have returned home from Hamilton where have been working the past summer.

The Sunday-schools of both churches are busy getting the program's ready for the Xmas Entertainment. From all reports, it is expected that there will be a big treat in store for those who attend.

The Methodist entertainment is Dec.21

Mr. J. Finkbeiner of Sebewaing, Mich., is spending a week in town visiting his uncle Mr. Samuel Brown.

Sam Brown is buying a considerable quantity of beans. These have been distributed among some of our people to be picked, and sorted. Good money is made in this way.

George Hetzel is attending the Live-stock show in Guelph this week.

The remains of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Ward were brought from Marlette, Mich and interred in the cemetery on the 8th Con. on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Ward moved from here about three years ago with her son-in law Mr. Wesley Winer and since then has not been in good health. Her age was 63 years. The deceased was well and favorably known here and her neighbors speak highly of her. She leaves to mourn her loss a son, Thomas of Carberry, Man., and two daughters, Mrs. Wesley Winer of Marletta Mich. and Mrs. Colbert of Centralia.

WHALEN.

Mr. Garnett Jr., returned last week from a trip to the West.—Mrs. J. Kerr left to visit friends in Stratford and Berlin.—The choir of St. Paul's church are preparing a play entitled "Christ mas Belles" to be given in Aberdeen Hall sometimes during the Christmas season.—There is an opening for a general merchant here now in the store lately vacated by Messrs. Roy & Skinner.—We are glad to hear that Mrs. Garnett who was taken to the London hospital sometime ago to undergo a serious operation is nicely recovering and in all probability will be able to return home for Christmas.—The regular meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Jas. Kemp on Dec. 12th.

Rural Mail Delivery—— The farmers and others to be benefitted by the proposed new mail route to be established shortly feel highly elated as the benefits to be derived from such a route are incalcuable, and a convenience that will be greatly appreciated. The mail leaves Kirkton as soon as possible after the St. Marys and Exeter mail arrives and proceeds north via the stone church along the 14th and 15th concessions of Usborne, by way of Thames Road to the 12th and 13th concessions of Usborne and back to Kirkton. The distance for the round trip will be about nine miles.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

The Central Business College of Stratford is one of the leading schools of its kind in Canada. The management was obliged to enlarge their quarters to accommodate those who will enter after the New Year. The Stratford School does more for its students than do other similar schools, and gives a course which are much beyond those of the ordinary Business College. It has an up-to-date Telegraphy Department, as well as Commercial, Shorthand and Typewriting Departments. The winter term opens on Jan. 2nd, and those interested in business college work should write the College for its free catalogue. It will be a surprise to the majority of our readers then they learn what the Central Business College of Stratford is doing.

It Is Up To You

To protect your family from the ravages of disease and infection; and the rigors of winter; to make your home the abode of Health and Happiness.

Statistics tell us that there were over 250,000 deaths in North America last year from fever and Pneumonia; Over 90 per cent. of these cases were traceable to out-door closets, and all were the result of insanitary conditions.

Are you going to allow this terrible death rate to continue.

Why not insure Health by installing a "PARKYTE" SANITARY CHEMICAL CLOSET.

Absolutely Sanitary and Odorless carries the endorsement of Physicians and Health Officials, and our own iron-clad guarantee, Requires no expensive water-system; no plumbing; no sewage can be installed in any part of your home at the cost of a few minutes of your spare time; lasts a lifetime and cost less than a CENT a day.

"PARKYTE" Chemical has been proven by Bacteriological test to be the most powerful Disinfectant, Deodorant and Germicide, known to Science.

Village of Exeter

By-Law No. ... 1911

BY-LAW TO AUTHORIZE THE ISSUE of Debentures of the Corporation of the Village of Exeter to the amount of Five thousand dollars, for the purpose of extending the present Water-Works System of the said Corporation.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Village of Exeter deem it advisable to extend the Water-works System of the said Corporation and in order thereto it will be necessary to issue debentures of the said Corporation to the extent of Five thousand dollars (5000), as hereinafter provided, which is the amount of the debt intended to be created by this by-law, the proceeds of the said debentures to be applied to the said purpose and no other.

AND WHEREAS it is desirable to make the principal of the said debt repayable by yearly sums during the period of twenty years, being the currency of the said debentures, said yearly sums being of such respective amounts that the aggregate amount payable in each year for Principal and Interest in respect of the said debt shall be as nearly as possible, equal to the amount so payable in each of the other nineteen years of the said period as detailed in Clause 4 of this By-law.

AND WHEREAS the total amount required to be raised, annually by a special rate for paying the said debt and interest is the sum of Four hundred and one dollars and twenty-two cents.

AND WHEREAS, the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Corporation of the Village of Exeter, according to the last revised Assessment Roll, is $575,587;

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing Debenture debt of the said Coporation of the Village of Exeter is $88,256 38 of which no part of the principal, or interest, is in arrear.

THEREFORE the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Village of Exeter enacts as follows.

1. That for the purpose of raising the said Debentures of the said Corporation of the Village of Exeter, to the amount of Five Thousand dollars, Debentures shall be issued in sums of not less than One Hundred dollars each, and such debentures shall be signed by the Reeve of the Said Corporation for the time being, and countersigned by the Treasurer for the time being of the said Corporation and duly sealed with the Corporation Seal thereof by the Clerk for the time being of the said Corporation.

2. The said debentures shall be dated upon the date of the issue thereof and as to both Principal and interest shall be payable in annual instalments within 20 years from the date of the issue thereof, such instalments to be of such amounts that the aggregate amount payable for Principal and interest in any year during the said period of 20 years shall be as nearly equal as may be to what is payable for principal and interest during each of the other years of such period of 20 years, as set out in said clause 4 of this By-law.

3. The said debentures shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum per annum from the date of the issue thereof, and the said interest shall be payable yearly on the day of the month on which the said debentures are issued, and as to both principal and interest the said debentures shall be payable in annual instalments at a chartered Bank in the said Village of Exeter, the first of such instalments to become due and be paid in one year after the date of the issue of the said debentures.

4. During the currency of the said Debentures there shall be raised annually by a Special rate on all the rateable property in the said Corporation of the Villaeg of Exeter, the sum of $401.22, for the purpose of paying the amount due in each of the years for Principal and interest in respect of the said debt, as follows.—

BOUNCING BABY'S ECZEMA CURED

By Morriscy's No. 4. Prescription 47 Years Old.

Pictou, N. S., July 8, 1910.

"When my baby was only two weeks old I noticed a slight rash on his body, and the little fellow would cry and fret night and day. I was greatly worried about him, and tried everything to relieve him, but without any success. The rash kept getting worse and worse until his little face and body was a mass of scabs. When he was about six months old I was advised to try Father Morriscy's No. 4 Eczema medicine, which I did. In about two months time the scabs had disappeared, and the child is now healthy and strong. I most thankfully recommend it to anyone suffering from Eczema."

Mrs. F. Gratton.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

Learn why PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand

PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand of flour. No two milling companies follow exactly the same process of milling. In fact, no two different brands of flour in the world are exactly alike in quality.

And here is another fact worth knowing: Every wheat berry contains both high-grade and low-grade portions.

The process of milling PURITY flour costs more than to mill ordinary flour. The low-grade portions are separated and excluded. PURITY is an ALL HIGH-GRADE, hard wheat flour. It has greater strength, greater absorption and greater expansion. It is a thirstier, more elastic flour. It drinks more water and expands into more loaves.

Use PURITY FLOUR for your next batch of bread. Count the loaves. You'll find you have made "MORE BREAD AND BETTER BREAD" from PURITY than when you've used an equal weight of weaker and cheaper flour.

PURITY FLOUR

"More bread and better bread"

IMAGINE, if you can, how much whiter, and more toothsome, and more nutritious, the bread made from such a HIGH-GRADE flour must be.

And can you imagine yourself enjoying the flaky pie-crust and the light, delicate cake? —your reward for using PURITY flour

When making pastry, please remember to add more shortening than required with ordinary flour—for on account of its extra strength, PURITY FLOUR requires more shortening for best pastry-results

Yes, PURITY FLOUR costs slightly more than ordinary flour. But use it once and you'll say it's worth more—much more—than the difference.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

CHAPTER X.—(Cont'd)

La Belle Chasseuse was evidently in a hurry. She sped along at a surprising pace, until she reached a crossing where the rows of stalls and booths were temporarily suspended. At one corner stood a cab, and towards this vehicle she directed her steps. Before Brett quite realized what was happening, the door of the cab opened, mademoiselle jumped inside, and, as if he were waiting for her appearance, the driver whipped up his horse and drove off at a furious pace.

At that instant a small victoria with a sturdy pony in the shafts, which had just deposited a lively fare in the vicinity of the Moulin Rouge, drove along the street.

Brett sprang into it and said eagerly to the driver—

"Keep that cab in sight! I will pay you double fare!"

The man tightened his reins and raised his whip in prompt obedience to the order, when suddenly two men jumped into the vehicle from opposite sides, seized Brett and forced him down on to the seat, while one of them said to the astonished cabby—

"Take us at once to the Central Perfecture of Police."

The man recognized that these newcomers were not to be trifled with. Without a word or a question he rattled his horse across the stone pavement, and then Brett choking with rage at this interference at a supreme moment, realized that for some extraordinary reason he was a prisoner, and in the hands of a couple of detectives.

By this time the cab containing the lady had vanished, but the barrister made one despairing effort.

"For Heaven's sake," he said to his captors, "take me where you will, but first follow that cab and ascertain its destination."

"What cab?" demanded one of his guards sarcastically.

"The cab which I wished our driver to overtake at the moment when you pounced on me."

"This is a mere trick," broke in the other. "Don't bother about his cab. We have got him safe enough, and let the commissaire deal with him now."

"Listen to me," cried Brett. "You are making a frightful mistake. Your action at this moment may cause irretrievable delay and loss. If you will only do as I tell you—"

"Shut up," growled the first man, "or it will be worse for you. Your best plan is to keep a quiet tongue in your head."

It was not often that Brett lost his temper, but most certainly he lost it on this occasion. He was endowed with no small share of physical strength, and for an instant the wild notion came into his head that he might perhaps succeed in throwing the two dettctives into the roadway and then overpower the driver, taking charge of the vehicle himself and trusting to luck again to catch sight of the vanished lady and her companion, who, he doubted not, had awaited her arrival at the quiet corner where she joined him.

Unconsciously he must have given some premonition of this desperate scheme, for the two policemen tightened their grasp, forced his hands higher up his back, and bent his head forward until he was in danger of having either his neck or his shoulders dislocated.

"Will you keep quiet?" murmured the chief detective. "You cannot escape, and you are only making the affair more disastrous to yourself."

Then Brett realized that further resistance was hopeless. He managed to gurgle out that if they would allow him to assume a more comfortable attitude he would not trouble them any further.

Gingerly and cautiously the two men somewhat relaxed the strain, and he was able to breathe freely once more.

Then he laughed, but he could not help saying in English——

"The shadow of Scotland Yard falls on me even here. Porr old Winter, how I will roast him over this adventure!"

"What are you talking about?" demanded one of the men.

"I was only thinking aloud," replied Brett.

"And what were your thoughts?"

"Simply this, that the sooner I meet your remarkable astute commissary the better I shall be pleased."

CHAPTER XI.

The journey across Paris proceeded without further incident, until they reached the prefecture.

The two detectives hurried their prisoner into a large general office, where he was surveyed with some curiosity by the subordinates lounging near a huge fire, whilst one of their number reported his arrival. After a brief interval he was taken into an inner office. Behind a green baize-covered table was seated a sharp-looking man, whose face was chiefly composed of eyebrows, pince-nez, a hooked nose, and a furious imperiale.

"Your name?" he said sharply.

"Reginald Brett," was the reply.

The Frenchman required this to be spelt for him.

"Nationality?"

"English."

"Profession?"

"Barrister-at-law."

The official consulted a type-written document, which he selected from a mass of papers fastened by an India rubber band. Then he looked curiously at the prisoner.

"Are you sure this is the man?" he said to the senior detective.

"Quite positive, monsieur."

"Then take off his wig and get a towel, so that he may remove some of his make-up. The rascal should be an actor. I never saw a better disguise in my life."

Brett knew it was hopeless to attempt explanations at this stage. He readily fell in with their directions, and in a few seconds he stood revealed in something akin to his ordinary appearance.

Now, the French Commissary of Police was no fool. He was an adept at reading character, but he was certainly puzzled after a sharp scrutiny of Brett's clear-cut, intelligent features. Nevertheless, he knew that the criminal instinct is often allied with the most deceptive external appearances. So he turned to the detective, and said—

"Tell me, brifly, what happened?"

"In accordance with instructions, monsieur," the man replied. "Philippe and I ascertained the movements of the prisoner at the Grand Hotel. During the afternoon he received messages from London and from some persons in Paris, which documents are now probably in his possession. He quitted the hotel at eight o'clock, disguised as you have seen. He called for a moment at a house in the Rue du Chaussee d'Antin, the number of which we noted, and then made his way to the Cafe Noir in Montmartre. There we watched him from the door for nearly three hours. He feigned drunkenness, but held communication with no person."

"Ha!" cried the commissary. This struck him as an important point. He made a memorandum of it.

"Soon after eleven o'clock he rose hastily and quitted the cafe, crossed the Boulevard, and hailed a cab. We would have followed him, but there was no other vehicle in sight. As our instructions were to arrest him at any moment he seemed likely to elude us, we seized him. He struggled violently, and told us some story about his desire to follow another cab, which he said had disappeared. We saw no cab such as he described, and we treated his words as a mere device to abstract attention. We were right. A moment later he made an attempt to escape, and we were compelled to use considerable force to prevent him from being successful."

The commissary turned his eyes to the prisoner and was seemingly about to question him, when Brett said with a smile—

"Perhaps, monsieur, you will allow me to say a word or two."

"Certainly." The official knew that criminals generally implicated themselves when they commenced explaining matters.

"You are acting, I presume," said the barrister, "in obedience to reports received from London police with reference to the murder of four Turkish subjects at Albert Gate, and the theft of some valuable diamonds belonging to the Sultan?"

This calm summary of the facts seemed to disconcert the Frenchman. It astonished him considerably to find his prisoner thus indicating so clearly the nature of the charge to be brought against him.

"That may be so," he admitted.

"It is so," went on Brett; "and in this matter you are even more hopelessly idiotic than I took you to be. I have told you my name and profession. I am a friend of Mr. Talbot, the English gentleman who has been spirited away in connection with this crime, and I have in my pocket at this moment a letter from the British Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, authorizing me to use my best efforts towards elucidating the mystery and tracking the real criminals. Here is the letter," he continued, producing a document and laying it before the amazed official. Further, an inquiry made at the Grand Hotel will produce unquestionable testimony from the manager, who knows me, and from my friend, Lord Fairholme, who occupies rooms there at this moment."

"Lord Fairholme!" stuttered the official. "Why, that is the name given by the other prisoner."

"Do you mean to say you have arrested the Earl of Fairholme?" gasped Brett, struggling with an irresistible desire to laugh.

The Frenchman covered his confusion by growling an unintelligible order, and bent over the letter which Brett had given to him. In half a minute one of the detectives returned, and with him was Fairholme, on whose honest face indignation and astonishment struggled for mastery.

"Oh, surely that cannot be you, Brett!" cried his lordship, the moment he entered the room. "Well, of all the —— fools that ever lived, these French Johnnies take the cake. I suppose that they have spoiled the whole business! If the brutes had not taken me by surprise I would have knocked over a dozen of them before they arrested me."

"Silence!" shrieked the commissary, into whose mind was intruding the consciousness that he had committed an outrageous blunder.

"What did you say your name was?" he demanded fiercely.

"I told you my name an hour ago," said his lordship haughtily, "and if you had not been extraordinarily clever you would have believed me. I am the Earl of Fairholme, a fact that can be readily substantiated by dozens of people here in Paris, and this is Mr. Reginald Brett, a friend of mine, who would have probably discovered the mystery of my friend's disappearance and the whereabouts of those diamonds by this time if you had not interfered."

His lordship was hardly coherent, with annoyance, but the acute official had now convinced himself that a stupid mistake had been committed by his department.

He became apologetic and suave. He explained that their mysterious proceedings had to some extent committed them in the eyes of the police to secret knowledge of the crime which had so thoroughly aroused the detective departments in both London and Paris.

Evidently Scotland Yard had not advised the French police of Mr. Brett's official connection with the hunt for the murderers. The agents of the Paris Bureau had watched Brett's comings and goings during the day, and the detectives' suspicions, once aroused were intensified when his friend, Lord Fairholme, sought the aid of two uniformed policemen to break in the door of the Turkish residents in the Rue Barbette.

Even now, politely concluded the commissary, he would regretfully be compelled to detain them for a little while, until he verified their statements. Meanwhile they would not be subject to any further indignities, and might procure such refreshments as they desired. They would probably be set at liberty within a couple of hours.

WORKS WITHOUT FAITH

Faith Came After the Works Had Laid the Foundation.

"While a coffee drinker I was a sufferer from indigestion and intensely painful nervous headaches, from childhood. (Tea contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee.)

"Seven years ago my health gave out entirely. I grew so weak that the exertion of walking, if only a few feet, made it necessary for me to lie down. My friend thought I was marked for consumption—weak, thin and pale.

"I realized the danger I was in and tried faithfully to get relief from medicines, till, at last, after having employed all kinds of drugs, the doctor acknowledged that he did not believe it was in his power to cure me.

"While in this condition a friend induced me to quit coffee and try Postum, and I did so without the least hope that it would do me any good. I did not like it at first, but when it was properly made I found Postum was a most delicious and refreshing beverage. I am especially fond of it served at dinner ice-cold, with cream.

"In a month's time I began to improve, and in a few weeks my indigestion ceased to trouble me, and my headache stopped entirely. I am so perfectly well now that I do not look like the same person, and I have so gained in flesh that I am 15 pounds heavier than ever before.

"This is what Postum has done for me. I still use it and shall always do so." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ontario.

HOW TO GAIN WEIGHT.

Strive for at least eight hours of sound sleep in a well ventilated room or out of doors. Sufficient exercise should be taken to keep the blood in good circulation, the liver, skin and intestinal canal active, as well as for other more complicated and less understood processes. Exercise that converts flesh into useful muscles is essential in building up a normal weight that can be used by the system in emergencies. In the case of abnormal nervous tension, effort must be made to cultivate more healthful habits of thought and greater control over both mind and body. The habit of worrying is proverbially emaciating, but it is a habit that can be cured.

Concrete Sidewalks are Safe, Sightly and Everlasting

LUMBER used in damp places and on wet ground—as, for instance, in walks—has a very short life. It requires almost constant repairing and, in a few years, needs replacing.

Concrete, on the other hand, improves with age, and the very dampness which destroys lumber calls out the best qualities of the cement by making it harder and harder—until neither time nor traffic can affect it.

The best of wooden walks keep getting out of repair, and are a continual menace to life and limb. They are also a frequent source of expensive doctor bills and lost time. Then again, they are likely to eat up the original cost in repairs before they are replaced.

Concrete walks are sightly, everlasting and safe. They cost less to build and need no repairing nor painting.

HOUSEHOLD

MISCELLANEOUS RECIPES.

Baked Mackerel—Soak salt mackerel over night to remove brine; wash well, butter pie dish, roll mackerel in flour and put in dish, skin side down; cover with milk, add few small pieces of butter and bake forty-five minutes.

Apricot Sauce.—Use one pound of evaporated apples, one-fourth pound of dried apricots, stew together, stirring while boiling, to mix, and prevent burning.

Sauce Coloring.—Burn sugar in a roast pan until it is black. Then pour a little water at a time on the sugar, let it boil every time . . it is liquid. Pour it in a little bottel and when needed take a teaspoonful of this color and mix with the sauce.

Baked Mushrooms.—The caps or tops of mushrooms, after they are washed, can best be cooked by laying them on slices of buttered bread with a dash of salt and pepper and a small bit of butter in each cup. Bake them in a hot oven. The mushrooms will be done by the time the bread is brown. They should be served at once on a hot dish.

Good Biscuits.—One cup flour, one teaspoon lard, one teaspoon baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt. Mix flour, lard, baking powder, and salt with a spoon; add sufficient sweet milk or cold water to make a stiff dough. Flour board and roll till about a half inch thick. Cut out and bake in quick oven. Some flour takes a little more water than others, but a scant cup is the average.

Escalloped Corn.—Use one can corn, six eggs, butter size of an egg, large pinch of salt and pepper; mix well, then add three-quarters quart milk and thicken with bread crust or broken crackers. Bake one-half hour in medium oven.

Chicken and Celery Soup. — Take the best part of two heads of celery. Cut it up fine and add a heaping tablespoon of rice. Cook till soft. Take one quart of chicken broth, one pint of milk, and cook all together and season with salt and pepper. You have a fine soup.

Brown Cake.—Break four eggs into a large bowl, add one scant cup of butter and lard, one large cup of brown sugar, one-half cup of black molasses, one heaping teaspoon of soda in cup of hot water, cinnamon, nutmeg, spices and juice of half a lemon. Beat long and well, adding five cups of sifted flour beating it in thoroughly. Bake in a large cake pan.

DESSERTS.

Peach Dessert. — Drain juice from a bottle of peaches and put them in a baking dish or loaf tin. Pour cage batter over to the depth of one-half inch and bake. Serve with juice of peaches or whipped cream. Stewed apples, sweetened and flavored with cinnamon, or dried fruits may be used in the same way.

Suet Pudding.—Mix in suitable bowl two cups of bread crumbs, one of flour, one and one-half of suet, chopped finely, two cups raisins, seeded and chopped, and one-half cup sugar. Add liberal pinch of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Moisten with two eggs beaten in milk enough to make stiff. Put into well buttered bowl, cook by steaming three to six hours. Serve hot with cream sauce.

Luella's Pudding.—A most delicious pudding is made by taking one cup of uncooked rice, one cup of sugar, one cup of raisins, and ten cups of whole milk, measuring all in same sized cup. Stir together and bake in well heated oven for two and one-half hours. Do not stir while baking. This makes enough for six or eight people.

SALADS.

Sardine Salad.—Select two boxes of sardines and arrange on a platter with chopped celery. For dressing take the yolks of four hard boiled eggs, put in a bowl, and rub to a paste. Add a tablespoonful of French mustard, three of vinegar, a teaspoonful of sugar, and a little cayenne. Mix well together and pour over the sardines and celery. Garnish with sliced lemon.

Turnip Salad.—Pare and cut in dice four medium sized turnips; boil in salted water until tender, changing the water several times. Drain in colander and when cool add one cupful of rich mayonnaise. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Cabbage Salad.—Chop small, firm head of cabbage in your chopper, add salt and pepper to taste, then about four tablespoonfuls of good cider vinegar, stir well, let stand in a cool place for two hours, just before serving, add half cup of cream and heaping tablespoon of powdered sugar, mix well, serve on crisp lettuce.

CAKE FOR SMALL FAMILY.

To make a layer cake, bake one good layer, cut in either halves or thirds, lay one piece on top of the other, and proceed to frosten or ice as usual.

If variety is wanted take the usual amount of material for an ordinary cake. Divide batter in four parts.

One part may be baked as a marble cake, after dividing it into three parts add one-half cake grated chocolate, to one-third leave plain and add two teaspoons strawberry flavoring to the last third. Pour a little of each in pan until all is gone and you have a fine marble cake.

One-half pound chopped nuts added to the second part will make a nut cake. One-half cup each of chopped dates and nuts, one-quarter cup each of chopped figs, citron and raisins, one-half teaspoon each of grated nutmeg, cinnamon, and cloves will make a fine fruit cake.

The last fourth will make a nice loaf cake.

MAKE OVERS.

A nice, warm petticoat can be made from old stockings. Take four pairs, cut off the feet, and slit up the back. Stitch together, open the seams, and feather stitch down the right side, then put on a yoke belt, placing the ankle part at the waist. Finish by adding a ruffle, also feather stitched to correspond with the seams.

Boys' Overalls.—Take a gunny-sack, cut it through the middle the long way, length of the leg. Sew up the seams, and you will have a nice, cheap pair of overalls for the boys to do their chores in after school.

Rope Portieries.—Take an old pair of chenille curtains, ravel out the different colors, and wind in balls, taking care to remove every thread of warp. Select shades that blend nicely or color with dyes and twist loosely into long ropes. Pretty designs may be found in catalogues. Use a brass rod. The result is a drapery handsomer than many found in the shops.

Suit for Boy.—Take the best of the castoff trousers, rip, wash and press. Pin your Buster Brown pattern carefully on the pieces before cutting and with care and tact you can get a suit nicely.

When ruffled muslin curtains have done service at bedroom windows they may be made into the following articles if the best part of the curtain is used: Plain or ruffled sewing aprons, ruffled dresser or bureau scarfs to be used over slip of any color desired, ruffled pillow shams, ruffled splashers used behind washstands, sash curtains.

AROUND THE HOME.

To clean woodwork add borax.

To clean nickel wash with hot soapsuds.

When washing woodwork wet the lower part to prevent streaking.

To remove the strong taste from game leave a quartered onion in it over night.

When filling a fountain pen run cold water through the pen to clean it.

Add cocoa or melted chocolate to your plain cake for a change.

A simple way to keep mirrors and other glass polished is to rub it well over with some tissue paper. Any stains or fly marks also can be removed in this way.

Any disagreeable odor in the room in which a sick person is kept may be obviated by putting a few drops of oil of lavender in a cup of hot water. The steam which arises from the cup will be refreshing and fragrant.

When putting up curtains in a low room, put the cornice to which the curtain is to be fastened close to the ceiling. The curtains meeting at the top, will conceal the wall and it gives the effect of greater height to the room.

Sometimes the lamp wick obstinately refuses to be turned up in an orderly manner. It will seem firmly wedged at one side, while the other side runs up at a point. To overcome this take a new wick, draw out a single thread near the selvage, and the wick will be found quite tractable when introduced into the burner.

When one hates to take the tablecloth out of doors for shaking, yet wants it cleaner than a scraper can make it, she can accomplish her wants by placing some shallow dish, as a soup plate, in the centre of the cloth, and shaking the cloth up and down a few times. Every crumb will have lodged in the dish, and the table cloth can be laid away as clean as from a good shaking.

CHINESE MAKE GOOD SAILORS

Ship Owners Find They Make Best Help on Vessels.

There is a growing disposition on the part of ship owners and officers in various parts of the world to send to China for complete crews. For most ships, particularly when first employing such crews, it is necessary to carry about a third more Chinese for the same service.

On the other hand, there are many officers and owners who claim that with such additional allowance of help a vessel is run more easily and efficiently, and that, all things considered, the Chinese sailor is the best all-around man aboard ship to be found anywhere. He is adaptable from fire-room to galley, is industrious, has little or no desire to leave the ship in port, and therefore gives little or no trouble from drunkenness and desertion.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, DECEMBER 17.

Lesson XII. Ezra teaches the law, Neh. 8. Golden text, Psa. 19. 7.

Verse 1. The broad place—This was a popular meeting place, between the temple and the water gate, so called because the water-carriers' path leading from the spring of Gihon, the Virgin spring, entered the city at this point. It was at the east end of the city.

They spake unto Ezra—It was a request of all the people. It was an unusual step. The people were inspired with a fresh sense of a compact life, and a new hope, now that the work of Nehemiah was completed. Now, after more than a dozen years of indifference to their sacred law, they were ready to fall in with Ezra's measures, by which he sought to make Judah a separate nation on the basis of their religious life.

The book of the law of Moses—A study of the references to the law, in the book of Nehemiah, will discover elements of every part of the Pentateuch. The entire system of priestly and sacrificial regulations, with the many enactments concerning cleanliness and consecration, made up this document. It was the book of instruction, the Torah, "the old covenant."

2. Ezra the priest—He is called both priest and scribe, and in verse 9 and elsewhere is given the two-fold appellation. His priestly lineage is traced back to Aaron in Ezra 7. 1-5. His response to the request of the populace is no less remarkable than the request itself.

All that could hear with understanding—A comparison with Neh. 10. 28 indicates that children as well as men and women were included. "The law is for the simplest minds, the religion of Israel is to be popular and domestic."

The first day of the seventh month—This gives us our line upon the year also. The wall was completed on the 25th day of the sixth month. That was in the year B. C. 444, and there can be no doubt the writer meant to convey the impression that the reading of the law followed immediately after. It was an especially appropriate time, for on this day the people had gathered in "holy convocation" to celebrate the Feast of Trumpets (Lev. 23. 23-25).

3. From early morning until midday, when the hot autumn noon would compel a cessation of the reading, would be seven hours, and of course the process would not be consecutive. Others were standing by to relieve the great scribe, and interruptions would occur for exposition.

4. A pulpit of wood—The first mention of a pulpit. This erection of a temporary wooden platform gives an indication of the importance of the event. Ezra could in this way be seen by all in the vast assembly.

Beside him—The high priest and his party are not mentioned in this list of those who supported Ezra. The reason is obvious. These thirteen men were laymen and Levites, as was fitting in a movement which meant the overthrow of priestly monopoly and the deliverance of the law into the hands of the people. The Levites were no longer a part of the priesthood, but were rather concerned with the instruction of the people. It is likely that one name has dropped out of those on the right hand, as there ought to be an equal number on both sides, probably seven.

5. All the people stood up—As an evidence of their reverence for the book of the law. Probably they did not remain standing during the entire reading. Standing as a posture for prayer was a token of humility. It became the custom to stand during the reading of the law in the later services of the synagogue.

6. Amen, amen—The response of the people to the prayer of Ezra, ratifying his sentiment. Lifting up the hands was an expression of desire to receive and to embrace the divine blessing, the hands being open and the palms turned upward as if to accept. Bowing with faces to the ground was an attitude of lowly worship.

7. And the Levites—Better, omit the "and," or translate "even." The phrase defines the function of the thirteen men just mentioned. Of these, four are mentioned as Levites in Neh. 9. 5, and the same four, with three of the others, are called Levites in Neh. 10. 9-14. They are all probably representatives of Levitical families.

Caused the people to understand—Gave popular expositions of what Ezra read, interrupting at frequent intervals. This work of instruction in the Levitical law was intrusted to the priests alone.

8. They read—Perhaps there were groups of people, and the Levites were reading to them at the same time with Ezra. But it is more probable that it refers to the Levites who, one by one, relieved Ezra. They read distinctly that is, with clearness and precision. Also they gave the sense, by way of interpretation. There are but two clauses, not three, as in the Authorized Version.

9. All the people wept—Probably from hearing read the threatening portions of the Deuteronomic law. They could not but compare their lives with the behests of the Book.

10. Eat . . . and drink—It was not an occasion for mourning, but one of rejoicing and feasting. The custom on feast days was to exchange portions, and to send them to the poor (Esth. 9. 19, 22).

The joy of Jehovah—That is, the people's joy in him, not in them. Their sense of his care and guidance through all the stormy scenes of the past should drive away sorrow. To rejoice in God is to be strong, because it is to be conscious of the inspiration of his unfailing help.

11. Hold your peace—Compare Hab. 2. 20, and Zeph. 1. 7. It was a bad sign to give way to grief on a holy day.

14. They found written—There are various passages in the Pentateuch relating to the Feast of the Tabernacles, but the one specifically referred to here is Lev. 23. 39-43, where the only mention is made of preparing booths. The feast took place on the fifteenth of the seventh month, and was the great one of that month. It was the final harvest home of the year, the merry, but simple, celebration of the ingathering of the fruit of the field.

15. The mount—The entire hill country of Judah, and especially the Mount of Olives on the other side of the Kedron.

16. Upon the roof—The roofs of Oriental houses were flat. The courts were formed by the houses being built in the form of a quadrangle.

17. Jeshua—Joshua. It is not meant that the feast had never in all that time been celebrated, but never so, with such gladness and ceremony.

PRINCESS PATRICIA

Daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught.

ALTAR OF THE MOON GOD.

Sanctuary Food—on a Hilltop Near Ancient City of Antioch.

An important discovery which is fitted to throw light on the ancient religions of Asia Minor has been made by Sir W. M. Ramsay on the top of a mountain fully 5,000 feet above the sea level about four miles from the ancient city of Antioch, where was found the great altar of the moon god, or ancestral god, "Men Askaenos," which is about 66 feet by 41 feet and stands in an open oblong space approximately 241 feet by 136 feet, says the Zion Herald.

This open space is surrounded by a wall five feet thick, which like the altar is built of stones cut from the mountain. Besides this heiron Sir W. M. Ramsay found also a little stadium or theatre which probably served for the games celebrated in honor of the god on certain feast days.

At some distance off a church was also discovered. The estates of "Men Askaenos" was very extensive, and although they probably passed over to Augustus along with the inheritance of Amyntas, King of Galatia, who was lord also of Antioch, the sanctuary of the god was not suppressed, but an income was devoted to its maintenance. No fewer than seventy votive inscriptions for the good have recently been found which belong to about the year 300 A.D.

In thirteen inscriptions the expression "Tekmoreusas" occurs, which is thought to express or register a kind of recantation of faith, when certain Christain families (perhaps the farmers of the state and temple territories) weakly returned once more to the ancient state religion and sought to make amends to Men Askaenos for their abandonment for a time of the pagan worship.

Up to the present time no similar sanctuary dedciated to a known god and recognized throughout the whole of Asia Minor has ever been discovered on a mountain top.

CONCERNING SNAKES.

Way to Kill Ordinary Varieties Is To Rap Them on the Back.

The first impulse of a man on seeing a snake is to stamp on its head, which, according to the Rosary Magazine, is unwise. A snake's skull is very tough, as behooves a part of the body that is always liable to be knocked against stones, &c., owing to the extreme short sightedness of all serpents.

The back, on the contrary, can be broken with a light rap, for it consists of a delicate system of ball and socket joints. Should snakes be harmless the best plan is to leave them alone; should they be dangerous a shot from a revolver is safe and effective.

In case no revolver is at hand a rap with a cane will be sufficient, but care must be taken to keep away from the head of the creature.

A snake does not normally go about hitting its skull against hard objects; it only does this when in a hurry. Moving at its ordinary pace it feels its way with its long, delicate, forked tongue.

In the same way when about to swallow its food it touches it all over with its tongue in order to ascertain where to take hold, and this process has given rise to the mistaken idea that a snake covers its prey with saliva prior to swallowing it. No doubt a considerable quantity of saliva is generated during the process of deglutition, but it does not come from the tongue, which is merely used as a feeler.

When a snake bites it bisects its head up to the nape of its neck and opens its jaws till they are in the same plane, i. e., at right angles to the body. These jaws are provided with six rows of strong, sharp teeth, four on the upper jaw and two on the lower jaw.

This is a very formidable arrangement, but when you remember that a medium sized constrictor can project its head with sufficient force to knock a man off his feet, and will either on provocation or sometimes without it, let go this catapult, rat trap machinery, you are likely to avoid constrictors so far as is possible. Such a snake can take hold of a man and shake him or strip the skin and flesh from the part seized as if it were paper.

CREATURES OF HABIT.

Some Remarkable Stories of a Flock of Sheep.

A little contribution to the troubled subject of animal psychology is given, incidentally, in Rev. H. D. Rawnsley's book, "By Fell and Dale, at the English Lakes." Some apparently stupid and meaningless behavior, interpreted in the light of previous facts, would seem to indicate memory, and perhaps even a species if imagination.

Visitors to our lake country, as they ramble over the fells, must be constantly struck with the exceeding beauty of the delicate, lithe little sheep, with their shy, black, faces and their dainty feet, that give life to the mountainside.

The most remarkble characteristics of these Herdmick sheep are their homing instinct and their marvelous memories. Of this there are many proofs.

For example, a flock of sheep, driven down a road which was blocked at the time, had to pass through a gate, and so back again through another opening in the wall to the roadway.

They did not pass along that road again for many months. The road was now no longer blocked, and the wall had been built up, but as soon as they came to the place they all topped the wall, and insisted upon going back again through the gate.

I myself have seen a flock suddenly, at a certain place, spring into the air without and apparent reason, and was told that at that particular point the year before a pole had been across the road, and the sheep had jumped it when they came to the place. Although no obstruction now existed, they leaped over an imaginary pole.

LIVED IN GLACIAL PERIOD.

Child Skeleton Has Been Found in A Cave in Hungary.

The first skeleton of a child that lived in the glacial period has been located in the Balle Cave, Hungary. The skeleton is tolerably well preserved, especially the skull, jaw, thigh-bones and the bones of the upper arm. Parts of the spine, however, and the small bones have crumbled away. Prof. Lenhossek, of Budapest, who has made a thorough examination of the remains, had published a report in which he concludes that the child must have been about 15 months old. The skull is long and narrow, as are the forehead and the face. The jaw is prominent. The bones show the same peculiarities as those of the ancestors of the European races. The skeleton does not, of course, belong to the oldest races of which remains have so far been found, but to their immediate descendants, the so-called Mediterranean race. The interest lies in the fact that never before have any remains of a child of such a remote period been discovered.

If you would have your own way you must be willing to travel alone at times.

HARDER THAN THE ROCK.

More Difficult to Tear Down Concrete Than to Build.

Concrete buildings are permanent to an extent never before realized by architects. Office-buildings have a life of twenty, thirty, forty years, as the case may be, and then, if they are built of brick or stone or terra-cotta, they fall into the wrecker's hands, and are removed with little difficulty but much dust, to let other and greater buildings rise in their stead.

But with concrete buildings, says the Construction News, the case is different. To induce the concrete to release its hold on the re-enforcing rods of steel is no easy matter. The steel rods are wound in and out of the mass, crossing and re-crossing and lapping over each other until thoroughly tangled, like the hairs in my lady's coiffure, and much harder to separate.

It is infinitely more trouble to tear down a house of re-enforced concrete than it is to build one, and although less skill is required, it will be found that the cost will not be far different. The removal of a small concrete building in New York recently cost twenty-two thousand five hundred dollars.

The use of the modern re-enforced concrete for building construction goes back hardly twenty years, and there are few buildings of the most approved type that are ten years old. For this reason knowledge of the lasting qualities of cement can from what is known it is believed that the ordinary house of brick or stone is at the peak of its efficiency the moment it is completed. From not be said to be complete, but that time it begins to deteriorate.

The peak of efficiency in the case of a concrete house has not yet been determined. As concrete gets older, it becomes harder and more durable, that is, of course, if the concrete is properly made.

The usual means of wrecking a house have not the slightest effect on concrete. The sledge-hammer, the drill and dynamite must be used.

Acids might be used to disintegrate the concrete, but the expense would be enormous. Muriatic acid will dissolve the binder in the cement, but the trouble is that as soon as it has soaked in a little the cement counteracts the acid, and it is necessary to wash away the soluble material with a hose before further progress can be made.

The only thing to do it to loosen material with, explosives and then break it free from the steel re-enforcement with sledge-hammers, and that is a long, tedious job. A concrete house, re-enforced, becomes what is called monilithic. It is as if some one had chiseled the house out of a single piece of stone, with the added strength furnished by the steel.

1,825,000 USELESS RIFLES.

Antiquated Stock Kept in Storage in France.

France's enormous stock of antiquated rifles has been the subject of grave cogitation on the part of the budget committee. Struck by the large sums required by the French War Department for storage and maintenance of material the committee asked for a detailed statement, from which it was learned that in the French arsenals there are no fewer than 1,825,000 old service rifles and carbines which are not the slightest use in case of a mobilization, as the cartridges required for them are no longer made. They are weapon of the 1874 to 1880 patterns and have a calibre of 11 millimetres. Most of them are reported to be in "fair" condition, but more than half a million are admittedly quite useless. These are the remains of a huge accumulation of out-of-date arms that found good purchasers for a time at a dollar or two apiece among African negro tribes. But civilization has made great strides since even in the wilds of Africa and now the African negro is as good a judge of a Mauser or a Winchester repeater as his white brother and when he has the means to pay he insists on having the best. The budget committee has now resolved that the out of-date goods must be immediately scrapped. It is hoped that the rifle stocks will sell at something like six cents each, while the metal parts will go as old iron, so that these obsolete weapons which were once so expensive will realize no more than maybe ten cents apiece.

HAIR BEAUTIFIER

REFINED WOMEN THE WORLD OVER USE IT.

Every woman knows that there is nothing so good for hair and scalp trouble as Parisian Sage. If Parisian Sage is used two or three times a week it will keep the scalp nice and clean and remove dandruff. It makes the hair lustrous and fluffy, and keeps it from falling out.

We urge every woman who loves radiant and fascinating hair to go to W. S. Cole to-day and get a large 50 cent bottle of Parisian Sage. He guarantees it to cure dandruff, falling hair and itching scalp, or money back.

Rev. G. W. Dewey has recently formally accepted the invitation to James Street church for next year, subject to the approval of the stationing committee.

Ontario exhibitors of sheep at the International Stock Exhibition, Chicago, have captured most of the prizes for the breeds they have presented in the prize ring.

The Winter Fair at Guelph opened with a large increase in number, and advance in quality of the exhibits. This fair is well worth attending, and is a liberal education in itself as to the resources of the grand old Province of Ontario.

We have been having remarkably mild weather during the past few days. The roads in the country have been in a very soft condition, making travel exceedingly unpleasant. The merchants are anxious to see more seasonable weather.

Rev. Gundy of Toronto preached morning and evening at the Main Street Church on Sunday. Next Sunday Mr. T. E. Handford's class has charge of the services, the preacher being Rev. Hugh Locke, a former pastor. A mass meeting will be held in the afternoon.

The Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association have sent to James Weekes, our capable fire chief, their usual notice regarding the danger of fire from Christmas greens, drapery, etc., being placed too near lighting systems in decorating business places. Besides the danger of loss by fire there is liability of loss of insurance should a fire occur.

At the Hockey meeting on Thursday day last the following officers were elected: vice-Pres., Stanley Fisher. The boys expect to form four teams in town for local games and senior and junior teams for outside games. The rink has been secured from 7 to 8 o'clock on skating nights, and Thursday night from 7 to 9. Playing members pay a $2 fee, and others a $1. fee.

Fred Kerr of Crediton, a member of the Exeter Gun Club, did some great shooting at St. Thomas last week. He tied with Long of Hamilton, 179 out of 200; and in the shoot-off got 24 out of 25 to Long's 21, winning the Steven's shotgun for high average. He got ten live birds straight in two other events, and in the sweepstakes tied with four others, making a straight score. The previous day Kerr was second high man with 185 out of 200.

Don't overwork a dollar any more than you would a horse. Three per cent is a small load for it to draw; six is a safe one; when it pulls in ten for you its likely working out West and you've got to see that it doesn't buck; when it makes twenty you own a blame good critter or a mighty foolish one, and you want to make dead sure which; but if it draws a hundred its playing the races or something just as hard on horses and dollars, and the first thing you know you won't have even a carcass to haul to the glue factory.

ANNIVERSARY—Successful anniversary services were held in James Street Methodist church on Sunday last, when Rev. Hazen of London preached both morning and evening, and the choir rendered special music. The Rev. Hazen is a very capable preacher, and his sermons proved very interesting and instructive. In connection with the anniversary the Canadian Jubilee Singers appear this Wednesday evening after we go to press, and a treat is in store for all who hear them.

HICKS' FORECASTS FOR DEC.—A regular storm period is central on the 15th, extending from the 13th to the 17th. Low barometer, sudden change to warmer, with possible lightning and thunder and rain, will appear to south ward about the 13th, and on the 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th general winter solstice storms will be natural over sea and land, covering most parts of the northern hemisphere. High barometer, sweeping gales and great cold will bring up the rear of storm areas. A reactionary storm period will bring a change to warmer, with renewed rain and snow on and touching the 20th, 21st and 22nd. The disturbances at this time will centre about the new Moon on the 20th, this being the centre of another seismic period, extending from the 18th to 22nd. This period will add to the accumulations of snow and ice, resulting from previous solstice storms, and winter's cold will tighten its grip with the high barometer following the storms.

WEDDING—A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. J. Perkins, Con. 5, Usborne, on Wednesday, Dec. 6th, when their only daughter Florence May, was united in marriage to Mr. Will Hunter, also of Usborne The ceremony was performed precisely at 6 o'clock under an umbrella of evergreens by Rev. Yelland of Exeter in the presence of about fifty guests. The bride was attired in a dainty gown of cream silk mull and carried a shower boquet of white chrysanthemums and pink carnations. The happy couple were unattended while Miss Arthurs of Lambeth played the wedding march. The ceremony over, all repaired to the dining room where a dainty wedding dinner was served. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful oak rocker while to the organist a pretty pin set with rubies. The going away dress was of navey blue serge with velvet hat to match; The Advocate extends congratulations and best wishes. Among the guests present were Mrs. R. Young of Thamesford, Miss Arthurs, Mrs. E. Connell and Mr. Ed. Nafstone of Lambeth, Mr. and Mrs. Will Perkins, Miss Sims of London.

Local Items

Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men".

Do not fail to see the Pantomime on Thursday evening in the Opera House.

And now for that Christmas turkey—we thought we would be able to buy.

A few days to Christmas and still no sleighing. The coal pile shows a rapid decline however!

It is expected the new station will be completed this week and be occupied by Christmas Day.

Let the true spirit of Christmas characterize all your feelings and actions toward your fellow man just at this season.

How about that little item of news, you forgot to send in. Let us have the next bit of information that your friends would like to hear about.

Mrs. John Cookson had a heavy fall at her home, Exeter North, on Tuesday morning last, with the result that she sustained several bodily injuries and a severe shaking up.

The lack of sleighing has been somewhat against Christmas shopping, but the roads have now worn smooth, and a whole lot of shopping can be done in the next three days Townspeople should do their buying in the morning if possible.

GOLDEN WEDDING.—Mr. and Mrs. B. W. F. Beavers attended the golden wedding of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. S. Ford, Woodham, on Tuesday last. About seventy-five guests were present and partook of a sumptuous repast. The presents were numerous and costly, including $300 in gold from the Vancouver sons. Mrs. Mary Beavers was the only guest present who was at the wedding fifty-years ago. A little grandson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ford, was baptized in the afternoon.

A LOYAL CITIZEN—A very unusual—and equally admirable—case of alleged damages is reported from Winnipeg. A proprietor believed that the foundation of his house had been injured by the excavation of a new sewer. But instead of rushing into a law suit against the city and claiming damaged he called on the Board of Control with his solicitors explained the matter, and asked the Board to send an expert to look into it, and agreed to abide by the finding of the expert. Such a course is too unusual, but such loyalty of a citizen to his city deserves commendation—and imitation.

LONDON HAS BIG FIRE

London experienced another big fire on Friday night last when the D. S. Perrin Biscuit works was partially destroyed. The fire loss was $200,000 and the insurance on the whole plant was $240,000. 300 employees were thrown out of work. The company will rebuild.

Messrs Taylor and Rivers made their report on the town clock. Mr. Fitton stated that he had part of the clock under repairs, and would have it put in shape the best he could, but it was only a patched up affair after all. A new clock was needed.

Levett—Day—Adjournment to call of the reeve.

T. B. Carling, Clerk.

COUNTY COUNCIL DOINGS

Besides the routine business of receiving reports, etc., at the December County Council meeting, a few items of interest were.—

Hon. Adam Beck addressed the council on the Hydro-electric and the project of having cheap power in the district

A resolution was passed that the members of this council regret the death of Mr Samuel Sweitzer, reeve of Stephen, who was considered a most valuable member of this council, and that the Clerk be instructed to send a letter of condolence to Mrs. Sweitzer fully expressing the sympathy of the members of this council

A delegation composed of Messrs Johnston, Tigert and Field addressed the council on the necessity of improving the appearance of the county, by way of planting trees of suitable variety, keeping the roads in good condition and free of weeds, and setting aside park lands in urban municipalities The council while favoring the idea laid it over until the various municipalities act

The council agreed that Huron with the other counties petition the Legislature to so amend the law that when accidents occur on railways and an inquest is necessary, the railway company shall bear a portion of the cost

The County Property and the House of Refuge committees reported everything in a satisfactory condition

Warden Geiger of Hensall was presented with the customary cane on the completion of this term of office

PROOF FOR WOMEN WHO STILL SUFFER

THAT THEY CAN FIND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Mrs. Lois McKay suffered from Pains in the Back, Side and in the region of the Heart — Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her.

Tiverton, Digby Co., N. S., Dec. 18 (Special).—Every day seems to bring a message of cheer for the weak, run-down women of Canada. To-day's message comes from Mrs. Lois McKay, a well-known resident of this place. She, like others, has found new life in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Before I used Dodd's Kidney Pills," Mrs. McKay states, "I suffered with a bad pain in my back and side, pains in my bowels, and sharp, cutting pains around the heart.

"I was always tired. Sometimes when I sat down I could hardly get up out of the chair. But thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills, my pain is all gone and my back is well. I have proven for myself that Dodd's Kidney Pills are good." Female trouble is nearly always caused by diseased Kidneys. The position of the female organs and the Kidneys shows how one is dependent on the other. That's why weak women find new life in Dodd's Kidney Pills. They always cure diseased Kidneys.

PROPHESIES OF FAMOUS MEN.

Well Known Gentlemen Speak as to Their Future Greatness.

Not the lease interesting story told of the late Sir Robert Hart, who worked for half a century in the British Consular Service of China, is one concerning a remarkable prediction which he made as a boy, and which was duly fulfilled. The Township of Kilmoriarty had been given to one of his ancestors for gallent service at the battle of the Boyne by King William. The ancestor enjoyed himself only too well there, with the result that he left the place so burdened with debt that it had to be sold. Hearing the story, Robert Hart—a little boy then—used to say: "When I'm a man I'll buy back Kilmoriarty—and I'll get a title, too." He was laughed at. But he never wavered in the serious purpose formed before he reached his teens, and he actually did buy back Kilmoriarty when it came on the market years afterwards. As for a title, he gained a knighthood, a Grand Cross, and a baronetcy.

The story reminds one of the incident in the early life of Mr. John Burns, when he was struggling hard for a living. He was lodging with another youth in a small house on the Surrey side of the river, and early one morning looked out of his bedroom window and saw the light burning steadily on the clock tower at Westminster. Parliament was sitting. The other youth was dozing in a bed in the far corner of the room.

"Alec," said the first youth—John Burns—still looking out of the window, "you see that light?"

"What about it?" sleepily answered the boy addressed as Alec.

"Some day I shall be working under that clock."

It was a bold statement for one who was earning a few shillings a week in a factory, and it thoroughly aroused the other.

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"When I am in Parliament," was the reply.

"Don't talk rot," said Alec, and went to sleep again.

Another remarkable story told of John Burns relates that, while talking on a political question about twelve years ago, he said to an intimate friend: "I shall be in the next Liberal Cabinet." At that moment it looked as if the Liberals would never come back to power. His remarks was greeted with incredulous smiles, but there is no shaking Mr. Burns' confidence. "We shall win at the next election," he said, "and I shall be a member of the next Liberal Government." And time proved he was right.

It might be mentioned that the late Mr. Henry Broadhurst, the first working man to enter the British Ministry, was in his early manhood employed as a stonemason on the carvng work of the clock tower at Westminster. The story goes that one day he remarked, half jocularly and half seriously, to a fellow-workman: "You wait till I work on the floor of this place; I'll do something for you and our other mates."

And his fellow-workers were not inclined to scoff at the remark, for even in those days the energy and intelligence of Mr. Broadhurst had made a deep impression upon them.

NON-MEAT DIET.

Vegetarian Walks Round Denmark Pulling Richshaw.

To demonstrate how physical strength can be kept up on a vegetarian diet, a Danish enthusiast named Breckwoldt, has just started on a unique tour of Denmark. He has built a rickshaw on the Japanese plan and with his daughter as passenger he will walk all around the country, visiting every town and village.

At every stopping place he will lecture on the advantages to body and mind to be derived from a non-meat diet. As vegetarianism is attracting fresh adherents rapidly in Scandinavian towns, the voluntary rickshaw man expects to spread the cause materially on his travels.

At Elsinore and elsewhere he has held successful meetings, for the novelty of his enterprise is drawing crowds to this lectures. In the villages his reception is less encouraging, though kindly, for the country folk are disposed to scoff at his denunciation of the meat diet they and their fathers have been reared on.

A MOTHER'S PRAISE OF BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. Allen Mason, Carleton, N. B., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets ever since I have had children and that is going on fifteen years. I have always found them entirely satisfactory for all the ailments of little ones and feel that I cannot praise them too highly." Mrs. Mason's praise is just that of thousands of mothers who consider Baby's Own Tablets the only safe and sure remedy to keep in the house for their little ones. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BRITISH CABINET SALARIES.

What the United Kingdom Pays Its Twenty Officers.

It now costs just a little more than $500,000 a year to make the British cabinet mare go. To be exact, the yearly salaries drawn by the twenty members of the present government reach under the latest arrangement a total of $522,000, writes a London correspondent.

The highest in the British salary list is Lord Aberdeen, lord lieutenant of Ireland, who draws $100,000 a year. But he lives in regal state and it costs him much more than that to maintain his position. A better bargain, from the recipient's point of view, is the $50,000 received yearly by Lord Loreburn, the lord chancellor, whose main duties are presiding over the house of lords and appointing magistrates for the English counties. Even less work is done by Samuel Walker, lord chancellor of Ireland, who draws $40,000 a year from the British treasury.

Much has been made in the English papers of the supposed Irishman's rise which has been given to Winston Churchill. The position of home secretary carries with it a salary of $25,000 a year, whereas that of secretary of the admiralty, which he recently assumed, pays but $22,750. Therefore, say the English papers, Winston loses the difference. They overlook the fact that when a year ago the salary of the home secretary was raised from $10,000 a year to $25,000 a year Winston expressly agreed that the raise was not to apply so long as he held the office. Thus he steps from a $10,000 job to one paying $22,750, a nice little reward for work well done.

Heads of the education office and the board of agriculture each draw $10,000 a year. The postmaster general has to struggle along on $12,500 a year, while the chief secretary for Ireland receives $22,125 a year for his none-too-easy task.

With a few exceptions the others of the cabinet draw a round $25,000 a year each. There is no salary attached to the post of prime minister, but Asquith makes both ends met by collecting his $25,000 a year as first lord of the treasury. A similar amount leaves Lloyd George free from personal financial worries so that he can better worry about the financial affairs of the thirty odd million other inhabitants of Great Britain.

BOY SCOUTS FIGHTING CONSUMPTION

The Boy Scouts of the country, ever true to their creed, have enlisted in the battle against consumption. Under the direction of their superior officers, they are planning to do real substantial work in the selling of stamps, between now and the end of the year. Living up to their motto that each scout shall each day do some kindness to another, the boys have resolved that this slogan can be well made effective in the selling of Christmas Stamps to help on the great work being done for needy consumptives in the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives. In fact, the young people everywhere, in Public Schools, Sabbath Schools, and through their many different organizations, are proving themselves a wonderful help in this Christmas Stamp campaign. If no one in your town is active in this work—if you want to be active—write the Secretary of the National Sanitarium Association, 347 King Street West, Toronto, and learn all about the possibilities of this little one cent Messenger of Healing.

SMUG.

Braggs—What is the meaning of the word smug?

Waggs—It means a man who is fat and glad of it.

IMPORTANT.

The man who wishes to be the architect of his own fortune should not overlook the importance of making his foundation firm.

A Cure for Fever and Ague.—Disturbance of the stomach and liver always precede attacks of fever and ague, showing derangement of the digestive organs and deterioration in the quality of the blood. In these ailments Parmelee's Vegetable Pills have been found most effective, abating the fever and subduing the ague in a few days. There are many who are subject to these distressing disturbances and to these there is no better preparation procurable as a means of relief.

TAKING HIS MEDICINE.

Visitor — So you've had three dogs, eleven cows and two horses killed by autos so far this year. Why don't you put in a complaint?

Farmer—Never! I'm willing to take my medicine. I was one of the yaps that kept hollering for good roads.

Household troubles: Headache, Toothache, Earache, Stomach ache. Hamlins Wizard Oil cures these aches and pains so why don't you keep a bottle in the house.

Silence is often the best argument.

Minard's Liniment Cures Colds, &c.

HIS PLEASURE.

Judge—But, Hooligan, can't you live with your wife without fighting?

Hooligan—No, sir; I can't. Leastways, not happily.

The ease with which corns and warts can be removed by Holloway's Corn Cure is its strongest recommendation. It seldom fails.

Second thoughts often act as mental safety valves.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.

ODD SIGNS.

In a barber's shop window: "During alterations patrons will be shaved in the back."

Sign in a store: "Empty boxes—suitable for Christmas gifts."

In a tailor's shop: "We dye for others, why not let us dye for you?"

In a clothing store: "These pants will look better on your legs than on our hands."

A silversmith has a place next door to a restaurant. The former having put up a placard, "Jewellery of all kinds plated," the restaurant keeper followed with this: "Oysters and Little Neck clams plated."

"WATER ELEPHANTS."

The scientific world is still discussing the reported discovery of a new mammal in the Congo State, a mammal known to the natives as the "water elephant." M. Le Petit, of the Paris Museum of Natural History, recently reported that he saw five of these animals plunging into the water on the northern shore of Lake Leopold the Second. He stated that they appeared to have shorter bodies, smaller ears, and relatively longer necks than ordinary elephants, and apparently were not possessed of trunk. He estimated their height at about six feet. It has been pointed out that the description of the water elephant accords almost exactly with Dr. Andrews' restoration of the palaeomastodon, a creature which dwelt in the Fayoum in the lower teritiary age.

It is a Liver Pill.—Many of the ailments that man has to contend with have their origin in a disordered liver, which is a delicate organ, peculiarly susceptible to the disturbances that come from irregular habits or lack of care in eating and drinking. This accounts for the great many liver regulators now pressed on the attention of sufferers. Of these there is none superior to Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. Their operation though gentle is effective, and the most delicate can use them.

CHEATING THE CUSTOMS.

Here is an ingenicus Customs fraud, which has been going on unperceived for nearly two years. Customs officers, examining the cart of a man who has crossed the Italian-Swiss frontier three times a week for the past fifteen months, discovered that the axles of the wheels contained watches. Altogether 400 watches were found and confiscated.

It will Prevent Ulcerated Throat.—At the first symptoms of sore throat, which presages ulceration and inflammation, take a spoonful of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Add a little sugar to it to make it palatable. It will allay the irritation and prevent the ulceration and swelling that are so painful. Those who are periodically subject to quinsy have thus made themselves immune to attack.

RATS AND THE PLAGUE.

The under-secretary for India estimates that during the last 15 years 7,500,000 deaths from plague have occurred in that country, and yet, although it has been scientifically shown that this terrible disease is conveyed to human beings by rat fleas, there are actually districts where religious opposition exists to rat-killing and inoculation. The greatest difficulty is met in overcoming "prejudice and ignorance, habit and apathy." Great numbers of people not only continue to live in houses that are not rat-proof, but they treat the rat almost as a domestic animal, and refuse to trap or kill it. Wherever sanitary rules can be enforced, the ravages of the plague are arrested. It has been excluded from the jails and from the native army.

TOO TRUE.

She—"There is one State, at least, where women can do the bossing without the ballot."

He—"Which one might that be, pray?"

She—"The state of matrimony."

To discern and deal immediately with causes and overcome them, rather than to battle with effects after the disease has secured a lodgment, is the chief aim of the medical man, and Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup is the result of patient study along this particular line. At the first appearance of a cold the Syrup will be found a most efficient remedy, arresting development and speedily healing the affected parts, so that the ailment disappears.

A TOWER OF SKULLS.

As Late as 1809 Turks Decked Walls With Such Relics.

A strange monument of modern barbarism still survives at Nish in southern Servia. During the war of independence in 1809 the Servajn garrison here exploded a powder magazine and perished therein rather than fall into the hands of the Turks.

A battle had previously taken place and the Turks commemorated their victory by erecting a rude tower, ornamented with the heads of their enemies. Old people will tell you that there were once 1,200 heads, but as the tower was never more than twenty-five feet high, this is probably an exaggeration.

Lamartine and other travellers relate that they saw hair still clinging to the skulls, which must have formed a gruesome spectacle. During many years visitors were in the habit of carrying off skulls as souvenirs, but when Nisa became Servian the remainder were taken away for decent burial, all save a few that were too deeply inbedded. Recently the remains of the tower have been covered over with a roof to protect them against the elements, and they are regarded as a pious object of patriotic pilgrimage.

If a man is what his neighbors think he is, he ought to be ashamed of himself.

Baby's Rash Became a Mass of Humor
Parents Decided He Could Not Be Cured. "Cuticura" Soon Made His Skin Perfectly Clear.

A Toronto man, Mr. Robert Mann, of 758½ Queen St. East, says: "Our boy was born in Toronto on Oct. 13, 1908, and when three months old a slight rash appeared on his cheek. What appeared to be a water blister would form. When it broke, matter would run out, starting new blisters until his entire face, head and shoulders were a mass of scabs and you could not see a particle of clear skin. We did not know what to do for him and tried about every advertised remedy without avail, indeed some of them only added to his suffering and one in particular, the ——— Remedy, almost put the infant into convulsions. The family doctor prescribed for him. This did not do any good, so we took him to a hospital. He was treated as an out-patient twice a week and he got worse, if anything. We then called in another doctor and inside of a week the boy was, to all appearances, cured and the doctor said his work was done. But the very next day it broke out as bad as ever.

"We decided that it could not be cured and must run its course and so we just kept his arms bandaged to his side to prevent his tearing his flesh. The Cuticura Remedies were recommended. We started using them in May, 1909, and soon the cure was complete. Cuticura made his skin perfectly clear and he is entirely free from the skin disease." (Signed) Robert Mann, May 3, 1910.

In another letter, dated June 29, 1911, he adds: "My boy has never had any more trouble since using Cuticura."

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the most successful treatment for skin and scalp troubles of infants, children and adults. A single set is often sufficient. Although sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book on the skin, will be sent free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. ELECTRICITY FOR THE FARM

The Hon. Adam Beck Details the Uses Power Can Be Put To.

A despatch from Guelph says: A cream separator was operated twice a day by Hydro-electric power in the dairy section at the Ontario Provincial Winter Fair, and attracted a great deal of attention. The machine is so simple that it can be attached to any electric light fixture. There are also pictures on show demonstrating the uses to which electricity can be put on the farm. The pictures were gathered by Hon. Adam Beck during his travels in Europe.

The uses to which electricity can be adapted on the farm were explained to over a thousand interested listeners from rural parts at a public meeting in the City Hall, by Hon. Adam Beck.

Professor G. C. Creelman, President of the O. A. C., presented the case of his college before the farmers, urging them to avail themselves of it, and to spread its influence. He also urged the crying need of the college for greater facilities and more extended accommodation and more money from the Government.

The Minister of Power promised the audience that within a few years his department would have 1,000 miles of low voltage lines through Ontario, and country farms for eight miles all along these lines could be served by power. Mr. Beck told of what he had seen of the operation of electricity on farms in European countries. Plowing, thrashing, milking cows, and many other operations were included. He promised the farmers that in Ontario all these things could be done by Hydro-electric power, and that the use of electricity would be a great economy. An experiment had been tried at Ingersoll of filling a silo by electric power, which showed that the electric operation cost $32 less than the same operation by steam power.

A STRIKING DIFFERENCE.

The striking difference in the price received by the farmer for his beef and those paid by the consumer was pointed out in an address on the economical feeding of beef cattle by Prof. J. H. Grisdale, Director of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Ottawa, who also gave some instances to show how many farmers make little out of their beef cattle. It cost the farmers from six to ten cents, live weight, to produce them. This cost includes feeding, care, stabling, and all other items of expense. For this the farmers receive from four to eight cents a pound from the butchers, leaving a balance on the wrong side. At the same time the consumer pays from six to twenty-five cents a pound for the same meat. The lecturer said he could not account for the difference in price, but believed the butchers might. Nevertheless, farmers could make a good profit from beef, in spite of the differences, by care and economical feeding.

SEED GRAIN MEN.

Mr. L. H. Newman, B. S. A., of Ottawa, Secretary of the Canadian Seed Grain Growers' Association, outlined the aims and work of the association, which were, briefly, to encourage the production and distribution of the best stock seed through the country. "It is our aim," he said, "to put the handling of the registered seed on a high commercial basis. We wish to increase the supply of real good seed in Canada. We have in Ontario this year a little over 3,000 bushels of registered seed. Many times this quantity are required, and it shall be our aim to work towards increasing this supply in future years."

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.

Two hundred women from all parts of Wellington County held a meeting in connection with the Winter Fair for the purpose of discussing the work carried on by the Women's Institute of the county. G. A. Putnam, of Toronto, superintendent of women's institutes, who presided, spoke of the value of the institutes from a community and co-operative standpoint, and referred to the good work carried on along the lines of sanitation of schools and the distribution of good seeds. Next year, he said, the convention would be extended by inviting neighboring counties to send delegates.

BOTH HELD LIABLE.

Painters and Advertising Company Caused Death of Cattle.

A despatch from Ottawa says: An advertising company who put up a sign in a farmer's field and the company who painted the sign were held equally liable by Judge Gunn on Wednesday for damages because the plaintiff's cattle died as the result of imbibing poison from some of the paint pots left in the field after the work was done. The company erecting the sign had never obtained permission to do so.

MONTREAL BRANCHING OUT.

Estimates for 1912 One Million in Excess of Previous Year.

A despatch from Montreal says: According to the civic estimates tabulated at the City Hall at noon on Friday by Mr. Pelletier, the city comptroller, the city will spend more than a million dollars in excess of last year. Next year's total expenditure on revenue account is placed at $8,185,000, against $7,005,285 placed in the estimates last year.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

Canada Maintains Twenty-two Coast Stations.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Development of wireless telegraphy in Canada is indicated in a report just issued respecting radio-telegraphic stations. On the Pacific Coast there are nine stations, and on the Atlantic thirteen. The cost of maintenance of the former stations was $30,964, while the revenue was but $3,108. A total of 40,074 messages were transmitted on the east coast, maintenance of stations cost $44,524 and messages totalled $49,339.

UP GO FARES.

British Railways Increase Excursion and Commutation Rates.

A despatch from London says: It has been decided by practically all the railways in Great Britain to increase the excursion and commutation fares by from 7 to 10 per cent. on Jan. 1. This increase is made necessary, they claim, by the raising of the wages of their employes.

ROYALTY WAS IN DANGER

Duke and Duchess of Fife and Two Daughters in Steamship Wreck.

A despatch from Gibraltar says: The P. and O. steamship Delhi, bound for Egypt, ran ashore on Wednesday two miles south of Cape Spartel, which is on the northeast coast of Morocco. A number of British Royalties were on board the steamer, including the Princess Royal, Louise Victoria, sister of King George V., her husband, the Duke of Fife, and their two daughters, Princess Alexandra and Princess Maud. The passenger list also included Lord and Lady Kinnaird, Sir Thomas Erskine Holland and Sir Lewis and Lady Molesworth. The Delhi was bound from London to Bombay. The Royal passengers were en route to Egypt, and she had about 100 saloon passengers. Fortunately the Delhi is fitted with wireless, and was able speedily to summon aid from Gibraltar and Tangier. Several warships were soon on the spot, and in spite of the extremely rough weather all the passengers were rescued.

The landing of the passengers was a dangerous undertaking, and all concerned were extremely anxious. The waves were tremendous and the surf boats were constantly threatened with swamping. The Royal Princess and her daughters suffered like the rest. An eye-witness of the landing on the beach at Cape Spartel says one boat capsized in the surf and all the occupants were drenched to the skin. Princess Alexandra, one of the daughters of the Duchess of Fife, was narrowly saved from drowning by a sailor, who grabbed her by the shoulders and held her up until the two were dragged ashore. The Duchess of Fife and her two daughters, after borrowing some clothes at the lighthouse, rode to Tangier on horseback.

One of the launches of the French cruiser Friant, which had rendered the bravest of services in taking off the women and children, was swamped and sank. Six of the crew were drowned. The others struggled ashore in an exhausted condition. Several attempts of boats that went to the assistance of the Delhi were baffled by the tremendous seas. It is doubtful if the ship can be saved, but if the gale abates the specie, mails and cargo may be landed.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

ON RELATIVE AMOUNT OF NET QUICK ASSETS DEPENDS SAFETY OF MOST INDUSTRIAL BONDS.

In Canada where Banking System is Superior Current Assets Need Not Exceed Current Liabilities by so Great Proportion as in States—Bond Issue to be Safe Should Not Exceed Amount of Net Quick Assets Unless Real Estate is Considerable.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor.")

The importance of current assets having a substantial margin in excess of current liabilities is, of course, apparent when considering the accounts of an industrial company with a view to investing in its bonds. We read last week that this excess is called "net quick assets," and saw that it had an important bearing on the value of the bonds of any company whose land holdings had a less value than the amount of bonds outstanding.

For an industrial bond to be safe net quick assets, however, should do more than merely exist. They must be examined with reference to their relation to several other items to which they should bear a definite proportion.

The following is a balance sheet of an industrial company whose bonds are considered a sound investment and is chosen as an illustration chiefly because of the simplicity of its arrangement. It has added interest by being the statement of an operating company and not merely a form got up for purpose of illustration. If the inexperienced reader will follow the explanations carefully the next balance sheet he examines in connection with a bond offering will doubtless have added interest.

ASSETS.

Property — Real Estate, Buildings, Machinery, etc.		$1,994,803
Patents, Trademarks and Goodwill		182,485
Investments		11,421
CURRENT ASSETS.
Accounts and Bills Receivable	$724,046
Inventory Stock-in-Trade	951,856
Inventory Supplies	61,435
Cash on Hand and in Bank	53,782
		$1,811,119
		$3,999,828

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock		$1,500,000
Bonds		1,051,200
CURRENT LIABILITIES.
Interest accrued	$ 31,536
Accounts and Bills Payable	109,670
Bank Advances	905,930
		1,047,136
Surplus		401,492
		$3,999,828

In this case current assets amount to $1,811,119 and current liabilities to $1,047,136, leaving a balance—net quick assets—to the amount of $763,983. Now in the United States where, owing to the defects of the banking system, it is dangerous to owe the banks much, it is a rule that to put a company in good shape its current assets should amount to at least double its current liabilities. In Canada the banker of such a company would be deeply concerned in its welfare. He would be anxious for the company to do well and therefore there would be a very remote possibility of the company having to pay off its advances when they matured, if that were at an inconvenient time. There is, as a result, no danger of inability to renew maturing notes such as occurred in the United States in 1907, and which caused most of the industrial failures of that year there. So in Canada, unless bank advances form an inconsiderable part of the total liabilities, the proportion between current assets and current liabilities need not be so great as two to one, although, of course, the greater the proportion is the better. Where bank loans are secured by such stable commodities as grain, iron, steel, etc, and form a substantial part of the current liabilities, the proportion of current loans to current liabilities may fall to one and a half to one without misgiving. In the above instance the proportion is one and three-quarters to one.

The proportion between net quick assets and bonded debt is a most important consideration. Where a company has no real estate the bonded debt of a company should never exceed the net quick assets. Where there is real estate of value the bonded debt should not exceed two-thirds the value of the real estate plus the net quick assets, and here again the greater the excess of these two over bonded debt the better. In the case of the balance sheet given above, real estate, buildings, machinery, etc., amount to $1,994,803, of which—owing to the nature of this particular business — the greater proportion is of value in case of forced liquidation. Ordinarily, however, probably under 25 per cent. of the real estate, buildings and machinery account represents the value of the land. Taking arbetrarily only 20 per cent. in this case, we have net quick assets of $763,983 plus value of land $398,960, or $1,162,943 behind the $1,051,200 of bonds outstanding, leaving a margin of over 10 per cent. Some companies do better than this, however. A recent issue of bonds, in addition to real estate of considerably greater value than the bond issue had net quick assets over ten per cent in excess of the amount of bonds.

THE BEST SECURITY FOR YOUR MONEY IS BONDS

¶ There are, broadly speaking, two classes of investments: speculative investments, which may or may not pay interest and may appreciate or depreciate in value.

¶ And there are Bonds—Bonds are mortgages split up into denominations of $100 or upwards. We continually have Bonds, the security of which is beyond question, which pay as high as 6 per cent. interest. They are the standard form of investment. They are purchased by Banks, Insurance Companies and chartered institutions, because the Government recognizes that they offer the maximum of safety with a profitable rate of interest.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC VOTE

There seems to be considerable diversity of opinion as to the purpose of the vote to be taken on the Hydro-Electric By-law in town on January 1st. Some people are under the impression that by voting for this by-law that it is a direct committal of the town to a money by-law. Such, however, is not the case directly or indirectly; nor is it a matter to commit the town to a money expenditure. The sole object and purpose of this by-law is simply a plebiscite to find if the towns, villages and townships are in favor of the Hydro-Electric system, so that the Hydro-Electric Commission will be in a position to know the feeling of the county before they go to the expense of installing machinery and developing power for the benefit of this county. Let there be no two opinions about this matter. It is a straight plebiscite, non-committal in its purport, and should have the hearty support of every ratepayer and citizen in Exeter. As an illustration of the highly pleasing features and service of the Hydro Electric power we will give an instance of how it worked with the Mitchell firm. The owners of the flour mills in that place contracted with the Commission to furnish power for the running of their large mill for five months. It had only been installed a few weeks when the owners, being so well satisfied with the results, had the contract extended for another seven months, making it a year in all, and then disposed of their mill pond. This is only one instance of hundreds of such cases of entire satisfaction. Not a single voter should place a straw in the way of the securing of Hydro-Electric for this county, and should the By-law be defeated on January 1st it will be a lasting disgrace to the intelligence of the people of Exeter.

DOES THIS APPLY TO EXETER

Is it possible that the following from The Mitchell Advocate applies to Exeter?

"On Friday, Dec. 22nd, nominations for the town of Mitchell will take place. Who is going to stand? This question is heard on all sides, but everybody shakes his head negatively. It should be handed straight to any aspirant after municipal honors that he must be prepared to come right out and state definitely what policy he will pursue if elected. We have heard of the hazy, flimsy promises of 'I favor so-and-so, and stand for this and that.' The ratepayers are just now in this position, that they don't give a snap what any man favors or stands for; they want to know what he is going to do, not what he is going to talk about. There is no use blinking the fact that this town is divided into at least two different camps on municipal business. And it is the unfortunate truth that whatever one side proposes the other side will promptly and gleefully kick to pieces. The process is interesting, but scarcely makes for progress. It is to be very much regretted that in a good town like Mitchell, with its excellent opportunities for advancement that factional strife has been with us for years. The Advocate favors the selection of men for municipal positions, who are prepared to be aggressive; who have enough ginger in them to meet trouble more than half way; and who will not be so eternally afraid that someone's feelings will be hurt."

Merry Christmas to all.

We are informed by members of the temperance organization of Stephen township that they intend nominating a candidate for each municipal office, Reeve, Deputy, and councillors, and that they will vote to a man for the men of their choice.

The three retiring school trustees this year are Messrs. F. Frayne, H. E. Huston, and F. W. Gladman. We have not learned whether they intend seeking re-election. Among others who have been mentioned as probable candidates are: E. M. Dignan, S. Fitton, Rev. D. W. Collins and A. E. Fuke, any one or all of whom would make capable trustees.

CREDITON.

A Merry Christmas to all the readers of The Advocate.

This is a busy week for everybody. A little almighty would be splendid for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clark and family of Dewberry, Alta., are visiting with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Clark.

The Methodist Church will have their Christmas entertainment in their church on Thursday night, to-night. A good program has been prepared and all will be sure to enjoy the entertainment. The entertainment of the Sunday-school of the Evangelical Church will be held on Monday evening, Christmas night. The first part of the program will consist of songs by the school, readings, etc., by the children, while the second part will be a grand chorus entitled 'Shiloh' About sixty singers will take part. None should miss this. It will be the result of weeks of practice and the chorus is now at the stage of perfection.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Winer have returned home to Marlettte, Mich, after a few days visit with friends here.

Mrs. John K. Schroeder went through a critical operation in Victoria Hospital, London, one day last week and at time of writing is doing nicely. Her many friends trust she will have a speedy recovery.—

Mrs. Perry of Pontiac, Mich, is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. John Wind. She was accompanied by her her sister Miss Martha Wind, who spent a few weeks in Detroit visiting her sisters.

The Township council had their last meeting of the year on Friday. Wild and alarming rumors are afloat as to who will be the candidates for municipal honors. Next Friday is Nomination Day and it will prove to be an interesting one. Hand shaking has now been revived again, which is a sure indication that there is something doing. The people will be given an opportunity to vote for or against the Cattle By-law now in force. This has been a question much talked about and many opinions have been presented. The council will now be in a position to know if the By-law is a favorable one to the people.

Crediton will vote on the Hydro-electric on January 18th next. All should vote for this. To have electricity at hand for 24 hours in the day all year round is a privilege not given to every one. Now if that railwood would only come, our town would be second to none. That might be an inducement for our monied men to invest their money at home by taking stock in a factory instead of sending it elsewhere to help other places and then perhaps in the end have nothing left but their experience for their hard earned money.

School closes this week on Friday. We are pleased to state that the staff of teachers has been re-engaged for another term. They are giving good satisfaction.

Chris Zuefle of Hensall visited his mother Mrs. Chas. Brown on Tuesday.

Rev. J. G. Litt, Presiding elder of Derlin, presided over the quarterly service in the Evangelical Church last Sunday.

The many friends of the late Wesley Kerr were sorry to learn of his death which took place in Winchelsea on Monday. The bereaved widow and the relatives have the sincere sympathy of the vicinity.

DASHWOOD

This week the wedding bells sound to tell in our burg, and Miss Susie Rader becomes the wife of Mr. Harberer of Zurich. Miss Dader has lived in this community all her life and is most highly respected by all who know her. She will be missed in the village, but will help to make another home bright. We congratulate the young couple and hope that in journeying through life they may live at all times in pleasant sunshine.

Mr. Herbert Miller, who has been in the West for the past seven years, returned home on Saturday to spend a few weeks with friends.

Mr. R. R. McLennan, a former school teacher, spent a few days in this place with old friends.

The stores look like Christmas.

E. M. Brokenshire took in the Xmas entertainment at Shipka on Thursday night.

Mr. Louis Smyth of Grand Bend was in the busy Monday night.

(Too late for last week.)

Rev. J. G. Litt P. E. occupied the pulpit in the Evangelical Church last Sunday.—Several from this place attended the funeral of the late Mrs. John Williams at Zurich on Sunday last.—Election passed off very quietly on Monday last in this place.—Mr. T. B. Martyn sold his farm on the Goshen line to Mr. Marcus Wilds of the same place Mr. Wilds now has two Hundred acres of land in one block.

WINCHELSEA

Death of Wesley Kerr—After several months of waning strength and tedious illness Mr. Wesley Kerr, who has fought a brave fight against the great destroyer, passed away peacefully on Monday, about noon, at the age of 42 years, 1 month and 4 days. The deceased was the victim of that dread disease, anaemia, coupled with neuritis of the nerves, and while all possible assistance in the way of medical treatment and nursing was rendered it afforded little or no relief. For the past few weeks he has hovered between life and death. The deceased was a native of the Township of Stephen, being born on the 5th concession in the year 1869. The greater part of his life was spent in that township. He spent two years at Brinsley and for a number of years conducted a general store in Crediton, but for the past four years has resided at Winchelsea, where he conducted the store business for Mr. Thos. Coward. Mr. Kerr was a man of excellent business principles and during his business career made many warm friends, who will deeply mourn his demise. He was a member of the Methodist church, and took an active part in its various branches, and in church circles he will be much missed. He was a valued member of the Masonic fraternity and also of the Maccabees. About 12 years ago he married Miss Vinetta Banes, daughter of Mr. Jos. Banes of Crediton, by whom he is survived, together with 3 brothers and one sister, Charles and Fred of Stephen, William of London, and Mrs. E. Beaver of Crediton. The bereaved relatives have the profound sympathy of the whole community. The funeral takes place to-day, Thursday, to the Exeter cemetery.

Many changes have taken place in our midst. Last week we said good-bye to Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Coward and family, who moved to their new home in London. We found Mr. and Mrs. Coward very kind and obliging and their friends in Winchelsea follow them with interest and wish them every success in the Forest City.—To Messrs Skinner and Gunning who have taken their place, as General Merchants here, we extend our heartiest wishes for their prosperity and happiness in Winchelsea.—Miss Ella Heywood has returned home from Lucan.—Miss Nella Heywood is at present at Hyde Park.—The annual Christmas entertainment will be held in Sunshine church, on Monday evening Dec 25th, a good programme is being prepared and a good time expected.—On the Sunday preceding, services will be conducted at 2.30 by Rev. Yell and of Exeter and at 7 by Rev. Colin Fletcher of Thames Road.—An account of the death of Mr. Kerr the school entertainment will be postponed. —On Friday evening Dec. 22nd the pupils of Winchelsea will give and entertainment in the school-house and the teacher and pupils will be glad to see the school section well represented and also any others who are able to attend. At the close of the programme a silver collection will be taken to meet the expenses and also in aid of the Sick Children's Hospital. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Jessie E. Hamilton, Teacher.

MOORESVILLE.

A very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. Moses Simpson, when their daughter, Ella, was united in marriage to Mr. John Wright of London, Rev. Connors of Alisa Craig performing the ceremony. The bride was handsomely attired in white silk with pearl trimmings and carried a large bouquet of white roses with streamers, wearing the customary veil and orange blossom wreath. Miss Florence McDonald acted as bridesmaid, dressed in cream, and carrying pink roses and carnations. Miss Grace Nelson and Perna Dennis, nieces of the groom, made handsome little flower girl, and ring bearer, and were dressed in white silk and carried each a basket of roses and carnations. Mr. Bert Wright of Wingham brother of the groom, acted as best name. The bride entered the parlor at 12 o'clock on the arm of her father, while the sweet strains of the wedding march was played by Miss Louise Bacrett of Exeter. The ceremony over, all repaired to the dining room, where a dainty wedding dinner was served. The grooms gift to the bride was a gold watch and fob and to the bridesmaid a gold locket and chain, and to the groomsman a gold cuff links, to the flower girls, gold bracelets. Among the beautiful and useful presents was a check for $150 from the brides parents. The bride's going away dress was navy blue ladies cloth with hat to match. There were guests present from Wingham, Lakelet, Exeter, London, Belmont, Thamesford, Birr, Lucan and Clandeboye. The happy couple left on the evening train amid a shower of rice, etc., for London which will be their future home. Their many friends extend congratulations and best wishes for their future happiness.

Mrs. J. Neil is confined to the house through illness.—Miss L. Boyle of Ripley spent a few days with friends around here.

Andy Atkins of Lavenham, Man., is visiting with his Uncle, Mr. J. Atkins. —Elva Morgan is ill with pneumonia. Hope for a speedy recover.— Miss L. Everett of Exeter paid a flying visit to friends here.—Mr. John Bloomfield Sr., of Belmont is visiting friends here. —Mrs. Jas. Corsant of London who has been spending a few days with friends here, returned to her home Friday evening.—Wm. Simpson has disposed of his store here to John T. Simpson of Clandeboye.—Jos. Kelly of London visited his sister Mrs. Farrell a few days last week.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

RHEUMATISM FOR FIFTEEN YEARS!

Throws away crutches after using Father Morriscy's No. 7.

SOUTHAMPTON, N.B., Oct. 15, 1910.

"I had suffered with Rheumatism for fifteen years — sometimes so badly I had to use crutches — and could get nothing to help me. I saw your No. 7 Tablets advertised and decided to give them a trial. I procured a box, and in a very short time I got relief, and by the time I had taken five boxes the Rheumatism had all left me. After 18 months it returned — I got another box, and now I am free from Rheumatism. I can conscientiously recommend your remedy to all sufferers from Rheumatism. Your No. 7 Tablets are great — worth their weight in gold."

Charles R. Cronkhite,
General Merchant.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All", or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

It Is Up To You

To protect your family from the ravages of disease and infection; and the rigors of winter; to make your home the abode of Health and Happiness.

Statistics tell us that there were over 250,000 deaths in North America last year from fever and Pneumonia; Over 90 per cent. of these cases were traceable to out-door closets, and all were the result of insanitary conditions.

Are you going to allow this terrible death rate to continue.

Why not insure Health by installing a "PARKYTE" SANITARY CHEMICAL CLOSET.

Absolutely Sanitary and Odorless carries the endorsement of Physicians and Health Officials, and our own iron-clad guarantee, Requires no expensive water-system; no plumbing; no sewage can be installed in any part of your home at the cost of a few minutes of your spare time; lasts a lifetime and cost less than a CENT a day.

"PARKYTE" Chemical has been proven by Bacteriological test to be the most powerful Disinfectant, Deodorant and Germicide, known to Science.

CORBETT
The death of Marshall M. Mathers, north of Corbett, occurred very suddenly on Dec. 6th, at the age of 52 years. Mr. Mathers has been in poor health for a long time, but appeared no worse than usual. He went to the bush to bring up some wood and became so violently ill that he had to be carried into the house on his return, and he passed away in a few hours. Mr. Mathers was an excellent neighbor a kindly Christian man and well respected. He was a son of the late Stephen Mathers of McGillivray. One thing that makes his taking off particularly sad is his son Gilman has been ill of pulmonary trouble. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. John Scharam of McGillivray townline, Edward of British Columbia and a half sister, Mrs. J. W. Smithers of 18th con. McGillivray also by a sorrowing widow, one son Gilman, two daughters, Miss Laura, and a daughter one year old.

CLANDEBOYE
The home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Simpson, of this place was the scene of a happy family gathering Dec. 12th, the occasion being the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. The weather man presented his tribute by ushering in a day almost identically the same as the original wedding day fifty years ago. A sumptuous dinner, consisting of all seasonable dainties, was partaken of in the dining-room, which was decorated with golden munis and evergreens. The gathering which numbered 35, consisting of the children grandchildren and brothers and sisters of the happy couple. During the evening an important programme, consisting of songs, speeches and selections of music was rendered. Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Simpson, who are both in the enjoyment of good health, were the recipients of congratulations on all sides. Those present from a distance were Rev. C. Simpson and Mrs. Simpson, of Little Current LUCAN—The little two-year-old son of Mr. Walter Gibson, formerly a well known baseball player of London, will, it is feared, lose the sight of one of his eyes, in which an abscess has developed. He has been taken to London for treatment, but the attending physician fears that little can be done to save the eye. The abscess developed very unexpectedly a couple of days ago and causes the boy very great pain.

Soap will not do the work properly because soap only cleans the surface—it does not dig deep after germs and hidden impurities like GOLD DUST—the greatest of all sanitary cleansers.
To keep bath tub and lavatory shiny-white and inviting —To keep metal pipes, fixtures and taps brightly burnished—To purify metal bowl—
To keep tiling and woodwork spotless and beautiful—
Simply add a heaping teaspoonful of GOLD DUST to a pail of water. You will be surprised at the ease with which it does the work. GOLD DUST sterilizes as well as cleans —and saves you one-half the labor.

GOLD DUST is sold in 50 size and large packages. The large package offers greater economy.

You will be proud of the bread you'll make with PURITY FLOUR

AFTER seeing a batch of big, golden-crusted, snowy-white loaves, that you have baked from PURITY FLOUR, you will, indeed, be proud of your cooking-ability—and proud of your wisdom in deciding to pay the little extra it costs to procure such high-class flour. You will admit, too, that we are justified in the pride we take in milling this superb flour.

PURITY FLOUR
"More bread and better bread"

PURITY FLOUR is milled exclusively from the best Western hard wheat—the world's finest. More than that, PURITY FLOUR consists entirely of the high-grade portions of the wheat. The low-grade portions are separated and excluded during the PURITY process of milling. Such high-class flour, of course, expands more in the baking. It makes "more bread and better bread."
It makes lighter, flakier pastry, too, if you just take the precaution to add more shortening. On account of its unusual strength PURITY FLOUR, for best results, requires more shortening than ordinary flour.
Progressive dealers, everywhere, sell PURITY FLOUR and take pride in recommending it.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER XI.—(Cont'd)

At 1.30 a.m. Brett and Fairholme were ushered forth from the doors of the prefecture and stood in freedom in the street.

"Where now?" said Fairholme.

"To the hotel," replied Brett, wearily. "I must have sleep, so I consign the Turks, and the Sultan's diamonds, and every one concerned with the Albert Gate mystery, to perdition for the next eight hours."

Notwithstanding his weariness, Brett rose early next morning. His companion slept like a top, and the barrister had to shake the earl soundly by the shoulder before the latter woke into conscious existence and sat up in bed sleepily demanding—

"What's up? Where's the fire?"

"I want you to dress at once," said Brett cheerily, "and join me at breakfast. You must leave for London by the 11.50 train."

"Am I such a nuisance then that I have to be packed off at a moment's notice?" said the earl.

"By no means. Decidedly the contrary, in fact. As matters in France evidently require persistent attention on my part for many days, perhaps weeks, I think it is hardly fair to leave Talbot in confinement any longer. Your mission is to restore your prospective brother-in-law to the bosom of his family, and I regret that it is impossible for me to accompany you."

"Are you serious, old chap?" was the startled answer. "What has happened since one o'clock this morning to make you so confident?"

"Nothing that is not already known to you. Had I succeeded last night in following Mdlle. Beaucaire to her destination I might have been able to accompany you to London this morning. As it is, Heaven alone knows what sort of dance she may lead me. However, you complete your toilette, my dear fellow. I have ordered breakfast to be served in a quarter of an hour. Then you can eat and listen."

During the first portion of the repast Brett seemed too busily engaged to unburden his mind. It was not until he had lit a cigarette and pushed his chair away from the table, so that he could assume a posture of complete ease, that he commenced—

"You slept so soundly, Fairholme, that you have not had time to review all the circumstances of yesterday's adventures. Otherwise I am sure you would have reached the same conclusions as suggested themselves to me. Curiously enough, although dog-tired when I went to bed, I woke about seven o'clock feeling thoroughly rested both in mind and body. I procured some coffee, took a bath, and went out for a stroll, with the result that I returned and aroused you after reaching finality in some of my conclusions, and deciding on a definite plan of action for both of us."

"It is really very decent of you, Brett, constantly to assume that I can see as far through a brick wall as you can, especially as you know quite well that, although I am fairly well acquainted with all that happened yesterday, the only tangible opinion I can offer is that the Paris police interfered with you at a most inopportune moment."

Brett smiled. "That is because you have not accustomed yourself to analysis," he said. "However, I will summarize my views, and if you can find any flaws in my reasoning I will be glad. The first thing to observe is that the diminutive Frenchman drew on himself the special vengeance of the Turks when I exposed the attempt to foist on them a collection of dummy diamonds. Yet he actually had the nerve to return to the Rue Barbette later in the day. He has not been seen since, so the little scoundrel is either dead or a prisoner in Hussein-ul-Mulk's flat. As I cannot permit myself to participate in a murder or even in an illegal imprisonment, I am regretfully compelled this morning to take the police into my confidence and inform them of an obvious fact which escaped their penetration yesterday."

Fairholme whistled.

"I must say," he cried, "I gave a passing thought to the incident myself last evening when your spy reported that the Frenchman remained in No. 11 after the Turks had quitted it."

"Yes," said Brett. "You see, all you need to cultivate is the habit of deduction, and you will soon become a capital detective."

"Well," said the earl dubiously, "that is a new point of view for me at any rate."

"It is a fact nevertheless. But we have not much time, so we must reserve any further consideration of your abilities. The fate of the Frenchman must be determined today, and to decide the question I must act through the police, so a conversation with our friend the commissary becomes inevitable, and now to return to the hypothetical part of my conclusions. I began by assuming that the individual who planned the Albert Gate outrage and subsequently sought to bamboozle his employers by palming off on them a set of spurious diamonds, is far too acute to attempt to dispose of the real gems for many months yet to come. He obtained sufficient funds from the Turks, in pursuance of what may be termed the legitimate part of his contract, to enable him to live for a considerable period without further excitement. Closely associated with him in the present adventure is La Belle Chasseuse. Neither would endeavor to procure safety by flight to a foreign country. They will seek insignificance by living in a normal and commonplace manner. What more easy, for instance, for Mademoiselle than to return to the life of the circus, whilst her lover—granted that he wished to remain in her company—will obtain some suitable employment in the same circle. There is a suspicion of a joke in the statement, but I am quite serious. The mere consciousness that they have in their possession a vast fortune, which time alone will enable them to realize, will serve as an inducement to undergo the period of hard work which means safety. You remember that the lady's father, Gros Jean, visited the Gare de Lyon yesterday?"

Fairholme nodded.

"I think you will find that he was depositing there the necessary luggage for a contemplated trip into the interior, so that Mademoiselle might slip out late at night quietly and unnoticed and join her lover at some preconcerted rendezvous, a thing which we now know she did. I cannot, of course, be certain whether the Frenchman who signalled to her in the Cafe Noir was himself the favored individual. It is possible. By the way, what height is Talbot?"

"About five feet nine."

Brett pondered for a little while.

"Yes," he communed aloud, "I think I am right. That pink-and-white Frenchman is the master mind in this conspiracy. And to think that the unintelligent muscles of a couple of thick-headed French policemen should have crudely interfered with me at such a moment!" He sighed deeply.

"Never mind," he went on, "it cannot be helped. I must keep to the thread of my story. Mademoiselle Beaucaire left the Cabaret shortly after eleven o'clock. We cannot be certain that she went to the Gare de Lyon, but the cab unquestionably set off in that direction. It is a long drive from Montmarte to the Lyons station. We will give her, say, until twelve o'clock to reach there. Now, unless she was journeying to some suburban district—a contingency which upsets the whole of my theory—there was no main line train leaving for the south until 1.05 a.m., and that is a slow train, stopping at nearly every station south of Melun. Let us suppose that they guard against every contingency. I imagine that the pair, providing the two travelled together, would break their journey south at some quiet town in the interior early in the morning, and subsequently proceed to their destination by easy stages."

"I am still fogged as to what you mean by their destination?" said Fairholme.

"I mean the circus, the music-hall, the cafe chantant, or whatever place mademoiselle and her astute adviser may select as a safe haven wherein to avoid police espionage during many months which must ensue before they dare to make the slightest effort to dispose of the purloined diamonds."

"The third item," continued Brett, "which demands attention in Paris is the whereabouts of the Turks. They must be found and observed. My chief difficulty will be to keep that delightful commissary from imprisoning them, if, as I imagine, we find the little thief a captive in the Rue Barbette. So you see my actions are speculative. Yours, on the other hand, will be definite."

"Ah!" said Fairholme, "I am glad to hear that. If you expect me to analyze and deduce and find out the probable movements of intelligent rascals, I am sure I shall make a mess of things."

"You will reach London," said Brett, "at 7.30 p.m. I suppose you have in your service a reliable servant, endowed with a fair amount of physical strength?"

"Rather," cried the earl. "My butler is a splendid chap. He has been fined half a dozen times for his exceeding willingness to settle disputes with his fists."

"Telegraph him to meet you at Charing Cross Station. I can depend upon my man Smith to use his nerve and discretion. Moreover, he knows Inspector Winter, of Scotland Yard, and should trouble arise, which I do not anticipate, this acquaintance may be useful to you. The third person who will meet you will be the ex-sergeant of police, whose report to me you heard yesterday. He will point out to you the flat tenanted by the invalid lady. You speak French well, and after a few questions you should be able to satisfy yourself whether or not the person who opens the door to you when you visit that flat is acting a genuine part. You can pretend what you like, but if admission is denied to you I want you to force your way inside and see that invalid lady at all costs. In the event of a gross mistake having been committed you must apologize most abjectly and assuage the wounded feelings of the servants with a liberal donation, whilst the ex-sergeant of police will advise you as to any other place which may demand personal inspection. I do not conceal from you the difficulties of your task, or the chance that you may get into trouble with the police. But the fact remains that Talbot, alive or dead, is concealed somewhat in the neighborhood of the Carlton Hotel, and it is high time that this portion of the mystery attending his disappearance should be made clear. Do you follow me?"

"Precisely," said Fairholme. "My programme appears to be very simple. I am to kick down any door that is pointed out by the ex-policeman, provided I am refused admission by fair means."

Brett laughed. "I think," he cried, "you have put my instructions in very direct and succinct form. All I hope is that the invalid lady may prove to be an elderly fraud. It only remains for me to give you my blessing and say good-bye."

"But what about you?" said the earl anxiously. "Suppose we come across Talbot to-night, as you anticipate, where shall I find you to-morrow?"

"You must telegraph to me here," was the answer, "and you must possess your soul in patience until you hear from me."

"No, don't protest," he went on, as Fairholme gave indications of impatience. "You need not fear that you will be left out of the denouement, whatever it be. I am sure to need your help before long, and I will cable you at the first possible moment. For that reason, should you leave your house for more than an hour or so, I hope you will make special arrangements for telegrams to reach you without delay."

"You may rely on that," was the hearty answer. "But look here, Brett. It is 10.45 a.m. now. If I have to catch that 11.50 train from the Gare du Nord I have no time to lose. By the way," he added, turning at the door, "is there any reason why I should not wire to Edith to expect me to-night?"

HEALTH

OPSONIC TREATMENT.

In the language of present-day medicine, immunity is the power that a person has to resist the attack of the microbes of any particular disease. This immunity may be racial—man, for example, is not subject to a number of the diseases of the domestic animals. Or it may be peculiar to the individual—some persons, for example, seem never to suffer from infectious diseases. In the case of the individual, immunity may be conferred by one attack of the disease.

Why one attack of a disease should make a person safe from another attack, at least for a time, is not always readily explained. It is probable that immunity may be acquired in different ways that vary in different disorders. One explanation is that in the fight of the system against disease a certain substance is elaborated that draws the bacteria and the bacteria-destroying cells of the body together, to the discomfiture of the former. A form of this substance, which is always present in the blood, enables the person to resist the first attack of the invading germs, and so gain time to elaborate the other form, which is more powerful, but acts only on the special microbe present. The formation of this second variety of protecting substance is stimulated by the presence of the bacteria in moderate numbers in the blood, and is protective because it throws the bicrobes into the jaws of the devouring cells, or rather, as its name, opsonin, from a Greek word meaning sauce, indicates, makes them palatable.

In most infectious diseases a few microbes at a time enter the blood, and so the production of opsonin is brought about. But as in disease these bacteria in the blood are living, there is always the danger that they may be so virulent or present in such numbers as to overcome the attacking cells, and so bring about the death of the sufferer. Physicians, however, have now learned to produce the saving opsonin by injecting the bacteria of the same kind that have first been killed by heat, so that they cannot grow and do harm in the body. Their only action then is to cause the elaboration of the opsonin, which they do as well dead as living. The opinion thus produced acts on the living bacteria and attracts to them the cells which by destroying them will put an end to the trouble.—Youth's Companion.

HEALTH NOTES.

Hiccough can generally be stopped at once by eating a lump of sugar soaked in vinegar.

A bag of hot sand applied to the part of the body affected with neuralgia will bring relief.

In the early stages of quinsy or tonsilitis a gargle made by adding a teaspoonful of powdered alum to a tumblerful of warm water is to be recommended.

THE LITTLE WIDOW

A Mighty Good Sort of Neighbor to Have.

"A little widow, a neighbor of mine, persuaded me to try Grape-Nuts when my stomach was so weak that it would not retain food of any other kind," writes a grateful woman, from San Bernardino Co., Cal.

"I had been ill and confined to my bed with fever and nervous prostration for three long months after the birth of my second boy. We were in despair, until the little widow's advice brought relief.

"I liked Grape-Nuts food from the beginning, and in an incredibly short time it gave me such strength that I was able to leave my bed and enjoy my three good meals a day. In 2 months my weight increased from 95 to 113 pounds, my nerves had steadied down and I felt ready for anything. My neighbors were amazed to see me gain so rapidly, and still more so when they heard that Grape Nuts alone had brought the change.

"My four-year-old boy had eczema very bad last spring and lost his appetite entirely, which made him cross and peevish. I put him on a diet of Grape-Nuts, which he relished at once. He improved from the beginning, the eczema disappeared and now he is fat and rosy, with a delightfully soft, clear skin. The Grape-Nuts diet did it. I will willingly answer all inquiries." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ontario.

SUGAR TO FURNISH LIGHT.

On several sides the suggestion has been put forward that there is every possibility that in the near future sugar will play an important part in the provision of a new method of artificial lighting. Experiments have shown that when discs of loaf sugar are placed on a lathe and rapidly rotated whilst a hammer plays lightly against them, there is an almost continuous radiation of articifial light. At present the practical value of the discovery is nil, but it is quite within the bounds of possibility that discoveries will soon be made that will render its practical application a certainty. The cause of the phenomena is not at present correctly understood, but it is probably due to some change in the formation of the sugar crystals. Cases where the act of crystalization is accompanied by flashes of light are not unknown, and probably this is due to some similar cause. At any rate, this appears to be the only feasible explanation, as it has been proved that the light is not caused by the heating of the sugar during the experiment.

"Odd thing about flattery." "What?" "It makes everybody sick except those who swallow it."

SANE CHRISTMAS BUYING

While we would not for a moment attempt to discourage the beautiful and almost universal custom of buying and distributing Christmas presents, we do consider that the man of moderate means should be sensible and conservative in this respect.

About Christmas-time, a craze seems to strike the public for buying presents, and people purchase with apparently no thought of their financial stature, rarely ever displaying a taste in keeping with this and the appropriateness of the gifts to be bestowed.

This is more common among rural folks than in the city, since there are so many articles which, while adding not only to pleasure, but comfort and profit to those on the farm, would not appeal to the city resident as being either beautiful or useful. For this reason, we believe there ought to be started a movement among farmers, looking towards what might be termed a "sane" Christmas.

Of course, the farmer who has money and to spare, need not limit his buying to those gifts which will be of material use to the person to whom presented, but where one has a large family and a limited purse, it seems to us that it is the height of foolishness (though noble and self-sacrificing the deed) for a farmer and his family to spend their hard-earned money for presents that never will be fit for anything but ornaments, when they could as well secure something both pleasing to the eye and of practical use to the one receiving it.

While the list of useful and attractive Christmas gifts that would be suitable for the farm household is almost endless, a few for each portion of the family are herewith appended.

The farmer himself would appreciate such useful articles as a neat, comfortable cap; a pair of artistic though warm mittens (if knitted by some member of the household, so much the better); some handy, well-finished tool; a pair of comfortable slippers to wear after the day's hard toil; or a roomy rocking-chair. None of these would necessitate any great outlay of cash, but would bring pleasure to the eyes and be of material benefit to him.

Presents for the house-wife should be something contributing to home-making—something attractive, pretty, yet useful. Doillies, tidies, all kinds of kitchen and parlor linen, handsome, serviceable dish-sets, a rug, a comfortable shawl, a nice set of good furs—these are but a few of the many presents that would please for years to come, and yet not cost any more than some gaudy article fit only to be stowed away to look at occassionally, or wear out in the course of a year or two.

For the boys and girls, any of the above articles may be included, with scores of others fully as appropriate. Useful, instructive games will not only be acceptable, but will furnish a world of amusement for the entire household. Then, there are such useful and ornamental presents for them as good books, musical instruments, various articles of wearing apparel that will prove both serviceable and attractive, writing sets, appropriate sized guns for the large boys, sewing sets for the girls. Of course, we must gladden the hearts of the little tots with dolls, toys, whatnot—and be all the merrier for it; but for the larger children we may find plenty of presents which, while inexpensive, are far more attractive, useful and instructive than the worthless trinkets foolishly bought by many.

Again, what's the use of one running around all over christendom to secure presents for every friend and relative in existence? If you are a person of only moderate means (and most of us farmers are), your sane friends will not expect a costly present from you—just some keepsake in memory of the day; something to show your good will, and not to reflect the size of your purse.

Only one present of each kind need be given or sent to any family, so that the variety will be much the same as though no two articles of the same class had been purchased. It is neither fair to yourself nor to your family to buy extravagantly, without regard to the sacrifice you are making and the little real benefit you are rendering to those you should provide for.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT.

"'What is the irreducible minimum?' I said to her finally," said Mr. Billtops, and

"'What's that?' said Mrs. Billtops, not clearly understanding at first the significance of those two somewhat unfamiliar words; and so I put it in another way:

"'Well,' I said 'What is the very least you can get along with?' this conversation having been held at the time when it usually comes every year, along about December 1, and referring, of course, to the amount of money Mrs. Billtops could have to spend for Christmas gifts.

"Mrs. Billtops is no spendthrift. I don't know where we would have been to-day but for her looking after the money; but she likes to give, she likes to make people happy, and every year at about December 1 she comes to me for the Christmas money. And then we talk it over. And every year she says to me:

"'Ezra, I don't think you have much of the Christmas spirit;' and then I say to her:

"'Elizabeth, my Christmas spirit is all right, it's the bank account that's lacking,' and then we get down to business.

"It will cost so much for what we want to give so-and-so, and so much for another, and so on; and when we get through the list and have footed it up we both know it won't do; the spirit is willing, but the bank account, as aforesaid, is weak; and then we go over the list again, and we end up by my asking her what is the least she can get along with, the question that I put to her this year in a request to know the irreducible minimum, and then I draw the check.

"Oh, well, what's the use! We like to give and why not give cheerfully? And really we have many things to be thankful for, and not the least of these is associated with Christmas, which, as we gratefully reflect comes but once a year."

HOW TO MAKE XMAS GIFTS.

There are few people who do not want to make Christmas a day of cheer and happiness, and some sort of gift is generally used to embody the spirit of the day. The gift need not be expensive, and may often be fashioned from material already at hand. More than one family has secured an extra amount of fun in planning gifts for the immediate family, none of which were to cost more than 10 cents. Of course they had to set their wits to work, but the planning was a part of the fun, and all were surprised when they saw what really pretty and useful things they could evolve and still keep within the prescribed limit. Here are a few items which will help to show what may be done in this line:

Hemstitched Handkerchiefs. — A third of a yard of fine handkerchief linen may be purchased for 30 cents. This will make three handkerchiefs, which may be carefully hemstitched, and perhaps an initial worked, making an acceptable gift for any woman or girl.

Tissue Paper Gifts.—A sheet of crinkled tissue paper may be made up into quite a number of gifts, the cost of each amounting to much less than 10 cents. Candle shades may be covered, pasteboard boxes made ornamental, flower pots may be attractively finished. Indeed, the uses of the tissue paper are almost endless. One use, which should not be overlooked, is the making of a set of doll clothes for some small girl who is fond of paper dolls.

Collars, Ties, Bows, Etc.—Now that fancy stocks, ties, collars and bows of all sorts for the neck are so much worn, and are made in such an endless variety of ways, one can make the best of use of the odds and ends of ribbon, lace and bits of embroidery, which accumulate in every home. Any fashion magazine or some of the many newspapers will give hints as to how to make these up in different ways. Study the fashion models and you will soon have ideas for half a dozen. Small bows, very small in fact, are used with linen collars and give a very natty finish to an afternoon dress. A bit of silk, finished at the ends with an edge of plaid silk or a trimming of lace, gathered closely through the middle and secured by a very small twist of the trimming material, makes a tie, such as is being shown in the best shops. Use ingenuity and originality, and follow the fashion plates for shapes, and you cannot go far amiss.

Sachet Bags are also in perpetual favor, and may be made from bits of silk, ribbon, fine white goods, or any pretty fancy goods which is light in texture. The sachet powder should be of good quality always, and the bags may be used to wear in the corsage, tucked into a handkerchief or glove boxes, or among the contents of drawers where the personal wearing apparel is kept. The delicate almost imperceptible perfume thus imparted is much to be preferred to the stronger perfumes which are often used.

Pretty Bags.—Pretty little bags for buttons, hooks and eyes, or larger ones for carrying fancy work, or the handkerchief and purse, may be made from the never-failing "piece-bag," when the only expense will be for the ribbon used for draw-strings.

Raffia Presents.—Many small and useful articles may be made with raffia, by one who has learned how to braid or weave it. A small tin or earthen jar suitable in size for holding matches, can have a cover woven of the raffia or of fine rattan, and the expense will be next to nothing, so small amount of material need be used. A bottle of pretty shape, such as some olive bottles with wide mouth may be covered with raffia and suspended against a wall or window casing for holding flowers.

Out of Turkish Toweling.—A yard of Turkish toweling will make quite an array of the nicest sort of wash clothes, and these may be made more attractive in appearance by crochetting a border from knitting cotton around each one.

Games for Children

SHOUTING PROVERBS.

A good sitting-down game is the one known as "Shouting Proverbs." All the players sit in a circle, except one who is chosen to go out of the room. The players then choose some well-known proverb, such as "It is never too late to mend." Each player then takes a word of the proverb, which, after calling in the absent one, he shouts simultaneously with the other players. The player called in may go as close as he likes to any of the shouters. The player from whom he obtains the word which gives him the clue to the proverb goes out of the room and the game starts again with a fresh proverb. Should the words in the proverb be too few to go round the remaining players take the words over again, so that two or three players may be shouting the same word.

Another way of playing this game is to sing the words to any well-known tune, and this may be preferred by some as giving a less boisterous effect.

BUFF WITH THE WAND.

Another capital sitting-down game is played in the following way. All players but the leader and one who is blindfolded sit round the room. The leader then takes the blindfolded one (who has a walking stick in his hand) to anyone in the circle. This player must grasp the stick. The blindfolded one then proceeds to make three sounds, as a grunt, a squeak, and a cough, one at a time, which must be imitated by the stick-holder. If the blindfolded one can guess the name of his imitator he changes places with him, and the game starts again. If he cannot guess he is taken round to another player and tries again until successful.

MUSICAL SURPRISE.

For a game full of boisterous fun, provoking shrieks of laughter, Musical Surprise is an excellent one. In this the leader alone knows the game. Arranging all the players in a line behind him, and telling them to do exactly as he does, the leader, to the accompaniment of a lively tune on the piano, starts off, leading the players through funny twists and turns, round a chair, out of one door and in at another, fast and very slow, and so on. Suddenly, quickening up to a smart run, the leader takes the line straight up to the middle of the room, clear of any furniture, and, without warning, sits down. The result is the surprise—the players finding themselves in a medley upon the floor to the concluding crash of the music.

FORTUNE TELLING.

For older children or grown-ups much fun and laughing is provided by the game of "Fortune Telling." For this the leader takes three hats, and hands each player three slips of paper. Upon the first paper each player writes his or her name. The leader then collects all the papers in one hat. Upon the second paper the players are told to write a short description of some person whom they consider handsome or the opposite, giving no name. These papers are then collected by the leader in another hat. The players now, upon the last paper, proceed to write a short character, and what will become of him, of any person they know (flattering or otherwise), without mentioning names. These last papers the leader collects in the third hat, and now proceeds to tell the fortunes. Taking a paper from the hat No. I he reads out the name upon it. Next, taking a paper haphazard from hat No. 2 he reads out the personal appearance of that player. After which, taking a paper from hat No. 3, he reads out the character and destination. The jumbled papers will give results of an extremely humorous nature. Thus:

1. Miss Thompson (one of the company).

2. Is old and half-cracked, with a ginger beard and a squint.

3. Is a most gracious and winning little angel, and will certainly come to matrimony. Or, as another may read:

3. Is an outrageous cadger who will end on the gallows.

Mistletoe Mysteries

Everybody knows how intimately associated with the festive season of Christmas is the mistletoe, but everybody does not know the real reason of the good old Christmas custom of kissing beneath it, nor is everybody acquainted with the many superstitions that have grown around the sacred evergreen.

According to the legend, Balder, the Scandinavian god of eloquence and poetry, secured immunity from the violence of his enemies by extorting from everything in earth, fire and water, a promise not to do him any hurt.

It was from mistletoe alone that he forgot to obtain this assurance, and the fact becoming known to Loake, the enemy of Balder, he induced a hireling to shoot Balder dead with an arrow formed of the unpledged mistletoe.

Now, the god of eloquence and poetry was such a great favorite with all the other gods and goddesses that they prayed and prayed until out of love they had for him he was restored to life.

With Balder alive again, we have no further concern; the mistletoe after his restoration being given to the goddess of love to safely guard and keep. The evergreen thus became an emblem of love instead of death, in token of which all and sundry passing beneath the mistletoe bough, which the goddess held in her hand, saluted her with a tender kiss. Such was the origin of the mistletoe salute.

But the mistletoe has its sad, as well as its sweet, romances, chief amongst which is that of the charming bride, Ginevra, of the gallant Lord Lovel, immortalised in Haynes Bayley's affecting ballad of "The Mistletoe Bough."

But some probably do not know that the fatal chest, in which, as all will remember, the beautiful girl, in a spirit of mischief, hid herself, as told in the ballad, is still in existence and in a good state of preservation. This is, however, the case, and its present possessor is Lieutenant-Coonel Greatwood, of Tiverton Castle. It has a beautifully carved front, which is divided into panels on which three landscapes are depicted with rare artistic skill.

In the Midland counties of England mistletoe superstitions have not yet died out. In some parts a sprig of the evergreen that has been used in the decoration of the church is highly prized, inasmuch as it is supposed to bring good luck throughout the ensuing year to the fortunate possessor.

In rural Gloucestershire a very curious belief prevails. According to it, any unmarried woman who places beneath her pillow a spring of mistletoe which she has taken from the inside of the parish church will be sure to dream of her future husband.

One aged dame, in the Forest of Dean, is fond of telling the story of how she dreamt that a certain man was to take her for better or worse, how she met him a few days later, and told him of the dream, and how she married him before the festive season came round again! The rest of the story she does not relate.

Farmers have their own peculiar superstitions regarding the mistletoe. "No mistletoe, no luck," is an axiom with some of them; and to many Christmas would not be Christmas without a profuse display of the evergreen about the farmhouse. But, as most people are aware, it is considered fatal to allow Christmas decoration of any sort to remain in its place after the Twelfth Night.

In country districts the destruction of the decorations is dignified into a solemn ceremony. But mistletoe must be removed as soon as Christmas is over. In many cases as soon as the festive season is at an end the mistletoe used for the decoration of the dwelling will be all carefully collected and solemnly burnt on the parlor fire.

Some farmers believe that mistletoe can bring good luck to the dairy. But to ensure this a branch of it must be given to the first cow on the farm that gives birth to a calf after the birth of the New Year. When there is an abundance of mistletoe at Christmas it is supposed, in agricultural districts, to foreshadow a prosperous twelve months.

CHRISTMAS CANDIES.

Nut Candy.—Two cups of white sugar, one-half cup of butter, one-half cup of water, one cup of nuts—any kind. Boil until it threads. Put in nuts and pour on buttered plate; mark in squares.

Chocolate Fudge.—Two cups of sugar, light brown, one-half cup of butter, one-half cup water, or milk; one-half cup grated chocolate or cocoa; boil until it will make a soft ball in cold water, then take from the stove and stir until cool. Maple fudge is very nice, using maple syrup instead of sugar, without the chocolate.

Peanut Bars.—Boil two cups of sugar and one-half cup of water until it cracks when dropped in cold water, pour the syrup over a cup of peanuts on greased plate.

Cream Candy.—Two cups of white sugar granulated, one-half cup of water, boil without stirring until it forms a soft ball in water, then remove and let stand until cool enough to put your finger in; then stir until white and creamy and knead on a plate. Color it by using different colors of fruit coloring, putting a nut or raisin on top of each ball, mixing cocoanut with some and stuffing some with dates.

This makes a fine lot of candies and it doesn't cost much, and packed in fancy boxes, it is a present that will please any one. It isn't hard at all to make. Try once and see what fun it is.

GOLF BALL IN COW'S EAR.

The story of a remarkable incident in a golf match on the links at Balmoral Castle went the rounds of London society. A distinguished members of King George's staff at a critical moment apparently failed to loft his ball as much as he may have intended in making an approach stroke. The ball was seen to hit a cow. The animal moved off unconcernedly. The gentleman went to the spot vacated by the cow but could not find the ball. He turned to the animal, which at that moment shook her head. The movement caused the ball to roll out of her ear.

CHRISTMAS DISHES

Sugar Icing.—Put the white of some eggs into a basin with a tablespoonful of orange flower water. Mix in icing sugar to a firm paste. Spread this over a cake, using a knife dipped in boiling water to smooth the sugar. Never ice a cake until just before it is needed.

Cream Dates.—Are inexpensive, and may appear at dessert. Take some fine dates, slit the fruit down one side and remove the stone with a penknife, removing also any dry skin from inside. Fill the cavity with almond paste, leaving it to show a little, which gives the appearance of the date having burst open.

Mincemeat.—Take half a pound each of chopped suet, stoned raisins, currants, chopped apple, and three-quarters of a pound of mixed peel, finely chopped. Also three-quarters of a pound of sugar, and spice to taste. Mix the ingredients well together, and add two wine-glasses of brandy. If the mincemeat is kept for a long time, a little more brandy should be added.

Russian Toffee.—For this take a small tin of Swiss milk, turn its contents into a saucepan with two pounds of coarse brown sugar and a teaspoonful of essence of vanilla, adding a piece of butter weighing one ounce and a half. Cook this carefully for quarter of an hour, stirring slowly, and pour on to a buttered tin. Cut into squares, and when cold it should be of the consistency of caramels.

Devilled Turkey.—Take two turkey legs, one tablespoonful of made mustard, one tablespoonful of ketchup, half a pint of good stock or gravy, seasonings. Score the legs deeply, and then rub in well the made mustard and ketchup, and leave for an hour. Warm the stock, thicken, flavor, and color it. Warm the legs in it gently without letting the gravy boil. Serve very hot garnished with chopped hard-boiled egg and chopped parsley.

Rich Christmas Pudding.—Half a pound of beef suet, a quarter of a pound of flour, a quarter of a pound of breadcrumbs, half a pound each of stoned raisins and currants, and two pieces of chopped peel. Mix these ingredients with three well-beaten eggs into which have been stirred two wine-glassfuls of brandy. Mix thoroughly and fill basins quite full. Cover with buttered paper and tie over with a cloth. Boil fast for ten hours.

Cocoanut Ice Bars—Grate the white part of the cocoanut till you have half a pound. Spread this on a dish and let it stand for two or three days to get dry. Take about a quarter of the white of an egg and beat it in three-quarters of a pint of water before pouring it over two pounds of loaf sugar in a deep pan. When this has stood a little time, place the pan on a clear fire and let it boil for a few minutes, then set on one side till the scum has gone down. Clear this off and boil the sugar till it is very thick and white. Strew in the nut and stir continually till it is finished. Take care that the mixture does not burn. Pour half on to a tin lined with oiled paper, color the rest a pale pink, and pour over in an even layer When cool and set remove the cake of cocoanut, pull off the paper, and divide into slabs with a sharp knife.

TO CLEAN A TURKEY.

Process of Preparing Bird for the Oven.

The bird should first be held over a flame (from gas, alcohol or burning paper), constantly changing position until all parts have been exposed to the flame, that hairs and down may be removed; this is known as singeing. Cut off the head and draw out pin-feathers, using a small pointed knife. Make two cuts three-fourths of an inch long on under part of each leg, introduce a steel skewer and remove tendons, drawing out one at a time. Cut through the skin around the leg one and one-half inches below the leg joint, place leg at this cut over edge of board, press downward to snap the bone, then pull off the foot. Make an incision through the skin below the breast bone just large enough to admit the hand. With the hand remove entrails, gizzard, liver and heart. Care must be taken that the gall-bag is removed with the liver and is not broken, for the least bit of the bile which it contains would impart a very bitter flavor to any part with which it came in contact. Next remove lungs and kidneys. By introducing first two fingers under skin close to neck the windpipe may be easily found and withdrawn, also the crop, which adheres to skin close to breast. Draw down neck skin and cut off neck close to body, leaving the skin long enough to fasten under the back with a skewer after the stuffing has been put in. Remove oil bag, thoroughly wash bird, wipe inside and outside as dry as possible.

The Pantomime is the best of the many good Christmas Entertainments given by the Trivitt Memorial S. S.—On Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Harton gave a banquet to the Main-street choir on Thursday evening last in the church, when a very pleasant time was spent.

The James Street League gave a delightful pumpkin pie social on Tuesday night, when a large number were present and had a good time. All admit that the pie was "just like mother used to make."

Remember that the municipal nomination meetings are this Friday noon from 12 to 1 o'clock. And be wise to your own interests and the interests of the town and do not nominate someone "just for fun."

The new band appeared on the street Friday evening, and those who heard them were very pleased with the class of music played and the ability shown by the members of the new organization. We believe the citizens of Exeter will have a band to be proud of, and we trust that they will be treated generously.

HICKS' FORECASTS FOR DEC.—A regular storm period covers the last week of the year, being central on the 27th. Storms will bring rain and probable lightning and thunder on and touching the 28th, but snow and sleet will follow. High barometer, northwest gales and cold, fair weather will prevail in most parts of the country as we pass into 1912.

LOCAL DOINGS.

Christmas Monday.

School closes on Friday afternoon for the Christmas holidays.

The several councils met for the last time this year on the 15th.

Miss Winnie Howard, teacher, was off duty part of the week owing to illness.

To-day will be the shortest day of the year, and from now on the days will lengthen.

We are pleased to see Mr. Wellington Nell around again, after being injured by a fall recently.

A woman may not be able to reform the man she marries but she is reasonably sure to inform him.

Misses Elsie and Edna McCallum have presented Main St. Church with four beautiful oak collection plates.

The reserved seats are nearly all taken. Act at once if you wish to get a sitting on Thursday evening at the Pantomime.

Aug. 3rd—In making up our file copies of the Advocate we find we are short the issue of Aug. 3. We shall be pleased if any of our subscribers will hand us a copy of that date.

The many friends here of Rev. R. J. M. Perkins, of Ingersoll, a former rector of the Trivitt Memorial church, will learn with much regret that he is afflicted with a severe attack of diphtheria.

Messrs Wes. Snell and Thorn Baker drove to Grey Township last week and spent a couple of days shooting rabbits. They succeeded in getting thirty-five in spite of the fact that their best dog was a collie.

Further word has been received from Mr. A. D. Davis of High River, stating that his condition has not very much improved, the right side and left leg being still paralyzed and he is still deprived of his speech.

The following are the newly elected officers of the James Street League — Pres., W. S. Cole; Vice, Wm. Welsh 2nd Vice, Miss M. Taylor; 3rd Vice., Miss Irene Quackenbush; 4th Vice, Miss L. Hobbs, Sec., H. Jones Treas., F. Johns; Pianist Miss E. Kernick.

Two eclipses of the sun and two of the moon and a couple of Friday's falling on the 13th day of the month are among some of the varied events which may be expected next year, according to the 1912 almanacs just being issued.

See that The Weekly Sun, the one paper that fights the farmer's battles, is among those you subscribe for. It gives its readers the unvarnished facts not the biased opinions of political leaders expressed for party purposes. It can help you in your business.

Mr A. S. Deavitt on Tuesday night of last week, while descending the back stairs from the rooms over the Bissett building, fell on the landing with the result that his head and face were badly bruised and several ribs fractured. The passage was dark and Mr. Deavitt came to the stair landing before he expected to, with the result as above. He will be laid up some time.

W. S. Dingman, editor of the Stratford Herald, celebrated last week the twenty-fifth anniversary of his taking over the business of The Herald. In connection with the anniversary he published a special edition of the paper containing many articles of interest in connection with his 25 years of editorship. We wish him many more anniversary occasions.

The Canadian Jubilee Singers drew a large crowd to James Street church on Wednesday evening last, and on the whole it was a well satisfied crowd. Many numbers on the program are deserving of the highest praise, while a little was hardly up to expectation; but such a thing however, is to be expected. It is scarcely possible that everybody should be pleased with everything. The program was a very varied one, and consisted of choruses, solos, duets readings and smart sayings.

Rev. H. Locke of Toronto, a former pastor, preached morning and evening of Sunday last in the Main Street Methodist church, his sermons being directed particularly to the young people. Very large crowds attended and the services were very bright and interesting. A mass meeting was also held in the afternoon. An interesting feature was the singing of the Rannie Ladies Quartette of Zurich, which was much appreciated. Rev. Locke's sermons were forceful and instructive and should have good results.

"Mr. Levett and Miss Ethel left for Toronto on Wednesday. Mrs. Levett and Miss Annie will join them there next week. Mr. and Mrs. Levett and family have been residents of Parkhill for over twenty years and their removal is regretted by a large circle of personal friends. Miss Annie was organist in the Methodist Church for a number of years, and was well-known as a successful teacher of music both here and in Alma Craig".—The foregoing from the Parkhill Gazette has reference to former Exeter people—the immediate family of Mr. W. H. Levett of town.

SAD DEATH—A very sad death occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sutton on Thursday morning last shortly after midnight when their little three year old child, Albert Edward Down passed away. The parents and child had been sojourning at Rodney and had only returned home a couple days previous to the child's death. He was a particular bright little boy and will be much missed in the household. The funeral took place to the Exeter Cemetery the same morning Mr. and Mrs. Sutton have the sympathy of their friends.

INJURED—On Thursday afternoon last while Reta, a little daughter of Mr. Harry Elworthy, and Mr. William Tapp were watching some men cut a pile of rails at the home of Mr. Elworthy, the rails, which were in a hay stack shape, fell over, striking them and injuring them to such an extent that they were rendered unconscious They were immediately taken to the house and medical aid was summoned. Both were very ill for some days, and the little girl was unconscious for 24 hours, but they are now improving nicely.

Mrs. Birk went to London Wednesday.

Mr. L. R. Carling was in London this week.

Rev. Powell preached in Granton on Sunday.

The evening meeting opened at eight o'clock with the clerk, T. B. Carling, in the chair, and the members of the 1911 council and others on the platform. The hall was crowded to the doors.

Reeve John W. Taylor was first called upon, and he gave a complete and detailed account of the doings of the council, the old matters they had to settle up and the new work commenced and completed. The reeve proceeded at once to explain the cause of the high tax rate—26 mills. The cause was the legacy of debt left by former councils. At the close of 1910 the report showed a surplus of $8300, but there was due to the School Board $4600, which the Board demanded, leaving a deficit of $1200. There should also have been $1500 left of the waterworks money, but it was all spent! These two items made it necessary to levy five mills on the dollar. Add to this the uncontrollable tax for debentures, school and the county—16 mills—and you have 21 mills. Then you have other expenses which are practically uncontrollable, such as electric light $1300, salaries $1200, Jackson Company $300, Firemen nearly $300, election expenses and insurance $80; or about $3200, or six mills more. This disposes of your 26 mills and leaves a deficit. So you see your council of 1911 has not been extravagant—the 26 mills had been necessary before we could say a word as to expenditure.

In January we found some knotty questions. Through a mistake certain farm lands were taxed wrongfully for several years for certain debentures. We were threatened with legal action, but we got a meeting with the gentlemen interested and had it cleared out of the way.

The indebtedness to the School Board arose from failure of past councils to duplicate a legislative grant the Board had been receiving until in 1911 it amounted to $1600. The Board desired a settlement; a joint meeting was called and it was settled amicably. We had several other old matters to straighten up, which altogether helped to make the expenses heavy this year.

Some of the work of the present council consisted of—The laying of the creamery drain owing to its not being built right some years ago, costing $275 —The putting in of a fish run at the dam, which was demanded by the fishery inspector, at a cost of $175. This should have been done at the time of building the dam. Then we laid the water main to the G. T. R. station at a cost of $1600, the G. T. R. to pay a yearly rate of $350 for three years, means we get a revenue of 22 per cent on the investment. Mr. Taylor then explained that many people had said small and mean things about the laying of two small mains south from the G.T.R. branch, because it happened to come near the reeve's home. But as the total cost was $120, and the pipes used were too small for any other purpose, and the revenue from the investment would be 12 per cent. he believed the council had made no mistake. The explanation of this matter seemed to be very satisfactory to those present. Mr. Taylor thought all parts of the town should be protected and the council was submitting a by-law for $5000 to extend the water mains. As $22000 had been spent for the protection of Main Street mainly, surely we can spend $5000 for the protection of the other parts. Mr. Taylor also explained that the Hydro-electric vote was only a plebiscite.

W. J. Heaman, when called upon said that last year he had appealed for the votes of the people for reeve but had been defeated. He thought he had but a three month's term before. He said he was again appealing for votes and again based his claim on his four years of service in the council. He claimed there should have been some public meetings to discuss the proposed by-laws. He favored both by-laws believing that the Hydro was a good thing, and that all should have fire protection;

W. H. Levett advocated broken stone to improve roads. They had seen the work of roadmaking, at Parkhill and he believed in doing permanent work. He was in favor of the waterworks by-law and he defended the laying of the Marlboro and Carling water mains. The reason they had not had a public meeting was that Mr. Beck could not be secured. The incoming council must look after the big drain on Main Street. Should it cave in the winter time the cost would be much greater. He spoke of the council's efforts to secure a beet factory, the organization of the band, and in every way the council had done their best. Mr. Taylor had made an excellent reeve. The speaker said he would be on the ballot either for reeve or councillor.

T. H. McCallum said that the omission of the fish run at the dam had been an oversight of the engineer. He gave a resume of the waterworks and asked the reeve why the small pipe had not been laid in the North End, and thus save the $80 firemen's salaries, to which the reeve replied that the pipe would not suffice for the Lake Road. It being estimated that the $5000 would complete the waterworks system we should lose no time in carrying the by-law, and then we would have one of the best little systems in Ontario. Not a candidate.

John H. Scott wondered why he was there. It was an easy matter to criticize but might not be so easy to do better. He asked the reeve why the county rate was higher, to which the reeve replied that it was due to the county bridges being built. He thought it might have been better to have laid the G.T.R. main down Victoria Street. He had not thought that he was capable of handling municipal affairs, but he might be a candidate.

Wm. Rivers explained that the council was willing to supply water to the Canning Factory but could not lay the main for that purpose only. He was not in favor of the waterworks by-law but thought it should be done some other way. The council had done the best they could.

W. W. Walper said he was not certain whether he would be a candidate

L. Day advocated the getting of a crusher and improving the roads with broken stone. He was again in the field.

R. Delbridge said he was not at home on the platform but took an interest in the town. He believed that the waterworks by-law should have been for $27000 instead of $22000. We should vote for the new by-law, or get more hose, or exempt those who were not protected. We should vote for fair play and no favors. If his name appeared on the ballot and he was elected he had lots of time and would give his best attention.

Dr. Roulston felt it an honor to be nominated, but he felt no pleasure in being on the platform. He had not yet decided whether he would stand, but if so and elected he would make a study of municipal politics.

S. M. Sanders spoke for sometime along the line of improving the town in the line of manufacturing industries. The greatest asset of a town is the young man. We want manufactories to keep the young people here. He was strongly in favor of both by-laws.

Mr. Taylor when called on for his reply explained Mr. Beck's not being here to address a meeting. He said if length of service meant anything for Mr. Heaman it surely meant something for him, as he had served on the council for 11 or 12 years. He answered several questions and solicited the votes and influence of the electors.

The time being now after 11 o'clock and the people anxious to get home the discussion of school matters by the aspiring and present trustees did not take place, and the meeting adjourned to election day.

At the expiration of the time for qualifying and resigning on Saturday evening it was found that the slate for election on Monday next was as follows,—

For Reeve—John W. Taylor
W. J. Heaman

For Councillors—W. H. Levett
W. Rivers
L. Day

Death of Mrs. James Tom.—On Xmas night another pioneer, Mary Ann Kernick, relict of the late Mr. James Tom was removed by death. After more than three score and ten years of active, busy life, she was stricken with paralysis which rendered her dependant on the care of others. She gained strength for a time, but about a year ago a second stroke left her so weak that she gradually failed until death relieved of her sufferings and gave her rest. Mrs. Tom was interested in everything pertaining to her home, and especially needle-work and knitting. Her success at the Exeter Fair proved how efficient she was with her needles in which she delighted. She was born in Cornwall, England, in 1834 and came with her parents to Canada at the age of twelve, residing in the county of Durham until 1858, when she and her husband settled on Con. 5, Lot 15 in the Township of Usborne, where they resided for 30 years. They became residents of Exeter in 1888 where they enjoyed the social intercourse with their many friends. She was for many years a member of James Street church, and interested in all the services. When she was unable to attend at church, she enjoyed the visits of the faithful pastors who visited her so regularly during her four years illness. She is survived by three sons, J. Elgin, Inspector of Public Schools, Gregory H. Kamloops, B. C., and Frank W., Toledo Ohio., and three daughters, Mrs. (Dr.) Sweet, Nancy and Mary, all residing in Exeter.

Mrs. Tom's funeral was arranged for 27th on account of the serious illness of Dr. Percy Tom of Winnipeg. Inspector Tom expected to have to go to his son at once, but received a telegram Wednesday that he is doing well, and that it is not imperative to go to Winnipeg just now.

GRAND BEND.

Mrs. M. Gill left for Exeter Tuesday to visit sometime.—Mr. Campbell of Sylvan was in our burg Wednesday. —Messrs. Snell of Exeter and White of Rodgerville were here Wednesday.—The municipal pot is warming up.—Mr. and Mrs. R. Wilson and family of Arkona were Christmas visitors.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Oliver and son Ware are visiting in St. Marys.—Mr. and Mrs. W. Mollard of Regina are visiting at James Mollard —Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Oliver are visiting at Greenway.—Miss Webb spent Xmas at her home in Lucan.—Emery and Lawrence Carriere of Toronto and Seaforth spent the holidays with their parents.—The home of Mr. Geo. Love was all astor last Wednesday it being the marriage of his oldest daughter Flossie to Mr. James Hotson of Greenway in the presence of about sixty guests. The bride was attired in a dress of white and all-over lace, the nuptial knot being tied by Rev. Mr Thompson, after which all sat down to a wedding dinner. The bridal couple left on the afternoon train for Toronto to spend their honeymoon. —The Methodist entertainment Tuesday was well attended, proceeds amounting to $32.65.—The Presbyterian entertainment was well attended on Friday night. An excellent program was given. Proceeds $73.—The school closed on Friday. It is reported that the Trustees have hired Miss Willert to continue another year.—P. Baker has had his residence re-sided, which will add much to the comfort.—Mr. Abner Mollard, who had his ribs fractured on the 17th by having a chair pulled from under him letting him on the floor, is improving.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER XI.—(Cont'd)

"Not the slightest," said Brett, smiling, "except perhaps this, that instead of calling on Miss Talbot this evening you may be locked up on the charge of housebreaking."

"Um," said the earl, thoughtfully, "I had not thought of that. It will be more fun to take her by surprise. So here goes to get my traps packed."

After Lord Fairholme's departure Brett took matters easily. He did not put in an appearance at the Prefecture until late in the afternoon, and, as he surmised, the commissary whom he encountered the previous night had even then only just arrived at his office. Without any difficulty, the barrister was introduced to the official, who evidently awaited an explanation of the visit with great curiosity.

"I think," Brett began, "that your agents, monsieur, were watching me throughout the whole of yesterday."

"That is so," nodded the other, wondering what pitfall lay behind this leading question.

"Do I take it that after my departure from No. 11, Rue Barbette about midday they maintained no further guard over that house?"

"Assuredly. It was monsieur's personal movements which called for observation."

"Then you do not know that an individual whose identity may be much more important than mine is an inmate of the apartment at this moment—probably a captive against his will, possibly a corpse?"

The Frenchman's huge moustache bristled with alarm and annoyance.

"It is a strange thing, monsieur," he cried, "that an English gentleman should come to Paris and know more about the movements and haunts of criminals than the French police."

It was no part of Brett's design to rub the official the wrong way, so he said gently—

"Your remark is quite justifiable, and under ordinary circumstances any such pretence on my part would be ridiculous. But you must remember, monsieur, that I came here from London possessed of special information which was not known even to the police authorities in that city. I am working solely in the private interest of persons high in English Society, and it would not serve the purpose of any of the Governments concerned were too much stress publicly laid on their connection with this mystery. If I can succeed in elucidating the problem it will be a comparatively easy matter for the police to bring the real criminals to justice. As a step towards that end I have come to you now to place you in possession of a clue which may reveal itself in the Rue Barbette. All I ask is, in the first instance, that the affair may be conducted with the utmost secrecy, and secondly, that you will permit me to be present when you examine the person whom I expect to find there. I may be able to help you very materially in your questions, provided the man is alive and well."

The commissary was soothed. The barrister's judicial reference to the importance and confidential nature of the inquiry raised in his mind a dazzling vision of personal distinction and preferment.

"The matter shall be conducted with the utmost discretion," he cried. "What force does monsieur consider to be requisite in order to examine this house thoroughly, and prevent the attempted escape of others whom we may find there in addition to the man described?"

Brett with difficulty repressed a smile. "I do not think that a large force of police will be necessary. If you yourself, monsieur, and another officer will accompany me in a cab, I am sure we will be able to deal with all possible opposition. There is no exit from the flat save through the main door, and the apartment is situated on the second story. Escape by way of the windows is practically impossible if we act with promptitude."

The commissary could not reach the Rue Barbette too rapidly. He bundled a subordinate into a fiacre, and the three were driven off at breakneck speed.

They stopped the vehicle at the corner of the street and walked quietly to the house, attracting no attention, as neither of the Frenchmen was in uniform.

Inquiry from the concierge elicited the information that none of the occupants of the flat tenanted by the Turkish gentlemen had put in an appearance since the previous afternoon. So the trio mounted the staircase, and without any preliminary summons the junior official applied his shoulder to the door.

The lock yielded quite readily. Indeed, the damage done by Lord Fairholme was but temporarily repaired, and no special precaution had been taken to fasten the place. All was quiet within. The first room they searched was empty. So was the second; but in a bedroom the door of which was locked and required forcible treatment, an extraordinary sight met their eyes.

Stretched on the bed, gagged and securely tied, was the figure of the diminutive Frenchman, who, little more than twenty-four hours earlier had so coolly suggested that Brett should be murdered.

Stout leather thongs were fastened to his wrists and ankles and then tied to the four uprights of the bed. His arms and legs were consequently stretched apart, and the only sign of vitality about the man was the terrible expression of fear and hate in his eyes as he looked at them.

The gag stuffed in his mouth prevented him from uttering the slightest coherent sound, whilst the agony of his frame owing to the position in which he lay, joined to the exhaustion induced by terror and want of food rendered him a pitiable object.

They removed the gag and cut the bonds. The poor wretch remained on his back unable to move, though he flinched somewhat when the police, as gently as possible, loosened the leather straps from his wrists and ankles, for his useless struggles had caused the thongs to cut deeply into his skin.

Brett was the first to realize the unfortunate wretch's chief requirement. He procured some water, raised the man's head, and allowed him to take a deep and invigorating draught.

"Why, it is 'The Worm!'" said the junior policeman. "I know him well. He is a pickpocket, an expert rascal in his line, but hardly up to the standard of great events."

At the sound of his nickname a flicker of intelligence came into the little thief's eyes, but he was still dazed, and did not recognize his rescuers.

"I don't care what you do with me," he murmured at last, in weak and cracked voice. "Kill me quietly if you want to, but don't tie me up again; I have done nothing to deserve it. I really haven't. I have been acting quite square in this business." And then he broke down and whimpered further protestations of innocence.

"He is weak from want of food, and dazed with terror," said Brett quietly. "I suggest that one of you should get him some meat and wine, whilst the others remain here and endeavor to reassure him. Meanwhile we might examine the place."

The commissary thought Brett's suggestion a good one. His assistant summoned the concierge and attended to the wants of "The Worm," whilst Brett and the commissary conducted a careful scrutiny of the premises.

They found little, however, beyond a considerable accumulation of dirt; for the ways of Turks are primitive and their habits unpleasant in European households. It was evident that before taking their departure the occupants of the flat had carefully removed or destroyed all documents or other articles which might throw light on their proceedings.

The leather thongs which bound the prisoner evoked some comment from the barrister.

"These are somewhat unusual articles," he said to the commissary. "You will notice that they are cut from raw cowhide and well stretched. In other words, they are familiar 'bow-strings' of Constantinople, and warranted not to yield if twisted round the neck. I think they will answer for other purposes than tying people to beds."

"We must find these Turks," said the commissary. "They are desperate characters."

"Find them by all means," said Brett earnestly, "but on no account arrest them."

"And why, monsieur?" cried the other, with elevated eyebrows.

"Because if you do you will paralyze our future actions. When all is said and done, the only charge you can bring against them is a trivial one. It is evident they merely tied up this man, either with the object of frightening him into a confession, or leave their hands free whilst they dealt with his employers. Perhaps they had both objects in view. In either event the appearance of the police on the scene would close their mouths more tightly than an oyster. As it is, I expect they will return, and, if possible, you must compel the concierge to conceal the fact that you have visited the house. Let him put all the blame on me. They know that I am mixed up in the inquiry, and fear me far less than the recognized authorities.

"Oblige me in this respect and you will not regret it."

The policeman was wise enough to fall in with the suggestion.

An hour later "The Worm" was taken in a cab to the Prefecture, as his condition was yet so hopeless that little real benefit could ensue from a searching cross-examination.

So Brett parted company with the officials, having made an appointment with the commissary for the next day at noon, when they assumed that the prisoner would be considerably recovered from his weakness and fright.

The barrister subsequently made a round of the minor cafes in the neighborhood of the Cirque d'Hiver. After much casual questioning, he elicited the information that a well-known circus, of which Mdlle. Beaucaire was one time a shining light, was performing at that moment in Marseilles. He ascertained that during the winter season this class of entertainment perambulated the South of France.

The actor from whom he gleaned these important facts said that he had a trustworthy friend in Marseilles who would easily be able to ascertain whether or not La Belle Chasseuse intended to rejoin her former profession. Brett secured his hearty co-operation by a liberal donation for expenses.

The barrister resolved to pay another visit to the Cabaret Noir late that evening, but he waited in the hotel until nearly ten o'clock in anxious expectation of a telegram from Fairholme.

At last the message arrived. Its contents were laconic.

"Right first time," it ran. "Invalid lady's name 'Jack.' Somewhat exhausted, after long confinement. Edith delighted. Jack visits Under-Secretary to-night. We all propose joining you in Paris tomorrow. Do you approve?"

Brett promptly wired, "Yes," and then set out for Montmartre, dressing himself in the height of fashion so far as his wardrobe would permit, and donning a fierce moustache and wig, which completely altered his appearance. He looked like a successful impressario or popular Italian tenor.

CHAPTER XII.

The fair-ground of Montmartre was in full swing when Brett arrived there. The Cabaret Noir was in charge of his former acquaintance, the weary-eyed waiter, and other assistants.

The barrister wondered whether Mdlle. Beaucaire had taken her father completely into her confidence. To make certain he questioned the waiter.

"Is Monsieur Beaucaire in?"

"But yes, monsieur. You will find him in the billiard-room."

This time Brett was not conducted through the private passage that led through the rear of the bar. The man politely indicated another entrance, and brought him to the proprietor with the introductory remark—

"A gentleman who wishes to see you."

The room was tenanted by a nondescript crowd, whose attention was promptly attracted by the appearance of a stranger, and a well-dressed one at that.

The games in progress at the two tables momentarily suspended, whilst Gros Jean, a corpulent man above the middle height, whose legs seemed to be too frail to support his rotund body, advanced, peering curiously beneath his bushy eyebrows to get a glimpse of the newcomer, for the shaded light did not fall on Brett's features, and Mr. Beaucaire wondered who the stranger could be. The barrister almost started when he recognized his fellow-passenger, the man who travelled to Paris with Gaultier and himself. Gros Jean bowed politely enough, and murmured something about being at Brett's service.

"Oh, it is nothing of great importance," said Brett airily, as he was not anxious to attract too much observation from the unwashed humanity who took such interest in him. "I merely wish to know when it will be convenient for me to have some conversation with mademoiselle, your charming daughter?"

"May I inquire the reason, monsieur?" said the other.

"Certainly. I have heard of her skill as an artist, and it is possible I may be able to arrange a London engagement for her."

"Ah," said the landlord deprecatingly, "what a pity! Had monsieur called here yesterday he could have seen mademoiselle. She has now left Paris for some weeks."

"Perhaps," said Brett, "I may have the pleasure of meeting her elsewhere. I myself depart to-morrow on a tour in the South of France. It is possible that mademoiselle may be employed in some of the southern cities. If so I will certainly make it my business to call on her."

(To be continued.)

Fond Mother—"Oh, professor, what do you think of little Arthur as a violinist?" Professor—"I like the way he puts the fiddle back into the case."

On the Farm

WINTER PIGS.

There is a decided difference in caring for the pigs of autumn farrowing and those of the spring litters. On the average farm the latter have the advantage over the former of coming in previous to the advent of the springing grasses, and have a more generous supply of milk and other laxative foodstuffs to keep them growing and in perfect order, writes Mr. G. W. Brown.

It has been my practice for a number of years to raise two litters of pigs a year. To do this successfully I find that one must not allow over-stocking, but rather should sell off a portion of the pigs soon after weaning time, keeping only so many as he knows he can accommodate with good quarters and generous feeding. One must not slight pigs during cold weather, either in housing or feeding.

Besides dry nesting-quarters, the pigs should have a good-sized lot in which they may get plenty of exercise. Growing pigs should not be crowded into close, filthy quarters, exposed to vermin and disease.

Our winter pigs are very profitably fed upon whole corn in the fodder, as they delight in getting their feed from this material. I find that they eat very much of the fodder; which forms a fine diet. The cobs and coarse stalks are raked up and burned frequently, affording the pigs a generous supply of charcoal.

I aim to keep a cow, for every litter of milk-stuffs I can grow a bunch of winter pigs, and with the milk and a supply of pigs equal to the spring litters.

KEEP SEED POTATOES COOL.

Potatoes intended for seed should be kept hard and plump during the winter, and this can be done only by keeping them so cool that they will not sprout. When potatoes sprout they take part of the starch that is stored up in them and manufacture it into living cells. This energy is all wasted, for the sprouts have to be pulled off.

Some farmers make it a point to sprout their potatoes once or twice during the winter, this being done to prevent their growing. But the amount of energy thus lost is considerable and the loss increases as the winter draws to a close.

I raise potatoes in large quantities, and each year place them in cold storage. I prefer to pay the expense of the storage and be sure that they are kept in a perfectly plump state, rather than to keep them in a room with a high temperature, as is done by some.

In the spring the potatoes come out of the cold storage house in perfect condition, and it takes but a few weeks for them to develop strong sprouts that rise out of the soil and develop strong stalks and leaves.

Many farmers have not the opportunity to put their potatoes in cold storage houses, but they should endeavor to keep their potatoes at a very low temperature. The nearer 33 degrees potatoes are kept, the better.—W. S.

POULTRY NOTES.

Never make the mistake of feeding commercial feed that contains ground oyster shell to very young chicks. It is all right to give it to a full grown bird, but it is death to youngsters as it causes white diarrhoea of which they die in three or four hours.

Many persons feed their fowls oats, but we do not believe it is a good thing, as it is likely to cause irritation in the intestines.

If you have a male bird that has proved a good breeder do not discard him until you are quite sure that his days of usefulness are over—but keep watch for that event.

The best prices for breeding birds are obtained at the poultry shows. Beginners generally get the fever about that time.

Men who have lost money in the business say it costs fully fifteen cents per pound to place a broiler on the market. That is the cost of eggs, hatching and feed, leaving nothing for the man who does the work.

LIME IN THE STABLE.

To disinfect a stable and destroy decaying animal or vegetable matter lime is excellent to use. But manure should be preserved and not destroyed, consequently lime should never be used in or about a stable where manure is made or kept. Its use decomposes the manure and liberates the ammonia—the most valuable element of plant food.

Acid phosphate, ground rock phosphate and land plaster are the three best materials to use if other absorbents are scarce.

Air slacked lime contains a mixture of carbonate and hydrate of lime. It is not so caustic as fresh burned lime. Limestone is perfectly neutral and has the same value as dirt or road dust as an absorbent. It also possesses a value on sour, heavy soil because it neutralizes the soil acidity and improves its physical condition.

GERMAN RED TAPE.

A Comical Instance of the Way It Is Carried Out.

Those who insist upon the Government regulating everything and curing everything, from individual soft corns to insuring bank deposits, should take warning from the condition in which the Germans find themselves. Endless red tape binds every German's actions; he is never for a moment allowed to feel himself free from some restriction, and the officials are continually poking into every detail of life and regulating it. A comical instance of the way in which these officials proceed is furnished by an incident from Berlin. A country girl employed about a thrashing machine was injured so as to have both of her legs amputated. She applied to the State insurance fund, and received a monthly pension of $3.50. One day the officials notified her that the pension was reduced to $3. She kicked as well as a girl could who had only wooden legs, and in the course of time the officials in their own leisurely way informed her that they had carefully examined her case. They had found that since she had no longer any legs she was saved the expense of shoes and stockings, and she ought to be grateful to the Government for having furnished her, without cost, a pair of wooden legs. To rub it in, they reminded her that she had not been charged with the alcohol in which the amputated members were preserved. Government officials seem very much alike whether they speak our language or German.

This Concrete Root Cellar Costs Less Than Wood and is Much More Durable

Cement is particularly adapted to the construction of Root Cellar floors and walls.

Experience proves that for the farmer, Concrete is superior to wood in every point of comparison.

Concrete permits of a desirable degree of coolness without freezing. There is no question as to its durability. Concrete lasts, not for years, but for ages; and needs no repair.

Anyone who has scooped vegetables from the old plank floor will appreciate the fact that Concrete offers a smooth, continuous surface with no projecting plank ends or nails to damage the scoop or ruffle the temper of the scooper.

The various uses to which Concrete may be profitably put, on the farm, are plainly and simply in our 160-page book, which shows how the following farm buildings and utilities can be constructed of concrete:—

"What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete"

Barns, Cisterns, Dairies, Dipping Tanks, Foundations, Fence Posts, Feeding Floors, Gutters, Hens' Nests, Hitching Posts, Horse Blocks, Houses, Poul-Shelter Walls, Stables, Stairs, Stalls, Steps, Tanks, Troughs, Walks, and so forth.

HOUSEHOLD

DAINTY DISHES.

Shortbread.—Take one pound of fine dry flour, six ounces of caster sugar, and half a pound of butter. Knead all well together. Roll out, and cut into shapes. Place on a baking tin, and bake slowly.

Ham in Jelly.—Put half a glass of currant jelly in a chafing dish with a tablespoonful of butter. When it is hot, lay in eight thin slices of cold boiled ham and simmer five minutes. Serve on toast triangles.

Tender Drumsticks.—To make the first joint of turkey or chicken tender and juicy, with a sharp knife split the back of the leg to the joint down deep to the bone. Pull out each hard tendon, beginning at the top and working downward. Sprinkle in a little salt and carefully sew up to retain shape. The result will be a tender, juicy piece.

Snow Cake.—Cream a quarter of a pound of butter with a quarter of a pound of caster sugar; add a well-beaten egg; then sift in gradually half a pound of potato flour, add a little grated lemon rind, and beat for ten minutes. Bake in a flat buttered tin for three-quarters of an hour in a slow oven. This cake should not be allowed to get brown.

Potato Puffs.—Boil one pound of potatoes, pass them through a wire sieve, mix well in two ounces of butter, one ounce of flour, a little baking powder and enough water to make it into a stiff paste. Roll this out and cut into rounds, place a little well-flavored minced beef in the centre of each, roll them up into a ball, and fry to a golden brown in boiling deep fat.

Sausage Pudding.—One pound of sausages steeped in boiling water to remove their skins. Make a suet crust, and line a pudding basin with it. Place on the crust the sausage meat, any scraps of cold meat you have, an onion chopped small, a few sage leaves, also chopped, pepper and salt, some stock, and mushroom ketchup to moisten the whole. Cover the pudding with suet crust, and boil in a floured cloth for three hours.

Mutton Rechauffe.—Here is a savory dish. Slice the cold roast mutton thin, and season with salt and pepper; have some cold boiled macaroni, in inch bits; put alternate layer of cracker crumbs, the meat, and the macaroni, in a buttered baking dish, with a spoonful of tomato catsup on the latter; proceed until the dish is filled, finishing with a thick layer of the crumbs moistened with two tablespoonfuls of melted butter.

A breast of mutton, if carefully cooked in this way, is a very good joint and we all know that it is not an expensive one. Tie the meat in a thin cloth, and simmer gently, allowing ten minutes for every pound of meat. Take it out of the cloth, place in the oven, cover with melted dripping, and baste constantly. Ten minutes before serving, dust it thickly with crumbs, place a few bits of dripping on it, and brown. Serve with thick gravy, and garnish with slices of carrots and bits of broccoli, or, indeed, with any vegetable in season.

Lemon Solid.—Put the thinly pared rinds of three lemons in a basin. Pour on them a pint of boiling water. Let these stand for an hour. Squeeze the juice of four lemons into another basin, beat up the yolks of five eggs, mix into the lemon juice a tablespoonful of cornflour, now put a breakfastcupful of loaf sugar into a stewpan, strain into it the water in which the lemon rind has been soaking, add the lemon juice and eggs, Stir the mixture over the fire till it thickens, but do not allow it to boil or it will curdle. This will make a large mould.

Stewed Celery.—Trim and cut to the same length a number of heads of celery, split them in two lengthwise, tie in bundles with thread, and parboil for a quarter of an hour in salted water. Drain these carefully, place in a clean saucepan, add an onion, a blade of mace, pepper and salt to taste. Add enough stock to cover the contents and cook gently till the celery is tender. Take away the string, arrange the celery neatly on a dish; take some of the stock in which it has been stewed, remove all fat from it, thicken with a little butter and flour, pour over the celery, and serve.

SALADS.

Cream Mayonnaise.—Mix half a cup of sour cream, two tablespoons of prepared mustard, three or four teaspoons of sugar. Delicious for cold meats.

Cabbage Pudding. — Use six crackers rolled fine, three pounds of cabbage chopped fine, one-half cup of butter, salt and pepper to taste; enough sweet milk to moisten; cover with large leaves of cabbabe and bake.

Bottle Salad Dressing—Take of vinegar three-quarters of a cup; butter, a teaspoon, melted; sugar, one-third cup; eggs four; mustard, a teaspoon, made into paste with cold water; salt, one-third teaspoon. Let vinegar and butter come to a boil, beat the sugar and eggs together; add mustard, stir into the boiling vinegar until it thickens, but do not boil. Remove from fire, place in bottle, and keep in a cool place. This will keep indefinitely, and always ready for use.

CONFECTIONERY.

Cocoanut Drops.—To one grated cocoanut add half its weight of sugar and the white of one egg beaten to a stiff froth; mix thoroughly and drop on buttered white paper or tin sheets. Bake fifteen minutes.

Three Minute Butter Scotch. — Use three-quarters cup of sugar, one tablespoon of water, butter the size of a walnut, one-half a tablespoon of vinegar. Boil until brittle; pour on buttered plates.

Uncooked Candy.—Mix one pound of powdered sugar in the white of one egg. Flavor to taste. This can be mixed with nuts and melted in any shape or used to stuff dates with. It is better after standing awhile. It also can be used as a filling for chocolate creams.

Wet Corn to Pop.—When corn will not pop try dipping the corn and cornpopper in cold water, then pop it. You will be surprised how much better it will be and the kernels will be twice the ordinary size. Take a cup of sugar, a half cup of water, and three tablespoonfuls of vinegar; boil until it strings, pour the syrup over the popped corn. Make into balls. Wet your hands in cold water so the corn will not stick to your hands.

GET A TIN TABLE.

Housekeepers who have never had a tin-covered table for kitchen use are still unacquainted with one of the most valuable articles of domestic economy. An ordinary kitchen table takes kindly to the metal cover. Fit a sheet of tin on the table, and perforate the edges for tacking. The tin should cover the thickness of the board top, that it may be tacked on the underside of the table. A table so covered needs no scrubbing, is impervious to hot kettles, sheds grease as the proverbial duck's back does water, and, in fact, cheers the heart of the kitchenmaid or housewife more than anything on earth.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Soap will go twice as far if well dried. It should be cut into small blocks, and then arranged in tiers with spaces between to allow them to dry.

The best way to keep windows from steaming or frosting is to clean the inside of the window with a cloth moistened with pure glycerine, wiping it so as to leave only a trace of the glycerine.

An excellent mixture to remove grease-spots from clothing is made of four parts alcohol to one part of ammonia, and about half as much ether as ammonia. Apply the liquid to the spot, and then rub with a sponge and clear water.

To prevent a goose being greasy pare a lemon very thin so that the white part is very thick. Place this inside the goose just before cooking, and remove it before dishing up. The lemon will not only absorb all the fat, but it will also impart a delicious flavor to the goose.

Shabby velvet can be improved as follows: First brush thoroughly so as to remove all dust, then spread a damp cloth on a hot iron, and over this draw the wrong side of the velvet. As soon as the steam from the velvet ceases the hot iron must be removed, or the velvet will scorch.

A Nice Way to Cook Sausages.—Put a pound of sausages into a saucepan with one pint of water and boil for three-quarters of an hour; then place on a hot dish in the oven to keep warm while the gravy is being thickened with two tablespoonfuls of flour and a little browning. Season with pepper and salt and pour over.

When washing a new blanket for the first time, begin by soaking it for twelve hours in cold water, then rinse in clear water. This will remove the sulphur used in the bleaching. After this wash the blanket in a lukewarm lather made of boiled soap and water. Rinse well in clear water, shake thoroughly and hang out to dry.

It is very injurious to children's teeth to allow them to eat bread and butter biscuits, or any farinaceous food in bed at night, and to go to sleep with particles of such clinging to the teeth. It ferments during the night, becomes acid, and slowly injures the enamel. Clean the children's teeth the last thing every night.

If it is necessary to wash corsets, take out the steels in front and sides. Lay the corsets on a flat surface, and with a small brush scrub them thoroughly with a tepid or cold lather of white Castile soap. When quite clean let cold water run on them by holding them under a running tap until the soap is all rinsed off. Pull them lengthwise until they are straight and shapely, and let them dry in a cool place, pulling them again when partly dry.

To make life happy, take time; it is of no use to fume and fret, or do as the angry housekeeper who has got hold of the wrong key, and pushes, shakes, and rattles it about the lock until both are broken and the door is still unopened. The chief secret of comfort lies in not suffering trifles to vex us and in cultivating our undergrowth of small pleasures. Try to regard present vexations as you will regard them a month hence. Since we cannot get what we like, let us like what we can get.

Captain Walter Long, A.D.C. to his Royal Highness the Governor-General, is thirty-two years old, and has had a brilliant career in the army. He served throughout the South African war, was frequently mentioned in despatches and received the D.S.O. Captain Long is the eldest son of the Rt. Hon. Walter Hume Long, who has held many high Cabinet offices, including that of Chief Secretary for Ireland, and who was one of the three in the running, the other day, for Mr. Balfour's late position. Like his distinguished father—who is the idol of the squires and yeomen of England—Capt. Long excels in field sports of all kinds. He is a good polo and cricket player, an excellent shot, and a keen cross-country rider. For three years he discharged the arduous duties of adjutant of the famous regiment, the Scots Greys.

COUNTING THE STARS.

Dutch Astronomer Says Number is About 842,000,000.

A tremendous task, that of counting the stars up to the 19th magnitude, has been undertaken by the Dutch astronomer, Prof. Kapteyn, who has collected all the material furnished by the most recent discoveries, notably those from the American observatories.

Stars of less size than the 14th magnitude are found in millions in the milky way, and the work of counting them from photographic plates can best be described as similar to counting blood corpuscles under a microscope.

Prof. Kapteyn places the total at 842,000,000 stars, the average being 20,400 stars to the square degree of the heavens. He has further calculated that the total light emanating from all the stars is equal to 2,384 times the luminosity of a star of the first magnitude.

According to the Dutch scientist the boundaries of the universe, as far as human science has been able to penetrate, extend to 32,000 light years.

WOODEN AMMUNITION.

Three years ago civil war was raging between two Afghan tribes, the Ali Khel and the Mala Khel. The latter tribe built great hopes of success on a cannon of such a size that 160 men were required to draw it. A Sikh trained in a British battery was engaged to work the gun, on the understanding that he received 20 rupees every time he hit the village fort of the foe. This did not prove renumerative, for according to an eye witness the ammunition consisted of "olive wood balls bound with iron bands, which have a highly eccentric flight and are calculated to do about equal damage to friend and foe." After a three days bombardment, in which the fort was hit only three times, the hostilities came to an end.

THE LONG FOREST OF AFRICA.

One of the great natural treasures of Africa, to the need of preserving which attention is being directed, is the immense extratropical forest that extends almost unbroken from the extreme southern end along the eastern highlands to the equator. These are gaps in it, and the trees change in kind somewhat with change of latitude, but upon the whole, it has the same character throughout. The altitude above the sea changes regularly with decrease of latitude. Near the Cape the forest grows at sea-level; in Natal and the Transvaal its altitude increases to 3,000, 4,000 and 5,000 feet; and on approaching the equator it rises to 7,000, and finally to 10,000 feet. In the equatorial highlands the growth is very vigorous, and the forest is enrich with the "pencil cedar" of Abyssinia.

WEIRD CEREMOMY IN CEYLON

A BATTLE AGAINST DEADLY COBRA BITE.

Attempt to Save a Man Who Had Fallen a Victim to the Poisonous Reptile.

The day had been unusually hot and sultry even for Ceylon. But there was the prospect of a change. A cluster of small clouds which had risen over the hills had been followed by others larger in volume and blacker in color, until at length the north was darkened with and unbroken stretch of ominous vapor. Presently the foliage, parched and drooping, was stirred by the first skirmish of the approaching storm. The wind steadily increased in force, and the clouds rose, darkening the region over which they passed. There, from base to summit, a streak of light separated for an instant the thick mass, and a moment afterward a distant rumbling reached the ear from the troubled heavens. There was a steady subdued light casting around well defined shadows on the dry earth. But few persons were abroad, and except that occasionally a coolie hurried by in the hope of reaching his destination before the tempest burst, the road was left to the dust, which was blown along in diagonal lines, says a writter in the Pall Mall Gazette.

In one of the native dwellings that lay back from the road, embowered in palms and a wealth of tropical vegetation, a young man lay between life and death. He had been and an inclination to sleep was over-powering him. More than once he had closed his eyes and allowed his head to drop, and for a time had resisted the frantic efforts of his friends to arouse him. The Kapurala had been sent for, and had just arrived with his company of dancers, tomtom beaters and singers, and they were now making preparations for the ceremony by means of which they would endeavor to drive out the evil spirits by which the sick man was invested. They covered him in leaves and flowers, and erected by his side a figure representing the demon they sought to exorcise, and, near at hand, they placed an altar, upon which they arranged offerings of flowers, rice and flesh, by way of propitiation. Then they left to don their professional attirement.

Meanwhile, the storm had broken with terrific violence over mountain and valley. The rain descended in torrents, saturating the parched jungle and causing the roads to welter in floods of muddy water that rushed along the conduits on the wayside. The black screen of cloud which had cast a shade over the land was now merged in the natural darkness of the evening. The lightning became more and more vivid, and the thunder louder and more terrible. Flash after flash shot through the black mass, illuminating the surrounding country and revealing the outline of the adjacent mountains and then again leaving all steeped in darkness. The thunder made the heart of the bravest leap. It was a Walpurgis night indeed!—a night when the whole company of evil spirits were awake, and holding communion in the neighboring jungle. The intermittent light showed in each puddle, in each drop of rain, or on each leaf, a sudden sparkling as of that blazed for an instant and then as quickly disappeared; and the thunder, the music of its infernal gathering, accompanied it like a blare from the Brocken itself.

The villagers had sought refuge in their huts, and despite the rage of the elements, were endeavoring to sleep. But one family were up and could not rest, for there the Kapurala and his strange associates still conducted their midnight orgies over the fleeting soul of the unconscious native. The company had returned to the hut arrayed in their weird apparel. The dancers wore short cotton skirts, puckered up into flounces, and round their loins were thick leather girdles, gaudily decorated with colored buttons and metal knobs. Their breasts were covered with a network of beads in concentric circles, and meeting in the middle under bright discs of brass. The headpieces would have done justice to the most whimsical of demons. They had white metal crowns, the castellated rims heads of the weavers, and, in front, rose seven ornaments of plated silver like an array of feathers, and from each hung trinkets and pendants in all varieties. Round their necks and on their arms and feet were a wealth of ornament, necklaces of beads, heavy bangles, armlets and hollow anklets filled with beads.

The ceremony was conducted in the light of a small cocoanut oil lamp, which barely sufficed to show the features of the performers, but the lightning, gleaming almost without intermission through the open doorway, made up for its shortcomings. Standing by the head of the dying man, holding out his hands and twisting himself about, the Kepurals was chanting a strange, incoherent air, in which the singers at first joined listlessly. As he proceeded his fervor increased, until his movements became

THOSE OF A MANIAC.

He was accompanied in his sparodic gestures and grotesque postures by the other dancers. Suddenly they would become motionless, with hands outstretched, singing to the unhallowed thumping of the tomtoms; and then, as momentarily, they would bend their knees almost to a sitting posture, and advance by slow and convulsive steps, while their trinkets tinkled and their wild song added terrors to the tempest shaken night. Then their movements would become more vigorous, until they had worked themselves up into a frenzy, in which the tomtom beaters fully participated. The latter struck their instruments with bare hands and with great force, all the time contorting their faces until they assumed the most demoniac expressions. To the accompaniment of the storm the scene was impressive in the extreme, for the devil dancers clapped their hands, screamed and halloed in a manner so wild that it filled with awe even those who had witnessed the ceremony many times before.

At length they desisted, and the inmates of the hut grew more composed. The storm, too, had shown signs of abating. The lightning was less vivid, and, except now and then for a flash unusually dazzling, it was passing away to other districts. The thunder was heard only as a distant rumbling, and the dark bank of cloud which had heralded the approaching storm had travelled on until, through its silvery fringe, gleamed the welcome rays of the moon. The light shone down upon the fresh earth, sodden by the copious rain, and stole among the native dwellings and through the open door of one whose inmates had secured no rest that night. The Kapurala was stooping over the prostrate form of the sick man. All apparently was still, for coma had supervened, respite the extraordinary efforts of the devil dancers to prevent it. The face was set, and there was a tranquillity about it that caused the beholder to gaze at it earnestly for some minutes. Then, seeing that his rites were unavailing, he turned away and taking the offerings of food and flowers from the altar as custom allowed, stole out into the cool night, followed by his companions. The cobra had prevailed.

CHILDREN IN EARTHQUAKE.

Affecting Incidents Related By an Eye-Witness.

At the time of the earthquake at Kingston, Jamaica, in 1907, Hugh Oakeley Arnold-Forster and his wife were visitors at Kingston. In her memoir of her husband, Mrs. Arnold-Forster tells of some of the memorable happenings in the stricken city.

There were so few helpers in comparison to the dreadful number hurt that we had just to turn to and assist, even in the operations, and give the chloroform to the doctors. Tiny children were brought to the wharf hospital. One mite of a few weeks old, as black as a little coal, was weeping sadly. It had been picked up in the street, and went to sleep in my arms as we carried round the food and oranges that had been sent by Sir. Alfred Jones. My black piccaninny made all the patients laugh, even in their misery.

One little boy, only seven or eight, was there with his mother and two other little ones. The mother's legs were broken as she was pinned under the fallen brickwork of her house; the little boy had scrambled back over the tottering walls and debris, and had saved both the babies. He was very little hurt, and took me to see "my babies," and watched me feed them with much delight. Everard and Gerald de Souza were two other little brothers, very refined and sweet, both of them hurt, who lay holding hands on one mattress the first night I was in the hospital. When I fed them, they insisted on knowing my name; and holding my hand, they said their prayers, praying for me very sweetly, and I tucked them up, and hoped to see them again. But on the next morning their people must have fetched them away, for they were gone, and I did not see them again.

QUEER MEMORIALS.

Except to call attention to the fact that we are all mortal, a hearse seems a very queer memorial to the famous dead; but it was recently stated that one village in England had decided to keep the memory of King Edward green by the purchase of such a vehicle. A hearse also commemorates the many virtues and long reign of Queen Victoria. This is at Burghersdrop, in Cape Colony, where the natives bought a gorgeous hearse to carry their dead to the cemetery, the vechicle bearing a plate with the inscription, "Queen Victoria Memorial Hearse." New York some time ago decided to erect a drinking-fountain in honor of the memory of a colored pugilist, while even criminals are not without their monuments. Meldola, near Ravenna, in Italy, put up a statue to the memory of the notorious Orsini, who tried to assassinate Napoleon III. He is represented on the way to execution.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, DECEMBER 31.

Review. Golden Text, I. John 1. 9.

If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.—1 John 1. 9.

One Truth This Lesson Teaches.—That the fulfilment of prophecy and the climax of sacred history came in the birth of the King.

The Aim.—To show that the King of Love came to seek and to save all.

Clue to Pupil's Interest.—The reviewing of troops.

Introduction.—Did you ever see soldiers marching before a government officer for inspection? In June I saw some boys and young men in a military school stand such a test. There, for hours, they marched back and forth before the government inspector. In and out, across, up and down the field they went. They pitched their tents and built their camp fires. They showed all that they had learned to perfection. Not one made a mistake. The officer was "reviewing" the company and they were reviewing what they had been learning all of the year.

Lesson Story. We have come to a day like that in our lesson study. We are to review what we have been learning and to prove our faithfulness along the way by what we know now that the review day has come. If we have really studied we will know the answers to the following questions:

What prophet was called to be a watchman?

What was the meaning of the vision of the great stream that flowed from beneath the temple?

Who led the children of Israel on their return from captivity? Why did they lay a foundation for a second temple? Who wrote a song of deliverance for them? Why?

What brave queen risked her life for her people?

What was the meaning of Belshazzar's vision and who interpreted it?

What kind of a leader did Ezra prove himself in the long journey back to Jerusalem?

Why did Nehemiah make his noble, unselfish prayer to God?

How was his prayer answered?

What difficulties beset him in his work and how did he meet them?

What was the Feast of the Trumpets and how was it first celebrated?

What King came as a fulfillment of prophecy?

Why did he come?

How long shall he reign?

Whom did he come to seek and to save?

PAY OF PARIS SEAMSTRESS.

Midinettes Keep Body and Soul Together on 50 Cents Daily.

The midinettes, or seamstresses, of Paris earn from 2.50 to 5 francs (50 cents to $1) a day, and the latter amount only when extra work is given after hours. From this small sum these girls, most of whom are from fourteen to twenty years of age, must find lodging and food, clothe themselves and pay carfare from long distances, as they can afford to live only in the outlying quarters of Paris, where rents are cheap.

The Paris seamstress is called midinette because she is seen on the streets at midi, or midday, where she strolls along, smiling, chatting, often singing, as she munches her noonday meal, which usually consists of fried potatoes or a piece of sausage. She works long hours under conditions which with few exceptions are deplorable; some of the big establishments, however, have already done much to better conditions.

Each midinette is a specialist in her line, as she does only one thing and can hardly hope to learn how to make a complete dress. This plan of work, however, results in a mechanical expedition. All work is prepared for the seamstresses by the premiers and the secondes, who after the piecework is done, assemble the various parts. The embroidery which is so much a feature of Paris toilettes is usually done outside the dressmaking establishment, in big rooms given over to embroidery workers exclusively.

South Huron in ten years has decreased 3347 in population, which is now 19,524. West Huron has decreased 1,526. North Huron 2,938, South Huron 2,958, South Perth 1,672. The decrease in many of the surrounding ridings is proportionally great. South Bruce being the largest 5,822.

Tillsonburg expects to spend $2000 to advertise the town. Some of the people of Exeter seem to think all our town needs is a few knocks, and they are not adverse to administering them. It is time we began to boost. When all the people of a town start to boost just watch that town grow.

CREDITON.

A bright, happy and prosperous New year to all.

Last Friday was a busy day in town it being Nomination day. To judge from the large number of rigs in town, it was quite apparent that something out of the usual was on hand. The hall was filled, and when the nomination hour came to a close, the following were nominated as candidates to occupy the position as Reeve, Deputy and Councillors for the Tp. of Stephen for the year 1912. For Reeve Hy. Willert and W. D. Sanders, Deputy-reeve; John Love and William Yearley; Councillors, John Brown, Roy Sherritt, Thomas Keys, Geo. Kellerman, Mich. Finkbeiner W. R. Elliott and Fred Wuerth. Addresses were delivered by all. Some were full of fire and it kept up the enthusiasm of the crowd. That of Thos. Keys especially was a treat to hear. It stirred things up until it began to look as though something was going to happen but it finally cooled off. Mr. Sherritt resigned after making his address and promised that he would be a candidate for municipal honors at some later day. He made a good impression by his excellent speech and the west can certainly be proud of its coming man. Mr. Keys was the other candidate who resigned on Saturday, leaving the others in to fight it out. The result is awaited with interest. There is sure to be more excitement over this election than the recent Provincial contest. Now as to the Nomination of the Police Trustees. The only nominations received in the evening by Returning officer Trevethick were F. W. Clark, Mathew Ginter and Chas. Zwicker, who have all since resigned which makes it compulsory for the returning officer to call another Nomination Meeting. Strange to say none of the old trustees were re-nominated. There was a small attendance and there must surely have been some oversight. These men have done their duty well during the year, having spent the money to the best interests of the people and it is certainly a poor recognition of their services not to re-nominate them. It is to be hoped that there will be a good attendance at the next meeting and the town's welfare looked after with more interest.

Christmas Festival given in the Methodist Church last Thursday evening was well attended. The program consisted of the choruses by the children, readings, and anthems by the choir. The last part of the programme was an exercise entitled 'The seven periods in a women's life'—or rather from the infant to the grand mother. Mrs. John Elber acted the part of the grand-mother and towards the last when the family reunion took place she received several handsome gifts, among which must be mentioned a purse from the ladies aid. The evening's program was very enjoyable and all were well pleased.

On Christmas evening, the Sunday-school of the Evangelical Church held their annual entertainment. The weather was ideal with the result that the church was crowded to the doors. The decoration committee did its work splendidly and are to be complimented. The first part of the program consisted of a mixed program in which the little ones were given an opportunity to address the large audience. They did their parts well and were indeed heartily applauded. During the intermission some 80 scholars were presented with Diplomas by the President of the school and the pastor of the church who made a few remarks congratulating each recipient. The last part of the program consisted of the oratoria entitled 'Shiloh' This was sung by a chorus of 70 voices who sang in a style, the like of which had never been heard of before in Crediton, Rev Burn as leader and drilled them until they reached a stage of perfection hard to excell. The chorus will stand repeating anytime. Great praise is due Rev. Burn for his work in connection with the evening's program. At the close of the entertainment the juniors were presented with packages of candy and nuts and the larger scholars with books. The evening's proceeds amounts to $116.—a record breaker.

The Christmas Holidays brought many visitors. We notice Mr. and Mrs. Russel Huxtable and Fred Smith of Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fahner and Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers of Salene Mess. Chris. Finkbeiner, Frank Finkbeiner, The Misses Young of London; Mr. and Mrs. Swartz of New Hamburg Mr. and Mrs. Will Lewis of Algonquin Park, Mrs. Teller of London; Milton Harris, London; Aug. Kuhn of Dunnville.

Christmas Day passed off quietly. A large number were out of town eating their Christmas Dinner.

School closed Friday, and the staff of teachers are visiting at their respective homes.

Mr. Graham, Mr. Irish and Mr. Carey of the Bank of Commerce staff, spent Christmas in Hamilton, Orangeville and Jordan respectively.

Last Wednesday the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Finkbeiner was the scene of a pleasant event when their eldest daughter Miss Mary was married to Mr. John Weln. The knot was tied by the Rev. Burn in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The happy couple received many handsome presents and all join in wishing them every success and happiness in their married life. Mr. and Mrs. Weln will make their home on the farm Mr. Weln recently purchased from the Harris estate.

A marriage took place in London at the First Methodist Church on Dec. 21st, of Miss Myrtle, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Anderson, of Crediton East, to Mr. Geo. E. Hoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Hoy of Revelstoke, B.C. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Whiting. The happy couple left on the 2.05 train for Toronto and other points where they will visit. They will reside in London.

Mr. Eber Anderson and Uel Graham of London are visiting at Wilson Anderson's throught he holidays.

FARQUHAR.

Several from here attended the nomination meeting at Elimville last week. The old members of the council were re-elected, the prevailing feeling being one of satisfaction, as the taxes were a little lower this year. Quite a discussion took place as to the advisability of purchasing a stone crusher for the Township, the matter, however being left for further consideration. — The Christmas Tree in the Presbyterian Church on Friday was a success notwithstanding the wet evening, the programme being rendered chiefly by the Thames Road school children, and consisted of Drills, singing, Dialogues and recitations, and reflects credit to the teacher, Miss Robb as the time of practise was short. The Pastor Rev. Fletcher occupied the chair and after the concert was over the large Tree was relieved of its heavy load of gifts, which were handed over to their rightful owners by old Santa Claus who afterwards passed through the audience and treated all to candies, leaving no chance for one to go home disappointed.—Among the Christmas visitors in this vicinity we might mention—Mr. and Mrs. Cluff of Toronto at Mr. Henry Passmore's, Miss Nettie Passmore of Toronto and the Misses Rose and Maggie Passmore of Vancouver under the parental roofs; Mr. and Mrs. D. A. McNicol and family of Stratford, Mr. Samuel Ross from the Northwest; Mr. and Mrs. John Vance and child of Listowel Reg Turnbull and Wm Gardiner of Toronto, Wilfred Campbell of Saskatchewan, Martin Madge of Alberta, Mrs Willard, formerly Miss Emma Fulton, of Niagara City Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fulton entertained a number of the young people of the vicinity very pleasantly on Friday evening

CENTRALIA

The Christmas services on Sunday were largely attended and greatly enjoyed, especially the song service by the choir. At the evening service several fine selections were rendered by the quartette, Mr. and Miss Blatchford and Miss Lillian Elliott.—The Blatchford family are spending the holidays under the parental roof.—Mr. Chas. Abbott of London spent Sunday and Monday with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Parsons.—Mr. and Mrs. Weston and daughter of Bayfield were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilson over the holidays.—Mr. E. Colwill spent Monday with Mrs. Colwill at the hospital at London. Mrs. Colwill is getting along nicely and expects to return home in a short time.—The nominations for the village officials took place on Friday evening last. Seven were brought out but four resigned, leaving the affairs of the burg to P. Hanlon, W. J. Parsons and H. Mills.—Mr. W. R. Elliott is in the field for Township Councillor, and is out soliciting votes. W. J. is a man of excellent standing and should receive the hearty support of the electors, to represent this part of the Township.—Mr. Aldsworth of Berlin spent the holidays with Miss Allie Wilson.—Mr. and Mrs. F. Colwill spent the holidays with relatives at Lucan.—Mr. and Mrs. Gus. Coughlin of Toronto spent a few days renewing old friends around the village.—Mr. and Mrs. F. Neil and family spent the holiday with friends at London.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Colwill visited at Arva over the holidays.—Miss Sarah Neil of London spent the holidays with her sister, Mrs. T. Elston.—Mr. G. Hicks spent Sunday with relatives in London.—Mr. Fred Fairhall of the Chatham Business College is home for the vacation.—Mr. Will Blair returned last week after spending about eight months in the west.—Mr. and Mrs. Grovenor and son of Strathroy are spending the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson.

The death occurred in London on Dec. 20th, of a former resident of this village, Margret wife of the late Robert Trothan. The funeral took place on Saturday last to Birr cemetery.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

We are carrying a much larger and more assorted stock than we ever did before, and the prices that we are going to sell them at will make you sit up.

FOR EXAMPLE—We offer you a large 4 ft. 7 in. piano, full iron frame Pullman wire string, mahogany finish, double veneered inside and out with an unlimited guarantee. This piano is sold by Heintzman & Co, and all we ask of you is to call and judge for yourself. Its the biggest value you have ever seen or heard of. We have no competition on this piano than the price. This piano is in a class by itself, and that's High Class. We would like to know if there is an intending purchaser curious enough to call and inquire the price. It will do us both good. At any rate call and receive one of our large art calendars.

S. MARTIN & SON

It Is Up To You

To protect your family from the ravages of disease and infection; and the rigors of winter; to make your home the abode of Health and Happiness.

Statistics tell us that there were over 250,000 deaths in North America last year from fever and Pneumonia; Over 90 per cent. of these cases were traceable to out-door closets, and all were the result of insanitary conditions.

Are you going to allow this terrible death rate to continue.

Why not insure Health by installing a "PARKYTE" SANITARY CHEMICAL CLOSET.

Absolutely Sanitary and Odorless carries the endorsement of Physicians and Health Officials, and our own iron-clad guarantee, Requires no expensive water-system; no plumbing; no sewage can be installed in any part of your home at the cost of a few minutes of your spare time; lasts a lifetime and cost less than a CENT a day.

"PARKYTE" Chemical has been proven by Bacteriological test to be the most powerful Disinfectant, Deodorant and Germicide known to Science.

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

FREE TO YOU AND EVERY SISTER SUFFERING FROM WOMEN'S AILMENTS.

I am a woman.
I know woman's sufferings.
I have found the cure.

I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from women's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—you, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourself at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhœa or Whitish discharge, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths, also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weakness peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete 10 days treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer, if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all, old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhœa, Green Sickness, and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plumpness and health always result from its use.

Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all women's diseases and makes women well, strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten days' treatment is yours, also the book. Write to-day, as you may not see this offer again. Address:

Free to Stock and Poultry Raisers

We will send, absolutely free, for the asking, postpaid, one of our large sixty-four page books on the common diseases of stock and poultry. Tells you how to feed all kinds of heavy and light horses, colts and mares milch cows, calves and fattening steers, also how to keep and feed poultry so that they will lay as well in winter as in summer. No farmer should be without it.

NOW is the time to use Royal Purple Stock Specific At a cost of only two-thirds of a cent per day per animal it will increase it 25 per cent. in value. It permanently cures Bots, Colic, Worms, Skin Diseases and Debility. Restores run-down animals to plumpness and vigor. It will increase the milk yield three to five lbs. per cow per day and make the milk richer. Royal Purple is not a stock food. There is no filler used in its manufacture, and we import from Europe all the seeds, herbs, barks, etc., and grind them on our own premises. Therefore we can guarantee it to you as being absolutely pure. We do not use cheap filler to make up a large package. We give you the best condition powder ever put on the market in a concentrated form. A tablespoon levelled off once a day is sufficient for a full grown animal. It prevents disease, keeps your animals in perfect health, and is absolutely harmless. It makes six weeks old calves as large as ordinary calves at 10 weeks. You can develop six pigs ready for market in just one month's less time than you can possibly do without it at a cost of only $1.50, saving you a month's work and food. A 50c package will last a horse 70 days. A $1.50 pail or air-tight tin containing four times as much as a 50c package will last an animal 280 days. If you have never used it try it on the poorest animal you have on your place and watch results. If it does not produce better results than anything you have ever used or give you satisfaction, we will refund your money. Andrew Wegrich, of Wainfleet, Ont., says that he tried it on one cow, weighed her milk on the 16th, 17 lbs., on the 29th she gave 22 lbs. Dan McEwen, Canada's greatest horse trainer, says: "I have fed Royal Purple to The Kel and all my racehorses for four years. They have never been off their feed. Your cough powder works like magic."

Mr. Tom Smith, trainer for the Hon. Adam Beck, says: "We had a mare in our stables last fall belonging to Miss Cleuston, of Montreal. We could not feed her any bran on account of scouring. We commenced using your Royal Purple Stock Specific. The results were wonderful. We found after using it three weeks we could feed her bran or any other soft feed and she actually took on 25 lbs. during that time."

Mrs. Wm. Burnham, of Sandford, Ont., says: "I fed your Poultry Specific to 32 hens during the winter and sometimes got as many as two dozen eggs per day in February and March."

Mr. Andrew Hicks, of Centralia, Ont., says: "I used your Stock Specific on 20 milk cows. They have increased 30 per cent. in their milk and I got even better results from your Poultry specific. We had 60 hens laying age. When we commenced using Poultry Specific we were getting five or six eggs a day. In less than five days we got 150 eggs. These were the coldest days last winter." You can see the results at once after you commence using this material. When farmers get acquainted with Royal Purple brands they will never be without them.

Royal Purple Poultry Specific

will make your hens lay in winter as well as in summer, and yet a 50c package will last 25 hens 75 days or a $1.50 pail or air-tight tin contains four times as much as a 50c package, will last 250 days. It prevents poultry from losing flesh at moulting time, cures and prevents all the ordinary diseases, makes their plumage bright and keeps them in prime condition.

GRAIN BLOCKADE IN WEST

Farmers Said to be Unable to Meet Their Current Obligations.

A despatch from Winnipeg, says: Voicing the demand of western Canada for relief from the burden of unjust railway rates, the Winnipeg Board of Trade declares the necessity of Parliament affirming by an act on the Dominion statute books the principle that the rates shall be no greater in the prairie Provinces than in Ontario and Quebec, unless it is proved that the costs of operation are greater in the west. The board expressed its relief that the costs of operation in the west are "no greater, if as great."

Searching investigation is demanded, with counsel "free from all railway corporation control," to be engaged by the Dominion Government to act with the board and other western interests. This formal action was taken at a representative meeting of the board and is the first gun of a determined campaign, for which Winnipeg business men have been quietly preparing for months.

The Railway Commission of Canada has been formally requested to take cognizance of and to take such action as may be necessary in connection with the car shortage in the western Provinces, which during the past two months has reached proportions resulting in a practical paralysis of business in some districts, and has meant a severe loss to farmers and business men. This action has been taken by the Board of Trade after the receipt of an exhaustive report from the special committee appointed some weeks ago to make inquiries and submit a report to the board. A letter has been forwarded to Chairman Mabee, in which the Board of Trade makes the flat charge that the railways have failed to fulfill their duties as common carriers, and the farmers of the west have been unable to market their grain, with the result that they are face to face with obligations they are unable to meet through no fault of their own. The congestion of grain, it is also charged, has resulted in the deterioration of the grade in transport. The board also submits that the railways have not made and are not preparing to make improvements sufficient to cope with the steadily increasing volume of traffic in the west.

Reports from many points in Saskatchewan still indicate an acute condition of affairs. The Outlook of Saskatchewan reports that the situation is unbearable, as the elevators are overflowing and the farmers' waggons are lined up in the streets and dozens of farmers with grain to market and bills to meet are in despair. Several points contiguous to Saskatoon report similar conditions.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

THE PERSONNEL OF DIRECTORS AND MANAGEMENT A MOST IMPORTANT CONSIDERATION.

Net Earnings Must be Examined Over a Period of Years to Determine Whether Company is Going Ahead or Not — Should be About Double the Bond Interest.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor.")

The last few articles have dealt with the matter of safety of industrial bonds from what, for lack of a better term, we may call the physical side—features that can be learned from—or at least should be shown in—the balance sheet. There are two scarcely less important features, however, that must be looked into to complete the determination, not so much, perhaps, of the immediate safety of the bonds as the certainty of the interest, and the outlook for the future.

The first, is the question of "net earnings." On the proportion of net earnings to outstanding obligations depends to no small extent the strength of an industrial company. The figures of a number of years should be examined. Most advertisements of industrial bond offerings contain some such statement as this:—"The net earnings during the past five years average $———, which is over four times the bond interest." This statement is interesting, but the careful investor should enquire further. It would be much more valuable if the information were more complete. The net earnings for a number of years tells a very much more interesting—and instructive—story than the average for the same period. Take, for example, the earnings of the Wm. A. Rogers, Limited, which, by the way, has issued no bonds but is used merely for illustration.—

Profits	1906	were	$191,552
"	1907	"	195,650
"	1908	"	182,725
"	1909	"	301,466
"	1910	"	329,516

The average over this period is $240,181, which gives a very inadequate idea of the remarkable growth of the earnings. Note the small drop during 1908, the year in which the panic in the States caused a short falling off in the earnings of most Canadian industrials. All this information is most valuable, as it signifies a steady demand and a growing business, which indicates that fixed charges of a company similarly situated would be regularly met.

The proposition between fixed charges and net earnings should be carefully noted. Net earnings should equal about twice the bond interest, taxes and sinking fund, for a bond to receive favorable consideration as a safe investment, except under unusual circumstances, where the nature of the earnings are unusually steady, or the security unusually substantial. The nature of the product is important. A company producing an article of fluctuating or uncertain demand should not issue bonds. Opportunities for successful competition or substitution must be considered, and, if possible, bonds should be avoided.

A third point is management and control. Few questions are of greater importance in investigating the strength of an industrial company than the reputation and experience of the men in charge. As an American writing on this subject, puts it: "The ability and integrity of the men who control the policy of the company and the efficiency of the operating officials are the principal factors in the success of an industrial undertaking." Unquestionably, in the long run and in probably a majority of cases this is equally true in Canada, particularly in the case of small companies. Men with good reputation do not risk them lightly in acting as directors of hopeless industrial enterprises. When one sees the names on the list of officers of new companies the first thing the experienced investor or financial man does is to see—if the names are not familiar—on what other boards they act. If their previous affiliations have been successful there is much more reason to suppose the new venture will be so likewise. And management is almost as important. For example, the bonds of the Canada Bread Company would probably have had a cool reception from the public had not Mark Bredin, well-known as a successful manager of this sort of business in a large way, been announced as managing-director of the enterprise.

So much for the question of safety of industrial bonds. The reader may wonder what degree of safety attends to this class of investment. If it were possible to make a general statement, as in the case of municipals, this prolonged discussion would have been unnecessary. Industrial bonds vary in safety from a very high degree down. No general conclusions can be depended upon, and the investor is forced to consider each issue upon its own merits, but with the aid of the suggestions here given and his own common sense he need not approach the matter with misgiving.

COLLISION ON C. P. R.

Freight Crashed Into Standing Train West of Pembroke.

A despatch from North Bay says: A serious freight wreck occurred on Thursday night at 7 o'clock on the Canadian Pacific Railway thirty miles west of Pembroke. Two freight trains, which left North Bay about noon on Thursday, eastbound, came together in a rear-end collision near Bass Lake. The leading train had stopped for some purpose at the foot of the grade, and in the early evening darkness and by some evident mistake in backflagging, the second train thundered down grade and crashed into the standing train, wrecking the caboose and demolishing ten cars and the locomotive. Engineer William Packer, of North Bay, was badly injured, and Fireman McKay, of Chalk River, is reported to be so seriously injured that he may die.

HAS STRONG GRIP YET.

Governor of Halifax Prison at 82 Refuses to Retire.

A despatch from Halifax, N.S., says: The governor of the city prison in Halifax is 82 years of age. He has held the position for 32 years, but still refuses to retire, and the City Council is wrestling with the question of his removal. A committee has been holding an investigation into alleged ill-treatment of a prisoner, but they have reached no conclusion reflecting on him. They recommend that a change be made in the governorship of the institution on account of his age. It is considered unlikely that this report will be adopted, and the probability is that the octogenarian governor will hold on for some time yet.

TRIP INTO UNGAVA WILDS

Gold-Seekers Will Attempt To Cross Territory Untrodden By Whites.

A despatch from Ottawa, says: News was received in Ottawa, from Frank W. Porter, one of the members of the Ungava gold expedition which left Dane, in the Nipissing mining district, on the overland trail about a month ago. The letter was posted at the last Hudson Bay post from which mail could be sent on the route of the gold-seekers. The party have with them provisions sufficient to last a[illegible] them provisions sufficient to last a[illegible] firearms, and expect to augment their supplies with what wild game they may be able to kill on the trail. The party is made up of eight experienced prospectors and explorers, several of whom have had experience in the Klondike and who went into that country over the old Edmonton and White Pass trails. The party is headed by Will Donaldson of Cobalt, also a Klondike miner, and former manager of the City of Cobalt and Wyando mines at Cobalt.

Among old bushmen the trip is looked upon as an extremely hazardous one. The party will go over and into territory unexplored and supposedly untrodden by white men. This particular territory is almost totally uninhabited, except by a few roving tribes of Eskimos who give the white man a wide berth.

The letter was brought to the nearest postoffice by a party of Indian fur traders, and was written on December 2. All were well, the letter stated, and the party was to leave the post that afternoon to continue its way into the wilderness. With the Indians at the post the coming of the party was a big event. The members of the expedition are each equipped with fur-lined suits, with Capuchin coats, sealskin boots and leggings, etc., and are fully prepared for the hardships they will have to endure.

It transpires that the party, which is headed for the northeastern shores of Hudson Bay, is making the desperate trip to head off two American boats, which it is reported are out-fitting at Boston and New York to proceed to the placer grounds said to have been located by the Roy brothers, French-Canadian trappers, three years ago. One of the Roys is a member of the Donaldson party.

EVERY PLACE ON THE WIDE PRAIRIES

TELLS OF CURES MADE BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Cold Springs, Peace River Landing, Alta., Dec. 26 (Special)—Just why Dodd's Kidney Pills retain their wonderful popularity is easily shown by a trip across the prairies. Every town, village and post-office has at least one man or woman who is ready to tell of pains relieved and health restored by the great Canadian Kidney Remedy. Let Thos. Griffin of this place add his statement to the hosts already published.

"When I came to this part of the country," says Mr. Griffin, "I was troubled with a bad back and Rheumatism in my shoulders and hips. I sent for six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they gave me relief at once. I also recommended them to my eldest son who was confined to his bed from Rheumatism.

"Now I know that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine for Rheumatism and the Kidneys. I recommend them to every person I hear complaining of not feeling well."

Dodd's Kidney Pills made their popularity by curing sick Kidneys. They keep their popularity by keeping on curing sick kidneys.

AUTHOR FOUGHT AMAZONS.

Frederic Martyn Tells of Adventures With French Foreign Legion

"I have held a commission in the British army and I have served in the ranks; I have been a traveller in strange places; I have lived a life full of vicissitude of sorts and I was for five strenuous and not unhappy years in the French Foreign Legion."

With this paragraph Frederic Martyn opens an account of his experiences as a member of the French Foreign Legion. He writes of campaigns in French Indo-China and against the Dahomeyans, and in both cases the fighting was often desperate.

Mr. Martyn joined, like many others, because of some sort of scrape at home. So probably did his first and firmest friend in the Legion, "Ivan Petrovski." That was what the young Russian called himself, although he may have been a nobleman for all the author ever could learn; a likable character, absurdly generous, hot tempered, dictatorial, and above all audacious.

Perhaps the campaign against the Dahomeyans is the most interesting. There, at all events, it was that the Amazons figured.

"The uniform of these female warriors," says the author, "was a sort of kilted divide skirt of blue cotton stuff. The garment barely reached to the knees. It was supported at the wist by a leather belt which carried the cartridge pouches. The upper part of their bodies was quite nude, but the head was covered with coquettish red fez or taboosh, in which was struck an eagle's feather."

In one place he says of Senegalese tirailleurs.

"A battalion of Amazons attacked them and gave them a very rough time indeed, but the tirailleurs stood their ground until re-enfo[illegible] Any on[illegible] the Ama[illegible] sex and lo[illegible] tween them [illegible]arine infantry. may take it [illegible]mpathize with sympathy wouldn't [illegible] of their

"These young women [illegible] and away the best [illegible]equal Dahomeyan army, and their man were quite a match [illegible] us. They were armed with [illegible]er repeating carbines and much better use of them than men made of their rifles; and [illegible] work at close quarters they had a small, heavy backed chopping sword or knife, very much like a South American machete, with which they did great execution. They fought like unchained demons, and if driven into a corner did not disdain the use of their teeth and nails."

It was in this same campaign that the following incident occurred:

A Dahomeyan warrior was killed while in the act of levelling his gun from behind a cotton tree at Capt. Battreau of the Legion at point blank range, and as he fell his rifle clattered down at the officer's feet. Capt. Battreau, seeing that it was an old Chassepot, picked it up out of curiosity, and suddenly became very much interested in it. He examined it very carefully, and then exclaimed with a gasp of astonishment:

"Well, this is something like a miracle! Here is the very rifle I used in 1870 during the war with Germany! See that hole in the butt? That was made by a Prussian bullet at Saint-Privat. I could tell that gun from among a million by that mark alone; but here's my number stamped on it as well, which is evidence enough for anybody. Who would have thought it possible that I could pick up in Africa, as a Captain, a rifle that I used in France, as a sergent, twenty-two years ago? It is incredible!"

Aside from the interest of the narrative, the book is valuable as conveying a notion of the personnel and power of the Foreign Legion. To the explanation of these things Mr. Martyn gives a good many pages, and makes comparisons between the Legion and the various divisions of the British army, with which he was intimate. His final estimate of the Legion's value he sums up in these words:

"Frankly, I think it is the finest fighting force the world has ever seen. Its value to France is not, however, to be measured by its values as a fighting force. The prestige of the Legion is so great with the ordinary French soldier that it occupies much the same position in the French army of to-day as the famous Old Guard occupied in the army of Napoleon, and the presence of a battalion of the Legion among a force of ordinary French troops will convince every soldier in that force that he is on the winning side."

THE MANSION HOUSE.

The Mansion House, which will be the future residence of the new Lord Mayor, was built by the elder Dance between 1739 and 1753, says the Westminster Gazette. This prolonged delay was caused by the discovery of numerous springs of water in digging the foundations, which had to be based upon piles. Originally the facade had a heavy attic story commonly called "The Mare's (Lover's) Nest." The famous Egyptian Hall, which is the principal room, was so styled because intended by the architect to reproduce exactly the Egyptian Hall described by Vitruvius. The cost of the Mansion House, £71,000, is alleged to have been partly defrayed from fines inflicted upon Nonconformist members of the Corporation for not receiving the the sacrament according to the rites of the Established Church, as required by the Corporation Act of Charles II.

Eczema Always Burning and Itching

Mr. N. Ostiguy.

Used Box of Cuticura Ointment and It Completely Disappeared.

"I have suffered from eczema for two years. The trouble began on one arm where there appeared a red spot of about a five-cent size, and it always widened, all the time itching and burning. The first days I didn't care, but seeing that it gained in size, I tried —— Ointment and —— Ointment, but both without success. It was always burning and itching. Having seen in the newspaper the advertisement of the Cuticura Remedies, I tried a little, and seeing that it improved, I bought a box of the Cuticura Ointment. After having used one box, my eczema completely disappeared. The Cuticura Ointment should be kept in every home." (Signed) N. Ostiguy, Marieville, Que., Jan. 14, 1911.

FACT AND FANCY.

There is a South African frog that hatches its eggs by carrying them in its mouth.

An aching tooth is, next to a conflagration, the best thing out.

The goldfish never sleeps.

Eggs, apples, potatoes and all such articles would sell more justly by the pound.

Guy Thorne has written a novel called The Drunkard. He studied the drink question in slum saloons, where, it appears, he was well treated.

A fight is called a scrap because, of course, it is a broken peace.

The greater the irritation in the throat the more distressing the cough becomes. Coughing is the effort of Nature to expel this irritating substance from the air passages. Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup will heal the inflamed parts, which exude mucous, and restore them to a healthy state, the cough disappearing under the curative effects of the medicine. It is pleasant to the taste, and the price, 25 cents, is within the reach of all.

THEIR CAPACITY.

Minard's Liniment Cures Garget in Cows.

Epping Forest, which is preserved by the Corporation of London as a people's pleasure ground, comprises no fewer than 5,300 acres.

Rub it in for Lame Back.—A brisk rubbing with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will cure lame back. The skin will immediately absorb the oil and it will penetrate the tissues and bring speedy relief. Try it and be convinced. As the liniment sinks in the pain comes out and there are ample grounds for saying that its touch is magical, as it is.

Fir-trees differ from pines only in the fact that the leaves grow singly and the scales of the cones are smooth, round, and thin.

NOT HIS LUCK.

"Aha!" and he laughed fiendishly as he read from the morning paper:

"The burglar shot the man, whose life was saved by the bullet striking against a button of his clothes."

"Well," snapped his wife, "what of that?"

"What of that!" said he, as he felt his collar going up steadily to the nape of his neck; "oh, nothing, except that the button must have been on!"

CANNED GOODS BENEFICIAL.

Minute Quantity of Ptomaines Good for Indigestion.

According to a report read before the French Academy of Science recently tinned or canned fish and shell fish preserved in oil or otherwise, always contain a small percentage of certain ptomaines (poisons of decaying flesh)—from .02 to .06 per cent by weight. These ptomaines, however, do not begin to increase in any appreciable degree until two days after the can has been opened, and while the oil rather favors than prevents the development of the ptomaines the investigators have found that they are not very poisonous. In fact, minute doses of them seem to act as a stimulant on the appetite and the digestion generally, just as the ptomaines found in cod liver oil.

THE UNION BANK A RECORD YEAR.

Office to be Moved to Winnipeg.

[illegible]cemi[illegible] Bank of Canada held [illegible]eral meeting at the Head [illegible] reports [illegible] Monday, De[illegible] and General [illegible]. The meet[illegible] in the bank's [illegible] one for sev[illegible] the fact that [illegible]st place, the [illegible]steps had been ta[illegible] President year. At the meeting the best [illegible] decided to remove the [illegible]ed from Quebec to Winnipeg was deemed a wise move, [illegible] the fact that out of its total [illegible] branches the bank has 156 west Lake Superior and 76 in Ontario, leaving only a comparatively few in the Provinces of Quebec and the Eastern Provinces. This decision on the part of the directors and shareholders to move the Head Office to Winnipeg is a recognition of the growing importance of the West.

The net profits for the year, after deducting expenses of management and making provision for all bad and doubtful debts, amounted to $662,437 as compared with $451,620 for the previous year. The earnings for 1911 were at the rate of 14 per cent. on the bank's average paid-up capital for the year. The premium on new stock issued amounted to $457,000, while the balance at credit of account on November 30th amounted to $80,000. These sums with the net earnings for the year made a total of $1,199,000 available for distribution. Of this large sum dividends absorbed $361,000, the sum of $200,000 was transferred to the rest account, as well as $457,000 transferred to the same account from premium on new stock, making a total transferred to the rest account of $657,000. The sum of $100,000 was written off bank premiums account and the officers' pension fund received $10,000, leaving a balance carried forward of $71,957.

A further examination of the report shows that the bank is making rapid progress in every department. The amount of notes in circulation increased during the year by $1,300,000, the total deposits by over $7,600,000, which now stands at $45,232,000. The paid up capital increased by $914,000 and the rest account by nearly $600,000. The total assets of the bank now stand at $58,434,000 as compared with $46,555,000 for the previous year. The increase in the bank's capital, deposits and assets puts it in a position to do a larger business during the coming year. These increases also show a gain in the confidence of the public.

During the year the Union Bank absorbed the United Empire Bank of Toronto, which had twelve branches in Ontario and a paid up capital of $559,000. Later in the year it established a branch in London, England, being one of the four Canadian banks having branches in Great Britain. Altogether the bank has been showing marked progress and enters upon the new year equipped to do even better work.

EXCEPTIONS.

"Not for the men who have escaped being hanged."

Pills of Attested Value.—Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the result of careful study of the properties of certain roots and herbs, and the action of such as sedatives and laxatives on the digestive apparatus. The success the compounders have met with attests the value of their work. These pills have been recognized for many years as the best cleansers of the system that can be got. Their excellence was recognized from the first and they grow more popular daily.

SUSPICIOUS.

HICKS' FORECASTS FOR JANUARY

A reactionary storm period will make itself felt, in a progressive way, from west to east, central on the 2nd, 3rd and 4th. It will bring decided rise in temperature, falling barometer, with rain, turning to snow and sleet as storms advance eastwardly across the country. A seismic period, covering six to seven days, is central on the 4th. Great extremes from high to low winter temperatures will mark this and other January periods. A regular storm period, central on the 7th, covers the 5th to the 9th. This period under the Venus influence, promises to take up the disturbances immediately preceding it, causing a prolonged spell of stormy, disagreeable weather. The period will culminate on and touching 9th, in possible thunder and rain, with sudden change to freezing, blizzard and high north gales. A very low barometer at the first stage of these storms will be warning of a great and far-reaching cold wave, which will prevail generally, and far into the south, from about the 9th, to 12th.

PASTOR RESIGNED—Rev. R. Hobbs surprised his congregation in James Street Methodist church on Sunday last when he announced at the close of the service that he had tendered his resignation to the president of the conference, the same to take effect immediately. His farewell sermons will be preached on Sunday next. Much good work has been accomplished in the church during the pastorate of Mr. Hobbs,—to wit, the re-decoration of the church, the enlargement and rearrangement of the gallery, the installing of the memorial windows and the building of the new shed—but as an unfortunate difference has arisen between the pastor and the people, in addition to an unfortunate affliction having overtaken Mr. Hobbs, he has apparently considered that a severing of his connection with the church immediately was the best thing to be done under the circumstances. Rev. Mr. Hobbs has our sincerest sympathy in his affliction, which happily is gradually wearing away, and will have our best and kindness wishes, whether he be stationed elsewhere or superannuated Rev. Hobbs has given almost forty years of faithful service to the ministry.

AN EXCELLENT ENTERTAINMENT —The annual entertainment under the auspices of the Trivitt Memorial Sunday School was held in the Opera House Thursday evening. The program consisted of a pantomime entitled, "Little Snow-White and the ten Dwarfs." The drama is a very pretty one and lends itself admirably to amateur and junior performers. The varied character of the plot affords ample opportunity to display many attractive costumes to great advantage. The Queen, a vain selfish person, who is insanely jealous of the growing beauty of her stepdaughter, Snow-White, decides to have her murdered, and orders a country swain to execute her commands. Instead of doing this he conducts the princess to the kingdom of Arcadee, to a cottage inhabited by ten dwarf miners, who install them as master and mistress. The queen by magic learns of the whereabouts of the princess, and under the guise of a peasant sells poisoned fruit and leaves the princess in a faint. Fairies appear and sustain life. The Prince of Arcadee places a mystic ring on the finger of the princess, which restores her to animation. The drama ends well as all Christmas plays should end. The following is the cast.—Little Snow-White, Lillian Boyle Queen of Poppyland, Birdie Boyle; Prince of Arcadee, Herb. Southcott; Nobe, his sister, Miss Handford; Podgo, the jester, Jack Southcott; Ten Dwarfs,——; Chief Baron, Reg. Bissett; Lady of the Shoe-string, M. Davis Lady of the Kerchiefs, B. Atkinson; Lady of the Fan, C. Davis; Lady of the Tresses, M. Acheson; Maids and Fairies; Queen's Jester, Wm. Lightfoot; Director, J. H. Marchant; First Violin, D. Sanders; Second Violin, C. Fisher. All the performers took their parts splendidly, and received repeated applause from the delighted audience. The drama will likely be played again in January. The proceeds amounted to about $85.

The waterworks by-law to expend an additional $5000 in laying mains was carried. There were 562 available votes. One-third of this was required on such a by-law, or 188; and as the by-law vote stood 195 for and 187 against it is therefore carried.

Below the vote is given in detail.—

TO THE ELECTORS OF EXETER.—I hereby express my appreciation to the electors of Exeter for re-electing me to the Council Board for this year. I shall give the duties of the office the same careful attention as before.W. RIVERS

NICE XMAS PRESENT

Fred Rosseau, a Toronto Traveller who recently had both his legs cut off at Blyth when he fell under a train, found $1,435 in a purse for him on the Christmas tree held for the patients in Wingham Hospital. The money was from the Travellers' Association, of which Rosseau was a member. Rosseau was completely overcome by the kindness of his comrades.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC VOTE

Ratepayers in more than thirty municipalities on Monday gave their assent to Hydro-Electric by-laws, and not a single place defeated the by-law. Among the places to carry the by-law were,—Peterboro, Kingston, Lakefield, Prescott, Lucan, Exeter, Paris, Blyth, Hensall, Tilsonburg, Brussels, Alisa Craig, Thornbury, Hagerville, Wingham Clinton, Goderich, Listowel, Wiarton, Caledonia, Port Credit, Southampton, Paisley, Kincardine, Collingwood, Owen Sound, Thornbury.

TOOK OVERDOSE OF DRUG

Wingham, Dec. 28th.—William Rennie, aged 20, is dead, and Thomas Kennedy, is very seriously ill as a result of taking an overdose of bromide and chloral. Kennedy will recover.

Rennie came from London, England, three years ago, and had ever since been employed by Dr. J. P. Kennedy. Last evening he complained of being unable to sleep and asked Dr. Kennedy to give him morphine. The doctor refused and advised him against the use of the drugs. He gave Rennie a small bottle of bromide and advised him to take that. Rennie, apparently, took it all, and it is believed wanting some more, he went down to the doctor's office, and while Dr. Kennedy was out, took a bottle containing bromide and chloral, believing it to be the same stuff. On going back to the Hotel National, where he boarded, he went into the room of Thos. Kennedy, an architect from Toronto, who is here superintending the new factory being built for the Foundry Co., and gave him some of the drug, and took a large dose himself. Both men soon afterwards were overcome. The affair was not discovered until after midnight, when the proprietor, attracted by the heavy breathing of the two, decided to investigate. He found both men lying on the bed in Kennedy's room, unconscious, and all efforts to rouse them were futile. A doctor was at once called. Rennie however was too far gone, and died soon afterwards. Kennedy will recoved.

Mrs. Ed. Willis is very ill at her home.

Here's wishing luck to the bachelors this year.

The curlers enjoyed their first curl on the rink Wednesday afternoon.

The New Year visitors, were not as numerous this year as in former years.

Clinton Sweet's hand is now wholly recovered from the wound made by a 22-rifle bullet recently.

How about those New Year resolutions? Are they still good, or are they old and broken already?

Have you noticed that the day's are lengthening again? Happily with it there is a decrease of the electric light bill.

Mr. Thos. Kemick left on Wednesday, Dec. 27th, for New Westminster with a carload of horses for Mr. Handford of Vancouver.

The assembly given in McDonell's Hall on Friday evening was largely attended, and was a very pleasant affair. Many from a distance were present.

Mr. Thos. Creech has sold his house and Mr. James Creech his farm property to Mr. Herb. Ford. Tom has agreed with Mrs. McAvoy on a purchase price for her residence on William Street.

Mr. Wm. Russell of Hay township has purchased the dwelling on Gidley owned by Mr. Chas. F. Hooper, while Mr. Hooper has purchased Dr. Bright's residence on Andrew Street. We understand Dr. Bright and family will be leaving town shortly and that Mr. Russell will move to town next fall.

Prof. Chas. E. Wheeler, organist of St. Andrews church, London, will give an organ recital in Caven Presbyterian church on Jan. 5th, the occasion being the formal opening of the new organ, which is the gift of Miss Fanny Bawden. As Prof. Wheeler is an expert, and the organ is a magnificent instrument a first-class entertainment is assured.

For the first time in the history of Ontario the hotel bars were closed on Christmas Day. The law has been in force two years, but in 1910 Christmas Day fell on Sunday. The closing of the bar on that day seems to have met with the approval of all. The hotelkeepers themselves approve of the law. The bars were also closed on New Year's Day, it being election day.

[illegible] pleasure to note that the [illegible]rs of Exeter, are in favor of progress, and that they voted for both by-laws on Monday. The waterworks by-law was carried by seven votes only, while the power by-law received a very large majority.

LOCAL OPTION CONTESTS

About 15 out of 70 Local Option contests were successful on Monday. About 20 places defeated the measure on The Three-Fifths Vote, while 35 defeated it on majority. The by-law was sustained in the 15 places where repeals were tried, which point shows the great value of the three-fifths clause. The results follow.—

Chris and Sam Voekler, Adam and George Finkbeiner of Detroit spent a few days in town visiting their parents.

Garnet Sweitzer had the misfortune to get his right hand in the rollers at the Grist mill last Friday and is now carrying a bandaged hand. It was indeed fortunate that he managed to free himself in time.

Miss McNab who has been Milliner at C. Zwicker's the past season has returned to her home in Kemptville.

On Sunday evening watch-night services were held in the Evangelical Church. The officers of the Sunday school were elected for the New Year as follows; Supt., J. H. Holtzman; Ass't. Supt., Chris Fahner; Sec Ezra Falst Treas., Dan Oestreicher; Librarian, Alfred Wuerth and Chorister Albert Morlock.

Election of officers of the I. O. O. F. will be held in the Lodge room on Friday night. A good attendance is requested. Matters of great importance are to be considered.

Frank Finkbeiner has returned to London after spending a few days here with his parents.

We are pleased to learn that Mrs. J. K. Schroeder, who is at present in Victoria Hospital, London, is rapidly improving in health.

Mrs. Garnet Baker of London is visiting her sister Miss Ella Beaver.

The Misses Dorothy and Margaret Kuntz of Exeter have been visiting their aunt Mrs. Link for a few days.

The municipal Elections passed off quietly. A good vote was polled. The much-talked of Cow tag by-law was accepted by 101 majority. The council will havet heir first meeting of the new year next Monday at 11 a.m.

Painfully Burned—Mr. Fred Kerr met with a painful accident on Sunday last He was about to start the gasoline engine and in some manner a quantity of gasoline was split on his right hand, and it becoming ignited his hand was severely burned. The injury was dressed and while suffering considerable pain it is improving.

Don't forget to vote for the Hydro electric By-law on Saturday the 13th, Other towns around us are voting for it and we might as well have some of the good things that come along. Don't knock your town, boost it.

Miss Polly of Goderich spent New Year's day in town the guest of Mrs. James Hodgins.

Skating has started. So far the rink hasn't been in shape but the ponds in the field are making good skating. Fred Irish of the Bank staff had a nasty fall on Monday, cutting his forehead and was obliged to have a few stitches put in.

Mrs. Bertrand and daughter Miss Madeline have returned home from Detroit after spending the holidays here.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel Huxtable have returned to Hamilton after a short visit in town.

At the school meeting held last Wednesday, Henry Sweitzer was re-elected trustee. The matter of adopting a different system of heating was discussed but so far nothing definitely has been decided upon.

Our village was shocked to learn of the death of Mrs. Bernard Brown Jr., which took place on Thursday. Mrs. Brown had been ailing for some time but no one thought her illness to be of a serious nature. Her remains were interred in the Evangelical Cemetery on Sunday last, the Rev. Burn officiating After the burial service was held in the church at which the pastor delivered a very appropriate sermon in the German and English languages. The deceased was 51 years of age and was highly respected in the neighborhood. She was an active worker in the Ladies Aid and in the church. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, four sons and three daughters besides a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community.

DASHWOOD

Herman Zimmer and sister Ella have returned from a visit in Buffalo.—Miss Emma Caliles is visiting in Thedford and Sarnia.—Miss Eldon Goetz of Stratford is spending the holidays with his parents.—School re-opened Tuesday, the teaching staff being the same, Miss Duclop, Miss Graham and Mr. Shore.—John Nadiger of Pigeon, Mich., is visiting his parents.—Miss Olida Weldin is visiting in Berlin.—Mrs. Jacob Fisher unfortunately fell on the sidewalk and broke her leg the other day. We trust she may soon recover.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan. Mornyk of Kalamazoo, Mich., visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Nadiger over the holidays.

Among the holiday visitors here during the past week were.—F. Case of Sarnia, Miss Martha Oestreicher of the North Western College, Naperville, Ill; Misses Saloma and Emma Treman of London; Gordon Goetz of Sarnia; Wilb Graybel of Chatham Business College; Chester Gaiser of Alvinston; Miss Ida Willert of Toronto; George Wambold of Berlin.—Among the Dashwood people out of town were,—H. F. Steer to Ridgetown; Messrs. Wm. Willert and Alex. Zimmer at Buffalo, Miss Graham at Goderich.—Archie Routledge has returned from the west, where he spent the summer.—Mr. Herb. Miller, after spending the summer at Snowflake, Man., is home on a visit.

The many Dashwood people who have spent the festive season out of town have now resumed the usual course of duty at home, while those who holidayed with relatives and friends here have returned to their homes. Although we had no sleighing this Christmas and New Year season the weather has been fine and the getting-about good, so that even the "green Xmas," has been thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The absorbing topic this week has been the approaching and now past elections to municipal offices. Our townsman, Mr. Henry Willert, has again landed on top in the contest for the reeveship, defeating his opponent, Mr. W.D. Sanders by 53 votes. The Dashwood poll particularly did remarkably well for Mr. Willert. Now we are looking to see him made Warden of the County.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

Beaucaire came a step nearer. Clearly he did not recall the barrister's face. He knew well that his daughter's attainments were not such as to command the eager search of London theatrical managers, yet he was assured that the individual who now addressed him was not an ordinary music-hall agent, hunting up fees.

"I regret," he said, "that mademoiselle is not professionally engaged at this moment. Indeed, she has not appeared in public for some months. May I ask how monsieur came to hear of her name?"

"It is the easiest matter in the world," said Brett with his ready smile, producing his note-book and rapidly turning over the leaves. "I have here the names and addresses of a large number of artists whom I was recommended to visit. Mademoiselle's name was given to me among others at the Cirque d'Hiver, where I heard most encouraging accounts of her skill. You see, monsieur," he went on, "that in England the public are not acquainted with any other language than their own and when Continental artistes are engaged we prefer those whose performance consists chiefly of acrobatic or other feats in which dialogue is unnecessary."

The barrister's ready explanation was sufficient. Nevertheless Beaucaire was puzzled. But even the most vulgar or brutal Frenchman is endowed with a certain amount of politeness, and in this instance Gros Jean felt that his visitor should be treated deferentially.

"I am most sorry," he cried, "to be unable to assist monsieur any further. If, however, you leave me your address I will communicate with you after I have heard from my daughter. I have no doubt that she will readily come to terms."

"I think you said that mademoiselle was in the South of France?" observed Brett casually.

Instantly Beaucaire became suspicious again.

"No," he replied shortly; "I do not think I said so."

"Of course not," laughed Brett. "How foolish of me! It was I who mentioned the South of France, was it not? You see that French is a foreign language to me, and I do not express myself very easily."

Beaucaire grinned politely again:

"Permit me to congratulate monsieur upon both his pronunciation and facility. Not many Englishmen speak French as he does."

The barrister was determined not to allow the conversation to end too rapidly. He wished to note more carefully the details of this interesting household. Pulling out his cigar-case, he offered it to Gros Jean with the remark, "Your small French tables seem curious to my eyes after long acquaintance with English billiards. Are any of these gentlemen here skilled players in your fashion?"

"Oh, yes," said the innkeeper. "Andre there, for instance, can make big breaks. I have seen him make forty consecutive coups. Will you not take a seat for a little while and observe the play?"

"With pleasure." And Brett confirmed the favorable opinion formed of him by ordering refreshments for Beaucaire and himself. He apparently took a keen interest in the game, and applauded the manner in which the Frenchman scored a series of difficult cannons.

Meanwhile he noted that between the private passage from the bar and the public one that led from the cafe was a room into which the [illegible] day could not possibly pene[illegible] He was certain that no door [illegible]nicated with it from the pub[illegible] passage, and he could not remember having passed one that first afternoon when La Belle Chasseuse brought him and Fairholme into the billiard-room to display her prowess as a marks-woman.

Probably the Cafe Noir had no cellars. The place might serve as a store room. This natural hypothesis was upset by the appearance of the waiter, who passed through the billiard-room and opened another door at the further end, through which he soon emerged carrying a fresh supply of bottles.

"It is obvious," said Brett to himself, "that if there is no door communicating with the private passage, then the only way in which that room can be reached is by a ladder from the top. Now I won[illegible] what should be necessary!" [illegible] the billiard-room [illegible] when Gros [illegible] after him to direct him as to the right way he rapidly surveyed the passage. The plaster walls were smooth and unbroken on their inner side, affording no doorway exit.

Apologizing to Andre with a laugh, he then sauntered towards the front cafe, where he purchased another drink at the counter. He assured himself that he had not been mistaken. The only private door out of the bar led into the passage, so that the room beyond could only be reached by a staircase or through a trap-door.

"I have learned something, at any rate," he murmured as he passed out into the Boulevard, "and I imagine that my knowledge is not shared by the Paris police. Mademoiselle would have acted more wisely had she not yielded to impulse, and reserved her shooting display for a more dramatic occasion."

Brett kept his appointment with the commissary next morning. That worthy official set himself to the congenial task of examining a prisoner with the air of one who said: "Now you will see what manner of man I am. Here I am on my native heath."

He consulted bulky volumes, made notes, fussily called up various subordinates, both in person and by speaking-tube, and generally conducted himself with a business-like air that much amused the barrister, who, however, for his own purposes took care to appear greatly impressed.

At last all was ready, and the captive of the Rue Barbette was introduced.

This precocious personage had recovered his self-possession and natural impudence during the night. By the commissary's instructions, he had been well supplied with eatables, and the restrictions as to persons under detention were relaxed, to permit him to enjoy a supply of his much-loved cigarettes. Consequently, the little thief was restored to his usual state of jaunty cheekiness.

The first part of the interrogation, which promptly ensued, was not strange to him.

"Your name?" said the commissary.

"Charles Petit."

"Abode?"

"Changeable. Of late I have dwelt in the Cabaret Noir Boulevard de Montmartre."

"You are generally known as 'The Worm?'"

"That is so."

"You have served periods of imprisonment, and have paid over 400 francs in fines?"

"I have not kept count, but I suppose it is all written down there." And he jerked his thumb towards the conviction book on the commissary's desk.

"You are a noted thief, and you obtained your nickname by reason of your dexterity in picking locks and climbing through scullery windows?"

"If you say so, monsieur, your words cannot be disputed."

"Very well." The commissary scratched a few lines on a memorandum tablet. Then he suddenly raised his quick eyes and fastened them on the prisoner with the direct question—

"How came you to be detained in such an extraordinary manner in the house, No. 11, Rue Barbette, yesterday?"

A vacant and stolid expression intended to convey an idea of utter innocence came over "The Worm's" face.

"Believe me, monsieur," he said, "I cannot give you the slightest explanation of that extraordinary incident."

"Indeed! You surprise me. I suppose you wish me to understand that you casually strolled in out of the street and were set upon by three Turks, who gagged you and bound you with leather thongs, leaving you to starve quietly to death if you had not been rescued by reason of a chance visit paid to the place by myself and others?"

"I assure you, monsieur, that, strange as it may seem, you have almost related the facts. I went to the place in question with a very ordinary message from a Turkish gentleman with whom I have a slight acquaintance. The other Turks listened to me with the gravity peculiar to their nation, and then, before I could offer a word of remonstrance, treated me exactly as you saw."

"And what time did you go there?"

"It must have been nearly three o'clock, the day before yesterday," was the answer.

"And what message did you [illegible] ask the Turkish [illegible] enough to [illegible] half- [illegible] be in-

"Oh! come now," said the commissary, with a knowing smile, "that will not do, Petit. You are far too old a hand to convey such a childish message as that. What reason can you have for seeking to shield these men who treated you in a barbarous way and left you to die a cruel death?"

"On my honor——" began the thief melodramatically, but Brett here interrupted the conversation.

"Will you allow me," he said to the commissary, "to put a few questions to this man?" "Certainly," was the answer.

"Now listen," said Brett, sternly gazing at the truculent little rascal with those searching eyes of his which seemed to reach to the very spine. "It is useless for you to attempt any further prevarication. We know exactly who are your confederates. You are acquainted with a large number of the gang that frequents the Cafe Noir. Do not forget that I was present when you tried to palm off on Hussein-ul-Mulk the false diamonds, which your confederates hoped he would accept. For you to attempt now to escape from the law is hopeless. The sole chance you have of remitting a punishment which may even lead you beneath the gullotine is to confess fully and freely all that you know concerning the outrage which has been committed."

"No, don't interrupt me," he continued with even greater emphasis, when "Le Ver" tried to break in. "You will tell me that you merely acted as the agent of others, and that you yourself are not conscious of the nature of any crime that has been committed. I know that to be so. You have been made a mere tool. You are the cat, simply employed by the monkey to pull the chestnuts out of the fire, and you have only succeeded in getting your own paws burnt. Your sole chance of safety now is to inform the commissary and me exactly how you came to be mixed up with this affair."

"I assure you, gentlemen," he cried, "that with respect to the Turks I have no knowledge whatever of their pursuits or motives. I was present when this English gentleman here was debating with them, and I understood that they even went so far as to use threats against him. My mission was to give to the leaders of the Turks a package which I did not even know contained diamonds, either genuine or false. No one could be more surprised than myself when the Turkish gentleman produced them."

"Who sent you there with the diamonds?" said Brett.

"Even that I cannot tell you," said Petit. "It was a mere chance affair. I was seated in a cafe sipping some absinthe when a man asked me if I would execute a small commission for him. He explained that it was to deliver a parcel at a house not five minutes distant, and——"

"I see," interrupted Brett, with the cynical smile which so often disconcerted glib liars like Petit. "It is hopeless to expect you to tell the truth. However, I think I know a way to clear your wits. You must be brought face to face with La Belle Chasseuse. Perhaps when you are confronted with that lady in the room between the cafe and billiard saloon of the Carbaret Noir——"

"The Worm" gasped out brokenly—

"Pardon, monsieur! I will tell you everything!"

The man's face had absolutely become livid as he listened to the barrister's words.

The commissary was vastly surprised at the turn taken by the conversation. He could not guess what deep significance lay behind the Englishman's threat, and, to tell the truth, Brett himself was considerably astonished at the effect of his vague insinuations, but he lost not a moment in following up the advantage thus gained.

"Well," he said, "tell us now who it was that sent you to the Turks with the diamonds?"

"It was Le Jongleur, Henri Dubois."

"What?" cried the commissary, staring violently. "Henri Dubois! the most expert thief in France! A scoundrel against whom the police have vainly tried for years to secure evidence."

SLEEPY TOWN.

A former resident of Marshall, Mo., was asking about the old town.

"I understand they have a curfew law out there now," he said.

"No," his informant answered, "they did have one, but they've abandoned it."

"What was the matter?"

"Well, the bell rang at 9 o'clock, and almost everybody complained that it woke them up."

HABITS OF GIRLS.

When should a girl change her name?"

"Well, she usually changes her first name when she goes to high school, and her last name whenever she can."

The fire of genius is often unable to make the pot boil.

HOW TO USE A DRAG.

The successful operation of a road drag involves two principles, which, when thoroughly understood and intelligently applied, make road working with this implement very simple. The first concerns the length and position of the hitch, while the second deals with the position of the driver on the drag. Each influences the other to a large extent, and successful manipulation of the drag is dependent upon an understanding of both of them, writes Mr. D. W. King.

For ordinary purposes the hitch link or clevis should be fastened far enough toward the blade end of the chain to force the unloaded drag to follow the team at an angle of 45 degrees. This will cause the earth to move along the face of the drag smoothly and will give comparatively light draft to the team, provided the driver rides in the line of draft. Sometimes, however, conditions are met which require special treatment, and in a rolling country such conditions are not infrequent. Often a flat place several rods in length or a seepy spot needs special attention.

The distance from the drag at which the team is hitched affects the depth of the cutting. Shortening the chain tends to lift the front slab from the ground; a longer hitch causes the blade to cut more deeply. The length of hitch may be regulated by lengthening and shortening the chain at the end which runs through the hole in the blade end of the drag. If small weeds are to be cut the double tree should be attached rather closer to the ditch end of the drag. The drag will now move nearly ditch end foremost, and the driver should stand with one foot on the extreme end of the front slab. This will swing the drag back to the proper angle and will cause the blade to plow.

The drag does the best work when the soil is moist, but not sticky. The earth then moves freely along the faces of the slabs. If the roadway is very badly rutted and full of holes, it may be well to use the drag once when the ground is slushy. This treatment is particularly applicable before cold spell in winter when it is possible to have a roadway freeze smooth.

A smooth road surface is secured by this method. Clay, when mixed with water and thoroughly worked, becomes remarkably tough and impervious to water. If compacted in this condition it becomes extremely hard.

Another valuable result of dragging is the reduction of dust, for the particles of clay cohere so tenaciously that there is but little wear when the surface is smooth. Dust on an earth road is due to the breaking up under traffic of the frayed and upturned edges of ruts and hoof prints. If the surface is smoothed after each rain and the road dries hard and even, so edges are exposed to crushing and the only dust which forms is that due to actual wear of the road surface.

Certain sections of the roadway will require more attention than others because of steep grades, seepages, exposure to hillside wash, etc. The best guide in meeting these conditions is the knowledge and experience gained while dragging the roadway.

There is one condition, however, in which special treatment should be given to a road. Clay hills under persistent dragging frequently become too high in the center. To correct this it is best to drag the earth toward the center of the road twice and away from it once.

NOTES OF THE SHEEPFOLD.

All pure bred sires are not good. We would rather have a large, well formed, vigorous, verile scrub ram than a puny, ill-formed, pure-blood. In buying rams it is just as necessary to study individuality as it is to have pure blood.

We have seen some mighty poor specimens of men who boasted of their high lineage, and we have seen some extremely poor specimens of sheep that had pedigrees as long as your arm.

A flock will go through a winter in good shape in an open shed provided it has a dry roof, but no flock will ever thrive on wet footing.

Sheep are nervous animals and of rather delicate constitutions and suffer more from bad ventilation and overcrowding than any other animal on the farm; it is a mistake, therefore, to confine sheep during the winter in close quarters. If kept dry their fleeces will keep them warm. Who ever heard of sheep freezing to death?

The rams should never be fed fattening food, but should be given the kind of food that will add strength and stamina. They must never be allowed to run with the ewes at will, but should be separated from them.

IN AND AROUND THE DAIRY.

Every dairyman must, if he will succeed, employ a detective in his dairy barn—a Babcock tester. This detective is absolutely honest, shows favors to nobody and always records facts from all the facts. The poor cows stand no chance against it.

If we allow buyers to come into our herds and pick out the best cows how can we ever expect to build up a profitable dairy?

We knew a farmer who always cured his calves of scours by breaking raw eggs into their mouths. A better way, however, is dried blood fed in moderate quantities at the start.

No matter at what price you sell the poor cows it is generally safe to say you get all they are worth and a little more, particularly if she is to be classed as a dairy animal.

Never milk the cow with wet hands. No more filthy habit is indulged in than that of milking on the hand in order to strip the teat. Milking should always be done with a full, dry hand.

ANCIENT BABYLON.

How and By Whom the Banking Business Was Carried on.

Recent discoveries of the wonders of Babylonian civilization, reenforced by the fruits of earlier explorations, show that "Business is business" as a rule of life is as old as history, says the Accountant.

As far back as 2000 years before Christ the Babylonians had made such progress in commercial aptitude that special laws had to be framed to deal with those gentlemen who tried shortcuts to wealth. The young man with expectations realized in those days with less regard to the sacredness of the person and the right to live, borrowed, as his modern prototype not infrequently does to-day, from the professional money lender.

The Babylonian merchant banked regularly and issued his brick "cheques" and bills of exchange, and the law stepped in, even as it does to-day, to preserve inviolate the rights of property. So keen were the business instincts of the people that even the priests were not above a deal in offerings and in real estate. Indeed a great part of the commerce of Babylonia was concentrated in the temples.

The vast quantities of metals, cereals and other commodities which either as gifts to the temples or offerings to the gods poured in daily were sold by the priests, who did not neglect to get their full margin of profit. Business ability indeed seems to have been an important qualification for admission to the priesthood.

Careful accounts of revenue and expenditure were kept, and these show that investments in loans and the purchase of land and other profitable dealings were a regular part of the fiscal activities of the priestly establishments.

Perhaps the most interesting of all the buried record which have come to light are the contract tablets kept by a firm of bankers and money lenders known as "the sons of Egibi," established at Babylon before the time of Sennacherib, probably as early as 1000 B.C., and which existed for several centuries. These "brick books," as they have been called, constitute the chief source of our acknowledge of life in ancient Babylon.

The firm of Egibi possessed enormous wealth and influence and have been designated the "Rothschilds of the ancient world." They carried on every sort of financial transaction. They made loans to the State, as well as to private persons, and the finances of the court were entrusted to them for several generations. They collected the land taxes, tithes and dues for the use of public roads and paid them into the royal treasury.

They also undertook what we should now describe as "agencies" for private individuals, and in addition to their vast money lending transactions must also have engaged in what we now term "banker's" business, for we know that documents existed in those early days corresponding to modern checks and bills of exchange. The various transactions of the firm were noted down on clay tablets, which were stored in great earthe' ware jars for safety, and earthenware jars for safety, and there they remained until they few years ago.

All bear the names of the contracting parties and witnesses, and most of them are dated. The Egibi firm were not the only great trading firm in ancient Babylonia, as during the excavations at Niffer there were discovered the records of another firm, known as Murasu, which rose to a position of great wealth and importance during the fifth century B.C.

HOUSEHOLD

TESTED RECIPES.

Chicken Turnovers.—If you have too small a quantity of chicken to serve in any other way, try chicken turnovers. Mince the meat fine, season with salt, pepper, and a pinch of nutmeg or mace, and moisten well with cold chicken gravy. Roll out some short pie crust, and cut in rounds the size of a saucer. Wet the edges with cold water, place one tablespoon of meat dotted with bits of butter, on one half of the round, fold over the other half, turning up the edges a little and pinching them well together. Bake in the oven or fry in deep fat.

Graham Bread.—When mixing sponge for five or six loaves of white bread, take half of sponge, add scant half teacup of cooking molasses, two tablespoons of sugar, and one cup of white flour. Then mix with fine ground graham flour into a smooth, hard loaf, not a sticky mess. When light, put in pans and let loaves double in size. Bake a trifle longer than ordinary white bread.

Homemade Sausage.—Use two pounds lean pork (fresh), one pound fat pork, three teaspoons salt, three teaspoons sifted sage, two teaspoons white pepper, and put through meat chopper.

Almond Surprise.—Dissolve one package of raspberry gelatin and half a pint of granulated sugar in one and a half pints of boiling raspberry juice from canned fruit, as this imparts a better flavor; strain it, then stand away to cool. When it is slightly stiff stir into it half a pound of ground or rolled chocolate almond; put it in the refrigerator, and when perfectly firm serve icy cold turned out upon a glass dish, or in individual glass punch glasses, with one tablespoonful of whipped cream on top of each cup. It is well to prepare all dishes where gelatin is used the day before they are required, thus giving them ample time to stiffen, and avoiding anxiety on the part of the cook.

Banana Bisque.—Beat one white egg with one tablespoon cream; heat one-half pint cream and one-half pint milk in chafing dish, salt, pepper, and add a pinch of celery salt. Then pour in egg mixture, beating or stirring until smooth, and lastly add one sliced banana. Serve with spoonful whipped cream on top.

Cheese Dainties.—Take two cakes of cheese; mash; add tablespoon sweet cream or mayonnaise dressing and one-quarter cup of finely chopped walnut meats. Mix well with a pinch of salt; mold into balls (size of a hickory nut), saving a small portion of the nuts to roll the balls in. These can be served with salads or as a relish in place of olives.

Quick Lemon Pie.—Prepare the crust in the same way as for custard pie. Take yellow rind and juice of one lemon; add one cup of sugar, one cup of cold water; roll and add four soda crackers and yolks of two eggs well beaten. Mix all well and pour into the crust. Bake same as custard. When done cover with the well beaten whites of the eggs to which has been added one tablespoon of sugar. Put back in oven and brown.

Succotash. — After soaking a quart of dry Lima beans over night, rinse well; put to cook in a granite kettle with cold water, and let boil about twenty minutes. Put in a teaspoonful of baking soda; let simmer for fifteen minutes; pour off the water and add fresh boiling water, a tablespoonful of sugar and the same of salt. Let cook until tender, then add a can of sweet corn, also one-half pint of sweet cream, a lump of butter, pepper and salt to taste. Set back on stove and let simmer slowly about twenty minutes.

Cold Tomato Sauce.—Peel and chop fine half peck of tomatoes. Drain through colander. Chop fine two large stalks of celery, two large red peppers, half cup of chopped onions, half cup grated horseradish, one cup of dark and yellow mustard seeds mixed, one cup of brown sugar, half cup salt, one teaspoonful each of ground cinnamon, mace, cloves, and black pepper, two teaspoonfuls of alspice, and one quarte of the best cider vinegar. Mix well together; put in two quart glass jars and seal. It needs no corking and will keep for a year.

CAKES.

Inexpensive Pound Cake. — To one and one-half cups flour add one cup of butter, one and one-half cups of sugar, one-half teaspoon of baking powder. Beat butter and flour to a cream. Beat four eggs and sugar light; put all together and add the baking powder. Bake in a tube pan in a moderate oven forty-five minutes.

Almond Frosting.—To two pounds and sweet almonds, add one bitter almonds or one teaful essence of almonds, one half cups sugar, three-fourths cup water. Boil until syrup will thread, then pour it over the almonds, which have been mixed with the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Beat until cool enough to spread; let stand two days; then ice.

Boiled Icing.—Boil one cup of granulated sugar, a pinch of cream of tartar, and one-half cup of water until it spins a thread when dropped from the spoon. Pour it on the stiffly beaten white of one egg; continue beating until stiff enough to stand alone; add flavoring and spread quickly on the cake with a knife dipped in hot water.

Fruit Cake.—Cream, one-half pound butter, with one-half pound sugar, one-half pound and two ounces flour; brown half the flour in the oven; separate the yolks from the whites of eight eggs and add beaten yolks to first mixture. Put one teaspoonful of cream of tartar into the whites, beat well, and add to mixture. Then add the flour well sifted with one nutmeg grated, three teaspoonfuls of cassia and one-fourth teaspoonful of ground cloves. Reserve flour enough to dredge two and one-half pounds currants, one-half pounds citron, one-quarter pound candied lemon peel, one-half pound ground almonds, two teaspoonfuls vanilla, one teaspoonful essence of ratafia, one glass brandy. Mixture will keep indefinitely.

Sponge Cake.—The best way to make sponge cake without powder is by taking six eggs, one cup of powdered sugar, and one and one-half tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Beat well, then add one cup of flour gradually, and stir while adding flour. Then bake in slow oven for one hour.

Coffee Cake.—To three-quarters cup sugar add one teaspoon butter, one cup milk, two eggs, two heaping teaspoons baking powder. Stir in flour enough to make a good batter. Put in shallow baking pan, sprinkle over top with chopped peanuts and cinnamon, and bake about twenty minutes in moderate oven.

AROUND THE HOUSE.

A convenient way to keep belts, ribbons, and collars in order is to use a curtain stick or old cane. Wind around it some colored cambric or ribbon. Place two large hooks in wall so that they extend slightly. Place your stick on hooks and you have a neat rack. This saves much time and keeps your bureau drawers tidy.

Firm Paste.—Take two ounces of pulverized gum arabic, one and one-half ounces of fine starch, and one-half ounce of granulated sugar. Dissolve the gum arabic in as much water as you would use for the starch indicated. Mix the starch and sugar with the mucilage; then cook the mixture in a double boiler until the starch becomes clear. It should be as thick as tar. It can be kept indefinitely by the addition of a teaspoonful of camphor or a few drops of oil of cloves.

Make Individual Towels.—In the bathroom of a certain well regulated household, where there are several small children, there is a row of little white towel hooks and above each one is printed with white enamel the name of the owner from "Papa" down to "Baby," and last, but not least, "Our Guest."

Put Salt in Lamps.—Putting a tablespoonful of salt into a kerosene lamp after filling it will prevent the lamp from exploding, but will not mar the lighting quality of the oil.

To Remove Wall Paper.—When taking off old wall paper if a small quantity of dissolved glue is added to water with which you are wetting your paper it will not dry as when wet with water, but soaks the paper, which easily is removed from wall or ceiling.

Did you ever hear that in the spring of the year, when chills and colds are more easily taken than at any other time, primroses and cowslips in a bath are most excellent sedatives? One to three handfuls of these flowers suffice.

WHERE POULTRY PAYS.

China is the greatest poultry-producing nation in the world. Of the more than three hundred million population of China shown by the last census, there are few indeed who do not, in the course of a year, consume something in the way of poultry—chickens or ducks or geese—and certainly a large number of eggs. Ducks are pickled, dried, tinned, and otherwise preserved, and shipped to many parts of the world to Chinese who are away from a home supply. Eggs of all kinds are used fresh, and are cured by burying in clay and lime until they acquire something of the quality of cheese. The ducks are raised in immense quantities on farms along the canals and rivers of Central and South China, and are much more common than chickens. The birds are trained to obey the farmer, and, armed with a long bamboo pole to guide them, he controls their movements with remarkable ease.

MANY KINDS OF CRADLES

METHODS OF TRANSPORTING THE LITTLE BABIES.

Curious Superstitions Among the Indian Tribes in This Connection.

When the first mother picked up her first child, to carry it from where it was to where she wanted it, the first step in the great business of fetching and carrying was taken. Since then many thousands of devices for carrying the baby have been tried; but it cannot be said that the oldest of all problems in traffic has yet been finally and satisfactorily solved.

The New Guinea baby, says the Philadelphia Record, lives in a net suspended from its mother's neck, or is allowed to hang from a convenient peg in the dwelling, and the infants of tropical America spend much of their time in hammocks. The Africans never invented any device for the convenience of their little ones, either at rest or traveling. Usually the negro mother gathers her child in the folds of her shawl or other garment. It it happens that she wears no garment to serve as a sort of sling in which to carry the baby, the youngster clings around her neck.

Wheeled carriages for babies were devised by Europeans, consisting, in their simplest form, of an oblong frame with a crude receptacle for the infant, and two wheels attached to the crossbar.

More commonly European mothers, and American mothers of European descent, carry their babies upon the left arm. Of all methods of carrying the baby this is the worst, wrenching the spine and DISTORTING THE BODY.

Pictures of the Madonna represent her as carrying the Christ-child in this manner, although it is safe to say that she never did it. Both the ancient Egyptians and the ancient Hebrews carried their children astride their shoulders (Isaiah xlix. 22). It does not appear that the Greeks used cradles for their children, but the Romans did, representations of their devices bearing some resemblance to those used by the Sioux Indians.

Rigid cradles in which the child is placed and tightly laced or strapped there, are found in Northern Europe, Northern Asia and North Amercia. The cradles of the Laplanders are hollowed out of a log, with a hood for the protection of the child's head. The Samoyed cradle is described as "a box shaped like a coffin and laced with narrow strips of hide, in which the child is placed, wrapped in furs." The Yukut cradle is said to be "shaped like coalscuttle," and that of the Tongus, inhabiting the shores of the sea of Okhotsk, is a box lined with reindeer fur closing up tightly, with a valve of leather for the admission of air.

The baby's bed and carriage, made together or with the bed firmly attached to the carriage, is common to almost every one of the medley of peoples of the Russian empire, including the Georgians, Tartars, Nogais, Kalmucks, Yakuts, Buriats, Ostiks, Samoyeds and others. The general similarity of these cradles to those used by the North American Indians may, possibly, be considered an argument in favor of the opinion that the American tribes are of Asiatic origin.

CRADLES USED BY TRIBES.

More probably the cradles used by all these tribes and peoples, inhabiting widely separated regions, were devised to suit climatic conditions, or because of the needs created by the nomadic habits of the people. That the cradles of the tribes of Russia and Siberia resemble those of the tribes of North America is doubtless due to the fact that all lived largely by hunting. They, therefore, devised beds for their little ones that were easily transported, and in which the babies were reasonably safe from accidental injury on long journeys, and well protected from the cold.

Although there is a certain similarity of design in the cradles used by the tribespeople of North America, the whole way from Alaska to Mexico, there are great differences in the materials used, in the methods employed for fastening the babies in the receptacles, in the child's wrappings and in ornamentation. Many of these divergences may be traced to climatic influences, and the natural resources of the regions in which the tribes live.

Many of the tribes of Alaska and Northwestern Canada make cradles of birch bark, bending it into the form of a trough, adorning it with porcupine quills and lining it with soft fur. The Sioux and other tribes make their cradles out of buffalo hide, with the hair left on, bending the hide into the shape of a trough, much as the tribes farther North do with birch barch. The Kiowas, Comanches and other tribes of the Southern plains region removed the half from the buffalo hides (owing, perhaps, to the warmer climate) and lashed the dressed skins to a

LATTICE OF FLAT STICKS.

The Iroquois, Mohegans, Delawares and many of the other tribes of the Eastern and Northern States made board cradles, about 2½ feet long and ten inches wide at the food, becoming wider at the head. To this the conventional bed, made of skins, was fastened. The Utes and Nez Perces similarly form their cradles of kite-shaped boards, often beautifully ornamented, to which the bed is attached, with protective hood to shield the infant's face and head from the sun and elements. Dugout cradles are made by the Indians of the North Pacific coast, and basket work cradles by many tribes of California, Oregon, Washington and Nevada. Often the basket cradles are made like little chairs, in which the baby sits, with its feet free. No doubt this departure from the usual custom is due to the wildness of the climate. Hurdle cradles consisting of a number of canes or sticks arranged in an oblong hoop frame, are used by the Mojaves, Yumas and Wichitas. The Apaches, Navajos and Pueblos combine the basket, board and hurdle types, protecting the child's face and head with a hood or awning. The Navajos make the bed out of skins, heavily laced with leather thongs, but the Pueblos usually make use of cloth, purchased from the trading stores, for the bed.

Most of the tribes place bands or or straps upon the rigid frame of the cradle, so arranged that they can be placed around the mother's forehead, permitting the cradle to rest upon her back. The burden is thus well distributed, placing no unequal strain upon one side of the body, as is the case with the method of carrying the baby common to the mothers in civilized communities. Frequently another strap is placed at the top of the rigid frame, by which the cradle may be swung from the pommel of a saddle, suspended from the limb of a tree, or hung upon a nail driven in the wall of

THE INDIAN'S CABIN.

Strangely enough, the Indian mother never places the cradle, with the baby in it, flat upon the strap provided for that purpose, or leaned in a nearly upright position against the wall or some other convenient support. Pillows or pads of fur, hair, shredded bark or feathers are always used, often in a way intended to produce a flattening or other distortion of the skull. Trinkets are sometimes fastened to the awning or elsewhere on the cradle, to serve as rattles and playthings for the pappoose. Often charms and amulets are provided in the belief that they will keep away evil spirits from the small tenant.

Numberless superstitions survive among the various tribes relating to the cradle. Among some of the tribes of the far north it is customary for the mother to take the cradle as soon as the child has outgrown its use and secrete it in a hollow tree or other secure place in the woods. It is their belief that any injury to the cradle will unfavorably affect the health, life or fortune of its former occupant. Among some of the tribes a squaw could not be tempted to sell the cradle in which one of her children had spent the first months of its life for all the silver dollars it would hold. Among other tribes to use the same cradle for more than one baby would be considered an unspeakable impiety.

Among the Pueblos the cradle is a sacred object and is handed down to the first married daughter for many generations, as the most highly prized of heirlooms. In some communities a notch is cut in the frame for each child that occupies it. These people believe that the sale of a cradle would result in the death of at least that occupied it. In case of the death of an infant customs vary as to the disposition of its cradle. The Pueblos keep it for use when another child is born. The Navajos and Apaches break it up, burn it or place it upon the baby's grave. In some tribes it is customary to place the dead infant in its cradle, just as in life, and to bury the baby and its bed together. This appears to have been the custom of the prehistoric cliff dwellers. Among the Walopai and Tonto tribes it is usual practice to break the cradle in pieces and then throw throw the fragments away in some wild and rugged spot where they are unlikely to be found.

Among most of the tribes preparations for the advent of a child are made by fashioning the cradle in advance, but the Yumas and San Carlos Apaches wait until after the little one is born. The San Carlos Apaches make the cradle to fit the newcomer's body. Of course, it soon outgrows this first receptacle but by that time a larger one is ready for its use. The Yumas usually construct different styles of cradle for girls and boys, making those of the boys much more elaborate and sparing neither labor nor expense in their adornment.

So the cradles made by the uncouth squaws are not mere articles of merchandise, to be bought like a pair of shoes or any other article of apparel and thrown away when they have served their purpose, as are the costly hampers, baby baskets and baby carriages bought in the department stores of the great cities. Each is hallowed by a mother's love, constructed with infinite labor and patience, and ornamented, if not accordance with the accepted canons of art, at least with the best that the Indian has or can procure.

A QUEEN'S MERCY.

Philippa, Wife of Edward III., Saved Lives of Wrong-doers.

The Edwards of England have been several in number, and for the most part, of pleasant memory in the land. The story of their marriages, too, makes better reading than that of many other kings—from the first Edward, erecting memorial crosses to beloved Eleanor, even to the present day. The charming stories of the wife of Edward III, who, like Alexandra the gracious, came "from across the North Sea," are revived by Mr. K. A. Patmore in "The Seven Edwards of England." Whatever may be the demands of the modern period, it is well that in those troubled days some women stood for "the quality of mercy."

Young Edward's thoughts were with the girl Philippa, across the North Sea, and negotiations for the marriage were set on foot. Not long afterward Philippa, daughter of the Count of Holland and Hainaut, was crowned queen.

Near Eleanor's Cross, in Cheapside, a splendid pageant was displayed. Knights of England challenged their fellows or those of France to the encounter of skill. The royal family was there, and the queen, with her ladies, were seated upon a temporary wooden staging.

In the midst of the excitement and glitter of this scene of chivalry, the queen's platform gave way, and she fell, together with her ladies, amidst the broken timbers.

Edward, with the hot blood of his grandfother, was furious with the master workmen who had put up the insufficient structure, and would have had them killed or cruelly punished. But young Philippa played here the part, in which she has become immortal, of suppliant for her husband's pardon to the wrong-doers. As in after years she clung to the knees of the conqueror of Calais ao plead for the doomed burghers, now she begged the young king to pardon the defaulting carpenters. The king was appeased by the tender hands and soft voice, and the British workmen escaped.

In 1347, while Edward was established before Calais until it should surrender, Philippa was engaged on his behalf in conflict with the Scots; and when her work was done, the valiant queen went over to Calais, "not without trial and danger," to join her husband.

And there, in a scene that will never grow dim in the picture-gallery of our imagination, Philippa knelt before the king and wrestled for the lives of the burghers who, headed by Eustache de St. Pierre, waited in shirt and halter to die for their townsmen.

Eighteen years had passed since, in her wedded girlhood, she had knelt in Cheapside to pray for the master carpenters. She had borne Edward many children, and had journeyed many long days' journeys.

"Lady, I would thou hadst not asked it of me," protested Edward; but the day was won, and the six condemned men were clothed and feasted.

AN EXPENSIVE AUTOGRAPH.

A favorite amusement of society in Victorian days, says Lady Dorothy Nevill, was the bazaar. Many great ladies became expert in the art of wheedling visitors into paying generous sums for useless articles. However, the victim of "brigandage" named by Lady Dorothy—in "Under Five Reigns"—himself invited disaster, and was, besides, quite able to afford it.

One of the most ingenious stratagems ever employed at a bazaar was probably that devised by the famous writer, George Sand, when holding a stall at a charitable safe in favor of distressed Poles.

Baron James de Rothschild happening to pass, the fair saleswoman addressed him with the usual request to purchase something.

"What can I buy?" asked the baron. "You have nothing that I can do anything with. But stay! and idea strikes me. Give me your autograph. Sell me that."

Madame Sand promptly took a sheet of paper and wrote: "Received from Baron James de Rothschild the sum of one thousand francs for the benefit of the distressed Poles. George sand."

Monsieur de Rothschild read it, thanked her, and presenting a note for the sum mentioned, passed on with the autograph.

TEA DRINKING IN SIAM.

Tea is to be found in every tent and dwelling. There is always a kettle on the fire filled with tea and prepared for drinking, which is done by adding milk, butter and salt. This is their way of fixing this beverage, and is said to be pleasant after one becomes accustomed to it. A peculiar mode of hospitality is shown by these people in reference to their tea. It is always at the disposal of every stranger and traveller. He need not ask for it. Neither is it expected that he should, but he must have his own cup. This is imperative and accordingly every one carries a cup with him at all times. Some of these utensils are marvels of workmanship and are highly valued. They are generally made of some fine grained wood and sometimes are lined with silver and gold.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, JANUARY 7.

Lesson I.—The birth of John the Baptist foretold, Luke 1. 5-23.

Golden Text, Heb. 11. 6.

Verse 5. Herod, king of Judaea—The first of six Herods mentioned in the New Testament and founder of an Idumaean family which furnished a number of kings and other rulers for Palestine and adjacent countries. He is known also as Herod the Great and reigned from B. C. 27 to 4.

Zacharias — A common Jewish name, meaning literally "remembered by Jehovah." Since the time of David the Jewish priests had been divided into twenty-four groups or "courses," each of which in rotation was responsible for the temple services for one week. Each group would thus officiate twice a year, at an interval of six months. The course of Abijah was the eighth, and is said to have officiated in April and October.

Daughters of Aaron—Lineal descendants of Aaron, the brother of Moses, and founder of the priesthood in Israel.

6. Righteous before God—Good, pious Hebrews, scrupulous in their observance of the Mosaic law.

9. The custom of the priest's office was to decide by lot the several functions which each of the group of officiating priests was to perform. Some would officiate in the court of the temple at the altar of burnt offering. Zacharias's lot was to enter into the temple and burn incense.

10. The whole multitude of the people—The worshipers in the temple courts.

The hour of incense—Either morning or evening, since incense was offered twice daily on the golden altar within the temple proper, and immediately in front of the veil of the Holy of Holies.

11. An angel of the Lord—Literally, a messenger. Angels were thought of as superhuman beings, intermediate between God and man. Belief in them was common except among the Sadducees, who were skeptics on many points of faith in orthodox Judaism.

13. John—Meaning literally "the favor of Jehovah." Fuller notes on John the Baptist will be given in Text Studies for February and March.

15. Greatness in the sight of the Lord is by the angel associated with abstinence from wine and strong drink. The positive element contributing to the child's greatness is indicated in the next sentence, he shall be filled with the Holy Spirit. The negative element without the positive would have been incomplete.

17. Go before his face—The face of Jehovah, signifying his presence. It was to be John's function to announce the nearness of Jehovah to his people and the approaching manifestation of his presence in the birth of the promised Messiah.

The spirit and power of Elijah were those of a sturdy and fearless prophet of righteousness. For the Old Testament prophecy alluded to, compare Mal. 4, 5, 6.

19. I am Gabriel—Two angels only are mentioned by name in the Bible. These are Gabriel, referred to in Dan. 8. 16; 9. 21; and Michael, mentioned in Dan. 10. 13, 21; 12. 1; Jude 9; Rev. 12. 7.

20. Silent and not able to speak—A sign, and at the same time a rebuke and punishment for unbelief.

21. Marveled while he tarried—Or, at his tarrying. Priests were expected to perform their duties with promptness and precision and then retire from the sanctuary.

22. Had seen a vision—Had been vouchsafed some unusual revelation in the temple.

23. When the days of his ministration were fulfilled—At the end of his week of service in the temple.

In order to appreciate fully the charm and beauty of Luke's introductory narrative covering the childhood period of the life of Jesus, one must read at a sitting the first and second chapters of Gospel. Our four lessons for January are devoted to these two chapters. This makes possible their repeated reading, both separately and in conjunction with Matthew's narrative covering the same period (Matt. 1 and 2). Each Gospel mentions a different series of events according to the peculiar interest and purpose of its author.

DOESN'T PRINT STALE NEWS

"Is this the newspaper office?" enquired Mr. Titmouse.

"It is," responded the man at the desk.

"Didn't this paper say I was a liar?"

"It did not."

"Well, some paper said it."

"Possibly it was our contemporary down the street," suggested the editor, as he picked up a paperweight. "This paper never prints stale news."

SAVING THE SUNSHINE

Most conservationists will agree with the Secretary of the Interior in his condemnation of those loud talkers who spend their energies in discussing the wickedness of waste without at the same time being willing to assist in any practicable plan to stop the evils they so greatly deplore. We suspect, however, that few, even of those good citizens who believe in the wisest use of natural resources and who are sincerely eager to safeguard the public good both now and hereafter, realize how easy it is to neglect opportunity for conservations which lie at our door. The coal and forests in Alaska are of vast importance, but the discharge of our duty with regard to them will not occupy much of our time. A nearer need is to see that we make the best use of natural resources in our own back yards. How about making "two blades of grass grow where one grew before". Why isn't that just as important as keeping the coal or saving the streams or doing any of the thousands and one things that we individually can only talk about? Our truest conservationists are those gardeners and farmers who catch the sunshine and husband the rain and strive intelligently to keep place in production with the increase of the non-agricultural population.

The need of conservation of food-supplying resources is obvious. There are more people in America every year and every year the soil if unreplenished is impoverished. The area of rich land decreases and the cost of living rises. Conservation of the potential power of sun and soil is the only reasonable solution of the problem of nation feeding and just here is our opportunity. What is for the nation's good is also for our individual profit. The wise use of the soil means money in our pockets.

The very greatest product of land is derived from "intensive gardening." Through generations of intelligent selection and breeding thoroughbred seeds have been developed whose yield far surpasses in quality and quantity that of the ordinary strains. You can be a true conservationist if you have a successful garden. Be sure, however, to start right by planting thoroughbred seeds. These can be bought of seedsmen having sufficient capital and experience to know what they are about and a reputation to maintain.

The Post Office Department of the new Borden Government has decided to cancel the "flying post" early morning train from Toronto to London which carries Toronto Morning dailies at a cost of $40,000 annually to the country, although it seems the year contracted for must be allowed to be completed, so that the train will be continued until May next.

Reveal not to a friend every secret you may possess, for can you tell but what some time or other he may become your enemy? Likewise, inflict not on an enemy every injury in your power, for he may afterwards become your friend. The matter which you wish to preserve as a secret impart it not to any one, although he may be worthy of your confidence, for no one will be so true to your secret as yourself.. It is safer to be silent than to reveal one secret to anyone, and tell him not to mention it. O, good man, stop the water at the spring head, for when it is full stream you can't arrest it. You should never speak a word which may not be related in every company.

GREELEY'S RETORT

An acquaintance met Horace Greeley one day and said, 'Mr. Greeley, I've stopped your paper." Have you?" said the editor, 'well that's too bad." and he went his way. The next morning Mr. Greeley met his subscriber again, and said, 'I thought you had stopped the Tribune." "So I did." Then there must be some mistake," said Greeley, "for I just came from the office and the presses were running, the clerks were as busy as ever the compositors were hard at work, and the business was going on the same as yesterday and the day before." "Oh" ejaculated the subscriber, "I didn't mean that I had stopped the paper, I stopped only my copy of it, because I didn't like your editorials." "Pshaw," retorted Mr. Greeley, if you expect to control the utterances of the Tribune by the purchase of one copy a day, or if you think to find any newspaper magazine worth reading that will never express convictions at right angles with your own, you are doomed to disappointments."

Statistics for the insane in Ontario for the past year are somewhat alarming, according to Dr. Struthers, chief medical inspector of Toronto Schools. It appears that one out of every 387 in the province is insane. Dr. Struthers says there are facts which indicate that at least one-half of the number of cases of insanity in this province could have been avoided proper care in childhood.

GODERICH MAN KILLED

George Spahlegher, a piano tuner, of Goderich was killed by the second section of express No. 15 at Paris about nine o'clock last night. Mr. Spahlegher was at the depot, waiting for a train to take him to his home, and walked on to the track directly in front of the express, which was late and which does not stop in Paris. It is thought that the unfortunate man, thinking No. 15 was his train, which was No. 52, stepped on to the tracks intending to enter his train, and was caught before he could get across. The express was stopped and, when it was found that the man was dead, continued on to London. Deceased was about 54 years of age. He was married but had no family, and was employed for years by the Goderich Organ Company.

Part of the London Asylum was destroyed by fire on Tuesday night. Loss about $30,000.

CONSUMPTIVES READ THIS !

Dr. Morrisey's No. 10 May Save Your Life. It Has Made Many Remarkable Cures.

ST. ANDREWS, N. B., July 25, 1911. "In the Autumn of 1907 I found myself the victim of a very distressing cough, and in October, 1907, during a fit of coughing I had a dreadful hemorrhage, and great streams of blood issued from my mouth. We called in the family physician, who pronounced it Tuberculosis, and said it was a matter of but a very short time. We had heard a great deal of the wonderful Father Morrisey, and we wrote him to send us some of his No 10 Lung Tonic, for I had heard what a fine remedy it was, and felt sure it would help me. The dear good man sent the cure, and I took it faithfully, but in the spring of 1908 the family called in a local physician, who said I had consumption, and there was no hope for me. This however, did not daunt me, for I knew that the cure was helping me, and I kept on taking it faithfully for over a year, and never missed, and to-day I am in splendid health. Every one in town has said it was the most wonderful and miraculous cure they had ever heard of. I can walk 8 to 10 miles a day—can eat anything I want, and look as though there never had been anything wrong with me. People look on sort of filled with awe, but still they have no idea how wonderful my recovery has been.

I could write quite a book on what your No. 10 Lung Tonic has done for me, and then feel that I had not done it justice. I took a full two years treatment of your medicine and I am cured of consumption. I cannot possibly express my gratitude because words fail me. We always recommend your No. 10, and I know it will cure other cases as bad as mine if they will only use it faithfully.

I will gladly answer any questions from anybody who wishes to know further particulars.

Harry Montgomery Byrne.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morrisey prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

It Is Up To You

To protect your family from the ravages of disease and infection; and the rigors of winter; to make your home the abode of Health and Happiness.

Statistics tell us that there were over 250,000 deaths in North America last year from fever and Pneumonia; Over 90 per cent. of these cases were traceable to out-door closets, and all were the result of insanitary conditions.

Are you going to allow this terrible death rate to continue.

Why not insure Health by installing a "PARKYTE" SANITARY CHEMICAL CLOSET.

Absolutely Sanitary and Odorless carries the endorsement of Physicians and Health Officials, and our own Iron-clad guarantee, Requires no expensive water-system; no plumbing; no sewage can be installed in any part of your home at the cost of a few minutes of your spare time; lasts a lifetime and costs less than a CENT a day.

"PARKYTE" Chemical has been proven by Bacteriological test to be the most powerful Disinfectant, Deodorant and Germicide, known to Science.

The "PARKYTE" SANITARY CHEMICAL CLOSET is sold by

Keep Your Bath Room Spotlessly Clean with Gold Dust

Soap will not do the work properly because soap only cleans the surface—it does not dig deep after germs and hidden impurities like GOLD DUST—the greatest of all sanitary cleansers.

To keep bath tub and lavatory shiny-white and inviting—To keep metal pipes, fixtures and taps brightly burnished—To purify metal bowl—

To keep tiling and woodwork spotless and beautiful—

Simply add a heaping teaspoonful of GOLD DUST to a pail of water. You will be surprised at the ease with which it does the work. GOLD DUST sterilizes as well as cleans—and saves you one-half the labor.

"Let the GOLD DUST TWINS do your work"

GOLD DUST is sold in 50 size and large packages. The large package offers greater economy.

ST. MARYS.—The planing mill owned by George Brown & Co., situated on Water Street, was gutted by fire early Dec. 27th. The machinery and contents were entirely destroyed, and the walls of the building damaged. The loss is about $9000, partly covered by insurance. Origin unknown.

ST. MARYS—Mr. George Spearin, died December 31st in London. He was 65 years of age, and had spent many years in London. He was formerly a restaurant keeper in St. Marys. He is survived by a wife and three sons, one of whom resides in St. Marys and the other two in New York. Bright's disease was the the cause of death.

SEAFORTH—Mrs. Rosanna Dorsey, who suffered from an attack of paralysis a short time ago, had another stroke on Monday, from the effects of which she never recovered, but passed away to-day. She was in her 68th year, and leaves a family of grown-up sons and daughters.

CLINTON—After a pleasant Xmas the citizens were awakened by the fire bell on Tuesday morning when it was discovered that the harness shop of E. Johnson, was on fire and also the Pastime Club rooms. The firemen were on the scene in short order and after a short quick fight had the fire under control, but the stocks of E. Johnson and Mr. Beaton were ruined by fire and water, while J. Scruton had a smoke out in his butcher shop and part of the stock of the Morrish Clothing Co., was also damaged by water.

GRANTON.—A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Dr. H. and Mrs. Lang, Granton December 25th, by Rev. James Abery at high noon, when their only daughter, Agnes Lillian, was married to Maxwell David Owen, of Calgary. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. The Presbyterian Church and choir, of which she was a member presented her with two splendid gifts, and she also received one from the Methodist choir. On their return they will spend a few weeks with friends before leaving for their home in Calgary.

ST. MARYS—J. Milton McIntyre, of Peel street, was struck below the eye by a crank of a gasoline engine Dec. 29th, and was rendered unconscious by the force of the blow. The crank weighed about 15 pounds, and it cut deeply into his face. It was some time before he recovered consciousness.

HENSALL

One of the prettiest of Christmas weddings was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pfaff, when their daughter, Miss Anna Marguerite, was married to Mr. W. K. Marshall. Only the immediate relatives were present at the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. E. F. Smith, of Carmel Presbyterian Church, Hensall. The bride and groom were unattended. Following the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Marshall left for Port Huron. The bride wore a travelling suit of navy blue. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Marshall will reside in Hensall, at the corner of Queen and Elizabeth streets. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Marshall, of Greenock, Scotland.

McQueen—Hummeston—A very joyous event took place at the home of Mrs. Hummeston on Queen Street, Dec 23 at 12 a.m., when her second daughter Lucy was united in marriage with Edgar McQueen one of our popular young men. The bride who was unattended was given away by her uncle, Mr. Henry of St. Marys. Miss Yungblutt, played the march. About 40 guests graced the occasion. After congratulations the company partook of a sumptuous repast. The bride received many beautiful presents. The Rev. J. E. Millyard tied the nuptial knott. They left on the evening train for Detroit. On their return the young couple will take up house on Nelson Street.

Kilpatrick—Clark—The home of J. Clark, King Street, was the scene of a joyous wedding when his second daughter Myrtle was united in marriage with David Kilpatrick of Near Kippen. The marriage took place on Wednesday at 1 p.m. in presence of a large number of invited guests. The Rev. J. E. Millyard officiated.

Miss Melinda Ortwein of Berlin is home.—Billy Glenn of Toronto was home for the holidays.—Jas. Macarthur was in Toronto last week.—Mrs. Ellis and daughter Mattie are visiting in Goderich.—Miss Walker of Detroit visited Miss Margaret Bonthron.—Laurie Hagan was home from Chicago.—Miss Florence Reynolds of Toronto was home.—Miss Edith McElwen of Bath holidayed here.—Mr. Grassick of Tavistock is among the holiday visitors here.— Miss Doherty of London has been visiting her brother, Rev. W. J. Doherty.—Mrs. Cryer of Detroit was the guest of her sister Mrs. Fred McDonell.—Mrs. Short of Woodstock visited her father Mr. A. Johnston.—Mr. and Mrs. Clark of Detroit are guests at the home of the latter at Hillsgreen.—Wm. Maunders of Preston holidayed here last week.—Leonard Cudmore of Detroit was the guest of his uncle here last week.—Thos. Wood of Stratford was the guest of his sister Mrs. A. McPherson.—Mrs. Johns of Guelph spent the holidays with her mother Mrs. Henry Cook.

BAYFIELD—Our Council was elected by acclamation with some changes. The reeve is George Lindsay, Councillors, T. Cameron, J. Thomson, C. Parker, R. Blair.—The very pretty wedding of Miss Lulu Weston was duly celebrated by a grand ball in the Town Hall on Tuesday night. The affair was a very brilliant one and the many who enjoyed it wished the happy couple all good wishes.

A BLOOD MEDICINE WITHOUT ALCOHOL.

Recently it has been definitly proven by experiments on animals that alcohol lowers the germicidal power of the body and that alcohol paralyzes the white corpuscles of the blood and renders them unable to take up and destroy disease germs. Disease germs cause the death of over one-half of the human race.

A blood medicine, made entirely without alcohol, which is a pure glyceric extract of roots, such as Bloodroot, Queen's root, Golden Seal root, Mandrake and Stone root, has been extensively sold by druggists for the past forty years as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The refreshing influence of this extract is like Nature's influence—the blood is bathed in the tonic which gives life to the blood—the vital fires of the body burn brighter and their increased activity consumes the tissue rubbish which has accumulated during the winter.

MRS. HEYER.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, the founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, and a physician of large experience and practice, was the first to make up an ALTERATIVE EXTRACT of roots, without a particle of alcohol or narcotic.

"It is with the greatest of pleasure, that I write to let you know of the great benefit I received from the use of your medicines and self-treatment at home," writes MRS. WM. HEYER, of Ladysmith, B. C. "I suffered for three years from a running sore. Consulted four doctors but they failed to mend or give relief. Finally I was told I was in consumption and would have to consult a specialist concerning my ear, that the dead bone must be cut out before the wound would heal. A kind friend advised me to write to Dr. Pierce, which I did, and after seven months' use of the treatment the sore is healed, and I enjoy better health than I ever did. I dressed the wound with Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve and took the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' for my troubles. I shall always recommend your medicines.

HE COULD NOT SLEEP AT NIGHTS

TILL HE FOUND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Fred. Swanson, of Saskatchewan, sends a message of cheer to those who feel the weariness and discouragement that comes from broken rest.

Macklin, Sask., Jan. 1 (Special).—Those who suffer from sleepless nights and get up in the morning feeling tired and discouraged will find renewed hope in the statement made by Fred Swanson of this place. He could not sleep at nights. He discovered the cause. It was Kidney trouble. He discovered the cure. It is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Yes," Mr. Swanson says in an interview regarding his case, "I was troubled with my kidneys for over a year, so bad that I could not sleep at nights. After using one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I found great relief. Four boxes removed all my pain and now I sleep well and I am as strong in my Kidneys as any man."

If the Kidneys are wrong the blood becomes clogged with impurities and natural rest is an impossibility. Strong, healthy Kidneys mean pure blood, new life all over the body and that delightful rest that is the sweetest thing in life. Dodd's Kidney Pills always make strong, healthy Kidneys.

THE ITALIAN SOLDIER.

Showing Great Bravery in Their War With Turkey.

Even if Tripoli should prove worthless to Italy the war will have served the purpose of showing the fighting quality of Italian soldiers. The fishermen of Naples and Sicily who are serving in the navy and the peasants from small villages scattered between the Alps and Sicily who are serving in the army have overcome difficulties which might have stopped veteran soldiers. A soldier on outpost duty had his helmet pierced through by a bullet. He took it off and closely examined the two holes. "A close shave, eh?" remarked his officer. "What did you feel?"

"Wind through my hair, sir," the man answered, and went on firing at the Turks.

A war correspondent came across a mule driver whose beast had been shot dead by a Turkish bullet. The driver was calmly taking off the load from the mule's back, and in so doing he muttered: "I am sorry for thee, but better thou than I."

Many of the soldiers write to their mothers at home, sending them the money they save from their small pay and saying that they do not need it, as they are getting extra rations. Their unselfishness is on a par with their courage.

Nor is the patriotism of Italians at home less marked than the pluck of the soldiers at the front. Poor people are saving money to contribute it to the fund for the wounded in war and everybody is buying presents to send to the soldiers for Christmas. An old woman handed a package of cakes to an officer and asked him to send it to Tripoli for the soldiers. All she said by way of explanation was: "I intended to send them to my son, but he has been killed, so I thought the others might have them."

Why Should I Use Cuticura Soap?

"There is nothing the matter with my skin, and I thought Cuticura Soap was only for skin troubles." True, it is for skin troubles, but its great mission is to prevent skin troubles. For more than a generation its delicate emollient and prophylactic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps. It is also invaluable in keeping the hands soft and white, the hair live and glossy, and the scalp free from dandruff and irritation.

While its first cost is a few cents more than that of ordinary toilet soaps, it is prepared with such care and of such materials, that it wears to a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of other soap, and making its use, in practice, most economical. Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, but the truth of these claims may be demonstrated without cost by sending to "Cuticura," Dept. 7M, Boston, U. S. A., for a liberal sample cake, together with a thirty-two page book on the skin and hair.

ROYALTY ON SHIPWRECKS.

A Spanish Prince and His Wife Cast Ashore on English Coast.

The Duchess of Fife and her daughters appear to be the only royalties of recent years to undergo the ordeal of shipwreck, with the possible exception of the Archduke John of Austria, who, according to one theory, lost his life at sea, says the London Chronicle. Prince Henry of Prussia, however, who circumnavigated the globe twice before he was 20, has on two occasions braved a watery grave. When he was a lieutenant his ship was caught in a violent squall and one of the sailors was washed overboard. Prince Henry plunged after him, and despite the heavy sea, succeeded in effecting a rescue. Some years later he rescued another sailor from drowning off the South American coast at a point where the sea is infested with sharks.

The Dorsetshire coast was once the scene of a royal shipwreck. In 1506 Prince Phillip of Castile and his wife Juana were sailing from Flanders to Spain when a violent storm cast them ashore near Poole. Philip was prevailed upon to accept the hospitality of a local magnate, Sir Thomas Trenchard. But Henry VII. invited the Prince to Windsor, adding that he would take no refusal. The Earl of Arundel, with a troop of 300 horse, escorted Philip to the royal residence, where he was entertained for about a fortnight. Henry took advantage of the enforced visit to extort some concessions from the Prince on matters at issue between them, and then sent him to Spain by way of Falmouth.

AS GOOD AS A DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE

Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in every home where there are little ones. They are as good as a doctor; are absolutely safe and can always be relied upon to drive away any malady arising from derangements of the stomach or bowels. Concerning them Mrs. O. A. Wheeler, Northlands, Sask., says: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets an invaluable medicine. I live twenty miles from town and doctor, so am glad to have so reliable a medicine at hand. I consider the Tablets a real necessity in the home and shall never be without them. They have kept my baby well and have made him a bonnie baby." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Newedd—I hope these eggs are as fresh as the ones we got last week. Mrs. Newedd—Oh, yes, dear. I telephoned the grocer to be sure and send me some of the same lot.

A Corrector of Pulmonary Troubles.—Many testimonials could be presented showing the great efficacy of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in curing disorders of the respiratory processes, but the best testimonial is experience and the Oil is recommended to all who suffer from these disorders with the certainty that they will find relief. It will allay inflammation in the bronchial tubes as no other preparation can.

Give a small boy a piece of chalk and he will proceed to make his mark in the world.

HOW TO SHOOT STRAIGHT.

Very few people, even accomplished shots, know how a revolver ought to be handled. Troops are taught, in aiming, never to look at the weapon at all, but to keep their eye on the object to be struck. In quick-firng, and especially in shooting from horseback, much better results are obtainable in this way. A man throwing a stone does not look at his hand; neither does a billiard player sight along his cue. The same rules apply to the use of sort weapons. Men have been trained to shoot excellently at a mark when they could not see their pistol-sights at all. Pieces of pasteboard were fastened just in front of the cylinders, which effectually prevented the men from using their foresights, and greatly increased the rapidity of their fire. Nearly anyone can sight a pistol correctly, the inaccuracy of the aim being due to the trembling of the hands before the trigger is pressed. By hiding the sight, the temptation to hold too long is remove, and the first aim—generally the most accurate—is preserved.

She (flattering with eyes and voice)—"Arthur, dear, I find that we still need a few things to make our little household more serviceable." He—"What is it now?" She—"Well, for instance, we need a new hat for me!"

Hilda—"Well, there's one thing I can say. I never made a cloak of my religion." Bertha—"No, dear, there's not enough of it for that. Might be enough, perhaps, to make you a pocket-handkerchief."

DISCOURAGING PROGRESS.

"You're not doing as well in your mathematics as you ought to be, Johnny," said Mrs. Lapsling; "at your age your cousin Horace was half way through differential calipers."

An Always Ready Pill.—To those of regular habit medicine is of little concern, but the great majority of men are not of regular habit. The worry and cares of business prevent it, and out of the irregularity of life comes dyspepsia, indigestion, liver and kidney troubles as a protest. The run-down system demands a corrective and there is none better than Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They are simple in their composition and can be taken by the most delicately constituted.

A LOUD DRESSER.

Mrs. A.—"Your husband always dresses so quietly."

Mrs. B.—"He does not. You ought to hear him when he loses a collar button."

A Boon for the Bilious.—The liver is a very sensitive organ and easily deranged. When this occurs there is undue secretion of bile and the acrid liquid flows into the stomach and sours it. It is a most distressing ailment, and many are prone to it. In this condition a man finds the best remedy in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, which are warranted to speedily correct the disorder. There is no better medicine in the entire list of pill preparations.

A BEGGAR'S AWFUL FATE.

Woman Was Torn to Pieces by Fierce Mastiffs.

A pitiful tragedy occurred recently in the beautiful gardens that encircle Prince Ruffo's villa on the Flaminian Way, outside the gates of Rome, Italy. A poor beggar woman on the verge of starvation ventured up the main walk to ask alms at the brilliantly-lighted villa, inside which Prince Ruffo was giving a grand dinner in honor of a professor newly nominated to the international Institute of Agriculture, adjoining the princely property. Thrust away with harsh epithets by merciless attendants, the poor woman was wending her way back towards the massive iron gates, when, overcome with hunger and fatigue, she appears to have fallen into a swoon just inside the entrance.

About midnight piercing shrieks and the barking of dogs brought the prince and a body of retainers outside with lanterns and revolvers in the belief that burglars were breaking into the place. Soon, however, they came upon a scene of horror. A couple of furious mastiffs, let loose earlier in the evening, had scented out and denuded the body of the woman, which they were then ferociously tearing to pieces. The unfortunate victim expired in the hospital the following day. She was 72 years of age.

While more prevalent in winter, when sudden changes in the weather try the strongest constitutions, colds and coughs and ailments of the throat may come in any season. At first sight of derangement use Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. Instant relief will be experienced, and use of the medicine until the cold disappears will protect the lungs from attack. For anyone with throat or chest weakness it cannot be surpassed.

WASTED.

"I should think," said the woman of the house, "you would have too much self-respect to make your living by begging."

"Lady," protested Ruffon Wratz, straightening himself up, "self-respect is wot ails me! I wouldn't do this fur no qther man on earth."

"A funny incident occurred on a German railway train whereon I was a passenger," says one who spends a bit of his time abroad. "A certain stolid Teuton had been assigned to a seat in the coach that obliged him to ride backward through the Black Forest. At the first stopping place he asked the postmaster, pursuant to German regulations, to give him another seat, saying it made him ill to ride backward. "Ask the man opposite to change with you," said the postmaster, gruffly. "But there is nobody opposite me,' protested the German, 'so I cannot ask him.'"

Will Cure CONSUMPTION

A New Discovery

Mr. Wm. R. Copeland, of 511 Pape Ave., Toronto, after searching over ten years, has discovered a remarkable remedy which has successfully cured a number of cases of consumption. One, a Toronto Railway motorman, was given ten days only to live by two doctors, one of them a lung specialist. Interested parties will be furnished names and addresses of those who have been cured. Price, $1 a bottle, or six for $5. Mention nearest express office when ordering.

CHINESE COMPLEXIONS.

The exquisite complexion of the young Chinese women is due not to enamelling, as has been suspected, but to careful manipulation of the face done by expert masseuses. They begin by a gentle pinching of the cheeks between the tips of their fingers, which lasts fully ten minutes; then apply lotions on absorbent cotton, then an unguent, and finish by kneading the cheeks with an extreme delicacy of touch, always proceeding from the nose and commisures of the lips toward the ears. This is a harmless and physiologically correct process which can be recommended in cases, rarer than they should be, where the physician is consulted concerning a faded or otherwise unattractive complexion.

MOTHERS! DO YOU KNOW—

That when you put a salve onto your child's skin, it passes through the pores and enters the blood, just as surely as if you put it into the child's stomach?

You would not put a coarse mass of animal fat, colored by various mineral poisons (such as many crude salves are) into your child's blood by way of the stomach? Then why do so by way of the pores?

Take no risk. Use always the pure herbal essences provided in Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk contains no trace of any animal oil or fat, and no poisonous mineral coloring matter. From start to finish it is purely herbal.

It will heal sores, ulcers, abscesses, eruptions, varicose ulcers, cuts, burns and bruises more quickly than any other known preparation. It is antiseptic, quickly stops the smarting of a sore or cut, cures piles, inflamed sores and blood-poisoning. It is a combination of healing power and scientific purity. Ask those who have proved it.

FIRE RAVAGES GOLDEN CITY

Sixteen Buildings on Main Street Wiped Out.—Loss $40,000 to $50,000.

A despatch from South Porcupine says: On Wednesday night between the hours of 12 and 2 sixteen buildings were destroyed on the south side of Main street, Golden City, involving a loss of between $40,000 and $50,000. The fire broke out shortly after 12 in Romain's saloon, a little girl first noticing the blaze. There was a fresh breeze blowing and in a few minutes the fire had such a hold that the bucket brigade formed to convey water from the lake was quite powerless. While some of the business houses had insurance, it was in unauthorized companies, many licensed companies having but a short time before cancelled their policies. The temperature was below zero, and many of the fire-fighters had their ears and noses frost-bitten. The thirty or fortay people homeless are all being taken care of.

Carter & Wright's drug store has been burned down now three times in one year, once in Gowganda in January, again in Pottsville last July, and now in Golden City in December. They were, however, insured. It is most probable that the fire would have spread much farther if several houses had not been dynamited. This undoubtedly saved the Mulligan House and the Lyric Theatre. The list of buildings destroyed are as follows:—King George Restaurant, Chas. Chow, proprietor; A. Loch, fruit and candy store; Carter & Wright, druggists; Mullin's poolroom; branch of Liberty stores; C. Evans, men's furnishing store; Lang's supply store; W. Polton's bakery, Romain's saloon, the Strathcona Hotel, the Boston Lunch Restaurant, J. M. Forbes' lawyer's office; J. W. Crawford, lawyer; H. S. Godson, lawyer.

TIED DOWN.

20 Years' Slavery—How She Got Freedom.

A dyspepsia veteran who writes from one of England's charming rural homes to tell how she won victory in her 20 years' fight, naturally exults in her triumph over the tea and coffee habit:

"I feel it a duty to tell you," she says, "how much good Postum has done me. I am grateful, but also desire to let others who may be suffering as I did, know of the delightful method by which I was relieved.

"I had suffered for 20 years from dyspepsia, and the giddiness that usually accompanies that painful ailment, and which frequently prostrated me. I never drank much coffee, and cocoa and even milk did not agree with my impaired digestion, so I used tea, exclusively, till about a year ago, when I found in a package of Grape-Nuts the little book, 'The Road to Wellville.'

"After a careful reading of the booklet I was curious to try Postum and sent for a package. I enjoyed it from the first, and at once gave up tea in its favor.

"I began to feel better very soon. My giddiness left me after the first few days' use of Postum, and my stomach became stronger so rapidly that it was not long till I was able (as I still am) to take milk and many other articles of food of which I was formerly compelled to deny myself. I have proved the truth of your statement that Postum 'makes good, red blood.'

"I have become very enthusiastic over the merits of my new table beverage, and during the past few months, have conducted a Postum propaganda among my neighbors which has brought benefit to many, and I shall continue to tell my friends of the 'better way' in which I rejoice." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

POLICE CHIEF LED ROBBERS

Amazing Career of a Parisian Official—Receives Heavy Sentences.

A despatch from Paris, France, says: The amazing career of Alexander Wartzee, one of the most respected chiefs of the secret police in Paris, who for four years succeeded in retaining the entire trust of his superiors, Prefect Lepine included, whilst all the time being the mysterious chief of a notorious band of thieves, was brought to an [illegible] Wednesday when a sentence [illegible] years' penal servitude and [illegible] in exile was passed upon [illegible] whole story is quite as [illegible] exciting as anything [illegible] by the fiction writ[illegible] arrest occurred only [illegible] walked into the office of the Chief of Police and gave himself up after some days in hiding. During the trial Wartzee, although admitting that he had lived a double life, insisted that he was not guilty, and that the charges brought against him were only revenge on the part of members of the "Apache" band tried with him, who had thought of getting him out of their way by this unusual method. Despite his defence, however, Wartzee got the heaviest sentence, except his denouncer, who was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment and ten years in exile. The other five members of the band received sentences of from two to five years.

Toronto, Jan. 2.—Cattle prices closed very strongly, with small gains, while lambs recovered much of last week-end's loss. The average price for them was $6.35, though selected lots touched $6.40 per hundred-weight. Hogs were steady. $6.50 was the highest price for a carload of steers. These weighed about 1,100 pounds. The bulk of the cattle offering, however, changed hands at from $6 to $6.35, that is, for good useful butchers' steers and heifers.

GILLETT'S PERFUMED LYE

CAUTION.

Put a strong glass on the label and examine it closely every time. Always look for the name "Gillett's."

Like all good articles, which are extensively advertised, Gillett's Lye is frequently and very closely imitated. In some instances the imitators have actually copied directions and other printed matter from our label word for word. Be wise, and refuse to purchase imitation articles for they are never satisfactory.

Insist On Getting Gillett's Lye

and decline to accept anything that looks to be an imitation or that is represented to be "just as good" or "better," or "the same thing." In our experience of over fifty years in business we have never known of an imitation article that has been a success, for imitators are not reliable people. At the best the "just as good" kinds are only trashy imitations, so decline them with thanks every time.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

RETURN ON INDUSTRIALS GREATER THAN FROM ALMOST ANY OTHER CLASS OF BOND.

Rather More Than One and One-half Points Above Municipals as a Rule—Bonds Usually Fairly Easily Marketed and Have Fair Prospects of Appreciating in Value—Industrial Price Fluctuations Depend on Outlook for Business Conditions.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor.")

While, as we have seen, the safety of industrial bonds varies very considerably from the highly speculative—in the case of mining companies—to the, relatively, very conservative, where the value of land equals or exceeds the amount of the bond issue, the rate of income does not, as a rule, vary greatly. Of course, the net return on the amount of the investment in Black Lake asbestos bonds at the present time cannot be far short of 23 per cent. (one cannot speak with accuracy as the makers of any bond income table that the writer has seen did not contemplate such a huge return on bonds). Outside of this, we may well hope, unique instance, the return varies about as that on municipals with the very important difference, that the basis of comparison is about a point higher. The average net return on industrials is higher for equal security than that upon any other form of funded corporate obligation.

A second point in favor of "Industrials" is their marketability. Not all industrial bonds possess this advantage, and to some degree at least it depends on the policy of the issuing house. As a rule, however, an issue which could be recommended to a careful investor would possess the very distinct advantage of being readily marketable. On the other hand, many very well secured and otherwise desirable industrial bonds are difficult to market. It is important, therefore, to decide beforehand whether marketability is a feature to be particularly desired before deciding on an investment.

The prospect of appreciating in value of an industrial bond depends a great deal on the activity of the market for that particular bond. Through improvement in plant, increased business, augmented assets and in other ways the company may improve its position, and, therefore, the security behind its bonds and naturally the value of the bonds; but if this is not reflected in the market price of the bonds it is of small importance. So, very inactive bonds are not likely to appreciate materially while the more speculative issues often show marked appreciation as conditions improve. Take, for example, Canada Cement bonds. On the week ending January5, 1911, the bonds sold in some volume at 98. Last week the quotation was 101 1-4 bid. This advance has resulted solely from the improved position of the company. Yet, had the bonds not possessed an active market this improvement would not have been reflected.

As a class, industrial bonds cannot be said to possess stability of market price in a very high degree. Some of the smaller issues enjoy a fictitious stability owing to the fact that they have no market quotations to reflect their price movements. On the whole, however, these bonds are subject to fluctuations, depending on the business outlook. Of course, just as our business depressions do not reach the same depths of dejection—by a very wide margin, indeed, it may be noted—nor our periods of prosperity carry us to such heights of over-expansion of business and credit, as similar conditions do with our American cousins in the States, our industrial bond prices do not fluctuate so violently. On the whole, there has been more up than down in Canadian price movements so far.

MONTREAL TERMINALS.

The Canadian Northern Plans an Elaborate System.

A despatch from Montreal says: The plans of the Canadian Northern Railway for entry into Montreal have just been made public. The total cost will be in the neighborhood of $25,000,000, and will require three years to complete.

PEDIGREE BANNER OATS

Mr. J. Lockie Wilson Says They May Be Obtained From a Carleton Farm.

A despatch from Toronto says: Arrangements are being made by Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, Superintendent of Agricultural and Horticultural Societies, for agricultural societies throughout the Province to purchase quantities of pedigree banner oats from a farmer in Carleton county, whose grain has been carefully watched by the Canadian Seed-growers' Association. It is suggested that the Secretary of each society should communicate with Mr. Wilson or his Department at the Parliament buildings. Mr. L. H. Newman of Ottawa, Secretary of the Canadian Seed-growers' Association, has promised that he or some of his staff will see that all grain is properly bagged and sealed and a tag will be attached to each bag, with full instructions as to the best methods of cultivating. It is expected that by this means, as well as through the influence of the standing field crop competitions, Ontario will come to be known as the place where the best seed in the Dominion can be procured.

Much gratification is felt by the Department over the fact that this year is the first since the standing field crop competitions were started, in 1907, in which the expert judges have been unable to discover a single seed of wild oats in all the large exhibit of oats at the Guelph Winter Fair.

A BRAVE RESCUE.

A Montreal Painter Saves Two Children at Risk of His Life.

A despatch from Montreal says: Fire broke out on Thursday morning at 890 City Hall avenue. Frank Resnicks, a painter, saw the flames, rushed into the house and rescued two children, who had been left in the blazing dwelling by their grandmother in her excitement. Resnicks' hair and moustache were burned off. He is receiving much praise for the rescue, as the place was a mass of flames. The property loss was only $2,000.

LOCKOUT IN BRITISH MILLS

Action of Employers Affects 300,000 Workers of Lancashire.

A despatch from Manchester, Eng., says: The refusal of one man and two women to join a trades union, coupled with the decision of the Master Cotton Spinners to close their mills three days in the week, caused a complete stoppage of a great portion of the cotton mills in northeast Lancashire on Wednesday evening. Efforts are already on foot to bring about a settlement, but as one woman, who left the union after twenty years because she believes that the benefits are not commensurate with the payments, persists in her attitude, and the Master Spinners insist upon their right to maintain open shops, a long and bitter struggle is feared. There is danger, too, of the fight spreading to other industries.

The lockout involves 160,000 weavers, and nearly an equal number of spinners will be reduced to half pay. Unfortunately there are indications already of probable complications through the introduction of a new issue of the troublesome question of wages. This move has been taken by the weavers, who now declare that as the lockout has been decided upon they intend to make an advance of five per cent. in wages a condition of any settlement. It is estimated that the weekly loss in wages to weavers and allied workers, spinners and card-room employees will amount to $1,400,000. The weavers will receive roughly $325,000 lockout pay from the union.

YOUR INCOME INCREASES EVERY TIME YOU BUY A BOND

A systematic plan of buying bonds is a sure and profitable way of acquiring an income independent of your business or salary.

The rate of interest is nearly double that obtainable in any investment approaching it in safety.

The Bonds handled by this Company are standard and always command ready sale if it is necessary or desirable to turn them into cash.

Bonds are the ideal form of investment for those who realize the uncertainty of speculation, but who desire the highest possible return on their money.

We will be pleased to put your name on our mailing list and send you literature on the subject of Bonds.

JAMES H. DENNIS.

Mr. James Clark spent the New Year at his home in Grand Bend.

The Detroit Journal Says.—In his desire to show that the medical fraternity knows nothing whatever of hydrophobia, if such a disease really exists, a Canadian has played a low-down trick upon the authorities. He was ordered to kill his dog on the ground that it had rabies, but instead of doing so he killed a mongrel and sent its head in for the post-mortem tests to be applied to the brain. The medical experts gravely decided that this was an undoubted case of rabies. Now the owner produces the real dog, which he had sent out to the country, and not only is it in good health now, but it has been ever since it got over its distemper. Medical science declared that the dog had hydrophobia, and that the disease is fatal. Yet the dog is there arguing to the contrary in his doggy way, while his owner is demanding a royal way, while his owner is demanding a royal commission to find out what rabies is.

Pipe-Organ Concert, Caven Church, Friday Evening, Prof. Wheeler, Mrs. Wheeler, Scotch Soloist; W. A. McCutcheon, Baritone, and Miss Nina Kinsman, Soprano.

On Christmas Day at Mrs. Wm. Cudmore's, Main street, Exeter, the marriage took place of her son, Mr. Sam Cudmore of Seaforth to Miss Barbara Styles of Wingham. Her going away dress was navy blue satin with hat to match. They took the evening train for a trip to New York. Rev. Powell of the Main Street church officiated.

Some women are old maids because their faces are their misfortune; some are old maids because when they are beautiful they fish for whales and threw back one minnow too many In general the sex is divided into two classes—those who have not yet lost hope and those who are still afraid that in some moment of foolishness they may yet get married.

At the conclusion of his sermon on Sunday evening Rev. Richard Hobbs gave a clear and concise, statement of the differences from his point of view between himself and certain members of the quarterly board of the church, and concluded by saying that as the differences had not been arranged nor his resignation yet accepted, he could not say who would occupy the pulpit on Sunday next.

The following from the Free Press has reference to an Exeter boy, the son of Mr. Thomas White,—Fred. White of York Street, had his hand badly lacerated by a horse Thursday morning as he attempted to harness it. White is employed by Isaac Sargent, of the sash and door factory, and was harnessing the horse preparatory to starting work, when the accident occurred. The wound was cauterized and no serious results are anticipated. Mr. White will be confined to his home for a few days."

The thirty-third annual meeting of the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union, often referred to as "The Farmer's Parliament," will be held in Guelph on Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 9 and 10. The meeting of the union is one of the big events of the year to agriculture in Ontario, ranking with the Winter Fair andt he Dairymen's conventions in importance and interest. The program is full of interest and includes some of the best-known speakers on agriculture in the province.

The Kilarney Guide says regarding an Exeter Old Boy, W. J. Sanders, a son of the late John Sanders.— 'The 1912 council has been duly elected by the ratepayers of the town and presents a somewhat different personnel from the board of the last year. The new Mayor-elect W. J. Sanders, is one of our younger men. By disposition he is naturally progressive, and we believe he can be depended on to keep the council from falling into the deadly rut is which municipal councils, are so prone to travel".—We congratulate W. J on his election, and knowing him as we do we feel certain he will do credit to the office.

HICKS' FORECASTS FOR JANUARY —A reactionary storm period is central on the 13th, 14th and 15th, at which time the general cold will relax. the barometer will fall and cloudiness with rain and snow will pass eastwardly across the country. Prolonged cloudiness and threatening weather will follow this period, as a result of the Mercury and Mars equinoxes.

MARRIED.—An Exeter old boy, Mr. Frank Wesley Treble of Kelloe, Man., son of the late John Treble of Exeter, was united in marriage on Dec. 26, at the manse Egmondville, to Miss Isabella May Chesney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Chesney of Hensall. The ceremony was performed by Rev. N. Shaw. The Advocate extends heartiest congratulations and best wishes to the young couple. Mr. and Mrs. Treble are at present visiting relatives in and around town.

LEFT HIS REVOLVER

Lucan, Jan. 6.—Jno. McLean, aged 24, whose home is not known, made a daring escape from the council chamber Thursday evening. As the cells were very cold McLean was taken to the council chamber, when he was arrested on a charge of being disorderly on Main street. When left alone McLean took a stick of stove wood and pried apart the iron bars of a window, clambered on a roof, and dropped to the ground. When arrested McLean had a revolver and a belt filled with cartridges in his possession, also a book of union coupons and an overcoat. He left everything behind.

WINGHAM FAMILY HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Wingham, Jan 8—Chas. Knechtel and family, (five children) narrowly escaped suffocation by escaping gas from the coal stove Sunday night. The coal in the self-feeder commenced burning and the upstairs was flooded with gas from the hot air pipe.

FIRE AT GODERICH

Goderich, Jan. 5.—Fire, which broke out shortly after 8 o'clock this morning in the top story of the Western Canada Flour Mill's elevator, did damage which will amount to about $50,000 before it was extinguished. The fire was a very difficult one to combat, and the biting cold added to the difficulty of the department. Two brigade, however, put up a great fight, and confined the fire to the top story. Thousands of dollars' damage was done to wheat through water soaking down through to the lower floors. It is believed that the fire was caused by electric wires becoming crossed during the gale which raged here all night. The fire department had only arrived back from a fire in the Public school, where a blaze had started in a coalbin and spread to a pile of kindling wood. The blaze was extinguished before any great damage was done.

WALL FALLS

London, Jan. 5.—With the mercury 6 below zero, and a high wind blowing, the big wall at the asylum building recently burned, toppled over, wrecking the kitchen completely and tearing out a wall of the boiler house. A full staff in the kitchen had a wonderful escape from death they having just gone to breakfast in another building. Tons of falling bricks destroyed all the steam pipes used in heating the asylum, and 1100 patients were made to shiver. No warm food is obtainable as a result of all the stoves and ovens being buried beneath tons of brick.

DEMONSTRATION CAR IN EXETER

Crediton

This is zero weather. Our people are anxiously looking at their coal bins. The open-winter prophets have disappeared and we have all settled down to enjoy a good-old-fashioned winter.

The attendance at both churches was small last Sunday owing to the severity of the weather.

Rev. Burn has started revival services in the Evangelical Church. We trust they will prove a great blessing to our people.

The newly elected council held its first meeting in the Hall on Monday. Although not much business was transacted, what was done was of great importance and it has started some talking.

Mrs. Bertrand and daughter Miss Madeline have returned home from Detroit after spending a few weeks in the city with relatives.

Mrs. John Schroeder, who has been in Victoria Hospital, London for some time, returned home on Saturday, greatly benefited by the treatment received. Her many friends trust she will soon recover her good health.

The skating rink was opened on Saturday for the season. The ice is in splendid condition. The Hockey players have received their sweaters and hockey outfits and will now steady down for practise. We have a bunch of husky fellows who ought to make good when they meet an outside team.

Now since the snow is here in such abundance, wouldn't it be a good time to organize a snow-shoe club.

Frazer Brown, one of our star pitchers has received an offer from the Berlin Team, one of the teams comprising the Canadian League, to pitch ball during the coming season. Just now Teddy is giving it serious consideration. We wish him luck. He has all kinds of steam a cool head and the weight, which are the essential qualifications of a good pitcher.

J. H. Holtzman has returned home after a short visit with friends in Chicago and Naperville, Ill.

Mrs. and Mrs. Wm. Towers left for North Dakota on Wednesday to resume their farming. We wish them every success.

H. Elber, M.P.P., is in Ottawa this week where he accompanied the delegation that waits upon the Government in behalf of the depositors of the defunct Farmers' Bank.

The return of the Township Clerk to the Registrar-General for quarter ending Dec. 31st, 1911 shows there were 11 births, 7 deaths and 6 marriages registered in the Township of Stephen.

On Sunday evening last, Rev. Burn preached an installation sermon to the newly elected officers and members of the Y. P. A. of the Evangelical Church His sermon was a very appropriate one for the occasion.

Don't forget to vote for the Hydro-electric By-law on Saturday. Remember the votes of those who are dead, absent and the person who will not vote count against the by-law. Other places have voted for the By-law and vote for a measure which in time will mean a great benefit to our village and the surrounding vicinity.

Last Friday evening, the local Lodge of the I. O. F. held their election of officers, which resulted as follows.—C. R. George Hetzel; V. C. R.; W. H. Wenzel, F. S. Alonzo Hodgins; R. S. Herb. K. Elber; Treas, Ezra Faist Orator; Mat. Ginter; S. W. John Wein J. W. Paul Shenk; A. R., Walter Clark; J. B. Moses Faist,

DAIRY INDUSTRY EXPANDING

Value of the Products for 1911 Were Greatly in Excess of 1910.

At the annual convention of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, held at Campbellford last week, the president, Mr. Henry Glendinning, reviewed the progress of the dairy industry in Canada during the past year. During the 11 months ending Nov. 30, Canada exported by the St. Lawrence route 1,659,261 boxes of cheese, valued at $18,087,450, and 134,500 packages of butter, valued at $1,732,360, an increase in the case of butter of $1,395,607 over the whole year of 1910. Our export trade was only 25 per cent. of the total production. The highest price for cheese in the history of the industry in this country was attained last September, when cheese sold for 15 cents on the boards. The past season had a lesson for dairy farmers, said the president. It showed at the dry period the importance of having a plentiful supply of water and food to supplement the pastures in the form of peas, oats, clovers, alfalfa or corn, so as to keep up the milk flow.

Senator Derbyshire, of Brockville, in an interesting address, pointed out that the total value in Canada of all dairy products manufactured and sold in 1911 was approximately $105,000,000, an increase of $3,000,000 over last year. He said that 1911 was a great year in the dairy industry. Quality of output was better than in the past, the goods exported arrived at destination in better condition and there was more money in the business. He advised the farmers of Ontario to strive for still better quality in all that they produce and especially in dairying. The farmers, he said, should get down to business and improve the quality and the quantity of production. To do this better farming and better feeding of cows are necessary. Of great importance in the production of pure milk is good water. The water used in half the places in Ontario is tainted, declared the Senator, and this must be remedied before the acme of perfection in dairy products throughout the whole province can be attained.

"Cow-testing saves waste. It individualizes and detects the useless animated machines that do not turn out milk profitably. It embraces a definite and economical productive power on the dairy farm. It means the prevention of a waste of human energy in handling unproductive cows. We have estimated at Ottawa that 30,000,000 hours are wasted every year in Canada milking poor cows. Our human energy must be conserved on the farms of this young country and cow-testing is one of the most efficient ways of doing this." Mr. C. F. Whitely of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa made these interesting statements in an address to the Eastern Ontario Dairymen at the final session of their convention.

THE BERLIN EPIDEMIC.

Highest Authorities Say That It Was Surely Cholera.

A despatch from Paris, France, says: Many people here believe that the epidemic among vagrants in Berlin was undoubtedly Asiatic cholera, and that it was probably introduced to the German capital by way of Hamburg through immigrants. Medical men hesitate to give an opinion. They point out, however, that the sanitary precautions which have been taken by the Berlin authorities are exactly the same as would be taken for cholera. It is possible, French physicians say, that the disease is the pneumoniac plague which raged with great virulence in Manchuria about a year ago. A person of the highest authority, who refused to allow his name to be used, told a correspondent on Wednesday that the Berlin disease was surely cholera.

FIRED INTO HOTEL WINDOW.

Outrage Attributed to G. T. P. Strike-Breakers.

A despatch from Melville, Sask., says: Shortly before midnight on Tuesday night a number of strike-breakers working in the Grand Trunk Pacific shops assembled in front of the Melville Hotel, and fired a number of shots through the windows and doors at strikers. Several hotel guests, including a Grand Trunk Pacific solicitor, from Winnipeg, had narrow escapes. Arrests are expected.

See the registered name, "Zam-Buk" on every package.

BOTTLES BROKEN IN TRANSIT.

Device for Getting Liquor Into Cobalt Accidentally Detected.

A despatch from Cobalt says: Another method of bringing liquor into Cobalt was discovered when the Provincial Police seized two commercial travelers' trunks loaded with whiskey. The discovery was made owing to a bottle in one of the trunks being broken in transit, the whiskey leaking through the corners of the trunk and strongly perfuming the baggage car. The trunks were checked for Haileybury, but the police took them off the train at Cobalt, and Magistrate Atkinson made an order on Thursday afternoon for the liquor to be destroyed. The owner appeared and wanted his property returned. It was shown that he was holding a commercial traveler's certificate, although not traveling for any firm, and brought the liquor from Montreal.

THREE MEN KILLED.

C. P. R. Express Met With a Mishap Near Wa Waota, Sask.

A despatch from Winnipeg, says: Three persons lost their lives in a wreck on the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's Reston-Wolseley branch early on Friday, when an east-bound express met with a mishap near Wa Waota, Sask. The injured suffered severely, as the thermometer was 40 degrees below zero, and a gale swept the prairie. The dead are: J. Richardson, brakesman; J. Thompson, passenger; L. Gingiest, passenger. The persons kiled were in a coach which overturned. A number of persons were injured.

Quickest, Surest Cough Remedy Ever Used

Stops Even Whooping Cough Quickly—A Family Supply for 50c—Money Refunded If it Fails.

If someone in your family has an obstinate, deep-seated cough—even whooping cough—which has yielded slowly to treatment, buy a 50-cent bottle of Pinex and watch that cough vanish. If it fails, money back promptly, and without argument.

A 50-cent bottle of Pinex, when mixed with home-made sugar syrup, makes 16 ounces—a family supply—of the most effective cough remedy that money can buy, at a saving of $2. Gives instant relief and will usually wipe out a bad cough in 24 hours or less. Easily prepared in five minutes—directions in package.

Pinex Cough Syrup has a pleasant taste—children take it willingly. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative—both good features. Splendid for croup, hoarseness, throat tickle, incipient lung troubles, and a prompt, successful remedy for whooping cough.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of Norway White Pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and other elements which are so healing to the membranes. Simply mix it with sugar syrup or strained honey. In a 16-oz. bottle, and it is ready for use. Used in more homes in the U. S. and Canada than any other cough remedy.

Pinex has often been imitated, but never successfully, for nothing else will produce the same results. The genuine is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Certificate of guarantee is wrapped in each package. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

HILL RAILWAYS BUY LAND.

Nine Hundred Acres secured for Terminals at Pt. Arthur.

A despatch from Port Arthur says: Acting for the Hill interest, a party of English capitalists have just closed a deal whereby the Great Northern Railway secures 900 acres of land at Port Arthur. It is stated on reliable authority that the land is to be used partly for the terminals of the Hill lines, when they are carried into Port Arthur, and that the Canadian shops of the Hill lines will be built there, costing several million dollars. The land purchased extends along the boundaries of the two cities, the great bulk of it being within the limits of Port Arthur, and the balance of it in the township of McIntyre. In the past few days several Great Northern officials have been in the city looking over the site, and the announcement was made that the route for a line from Port Arthur to Winnipeg has already been selected. Work on this will start as soon as the plans fully mature.

CALCUTTA'S PAGEANT.

Briliant Entertainment in Honor of King and Queen.

A despatch from Calcutta says: Six thousand actors and over 200 elephants took part on Friday in the magnificent Calcutta pageant, representing scenes in India's history, which was arranged for the entertainment of King George and Queen Mary. In order to avoid hurting the natives' feelings the producer, Frank Lascelles, who is well known in America, where he conducted the Hudson River and Quebec Tercentenary spectacles, received strict orders to deal chiefly with the times when the old Indian emperors were in the zenith of their power. Scores of powerful native potentates took part in the pageant, riding past the Royal box on gorgeously-caparisoned elephants bearing jeweled howdahs. The procession was two miles long.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Oliver Charette Attempted to Shoot His Children.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Oliver Charette, a farmer of East Templeton, was arrested on Thursday and brought to Hull charged with attempting to shoot his two children, fifteen and sixteen years old, respectively. The accused, according to the evidence of neighbors, has been out on a prolonged drunk. Returning home the worse for liquor he picked up a gun and attempted to shoot the children, but the gun, luckily, was not loaded. Charette then ran upstairs and loaded the gun, but when he came down the children had fled to a neighbor's house some distance away.

WAS A CONFIRMED DYSPEPTIC

Now Finds It a Pleasure to Enjoy Meals

Here is a case which seemed as bad and as hopeless as yours can possibly be. This is the experience of Mr. H. J. Brown, 384 Bathurst St., Toronto, in his own words:

"Gentlemen—I have much pleasure in mentioning to you the benefits received from your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets and can cheerfully recommend them. I simply had confirmed dyspepsia with all its wretched symptoms, and tried about all the advertised cures with no success. You have in Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets the best curative agent I could find. It is now such a pleasure to enjoy meals with their consequent nourishment that I want to mention this for the benefit of others."

The fact that a lot of prescriptions or so-called "cures" have failed to help you is no sign that you have got to go on suffering. Try Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets and see how quickly this sterling remedy will give you relief and start your stomach working properly. If it doesn't help you, you get your money back. 50c a box at your druggist's. Compounded by the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 141

PUBLIC UTILITY BONDS ARE IN DEMAND BY CANADIANS.

So Closely Held, However, There are Few For Sale—What Companies the Term "Public Utilities" Covers—Uneasiness Over Governmental Policy of Municipal Competition—Bondholders Safe, However—Real Estate an Important Item in Street Railway Assets.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor.")

While public utility stocks are a very popular form of investment in Canada, public utility bonds are not, only because their amount is limited and practically all former issues are so closely held that investors rarely have an opportunity to purchase them. The companies are so generally prosperous that their bonds would become a favorite form of investment if there was a sufficient supply to create an active market.

The term "Public Utility" company covers such companies as street railway, gas, electric light and power, water and sometimes telephone companies.

The manner of deciding on the safety of the bonds of these various classes of companies differs in the matter of details, but the principals are in general the same in the case of all. The case of street railways is the one with which investors have to deal most often, and the general methods of investigation employed in this connection may be used with slight modifications in the case of all the others.

As regards the safety of street railway bonds some authorities suggest a three-fold examination, physical, financial and political. In Canada, in view of the attitude of the several provincial governments (particularly that of Ontario) regarding public service companies, one is tempted to make the political examination first, and if that appeared satisfactory then to take up the question of the physical and financial situation afterwards.

Avoiding the question of party politics and touching only on the investor's side of the question (admitting, of course, that there is much to be said on the part of the consumer) a cold-blooded examination of the political attitude respecting public service companies in Canada must fill one with alarm. Granting that they have been unwise in their policies and severe in their charges in some cases, the fact remains that more than one provincial government has passed statutes allowing municipalities to abrogate legal agreements largely for political reasons.

So far, happily, the bond holders of Canadian public utilities have suffered no loss as a result of these enactments, but the shareholders have been less fortunately situated, as anyone who holds stock in the London Electric Light, or formerly held shares in the Toronto Electric Light Company can bear witness. Even the bondholders of the Electrical Development Company had a narrow shave. However, the Ontario Government appears to have come to a realization of the seriousness of injuring bondholders, and it is reasonable to assume that so far as they are concerned there is no menace in the Government's future policy.

In the case of the physical examination there is first the real estate holdings of the company to examine. In the case of a street railway company, there is necessarily a considerable quantity of real estate for sidings, car barns, power houses and offices. If the sale value of such property is equal to the amount of the bond issue there is no occasion for a further examination of the company's physical assets, for the bonds are quite exceptional. This, however, seldom happens, so that further examination is usually essential.

The usual policy in Canada is to construct the railway chiefly by sale of stock. Toronto Street Railway has, for example, less than $4,000,000 of bonds outstanding against $11,000,000 of stock which sells at over 130. There is, therefore, market value of junior securities in excess of $14,000,000 behind the company's bonds. The company's real estate holdings are considerable. In addition to its office building it owns five or six large car barns and pleasure parks, etc., but in all, the total value of the real estate is considerably less than the amount of bonds outstanding and yet Toronto Railway bonds are of an exceptionally high class.

Other points in connection with the safety of public service corporations will be considered next week.

PRISONERS ARE HOMELESS.

Fire in Victoria Provincial Jail Caused $50,000 Damages.

A despatch from Vancouver, B. C., says: The Victoria Provincial Jail was on fire on Friday. The loss is probably $50,000. All the men have been taken out, but the fire comes at a serious time, for al the jails are now overcrowded, and it will be a serious matter to find quarters for the prisoners.

THE KAISER IS FRIENDLY

Germany Has no Earthly Intention Of Attacking Britain.

A despatch from London says: Lord Lonsdale, whose intimacy with the Kaiser is well known, has just returned from a visit to his Majesty at Potsdam. In an interview on Friday night Lord Lonsdale sought to dispel the idea of German hostility to England, basing his views on what he saw and heard in Germany. Lord Lonsdale said he could not possibly repeat anything the Kaiser had said, but he could tell thousands of things which would astonish Englishmen respecting the Kaiser's warm feelings for England and the English generally. He was quite sure that the Kaiser was unable to understand the position which Great Britain took toward Germany in the Morocco business. Knowing as he does exactly what the Kaiser's views are in regard to war, Lord Lonsdale profoundly disbelieves that there is any ground for a German scare in the country. Of course, he says, there is the strongest trade rivalry, but otherwise the Germans regarded the English as allies rather then enemies. But, continued his Lordship, the feeling has now gone beyond trade rivalry in consequence of Lloyd George's amazing speech when the German gunboat Panther arrived at Agadir. That speech, he said, created such an effect in Germany that it will take many years to live it down. If the Kaiser had not been resolved not to have war with England, said Lord Lonsdale, it would have been very difficult for any German Cabinet to have resisted the popular indignation at the speech, but the Emperor would do anything rather than create a war. In conclusion, Lord Lonsdale said:—"I defy anybody to prove me wrong when I say that Germany has no earthly intention, and never had an intention, of attacking Britain."

ST. VITUS DANCE

Chorea, or as it is more generally known, St. Vitus dance, is a disease that usually attacks the young children, though older persons may be afflicted with it. Its most common symptoms are a twitching of the muscles of the face and limbs. As the disease progresses this twitching takes the form of spasms in which the jerking motion may be confined to the head, or all the limbs may be affected. The patient is frequently unable to hold anything in the hands or to walk steadily and in severe cases even the speech is affected. The disease is due to debility of the nerves and is always cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, tone and strengthen the nerves and thus restore the sufferer to good health. The following is a striking instance of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do in this trouble. Mrs. Chas. Phipps, Pelee Island, Ont., says:—"At the age of fourteen my eldest daughter, Edith, became much run down, and the trouble developed into St. Vitus dance. First her left arm becamt affected, then the left leg and entire left side. She grew so bad that she actually could not hold anything in her hand, and could only go about with a sliding, jerking motion. Notwithstanding that we were giving her medicine, she seemed to be growing worse, and finally her speech became much affected. We became so much alarmed about her that finally her father got a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and we began giving her these. In the course of a few weeks she was much better, and before all the pills were gone she was again enjoying perfect health. This was in 1908, and as she has not had a symptom of the trouble since I feel justified in saying the cure is permanent."

Be sure you get the genuine pills which are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GENERAL INVITATION.

One morning Miss Lucy Halcomb, the most fastidious housekeeper in Bushby, who was reported to have washed an unfortunate grand-nephew into a decline, opened her front door, having heard strange noises on the piazza.

There stood a tramp, his shoes caked with mud, which he was scraping off with a knife and kicking off by alternate applications of his heels on her door-mat.

"What are you doing?" demanded Miss Lucy, indignantly.

"Doing!" echoed the tramp. "I was starting round to the kitchen to ask the young lady I saw hanging out your clothes if she'd hand me a bite of breakfast. Then I thought I didn't make a very good appearance, and was about to go on to the next house when I saw this mat with the invitation, 'Please use this Mat,' right on it, so I stepped up here. In about five minutes more I'll look well enough so I can go round to the kitchen."

"Well!" said Miss Lucy. "Well!" and then she closed the door, being unable to think of any appropriate remarks.

Terrible Itching Got Little Sleep

Mr. T. Williams, Winnipeg.

Until Cuticura Remedies Cured Him

Those who have suffered long and hopelessly from torturing skin eruptions will read with interest this letter from Mr. T. Williams, 115 Pacific Ave., Winnipeg (dated Jan. 14, 1911): "The Cuticura Remedies certainly did work finely, and I am thankful that there is such a remedy, and that I tried it. About three months ago a terrible itching commenced on my body. I could not understand it. It gradually grew worse and covered a large portion of my body. There was also a slight eruption of the skin, sort of a rash. I suffered greatly with the itching and at night time I had little sleep. I tried one or two remedies which did no good, and then I tried Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent. In about ten days I was completely cured."

For more than a generation the Cuticura Remedies have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for itching, burning, scaly and bleeding skin and scalp humors, of young and old. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, with 32-p. book on the care of the skin and treatment of its affections, send a postal to the Potter Drug & Chem. GETTING RID OF A STORE.

Not Easy to Sell, But He Got It Off His Hands Finally.

One reason why "Uncle" George Latham was so hearty and happy at seventy-seven years of age was that he never let himself worry. He did the best he could, and took things as they came; and as usually happens with persons of this kind, things came fortunately oftener than not.

Having made a comfort fortune, he had withdrawn almost wholly from business—almost, but not quite. He still owned and ran the old general store in the little town where he was born, partly for the sentimental reason that the store was where he got his start, and partly for the practical reason that the business was not easy to sell.

His wife, "Aunt" Martha, tried for years to get him to close the store. He was old enough, she said, to quit and take things easy. Uncle George did not deny that he was, but he could not make up his mind to let go.

It happened last fall that Uncle George and Aunt Martha visited a neighboring city and spent a week or two there at a big hotel. One night, as the clock was striking twelve, Uncle George was wakened from sleep by a call to the long-distance telephone. His son Horace was at the other end of the line.

"Is that you, father?" he called. "Say, I'm awfully sorry to disturb you, but the old store burned down to-night. It all went, stock and all. Total loss."

"Well, well, Hod, that's too bad, ain't it?" said Uncle George. "You attend to things till I come back next week, will you?"

"But you're coming back before that, aren't you? Do you quite understand? Your loss is twenty-five thousand dollars. Aren't you coming up on the next train?"

"I know what the loss is, Hod. But you say it's all gone. Why should I come up? You can attend to the insurance, can't you? You're thirty-five years old!"

Uncle George rang off and went back to bed. Aunt Martha was awake, of course, and wanted to know what the message was about.

"Just a word from Hod," her husband said. "I have got rid of the store at last."

In less than two minutes there was unmistakable evidence that Uncle George was asleep.

So popular is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup as a medicine in the treatment of colds and coughs or ailments of the throat, due to exposure, to draughts, or sudden changes of temperature, that druggists and all dealers in patent medicines keep supplies on hand to meet the demand. It is pleasant to take, and the use of it guarantees freedom from throat and lung diseases.

NICE DISTINCTION.

He had been describing a scheme which he had in mind for the benefit of mankind in general, and as he finished he drew a piece of paper from his pocket.

"I have here——" he began.

"I'll not subscribe a cent," interrupted the business man. "I don't believe in your alleged charitable project, and I'll not give you anything for it."

"But I don't want any money from you," protested the caller.

"Then what do you want?"

"I just want you to sign a petition to someone else to help it along. Your influence, you know, will——"

"Oh, well, of course, I'll do that; but I won't give you any money for such a swindle."

Mildmay is a philosopher in his way. The other evening Mrs. M. gave him a scolding that would have made almost any other man crazy. But Mildmay said never a word in reply. He only murmured to himself:—"And that is the woman I used to hold on my knee and call my little tootsy-wootsy!"

SAVED HERSELF YEARS OF PAIN

IF SHE HAD USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS FIRST.

Mrs. McRea suffered for over two years, then two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new woman of her.

Previl, Gaspe Co., Que., Jan. 8 (Special).—That she might have escaped two years and seven months of suffering had she tried Dodd's Kidney Pills in the first place is the firm conviction of Mrs. John McRae, an old and respected resident of this place. And this is the reason she gives for believing so:

"For two years and seven months I was a sufferer from Kidney Disease brought on by a strain and a cold. My eyes were puffed and swollen, my muscles cramped and I suffered from neuralgia and Rheumatism. My back ached and I had pains in my joints.

"For two years I was under the doctor's care, but he never seemed to do me any lasting good. Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new woman of me."

To save yourself suffering cure your Kidneys at the first sign of trouble. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one sure cure.

QUEER EASTERN DRINKS.

National Drink of Tibetans—Fermented Cocoanut Milk.

Arra may be said to be the national drink of the Tibetans, being given at all times and in all places. The natives carry it in long buffalo horns on trips from place to place, and the shepherds deem their existence miserable if they have not their daily allowance. Arra is used also by the Bhutians, but the great drink of these people is marwa. This is a kind of beer made from millet. The grain is subjected to a very primitive method of fermentation without malting, and is stored in earthenware jugs; it has to be used quickly, as it soon sours; it is very light in alcohol, but it is extremely nourishing.

Nipa wine, made from the nipa palm, is a common beverage in Burma. According to Bonfort's Wine and Spirit Circular it resembles in taste and flavor the palm wine or toddy of India, though by some it is thought to be more powerful in its inebriating qualities. But the favorite beverage of the Burmese is shouchou, which greatly resembles sam-tchoo, only it is a little more fiery in taste and its effect is somewhat quicker and decidedly more lasting.

They also use the milk of the cocoanut, which they ferment in vast quantities and preserve in glazed earthenware jars which hold from 100 to 150 gallons apiece. Like their neighbors the Hindus and Chinese, they are prolific in the distillation of their many fruits, and many excellent drinks are made therefrom. They import large quantities of European liquors, especially gin, and as a rule they prefer strong spirits instead of money in payment for what we term odd jobs.

A pin scratch may cause blood poison, a rusty nail cut is very apt to do so. Hamlins Wizard Oil used at once draws out all infection and makes blood poison impossible.

Some women are so changeable they never wear the same complexion twice.

RED TAPE TOOK DOG'S LIFE.

Saved from Shipwreck, but England Had no Place for Him.

It is no uncommon thing for a dog to save human life but the case of a dog who saved three persons from being burned to death in a fire at Engham, a village not 20 miles from London, England, the other day, and that of the dog that had to pay the penalty of death after being rescued from a sinking ship, owing to the amazing English quarantine regulations, serves as a contrast between canine and human kindness.

A Norwegian sailing ship was driven on the rocks at the Lizard. The crew were taken off by means of the rocket apparatus, when suddenly the captain discovered his dog had been left behind. At great risk and amid cheers, the dog, which was a great favorite with the sailors, was rescued. Then fresh trouble arose.

The quarantine regulations had to be complied with. No dog could be landed on the shores of England without the Borad of Trade certificate, and there was no provision for quarantine at the Lizard.

Without the necessary permit the the captain had broken the law by bringing his dog ashore, and the poor dog which had been born and lived all its life on board his master's ship, was shot.

English soil, however, provided the little alien with a grave.

IN MATCHTOWN.

Fortunately no Faith Was Required, For She Had None.

"I had no faith whatever, but on the advice of a hale, hearty old gentleman who spoke from experience, I began to use Grape-Nuts about a year ago," writes an Ohio woman, who says she is 40, is known to be fair, and admits that she is growing plump on the new diet.

"I shall not try to tell you how I suffered for years from a deranged stomach that rejected almost all sorts of food, and digested what little was forced upon it only at the cost of great distress and pain.

"I was treated by many different doctors and they gave me many different medicines, and I even spent several years in exile from my home, thinking change of scene might do me good. You may judge of the gravity of my condition when I tell you I was sometimes compelled to use morphine for weeks at a time.

"For two years I have eaten Grape-Nuts food at least twice a day and I can now say that I have perfect health. I have taken no medicine in that time—Grape-Nuts has done it all. I can eat absolutely anything I wish, without stomach distress.

"I am a business woman and can walk my 2 or 3 miles a day and feel better for doing so. I have to use brains in my work, and it is remarkable how quick, alert and tireless my mental powers have become." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

A Medical Need Supplied.—When a medicine is found that not only acts upon the stomach, but is so composed that certain ingredients of it pass unaltered through the stomach to find action in the bowels, then there is available a purgative and a cleanser of great effectiveness. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are of this character and are the best of all pills. During the years that they have been in use they have established themselves as no other pill has done.

CATHEDRAL A WAR CHEST.

St. Petersburg, as well as Moscow, has some cathedrals which are marvels of ecclesiastical architecture. St. Isaac's Cathedral, for instance, in the centre of the city, cost 24,000,000 rubles, or $12,000,000. Scores and scores of immense marble pillars adorn its four equal sides, while several of the beautiful green malachite columns within are worth a king's ransom. It is said that in the golden domes of St. Isaac's and the jewels within Russia has a "war chest" that would defend her from her enemies for many a month if she should need the gold.

Pills for Nervous Troubles.—The stomach is the centre of the nervous system, and when the stomach suspends healthy action the result is manifest in disturbances of the nerves. If allowed to persist, nervous debility, a dangerous ailment, may ensue. The first consideration is to restore the stomach to proper action, and there is no readier remedy for this than Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. Thousands can attest the virtue of these pills in curing nervous disorders.

THE FARMERS' SONS.

One reason why so many boys leave the farm for the city is because of the failure of the father to take the boy into his confidence, and make clear to him that he is not merely a "hewer of wood and carrier of water," but that he is in full partnership with him and has a personal interest in the success of the work. Those of us who were raised on the farm know, of course, that it would be practically impossible for the father to always demonstrate this to his son by a cash consideration but if the seeds of dissatisfaction are not to be planted, some greater consideration for the son's services will have to be made than that of merely board and clothing. If, say, the son knew that he would receive even a small share of the proceeds from the sale of a pig, or a lamb, or a calf, and occasionally of a cow or a horse, to do with as he might like, to save or to spend, we believe, speaking from experience, that the arrangement would be mutually advantageous. The son does not like to feel under the obligation of going to his father every time he wants a few cents for some expenditure; and besides he should be in a position to lay up something for the "rainy day." The needs of a quarter of a century ago do not accord with the needs of the present day; nor did the boys of that time have the same facilities for investment as the boys now have. To-day we have practically at our door strong financial institutions which accept small amounts on deposit; and we also have the Canadian Government's great annuities system, which has the approval of members on both sides of parliament and is backed by the whole of the Dominion of Canada. Besides these there are many other chances for the boys to make small and safe investments and he would take on an added interest in the farm work. Farmers, make your sons partners with yourselves and you will have little difficulty in keeping them on the farm.

DISTRIBUTION OF SEED GRAIN AND POTATOES

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution will be made during the winter and spring of superior sorts of grain and potatoes to Canadian Farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat 5 lbs., white oats 4 lbs., barley 5 lbs., and field peas 3 lbs. These will be sent from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes in 3 lb packages will be carried on from several of the experimental farms, the central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples to be sent free by mail.

Applicants should give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms, and should also state what varieties they have already tested and in what way these have been found satisfactory, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be sent.

Each application must be separate and be signed by the applicant. Only one sample can be sent to each farm. Applications on any kind of printed or written form cannot be accepted.

As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are advised to apply early in order to avoid possible disappointment. No applications can be accepted after Feb. 15. All applications for grain, and in Ontario and Quebec for potatoes, should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage.

Get busy? To-day, not to-morrow is the accepted time. If you would be a success, be one. No one is stopping you. Your hands and feet are not tied. You need not wait till some one drives up in a forty-horse power automobile and invites you to ride with him to fame and glory. Hard work and a little common sense will do the trick. Get busy.

Do not complain that opportunity never knocks at your door. Probably she has knocked a great many times and failed to find you at home attending to your business; or, perhaps, you were asleep, or maybe you were talking so loudly about hard luck that you could not hear her.

Mighty Queer.

The negro on occasions displays a fine discrimination in the choice of words, says the National Monthly.

"Who's the best whitewasher in town?" inquired the new resident.

"Ale Hall am a bo'nd a'tist with a whitewash brush, sah," answered the colored patriarch eloquently.

"Well, tell him to come and whitewash my chicken house tomorrow."

Uncle Jacob shook his head dubiously.

"Ah don't believe, sah, Ah'd engage Ale Hall to whitewash a chicken house, sah."

"Why, didn't you say he was a good whitewasher?"

"Yes, sah, a powe'ful good whitewasher, sah, but mighty queer about a chicken house, sah; mighty queer."

Tennyson's Bird Sounds.

Perhaps the best word for the cry of the cricket is that of Tennyson. "Not a cricket chirr'd," he writes in "In Memoriam." But Tennyson was always curiously exact in his vocal rendering of the songs of birds. What could be truer to sound than "the moan of doves in immemorial elms?" Then, too, the linnet, the robin and the thrush "pipe," the woodpecker "laughs" and "mocks," the lark and the plover "whistle," the jay "scriches," the parrot "screams," the peacock "squalls," the blackbird "warbles," while the ocean fowl "shriek" and the eagle "yelps."—London Graphic.

High Finance.

"What makes him look so solemn? He gets his month's salary tomorrow."

"That's just the trouble. His wife and his mother-in-law allow him 50 cents a week out of it, and he's trying to make up his mind to strike for a dollar!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Balked.

"You got a raise in pay, didn't you?"

"Yes, but it didn't do me any good."

"Why not?"

"I talk in my sleep, and my wife found out about it."—Toledo Blade.

Pretty Steady.

"That Jones boy who used to work for you wants to hire out to me. Is he steady?"

"Steady? If he was any steadier he'd be motionless."—Judge.

Great Britain's Great Seal.

Measuring six inches in diameter and made of silver, the great seal of Great Britain is kept in the custody of the lord high chancellor, and a new one is prepared for each reign.

Actions.

Every man's actions form a center of influence upon others, and every deed, however trivial, has some weight in determining the future destiny of the world.

Our history contains the name of no one worth remembering who led a life of ease.—Roosevelt.

GRAND BEND.

Mr. and Mrs. Truen and children of Stanley are visiting relatives around here.—Messrs. J. and W. Stratton were in Thedford Monday on business.—Mr. Paul Gravelle and Hattie Lafond, who have been visiting relatives around here, left for their home in Bad Axe, Mich., Monday.—Mr. Albert Gamble is shaking hands with old friends around here this week.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dewey have returned to their home in Muncey.—We are having very cold weather here at present, the thermometer registering Monday morning 11 below zero.—Mrs. Asaph Gravelle was in Thedford Monday.—

WHALEN.

Mr. Samuel Peart of Rockwood is visiting relatives and friends around this section.—Rev. Mr. Bowen of London spoke here on Sunday in the interest of the Bible Society, and delivered a most interesting address.—Mr. Ed. Buttson of Buffalo spent a few days last week the guest of Mr. Wm. Ogden.—Mr. J. V. Milligan visited over Sunday with his brother, Rev. W. H. of Stratford.—Thursday, Jan. 4th was an eventful day in the history of the Methodists of this place, the occasion being the fourth anniversary of the erection of the present church, and its celebration was marked by the wiping off of the small remaining indebtedness and the burning of the note which was officially done by Mr. Samuel Gunning. A splendid programme was given by home talent, except Mr. Mack of Kirkton, who was present with his gramophone. Rev. Mr. Blanchford our pastor, is to be congratulated for his untiring efforts and the assistance he gave the trustees in bringing about the favorable results mentioned above. We must not forget to mention that the trustees treated all present to an oyster supper.

KIRKTON

The shareholders of Aberdeen Hall held their annual meeting on Monday night last, when Mr. Wm. Mack was awarded the position of caretaker for another year.—Mr. Robt. Stinson has assumed the duties of post master.—The investigation by the Insurance Co. into the origin of the fire that burned Mr. Hern's barn which was to have taken place here on Tuesday was postponed owing to the stormy weather.

Death Of Adam A. Doupe—The sad news of the sudden death of Mr. Adam A. Doupe a former resident and store keeper of Kirkton was received here with profound regret this week, he having passed away at his home near London on Monday, January 8th, at the age of 64 years. For many years deceased conducted a general store here and by his courteous manner and obliging disposition endeared himself to all who knew him and all of whom will deeply mourn his demise. Deceased moved from here to his late place of residence between fifteen and twenty years ago. He is survived by a sorrow widow, two sons and two daughters.

MOORESVILLE.

Welcome the beautiful white snow, but oh that cold worker "Jack Frost".—The Maccabees held a splendid Ball in the hall here on New Years Eve which was a decided success. Tony Vita's Orchestra of London rendered most beautiful music.—Mrs Albert Nell has returned home from visiting friends in Hamilton.—Mr. I. Nell is home from the West, visiting under the Parental Roof.—Miss Mabel Glavin, who has been seriously ill with Typhoid fever these last two months, we are glad to say she is improving nicely now under the care of Dr. Hyndman's graduate nurse of London.—A number from here attended the hop in West McGillivray last Friday night.—Mrs. Walter Lewis is at present very ill at her home.—The Misses Glavin's spent a couple days in London last week and Miss Eileen also visited in Lucknow for a while.—Mr. E. O. Jones was married last week to Miss Simpson of this place. We wish them a long and happy married life.

SAINTSBURY

Mr. Jack and Mich. Hotham of Deleware, who spent New Years with Mr. Frank Davis, has returned home.—Miss Alice Davis has returned after spending a month with her sister, Mrs. Ned Hotham, at Deleware.—Mr. G. Symns who spent the holidays in Toronto, has returned home.—Mr. Ray Dobbs left on Saturday for Sarnia, where he has secured a position with the Grand Trunk.—Miss Flossie Sweet of Exeter is visiting friends around here.—Miss Beatrice Robinson of Stratford is visiting in this vicinity.—Mr. and Mrs. James Turner entertained a number of Lucan friends last Friday.—Mr. Grant Isaac spent New Years in Toronto.—A number of our young people attended the Ball at Mooresville on Tuesday, reporting a good time.—Miss Maggie Quinton entertained a number of Saintsbury young friends on Friday night and report a good time.

CLANDEBOYE

Miss Gertrude Harmon, of Hamilton holidayed with Miss Mary McIlhargey.—Miss Irene O'Dwyer, of St. Joseph's Hospital, London, is visiting with her uncle, Mr. T. Reilly.—Mrs. T. Hodgins has returned from Cleveland, where she visited with her daughter.—Mr. and Mrs. Parliament, of Chatham visited with Mr. Cunningham, here.—Mrs. Connors, of Cleveland, visited her mother and other relatives here.—Mrs. F. Ouellette and daughter Kathleen, of Bell River, visited her parents here.—Mr. James O'Dwyer has returned to London to attend high school.—Mrs. McKernon, of Windsor, is visited her mother, Mrs. G. Carter.—Mrs J. McWilliams, of Elora, is visiting his mother, who is very ill.—Mrs. George of Lethbridge, Alberta, is visiting her mother, Mrs. R. Hodgins.

HENSALL

Robert Higgins returned last week from the North, where he has been engaged working for the Provincial Government.—Jack Hagan left last week to visit his brother, Dr. Hagan, in N. Dakota.—E. J. Solden of Manitoba is visiting his brother here.—Irwin Douglas of Unity, Man., is visiting his brother George and other relatives.—The young people are enjoying the skating which has at last commenced.—Harry Ingram, who has been visiting his wife and family, has returned to Toronto.—Garnet Webber is home from Calgary where he spent the summer. A small frame cottage back of the high school, owned by Henry Hunn and occupied by James Whitlock, an English immigrant, who lived alone, was badly damaged by fire on Tuesday of last week. The blaze originated through the explosion of a kerosene can.—Ralph Mowbray, general agent for the Deering Harvester Company, left on Wednesday for Edmonton to remain a year in the interests of the firm. He was presented with an address and a handsome secretary, and Mrs. Mowbray with an easy chair by a number of citizens.—Miss Alma Stanley has taken a position as teacher in the high school at Arnprior.—William J. Collison after an absence of eight years in the Edmonton district, is visiting his home in Biddulph.—William J. Scott returned from Regina last week and will spend the winter here.—John Jackson sr., of Strathcona, arrived here last week and will spend the winter with his daughter, Mrs. McNamara. Mr. Jackson is 82 years of age and quite feeble.—Dr. Gordon Gunn has a position as surgeon on one of the ocean liners sailing between Montreal and Liverpool.

SEAFORTH.—Word has been received from Alameda, Sask., regarding the burning to death of Mrs. Samuel Hammill, and her 12-year-old daughter. Some days ago, while Mrs. Hammill was cleaning curtains with gasoline, and had placed them in the kitchen to dry, when an explosion occurred. Mrs. Hammill's dress was in flames in an instant, and she rushed from the house. The blaze spread with amazing rapidity, and before the neighbors arrived they found it impossible to do anything. Mrs. Hammill said that her daughter was in the house, and her husband, who came up had to be held back, as he would have lost his life had he gone into the building. Mrs. Hammill was so terribly burned that she died soon afterwards. The family formerly resided in Hullett Township, and Mr. Hummill is a son of the late Mrs. Hummill of Seaforth.

SEA CAPTAIN HAD INDIGESTION.

Calls Morriscy's No. 11 Tablets Magic Remedy.

FORBES POINT, N. S., July 8, 1910.
"Previous to taking your No. 11 Dyspepsia Tablets I had been undergoing treatment with my family physician for three months, and at an expense of about $100. I was suffering so badly that I could not sleep. Fortunately for me a friend recommended your No. 11 Dyspepsia Tablets. I tried them, and they acted like magic. After the first dose I began to feel better, and that very night I slept soundly, and it was the first time for weeks that I was able to sleep. I used altogether 3 boxes of the remedy, and am entirely cured. Needless to say, I think No. 11 Dyspepsia Tablets are great, and anyone suffering from Dyspepsia or Indigestion should try these Tablets by all means, as I consider them a magic remedy.

Capt. Norman Devine.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

RIDING A CAMEL

A Strenuous Task That Promotes a Love of Walking.

Riding a camel is by no means an easy or enjoyable method of locomotion, according to the description given by Mr. M. J. Randall in his book, "Sinai In Spring:"

"If asked 'How do you ride a camel?' I reply invent as many attitudes as you can and employ them all in turn; adjust and readjust the rugs and cushions on which you sit; ride straight; ride crooked; ride with stirrups made of rope; ride without them; hitch first your right knee round the front pommel, then your left knee; stretch yourself wide legged over the saddlebags regardless of the firearms, dates, crockery, etc., which they contain until nature commands you to make a less obtuse angle; ride side saddle. If you can persuade your Bedouin that it is possible to do so without prejudice to the camel. Ride how you will and when you will, but, above all—walk. Not only is the sheik himself glad—at your suggestion, but not otherwise—to mount for a while, but it is a lesson in graceful riding to watch him perched up there, heaven knows how, in some oriental way you have never dreamed of, and it is a lesson in courtesy to mark how at every turn of the road he offers to forego his pipe of peace—chibouk—and post of comfort and descend to the sand, leaving you to incumber his beast of burden."

LUGGAGE IN ENGLAND.

None of It Goes Astray Because the People Are All Very Honest.

Certain strangers within our gates have been wondering at our dealing with passengers' luggage—how much better the system of other countries. There you get a receipt and when the bag goes astray the official assures you it is impossible because there is the receipt. So you go to bed and get up and dress in your bit of paper.

Our method is insular and on the face of it chaotic. We throw our luggage to the mercy of some unknown porter. At the end of the journey we find a sort of lucky tub of portable property piled on the platform, and we plunge about and pick out what we want. You know the scene—a hundred people who have only to say "That's mine" to a strange porter in order to get it.

Thus badly stated the system looks like chaos and the invitation to a general scramble for other men's goods. In practice it works out well, for every one, from porter to passenger, is on his honor, and—this is the point—luggage in England is safer than in any other civilized country.—Westminster Gazette.

The Steamboat.

Fulton himself said one day: "Neither M. Desblanes nor I invented the steamboat. If that glory belongs to any one it is to the author of the experiments at Lyons—of the experiments made in 1783 on the Saone." The one Fulton had in mind and to whom he thus generously rendered the "glory" was the Marquis de Jouffray, born in 1751, fourteen years before the year of Fulton's birth. Jouffray's claim to be regarded as the inventor of the steamboat stands thus: His vessel, built in 1783, notwithstanding its faulty construction, embodied all the elements essential to success. In it he anticipated Watts' invention of a steam engine having a constant and unremitting action. Lack of funds was the only thing that stood in the way of his getting all the honors that came later to Robert Fulton.—New York American.

The Laugh on Edison.

There are many stories of Edison. One of his early childhood is recorded on the authority of his only sister. When he was about six years old he found out that a goose belonging to the family was sitting. Later he saw the surprising result in a number of goslings. One day he was missing. He was sought everywhere, but no one could find him until at length his father discovered him in the barn curled up in a nest he had made and filled with goose eggs and hen eggs. He was sitting on the eggs and trying to hatch them!—London Tatler.

Synonmys.

The French Canadian always has trouble with the aspirate "th." At a debating club in the province of Quebec members were required to draw a slip from a hat and debate upon the subject they received. A young countryman arose.

"I have drew the word 'bat.' I must told you dere is two, tree different kind of bat. Dere is de bat wot you play the baseball wit, de bat wot fly in de air at night and also de bat where you take de swim."—Success Magazine.

After the Honeymoon.

"Anyhow, Jack, you cannot say that I ran after you at the time of our marriage."

"You never spoke a truer word, Maria, but neither does the mousetrap run after the mouse, yet it catches it all the same."

Shorn.

"Miss Ella, was your bazaar a success?"

"Glorious! All the men had to walk home!"—Meggendorfer Blatter.

His Last Residence.

Lawyer (to witness)—Now, then, Mr. Murphy, give us your last residence. Murphy—Faith, sor, Oi dunno, but it'll be the cimitery, O'm thinkin'!

ZURICH.

Mrs. J. K. Wing and daughter of Berlin are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Philip Hauch—Miss Josephine Howald of Berlin visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Howald last week.—Mr. Marshall Zeller left last week for Berlin, where he is attending high school.—Mr. and Mrs. George Koch entertain a number of people on New Year's Day it being Mrs. Koch's 50th birthday.—Mr. Harry Fisher and sisters Misses Alma and Idella, all of Berlin spent the holidays at home.—Miss Florence Laporte of Detroit spent New year's with her parents Mr. and Mrs. John Laporte, Sauble Line.—Miss Lydia Brown has returned home this week, after an extended visit to friends in the vicinity of Walkerton and Hanover.—Mr. Fred Southcott of California, who who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Spackman at Blenheim, was a guest at the home of Mrs. S. Bannis last week.

WEST McGILLIVRAY—Mr. J. Wright of our burg has threshed his alsike over again and was well paid for his work receiving thirteen well cleaned bushels of seed. Quite a number here are thinking of doing the same.

AILSA CRAIG.—Miss Sadie McPherson who leaves this week for New York to study nursing, was agreeable surprised Tuesday afternoon when the girls of her Sunday School class presented her with a beautiful gold-headed suitcase umbrella, suitably engraved.

CLINTON—A quiet wedding was celebrated on Tuesday afternoon when Miss Annie E. Cook became the bride of Mr. Wm. S. Atkins of Toronto. Rev. Ford tied the knot. The young couple spent their honeymoon in Detroit.

AILSA CRAIG—A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mrs Wm. G. Noyes on Thursday when her daughter Appolene was married to Mr. John Squires. Rev. Meldrum officiated and the happy couple left on a trip to Sarnia and points in Michigan.

FULLARTON—Wednesday noon a pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Byers, Fullarton, when their daughter, Lucy Effie, was united in marriage to Mr. George Glaister, of Wellesley.

CLINTON—A very prettty event took place at high noon Jan. 3 at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Cochrane when their daughter, Miss Annie, was married to Mr. Lorne Ephraim Butt, of Saskatoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. Wesley Cosens, in the presence of about twenty relatives and friends.

HIBBERT—Rev. Mr. McKay preached his farewell sermons in Cromarty Presbyterian church Sunday to two very large congregations. He will be missed very much in this vicinity, and our best wishes go with him.—The results of the Hibbert municipal elections is as follows: Reeve J. A. McLaren by acclamation; councillors, J. Johnstone 216, William Oliver 210, J. Morris 183, R. Hoggarth 165.

HAY—The following is a statement of the votes cast for several candidates at the elections in this township on Monday.—For Reeve—Kalbfleisch 397, Neeb, 300, a majority of 97 for Mr. Kalbfleisch. Councillors—Consitt 399; Willert 358, Schibe 303, Datars 292, Northcote 284, Batier 209. The council will be composed of Messrs Kalbfleisch reeve, and Consitt, Willert, Schibe, and Datars, councillors.

MOORESVILLE—The first dance of the year held here Jan 2nd was enjoyed by about 75 couples from all over the district. An excellent musical program was rendered by the Tony Vita orchestra of London. During the evening a dainty luncheon was served by the ladies.

BRUCEFIELD—The municipal elections in Stanley were very exciting this year. Mr. William Glenn was returned as Reeve with a majority of 13 over his opponent, Mr. Alex Jones, and the three old councillors, Messrs Keyes, Dewar and McKinley were also returned.

FULLARTON—Friday morning last, at the age of 88 years, Mrs Aaron Buck passed away after an illness of four years. Deceased was born in Ireland and when a young girl came to Canada with her parents. In later years she married Aaron Buck, who died twenty-one years ago. Two sons and four daughters survive; Aaron, William, Mary and Mrs. Scott, Mitchell; Mrs. J. W. Balfour, Hibbert and Mrs. David Etty, Fullarton.

HAPPY THO' MARRIED?

There are unhappy married lives, but a large percentage of these unhappy homes are due to the illness of the wife, mother or daughter. The feelings of nervousness, the befogged mind, the ill-temper, the pale and wrinkled face, hollow and circled eyes, result most often from those disorders peculiar to women. For the woman to be happy and good-looking she must naturally have good health. Dragging-down feelings, hysteria, hot-flashes or constantly returning pains and aches—are too great a drain upon a woman's vitality and strength. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores weak and sick women to sound health by regulating and correcting the local disorders which are generally responsible for the above distressing symptoms.

Mrs. Dickover.

"I suffered greatly for a number of years and for the past three years was so bad that life was a misery to me," writes Mrs. B. F. Dickover, of Utica, Ohio, Route 4. "The doctors told me I would have to go to a hospital before I would ever be better. A year ago this winter and spring I was worse than ever before. At each period I suffered like one in torment. I am the mother of six children. I was so bad for five months that I knew something must be done, so I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce, telling him as nearly as I could how I suffered. He outlined a course of treatment which I followed to the letter. I took two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and a fifty-cent bottle of 'Smart-Weed,' and have never suffered much since. I wish I could tell every suffering woman the world over what a boon Dr. Pierce's medicines are. There is no use wasting time and money doctoring with anything else or any one else."

The Medical Adviser by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y., answers hosts of delicate questions about which every woman, single or married ought to know. Sent free on receipt of 50 stamps to pay for wrapping and mailing only.

MEN-YOU NEED NERVE

Wonderful Nervous System

EARLY INDISCRETIONS AND EXCESSES HAVE UNDERMINED YOUR SYSTEM

The nerves control all actions of the body so that anything that debilitates them will weaken all organs of the system. Early Indiscretions and Excesses have ruined thousands of promising young men. Unnatural Drains sap their vigor and vitality and they never develop to a proper condition of manhood. They remain weaklings, mentally, physically and sexually. How you feel? Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, specks before the eyes with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, bashful, debilitating dreams, sediment in urine, pimples on the face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careworn expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, premature decay, bone pains, hair loose, etc.

This is the condition our New Method Treatment is GUARANTEED TO CURE

We have treated Diseases of Men for almost a lifetime and do not have to experiment. Consult us FREE OF CHARGE and we will tell you whether you are curable or not.

We guarantee curable cases of NERVOUS DEBILITY, VARICOSE VEINS, BLOOD AND SKIN DISEASES, GLEET, BLADDER URINARY AND KIDNEY COMPLAINTS

Free to Stock and Poultry Raisers

We will send, absolutely free, for the asking, postpaid, one of our large sixty-four page books on the common diseases of stock and poultry. Tells you how to feed all kinds of heavy and light horses, colts and mares milch cows, calves and fattening steers, also how to keep and feed poultry so that they will lay as well in winter as in summer. No farmer should be without it.

NOW is the time to use Royal Purple Stock Specific. At a cost of only two-thirds of a cent per day per animal it will increase it 25 per cent. in value. It permanently cures Bots, Colic, Worms, Skin Diseases and Debility. Restores run-down animals to plumpness and vigor. It will increase the milk yield three to five lbs. per cow per day and make the milk richer. Royal Purple is not a stock food. There is no filler used in its manufacture, and we import from Europe all the seeds, herbs, barks, etc., and grind them on our own premises. Therefore we can guarantee it to you as being absolutely pure. We do not use cheap filler to make up a large package. We give you the best condition powder ever put on the market in a concentrated form. A tablespoon levelled off once a day is sufficient for a full grown animal. It prevents disease, keeps your animals in perfect health, and is absolutely harmless. It makes six weeks old calves as large as ordinary calves at 10 weeks. You can develop six pigs ready for market in just one month's less time than you can possibly do without it at a cost of only $1.50, saving you a month's work and food. A 50c package will last a horse 70 days. A $1.50 pail or air-tight tin containing four times as much as a 50c package will last an animal 280 days. If you have never used it try it on the poorest animal you have on your place and watch results. If it does not produce better results than anything you have ever used or give you satisfaction, we will refund your money. Andrew Wegrich, of Wainfleet, Ont., says that he tried it on one cow, weighed her milk on the 16th, 17 lbs., on the 29th she gave 22 lbs. Dan McKiwen, Canada's greatest horse trainer, says: "I have fed Royal Purple to The Eel and all my racehorses for four years. They have never been off their feed. Your cough powder works like magic."

Mr. Tom Smith, trainer for the Hon. Adam Beck, says: "We had a mare in our stables last fall belonging to Miss Cleuston, of Montreal. We could not feed her any bran on account of scouring. We commenced using your Royal Purple Stock Specific. The results were wonderful. We found after using it three weeks we could feed her bran or any other soft feed and she actually took on 25 lbs. during that time."

Royal Purple
STOCK AND POULTRY SPECIFICS

Royal Purple Poultry Specific
will make your hens lay in winter as well as in summer, and yet a 50c package will last 25 hens 75 days or a $1.50 pail or air-tight tin contains four times as much as a 50c package, will last 280 days. It prevents poultry from losing flesh at moulting time, cures and prevents all the ordinary diseases, makes their plumage bright and keeps them in prime condition.

Mrs. Wm. Burnham, of Sandford, Ont., says: "I fed your Poultry Specific to 32 hens during the winter and sometimes got as many as two dozen eggs per day in February and March."

Mr. Andrew Hicks, of Centralia, Ont., says: "I used your Stock Specific on 20 milk cows. They have increased 30 per cent. in their milk and I got even better results from your Poultry specific. We had 60 hens laying age. When we commenced using Poultry Specific we were getting five or six eggs a day. In less than five days we got 150 eggs. These were the coldest days last winter." You can see the results at once after you commence using this material. When farmers get acquainted with Royal Purple brands they will never be without them.

Royal Purple Cough Specific
During the last four years there has been an epidemic cough going through every stable in Canada, which has been a great source of annoyance to horsemen. Our Royal Purple Cough Cure will absolutely cure this cough in 4 days, will break up and cure distemper in 10 days, absolutely guaranteed. 50c per tin, by mail 55c.

Royal Purple Gall Cure
Will cure all sorts of open sores on man or beast. Will absolutely dry up and cure scratches in a very few days. Mr. Sam Gwen, Coachman for the Hon. Adam Beck, says: "By following directions I find your Royal Purple Gall Cure will cure scratches and make the scabs peel off perfectly dry in about four or five days." Price 25c, by mail 30c.

Royal Purple Sweat Liniment
Will reduce any lameness in a very short time. Mr. Jno. M. Daly, Coalman in London, says: "We have nine horses, constantly teaming coal, and have all kinds of trouble with them being lame at times. I have used your Sweat Liniment for a year back and have never known it to fail to cure all sorts of sprained tendons, etc." Price 50c 3-ounce bottles, by mail 60c.

Royal Purple Lice Killer
This is entirely different from any lice killer on the market. In order for you to understand the process of manufacture of this lice killer you will have to send for one of our booklets as we give you a full history of it there. It will entirely exterminate lice on fowls or animals with not more than one or two applications. It smothers them. Price 25c, by mail 30c.

An assorted order amounting to $5.00 we will prepay.

What we wish to impress on your mind is that we manufacture nothing but pure unadulterated goods. Our booklet gives over 400 recommendations for our different lines from people all over Canada. While we give you above the names of a few who have used it, our best recommendation is for you to ask any person who has ever used any line we manufacture.

HOUSEHOLD

CONFECTIONERY.

Creamy Fudge.—After removing fudge from the fire add a pinch of baking powder and beat briskly. If the fudge has been cooked a little too long and hardens before it is perfectly smooth, add a tablespoonful of cream, or condensed milk will do just as well. Beat again till the right consistency and you will have smooth, creamy, and delicious candy.

Turkish Candy.—Take one and one-half cups granulated sugar, one-half cup warm water, one-half cup glucose. Boil together till they form a hard lump when dropped in cold water. Then add the whites of two eggs, well beaten, and a cup of nut meats.

Marshmallow Fluff.—Take one-half pound of marshmallows, cut each in four dice, one pint of cream whipped stiff and white of one egg whipped, and pulverized sugar to taste. Add marshmallows and one-fourth pound of English walnuts broken in small pieces to cream and mix all together. If color scheme is desired, one or two drops of any fruit coloring can be added. This is a cheap and delicious dessert for six.

Candy Cranberries—Into a porcelain kettle put a quart of cranberries, add three cups of granulated sugar and a pint and a half of water. Let simmer until berries are soft, but not until they lose their shape.

Brown Sugar Creams.—Take two cups light brown sugar and one-half cup water. Boil together until a bit dropped into cold water forms soft ball. Remove from fire. Beat in deep bowl the whites of two eggs to slight froth, add candy syrup, onel-half teaspoon vanilla, and beat until it begins to stiffen. Long beating makes it finer grained. Drop with teaspoon upon waxed or buttered paper and press a nut-meat into top if desired. Will keep moist indefinitely in glass jar.

Frosted Nut Hills.—Use one-half pound long, narrow, white crackers, whip white of one egg, add one cup chopped nuts and one cup sugar. Place little lumps here and there on crackers and brown in oven a few minutes. Watch constantly.

DESSERTS.

Teddy Bear Pudding.—Make a rich custard and while warm add chopped nuts and glace fruit; beat with egg beater until cool. Eat with whipped cream, to which you may add a little brandy or vanilla, according to taste.

Egg Snow.—Beat up until stiff the whites of six eggs; have ready in the saucepan on the fire a pint of milk sweetened and flavored with vanilla. As soon as it boils drop the beaten egg into it by tablespoonfuls, one at a time, and as they become set dip them out with a tin. Slice them and arrange them upon a broad dish. Allow the milk in the saucepan to cool a little and then stir in the yolks of the eggs gradually. When it becomes thick pour it around the snowed eggs and serve cold.

Flour Pudding.—This dessert is known in Maryland and the Virginias as a "flour pudding," but in reality is a boiled apple dumpling. Sift sufficient flour to make the quantity of dumplings you wish and mix in a little salt. Pour into this boiling water direct from the kettle, sufficient to make a soft dough. Mix quickly before it has time to get chilled, roll out on the bread board in sheets about three-quarters of an inch thick and spread over it the apples pared and quartered. Sprinkle over this a little sugar, roll up quickly, just as you would a jelly roll, tie in a cloth wrung from cold water, and plunge quickly into a pot of boiling water. Boil for an hour and a quarter. Serve with milk and cream, half and half, sweetened and flavored with grated nutmeg, or any other sauce preferred. This also is delicious made from peaches, and in the winter time make it of preserved fruits, plums and peaches being particularly palatable.

SALADS.

Macaroni Salad.—Break into two inch pieces required amount of macaroni for a meal. Cook until tender in salt water. When cold mix with the same amount of fine sliced cabbage. Then mix with salad dressing.

Appetizing Salad.—Cut fresh pineapples—if you can get them—if not, the canned, into small pieces, sweet pickles in same sized pieces, using two-thirds of pineapple, one-third of pickles, and a cup or more of English walnuts. Mix these with a salad dressing made of one-half cup vinegar, yolks of four eggs, teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon mustard, two tablespoons sugar; put on stove, stirring all the time until it thickens. Add butter size of a large walnut, beat until smooth, and when cold thin with thick sweet cream or sour or whipped cream, and mix with your salad.

Fruit Salad.—Use one apple cut into small pieces, one orange cut in the same way, one-quarter cup of seedless raisins, one-half cup of sugar, one cup of milk. Mix and let stand a half hour.

LUNCHEON.

Walnut Sandwich.—Chop common walnut meats fine, add a little salt. Spread between thin slices of buttered bread.

Veal Birds.—Have your butcher cut a slice of veal cutlet thin. Divide this into two to three inch squares. Lay on each a little heap of cracker crumbs seasoned with pepper, salt, celery salt, and moistened with milk. An oyster or nuts may be added. Draw the corners of the meat together and fasten with toothpicks. Bake or fry until brown. They may be served on toast with a spray of green. This is one of the daintiest luncheon dishes imaginable, and it is quite amusing how much they look like real little birds.

Lace Luncheon Set.—To make an attractive and inexpensive luncheon set procure at the curtain goods department filet curtain lace for about 65 cents a yard. Four of the squares make a plate doily, one square a bread and butter plate doily, and one square a tumbler doily. Sixteen squares make the centerpiece. To make a set of twelve each only takes about a yard and a quarter of material. Then get inexpensive torchon or some other heavy lace and sew around the edges of the doilies, making the seams in the corner, where they will not show.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Paper Quilt.—Five or six thicknesses of common newspaper placed between light layers of cotton and covered and tacked in the usual way make a warm, light, cheap, and sanitary quilt. Those who have not tried it will be surprised at its warmth and durability. In these days of high priced cotton, many will find this an economical means of keeping warm.

Economical Cushions.—Make a slip the proper size, turn wrong side out, cover thickly with cotton batting, and tack firm with twine. Turn right side out again and fill with excelsior that has been clipped fine with scissors, and you will have a satisfactory pillow at little cost.

To strengthen woollen mittens where men are handling forks, as on a farm, sew a piece of leather in the palm, cut from the tops of wornout shoes.

Night Pillow Shams.—Take the good part of worn sheets (or use new material if preferred) and spread over and tuck under the pillows when fixing the bed for use at night. These will protect the pillow slips.

Save Hat Bands.—Do not throw away the silk hat bands on men's straw hats or soft felt hats, as they make excellent belts to be used in a buckle or take the place of belting for skirt bands.

Make Insoles.—A good idea is to save all the old felt and beaver hats. Out of the felt ones make insoles for shoes. With the beaver cut out the shape of a shoe, only a little larger; then sew on any old bottoms of woollen socks and have nice bedroom slippers.

Wear Socks Over New Shoes.—So many people try shoes on in the store and find them comfortable, but when they wear them awhile they find them either too short or too narrow. Put a pair of socks over your shoes and try wearing them around the house for a few hours. You soon can see if the shoes are the right size and shape for your foot. If they are not comfortable the socks have so protected them that they can be returned without the shoes seeming to have been worn.

ANIMALS WITH MEMORIES.

This Bull Remembered a Cruel Beating With a Club.

That animals of certain species possess highly retentive memories is vividly illustrated by a tragic affair that happened some time ago in Colorado.

Among the live stock of Antonio Anderson, a successful farmer, was a fine bull that was so docile that Mrs. Anderson herself fed and watered him regularly every day. On one occasion, more than a year ago, while Mrs. Anderson was absent, Anderson gave the animal a cruel beating with a club.

The man had forgotten the affair, but had not approached the bull since then until one evening, when he decided to lead the bull to water. When Andereson drew near the animal attacked him and gored him to death.

Neighbors who witnessed the affair insisted that the bull was mad and should be killed. To show that they were mistaken, Mrs. Anderson stepped forward, rubbed the bull's nose, then put her arm around his neck, and led him away. The man forgot his cruel deed, but the bull remembered.

THE QUALITY OF MERCY.

Judge—"Prisoner, have you got anything to say before sentence is passed?"

Prisoner—"All I arst, yer lordship, is to tike into account the extreme youth and hinexperience of my lawyer, and to be lenient for 'is sike."—The Bystander.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, JANUARY 14.

Lesson II.—The birth of John the Baptist, Luke 1. 57-80. Golden Text, Luke 1. 68.

Verses 24-56—The verses which intervene between the text of our last lesson and this one record a number of events of special interest for us in our study of the life of Jesus. These include the following: The annunciation by the angel Gabriel to Mary of the coming birth of her son; the visit of Mary to Elizabeth at her home in the hill country of Judaea; the reference to the kinship existing between the two women and to the difference in time between the birth of John and of Jesus; and the Song of Mary, known to the church throughout the centuries as the Magnificent. The entire passage should be read in connection with our to-day's lesson.

Verse 58. Magnified his mercy towards her—Shown her especial favor.

59. On the eigth day—In harmony with the requirement of the law. Compare Gen. 17. 12; Lev. 12. 3. The religious ceremony of circumcision was administered simultaneously with the naming of the male child. In the Christian Church the sacrament of baptism takes the place of the Jewish ceremonial; but, like the latter, it is still associated with the giving of the name. Thus the expression "to christen," meaning literally, to make Christian by baptizing, has come also to mean simply to name.

62. Made signs to his father—Who was still unable to speak, the penalty of his unbelief, referred to in verse 20 of our last lesson.

What he would have him called—The word of the father was the final authority.

63. A writing tablet—A small wooden tablet, smeared with wax, on which the impression was made with an iron stylus.

64. His mouth was opened—His power of speech was restored.

Spake, blessing God—There was a double reason for his thanksgiving, the restoration of his speech and the great blessing that had come to him in the gift of this child.

65. Fear came on all that dwelt round about them—There was something mysterious and awe-inspiring about the events which they had witnessed.

67. The Song of Zacharias, known to the Christian Church as the Benedictus, is worthy to be the inspired utterance of a saintly priest of Jehovah. The text of the song is given in verses 68-79. It consists of five strophes or Hebrew stanzas, each of three verses; but in English is most conveniently divided into two parts, verses 68-75, and verses 76-79. The first of these parts expresses thankfulness to God for having fulfilled his promises to Israel in the sending of the Messiah, the offspring of David, for the salvation of Israel and the establishment of true religion and righteousness. It refers to the child of Mary as the Messiah to come. The second part begins with a reference to the speaker's own child as the appointed prophet of Jehovah and forerunner of the Messiah. In this capacity the child, when grown to manhood, shall proclaim the message of salvation, the remission of sins, release from bondage, the dawn of hope, and the reign of peace, which the birth of the Saviour shall bring.

68. Blessed be the Lord — The hymn of praise which follows gets its name, the Benedictus, from this opening phrase. It has been in use in Christian worship since the sixth century.

Wrought redemption—To Zacharias this would mean redemption from foreign rule, as well as from spiritual bondage.

69. Horn of salvation—A frequent metaphor found also in classic ancient writers outside of the Bible. The figure here signifies the power of the Messianic king, which is likened to the strength of a wild ox as represented in its horns.

In the house of his servant David—A statement implying that Mary, as well as Joseph, was descended from David.

70. His holy prophets—"In the law of Moses, and the prophets, and the psalms" (Luke 24. 44).

72, 73. Covenant; . . .oath—These were identical. Compare Gen. 22. 16-18.

76. Thou, child—Zacharias has been speaking of the Messiah to come; now he addresses his own infant son, who is to be the prophet of the Most High.

Make ready his ways—An allusion to the prophecies of Isaiah 40. 3 and Malachi 3. 1. The figure of the forerunner is taken from the ancient Oriental custom of sending a special advance messenger to announce the coming of any royal personage, one function of this forerunner being to see to it that the roads over which the royal traveler was to go were put into good order for his coming.

78. Dayspring from on high—The expression in the original may mean either the rising of a heavenly body, as the sun or morning star, or the heavenly body itself. It is thus equivalent to speaking of the Messiah as the Sun or Star of Israel.

80. Grew—Developed normally. The same expression is applied to Jesus in Luke 2. 40.

Waxed strong in spirit—Developed unusual strength intellectually and spiritually.

Was in the deserts—His boyhood home was in the hill country of Judaea and in this quiet seclusion, far from the tumult and distraction of city life, he grew to manhood.

CLAY EATERS.

The earth eaters of Africa do not eat the clay because of the absence of other edibles, as they are found in localities where other forms of food are found in abundance. The clay of the deeper layers is preferred, and the natives dig galleries of a rude nature and accidents due to falls or earth are quite frequent. When accidents of this character occur, no effort is made to assist the unfortunate miner thus buried, and he is allowed to die, because it is believed that the deities of the mines must be propitiated with a certain number of sacrifices annually, and the accident is regarded as the means of claiming their rights. The earth eaters frequently consume seven and eight pounds of clay daily.

Economy is all right, but don't waste a dollar's worth of time trying to save a penny.

JAPANESE BUSINESS HONOR.

Their Standard Not the Same as Ours—The Reason Why.

Japanese business methods have been widely criticised, especially in the last few years, as lacking those standards of commercial honor which prevail among Occidental nations. A writer in the Atlantic says that the question most frequently Orient has been:

"Why is it that the Japanese are so dishonest that they cannot even trust themselves, and have to employ Chinamen at the head of all their great business concerns?"

He explains this almost universal impression by saying that the average tourist usually has business relations only with the branches of the three great banks established in the treaty ports. When he cashes his letter of credit he observes the singular fact that the money is being handled by a Chinaman instead of by a native.

"The simple truth," says this writer, "is that these three banks—all of them, by the way, foreign concerns—are the only business houses in the entire empire so conducted. When Japan was opened and these foreign corporations in China sent their branches into the new field, they sent their Chinese compradores with them.

"Yet, while all this can be said, and should be said, in the interest of simple justice, it is nevertheless undeniable that in Japan the ideals of commercial honor and the methods adopted in the conduct of business are not what they are in the West, and there is much of which the Occidental may justly complain.

"There is a historical reason for this. The fact that in the olden days in Japan the merchant was placed at the bottom of the social scale and the soldiers at the top, while in China exactly the reverse was the case, fully explains why Japan has produced a splendid soldiery, and has wofully suffered in her mercantile life, while the army of China has been the sport of the nations though her merchants have attained a high place in the world of business credit.

"But even though the 'cake of custom' is the hardest to break, its power of resistance has been already materially weakened by this wise policy of the Emperor; and the merchant is no longer the pariah of the realm. Prominent among those who by the Emperor's favor have risen from the social dust into places of highest honor is a family whose history is significant.

"The Mitsui family of Japan have been called the Rothschilds of the East; but while the fame of the latter has gone abroad over the world the Mitsuis have remained practically unknown except to a few Western merchants who have had extensive dealings with the Orient. The European family owes its great renown to the fact that for a century there has been no slightest stain upon its commercial honor.

"But its career, it should be remembered, has been passed in a world where business itself has been held in honor; while the Mitsuis, engaged in a pursuit utterly contemned by public sentiment, for three centuries, in spite of the demoralizing influence of the social ban, have been trusted by Government and people alike, and have kept the honor of their name unstained. Now, thanks to the new spirit animating the nation, they no longer stand so conspicuously alone."

HUNTING THE CHEETAH.

Sport Once Popular With English Residents of India.

The cheetah hunt which the Viceroy witnessed recently at Hyderabad reminds one that cheetah hunting was an extremely popular sport with Indian princes in former days, although the initation of European forms of sport has done much in these times to rob it of its ancient vogue, says the Madras Mail.

It was practised both by Hindu and Mohammedan chieftains over the greater part of India, for the cheetah even now is not a rare beast, and a century or so ago must have been common enough.

Another animal used in the same way by Indian nobles was a sort of lynx, spelled variously as "Shoegoose," "syahgush." But this was used much more rarely than the cheetah. However, it was not only Indians who indulged in this form of sport.

It was enjoyed and practised by Europeans as well in the days when they were content to abide in India for fifteen years at a stretch and when they lived a l'Indienne in a way unknown to modern times. More than one of the Company's nabobs kept their own cheetahs, which were frequently presents from friendly chiefs.

It may easily be imagined that cheetah hunting was very good sport and welcomed by the servants of the Company as an excellent substitute for the coursing which was familiar to them in England and which, like the cheetah hunt, has vanished before the spread of games such as tennis and golf.

"A couple," said Mrs. Simpkins, "got married a few days ago after a courtship which had lasted fifty years." "I suppose," replied Mr. Simpkins, "the poor old man had become too feeble to hold out any longer."

NATURE AND HER COLORS.

Why the Pink of the Flesh of the Watermelon, for Instance!

The attractive appetizing outward appearance of most fruits is explained by the scientific supposition that its function is to attract birds and animals which carry the fruit away to eat the fleshy portion and discard the seed, thereby aiding in the disturbution of the species. According to Prof. O. N. Whitt, writing in a recent number of the Runrschau, modern science teaches us that everything related to color of fruits and vegetables has its definite purpose. The red cheeks of a peach, he says, are so enticing that the above distribution of species explanation will probably be readily accepted. But why that brilliant red color where the flesh meets the kernel? The bird that picks at the flesh of the fruit does not strike this colored layer until the work is practically accomplished.

Somewhat similar conditions are met with in the vegetable kingdom. Why is the red beet deeply colored, while its close congeners have a white juice? After all, neither, under normal circumstances, sees the light of day, so that it is problematical what useful function the color can possibly serve. Then, again, why does the madder root contain quantities of alizarine and allied dyestuffs that in the past have been of such great value, while in modern times we have learned to manufacture them by artificial means? Of what possible use can such dyestuffs be to the plants? Consider the watermelon covered by a thick, opaque, dark green skin. We may make some sort of conjecture as to the purpose of this: it perhaps serves in keeping off some of the large animals which would devour the fruit, skin and all, and thus leaving the melon to be burrowed by worms, who leave the seeds untouched. But why that appetizing pink color of the flesh of the melon? It cannot serve as a charm to attract visitors, for the guest that has eaten its way through the skin needs no further attraction, after he has reacher the interior. The black color of the seeds may perhaps be put down as a preventive measure, protecting them from sharing the fate of the rest of the fruit.

We now know that the refreshing green of the woods and meadows is not provided for our enjoyment, but for the serious and practical purpose of plant nutrition; the flowers display their bright colors to attract the insect that carries the pollen from stamen to stigma; the Alpine hare is snow colored so as to be hidden from the sight of his enemy while the lion is tawny and the tiger striped.

BOLDNESS OF SWALLOWS.

One Nest Built in a House—Another on an Electric Lamp.

A very curious instance of boldness in swallows was recorded in 1886 from Ceylon. In this case the birds built over a lamp in the dining room; what made their choice of site more remarkable was the fact that the lamp could be raised or lowered by counter weights and the connecting chains actually passed through the mud walls of the nest, says Baily's Magazine.

Occasionally the bird selects a nesting site which invites comparison with the boldness of the robin. In July last a pair of swallows took advantage of the open window of an unoccupied bedroom in a house at Felmersham in Bedfordshire to begin building their nest on the curtain rod of the bed.

The return of the owner of the house and his occupation of the bed did not in the least disturb or alarm the birds, which completed the nest and brought off three nestlings within seven weeks of the house owner's return. They took no notice of the occupant of the bed when flying in and out of the window feeding their young; but the hen bird would fly off the nest if any one entered the room during the daytime.

Three years ago a pair of swallows built their nest on top of the shade of an electric lamp which hangs outside the asylum at Narborough, near Leicester.

RAW FOOD AND THE BLOOD.

Two French physiologists have recently demonstrated that a raw food diet develops, under certain conditions, a considerable increase of the white blood corpuscles which play such an important part in the fight against invading bacteria. Cooked food, even in double doses, has no similar effect, according to these scientists. They accredit the value of the raw food diet to the juices extracted from it in the process of digestion.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

CHAPTER XII.—(Cont'd)

"I know nothing of that, monsieur," said the little man, who seemed to be strangely crestfallen, "but I am telling you the truth this time. It was he who sent me the day before yesterday to the Rue Barbette, and again yesterday, although I was very unwilling to go the second time, because, as this gentleman will tell you, they looked very like murdering me on the first occasion."

"What was the object of your visit yesterday?" said Brett.

"There monsieur, I have told you the truth, although monsieur the commissary here thinks it was childish. My instructions really were to ask them to meet him on the Pont Neuf at 6.30 p.m., when he said he would explain everything to their satisfaction. But, above all, I was to warn them of the Englishman."

"Then, why should they seize and gag you for conveying such a simple message?" demanded the commissary.

"I cannot tell. I have done them no harm. Believe me, gentlemen both, I have not the slightest idea how these diamonds were obtained. or why there should be such a fuss about them. All I know is that these Turks are desperate fellows, and you won't catch me going near them again, I swear."

"How long have you known Dubois?" said Brett.

"Oh, two years more or less."

"Have you ever been associated with him before?"

"Never, monsieur. My record is there." And he again jerked his thumb towards the volume on the table. "It will tell you that I deal in small affairs. Dubois is an artist. If he found a woman's purse in the street he would return it to her with a bow, if she were rich and handsome—and with some francs added if she were poor."

"I know little about him," he continued, "except that he is a great man. They say that he once robbed the Bank of France of 200,000 francs!"

And the little wretch's voice became tremulous with admiration as he recounted the legend.

"He is a favored lover of La Belle Chasseuse?" demanded Brett sharply.

"The Worm" recovered his equanimity somewhat at this question. He softly drew his hand over his chin as he replied with a smirk: "There are others!"

"I think not," came the quick retort. "No; there are none on whom mademoiselle bestows such favors. She left Paris with him last night."

"The devil!" ejaculated the little man.

"Oh, yes; and she has just passed a fortnight with him in London."

"A thousand thunders!" screamed Petit. "Her father told me she was performing in a musical at Marseilles."

The barrister had evidently touched a sore point, and "The Worm" was more ready than ever to tell all that he knew about Le Jongleur. But his information amounted to little more of importance. The chief fact had been ascertained, its predominant interest was the identity of the man who had planned and carried out the "Albert Gate outrage."

Brett quickly realized that to question him further was useless. Petit evidently expected to be set at liberty at once. In this, however, he was disappointed, for the commissary curtly remanded him to the cells.

Brett, on the other hand, made up his mind that "The Worm" at liberty might be more valuable to him than "The Worm" in gaol. So he asked the commissary, as a favor to himself, to set Petit free, first giving the thief to understand that he owed his release to the barrister's intervention.

This was done, and "Le Ver" was voluble in his expressions of gratitude. Brett soon cut him short.

"Here," he said, "are a couple of louis for your immediate necessities. I am living at the Grand Hotel, and I want you to call there each morning at ten o'clock. You will inquire at the office if Mr. Brett has left any message for you. Then if I need your services, I will be able to reach you early."

Petit protested that he would serve monsieur most willingly, and soon afterwards the barrister took leave of the commissary, promising to keep him fully posted as to further developments, and secure for him, and him only, the ultimate credit of capturing such a noted thief as Dubois. Fate settled matters differently.

The French official was already much impressed by Brett's method of handling this difficult inquiry, and he consented readily enough not only to assist him in every possible way, but to restrain the police from further active interference in the case until matters had developed from their present stage.

During the afternoon Brett received a visit from his actor acquaintance, who brought him a telegram from Marseilles. It read—

"Mlle. Beauclaire has obtained an engagement here at the Palais de Glace. She makes her first appearance on Monday evening."

Brett smiled as he realized how accurately he had interpreted the actions of La Belle Chasseuse and her companion.

"This is certain," he said to himself. "They left Paris on Thursday night and they probably will not reach Marseilles until Monday. I have plenty of time to hear Talbot's story from his own lips before I take my departure for the South."

An hour later he was seated in his room smoking and reading a magazine when the waiter appeared. "A lady and three gentlemen wish to see monsieur," he explained.

He rose promptly, and accompanied the man to the foot of the staircase. There, near the elevator, he saw Edith Talbot, Lord Fairholme, and Sir Hubert Fitzjames, whilst with them was a tall, handsome young man, in whom the fair outlines of the girl's face were repeated in sterner and bolder characteristics.

Edith was the first to catch sight of him. She sprang forward and cried with an impulsiveness that showed how deeply her quiet nature had been stirred.

"Oh, Mr. Brett, I cannot tell you how grateful I am to you! Here is my brother!"

The two men shook hands and looked at each other with a natural curiosity, for seldom had an acquaintance been made after more exciting preliminaries.

"I am indeed glad to see you," said Brett, shaking Talbot's hand with more demonstrativeness than was usual to one of his quiet temperament.

"Then how shall I find words to express myself?" was the reply, "for in my case there is joined to the pleasure of making a much-desired acquaintance the knowledge that to your efforts I am indebted for my liberty and possibly for my reputation."

"We have much to say to each other," said the barrister. "I suppose you have secured rooms in the hotel?" he continued, turning to Miss Talbot.

"Oh, yes, everything is settled," she cried. "The servants are looking after our trunks. I simply would not wait a moment until I had seen you. Please take us all somewhere at once where we can talk quietly."

Brett answered with a smile: "Lord Fairholme and I have a sitting-room which we use in common, and which has already been the scene of many earnest conferences. Let us go there."

CHAPTER XIII.

"Now, who talks first?" Prett cried, once the door was fairly closed behind them.

"I do," burst forth Fairholme. "My story will not take long to tell, and if I do not get it off my chest, I shall simply explode."

"We must not have any more tragedies," said Brett, "so proceed."

"Well, thanks to your foresight, I found the two servants and your ex-policeman waiting for me, on the platform at Charing Cross. As I only carried a handbag, I had no trouble with the Customs, and we walked straight out of the station. In less than five minutes we were standing outside the building which contained the invalid lady's flat. Your agent told me, so far as he knew, there were no other persons in the place except the tenant and her two servants, an elderly French or Italian married couple. Our collective wits could not devise a plausible pretext for gaining access to the lady, so I determined to settle the business in the brutal British fashion. We marched quietly up the stairs to the second story, and your assistant pointed out the right door. There were only two flats on that landing, and the other one was apparently empty. Your man had made a somewhat important discovery since he wrote to you. This empty flat had been taken by the agents who acted for the parties opposite, and although the place was not tenanted, the landlord was, of course, satisfied, as the rent had been paid in advance. This seemed to indicate that the place was left vacant simply to prevent the others from being overlooked."

"I rang the bell and promptly put my ear to the keyhole. It seemed to me that a couple of doors were hastily closed, and then some one slowly approached. The outer door was opened and a man's head appeared. I could see his face and a portion of his left shoulder, because the chain was on the door, and the opening was not more than eight or ten inches. Speaking in broken English he said—'Vat you want?' His accent showed that he was a Frenchman.

"I answered in my best French, 'I wish to see madame, your mistress, at once.'

"'It is impossible,' he said in the same language, and simultaneously he tried to shut the door in my face. I shoved my foot against the jam and prevented him. At the same instant my own servant and I—as, if there was to be trouble, I thought it best to keep the others out of it—applied our utmost force to the door and succeeded in snapping the chain. It might have been a tough job, as you know that to force a way through anything that yields slightly and yet holds fast is much more difficult than to smash a lock or a couple of bolts. Luckily the flats were jerry built, so the chain broke, and so suddenly that the Frenchman was pitched violently backwards. We nearly fell after him. The ex-policeman was a splendid chap. His first idea was to jump towards the switch of the electric lights and turn on every lamp in the place.

"I shouted, 'Talbot, are you there? It is I, Fairholme.'

"I got no answer, but a woman darted out of a room which proved to be the kitchen, screaming something which I could not catch, and handed a revolver to the Frenchman, who was just struggling to his feet. That was where my prize-fighting butler came in useful. Before you could say 'Wink' he gave the man an upper-cut that settled him effectually for the next minute. Almost with the same movement he caught the woman a slap over the ear that upset her nerves considerably. She had a revolver in her hand too. It fell to the floor, and Smith, your servant, seized both weapons.

"The ex-policeman called out—'I do not think we are making any mistake, sir. They would not act after this manner if they were on the square.'

"I must say it seemed to me that so far it was we who had been acting in an extraordinary way, but there was no time to discuss the ethics of the case then. Whilst my butler and Smith took care of the couple, your assistant and I hastily examined three rooms. They were empty, save for a small quantity of furinture. The fourth door resisted our efforts, so, of course, we burst it open. And the first thing that met our eyes was poor old Jack lying on his back on the bed, and glaring at us in a way that made me think at first he was mad."

"I should think so," interrupted Talbot. "I would like to see your face if you were trussed up as I was—not able to speak a word—and a fiendish row going on in the passage outside."

"You were gagged," questioned Brett. "and your wrists and ankles were secured to the four corners of the bed, your limbs being distended in the form of an X?"

THOUGH IT'S "ONLY A COLD"—STOP IT BEFORE IT STOPS YOU

Have you ever heard of a case of catarrh, bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, or pleurisy that did not start with a common cold?

Every cold you catch has in it the makings of one or other of these diseases, if it can break down your defences. And even if it does not develop into something more dangerous, it will keep you thoroughly miserable for a week or two at least.

The wise course, as soon as you feel the cold coming on, is to start taking Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne, and keep it up till the cold is knocked out completely. This splendid cough syrup will do the trick quickly and thoroughly.

You can feel perfectly safe in taking Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne, or in giving it to your children. We'll gladly give your physican a list of its ingredients if you like. Your Druggist can supply either 25c or 50c. bottles. The National Drug & Chemical Co of Canada, Limited 119

QUEEN OF PIPES.

The Queen of pipes belongs to the Shah of Persia. Why is the great chieftain of pipes a queen? Probably because a pipe is a feminine noun in French. The little Shah's pipe was smoked by his father before him, and by his uncle and by his grandfather, and how many more of the rulers of Darius' kingdom Tip knows not. The pipe is adorned with all the precious stones, and is said to be worth $50,000. It is constantly guarded by a high court functionary, for once upon a time a Grand Vizier was caught trying to pry out a stone from the pipe with his poinard. He was immediately beheaded, and the brave soldier who prevented the theft was made guardian of the pipe, with a pension for life.

On the Farm

WINTER CARE OF HORSES.

Why do so many farmers neglect their teams during the winter months? By neglect I mean, why are so many farm horses kept shut up in close stables when not actively at work, fed a heavy allowance of heating grain, all the forage they can stuff and only given exercise when actually at work in the field or on the road? writes Mr. J. M. Bell.

In a natural state in any clime the horse, like all animals, must necessarily take exercise in seeking a means of subsistence, therefore a horse which is kept by man must have exercise in the open air (whenever practicable) in order that he may be able to give his owner the full equivalent in good honest work for the feed that he eats.

Farm teams are used to working hard all spring, summer and fall. The dull season for the farmer is when inclement weather prevails. Outdoor work for the faithful farm team will be uncertain.

Don't let them stand up in the stable for days at a time, fed heavily on heating food, breathing only the vitiated air of the stable.

Under the most favorable conditions the average farmer's stable does not furnish pure oxygen to horses or cattle that are kept up constantly, only getting the much needed daily exercise at irregular intervals and in consequence suffering from many ailments incident to close confinement along with heavy feeding.

The writer was well acquainted with one of the most successful breeders of horses in this country, a man who owned at one time over 100 head of thoroughbreds, many of them horses that are known from the Atlantic to the Pacific for their successful performances on the turf.

It was his invariable custom to let all of his studs have exercise in the open air whenever the weather conditions permitted. Brood mares, stallions and colts were all turned out to run about and get the benefit of fresh air and exercise, sometimes even when the weather seemed unpropitious.

Oftentimes the stallions were taken out and ridden from ten to fifteen miles a day. They would get muddy and dirty, but retained their vigor in the stud until an advanced age.

The brood mares and colts of all ages were kept in good condition by being allowed to run around in paddock or field, gaining strength and vigor all the time.

The farmer's team needs the same recreation as does the racehorse and will not be ready for the heavy spring work unless he has the proper care and attention during the winter months.

In the Far West or North there are, no doubt, days when the farmers' teams must stay in the barn. Let them be as few as possible. Remember that an hour's exercise, turned loose in stable lot, paddock or field will start the blood to coursing, take the swelling out of stocky legs, fill the lungs with pure, fresh air and in the end save veterinary bills.

BURNING THE ROADSIDE.

A great many people have the mistaken idea that the time to burn the roadside in order to kill the many insects that winter in these places, is in the early spring of the year.

If you will watch closely at such a place where the roadside has been burned in the spring you will see the insects coming out of the ground very thickly on the warm days.

This proves that the insects were not killed. Most of them are in the ground and the heat of the fire passing over them does not harm them and the trash burned from above them makes it all the easier for the insects to come forth. While no doubt a few of them are killed the majority of them are uninjured.

The right time to burn these roadsides to do effective work is in the late fall of the year, after the cold weather has already set in and all the tender vegetation is dry.

Then, if the roadsides are burned, the insects in such places will be killed by heavy freezing, as they usually do not go very deeply into the ground, but seem to depend on the covering of trash to protect them from the cold.

This is a great bit more effective in the killing of hte insects than the spring burning.

Not only does the fall burning of the roadsides do good by the killing of the insects that winter there, but it also helps to keep the road in better shape by allowing less snow to collect in the drifts as it usually does in places where there is much grass and weeds.

MAKING IT UP.

Two men who had quarreled violently and had not been on friendly terms for some months met by accident one night at a social function. One of them made a friendly overture to his enemy. Going up to him, he offered his hand, and said:—

"Look here, Jenkinson, I've often guilty of causing you considerable annoyance, and if I make that confession I dare say you won't mind admitting on your side that you've been a little unjust to me, too."

Jenkinson took the outstretched hand, and the negotiations for peace proceeded satisfactorily until, in his concluding remark, the first speaker observed, somewhat pompously:—

"On this pleasant and auspicious occasion, Jenkinson, I would like you to feel that I wish you—the same as you wish me."

"What!" cried Jenkinson, angrily. "Are you beginning it again?"

THE SCOTCH THISTLE.

The origin of the thistle as the national badge of Scotland is thus given by tradition: When the Danes invaded Scotland, it was deemed unwarlike to attack the enemy by night, instead of pitched battles by day; but on one occasion the invaders tried a night attack. In order to prevent their tramp being heard, they marched barefooted, and they had succeeded in creeping close up to the Scottish forces unobserved, when one of them stepped on a thistle and uttered a cry of pain. The alarm was given and the attack was beaten off. Out of gratitude the thistle was adopted as the insignia of Scotland.

Thinking of Building a Silo?

Better Build it of Concrete

THE construction of a Silo affords an excellent example of what the farmer can do with Concrete—and of the superiority of Concrete over all other material for various structural work about the farm.

The usual wooden silo, besides being expensive, is far from satisfactory. In the first place, it does not endure; and, more important still—being far from weather-proof—its contents become water-logged—producing an unsanitary condition.

A Silo built of Concrete, on the other hand, is practically everlasting—it is proof against heat, cold and moisture—and it has the merit of comparative economy.

This economy feature is further explained in our free book—"What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete."—which tells how to mix and use Concrete for the making of silos and other buildings on the farm.

"What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete."

Tells you how to use Concrete in constructing

Barns, Cisterns, Dairies, Dipping Tanks, Foundations, Fence Posts, Feeding Floors, Gutters, Hens' Nests, Hitching Posts, Horse Blocks, Houses, Poultry Houses, Root Cellars, Silos, Shelter Walls, Stables, Stairs, Stalls, Steps, Tanks, Troughs, Walks, Well Curbs, Etc., etc., etc.

Fill out the coupon and send for the book to-day.

You may send me a copy of book entitled "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete."

A SECOND PERFORMANCE.—Snow-White and the Ten Dwarfs on FRIDAY Jan. 12, in the Opera House, Exeter, at 8 o'clock, p.m. By public request the above beautiful pantomime which was so successfully staged last month will be repeated for the benefit of many who were unable to witness it then, and for many who wish to see it again. Proceeds after deduction of expenses will be devoted to Gravenhurst Sanitarium for Consumptives. Admission,—Adults 20c., Children 10c.

HICKS' FORECASTS FOR JANUARY —A regular storm period covers the 11 to 21, central on the 19, with new Moon. The Mercury period is central on the 16, and the Mars period will also begin its perturbing influence at this time. The Moon will be in apogee and at extreme south declination. Watch your barometer as this period develops. If it falls to very low readings, fierce winter gales will surely follow; rains will turn to destructive sleet; blizzards will rush down from the northwest, and a serious cold wave will wind up the storm turmoil, say about the 20th to 23rd. Don't forget this period or neglect such precautions as might save you great suffering and loss. A seismic wave will pass through many parts of the earth within three or four days of Friday the 19th.

Mr. T. G. Creech's bus team made a lively dash down Main Street for a block on Saturday morning, when returning from the first train. Mr. Fred Bawden was in charge and had left the team for a moment in front of the home of his father, Mr. P. Bawden. They apparently became frightened and started off down town. The team turned to the left in front of the Town Hall, and struck a telephone post, one on either side, breaking the tongue chain and the foot board. The team was there captured. The damage was very light, considering the chances there were.

Rev. Dr. Warner, President of the London Conference occupied the pulpit of James Street Methodist Church both morning and evening on Sunday last, also addressed the Sunday School in the afternoon. Dr. Warner's able and inspiring and very timely sermons, and addresses will long be remembered by the large congregations which greeted him. The following condensed statements read by him to the congregation both morning and evening, will explain the occassion of his visit to James' Street church at this time. "I have received the resignation of Rev. Mr Hobbs, as pastor of this Congregation. There are given in the documents of resignation, various reasons for taking so serious a step. Since the resignation reached me, some of these reasons have been removed either in fact by the verdict of the congregation or in responsibility to the congregation This seems to me to have greatly relieved the situation and in my judgment makes it possible for Mr. Hobbs to resume his pastorate at once and as President of the Conference I ask him to do so. Under the circumstances now existing I cannot accept Mr. Hobb's resignation. Such situation is too full of peril to this important church, is to full of possibld wrong to one of the best beloved and useful ministers of our church.

ORGAN RECITAL.—The Organ Recital and Concert given in the Presbyterian church on Friday evening last was not as largely attended as the excellency of the entertainment merited. Professor Wheeler of London handled the fine, new pipe organ with marvellous skill and ability, demonstrating a masterly control of the instrument and a wide range of his talent that only years of practice and culture could command. The renditions by Mrs. Wheeler were exceeding fine and she scored a great success in her solos. The singing of Mr. McCutcheon was a particularly pleasing feature of the evening. He possesses an excellent voice pleasing to the ear, and over which he has absolute control. Miss Kineman sang with her usual sweetness and was much appreciated. The entertainment on the whole was one of exceptional merit and proved a treat to all in attendance.

EXETER AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual meeting of the Exeter Agricultural Society was held in Town Hall, Exeter, on Tuesday afternoon. Mr J. W. Taylor was assigned to the chair, and he in a few well-chosen remarks opened the meeting. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted. The Treasurer, Mr. Hurdon, read the financial statement for the year which showed the society to be in a good healthy condition financially. The total receipts amounted to $1476.33 and the expenditure $1345.93, leaving a balance in the Treasury of $131.40 The report showed that $200 had been paid on the debt of the Society. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year,—Pres., E Christie, 1st Vice, John Moir; 2nd Vice, W D. Sanders; Directors, John Delbridge, Geo. Penhale W. R Elliott, Jas. Jeckell, Paul Coates John Allison, W. H. Dearing, William Russell, J. W. Taylor; Auditor, C. H. Sanders. A vote of thanks was tendered the chairman, and a directors' meeting followed, at which the president was appointed delegate to attend the Provincial Agricultural Society at Toronto; Mr. Alex. G. Dyer re-elected secretary; Mr. N D. Hurdon treasurer; and Mr. James Beer, auditor.

FORMAL OPENING OF "THE DOME"

The formal opening of the skating rink here took place on Monday night in the form of a carnival which was attended with a success most fitting for such an occasion. Reeve W. J. Heaman and Rev. D. W. Collins were present and delivered inaugural addresses in which they referred to the enterprise and worthy citizenship of the proprietor, Mr. Wm. Leavitt, in erecting such a magnificent place of amusement for those who enjoy the exhilarating pastime of skating, or the "roaring" game called curling. It may be said that this is one of the largest and best skating rinks in Western Ontario, being 180 feet in length and 80 feet in width—thus affording ample room for all purposes—skating, curling and hockey. It is built of corrugated iron, of the most modern architecture and forming a half circle from end view, and is an imposing structure. As is usual there were pretty costumes, and others not so pretty, but it may be said that on the whole few carnivals, if any, held here could excel this for variety, beauty and number. Those who entered for the prizes were all good skaters, lending a charm and interest to the onlooker. The Exeter Band was in attendance and rendered excellent music, which was much appreciated by all. The judges were Messrs. N. D. Hurdon, T. B. Carling and James Weekes, and the awarding of the prizes was a difficult task, but the decisions of the judges received general approval. The two races—mile and half mile—were close and interesting. The following are the prize winners in order of merit,—Mile race, Oscar Anderson, Owen Atkinson; half-mile race, Morris Senior, Harry Pagons; Gents' costume, Ernest Harvey, Indian chief, and Ladmer Grieve, squaw; Ladies' costume, Olive Treble; Comic costume, Leon Treble.

ROYAL COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE FARMERS BANK.

OTTAWA, Jan. 11,—It was announced by Hon. W. T. White, Minister of finance, to-night that the Government had decided to grant the request of the Farmers Bank victims for a thorough investigation of the affairs of the bank. A royal commission is to issue, clothed with ample powers for probing the whole fraud from beginning to end. The decision of the Government was reached without any further representations from the bank sufferers, although a number of gentlemen concerned in the appeal, recently made, were in Ottawa to-day. The commission has not been named, but will consist of one man, probably assisted by counsel The commission, it is understood, will issue at once. Hon., Mr. White announced that the $4 bills had been issued last autumn because of the need for currency and that the plate for it was ready. It will be withdrawn and a $5 Dominion note substituted. The contract for printing notes with the American Bank Note Company expires October 1 next, and the Government will advertise in a couple of weeks for tenders.

Oh for the good old summer time! The past week has been a cold one. Zwicker's thermometer registered 50 below zero on Friday morning and then it was in a sheltered place. Wonder what it registered elsewhere. There is snow in abundance everywhere. The snowplow is much appreciated and makes walking much easier than in the days of yore when the natives were obliged to wade through the snow up to their armpits and then rest at each telephone pole before they could move again.

Mrs. (Dr.) Orme has been ill the past week from an attack of the quinsy. We are pleased to learn that she is rapidly improving.

Mr. Conner, of The Coppley, Noyes & Randal Co. of Hamilton, spent last Sunday in town the guest of Mr. Samuel Brown.

Chris. Fahner is busy these days drawing coal for the shivering citizens Chris. you are a friend in need.

Mrs. F. W. Clark is confined to her house from a severe attack of the cold.

The ice harvest has commenced. Frank Taylor has the contract to draw August Hill's supply. The ice is of splendid quality with very little snow.

Henry Elber, M.P.P., as manager of The Hay Tp. Ins. Co. delivered the annual calendar and reports to the policyholders of the company through the mail this week.

Mrs. Krein's health isn't any too good just now and her friends are anxiously awaiting a turn for the better

Mr and Mrs. Henry Wind and family have returned to Detroit after a few weeks' visit with relatives here

H. Elber, M. P. P. returned home on Friday from Ottawa to which city he had accompanied a delegation that waited on the Government with Mr. J. J. Mernar, M. P., and a number of other members of the Legislature, asking the cabinet to appoint a Royal Commission to investigate the matter of granting the charter to the Farmers' Bank with the object that if sufficient grounds were discovered to prove that the late Minister of Finance should not have granted the certificate, then some redress should be made to the depositors of the defunct bank. We are informed that the deputation was cordially received by the Premier and other members of the cabinet and after hearing the deputation they promised to have a royal Commission appointed in the very near future which would make a thorough investigation. We trust the result will be such that the depositors will be reimbursed.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER Last Saturday the Police Villages of Centralia Crediton and Dashwood voted on By-laws empowering the Trustees of the respective villages to make contracts with the Ontario Hydro-electric power commission to secure power for the respective villages. The vote was a favorable one in all three villages. In Centralia no one voted against the By-law, in Crediton one person and in Dashwood two. These villages are now sure of not being side-tracked if it is found advisable to have the system built in the county of Huron.

The 37th Annual Meeting of The Hay Township Farmer's Mutual Fire Ins. Co was held in Zurich on Tuesday, the 9th day of January. On account of the very stormy weather only a small number were in attendance. The Directors' report showed that during the past five years, there have been only two assessments levied and there is a balance of $7,311.55 on hand. The year closed with 1095 policies in force covering an insurance of $4,492,010.00 for which the company have assets to the amount of $181,588.55 Messrs Fred Willert of Dashwood, Ben. Sururus and John C. Kalbfleisch of Zurich were rep-elected as directors for a term of three years and Jacob Haberer and August G. Ehnes Auditors. At a subsequent meeting held by the Directors, Mr. John Sparrow of Varna was elected President of the Company and Mr. George McEwen of Hensall, Vice-President.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

Fairholme glanced around admiringly. "Of course," he cried delightedly, "I knew you would guess it. That is the pleasant way these Turks have of securing their prisoners."

"It is an [illegible]lly uncomfortable one," said Talbot. "My joints are still stiff at the mere recollection of it. I have lain in that way, Mr. Brett, for countless hours. Occasionally the brutes would allow me to change my posture, but the moment any one came to the door I was strapped up in an instant and a gag slipped into my mouth. What used to make me so furious was the knowledge that if only I got the chance of a second I could have broken that Frenchman's neck and escaped, but he and his wife always took such precautions that I never had the liberty to do more than reach with some difficulty the food that they gave me. However, I must not interrupt."

"I really have not much more to say," went on Fairholme. "You may be sure it did not take me long to release Talbot, and what do you think his first words were when he slowly sat up in bed and tried if his leg would bend?"

"I cannot guess," said Brett.

"He said: 'Have they got the diamonds?'"

"I answered 'Yes.'"

"'But it was impossible,' he said. 'They could not have mastered all those policemen.'"

"'But they did,' I replied, and then and there, before he would budge an inch, he made me tell him the whole story. Just as I had ended we heard a scuffle in the passage. We went out, though Jack was hardly able to walk at first. It was Smith wrestling with the woman, who was a regular wild cat, and he would, even then, have done us any mischief in her power. There was nothing for it but to tie her hands behind her back, and then fasten her securely in a chair. After this was done we took counsel as to our next movements."

"Wait a little," said Brett. "How many rooms were there in the flat? You have accounted for four."

"I forgot," said Fairholme. "The place had six rooms. The small apartment in which Jack was confined was a sort of dressing-room, and the bedroom beyond looked out into the well of the block of flats. They had carefully nailed the blind of this dressing-room, so that not even a chance puff of wind could blow it aside and reveal its secret to any one in the flats on the opposite story or higher. The remaining room was empty. Your friend the policeman subsequently searched the place from top to toe, but he found nothing. The only document of any importance was an address on a card which he discovered in the Frenchman's pocket."

"Ah," said Brett, "what was that address?"

"Here it is."

The earl produced a small piece of pasteboard on which was scribbled, "Monsieur Jean Beaujolais, chez Monsieur Henri de Lisle, 41, Rue Bonnerie, Paris."

"That is important," said the barrister. "Why did you not wire it to me last night?"

"I had a reason," said the earl eagerly, "but that comes in with Jack's part of the story." And he turned towards Talbot, who, thus summoned to the stage, began to explain matters.

"I understand, Mr. Brett," he said, "that you are accurately acquainted with all that transpired until the moment when I entered the Albert Gate mansion on that remarkable night?"

"That is so," said Brett.

"Well, when Inspector Sharpe met me at the door on my arrival he told me that his Excellency Mehemet Ali, with three strange gentlemen and the junior members of the commission, awaited me in the dining-room. I went in and was surprised to find the three visitors, for during the preceding month not a single stranger had entered the house save a member of the Government and one or two important officials of the Foreign Office, who came with me out of sheer curiosity to see a colltction of remarkable diamonds.

"The strangers bowed politely when I was introduced. Two of them spoke neither French nor English, but the third man spoke French fluently. He had, by the way, a somewhat peculiar accent, different from that to which I was accustomed in the Turks. It was softer, more sibilant, and impressed me as that of a man who was accustomed to speak Italian. He was a good-looking chap, about my height and build, and were it not for his brown skin, one would not have regarded him as a Turk. One side of his face was deeply scarred with a sword cut, but, if anything, this did not detract from his appearance, and it gave a manly aspect to an otherwise effeminate face."

Brett could not help smiling involuntarily.

"Are you sure it was a sword cut?"

"It certainly looked like one."

"And his skin was very brown?"

"Oh, quite. Indeed it was a shade deeper than that of most Turks. I have seen very many of them. Although dark-featured, they are often pallid enough in reality, and their deep-hued complexion is due more to their black hair and eyebrows than to the mere color of the skin." Brett smiled again.

"I think," he said, "I will show you the same gentleman in a somewhat different aspect. But proceed."

"The explanation given to me by Mehemet Ali was both extraordinary and disconcerting, especially at such a late hour. He told me that the three gentlemen to whom I had been introduced—I am sorry by the way, that I cannot remember ther names, as they were all Mohammeds, or Rasuls, or Ibrahims, and the dramatic events of the night subsequentlp drove them from my mind—had been sent post haste from Constantinople on a special mission. They had only reached London that night, and they bore with them a special mandate, signed by the Sultan himself, directing Mehemet Ali to hand over the diamonds to their charge, and at once to return with his assistants to Yildiz Kiosk.

"There could be no questioning the authenticity of the Sultan's instructions. The document was in his own handwriting, was endorsed with his private seal, and conveyed other distinguishing marks which rendered his Excellency assured on this important point. He told me that he was compelled to obey implicitly, and were it possible he would have started from London that night. This, however, was out of the question, but he had not lost a moment in sending for me and acquainting me with his Majesty's wishes.

"You will readily perceive that the affair placed me in an awkward predicament. I was, so to speak, representing the British Government in the matter, and the Foreign Office had pledged itself, through our Ambassador at Constantinople, to undertake all the precautions for safeguarding the diamonds with which you are acquainted. It seemed to me that notwithstanding the urgency of the Sultan's order, I should not be doing my duty to permit the transfer to be made in such an irregular manner. So I said quite plainly that the matter could not be settled that night. They must all wait until the morning, when I would consult my Department and Mehemet Ali, together with his aides, could leave for Constantinople by the evening train, after my superiors had been acquainted with the Sultan's wishes.

"Turks are difficult people to understand. It seemed to me that my decision gave some satisfaction to Mehemet Ali, who was undoubtedly very much upset by the queer manner in which he had been deposed from his important trust. At once an animated discussion took place."

"In French?" interrupted Brett.

"No; in Turkish."

"Did the gentleman with the sabre-cut on his face take any part therein?"

"Not in the least. He sat and smoked cigarettes in the most unconscious manner possible, leaving his two associates to carry on the conversation."

As the barrister appeared to have no further question to ask at the moment, Talbot continued—

"Several times Mehemet Ali appealed to me to change my mind and formally ratify the transfer at once. I was quite firm in my refusal, and did not hesitate to describe the Sultan's demands as ridiculous. I was rendered more determined, if anything, in this attitude by a growing certainty in my mind that his Excellency himself approved of my attitude. Ultimately, it seems, they hit upon a compromise. The whole party would remain together all night in a sort of dual control, and then the change of guardianship would take place next day in accordance with my views as to what was right and proper. I must admit I was intensely relieved when this decision was arrived at. Looking back now over the events of the night, I can perceive that from that moment the gang who effected the murders and the robbery had me in their power, for they had completely succeeded in allaying my suspicions, and I can only plead in extenuation of my shortsightedness that Mehemet Ali himself, and the other gentlemen with whom I had been acquainted during the past month, were willing accessories to the arrangement."

"I do not see," said Brett, "that you have the slightest cause to reproach yourself. You acted quite properly throughout, and I am sure that when all the facts are known your status at the Foreign Office will be improved rather than diminished by this incident."

"Thank you," he replied simply. "I certainly took every precaution that suggested itself to me. Subsequently I was the victim of circumstances. The French-speaking Turk, as I have told you, took no part whatever in the negotiations, and when he became aware of the modus operandi determined upon—

"By the way," said Brett, "how did he become aware of it?"

"Oh, Mehemet Ali told him in French."

"Didn't that strike you as curious?"

"Most certainly it did. But the scoundrel explained it afterwards by telling me that although a Turkish subject, he had lived in Algiers and France since he was a child, and had quite forgotten his mother tongue. But he was employed in a confidential position in the Turkish Embassy at Paris, owing not only to family influence, but to his intimate acquaintance with the French language."

"Ah!" said Brett, "Monsieur Henri Dubois has a ready wit."

"What!" cried Edith, who naturally enough was following each word with the utmost interest, "do you already know his name?"

"Not only his name," replied Brett, "but his identity, Miss Talbot. You shall see him in another skin and without the sword-cut. It is possible, however, that before we meet, this distinguishing mark may be replaced by a fractured skull or a bullet wound."

Fairholme suddenly clenched his right fist and examined his knuckles, his unconscious action causing the others to laugh.

"Is he a Frenchman, then?" said Talbot.

"Unquestionably—a most modern product."

"And his name is Dubois?"

"Yes."

"All right. In future I will allude to him by his proper title. Well, Monsieur Debois strolled towards me with the easy confidence of a man who was sure of himself.

"'This affair bores me,' he said. 'I see no reason why I, who am in no way concerned with the Sultan's collection of precious stones, should sit up all night keeping guard over them with these very earnest gentlemen here. I am going to my hotel. I have sent my portmanteau to the Carlton. Will you honor me by driving there and telling me something about your wonderful London as we go?'

"The man looked at me with a meaning in his eyes that conveyed the intimation—

"'We can talk quietly in the cab, and I can explain much that is at present hidden.' Unfortunately I fell in with his suggestions.

"We crossed the dining-room together. We were searched by the police in the hall, much to his apparent surprise, and then we drove off through St. George's Place."

CHINESE PRINTING.

Modern Office Will Cost Chinese Government $2,000,000.

A few months ago the Chinese Government began to erect a modern printery that will require a total expense of $2,000,000. The present monetary system of China is so complicated that it is really a very emphatic hindrance to the development of trade and industry. In accordance with this system every individual province emits its own currency, and the standard of value is different in every province. For a long time, consequently, a persistent effort has been made to devise and introduce a uniform standard of value for the whole empire, and the construction of the printery in Pekin begins the transformation of the collective monetary system of China. Two years ago the Government sent Dr. Chen to Europe and America to study the machinery and its installation, of the most efficient printeries in these countries, and in accordance with this report the Governmental of the United States was selected as a model. It is hoped that the Imperial Chinese Printery may be finished within two years, so that it can begin work when Parliament opens in 1913. Besides other experts to supervise the installation of the plant, and to instruct the Chinese in the art of engraving.

CONSISTENCY.

"I suppose you always say exactly what you think?"

"I try to," replied Senator Sorghum; "but I also try to avoid thinking anything it would not be expedient for me to say."

"Bromley, I hear you are going to start housekeeping?" "Yes, Dalinggor." "What have you got towards it?" "A wife."

The pessimist seems to take a heap of satisfaction from being on the losing side.

DON'T LET THAT COUGH ROB YOU OF SLEEP

You probably know all too well how it goes. Just as you doze off, the tickling starts in your throat. A gentle cough, still asleep. A harder cough, and then another. First thing you know, you're wide awake, coughing your head off.

A few nights of that and you're so worn out and weakened that the cough takes a tight grip on you.

But why endure it?

Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne will soothe that exasperating tickling, loosen the phlegm and cure the inflammation of the mucous membrane. It not only stops the cough quickly, allowing you to get sound, refreshing sleep, but it goes to the root of the trouble and drives out the cold completely. Children willingly take Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne, because it tastes so good. Your Druggist has it or can quickly get it for you in 25c. and 50c. bottles. The Rayo Lamp

It Never Flickers

The long winter evenings give a woman a splendid chance for sewing or embroidery; but her eyes suffer from the strain unless she has a good light.

The Rayo is the best lamp made.

It gives a strong, diffused light that is remarkably easy to the eyes. There is no glare to it; no flicker. It lights up a whole room. The Rayo is an economical lamp, too.

You get the most possible light-value for the oil burned; and the Rayo itself is a low-priced lamp. Yet it is a handsome lamp—an ornament to any room in the house.

The Rayo Lamp is easily lighted without removing shade or chimney; easy to clean and rewick. Made of solid brass, nickel-plated; also in numerous other styles and finishes.

Ask your dealer to show you his line of Rayo lamps; or write for descriptive circular to any agency of

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

PUBLIC UTILITIES REQUIRE LARGE ALLOWANCE FOR DEPRECIATION.

Otherwise, Danger of Serious Financial Trouble—The Capitalized Value of the Franchise Must be Borne in Mind—What to Look for in Balance Sheet—Operating Expenses Should Include Depreciation—Not Greater Than 60 Per Cent. of Gross Earnings.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor.")

As a rule, the real estate of a public service corporation is a small part of its assets. The "plant" is the important feature and in this the bondholder is chiefly interested, as being the principal security for his capital. "Plant" refers to power, plant, rolling-stock, track and general property, exclusive of real estate, which was referred to last week. The average investor buying old issues of well established companies has to take the figures of the company's balance sheet for the value of the assets. Where a new issue is being made, however, a bond house usually has an examination made by an independent engineer. The "replacement value" of the plant alone is considered. By "replacement values" is meant the cost for which the plant in its present state of efficiency may be reconstructed. If this cost is in excess of the amount of bonds outstanding, the security is a very excellent one. In Canada, as a rule, the bond issue of a public service corporation represents but a small proportion of the value of the company's real estate and plant. In the States, however, the case is reversed, and as a value on the capitalized value of the company's franchise depends part of the security of the bonds.

The value of a franchise depends partly and primarily on the political conditions referred to last week. After this the next question is whether the franchise is perpetual, or, as in the case of the Toronto Street Railway, for a definite time; whether it is partial or exclusive, and on what terms it terminates.

The Toronto Street Railway franchise terminates in 1921, but, unless the city decides to expropriate at that time the franchise automatically renews itself until such time as the city does expropriate. It is exclusive only respecting the portion of the city which was incorporated within the boundaries of Toronto in 1891, when the franchise was granted, but any car lines built by the city cannot compete in a manner worth considering as affecting the value of the Street Railway Company. So that while as respecting the present boundaries of the city the franchise is only partial it is in effect exclusive. And this case often occurs where the original franchise is partial; the company occupies all important available streets and there is no room for competition.

The next step is the examination of the company's earnings for a series of years. The futility of examining the figures for one year has been shown in speaking of industrial bonds. If gross earnings are increasing and net earnings are about 40 per cent to 45 per cent. of gross, this part of the examination need only be concluded by a glance at operating expenses. A very substantial amount must be put by for renewels and maintenance, or the strongest company will sooner or later find itself in trouble. As one bond man says, "Deterioration of plant and equipment, which goes on constantly, can only be offset in two ways:—One is out of earnings, and the other out of the security holders—that is, by decreases in the market value of the securities. The first takes prosperity or courage; the second leads to bankruptcy." It is a difficult matter to measure depreciation accurately, but a safe rule is to write off 10 per cent. of gross earnings each month for depreciation. In this way the charge is proportionate to traffic, which provides automatic adjustment.

11-YEAR-OLD ROBBER.

Paris Police Arrest Small Boy For Thirty-Third Robbery.

A boy of 11 has just been arrested in Paris for hise thirty-third robbery with violence. Louis Lebrun, with a friend of his named Edouard Lamarche, who is nine years old, but has not been in prison yet, robbed the till of a shop in the Rue de Belleville of $6.50, and shot the shop owner through the neck with a revolver.

The younger boy escaped, but the elder was caught, and the police are wondering what to do with him, for he has proved himself as difficult to hold behind bars and bolts as Jack Sheppard himself.

He has been caught red-handed 33 times, including this last time, but always manages to get out of the hands of the authorities.

SOME CAN

But Student Had to Quit.

Some people are apparently immune to tea and coffee poisoning—if you are not, Nature will tell you so in the ailments she sends as warnings. And when you get a warning, heed it or you get hurt, sure. A young college student writes from New York:

"I had been told frequently that coffee was injurious to me," (tea is just as bad) "and if I had not been told, the almost constant headaches with which I began to suffer after using it for several years, the state of lethargic mentality which gradually came upon me to hinder me in my studies, the general lassitude and indisposition to any sort of effort which possessed me, ought to have been sufficient warning.

But I disregarded them till my physician told me a few months ago that I must give up coffee or quit college. I could hesitate no longer, and at once abandoned coffee.

"On the advice of a friend I began to drink Postum, and rejoice to tell you that with the drug in coffee" (the same drug—caffeine—is found in tea) "removed and the healthful properties of Postum in its place I was soon relieved of all my ailments.

The headaches and nervousness disappeared entirely, strength came back to me, and my complexion which had been very, very bad, cleared up beautifully.

Better than all, my mental faculties were toned up, and became more vigorous than ever, and I now feel that no course of study would be too difficult for me." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true and full of human interest.

WORLD'S DEADLIEST POISON.

Being Used Against British Troops By Abor Tribesmen.

The fact that the Abor tribesmen, against whom the Government of India have sent a punitive expedition to punish them for the recent massacre of Mr. Noel Williamson, are chiefly armed with bows and arrows, has led people to imagine that the natives will inflict but little damage on our soldiers.

As a matter of fact, however, the arrows used by the Abors are often more dreaded than bullets, for they are usually dipped in a poison which is probably the most deadly in the world. This poison is known as curare, and is so virulent that savages have been known to smear it on their nails and to kill an enemy merely by scratching him.

"Three years ago a young doctor was convicted at Vienna for supplying curare to a married woman, who touched a little raw place on her husband's body with it and he died," says the Field. "In effect he had been struck by a poisoned arrow."

Curare is an artificitl compound, the secret of which is most jealously guarded by the priests and medicine-men of savage tribes, and travellers have told fascinating tales of how old women of the tribes assist the priests to make the stuff, and regard it as an honor to test its strength upon themselves.

Another test is to bore holes in trees and inject a quantity of curare. If the leaves have not fallen off before morning, more deadly ingredients are added.

Curiously enough the domestic fowl and the Argus pheasant are the only creatures said to be immune from the effects of this deadly poison.

WOULD SCREAM FOR HOURS WITH ECZEMA

Baby Dreadful Sufferer. Could Not Keep Him from Scratching. Every Joint Affected. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and He Is Well.

"Enclosed find my son's photo and I feel by writing these few lines to you I am only doing my duty, as my son was a dreadful sufferer from eczema. At the age of two weeks he began to get covered with red spots on his legs and groins, which mother thought was red gum or thrush; but day by day it grew worse until every joint and crevice were affected and baby started screaming for hours day and night, such a thing as sleep was out of the question. I took him to two of Sydney's leading doctors; one said it was one of the worst cases he had seen, the other did not think it so serious; one ordered ointment for rubbing in, the other a dusting powder. I followed their prescriptions for over four months and still baby kept getting worse. I could not keep him from scratching so great was his agony.

"When he was five months old I tried the Cuticura Remedies and I am very thankful to say my baby is to-day free from all his suffering. His groins were bleeding when I started and other parts affected were the lower part of his body, under the knees, arms, in arm joints, eyebrows and neck; but after twice using Cuticura Ointment I began to see a difference and by the time I had used one tin, along with the bathing with Cuticura Soap, baby was nearly cured. I still kept on using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and now, thank goodness, he is quite well and, although he is now ten months old, has not had any further return of the trouble." (Signed) Mrs. G. Martin, 2 Knight St., Erskineville, Sydney, N.S.W., Mar. 31, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, but a liberal sample of each, with a 32-page book on the care and treatment of the skin and hair will be sent free on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 80 Columbus Ave., Boston, U.S.A.

REALLY HUMAN.

Vacation is a good time, not merely for the minister to pursue avocations, but for other folk to discover how human he is. We recently heard of a small boy who came home from a Sunday school picnic and reported to his mother what he had found out about the pastor. "O, mamma," said the youngster, "he can run and holler and climb a tree and eat."

But a practical joke isn't if you are the victim.

WOODEN SHOES IN ENGLAND.

Evidence That They are Better Than Poor Leather.

An effort to substitute waterproof and practically indestructible wooden shoes, the sort worn by peasants in Holland, France and other Continental countries, for the cheap leather shoes worn by the school children of very poor parents was made in England some time ago, but was not a success. It has been revised this winter and evidence is accumulating that in parts of the country there is an increasing use of the cumbersome footgear.

The argument in favor of the clogs is that leather shoes are beyond the means of the average English workingman of family, while clogs are cheap and never wear out, generally speaking. Many school children of the poorer classes wear mere apologies for shoes, soleless affairs, with holes that let in water and lay the foundation for pneumonia and other diseases.

Several years ago when Sir John Kirk, director of the Ragged School Union and Shaftesbury Society, joined Lady St. Helier in an appeal for funds to supply poor children in the London schools with foot wear on the part payment system the suggestion was made that clogs be supplied these children as more durable and serviceable than leather shoes. According to Percy Gray of Orlehar, Bude, North Cornwall, who wrote to Sir John Kirk on the subject, he was met with the objection that cockneydom would not wear wooden clogs.

That objection seemed to have been well taken, for the effort to have poor school children in London adopt the wooden substitutes for leather shoes did not get very far. The renewed effort is finding encouragement in testimony of persons who have made the clog experiment with some degree of success.

Richard B. Martin of Tewkesbury is one of those who have reason to be pleased with charitable work of this character.

"Last winter," he says, "I gave a few pairs of wooden clogs to some children who have to come a good three miles to school through a wet and dirty lane. The clogs 'caught on' and this year I gave away nine more pairs and my wife over fifty pairs to one village school. They seem to keep the children's feet warmer than old and well worn leather shoes. I had the clogs from Warrington and they cost 2s. 8d. 10d., a pair; men's size 3s. 6d.

THE BEST SECURITY FOR YOUR MONEY IS BONDS

¶ There are, broadly speaking, two classes of investments: speculative investments, which may or may not pay interest and may appreciate or depreciate in value.

¶ And there are Bonds—Bonds are mortgages split up into denominations of $100 or upwards. We continually have Bonds, the security of which is beyond question, which pay as high as 6 per cent. interest. They are the standard form of investment. They are purchased by Banks, Insurance Companies and chartered institutions, because the Government recognizes that they offer the maximum of safety with a profitable rate of interest.

Send us your name and address and we will send you literature from time to time giving particulars of new and old issues.

The following extracts from a letter to Messrs. G. W. Farrell & Co. from the Hon. William C. Edwards, President of the Company, give further information regarding this issue:—

"The properties of the Upper Fraser River (British Columbia) Lumber Company, Limited, are located on the banks of the Upper Fraser River, and streams tributary thereto, in the Province of British Columbia, and comprise a total area of about 281 square miles, or 179,840 acres, of timber lands of first rate quality."

"Each Timber Limit, approximately one square mile in extent, was separately selected by experienced timber cruisers, including the well-known timber expert, John Thomson, of Portage du Fort, Quebec (favorably known to Messrs. W. C. Edwards and Company, Limited, for many years as an experienced and reliable bush-ranger) with special reference to the quality of timber, the conformation of the land, and accessibility of rivers, and the new route of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway."

"Mr. Charles M. Hays, President of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, has written that his company is prepared to enter into a contract for the purchase of ties and bridge materials as soon as the railroad reaches the limits owned by this Company, which, we are assured, will be in the summer of nineteen twelve, and this company proposes to use some of the working capital provided by the sale of the Bonds to at once equip for the delivery of this material to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The favorable position of the limits as regards their proximity to the great and growing market of the North West Provinces assures a satisfactory future demand for the output of the Company."

"The Directors desire to emphasize the fact that Timber lands of the nature of the Company's properties have a constantly increasing value, and even if no operating at all were done the Company's properties are a sound investment from a holding point of view."

"The Timber on the Company's lands is made up largely of Red Cedar, which is a very valuable feature, and the remainder is Spruce, Hemlock, Douglas Fir, and White Pine. The timber is of exceptionally good quality, being thrifty and uniform in size, and is expected to average 30 inches on the butt, and to cut from five to eight logs to the tree. The amount of merchantable saw lumber contained on the Company's property has been carefully and conservatively estimated at a total of 3,449,594,200 feet. No timber under 14 inches in diameter, on the stump, is included in this estimate."

"The Board of Directors is composed of practical and experienced men, who thoroughly understand the lumber business and the requirements of the various lumber markets of the world, and have the best facilities for obtaining profitable sales for the Company's timber."

"On the basis of the Bond issue of $1,500,000, and the quantity of timber hereinbefore stated of 3,449,594,200 feet (Board Measure) there is represented the low mortgage valuation of approximately 43 cents per 1,000 feet (Board Measure). The majority of companies who have recently offered their Bonds in this country have taken as their mortgage valuation from $1 to $3 per 1,000 feet of standing timber. It will, therefore, be appreciated that the Bonds are exceptionally well secured."

GREENWAY.

The late Mrs. Wm. Couch, died at her home in Parkhill on January 7th. She had been in poor health for some time, still the end came unexpectedly and with a shock to neighbors and friends. She was born near Greenway in McGillivray Township being prior to her marriage, Miss Mary Hohn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hohn. She was first married to Mr. Geo. Stewardson who died twenty-one years ago. Eighteen years ago she became the wife of Mr. Couch and for eighteen years they lived in West Williams where she was highly esteemed by all who knew her and where she always took an active part in the life of the neighborhood. She is survived by one daughter, Miss Iva Stewardson. She is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. T. Stewardson, Greenway; and Mrs. W. D. Stinson of Troy, Idaho.

Mr. C. W. Mollard left for Toronto after spending his holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. MacPherson.

Mr. Fred Horner is home on a holiday trip from the West.—Mr. McLaran, Watrous, Sask., is visiting his aunt Mrs. Ed. McPherson.—Mrs. David Goodman, of Mich., is visiting his sister Mrs. John Sherritt and other friends.

PUBLIC GUARANTEE

That most beautiful picture, entitled "Home Again" has brought such an enormous amount of new subscriptions to the Family Herald and Weekly Star that the publishers are finding it impossible to keep up with the filling of orders, but in the columns of that paper this week we notice a positive guarantee from the Publishers that every subscriber to that great weekly for 1912 will receive a copy of the picture "Home Again". Their guarantee is sufficient and subscribers need not feel anxious although the picture may be delayed for a few weeks. Those who have not yet subscribed to The Family Herald and Weekly Star should do so at once and make sure of having a copy of the picture "Home Again." We learn that the publishers are contemplating something for next season that will make this picture even more valuable than a present. One dollar pays for a full year's subscription to the paper and the picture.

PRESSURE OF AIR.

It May Readily Turn the Thermometer Into a Fibber.

THE BOILING WATER POINT.

On the Scale This Is Marked at 212 Degrees, but Under Certain Conditions It May Be Several Hundred Degrees—The Critical Temperature.

On an ordinary Fahrenheit thermometer there is written opposite 212 degrees "Boiling point of water" and opposite 32 degrees "Freezing point of water." Neither of these is correct except for a certain condition of the atmosphere, and that is when it gives on the barometer about thirty inches, or fifteen pounds pressure to the square inch. This is the ordinary pressure at what is known as sea level, and to this all thermometers are calibrated. In a mountainous region the pressure is hardly ever so much as fifteen pounds, and water boils at sometimes as low as 200 degrees.

If water is boiled in a diving bell, where the pressure is forty or fifty pounds a square inch, its temperature will be several hundred degrees instead of 212. If water is boiling in a near vacuum the temperature is so small that the hand thrust into the water would actually feel cold.

What has been said about the boiling point applies in some extent to the freezing point, but here it differs for different materials, whereas the remarks about the boiling point of water apply to the boiling points of all liquids.

Some substances when they freeze become larger, while others become smaller. On this depends the freezing point at different pressures of atmosphere. Water expands on freezing; so do type metal and some other things. All other substances become smaller on freezing. Water pipes burst when the water freezes. Coins of gold and silver are stamped instead of being molded, for the metals grow smaller on freezing or solidifying, and consequently the coin would be wabbly.

It has been found that the things that expand on solidifying, as water, freeze at a lower temperature when the pressure is increased, while the others freeze at a higher. When a substance that expands freezes under higher pressure than usual it has to exert more force to shove the pressure away, and consequently has to use up more of its heat energy, thus losing more heat and becoming colder.

Take the substance that contracts when it solidifies. The pressure will help it to get smaller, and consequently the greater the pressure the less heat it has to lose on attaining the solid state, so it will freeze at higher temperature. If the pressure is great enough it may freeze or solidify at a thousand degrees temperature, which is high enough to change most substances to vapor under ordinary atmospheric pressure.

This is one of the reasons advanced to prove that the interior of the earth is solid, for the assumption is that the core is made up of substances that contract when freezing, and there is, of course, an enormous pressure a few hundreds of miles below the surface.

In regard to the boiling points of liquids, there is an upper limit to the point at which a thing boils—that is, changes to the state of vapor. It is called the critical temperature. No matter how great a pressure exists on a substance, if it is at a temperature greater than its critical it will change to vapor anyhow.

The ignorance of this point held back the making of liquefied gases—such as air, carbon dioxide, etc.—for many years. The experimenters tried to liquefy gases at ordinary temperatures by enormous pressures, whereas if they had just cooled the gases below their critical temperatures before applying the pressure liquefaction would have ensued immediately.

This is the method employed today in making liquid air. The air is compressed at first and then allowed to issue from a small orifice, thus expanding and cooling, is then pumped back and compressed by the pump, allowed to go through the orifice again, thus cooling still more, until at last it is below the critical temperature, when the compression caused by the pump liquefies it. — Lawrence Hodges in Chicago Record-Herald.

That Was Enough.

They were talking about the nosey women who knew everybody in the middle of the block.

"Apparently she's got it in for those people who moved away from 35 last week," said he. "What did they do to her?"

"Nothing," said she, "except to borrow her opera glasses the day before they moved and keep them till the day after, so she couldn't get a chance to train them on their back room furniture."—New York Times.

He went to see the editor who showed him a few duns of his own—one for paper, one for type, one for fuel, and several others. "Now" said the editor, "I didn't get mad when these came because I knew all I had to do was to ask several reliable gentlemen like you to come and help me out, and then I could settle all of them." KIRKTON

Death of William Doupe.—One after another our eldest residents are passing from among us, leaving only the lustre of their untarnished lives for the emulation and guidance of the younger generation. This week it becomes our duty to record the death of Mr. Wm. Doupe, who passed away on Friday, January 12th, at the great age of 90 years. Deceased had enjoyed his usual health up to about three weeks before his death, when he was attacked with pneumonia and gradually sinking death claimed him He was a native of Ireland and has for many years been a resident of Blanshard, being respected and highly esteemed by all who knew him. He was a member of the Methodist church and a staunch Conservative. He leaves a family of four sons and 5 daughters, Mrs. D. Brown, Joshua and Absalom in the west; Adam E., Joseph, Mrs. Sam. Switzer, Mrs. Gifford Copeland of Blanshard, and Mrs. R. Copeland of Usborne. The funeral takes place to the Kirkton cemetery to-day, Thursday.

Death of John Brooks.—There passed away on Sunday last at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. Wm. Ensinger another of the oldest residents of the township in the person of John Brooks, at the age of 82 years. The deceased had been in rather poor health all winter but no signs of serious illness took place until about a couple weeks before his death. The deceased has long been a resident of the township and was well known and respected by all who knew him. He leaves a large family of 12 children—9 sons and 3 daughters—all of whom were in attendance at the funeral, except two, these being in the west. The funeral took place to the Kirkton cemetery on Tuesday.

Death—Mr. Robert Robinson, of Kirkton, died Sunday morning in St. Joseph's Hospital London one hour after his arrival at the institution from his home. Arrangements had been made to perform an operation to remove an obstruction, but his death occurred before anything could be done to relieve him. Mr. Robinson, who was in his 65th year, had until a week or so ago been in excellent health. He was a blacksmith. The remains were forwarded to Kirkton, Monday morning on the 10 20 train on the G. T. R. The funeral was held from his late residence on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Robinson is survived by his wife and four sons and one daughter. The children are; Robert H., Ernest E., and Melville L. of Blyth; H. Franklin, of Norwich, and Mrs. Alfred Paul, Kirkton.

GRAND BEND.

Joseph Brenner has had his sister and her husband from Bad Axe, Mich., visiting with him for sometime.—We are glad to hear that Mr. Gordon Turnbull son of Thos. Turnbull, Sr., is improving nicely after undergoing a very severe operation at St Joseph's Hospital, London.—Abner Mollard, also Howard Walper are both improving fine after being laid up for a short time. —Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Mollard left on Tuesday for Carleton Centre on their way home to Regina after visiting with Mr. Mollard's father.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. 840, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

Doctor Failed to Help—But Morriscy's No. 14 Blood Remedy Restored Health.

TORONTO, ONT., June 2, 1911.

"For the past two years I had been suffering from nervousness and a run-down condition, caused from worry and overwork. I tried several remedies to build up my nervous system, and also had my physician prescribe for me, but I seemed to get no better until I tried your No. 14 Blood Remedy. I used one box, and began to brace up, and by the time I had finished the fifth box was feeling fine. They seemed to quiet my nerves and revive me generally and my complexion is lots better. My appetite is fine—I feel keen and fresh, and am better able to do my work than I have been for over a year. I suppose there are a lot of people troubled as I was, and if this letter will help any of them to find the right remedy, you may publish it for their benefit. I cannot refrain from giving this expression about your No. 14 Blood Tonic, as I consider it without an equal."

Wm. Stowers.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

Lost His Hair, Beard and Mustache

TERRIBLE PLIGHT OF A PENNSYLVANIA MAN REPORTED BY A PROMINENT CITIZEN.

"About two years ago my hair, beard and moustache started to come out in spots. These spots were entirely bare of hair.

Seeing PARISIAN SAGE advertised, I purchased 4 bottles and after using two of the bottles, the hair came in until now I have as good a head of hair as I had before this trouble started.

I can truthfully recommend this preparation to any one for what it is recommended for. Sam Galder, Jamison City, Col. Co., Pa. Oct. 11, 1911."

Please bear in mind that PARISIAN SAGE is not guaranteed to grow hair on bald heads.

In Mr. Galder's case the hair root was not dead and there is no good reason why PARISIAN SAGE should not do just what he writes it did.

"The next time Mr. Galder came into my store after purchasing the PARISIAN SAGE," writes the druggists who sold him, "his appearance was so changed I did not know him.

PARISIAN SAGE is without doubt the most efficient hair grower, beautifier and dandruff cure in the world, and people who are wasting time with ordinary commercial tonics should wake up.

PARISIAN SAGE will banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp, will put life, lustre and beauty into faded hair or money back. It is a most delightful and refreshing tonic for men, women and children. Large bottle 50cts. at W. S. COLE'S and druggists one country over.

It Is Up To You

To protect your family from the ravages of disease and infection; and the rigors of winter; to make your home the abode of Health and Happiness.

Statistics tell us that there were over 250,000 deaths in North America last year from fever and Pneumonia; Over 90 per cent. of these cases were traceable to out-door closets, and all were the result of insanitary conditions.

Are you going to allow this terrible death rate to continue.

Why not insure Health by installing a "PARKYTE" SANITARY CHEMICAL CLOSET.

Absolutely Sanitary and Odorless carries the endorsement of Physicians and Health Officials, and our own Iron-clad guarantee, Requires no expensive water-system; no plumbing; no sewage can be installed in any part of your home at the cost of a few minutes of your spare time; lasts a lifetime and cost less than a CENT a day.

"PARKYTE" Chemical has been proven by Bacteriological test to be the most powerful Disinfectant, Deodorant and Germicide, known to Science.

HENSALL

A second nomination meeting was held Monday night when Thos. Hudson and George Joynt were put in the field, and duly qualified for the council.

The young people of St. Paul's church are making great preparations for their concert in the Opera House next Friday night, Jan. 19th, when a comic farce, "That rascal Pat," will be the chief item on the program.

Thos. Simpson and Mrs. John Petty who have been very ill are slightly improved.

Mr. Percy Reynolds is home from the west.—Miss Alice Million of Goderich is visiting Miss Mattie Ellis.—Mr. and Mrs. Hays of Moose Jaw are visiting friends in this section.—Alf Fairbairn, of Killarney, Man., is visiting relatives in this section.—Charles Westeway of Regina spent Friday at Mrs. A. Smallacombe's.—Charles Wolf of Crediton has moved into the house owned by R. Drysdale.—James Humphrey of Zurich has moved to town, into the house owned by James Troyer.—Chas. Grassick has returned to Toronto.—Mrs. Dean of Alberta is visiting Mrs. Jas. Bell. — Mr. McNaughton and wife are here from the West.—Robert Caldwell and brother William are home from the West. —Mrs. D. Moir and daughter of Detroit have been visiting in this section —Geo. Case and wife and relatives Mr. McNaughton and wife recently visited Detroit.—Forty-three joined the Rebecca Lodge I. O. O. F. on Thursday evening. Mrs. Edwards head of the order from Bridgeport was present, also 24 members of Goderich Lodge. Miss Consitt was elected chief officer.—James Morrow, M. P. P., Manitou constituency, Man., the one formerly occupied by Hon. Robert Rogers, visited in this neighborhood.—Dr. McLean and wife, formerly a Miss Webb at the 2nd Line, are visiting relatives in Hensall and vicinity from the West.

SEAFORTH.—A very pretty wedding was celebrated on Wednesday Jan 10th in St. James church, Seaforth, when Rev. P. CorCoran, P. P. united in marriage Mr. Ronald A. MacKannon, of the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Goods Co., of Calgary, to Miss Annie M., only daughter of Mr. Thos. Geary, of Seaforth.

ZURICH.

Mrs. McWatters of Detroit is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Wells.—Andrew Schmidt has purchased Conrad Thiel's dwellings for $700.00. —Mr. James Humphries and family have moved to Hensall.—Jacob Schatz of Elkton, Mich., returned home last week accompanied by his nephew Wm. Edighoffer of the 14th.—Mr. Frank Bassou formerly of the Brunson Line is very ill in Grace Hospital, Detroit. —Mr. John Stephenson, an old and respected citizen of Stanley Township, died at his home at the Goshen Line on Friday last, at the age of 75 years 7 months and 3 days. The deceased had been in failing health for some months and kept gradually getting weaker and passed peacefully away.—George E. Brock purchased from Justus Melick, the shop formerly occupied by J. Weseloh, as a blacksmith shop. Mr. Brock is a first class blacksmith and he will no doubt work up a good trade —Mr. Abel Schibe who recently sold his dwelling to Mr. Julius Block took a trip to Waterloo last week to look up a location.—Mr. Alfton Foster's kitchen range was totally wrecked by an explosion of the water front, on Friday morning. It is supposed that the water pipes leading from the stove were frozen up, and as the morning was very cold a good hot fire was going. There was no one in the room at the time or the result might have been serious, as fragments of the stove were scattered in all directions.—The marriage took place on January 3rd, of Miss Emma L. youngest daughter of Mrs. James Regan, to Albert H. Rapson, both of Constance. The young couple will reside on the groom's farm near Harlock.

CHISELHURST

(Too late for last week.)

The Ladies Aid met at the home of Mrs. Harry Stoneman on Wednesday afternoon when there was a good attendance. New officers were elected.—President, Mrs. Chambers; Vice, Mrs. Jas. Horton; Secretary Miss M. Glenn, Treasurer, Mrs. Frank Ryckman. The society was found to be in a prosperous condition. The Ladies intend holding a social or an oyster supper at the end of the month.—Miss Elsie Burton of Constance spent the week end at Mr. Leich's.—Mrs. Hicks has returned from visiting her son John at Beamsville.—Mrs. Ackland spent the holidays at Delaware.

LUMLEY

Mr. Mart McTaggart is nursing one of Job's Comforters.—Master Austin Rice spent the week end with his aunt Mrs. F. Horton.—A few from this vicinity attended a party at Mr. W. Charlesworth's of Egmondville on Wednesday evenings and report a splendid time.—Mr. George Glenn spent the week end with friends in Seaforth.

TUCKERSMITH—Mr. James McKay sold his farm south of Egmondville to Mr. Porterfield, who formerly occupied the old Ferguson farm on the Zurich-Hensall Road, and which he recently sold. Mr. John McCaa, of the same neighborhood, has also sold his farm. The purchaser is Mr. Wallace of Essex county.

ST. MARYS—Wm. Lyons, a resident of the Stone Town, died very unexpectedly after about a week's illness. Mr. Lyons was born in Yorkshire, England, and came to Toronto with his parents 64 years ago. He moved with them to St. Marys about 60 years ago.

ST. MARYS—Robert J. McCullough, a widely known and highly respected pioneer resident of St. Marys district passed away on Friday night after an attack of pleuro-pneumonia at his residence. He was unmarried. One brother and four sisters survive.

BRUCEFIELD.—The Grand Trunk station here was badly damaged by fire last Tuesday morning. The fire started in the waiting room from the stove, and when discovered had a good start. Only the hardest kind of work saved the whole building from being wiped out. The fire spread to a room adjoining the waiting room, but was checked and soon gotten under control.

BLYTH—Further details have been received regarding the death of James Thompson. He was travelling through Manitoba when the car in which he was riding overturned killing Mr. Thompson and two others. He is survived by 3 sisters, Mrs. G. B. McTaggart, Mrs. A. Tierney and Mrs. James Tierney, all of Blyth and his mother, who resides in Clinton. The remains were brought home for burial.

HIBBERT—The death of an old pioneer took place on Saturday, Jan. 6th, of Wm. Davis, aged 83 years. Funeral took place from his late home, Con. 8, Hibbert on Jan 9th, with interment in Cromarty cemetery.

THE SECRET OF LONG LIFE.

Do not sap the springs of life by neglect of the human mechanism, by allowing the accumulation of poisons in the system. An imitation of Nature's method of restoring waste of tissue and impoverishment of the blood and nervous strength is to take an alterative glyceric extract (without alcohol) of Golden Seal and Oregon grape root, Bloodroot, Stone and Mandrake root with Cherrybark. Over 40 years ago Dr. Pierce gave to the public this remedy, which he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. He found it would help the blood in taking up the proper elements from food, help the liver into activity, thereby throwing out the poisons from the blood and vitalizing the whole system as well as allaying and soothing a cough.

No one ever takes cold unless constipated, or exhausted, and having what we call mal-nutrition, which is attended with impoverished blood and exhaustion of nerve force. The "Discovery" is an all-round tonic which restores tone to the blood, nerves and heart by imitating Nature's methods of restoring waste of tissue, and feeding the nerves, heart and lungs on rich red blood.

MRS. DORN.

"I suffered from pain under my right shoulder blade also a very severe cough," writes MRS. W. DORN, of New Brookland, S. C., to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. "Had four different doctors and none did me any good. Some said I had consumption, others said I would have to have an operation. I was bedridden, unable to sit up for six months —and was nothing but a live skeleton. You advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. When I had taken one bottle of the 'Discovery' I could sit up for an hour at a time, and when I had taken three bottles I could do my cooking and tend to the children. I took fourteen bottles in all and was then in good health. My weight is now 167 pounds.

NERVOUS DEBILITY

OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT will cure you and make a man of you. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers heal up; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body; and the moral, physical and mental systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. You feel yourself a man and know marriage cannot be a failure. Don't let quacks and fakirs rob you of your hard earned dollars.

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS

BEFORE TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience: "I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

THE DOMINION ESTIMATES

Total Appropriation Asked For Is $149,789,677, a Decrease of $6,289.861.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The main estimates for 1912-13 were tabled by the Finance Minister. The total appropriation asked for is $149,789,677, a decrease of $6,289,861. This total is made up of $104,919,314 for consolidated fund, and $44,870,372 on capital account, as against $109,616,917 and $46,462,621 respectively in 1911-12. The decreases are $4,697,612 on consolidated fund and $1,592,248 on capital account.

The principal decrease is in public works, the figures for which stand at $14,530,380 as against $18,614,030 in the current year. Another heavy decrease is $910,000 in arts, agriculture and statistics, which get $1,945,500. The difference is in the disappearance of the appropriation for the census. The naval service shows a decrease of $885,000, the appropriation being $3,091,500. The expenditure on militia shows an increase of $191,000, standing at $8,334,450.

A capital expenditure of one million is provided for harbor improvements at Port Arthur and Fort William.

In the naval service the principal decrease is one of $1,340,000 in the item including the purchase and maintenance of ships, upkeep of dock yards and maintenance of training schools, the appropriation being $1,660,000. There are increases in most of the other items, including two new fishing protection vessels for the Pacific, and a new surveying ship for the Atlantic coast.

The capital expenditure shows appropriations of two millions for the Hudson Bay Railway, twenty-five millions for the National Transcontinental and three millions for the Quebec bridge.

The Trent Canal appropriation is $1,900,000, as against $2,250,000. There are no large appropriations for either the Welland or Georgian Bay canals. For the Welland surveys there is a vote of $50,000.

A total of $1,188,570 is shown under the heading provincial subsidies, divided as follows:—Ontario, $267,657; Quebec, $285,125; Nova Scotia, $26,207; New Brunswick, $16,614; British Columbia, $191,704; Alberta, $87,653; Saskatchewan, $318,213. The Manitoba subsidy drops by $4,604.

IN THE CARIBBEAN.

A Naturaltist's Voyagings Among Desert and Little Known Islands.

Percy L. Lowe has had an unusual experience, which he describes in "A Naturalist on Desert Islands." Mr. Lowe is a member of the British Ornithologists Union, and spent six consecutive winters voyaging among the islands of the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico in search of scientific material. The trips were made in the yacht of Sir Frederic Johnstone.

The curious thing about these desert islands is that although they are known geographically for purposes of navigation, they are politically and commercially off the map. They are lands primitive and for the most part uninhabited.

Here and there Mr. Lowe found a single family living in Robinson Crusoe-like style on an island. On others he found fishermen making temporary homes during the fishing seasons, and on still others, notably the Caymans, he discovered a scanty population, the descendants of shipwrecked sailors.

Besides giving much information of value to the naturalist, Mr. Lowe interest the general reader with descriptions of his wanderings through the wild and beautiful scenery of these bits of the unknown. In speaking of the zest for primitive lands as he experienced it on these islands, he says:

"The charm lay rather in their complete privacy and inaccessibility, in the sense of 'exploration' that one experienced while on them; in the feeling that they belonged to no one but the birds and animals upon them; that as far as any one else was concerned one could go on them where one liked, when one liked, and how one liked. One felt constantly inclined to thank God that they were so commercially insignificant and generally worthless that man had not swooped down to 'improve' them out of all recognition.

"One of them, at least, is a little playground where grownup people could go 'bird nesting' and feel young again; where one could play at 'desert islands' among the coral reefs, lagoons and shady groves of cocoanut, thatch palms and satinwood trees; where one could fish or bathe the whole day long; where one could forget the hurly burly, the worries, and petty jealousies of the world and be thankful that there was still left at least one little Eden where one could be happy with simple things."

MARCHIONESS OF DUFFERIN.

Conducting a Poultry Business on a Business Basis.

The Marchioness of Dufferin, who it will be remembered was a Miss Davis of New York and one of the belles of Newport, has suddenly developed a hobby which she means to turn to profit.

She has gone in for poultry farming and market gardening at her home in Ireland, and has found some magnificent specimens of her roosters in the poultry shops of Dublin and many of the English and Scotch towns.

Her gardening operations are still in the embryonic stage, but by next spring she will be in competition with some of the best experts in vegetable, fruit, and flower culture in Ireland. Such is her enthusiasm in this latter connection that she has extended her activities to her London home.

She had not been long in Ireland before she saw that poultry farming was a very neglected industry, so she set about cultivating it. At first she confined her enterprise to providing poultry for the use of her own household. Then she began to supply some of her friends, as occasion demanded, and finally the surplus went to hospitals and similar institutions depending on charity. Now the enterprise is on a sound business footing and one more member of the aristocracy is trading without any old time feeling of loss of caste thereby.

SMALLPOX IN QUEBEC.

Disease Prevails in at Least 150 Municipalities.

A despatch from Montreal says: There are at least 150 municipalities of the Province of Quebec where smallpox cases prevail, declared Dr. Elzear Pelletier, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, on Thursday. In the County of Terrebonne it is very bad and many municipalities have complained to the board that they considered themselves threatened by the carelessness of the medical authorities of other towns. Complaints have been especially numerous against St. Janvier, where, it is alleged, the Council did not do anything effective to restrain the epidemic.

Water cannot extinguish some men's burning desire for something stronger.

LION'S TRIAL SATISFACTORY

Ship's Builders and Admiralty Gratified at Speed and Economy.

A despatch from London says: Apart from the popular satisfaction over beating Germany, the Vickers Company, the builders of the battleship cruiser Lion, which made a record of over thirty-one knots an hour in her trial on Tuesday, and the Admiralty have reason for the greatest satisfaction over her performance when she beat the record of the German Dreadnought cruiser Moltke. The trial was made during the severest kind of weather, including fog, rain, varying gales, and high seas. The weather was too thick to make out the mile marks, and the various speeds were recorded by the patent log. The Lion exceeded her specified speed of twenty-eight knots an hour throughout the test. Her boilers and turbines worked to the satisfaction of both builders and navy men, and the steam economy was remarkable, all the more so because coal was used throughout, instead of oil, with which it is not doubted there would have been better results. Moreover, the engines, owing to the weather, were not worked at their highest pressure, although it is estimated that the turbines made 300 revolutions a minute. The big ship is declared to be very steady. She ploughed through the waves instead of riding them, her high freeboard enabling her to throw them off.

Toronto, Jan. 16.—The effect of the scarcity of live beef is being felt in retail circles, for retail beef was said to be already about 2c a pound higher. There were no high prices paid for live cattle, but it was because the quality of the stuff on sale was very poor, most of it left-over cattle from the week before. Quotations were quite firm, however, for the good cattle, and exceedingly high bids were made by the abattoirs for the good cattle, which the drovers refused to sell to them. Sheep and lambs were firm.

THE FISHERY TRADE.

Products for Year Reached a Total Value of $29,965,433.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The market value of all kinds of fish and fish products taken by Canadian fishermen during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1911, was $29,465,433, according to a report presented to Parliament on Friday. The year's catch was thus more valuable than the catch of any previous year. To the total the sea fisheries contributed $26,122,596, and the inland fisheries $3,342,837. Nova Scotia leads the provinces in the value of the output of its fisheries. The products of the fisheries of Ontario during the year were valued at $2,026,121, a decrease of $151,692 as compared with the value of the preceding year's catch. In the fishery industry itself 68,610 men were employed, and in the allied industries 24,978. In all, $19,019,870 was invested in the fishing industry in Canada in 1910-11. The expenditure in connection with the fisheries was $760,734, of which $220,000 was spent for fish breeding and $159,166 in bounties. The total revenue from licenses, fines and licenses taken out by United States fishermen was $100,875.

MINER'S STRIKE CERTAIN.

British Federation Determined to Fight the Affair.

A despatch from London says: Experts in the coal trade are certain that a strike of the miners all over England and Wales will follow the declaration of the ballot figures. The men took a ballot on the advisability of a strike and the result is to be announced about Jan. 18. The most militant districts are in Wales, Scotland and Durham, while the Midlands and Yorkshire show a more moderate feeling. The men of the latter districts, however, are bound to stand by the rest of the men when a strike is declared. The Federation of Coal Owners is equally resolved not to give in to the men. Chas. Fenwick, a member of Parliament, and who himself was originally a coal miner, warns the men that he is afraid they are being carried away by mere phases of the situation and are not calmly considering the result of their action.

SURPLUS ABOUT $30,000,000

Dominion Revenue and Expenditure for Nine Months of Last Fiscal Year.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The revenue for the first nine months of the current fiscal year totalled nearly one hundred millions, with total expenditures of only some seventy-three millions. The increase in revenue over the first nine months of the last fiscal year was $13,817,114, while the total expenditures decreased by $2,511,155, although the figures of expenditure are, of course, somewhat incomplete, since they represent only the returns presented to the Finance Department up to December 31. Expenditure on consolidated fund account totalled $54,303,871, an increase of $1,409,738, and forty-five millions less than the revenue. Expenditure on capital account was $18,983,354, or nearly three millions less than during the corresponding period of 1910. The total net debt of the Dominion at the end of the calendar year was $313,386,651, a decrease of thirteen and one-half millions as compared with December 31, 1910.

For December the revenue totalled $11,596,099, an increase of $1,805,712, as compared with the preceding December. The end of the year will probably show a surplus of considerably over thirty millions between revenue and all ordinary expenditure, and it is expected that this surplus will more than provide for every item of capital expenditure, including over twenty millions spent during the year on the National Transcontinental.

MANY TOOK UP FARMS.

Homestead Entries for Fiscal Year Totalled 44,479.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The total revenue of the Interior Department in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1911, was, according to the report presented in the House of Commons on Friday, $5,093,140, an increase of $384,126 over the previous year and fourteen times as much as was collected in 1901-2. During the year there were 44,479 homestead entries, 3,000 more than in the previous year. These entries represented 7,166,640 acres and a population of 107,884 settlers. One third of the newcomers to the country last year engaged in agricultural pursuits in the West. The immigration from the British Isles reached 123,031, as compared with 59,700 in the previous year, that from Continental Europe 66,620, as compared with 34,175, and that from the United States, 121,451. The area of forest reserves has been increased from 3,450,720 acres to 16,128,640 acres.

FEARS OUTBREAK OF RABIES.

Three Mad Dogs Said to be at Large in Brantford.

A despatch from Brantford says: An outbreak of rabies is threatened in Brantford and surrounding district. Numbers of cattle and sheep have been destroyed just outside the city, and the authorities says that three mad dogs are at large, and serious damage may result. The strictest precautions are being taken in this city to prevent the spread of the disease.

HAVE SAILED FOR HOME.

King and Queen Leave Bombay on the Medina.

A despatch from Bombay says: King George and Queen Mary sailed for home on Wednesday on the Peninsular and Oriental steamer yacht Medina. They were cheered enthusiastically as they boarded the ship. The Indian authorities breathed a sigh of relief as their Majesties left, as there has been constant dread of the occurrence of some untoward event.

U. S. MINERS DEMANDS.

Want Increased Wages and Recognition of Union.

A despatch from Scranton, Penn., says: The demands of the anthracite miners for increased wages, recognition of the union, coal paid for by the ton instead of by the car, and an eight-hour day, are in the hands of operators, having been received by President Baer, of the Reading, nominal head of the coal-carrying roads, and the other coal road presidents on Tuesday.

THE FRENCH CENSUS.

Increase Since 1906 is 349,264—Movement to Cities.

A despatch from Paris says: The official returns of the census of France, taken last year, which have just been published, show that the population now numbers 39,601,509, as compared with 39,252,245 at the last census in 1906, showing an increase of $349,264. The figures show a steady movement of the population from the country districts to the cities, of which fifteen, as in 1906, have a population of more than 100,000. Paris now has 2,888,110 inhabitants, Marseilles 550,619, and Lyons 523,796. The population of France in the past forty years has increased only 3,500,000.

57 CHILDREN PERISH.

Result of Republican Uprising in Chinese Turkestan.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: A despatch from Kuldja, in Chinese Turkestan, states that there has been a Republican uprising there, which is headed by a Chinese general. The rebels seized the arsenal and demolished the fortress. All the officials were arrested. Three hundred Manchus, including the Governor, were killed. A school was burned and 57 children who were in it at the time lost their lives. A republic was declared, and a proclamation issued which guarantees that there will be an orderly Government.

FIVE LIVES LOST.

Young Man and Four Children Hemmed in by Fire.

A despatch from Montreal says: Five lives were lost in a fire which early Wednesday morning destroyed the home of Mr. Joseph Desrochers of Notre Dame du Sacre Coeur. The twenty-year-old son of Mr. Desrochers and four other young children were trapped in the burning building, and before the frantic parents and neighbors could come to their assistance the building was a mass of flames, the heat being so great that it was impossible to enter the place. The youth and the children perished. The fire loss was $6,000.

TERROR OF MENINGITIS.

Public Gatherings in Texas Cities Have Been Abandoned.

A despatch from Dallas, Texas, says: The menace of meningitis in Dallas and other cities of north an east Texas has instilled such fear among all clases of the population that public gatherings have been practically abandoned. Even church meetings have been given up. Society gatherings are rare, and saloon keepers report a serious reduction in their trade. There are about 500 cases reported, with a high death rate.

THE NORTH-WEST POLICE

The Controller Says the Rate of Pay Is Not High Enough.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The annual report of the Controller of the North-west Mounted Police, just issued, shows the strength of the force to be fifty officers, 576 non-commissioned officers and constables and 530 horses. This is a decrease of twenty-three men and twenty-one horses. Alberta has seventy three detachments, Saskatchewan eighty-three, North-west Territories six and Yukon eight. There are eleven division posts. Illustrating the work and responsiblity of the average constables, the Controller quotes a report from one whose territory covers 2,000 square miles and contains ten nationalities. One settler had never seen a policeman and inquired if he were an agent for sewing-machines. There is an insistent demand for more posts, and without a substantial increase in the force it will not be able to render the service expected of it. At the same time an increase is difficult because of the arrangement with the local Governments for the continuance of the force being tentative. The Controller says the rate of pay of the men is not high enough. Forty-eight purchased discharge last year and forty-three are on the waiting list. During the year 9,418 cases were entered; 7,875 resulted in convictions and 179 were awaiting trial on September 30. The total is a decrease of 1,167 convictions.

LITTLE WORRIES IN THE HOME

It is These That Bring Wrinkles and Make Women Look Prematurely Old.

Almost every woman at the head of a home meets daily with many little worries in her household affairs. They may be too small to notice an hour afterwards, but it is these same constant little worries that make so many women look prematurely old. Their effect may be noticed in sick or nervous headaches, fickle appetite, pain in the back or side, sallow complexion, and the coming of wrinkles, which every woman dreads. To those thus afflicted Dr. Williams' Pink Pills offer a speedy and certain cure, a restoration of color to the cheeks, brightness to the eye, a healthy appetite and a sense of freedom from weariness.

Among the thousands of Canadian women who have found new health and new strength through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mrs. W. C. Daerr, London, Ont., who says: "About two years ago I found myself so badly run down that it was almost impossible to perform my household duties. I fell off in flesh, was weak and very pale, had no appetite, feet constantly cold, and to further make my life miserable I was afflicted with those other ailments from which so many women suffer. I tried many kinds of medicine, but got no benefit, and began to feel that I was slipping into chronic invalidism. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and although I felt somewhat hopeless, decided to do so. To my delight, after taking the Pills a few weeks, I felt much better, and a further use of them brought me back to my old time health. I have since recommended the Pills to many others, and those who have used them have always been benefitted."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S WEDDING.

In the new volume of Lord Broughton's reminiscences there is a description of Queen Victoria's wedding, the writer having been one of the guests. "Her Majesty," he says, "looked handsome, but pale, and the orange blossoms in her head shook violently. But she performed her part with her usual propriety and presence of mind and prompted Prince Albert during the reading of the lessons more than once. She once beckoned to him to approach nearer when he put the ring on her finger, and pointed to the finger on which the ring was to be put."

Externally or Internally, it is Good.—When applied externally by brisk rubbing, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil opens the pores and penetrates the tissue as few liniments do, touching the seat of the trouble and immediately affording relief. Administered internally, it will still the irritation in the throat which induces coughing and will cure affections of the bronchial tubes and respiratory organs. Try it and be convinced.

JAPAN'S SWORD ETIQUETTE

It Is Expressed in a Number of Minute Rules.

In Japan until within recent times the sword was considered a badge of the aristocracy. The etiquette that regulated the wearing of the long and the short swords was expressed in a number of minute rules.

The most trivial breach of these minute observances was often the cause of muderous brawls and cause of murderous brawls and other's weapon or to come into collision with the sheath was a dire offence, and to enter a friend's house without leaving the sword outside was a breach of friendship.

He, whose position justified the accompaniment of an attendant invariably left the sword in his charge at the entrance, or if he were alone it was usually laid down at the entrance.

If removed inside this was invariably done by the host's servants; and it was not touched by the bare hand, but with a silk napkin kept for the purpose.

The sword was placed upon a sword rack, in the place of honor near the guest, and treated with all the politeness due to an honored visitor who would resent a discourtesy.

To exploit a naked weapon was a gross insult, unless when a gentleman wished to show his friends his collection.

To express a wish to see a sword was not usual unless the blade in question was of great value, when a request to be shown it would be a compliment.

The sword would then be handled with the back toward the guest, the edge turned toward the owner, and the hilt to the left, the guest wrapping the hilt either in the little silk napkin always carried by gentlemen in their pockets or in a sheet of clean paper.

The weapon was drawn from the scabbard and admired inch by inch, but not to the full length unless the owner pressed his guest to do so, when, with much apology, the sword was entirely drawn and held away from the other persons present.

After being admired it would be carefully wiped with a special cloth, sheathed, and returned to the owner as before.

The short sword was retained in the girdle, but at a long visit both host and guest laid it aside.

CURED OF CONSTIPATON

Mr. Andrews praises Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N.S., writes:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ailment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.

That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that I determined to give them a fair trial.

They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."

For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c. a box. 2

STRONG WORDS OF PRAISE.

Mrs. (Rev.) W. H. Clarke, Stirling, Ont., writes:—"I wish to give this unsolicited testimonial to the great value of Baby's Own Tablets. Our little girl, born last February, was at first very constipated. When other remedies failed we tried the Tablets and in a week she was completely cured. By the use of the Tablets she has been kept well and happy ever since." It is strong praise like this that has made Baby's Own Tablets so popular. Thousands of other mothers have said:—"Once we gave the Tablets a trial we had nothing but praise for them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Hurrah! Hurrah!" cried a young lawyer, who had succeeded in his father's practice, "I've settled that old Chancery suit at last." "Settled it!" cried the astonished parent, "why I gave you that as an annuity for your life."

"Pa, will you please tell me what a financial genius is?" "A financial genius, my child, is a man who can spend money that he has never had, and which the people who think they are getting it will never see."

CRIPPLED BY RHEUMATISM.

85 University St., Montreal.

"Just a word of praise for GIN PILLS. About fifteen months ago I could not walk across my room, suffering severely with rheumatism. I took GIN PILLS and became quite well.

PRIMITIVE TELEPHONES.

A tribe of Indians who have a primitive, and at the same time a very effective, system of telephone has been discovered in South America. The Putumayos are the tribe, and they take their name from one of the affluents of the Amazon. Suspended from a beam they have two blocks of weed, studded with a stone peculiar to the district. The stones are struck with a baton with india-rubber at the tip. The blocks give musical sounds with sharps and flats when struck. Communication is made by a certain number of taps, and the words are varied by the time lapsing between such taps. It is said messages in this way can be heard a distance extending over nine miles.—London Globe.

"Have you heard that young Molard has absconded with $3,000 of his employer's money?" "From that old Jew? Pshaw, ha! What a joke!" "He also took your umbrella with him." "The mean scoundrel!"

It would pay a sandbag and brass knuckles to knock the conceit out of some men.

DID NOT HAVE TO CALL THE DOCTOR

BECAUSE SHE TRIED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS FIRST.

One box of them cured Mrs. Mary A. Cook's Rheumatism from which she had suffered for fourteen years.

Mannheim, Ont., Jan 15 (Special)—How quickly and easily Rheumatism can be cured when you use the right means is shown in the case of Mrs. Mary A. Cook, well known and highly respected here. In an interview regarding her cure, of which all the village knows, Mrs. Cook says:

"I had Rheumatism so bad that sometimes I would sit up nearly all night.

"I first thought I would try the doctors, but luckily I decided to first try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"They cured me, and I didn't have to try the doctors. And just to think that after fourteen years of suffering one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills should cure! I will recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to anyone who suffers from Rheumatism."

Yes, it is easy to cure Rheumatism when you go the right way about it. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. If the Kidneys are working right they will strain all the uric acid out of the blood and there can be no Rheumatism. Dodd's Kidney Pills always make the Kidneys work right.

DYING MAN'S DIARY.

Eighty-minute Records of His Sufferings, Written by Himself.

A 53-year-old tailor's cutter who committed suicide at Lyons, France, by inhaling charcoal fumes left the following diary of his experience as death approached:—

3.40—Wind up watch and begin to note impressions.
3.50—Already feel pains in the head
4.00—Feel my temples throbbing.
4.15—Am stifling; breathe with difficulty.
4.30—Head confused, and am turning giddy.
4.40—Sight going.
4.50—Can hardly see now, and my body is becoming numb.
5.00—Please say good-bye to my friend of 16, Rue de l'Epee.

All the entries with the exception of the last were written in a firm clear hand.

STRANGE!

"She holds peculiar views of matrimony."

"That so?"

"Yes. She says that even if her husband shouldn't make a fortune in five years she expects to stick to him until death."

STOPS COUGHS HEALS THE LUNGS PRICE. 25 CENTS

A little outside assistance might have improved some self-made men.

Time tries all things, and as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup has stood the test of years it now ranks as a leading specific in the treatment of all ailments of the throat and lungs. It will soften and subdue the most stubborn cough by relieving the irritation, and restore the affected organs to healthy conditions. Use will show its value. Try it and be convinced of its efficacy.

TRY DOGS AS SENTRIES.

The Russian army is trying the experiment of using dogs instead of men as sentries. The wolf dog of the Ural mountains is found the most suitable for this duty. This animal does not bark at the presence of an intruder, but merely growls and incites the other dogs in the camp to do likewise.

A TIMELY LIGHT.

A French minister tells of an incident during a voyage to India: "One dark evening I sat in my cabin feeling thoroughly unwell, as the sea was rising fast and I was but a poor sailor. Suddenly the cry of 'man overboard'! made me spring to my feet. I heard a trampling overhead, but resolved not to go on deck lest I should interfere with the crew in their efforts to save the poor man. 'What can I do?' I asked myself, and, instantly unlocking my lamp, I held it near the top of my cabin and close to my bull's eye window, that its light might shine on the sea, and as near the ship as possible. In a half minute's time I heard the joyful cry, 'It's all right; he's safe,' upon which I put my lamp in its place. The next day, however, I was told that my little lamp was the sole means of saving the man's life. It was only by the timely light which shone upon him that the knotted rope could be thrown so as to reach him."—Christian Herald.

A MODERN MIRACLE.

He Had Eczema 25 Years and Doctors Said "No Cure." Yet Zam-Buk Has Worked Complete Cure.

This is the experience of a man of high reputation, widely known in Montreal, and whose case can readily be investigated. Mr. T. M. Marsh, the gentleman referred to, lives at 101 Delorimier Avenue, Montreal, and has lived there for years. For twenty-five years he has had eczema on his hands and wrists.

In that time four eminent medical men tried to cure him, and each gave up the case as hopeless. Naturally, Mr. Marsh tried remedies of all kinds, but he, also, at last gave it up. For two years he had to wear gloves day and night, so terrible was the pain and itching when the air got to the sores.

Then came Zam-Buk! He tried it, just as he had tried hundreds of remedies before. But he soon found out that Zam-Buk was different. Within a few weeks there were distinct signs of benefit, and a little perseverance with this great herbal balm resulted in what he had given up all hope of—a complete cure! And the cure was no temporary cure. It was permanent. He was cured nearly four years ago. Interviewed the other day, Mr. Marsh said: "The cure which Zam-Buk worked has been absolutely permanent. From the day that I was cured to the present moment I have had no trace of eczema, and I feel sure it will never return."

If you suffer from any skin trouble, cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it, with one cent stamp to pay return postage, to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. We will forward you by return a free trial box of Zam-Buk. All druggists and stores sell this famous remedy, 50c. box.

The Pill That Leads Them All.—Pills are the most portable and compact of all medicines, and when easy to take are the most acceptable of preparations. But they must attest their power to be popular. As Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the most popular of all pills they must fully meet all requirements. Accurately compounded and composed of ingredients proven to be effective in regulating the digestive organs, there is no surer medicine to be had anywhere.

"It is not luck, but labor, that makes men. Luck is ever waiting for something to turn up; labor with keen eye and strong will, always turns up something. Luck lies abed and wishes the postman would bring him news of a legacy. Labor turns out at six and with busy pen or ringing hammer, lays the foundation of a competence. Luck whines. Labor whistles. Luck relies on chance. Labor on character. Luck steps downward to self-indulgence, Labor strides upward as a spire to independence."—Cobden.

HICK'S FORECAST FOR JANUARY—A reactionary storm period falls centrally on the 24th, 25th and 26th, The Moon passes the celestial equator on the 24th, which fact always brings marked tendency to higher temperature, drop in barometric pressure, and electrical disturbances. Thunder and lightning even in winter, as a rule, result at the transits of the Moon over the equator. Watch these dates all through the year. Rain and snow will return on and touching the 24th and 25th, followed by higher barometer and reaction to very cold. A regular storm period is central on the 30th, reaching from the 28th of January, to the 2nd of February. January will go out with falling barometer, rising temperature growing cloudiness, and rainstorms in western sections, moving eastward. These storms will be over the central Mississippi valley about the 31st, with rising barometer and much colder advancing from the northwest. Eastern extremes will have storms and change to colder, one to three days later.

The Goderich Rebekah Branch of the Independent Order of Oddfellows instituted a Rebekah Lodge at Hensall on Thursday night last. The lodge starts off with a good membership, among them being W. J. Murray, D. D. G. M., of Exeter.

A little boy said to his mother the other day.—"Ma, am I a descendant of a monkey." "I don't know," replied the mother. "I never knew any of your father's folks." The father, who was listening, went out in the coal-shed and kicked the cat through the roof.

Last week mention was made in these columns that Mr. Fred Etherington of Usborne had disposed of his grey team of horses but instead of the grey, it was his sorrel team. An unfortunate accident happened to one of the greys one night last week it having got its hind leg over the halter shank and in some way one of its front legs was broken. They are, however, endeavoring to save the animal.

The first sleep is the soundest—after the first hour the intensity of sleep slowly diminishes—hence the value of forty winks after dinner in quickly recuperating shattered powers. Temperature and vitality are lowest about 2 p.m., so that two hours' sleep before midnight are better than four thereafter Nature has no rule as to the length of sleep, except that men need less than women, since women are the more sensitive creatures and a women's heart beats five times more a minute than a man's. Sleep should be just so long as when you wake in the morning, a stretch and a yawn only are necessary to land you in a daytime of bounding vigor.

Commenting on the installation ceremony of the I. O. O. F. officers in Clinton and Goderich by D. D. G. M., Bro. W. J. Murray and his team consisting of W. W. Taman, A. Hastings, I. T. Carling, T. F. Boyle and R. N. Creech the Clinton News Record says.—"The work was indeed exceedingly well done and reflected much credit upon the visitors. The D. D. G. M. gave a neat address and so did Messrs. Creech, Taman and Boyle. These to-gether with recitations by Messrs Hastings and Murray, a solo by Mr. Carling and a quartette by Messrs Murray, Boyle, Creech and Carling, made up a pleasant program that delighted all.

In reference to the installation work in Goderich the Signal said,—"They conducted the installation ceremony in a manner that greatly pleased the local brethren and their familiarity with the service indicated that they were well posted in that part of the work of Oddfellowship."

PASTOR TO REMAIN.—Rev. Richard Hobbs occupied the James Street pulpit on Sunday. In the morning he stated that he would continue as pastor of the church during the remainder of the present conference year.

SECOND PRODUCTION—The second production of Snow-White and the Ten Dwarfs was put on in the Opera House on Friday night last. The weather was very cold but notwithstanding this drawback a goodly crowd was in attendance Those in charge of the performance acquitted themselves admirably and it was remarked by many who saw both performances that the latter was put on with even better effect than the first and the young people deserve great credit for the way they handled their respective parts.

DEATH OF MRS. ANTHONY HOLLAND—The death occurred on Friday, Jan. 12th, at noon of one of the oldest native residents of Exeter, in the person of Jane McConnell, beloved wife of Mr. Anthony Holland, aged 71 years, 10 months and 20 days. Deceased had been ill about 14 months. For three months last winter she was seriously ill and hardly expected to recover. She rallied, however, during the summer; but took a bad turn four months ago, failing gradually until Sunday night last when her condition became serious and she rapidly declined until relieved by death as above stated. The late Mrs. Holland was born in Exeter, being a daughter of the late William McConnell. About fifty years ago she married her now bereaved husband. To the union were born five children, four of whom survive,—one son Ross of Qu'Apelle, Sask., and three daughters, Mrs. Yost of Shelbyville, Ill., Mrs. Dr. Wenger of Hamilton, Ont., and Mrs. (Dr.) Tyson of Frederick, Maryland. One sister, Mrs John Ross of Edmonton and one brother, Mr. T. A. McConnell of London, also survive. To the relatives we extend our sincere sympathy. The late Mrs. Holland was a member of the Main Street Methodist church, and when able was a faithful attendant on the means of grace. She was a faithful wife and a loving mother and will be sincerely mourned by the surviving relatives. The funeral took place from her late residence, Lake Road Monday afternoon to the Exeter cemetery.

During the past cold spell many toes, ears and noses were nipped with the frost, but nearly all were slight. Two young men driving to Centralia Friday night had an unpleasant experience in the cold, and one had his hand so badly frozen that he may lose a thumb and finger as a result.

Miss Newberry elocutionist of Boston, Mass., and the Rannie Ladies Quartette of Zurich have been engaged by the Ladies Aid to give a high class concert in the Main Street Methodist church on Friday evening, Jan. 19th. Admission 25c. and 15c. It will be a treat, so do not miss it.

From the Dairy Statistics of Western Ontario we glean, that Huron county stands the highest in the making of butter and 9th in producing cheese. Huron county can only boast of four cheese factories, but 604-486 pounds of cheese were manufactured during 1910 and 1,296,000 pounds of butter during the same period.

Word has been received here that Rev. Going of Hamilton, a former popular pastor of James Street Church, was able to be out last week, the first time since his illness, he having been confined to his bed for fiteen weeks with typhoid fever, and has not preached since August last and even now does not expect to be able to resume his duties till March or April. His friends here will hope for him a speedy and complete recovery.

Atkinson—Bissett—The following from a Winnipeg paper has reference to the marriage of a former well-known resident of Exeter, who will have the best wishes of a host of friends here for her future happiness and prosperity.—"A very pretty marriage was solemnized on January 10th at 4 o'clock at the home of Mr. George Bissett, 47 Kate Street, when his daughter, Hettie Amelia became the wife of Railton Edward Atkinson, of this city. Rev. R. A. Scarlett, pastor of Wesley church performed the ceremony, the parties standing beneath an arch of roses and ferns. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked pretty in a gown of white marquisette handsomely embroidered; clusters of lilies of the valley catching the drapings of the bodice, strands of the same pretty flower reposing in the coils of her soft hair She carried a boquet of white roses and lilies of the valley, tied with streamers of white ribbon. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch and chain The bridesmaid, Miss Della Rollins, of Crystal City, was attired in marquisette embroidered in white and wore the the groom's gift, a bar pin, set with pearls and turquoise. Her bouquet consisted of pink carnations and maiden fern, secured by white ribbon. The groom was supported by Mr. P. J. Dixon to whom he gave a pearl tie pin. After the ceremony the guests sat down to a sumptuous repast, which all enjoyed. Among the guests were noticed Mrs. Atkinson sen., Mr and Mrs. W. Atkinson, Mr and Mrs. J. Atkinson of Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. E. Bissett, Miss Saunders, Rev. R. A. and Mrs. Scarlett. The happy couple will take up their residence at 47 Kate street.

FORMER EXETER GIRL MARRIED.—At St. Thomas Church, Toronto, last Saturday morning Miss Gertrude B. Kemp, younger daughter of the late Captain G. S. Kemp of Exeter, and of Mrs. Kemp of Palmerston avenue Toronto, was married to Ernest Collyer, son of C. E. Collyer, of Blackheath, London, Eng. Rev. Enoch Sharpe performed the ceremony. The bride was given away by her brother, Arthur Kemp. Mr. and Mrs. Collyer will reside in Toronto. The Advocate joins the many friendds in Exeter in best wishes.

Mr. Wm. Mitchell of Grand View Man., and Mr. Wm Mitchell, of Togo, arrived here last week and are spending a few weeks with their parents and friends.

Among those who attended the funeral of the late Mrs Holland were,—Mrs Yost of Shelbyville, Ill, Dr., Wenger of Hamilton, and Mrs. T. A. McConnell, wife and daughter of London

Mr Frank Handcock of Maidstone, Sask., arrived here last week to visit for a few weeks at the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Creech. Frank is looking well, and we are pleased to shake hands with him again.

Mr. Jos. Cobbledick of Calgary, Alta., is in town shaking hands with old friends, and intends remaining a few weeks. Mr. Cobbledick has resided in Calgary since leaving Exeter about five years ago, and he thinks there is no town in the west that affords better opportunities, gives more promise, or holds out better inducements for legitimate investment than Calgary. Mr. Cobbledick recently disposed of his box factory and is now engaged in buying and selling city property.

MARRIED AT THE RECTORY.—A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the Trivitt Memorial Rectory here on Wednesday afternoon, Jan 17th, when Rev. Collins united in marriage Mr. John Triebner of Stephen to Miss Elizabeth Lippert, daughter of Mr. John Lippert of Dashwood. The groom was supported by his brother Frank while the bride was assisted by her cousin Miss Ella Witzel of Khiva. The bride was married in a navy-blue travelling suit of broadcloth with hat to match and silk sealette coat. The bride and groom took the evening train for a honeymoon trip to London, Stratford, Berlin and Toronto. The young couple will have the best wishes of a host of friends and the Advocate is pleased to join in wishing that adversity may never cast a shadow across their pathway. On their return they will reside in Miss Vina Fisher's residence on Huron Street.

SODOM

Mr. Chas. Sanders of Gilbert Plains Man., is visiting his brother, Mr. W. E. Sanders. Mr. Sanders left these parts about twenty five years ago.—A social hop was enjoyed by the young people off the neighborhood at Mr. Arthur Ford's on Monday night last.—A large sleigh load from Exeter North had rather unpleasant experience while on their way to Mr. Arthur Ford's dance Monday night, when the sleigh tipped and all went into the ditch. Luckily no one was severely hurt.

Presented with a Purse.—An event of more than usual interest took place at the home of Mr. Joseph Stacey, on Thursday night of last week, the occasion being a gathering of about fifty of the friends and neighbors to do honor to Mr. Stacey prior to leaving for his new home near Hurondale. Mr. Stacey is much esteemed and respected by all in the community and they felt that they could not allow the occasion of his departure to take place without some tangible expression of the good will of the people here. During the evening Mr. Stacey was presented with a well filled purse of money, accompanied by a suitable address, which was read by Mrs. Nelson Stanlake, while the presentation was made by Miss N. Smith. Mr. Stacey was taken entirely by surprise, but thanked the donors most heartily for their kindness. The evening was spent in various amusements and a most pleasant time was enjoyed by all until the we sma hours, when all departed wishing Mr. Stacey continued happiness and prosperity in his new home.

New Ontario

NORTHERN ONTARIO GOVERNMENT CAR

Yesterday (Wednesday) the exhibition car of the Ontario Government, showing the products of the new north country, spent the day in Exeter. The exhibit was a most pleasing and interesting one and many took advantage of inspecting them and learn things about the forested section of the province.

Arranged in boxes along the sides of the car were samples of grains and vegetables just as they were given to the collectors by farmers. These were not specially grown or prepared, nor were they from any experimental station or model farms, yet in length and brightness of the straw, fullness of the heads of grain, size of grain, weight per bushel, and yield per acre, they afforded a striking proof of what can be done on the virgin soil of the north. Clearly it is not necessary to go as far as Manitoba and Saskatchewan to find rich soil that will yield bountiful returns.

The climate stands up well by comparison, too. While the winters are cold, and the thermometer much depressed, the forests discourage the winds. Perhaps the pioneer who goes into Northern Ontario will find wood in excess, and the Northwest homeseeker doesn't find it at all, but of the two extremes the former is the more tolerable, for the wood supply can likely be delivered to the market as pulpwood, and as such is counted by the farmer as his first crop.

Our reporter saw soil that seemed to be the richest of clay loams, and a very large potato was shown, together with the sub-soil in which it had grown. Wheat, rye, oats, barley, timothy, clover, etc., grow very tall, and the grain is quite in keeping with the promise of the stalk.

Peas, beans, etc., develop satisfactorily, and cabbages, turnips, kohl-rabbi, mangels are heavy growers.

There are millions of acres open to the actual settler, at fifty cents an acre, plus the usual homestead duties, and it would seem a reasonable thing to suppose that the coming years will see Ontario's population doubled many times over, by reason of the millions of people who will be able to acquire farms of their own in this new but not untested larger area.

Renew your subscription to the city dailies with us. We will attend to the business for you promptly, and save you time and money.

Communication

(We wish it distinctly understood that articles under this head are "communicated" and the writer only is responsible for them. A newspaper is open to communications from its readers, but the editor does in no wise "father" these articles.—Editor.)

(The following article is published only after informing Mr. Hobbs that the article had been handed to us, and receiving his assurance that he was willing to defend any action that he had taken or any statement he had made.—Editor.)

"IT IS HARD FOR AN EMPTY SACK TO STAND UPRIGHT."—Poor Richards Almanac.

Finding myself in your little town of Exeter over Sunday, and being a Methodist, when evening came I strayed down to James Street Church to list to Brother Hobbs again, as I had heard him in London, Toronto and different places.

I have not much to say about his sermon in general, but on some points he seemed to take rather strong views,—for instance, his "sheep and goat talk" Mathew's Gospel gives only the two classes, the sheep as a type of the saved, and the goats of the unsaved. But Brother Hobbs divided the sheep up again, into black sheep and white sheep, with horns and without horns, long-tailed sheep and short tailed sheep. As to what individuals were to be represented by each variety I do not know. No doubt he will give us that in a future revelation, because from my knowledge of Brother Hobbs I know he would not attempt an intrepretation of the passage in this way unless he had a special revelation.

Then his discussion of the Carnival was unusual. What harm is there in disguising ourselves for a little harmless amusement or healthful exercise on the ice, any more than in the charades we so often enact in our own homes? There was no immorality or "leg shows." No, not half as much as you will see on any toboggan slide. They are all of one sex on a toboggan slide and if a tumble takes place of course its all in the dark and no harm done, but the poor carnival has to take place under the most brilliant light. I wonder which Brother Hobbs would prefer his girls to go to. Give me the carnival. Why, I have known ministers who have used cosmetics for years in order to make themselves to appear youthful whatever their sermons might be.

'God sends food, ye Devil sends ye Cooks" is an old saying, perhaps that may be true of some of the spiritual food we are having dished up to us these days. I think with regard to these amusements we ought to be sure to "first cast out the beam out of our own eye." Let us first be sure that our own children are above reproach before we condemn those of our neighbors. Are there not some "publicans and sinners" we can eat meat with, and try to lead them lovingly and kindly into the light, or a wandering Magdelene who needs forgiveness and comforting, or are they to you, Brother Hobbs, all either hypocrite and thieves to be scourged out of temple of God, or Hobbites to be taken into your arms?

Then again, this question of church union. Can you not leave it to the congregation and adherents for each to decide the question for him or herself unbiased by your opinion. We all know that you voted against it at the conference. There is an old saying that 'a sure way to happiness is to tend to your own business". Can you not let it go at that and let the people for once decide for themselves. What matters whether Methodism stands or falls if the Church of God stands true? The English speaking peoples overthrew popery during the 16th and 17th centuries once and for all time, and shall we have a little pope over every congregation to hold the keys of Heaven and Hell for us? God forbid. I will close with Poor Richard's motto, 'Performance is better than promise". You promised well in your youth, have you delivered the spiritual goods? Have you delivered them to this congregation this last year back? Let the fruits bear record to the tree. OBSERVER.

THE TOWN CROAKER

In every town you find some men who always croak and growl; their chief amusements seems to be to snarl and whine and howl. Of course they do not prosper well—such people seldom do—and so they strive to make themselves and all their neighbors blue. If strangers come these men endeavour to get them off alone; tell them how the town is dead and passed away, and hasn't any enterprise that half begins to pay; how real estate is very low and taxes very high, and every improvement scheme is sure to wane and die. The good books say a day will come when all must pass away and swoop for wings and golden harps this tenement of clay; the earth will burn with fervent heat, the sun go out in gloom, and every living, breathing thing shall find a real tomb. When that time comes the croaker who drives against his town,—and tries to drive good men—will be declared a victim for a special dose of flame.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Winchelsea Creamery will be held in Aberdeen Hall, Kirkton, on Thursday, February 8th, 1912, commencing at 2 o'clock p.m. Program——Auditors' report and addresses on varied topics. See hand bills for particulars.

SOUTH HURON AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY'S MEETING

The annual meeting of the South Huron Agricultural Society was held at Brucefield on Friday, Jan. 19. The attendance was rather slim. It was decided to hold the usual Seed Fair in the village of Brucefield on Friday, March 1st, and the annual horse show at the same place on Thursday, April 25th. After the general business was transacted the following officers were elected for the ensuing year,—President, W. Berry; 1st Vice, Wm. Murdock; 2nd vice, A. Mustard; Sec.-Treas., M. Y. McLean; Directors, John Murdock, T. Russell, P. Bowey, O. Geiger, W. D. Sanders, T. Fraser, D McIntosh, W. Dixon, E. Christie; Hon.-Directors, R. Charters, H. Smith, J. Ketchen, R. McCartney, John Walker; Auditors, J. McIntosh, A. T. Scott; Delegates to the Western Fair, T. Russell, J. Murdock.

FIRE AT ST. MARYS.

St. Marys, Jan. 20.—About $20,000 damage was caused to-night in the factory of the St. Mary's Wood Specialty Immediately after the alarm was turned in the fire department responded, but the water hydrants were found frozen and could not be operated. The dry kiln, with a large quality of valuable hard wood lumber and the engine and boiler room are a total loss, as well as the sawmill on the east side of the factory and which had in it valuable machinery. The main body of the factory building was saved with its machinery. A large number of hands will be thrown out of employment.

AN UNFORTUNATE MAN

As a climax to a long series of misfortunes Michael Roland, a farmer in McKillop Township, is lying ill at his home, quarantined for smallpox. An urgent message has been sent to Toronto for a man to take care of him, and the provincial health department is sending Dr. Hayes to look into the case. In the summer of 1910, his barns were destroyed by fire. Last summer, his daughter, Mrs Dr. Ryan, died, and only two weeks later Mrs. Roland passed away. The Roland place is about half way between Brussels and Seaforth.

Crediton

Our farmers are drawing their supply of ice. They believe in having plenty of ice cream during the summer months. Who wouldn't be a farmer?

Wedding bells were heard in our neighborhood on Wednesday. We will give particulars next week.

The revival meetings which are being conducted in the Evangelical church are well attended every night and good results are in sight.

Miss May Armstrong visited Mrs. Herbert Elber during the past week.

Joseph Dauncey is visiting friends near London for a few weeks.

Jacob Hafet is at present not in the best of health. On account of his advanced age the family are anxious about his condition.

Jas. Lawson, the jeweler, has a handsome owl in his window. The bird was mounted by Tom Wein and it reflects great credit on Tom, who is an amateur at the business.

This is stocktaking time. The poor clerks will give a sign of relief when it is all over.

Sam Brown's horse made a lively run through the town on Monday, but Punch has a cool head and although a little fellow got the horse under control, none the worse of his lively run.

We are pleased to learn that Mrs. (Dr.) Orme has recovered from her (Dr.) Orme has recovered from her recent illness.

KIRKTON

Agricultural Society Meeting.—The annual meeting of the Kirkton Agricultural Society was held in Aberdeen Hall on Saturday, Jan. 20th. The report of the auditors was received showing the the finances of the society in good condition, with a balance of over $130. The elected officers for 1912 are as follows,—President, D. Paynter; 1st Vice, Wm. Atkinson; 2nd, A. Brethour Directors, Wm. Delbridge, Robt. Berry John Kelland, Jas. H. Robinson, John Cole, M. Paynter, Geo. Bently, H. Berry, Samuel Doupe; auditors, R. N. Shier Hugh Kirk; Secretary, Amos Doupe. The president and secretary were elected delegates to the convention of Agricultural Societies at Toronto.

McGILLIVRAY

We understand that a movement is underway seeking to give the whole territory in the constituency of North Middlesex an up-to-date free rural mail delivery service and that several meetings have been held lately in the municipalities interested for the purpose of suggesting changes etc., whereby the existing routes may be made to serve a much larger area. Each township will be so thoroughly covered, that practically speaking, all the people will be served by the carriers. The scheme is being promoted by Geo. Elliott, the newly-elected member of parliament, who will submit the plans, when finally arranged, to the proper authorities at Ottawa.

Dashwood

Mrs. Chris Willert, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. Louis Willert, and who suffered a stroke of paralysis a few weeks ago, does not show much sign of improvement.

Mrs A. E. Fuke of Exeter was here during the past week waiting upon her mother, Mrs. Krueger, Another daughter, Mrs James Bissett of London is now in attendance, arriving Monday evening.

Mrs. Rattenbury of Brucefield is visiting her daughter Mrs. R. T. Dunlop for a few weeks.

Mr. Chas. A. Eide of Alisa Craig called on his father Friday.

Mr Wm. Miller spent a few days at Grand Bend last week.

Reeve Willert left for Goderich Tuesday morning to attend the County Council.

Miss Maggie Held, Miss Laura Miller and Mr. August Miller spent Monday in London.

Misses Dora and Lucinda Kraft of Exeter spent Sunday with their parents here.

The Ladies Aid of the Lutheran church held their annual meeting last Wednesday. The officers elected are, President, Mrs Peter Kraft; eSretary, Mrs. Jacob Schroeder; Treasurer, Mrs. Louis Preeter.

The people of this community much regret the decision of the Molsons Bank to withdraw their branch from this village. A petition has been sent to the head office asking that the branch be retained here, but at the time of writing no reply has been received.

"He at once aroused my curiosity by telling me sensational details of a widespread plot to dethrone the Sultan. An essential part of the conspiracy was to obtain possession of the diamonds before they had been cut, as they were an heirloom from the Prophet, and it would be a terrible thing in the eyes of the more fanatical section of the Mohammedans if they were tampered with in any way.

"This sounded reasonable enough, as the same story had been dinned in my ears for several weeks.

"At last we reached the Carlton. We got out and he paid the cabman, who drove off round the corner; then my new acquaintance explained to me that he placed no greater trust in his fellow-countrymen than did their ruler. Therefore he had led them to believe he was staying at that hotel, whereas he had in reality taken up his abode in the flat of a French family with whom he was acquainted. If I would come with him for a moment he promised to place me in possession of certain documents which would render easy my explanations to the Foreign Office next morning.

"I accompanied him without hesitation, secure in the knowledge that a strong force of police guarded my charge at Albert Gate, both inside and outside the house. We went to the mansions where he said he lived. The place had a perfectly respectable exterior, and is situated, as you know, in a reputable thoroughfare. We ascended to the second floor, entered the flat, and were ushered by a middle-aged Frenchwoman into a sort of sitting-room.

"Dubois turned to a writing-desk and unlocked a drawer.

"'Here are the documents I promised you, Mr. Talbot,' he said; but, to my amazement, he whipped out a revolver and held it within two feet of my breast.

"'If you move, or attempt to cry out, you are a dead man!'

"At the same instant a door behind me opened and some three or four persons entered. I was so furious at the trick that had been played upon me that I disregarded his threat and sprang at him, but he did not fire. Flinging the revolver behind him on the writing-table he closed with me. Before I well knew what had happened I was tied hand and foot, gagged, and placed helpless in a chair. A few minutes later, after a muttered consultation between my captors, I was taken to the room in which Fairholme found me, and I never left the place until nearly nine o'clock last night.

"It was a most ghastly experience. I would sooner die than go through it again.

"If ever I get within measurable distance of Monsieur Henri Dubois I promise you that I will repay him with interest some of the agony he inflicted on me. I never thought I should hate a man as I hate that Frenchman. I do not want to kill him. I want to torture him!"

This was the first sign that Talbot had given of the anger that filled his soul. For a moment no one spoke. Edith stifled a sob, and Sir Hubert Fitzjames broke the tension of swearing as vehemently as ever did the army in Flanders.

"You have suffered," said Brett quietly, "but not in vain. It is only by the manner in which these blackguards treated you that we have obtained so much knowledge. Your capture was a necessary part of their scheme. I wonder now that after you had served their purpose they did not kill you. It was not out of pity, believe me. The fact that you were spared confirms me in the opinion that the Albert Gate murders were a gigantic blunder, never contemplated by the expert criminal who planned the theft. But continue. What happened afterwards?"

Talbot almost summoned up a smile as he said—

"At last I fell asleep, dozing fitfully at first, but finally giving way to the deep slumber of exhaustion.

"I was awakened by some one shaking he, though not roughly. It took me some time to recover my scattered senses, and at first I was unable to move, owing to the constrained position of my limbs. As well as I could judge, it was not yet daylight, for the electric lamps were turned on, and I subsequently found that such rays of natural light as penetrated into my room during the day did not arrive for a considerable time.

"Thenceforth, of course, my sole method of judging the progress of time was by the alteration of meals and the difference of light between day and night.

"Some one assisted me to assume a sitting posture, the cords attached to my wrists were relaxed, and I was firmly held by two men—one a Turk whom I had not seen before, the other a Frenchman whom you found in the flat.

"At the foot of the bed were standing Dubois and a closely veiled female—a young woman, as well as I could judge, and a person of tall and elegant stature, who, it would appear, spoke only French.

"Dubois addressed me calmly.

"'I hope,' he said, 'you are in a better temper, my dear Talbot?'

"'It does not appear to me that the state of my temper is of any material significance,' I answered.

"'No,' he replied nonchalantly. 'The game is in my hands, and will probably remain there for a considerable period. But I do not wish to be unkind. You have, I am given to understand, a highly respectable uncle and a very charming sister, who will no doubt suffer much perturbation owing to your mysterious disappearance. Now, you may not think it, but I am a very humane sort of fellow. Consequently, I am quite agreeable that you should write them a brief note, omitting of course all superfluous information, such as dates, addresses, and other embarrassing facts, but simply telling them that you are well. I will guarantee its safe delivery.'

"Naturally I jumped at the offer.

"The veiled lady supplied me with a sheet of notepaper and an envelope, and I scribbled the unfortunate letter which was subsequently posted in Paris and caused such a sensation. I had only one hand at liberty, so Dubois politely offered to seal the envelope for me, first, however, reading carefully what I had written.

"'That is quite correct,' he said; 'it will relieve their feelings and prove at the same time highly serviceable to me, as the letter will be posted in Paris and not in London. You see, my dear Talbot how readily you fall in my plans. You are as putty in my hands. Now, I suppose being a brave Englishman, you would sooner have died than written this letter if you had guessed it would prove of material assistance to me?'

"I fear I used some very bad language to Dubois, notwithstanding the presence of the lady, but he paid little heed to me, and the pair at once undertook the most curious proceedings I have ever witnessed.

"They had before them a table set out with all sorts of paint, paste and powders, such as one might expect to find on an actor's dressing-room.

"Setting himself astride a chair so that the light fell on his face, Dubois submitted himself to the skilful hands of the woman who forthwith began to make him up in an exact resemblance to me. The right side of his face was towards me, but when, in obedience to her requirements, he turned somewhat, I noticed to my astonishment that the scar which I have mentioned had completely disappeared, and then I saw that his Turkish complexion had also vanished, leaving him a particularly white-skinned Frenchman, with a high color.

"The lady proceeded with her work in the most business-like fashion, and to my intense amazement he quickly assumed a marked resemblance to myself. Not such, perhaps as would bear close scrutiny, but rather the effect attained by a skilful artist in a rapid sketch, or caught by a fleeting glance whilst passing a mirror.

"'What is the game now?' I cried, when the true nature of their purpose dawned upon me.

"'Oh, just the same,' replied Dubois, grinning, 'I merely wish to puzzle the thick-headed brains of you Englishmen a little more. That is all.'

"'Halloa!' I cried, 'you understand English?'

"'Yes, he answered coolly. 'It is frequently necessary in my business.'

"'Well,' I said, 'there can be no doubt that you are an accomplished villain. What you intend to achieve by masquerading in this fashion I utterly fail to understand. You can never be such a fool as to think that you will be able to gain admittance to Albert Gate by impersonating me. Were you even to succeed you would still be as far off as ever from securing your booty, which, I suppose, is the Imperial diamond and its companions.'

"'Really,' he said, with a sneer, 'I thought that you, Mr. Talbot were endowed with a little more intelligence than the average. Pardon, Mignon, pour un moment.'

"He rose from his chair, unfastened a case which he took from the breast-pocket of his overcoat, and showed me the diamonds which had been the object of so much care and solicitude on my part during many weeks.

"'You see,' he continued, seating himself again, whilst the lady resumed her task without a word, 'the business has been satisfactorily accomplished, Mr. Talbot. The diamonds are here; so are you. Unfortunately his Excellency and the secretaries are with the Prophet. You will, I am sure, express my regrets to the police, to the Foreign Office, and to all concerned, that the Sultan's commissionaries should have been so unceremoniously despatched to Paradise. It was not my fault, believe me, nor was it altogether necessary. I am in no way responsible for the bungling measures adopted by my Turkish assistants. You see, in Constantinople they are accustomed to these drastic means of settling disputes.'

"He rattled on so pleasantly that I hardly grasped the true significance of his words, so I replied with almost equal flippancy:

"I will be most pleased to convey your regrets to the proper authorities. May I ask when I shall be at liberty to do so?"

"'Ah,' he said, 'there you puzzle even my intelligence. It will certainly be days, it may be weeks, before you can communicate with your friends.'

"A sudden frenzy seized me at those words, and I endeavored to smash the heads of my two gaolers together by throwing them off their balance outwards, and then rapidly contracting my arms. Thereupon I made another discovery. A cord lying loosely round my neck was suddenly tightened, and I was thrown back choking. A fourth man, of whose presence I was unconscious, was stationed behind me and held the noose in his hands.

"It was some time before I recovered my breath or my speech.

"At last I was allowed to rise again, and Dubois said with a quiet smile which was intensely irritating—

"'By this time, Mr. Talbot, you should have realized that you have not fallen into the hands of children. We do not wish to do you a mischief. Indeed, it would not suit our purpose. It is far from our desire to quarrel with the British Government or to take the life of one of its rising young diplomatists. The dispute in which you are unfortunately involved is between a certain section of the Sultan's subjects and that potentate himself. But really you must recognize the absolute helplessness of your position. You have just received a stern reminder. Let it be the last, for if you give us any more trouble we may end a difficult situation by effectively cutting your throat. Such an operation would be distasteful to us and most distressing to you. So please do not compel us to perform it.'

"I glared at him viciously. Speak I could not, but he paid no further attention to me, and his make-up was now pronounced to be perfect by his critical companion.

"'Vous etes un tres bel Anglais, mon vieux,' she cried, coquettishly setting her head on one side and glancing first at him and then at me.'

"'The cat!" cried Edith. "She evidently thought you good-looking, Jack."

Talbot blushed and laughed at the involuntary slip.

"I am not responsible for her opinions," he said. "I am simply telling you what happened.

"Dubois left the room," he continued, "and returned in a few moments dressed in an English tweed suit, with my overcoat and a deerstalker cap. Upon my honor, he so like me that, notwithstanding my rage, I was compelled to smile at him. He caught my transient mood for an instant.

"Tiens!" he cried, 'that is better. The surgical operation is beginning to take effect. You see the joke?'

"'It is a somewhat bitter species of humor,' I replied. 'Perhaps in the future it may have a sequel.'

"'Life is made up of sequels,' was the airy answer. 'Events generally turn out to be so completely opposite to that which I anticipated that I no longer give them a thought. I live only for the present, and at this moment I am victorious. But now, Mr. Talbot, I purpose taking a little trip to the Contient on your account. I hope, therefore, for your sake, that the Channel will be smooth.'

CONDUCTOR CURED OF CONSUMPTION

As proof of what this cure will do for those afflicted with the White Plague, read this letter:

Dear Mr. Copeland:—
When I commenced taking your cure I was not able to sit up in bed and could not keep anything on my stomach. My doctor and a consumption specialist said I could not live more than eight or ten days, but after taking two bottles of your cure my appetite commenced gaining and the weakening perspiration stopped. I now have taken ten bottles and feel completely cured. I am better and stronger than I have been for years, and can recommend it to anyone suffering from any lung trouble, knowing what it has done for me. Wishing you every success, I remain, yours,

DAVID WARNOCK,
Street Car Conductor,
Toronto, Canada.

I am receiving testimonials daily like the above from those who have been given up by the doctors. Many are speedily recovering, and some claim to be cured. Our success with advanced cases proves beyond a doubt the marvellous quality of this preparation. It can be taken on the most delicate stomach, upon which it acts as a stimulating tonic. As a cure for consumption, weak or bleeding lungs, lingering coughs or bronchitis it is infallible. Price $1 per bottle, or six for $5. Mention nearest express office when ordering. For the present, sold only by

GOT BACK AT ASTOR.

Waldorf Astor's arbitrary attitude with regard to fishing rights in that portion of the River Thames which runs through his property near London had an embarrassing sequel during his last visit to Ireland. He was stopping at Ballynahinch Castle, Galway, and having heard stirring accounts of the numbers and weight of the pike in

Mr. Waldorf Astor, M.P.

Lough Corrib and the fine sport the fish provided, he went out with rod and line to try his luck.

There are usually no restrictions with regard to fishing, in season, in the Corrib, but Astor's reputation had preceded him, and local fishermen determined to spoil the millionaire's sport. The tenant whose land adjoins that portion of the lake in which Astor commenced to operate his line indignantly ordered him off as a trespasser under penalty of prosecution.

A few dollars were offered in consideration of allowing the sport to proceed, but the tenant refused to be bribed or cajoled, so Astor had to remove himself and his tackle amid the cat calls of an assembled crowd of young and old anglers who came to back up the veteran in his uncompromising attitude.

Five or six years ago Waldorf Astor came into conflict with Thames anglers over the right of fishing in that part of the river adjoining his land at Cliveden. He first tried to stop them from fishing in those waters under any circumstances, but the Thames Conservancy, who are responsible for the stocking and preservation of the fish, claimed the right of recognized fishing clubs to fish there.

Astor insisted on his "rights" and told the anglers and the Thames Conservancy authorities that if they wanted sport they should go into the river in boats and ply their rod and line from there, but they must not stand on his land. His action caused much indignation, and evidently it is being stored up against him.

Which is Your Choice?

Sloppy, leaky wooden troughs, or clean, durable Concrete?

Wooden drinking troughs are about as reliable as the weather.

They are short-lived and require replacing every few years—not to mention continual patching to keep them in repair.

The best of wood cannot withstand, for long, constant dampness and soaking. Its tendency to rapid decay soon shows itself in leaks and stagnant pools of water around trough.

Contrast with this the durability, cleanliness and well-ordered appearance of Concrete.

The dampness which destroys lumber only intensifies the strength and hardness of Concrete.

You can impair a wooden trough with comparatively little use; but it takes a powerful explosive to put a Concrete water tank out of business.

Which is your choice—expense-producing Wood, or money-saving Concrete?

HOUSEHOLD

DELICACIES.

Orange Nut Delight.—Cut the oranges in half and scoop out the pulp with a spoon. Put in a dish and mash fine. Have ready some chopped walnuts or any other nuts desired, mix with the pulp, place mixture back in orange skin. Beat the white of eggs stiff with a little sugar and place on the top of the oranges after the mixture has been placed in the oranges and serve.

Chocolate Popcorn. — Have a large earthen dish full of freshly popped corn which has been freed from all hard kernels. Now take one cup of granulated sugar, one-half cup of milk, two tablespoonfuls of grated chocolate, butter size of walnut, and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Boil until it will harden in ice water. Pour this over the corn while hot, stirring the corn with a large spoon until all is thoroughly covered with the chocolate. Let stand to cool. This is delicious.

Salted Peanuts.—Take any quantity of raw peanuts in shell; shell and then pour boiling water over them. Let stand for few minutes, when the skins can all be removed, leaving nuts white. Place in pan, salt and butter, and roast as coffee in oven until a nice brown. Are almost as nice to serve as salted almonds and can be kept for long time in closed jar.

Russian Cream. — One quart milk, four eggs, one and a half cups of sugar, one-half package of gelatin. Beat yolks of eggs and sugar to a cream. Dissolve gelatin in the milk over the stove, stirring constantly. Then add yolks and sugar. Let it boil once or twice. Take off the stove and add the beaten whites of the eggs. Pour into a mold and when cool serve with cream and jelly.

Angel Fudge.—Two cups powdered sugar, three-quarters cup silver drops, one-quarter cup water. Beat the whites of two eggs stiff. Cook the sugar, silver drops, and water until it hairs and pour it over the beaten eggs very slowly. Then put in a cup of nuts if wanted and beat until quite stiff and pour into buttered plates.

CHOICE RECIPES.

Supper Cheese.—One-half pound of cheese, one-half cup milk, one large tablespoon of butter, one-quarter of a teaspoon of salt, one pinch of sugar, and a little red pepper. Grate or break cheese into milk, heat slowly, and continue stirring all the time until melted, and then until nearly cold. This is fine on bread and butter with a little chopped celery. Will fill two small cups.

Toad in the Hole—Take six tablespoons of flour, four eggs, a pinch of salt, mix with a pint and a half of sweet milk; have some chops —mutton or pork—nearly cooked, put them in the batter, and bake fifteen or twenty minutes.

Chili Con Carne from Leftovers. —A savory and economical way of using any kind of cold roast meat: Cut meat into small square pieces. Dredge well with flour and warm milk, pepper, and salt. Fry out some of the fat pieces and in this fry until light brown one large onion cut up fine. Add the meat and stir well together. Pour over it enough water to cover, and add one can of pimentoes cut up fine. Place on the back of stove and simmer for three or four hours. The gravy should be a rich reddish brown. Add paprika if you wish it hot.

Meat Souffle.—Three cups finely chopped meat, two cups of milk butter gravy, salt and pepper to taste, two eggs beaten separately and added just before putting in oven to bake. Be careful not to have it too hot on top at first and cook about twenty minutes.

OYSTERS.

Oyster Fanchonettes.—Prepare a sufficient number of patty shells by baking a rich pastry in deep crimped patty pans (these may be made several days previous). Make a pan of escalloped oysters, reserving one cupful of oysters, which parboil till they begin to curl. Then drain and dry on a napkin. Chop coarsely. Beat the whites of three eggs to stiff and dry fronth. Season with salt, white pepper, and Worcestershire sauce. Add the chopped oysters. Fill the shells with hot scalloped oysters; heap mixture on top of them. Brown delicately in quick oven. Serve immediately.

Oysters with Fowl.—Roast a fowl with plenty of water in the pan. When almost done add about 5 cents' worth of oyster crackers and a pint of oysters to the liquid. Mix thoroughly, season to taste. Stuff the fowl and finish roasting.

To Fry Oysters—Wash and drain. Roll crackers about as fine as cornmeal. Beat eggs thoroughly and season. Dip oysters in egg, then in cracker crumbs; pat into the palm of the hand, dip once more into egg, then in cracker. Have a saucepan half filled with lard and butter combined. When very hot, drop oysters into it. Handle entirely with the fingers; never probe with a fork. The lard can be kept and used again.

CLEANING.

To Clean Carpet Sweeper.—I always found it difficult to clean the brush in my carpet sweeper. Dirt, threads and hairs would stick tight till I discovered that a currycomb would clean the crush as good as new. D. T.

Cleaning Mixture.—For people who prefer to clean their own white gloves, laces, and neckties the following recipe will do the work well. Choose a clear day and after cleaning hang on a line two hours or more. If the fluid looks quite discolored rinse in a little clear gasoline. Add the following ingredients to one gallon gasoline and keep in a large glass bottle, well labeled, cleaning: One ounce alcohol, one-half ounce bay-rum, one-half ounce spirits ammonia, one ounce chloroform, one-half ounce suphune ether, one-half dram borax.

To Clean Whisks.—Rub whisk brooms and brushes of all kinds over well soaped toy wash board or board of any size; the brushes get remarkably clean and at the same time prevents the hands from chapping.

To Clean Plumes.—A good way to clean ostrich plumes, white or colored, easily, is by soaking five minutes in warm, clean suds. Draw them lightly through the hand a few times and rinse in warm, clear water, and dry by shaking over the stove; then recurl by drawing each little barb over the dull edge of a knife or scissors.

Mother's Scourer. — One-half pound of soft soap, one-half pound of sand and one-fourth pound of air slaked lime mixed to a paste. Use a little on brush and scour as usual, and your kitchen table and flour can be kept spotlessly clean and white.

LAUNDRY.

How to Iron Clothes.—Is to iron the back of a skirt first. Then the sleeves, next the collar and bosom, and then the front. In ironing a frock first do the waist, then the sleeves, then the skirts. The skirt should remain rolled while the other parts are being ironed and a chair should be set to hold the sleeves while ironing the skirt. Iron calicoes on the right side; this helps to keep them clean longer. Silk should be ironed on the wrong side quite damp with the iron moderately hot, as a hot iron is liable to change and fade light colors.

For Frosty Wash Days.—In frosty weather it is the hanging of small things like napkins, handkerchiefs, stockings, etc., especially when there are many children, that takes the time in the cold air and makes our fingers suffer. Still we like our clothes dried out of doors. It is a good plan to have several strips of line outside of the regular clothes line, binding each end firmly with a strong piece of cloth. Pin your handkerchief, etc., to these lines in the house, dropping them into the clothes basket as you go along. Take out one line at a time in the basket and fasten each end firmly to the regular line with one clothes pin and one in the middle. It will take but a moment to do and it is a great convenience in cold weather.

Smooth Starch. — Starchmaking requires skill on a gas stove to prevent burning. Instead of dissolving the starch in a kettle and pouring boiling water upon it in the old way, when it browns before cooking, try placing water in a kettle, previously rubbing a bit of clean lard on the bottom. To each quart of boiling water add one ladle of starch dissolved in a little water, and stir in as you would thickening to gravy.

Wet Wringer Wheels.—To lighten wringing on washday, dip the wheels on each side of the wringer in the tub of water before putting it on to wring, and it will work as easily as if it had been oiled.

Sew Curtains to Sheets.—If fine net curtains have become "tender," baste on to the sheets before putting them into water. They can then be washed without danger of tearing from their own weight. The sheets may be pinned to the floor till dry, when they are ready to hang.

Milk Starch.—Use skim milk for starch. Take sweet milk that has stood long enough for all the cream to separate, skim, and use milk for starching black underskirts, dark red percales, etc. Iron on wrong side. The articles will have the same stiffness as when new.

DANGERS OF HIGH HEELS.

The high heels at present so fashionable with elegant Parisiennes do not meet with the approval of the French medical faculty. It is asserted that they displace the centre of gravity and throw the weight of the body entirely on the forefoot, occasioning a contraction of all the muscles of the toes and the muscles of the legs, which eventually results in painful fatigue. Heels of an exaggerated height are also declared to be the cause of frequent accidents, owing to the "instability" of the wearer, and if long enough continued they cause varicose veins.—London Daily Mail

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, JANUARY 28.

Lesson IV.—The presentation in the temple, Luke 2. 22-39. Golden Text, Luke 2. 30, 31.

Verse 21 intervenes between our last lesson and this one. It records the circumcising and naming of Jesus on the eighth day, according to the law, and emphasizes the fact that the name given him was in accordance with the angel's command at the time of the annunciation.

22. The days of their purification —Really the days of the purification of the mother. These, in the case of the birth of a son, covered a period of forty days, according to the law of Moses, as found in Lev. 12. 2-6.

23. As it is written—Compare Exod. 13. 2, 12.

24. A sacrifice—The law required "a lamb a year old for a burnt offering, and a young pigeon or turtledove, for a sin offering," and in cases of extreme poverty, "two turltedoves or two young pigeons, the one for a burnt offering, the other for a sin offering." From the fact that Mary and Joseph brought the minimum sacrifice permitted in case of poverty it is inferred that they were in humble circumstances.

25. Simeon, like Zacharias and Anna, belonged to the class of righteous and devout Jews. Their keen spirited insight revealed to them truths to which the learned scribes were blind, and made them expectant, looking forward to the fulfillment of the prophecies concerning the coming of the Messiah here referred to as the consolation of Israel.

26. The Lord's Christ—Or, the Christ of God, as the same expression is translated in Luke 9. 20—that is, him whom God has sent as the Messiah.

27. Came in the Spirit—Guided by the Spirit—into the temple.

29-32. This exquisite hymn, for the preservation of which, together with the Benedictus and the Magnificat, we are indebted to Luke, has been used in the Christian Church in its vesper and other services since the fourth century. It is usually called the Nunc Dimittis, and is in thorough harmony with the spirit of the gospel in that it includes the Gentiles in the kingdom of the Christ.

29. Servant—Greek, bond-servant.

Lord—Greek, master.

According to thy word—Referring to the special revelation vouchsafed to Simeon and mentioned in verse 26 above.

30. Seen thy salvation — Him through whom salvation should come to all men, including heathen nations, as well as the Jews (compare Isa. 52. 10).

31—Before the face of all peoples —For all the nations of the earth.

32. A light—Scattering the darkness of ignorance and revealing the truth concerning God and his purposes toward men.

The glory of thy people Israel— The revelation to the Gentiles which is to come through the Christ and his work, will bring glory to the nation from which he springs. Compare Zech. 8. 23.

33. His father and his mother were marveling—Only gradually through the years did they learn to appreciate the real significance of his life.

34. This child—The word "child," as the italics in the text indicates, has been inserted by the translators. The original leaves the substantiative to be supplied.

Set for the falling and the rising of many—Those who reject him will thereby fall short of their glorious privilege, while those who accept him will, by means of their faith, rise to a higher spiritual life of fellowship with him.

A sign which is spoken against— To those who reject him he will become "a stone of stumbling" and "a rock of offense" (Isa. 8. 14).

35. The prophecy of this verse was fulfilled when Mary saw her Son rejected, insulted, and put to death by the Jewish authorities. The attitude of men toward Christ revealed their true character and the thoughts of their hearts.

36. One Anna—Her manner of life is described in detail because of the nobility of her character and the beauty of her example.

A prophetess — Devoting her whole time to meditation, prayer, and teaching, telling forth to others the will of God as she had come to understand it. The reference to her under this title shows that she was recognized as a prophetess before the incident which is recorded here.

Phanuel—Not elsewhere mentioned.

Asher—Since the return from the captivity, the tribal division among the Jews was not so marked. Several tribes seem to have been entirely missing, and the ranks of others greatly depleted, Judah and Levi being the strongest.

38. Gave thanks unto God—For the child concerning whom he spoke . . . to all them [illegible] looking for the re[illegible] rusalem, tha[illegible] redemp[illegible] in almo[illegible] devout people, with whom she was acquainted.

39. Their own city Nazareth — Luke makes no mention of the visit of the Wise Men or the flight to Egypt, both of which must have intervened between the presentation in the temple and the return of Jesus with his parents to Nazareth. Taken in connection with the fact that Matthew does record these two incidents while omitting others of importance which Luke mentions, and the further fact that Luke in the introduction to his Gospel (compare lesson for January 7) speaks of having "traced the course of all things accurately from the first," would seem to warrant the conclusion that each of the evangelists, Matthew and Luke, used sources of information to which the other did not have access, and that the narratives of the two men were written wholly independently of each other, neither having the work of the other before him at the time of writing. Compare introductory paragraphs to this lesson, entitled Material Peculiar to Luke.

WELLS AND HIS BOYS.

H. G. Wells, the English novelist, has been taking the public into his confidence as to the way he amuses his two boys.

For their delectation he has invented a series of fascinating floor games. The novelist himself is the third boy who joins in these pastimes, the materials of which are soldiers, bricks, tiny planks and boards, and miniature railroad stock and rails.

"We make archipelagos and islands on our floor," he explained, "while the floor is a sea. Or we pile the smaller bricks on the larger to make hills when the floor is a level plain, or they roof in railway stations, or serve as bridges."

When the desire comes over them "for something to whiz" they build or try to build a mountain railroad "to reach up to the table." Castles spring up on the floor where railroad depots have been, but Wells complains that the toymakers only turn out modern soldiers, whereas the kind of games he plays with his children require a miniature civilian population.

ACCIDENT TO SOLDIER.

Half His Brains Blown Away—Cannot See Sideways.

A Swedish soldier was shot a few months ago in the head and half his brain was blown out, in consequence of which he lost part of his mental powers. After the shot the young man lay unconscious for a fortnight, and when he regained consciousness he had completely lost his memory, and could not even remember his own name. Gradually his memory has returned, and he recollected what happened in his childhiod. And now he remembered everything up to the third day before the shot. His general health is good, and his temper also. His sensorial nerves are destroyed, and his sense of sight is distinctly damaged. He has, for instance, lost the power of seeing anything at the side of him; he is obliged to look straight at an object. He has also partly lost the capacty of reading and writing, and lost the power of combining letters, and this he will never regain, for which reason he will never be able to take up work in which writing and reading are necessary.

The State will certainly try to lessen the consequences of the accident which happened during his term of service.

THE THRIFTY SCOT.

Much is heard in these days of the cost of living having gone up, but it is rather curious to find that in spite of it all the amount of money deposited in the savings banks of the country continues to increase by leaps and bounds. A year ago the Edinburgh Savings Bank showed an increase in funds of £106,000; last year it shows an increase of over £160,000. Not only has the amount deposited increased, but the number of depositors has increased also. So some Scots at all events still believe in taking care of the bawbees.—Westminster Gazette.

THE ANGLO-GERMAN CRISIS

THE WAY TO PEACE BETWEEN BRITAIN AND GERMANY.

An Eminent British M. P. Reviews the Events of the Past Year.

Sir. Joseph Compton-Rickett, M. P., the writer of the following article, which appeared in the London Daily Mail, is a distinguished Liberal politician, Privy Councillor, and Nonconformist leader. He is co-Treasurer of the National Council of the Evangelical Free Churches, and has been Chairman of the Congregational Union of England and Wales. This expression of his views on the recent political crisis is, therefore, of especial signficance.

There is some danger that the lessons of the recent Anglo-German crisis may not be fully appreciated. The man in the street thanks Heaven for the Foreign Secretary, and dismissing the question, returns to the absorbing disputes of party politics. Before we set aside the Franco-German controversy it would be well to disentangle the real issue which will have to be faced sooner or later.

Ever since Germany appropriated two French provinces she has had to provide against the standing enmity of France. Long before this she would have taken precaution against a revival of French power if she had not been forced to reckon with a Russian upon her eastern frontier, who was bound to keep France in being until the Balkan question was settled. The Russo-Japanese war, followed by internal troubles, so crippled Russia for a while that Germany felt herself free to disregard her. Bismarck had encouraged France to occupy herself in North Africa. Recent German policy, however, has elected to keep Morocco an open question. German ambitions have been directed to Turkey and to the Eastern Mediterranean. A naval base in the Mediterranean was the natural accessory to her plans in the east.

WARSHIP AT AGADIR.

The Triple Entente resisted the pressure requisite to bring France into line. But the strength of it was soon to be tested. Russia was subjected to disappointment and humiliation in the Bosnian crisis, and the toughness of the British support has just been gauged in the recent Moroccan difficulty. Morocco is only an incident in the development of German policy. But the despatch of a warship to Agadir was a distinct menace. The outbreak of wrath that has succeeded the signing of the Franco-German treaty is conclusive evidence that Germany intended to get much better terms for herself, and that the intervention of Great Britain has considerably limited her compensations.

GERMAN ARMAMENTS.

We have no national quarrel with Germany. Her growing population and prosperity enlarge our commercial relations with her. Her genius for organization provides an object lesson in social improvements. But the Germany who has found war a most profitable investments in the past is maintaining armaments on such a scale that they inevitably awaken uneasiness. They are out of proportion to the real needs of her own national defence The United States is far wealthier than Germany and has an illimitable future, but we, though trade competitors, live on terms of cordiality with that great republic. It is the German armament, and not the German people that creates a storm centre in Europe. Her preparations are bound to provoke counter-preparation.

NAVY PRESERVES PEACE.

We have peace to-day because Germany is not ready to face Great Britain at sea and doubts her ability to rush the French frontier as she did in 1870. She would be forced to undertake a war that might be prolonged for years, during which time Russia and the Balkan States might settle the rivalry of Teuton and Slav without German assistance. Austria and Italy in their present temper would practically cancel each other. The German Empire is little more than forty years old, and has never borne the strain of a war since the one in which she came into existence. An indeterminate struggle might severely test her solidarity.

HOW CAN WAR BE AVOIDED?

Nothing could be more unhappy than a conflict between nations so closely related as Great Britain and Germany. How can such a disaster be avoided? She is growing restless under her increasing armaments, for which she does not receive an adequate return. The Turkish Empire is "an unconscionably long time in dying." The United States would resent the intrusion of Germany in South America. Japan has rendered the coercion of China a dangerous undertaking for any European Power. South Africa is happily settled under the British flag. Germany does not desire expansion so much for colonial settlement as for political and commercial development. Her emigration has lately declined, and Central Europe is behind this country in density of population.

MANIFEST POLICY.

Her manifest policy would be to draw Holland, Belgium and probably Denmark, into the German Confederation. Antwerp is one of the chief continental ports. The oversea possessions of Holland and Belgium are of considerable value. With the littoral of the North Sea and the Baltic in her hands she would hope to control both, but she cannot achieve her ambitions without dominating our home waters and neutralizing the military forces of France.

EFFECT ON BRITAIN.

The effect upon this country would be an enormous increase in our naval armament and compulsory military service. If we mean to arrest this suggested movement, we must maintain France intact, inspire the little States with courage to defend their independence, and secure at all costs an overwhelming superiority, in naval resource. In the estimate of comparative strength we must remember that the requirements of Great Britain are world-wide, while Germany is restricted to her own sea frontier through the want of naval bases abroad.

Such preponderance would of necessity carry the command of the sea in far-away waters as well as at home. Our existence as an Empire depends upon the strength of the thread upon which we string the brilliant pearls of our Dominions. No change in fiscal policy could ever grow us sufficient bread and meat in these Islands. If world-wide power follows our naval pre-eminence, that is a repsonsibility which we have not abused in the past and which we shall not fail to shoulder in the future.

THURSDAY, JAN. 25, '12

The Census and Statistics Office of the Department of Agriculture has issued the following bulletin giving the final estimates of the area, yield and value of the principal field crops of the Dominion for 1911. The field crops of Canada are shown to have occupied last year a total area of 32,853,000 acres and their value calculated at the average local market prices amounts to $565,712,000. The area under wheat last year was 10,374,000 acres, of which 1,172,000 acres were fall wheat in Ontario and Alberta, and the production was 215,851,000 bushels of the value of $188,5667,000. Fall wheat produced 26,014,000 bushels of the value of $21,461,000. Oats occupied 9 220,000 acres, and yielded 348,188,000 bushels of the value of $26,812,000, barley 1,404,000 acres yielded 40,641,000 bushels of the value of $23,004,000 and flax 1,132,000 acres yielded 12,921,000 bushels of the value of $19,467,000. The combined area under rye, peas, buckwheat mixed grains and flax was 2,481,000, acres the yield 44,896,000 bushels and the value $41,560,000. Hoed and cultivated crops, comprising beans, corn, for husking, potatoes, turnips and other roots except sugar beets occupied 1,063,000, and yielded 170,884,000 bushels of the value of $78,290,000.

Fodder crops including fodder corn, hay clover and alfalfa show an acreage of 8,290,000, a production of 15,499,000 tons and a value of $161,814,000. Alfalfa, a record of which was taken for the first time, shows an area of 101,781 acres with a yield of 227,900 tons. This valuable fodder crop is being principally grown in Ontario, Quebec and Alberta, the average yield per acre for the whole of Canada being 2 and a quarter tons.

For the year 1911 as areas from which the yields are calculated were of the recent Census and the resulting data are not therefore strictly comparable with the estimates of the three previous years which were based upon the reports of selected correspondents It may be mentioned however that the area and production of wheat in 1911 exceed by over 1,000,000 acres and 65,862,000 bushels the estimates of 1910. A more satisfactory criterion of the difference between the two seasons of 1911 and 1910 is afforded by the average rates of yield per acre which for fall whea twas 22.19 bushels in 1911 against 23.49 in 1910, spring wheat 20.63 against 15.53, oats, 37.76 against 28.79, barley 28.94 against 24.62 and flax 11.41 against 7.97.

In the three Northwest provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta the wheat production was 194,083,000 bushels compared with 129,891,000 bushels the estimate of 1910 of oats 212,819,000 compared with 126,753,000 and of barley 24,048,000 compared with 21,377,000. The wheat production of 1911 in Manitoba was 60,275,000 bushels from 2,980,000 acres in Saskatchewan 97,665,000 bushels from 4,705,000 acres and in Alberta 36,143,000 bushels from 1,617,000 acres.

By provinces the total value of all field crops in 1911 was as follows.—Prince Edward Island $8,846,700, Nova Scotia $14,297,900, New Brunswick 16 797,000, Quebec $103,187,000, Ontario, $193,260,000, Manitoba $73,136,000 Saskatchewan $107,14,7000 Alberta, $47,750,000, British Columbia $1,290 000.

Probably the most abused member of the Provincial Legislature for the last few years has been Hon. Dr. Pyne the minister of education. The opposition have attacked the minister unsparingly and ridiculed and sneered at his policy. He seldom defended himself but now that the election is over he states that the time is near at hand when the province will be fully provided with Normal-school trained teachers. The resulting benefit to the province cannot be estimated, and the admirable manner in which the minister has stood the abuse is to be commended.

BAYFIELD.—Practically a unanimous vote was given here Monday in favor of the town being linked in the hydro-electric power chain, 94-17.

CREEPING CACTUS.

Curious Plants That Will Travel Across a Desert.

"The isolation of the desert lowlands of Lower California, combined with alternations of long continued droughts and heavy rains, has resulted in the development of the richest and most extraordinary desert flora in the world," says E. W. Nelson in the National Geographic Magazine.

"Cactuses of many kinds abound, varying from giants standing with massive fluted trunks fifty to sixty feet tall to little straggling stemmed species too weak to hold themselves upright. The fruit of many of these cactuses is edible and much sought for by birds and mammals. They were once one of the main crops of the Indians who lived in this arid region. The cactus forests often form thorny jungles through which it is impossible to pass.

"After months among these thorny plants we supposed we had seen them in all their eccentric variations of forms. One morning, however, while crossing the Llano de Yrais, in front of Magdalena bay, I rode out from a dense growth of bushes into an open area and pulled up my horse in amazement at sight of the most extraordinary of them all. Before me was a great bed of the creeping devil cactus which appeared like a swarm of gigantic caterpillars creeping in all directions. These plants actually travel away from the common center of the group, and I saw many single sections twenty or thirty yards away from the others. The part of the stem resting on the ground sends down rootlets and the older stems die in the rear at about the same rate as they grow in front, so they slowly move away from the colony across the flats where they live."

A SECRET LIBRARY.

Important Papers That Were Stored Away by Queen Victoria.

Within the walls of Buckingham palace and constructed on the "strong room" principle is a room known as the "secret library," and in this are stored documents and private letters which were they sent forth to the world would doubtless set the whole universe talking

From the very commencement of her reign Queen Victoria assiduously stored away in nice order all family and other important papers, her only assistant in this duty being a secretary, who entered her service within fourteen years of her accession to the throne and who retained his place until her majesty's death, though he himself had no access to nine-tenths of the papers which are docketed, the late queen alone retaining the keys of the safes and cabinets in which her "secret library" was contained.

Just before her death her majesty added to the list of her papers a batch of letters of the most private and confidential kind, addressed by the late prince consort to his brother, the Duke Ernest of Coburg, and it is a well ascertained fact that when possible she acquired every scrap written by her late consort to his private friends It is said by those who are qualified to surmise that the "secret library" not only tells of royal marriages, births and deaths, but that it is virtually the private history of Europe during the last half of the nineteenth century.—London Tit-Bits.

European Civilization.

The first pavements in Paris were laid about the year 1200; in London about 1417. Berlin was without pavements far into the seventeenth century. No houses had glass windows before the twelfth century, and as late as the fourteenth century anything might be thrown out of the windows of Paris and London after three times calling out, "Look out!" Shirts were not known until the time of the crusaders, and the fine clothes which ladies and gentlemen wore were seldom washed, but only occasionally "scented." So late as 1550 there were to be found in Paris but three carriages, while in England coaches date from 1580. Forks were unknown, and table manners were exceedingly "unsightly."

Occupation of Idols.

Some strange occupations figure on Indian census schedules. At the last census in many villages of Haidarabad and the central provinces enthusiastic and devout enumerators returned the village shrines and temples as "occupied houses." The occupant was the idol, whose occupation was stated as "granting boons and blessings, living on contributions from the tenants." Other callings returned on the schedules include collectors of edible birds' nests, receivers of stolen goods, witches, wizards and cow poisoners.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Stumbled on the Will.

Wills have often proved a stumbling block to the novelist. One flagrant case may be mentioned. A popular writer causes an old aristocrat to have his "last will and testament" witnessed by his butler and his housekeeper, yet he makes them both benefit under it. By so doing he renders the will invalid. But the author does not know it.

Every Woman's Privilege.

Mrs. Byram—That's the kind of a husband to have! Did you hear Mr. Dike tell his wife to go and look at some $100 hats? Mr. Byram—My dear, have I ever deprived you of the privilege of looking at $100 hats?—Chicago News.

Venus will not charm so much with all her attendant graces as they will without her Lord Chesterfield.

Worthy of the Highest.

The talk had turned to the orphan children of Henry Doane of Cherryville. The former resident asked the stage driver how they had prospered.

"They've done first rate," was the hearty response. "Both of them have done first rate.

"Joe Eddie, he learned the carpenter's trade and has worked right along, and as for Emma Susan—well, I'll tell you what somebody from over the Center said to me only last week about her in conversation regarding her husband.

"Emma Susan married Frank Baxter, one of the James Baxters. Well, that man from the Center, he said to me: 'I hear Frank Baxter's been chosen selectman. Well, I don't know but what he'll do all right for you,' he said; 'but, whether he's the man for the place or not, there's one thing certain—if ever a woman looked suitable to the position of selectman's wife and would do it credit Emma Susan Baxter's that woman!'"—Youth's Companion.

Too Many Books.

Barnaby Rich in his preface to "A New Description of Ireland," published in 1600, writes: "One of the diseases of this age is the multitude of books that doth so overcharge the world that it is not able to digest the abundance of idle matter that is every day hatched and brought into the world, that are as divers in their forms as their authors be in their faces. It is but a thriftless and thankless occupation, this writing of books. A man were better to sit singing in a cobbler's shop, for his pay is certainly a penny a patch! But a book writer, if he gets sometimes a few commendations of the judicious, he shall be sure to reap a thousand reproaches of the malicious."

No Use.

Pocahontas had saved the life of Captain John Smith.

"What would have been the use of killing him, anyhow, pa?" she said. "There are millions of other John Smiths, and there wouldn't have been a line about it in the papers."

Her news instinct was unerring. Saving the captain's life made a first page story of the affair.—Chicago News.

Black Eggs.

The black Cayuga duck, a South American bird, frequently lays black eggs. The coloring does not penetrate the shell, being due to an oily pigment which can be rubbed off. In successive layings the coloring fades and disappears.

The Usual Way.

She—What would you do if you had money enough to supply your needs? He—I'd start in to make a lot more to supply my wants.—Exchange.

His Occupation.

Doctor—I think, perhaps, your occupation is depressing. Can't you find a more cheerful job? What is your work? Patient—I am a joke writer.

HARPLEY

We had our January thaw on Thursday of last week.—Mr. F. Gratton, our genial stage driver, did not get thru on Tuesday of last week on account of the drifted condition of the road. Hence no news from your correspondent.—On Monday night two young men enroute from Hensall to Centralia lost their way in the darkness, being unacquainted with the road. They upset the cutter in one of the drifts one of them losing a rubber overshoe. They called at Harpley P.O. about 5 o'clock a.m. and Postmaster Love gave them their bearing and started them on the right road to their destination.—Miss Ida Webb of Gilford, Mich., is visiting friends in the neighborhood.—Mr. Geo. ELIMVILLE

D. W. Ackerman of Midland, organizer for the C.O.C.F. came to visit us Jan. 5th, and in ten days' canvas secured 45 applications, which was a surprise to us. Two meetings were held for initiations, Jan. 12 and 19, when most of the applicants were present to have a ride on the goat, which they will not forget for a time. The Council furnished supper for all, consisting of the good things that the ladies of Elimville Council know how to serve, also oysters were stewed to the taste of a prince by W. J. Statham of Exeter. The Hall was crowded to the doors with Friends and the following address was read to Organizer Ackerman, who made a suitable response.—

To Friend D. W. Ackerman,—

We, the members of Elimville Council, No 98, C.O.F., wish to hereby tender to you our most sincere and heartfelt thanks for the zealous and effectual work you have performed among us. During your short stay you have displayed not only your ability in the capacity of an organizer, but your high Christian character to a very marked degree. You have thereby formed such ties of Friendship as will not soon be broken. May you long be spared to labor in the interest of our order and in the cause of the Master, and when the labors of life are ended we may all meet again in the Grand Council on high. Kindly accept this our slight token of appreciation of your successful work amongst us.—Signed, Benson Williams, C.C., William Johns, Recorder.

Money Back Dandruff Cure

W. S. COLE GUARANTEES PARISIAN SAGE FOR DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR

Destroy the Dandruff germs, that's the only known way to eradicate dandruff, and PARISIAN SAGE contains just the ingredients that will destroy germs.

Dandruff causes falling hair and baldness because the little dandruff germs rob the hair roots of the nourishment that should go to supply life, luster, and vigor to the hair.

PARISIAN SAGE costs but 50 cents a bottle at W. S. Cole's, and druggists everywhere. It is guaranteed to banish dandruff, stop falling hair or scalp itch, or money back. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. It is a most delightful and daintily perfumed dressing that quickly invigorates the scalp.

"My hair was falling out badly until I began to use PARISIAN SAGE, but it looks fine now. My hair was getting very thin, but it is getting thick and wavy."—Eliza Archer, 60 Church St., Hartford, Conn., June 5.

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

FREE TO YOU AND EVERY SISTER SUFFERING FROM WOMEN'S AILMENTS.

I am a woman.
I know woman's sufferings.
I have found the cure.

I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from women's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—you, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourself at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhœa or Whitish discharge, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths, also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weakness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weakness peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete 10 days treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer, if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all, old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhœa, Green Sickness, and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plumpness and health always result from its use. Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all women's diseases and makes women well, strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the ten days' treatment is yours, also the book. Write to-day, as you may not see this offer again. Address:

RAILWAY SUPERINTENDENT CURED OF CATARRH!

Morriscy's "No. 26" Prescription Cured Obstinate Case.

PETITCODIAC, N. B., May 10, 1911.

"I had been troubled for quite a number of years with a very annoying case of Catarrh of the head. It kept me sneezing, coughing and spitting nearly all the time, and my work—running to and fro in the trains—aggravated the trouble more or less account being exposed to all kinds of weather. The car dust also added to the irritation. Your No. 26 Catarrh Cure for internal and external use was recommended to me, and I decided to give it a trial. I used 3 boxes and am entirely relieved, and I feel so much better that I wanted you to know it was your medicine that fixed me up. You have a fine remedy indeed in your No. 26 Catarrh Cure. Everyone who has Catarrh ought to know about it and should use it."

A. H. Robinson,
Supt., E. & H. R. R.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

It Is Up To You

To protect your family from the ravages of disease and infection; and the rigors of winter; to make your home the abode of Health and Happiness. Statistics tell us that there were over 250,000 deaths in North America last year from fever and Pneumonia; Over 90 per cent. of these cases were traceable to out-door closets, and all were the result of insanitary conditions.

Are you going to allow this terrible death rate to continue.

Why not insure Health by installing a "PARKYTE" SANITARY CHEMICAL CLOSET.

Absolutely Sanitary and Odorless carries the endorsement of Physicians and Health Officials, and our own Iron-clad guarantee, Requires no expensive water-system; no plumbing; no sewage can be installed in any part of your home at the cost of a few minutes of your spare time; lasts a lifetime and cost less than a CENT a day.

"PARKYTE" Chemical has been proven by Bacteriological test to be the most powerful Disinfectant, Deodorant and Germicide, known to Science. The "PARKYTE" SANITARY CHEMICAL CLOSET is sold by

CURIOSITY Prompted Many Women To Try PURITY FLOUR

THEY were curious to see exactly what results would be produced by flour consisting entirely of the high-grade portions of the best Western hard wheat.

They were curious to know more about a flour that contained none of the low-grade portions, which are found in every wheat berry, but which are separated and excluded from the high-grade in the process of milling PURITY FLOUR.

THEY were curious to know whether an ALL HIGH-GRADE hard wheat flour was really superior to a mixed hard and soft wheat flour.

They were curious to see and taste the kind of bread, buns, biscuits, cakes and pies PURITY FLOUR would make.

Curiosity prompts you to seek the knowledge they discovered. It's urging you to try PURITY FLOUR.

REMINDER: On account of the extra strength and extra quality of PURITY FLOUR it is necessary, for best pastry-results, to add more shortening than you are accustomed to use with an ordinary flour. Add more water when making bread.

Add PURITY FLOUR to your grocery list right now

WINGHAM—Mrs. J. Jefferson, who fell some days ago, dislocating her hip, is dead at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Jefferson was 88 years old, and it was feared at the time that her injuries would prove fatal. The remains were taken to Clinton for interment.

CLINTON—Jan. 14th, Aleda, daughter of Albert and Mrs. Seeley passed away after an illness that has extended over two years. Though able to attend school off and on and was nearly always about the house but it was seen that she was gradually growing weaker and on Friday she had to take to her bed.

CLINTON—The quarterly official board of Ontario Street Methodist Church have given an invitation to Rev. W. E. Millison of Trinity Church, Stratford, to become their pastor in July next. Rev. T. W. Cosens, who is now pastor in Ontario Street church, has accepted an invitation to one of the London churches and leaves at the end of the third year.

GODERICH.—Rev. Dr. MacLean, a retired Presbyterian minister residing here for the last five years, died at 11 o'clock Monday, after a brief illness. He was in his 78th year, and was pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Blyth, for 40 years.

CHISELHURST
(Too late for last week.)
The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church here have purchased a fine new oak pulpit, and three chairs to match which add very much to the appearance of the church.—On the evening of the 2nd of February the Aid intends giving an oyster supper. They are putting forth every effort to make it a success. A good attendance is expected as the Chiselhurst people always do it up right.—A young son has come to brighten the home of W. V. Dinnin.

Bolton's for a few days.—Mrs. Simmons, we are pleased to say, is recovering from her recent illness.—Mr. Tom Ellerington's old friends are pleased to see him again—Miss Stewart of Vancouver, who was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Wm. Glenn, left on Saturday to visit friends at Attwood and Listowel. Mr. Jack Glenn accompanied her and will remain a few days.—Mr Wm. Miller is still confined to his bed.—Mrs. John Glenn is also confined to her room.—Mr. F. A. Ellerington was in Dublin on Saturday. He had the misfortune to have one of his horses break its leg recently.

PARKHILL—John D. McIntosh, of the Centre road, is in a very serious condition at his home as a result of being found on the road between his home and Parkhill with both hands and feet badly frozen.

AILSA CRAIG—A wedding of interest to this town and vicinity was solemnized at Strasburg, Sask., when Miss H. Kerr, a former Ailsa Craig lady, was married to Mr. S. McGee, of the place. Little Annitta Cornebare, who are also well known here, acted as ring bearer. Miss Kerr was very popular among the young people of Ailsa Craig.

TUCKERSMITH.—Word has been received here of the death of Mr. Robert Gray, son of the late Mrs. Alexander Gray of Beech Bank Farm, Mill Road, Tuckersmith. Mr. Gray died on the 6th of January. He had gone to Rochester, Minnesota to be operated on there in the hospital for a tumor, and he passed away two days after the operation was performed. His home was in Ontario, California. He was a brother of Mr. Alex Gray, of the West End, Tuckersmith, and Mrs. James Carnochan, of the same township, and of Mrs Samuel Smillie of Hensall, and of Mrs. John Stewart, of Blyth.

MAGUIRE—The home of Mr. and Mrs William Flynn, of the fourth concession of McGillivray, was the scene of a most enjoyable celebration Monday evening in honor of the fortieth anniversary of their wedding. More than fifty friends were present in addition to more than twenty children and grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs Flynn were the recipients of many beautiful presents, and were very heartily congratulated They entertained all present to a fowl supper, and afterwards the tables were cleared and a dance was held. Messrs. Job and Geo. Flynn, brothers, of Mr. William Flynn provided the music on their violins. Mr. and Mrs Flynn are much esteemed in the neighborhood and will have the best wishes of all that they may be spared to celebrate many more similar events.

FOR THE WOMAN WHO THINKS AND FEELS.

Some women complain that they periodically suffer from dull and heavy feelings, or dizziness in the head, nervousness, pain and bearing-down feelings which should not occur to the normal healthy woman. But most every woman is subject to these pains at some time in her life, due to abnormal conditions in life, such as corsets, over-taxed strength, bad air, poor or improper food wet feet, sluggish liver, etc. A regulator and female tonic made from native medicinal roots with pure glycerin, and without the use of alcohol, called has proven its value in thousands of cases, like the following:

MRS. MARTIN.

MRS. DONA M. MARTIN, of Auburn, Nebr., Route 1, Box 34, says: "I thought I would write you in regard to what your medicines have done for me. I have used them for thirty years for female trouble and general weakness with the very best result, and they have saved me hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills. I buy the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and take them together. I never was disappointed in your remedies and take pleasure in recommending them to any suffering lady. I am now almost fifty years old; at forty-five I took your medicines, both kinds, and I passed that period very easily and left me fat and healthy. I feel like a young girl.

"If any lady cares to write me, I will gladly tell her more about the good work of your medicines."

DR. PIERCE'S GREAT FAMILY DOCTOR BOOK, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition—of 1008 pages, answers hosts of delicate questions which every woman, single or married, ought to know. VARICOSE VEINS CURED

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

Free to Stock and Poultry Raisers

We will send, absolutely free, for the asking, postpaid, one of our large sixty-four page books on the common diseases of stock and poultry. Tells you how to feed all kinds of heavy and light horses, colts and mares milch cows, calves and fattening steers, also how to keep and feed poultry so that they will lay as well in winter as in summer. No farmer should be without it.

NOW is the time to use Royal Purple Stock Specific At a cost of only two-thirds of a cent per day per animal it will increase it 25 per cent. in value. It permanently cures Bots, Colic, Worms, Skin Diseases and Debility. Restores run-down animals to plumpness and vigor. It will increase the milk yield three to five lbs. per cow per day and make the milk richer. Royal Purple is not a stock food. There is no filler used in its manufacture, and we import from Europe all the seeds, herbs, barks, etc., and grind them on our own premises. Therefore we can guarantee it to you as being absolutely pure. We do not use cheap filler to make up a large package. We give you the best condition powder ever put on the market in a concentrated form. A tablespoon levelled off once a day is sufficient for a full grown animal. It prevents disease, keeps your animals in perfect health, and is absolutely harmless. It makes six weeks old calves as large as ordinary calves at 10 weeks. You can develop six pigs ready for market in just one month's less time than you can possibly do without it at a cost of only $1.50, saving you a month's work and food. A 50c package will last a horse 70 days. A $1.50 pail or air-tight tin containing four times as much as a 50c package will last an animal 280 days. If you have never used it try it on the poorest animal you have on your place and watch results. If it does not produce better results than anything you have ever used or give you satisfaction, we will refund your money. Andrew Wegrich, of Wainfleet, Ont., says that he tried it on one cow, weighed her milk on the 16th, 17 lbs., on the 29th she gave 22 lbs. Dan McEwen, Canada's greatest horse trainer, says: "I have fed Royal Purple to The Eel and all my racehorses for four years. They have never been off their feed. Your cough powder works like magic."

Mr. Tom Smith, trainer for the Hon. Adam Beck, says: "We had a mare in our stables last fall belonging to Miss Cleuston, of Montreal. We could not feed her any bran on account of scouring. We commenced using your Royal Purple Stock Specific. The results were wonderful. We found after using it three weeks we could feed her bran or any other soft feed and she actually took on 25 lbs. during that time"

Mrs. Wm. Burnham, of Sandford, Ont., says: "I fed your Poultry Specific to 32 hens during the winter and sometimes got as many as two dozen eggs per day in February and March."

Mr. Andrew Hicks, of Centralia, Ont., says: "I used your Stock Specific on 20 milk cows. They have increased 30 per cent. in their milk and I got even better results from your Poultry specific. We had 60 hens laying age. When we commenced using Poultry Specific we were getting five or six eggs a day. In less than five days we got 150 eggs. These were the coldest days last winter." You can see the results at once after you commence using this material. When farmers get acquainted with Royal Purple brands they will never be without them.

Royal Purple
STOCK AND POULTRY SPECIFICS

Royal Purple Poultry Specific

will make your hens lay in winter as well as in summer, and yet a 50c package will last 25 hens 75 days or a $1.50 pail or air-tight tin contains four times as much as a 50c package, will last 280 days. It prevents poultry from losing flesh at moulting time, cures and prevents all the ordinary diseases, makes their plumage bright and keeps them in prime condition.

Royal Purple Cough Specific

During the last four years there has been an epidemic cough going through every stable in Canada, which has been a great source of annoyance to horsemen. Our Royal Purple Cough Cure will absolutely cure this cough in 4 days, will break up and cure distemper in 10 days, absolutely guaranteed. 50c per tin, by mail 55c.

Royal Purple Gall Cure

Will cure all sorts of open sores on man or beast. Will absolutely dry up and cure scratches in a very few days. Mr. Sam Owen, Coachman for the Hon. Adam Beck, says: "By following directions I find your Royal Purple Gall Cure will cure scratches and make the scabs peel off perfectly dry in about four or five days." Price 25c, by mail 30c.

Royal Purple Sweat Liniment

Will reduce any lameness in a very short time. Mr. Jno. M. Daly, Coalman in London, says: "We have nine horses, constantly teaming coal, and have all kinds of trouble with them being lame at times. I have used your Sweat Liniment for a year back and have never known it to fail to cure all sorts of sprained tendons, etc." Price 50c 8-ounce bottles, by mail 60c.

Royal Purple Lice Killer

This is entirely different from any lice killer on the market. In order for you to understand the process of manufacture of this lice killer you will have to send for one of our booklets, as we give you a full history of it there. It will entirely exterminate lice on fowls or animals with not more than one or two applications. It smothers them. Price 25c, by mail 30c.

An assorted order amounting to $5.00 we will prepay.

What we wish to impress on your mind is that we manufacture nothing but pure unadulterated goods. Our booklet gives over 400 recommendations for our different lines from people all over Canada. While we give you above the names of a few who have used it, our best recommendation is for you to ask any person who has ever used any line we manufacture.

DECEMBER ACCIDENT RECORD

Great Improvement Shown as Compared with the Previous December

A despatch from Ottawa says: Eighty-two fatal and one hundred and ninety-four non-fatal accidents to workpeople were recorded by the Department of Labor during December. This record shows a slight decrease compared with the preceding month, and is much less than in the same month of last year. In November there were 286 accidents, fatal and non-fatal, to individual workmen, and in December, 1910, there were 351 accidents.

The chief disasters during the month were the suffocating of three miners at Middlesboro', B. C., in the chute of a mine, and an explosion in a powder factory at Departure Bay, Vancouver, B. C., in which three men were killed. There were eleven killed in the railway service, and fourteen in mining. The largest number of non-fatal accidents occurred in the metal trades, in which forty-two were injured. Nine men were killed and thirty-one were injured in the building trades, an unusually high number for the month of December. There were twenty-six non-fatal accidents in the railway service.

53 SAILORS WERE DROWNED

The Steamer Wistow Battered to Pieces on The Scotch Coast

A despatch from Aberdeen, Scotland, says: Fifty-three of the British steamer Wistow Hall were drowned on Thursday morning when the steamer foundered on the Bullers of Buchan, off the coast of Aberdeenshire. Only Capt. Stoddart and three of the crew reached shore. The Wistow Hall had a terrible experience in the gale. Capt. Stoddart, who was resuscitated after a long period of unconsciousness, relates a story of extremely tempestuous weather from the time of leaving the Tyne on Monday. The vessel got into difficulties Wednesday, when two of the crew were mortally injured. The captain himself had his spine hurt and his arm broken, confining him to his cabin. Finally the fires were extinguished and the vessel was at the mercy of the sea. A few minutes before she struck the steward assisted the captain to dress. No sooner had he reached the bridge than the steamer crashed into the rocks. He was washed overboard and remembered nothing until he recovered consciousness in the cottage where he is now lying. After Monday the crew had no food or drink, and all of them huddled in the engine room, not daring to venture to the forecastle to procure supplies. The scene from shore was harrowing. The vessel soon broke up and the crew clung desperately, but every wave claimed its victim. Nothing could be done to help the men, and in a short time all disappeared except the four who were carried by the seas to the shore.

TO THE MAN WITH A LITTLE MONEY

¶ Before the day of Bonds—an undertaking requiring a large mortgage was financed entirely by a Bank, an Insurance Company, or an institution having command of great sums of money. These institutions used the money paid them in deposits, policies, etc., to finance the undertaking.

¶ Nowadays the mortgage is split into small denominations, called Bonds.

¶ This gives the public—you—the opportunity to participate in an investment backed by the greatest possible security and paying excellent interest, often as high as 6%.

GOLD IN TURKEYS' CROPS

How the Minitonas Manitoba, Gold Fields Were Discovered

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Reports from Minitonas, in the Swan River Valley, give details of the new gold strike, which is said to be phenominally rich. Just before Christmas a farmer named Murphy, living some nine miles from Minitonas, sold some turkeys. Several flakes of gold were noticed in their crops, and when the contents were properly examined a number of nuggets ranging in weight up to three ounces were found. No one seemed to know where the turkeys had come from, but Murphy heard of it and staked claims along a ridge of black sand where the turkeys had run during the summer and fall. Other claims have been staked in the vicinity and in all some hundred and twenty locations have been filed. There is too much snow for much prospecting, but a nugget weighing just over an ounce has been found and several smaller ones. When the snow goes there will be an active mining camp, for preliminary prospects show that a rich gold field has been located, with possibilities of finding the mother lode. Geological formations are similar to those of other rich gold mining regions, and two Klondyke miners now at Minitonas predict a wild gold rush in the spring as soon as the value of the deposit becomes known.

HE STUTTERS.

The distinguished English author, Arnold Bennett, who is probably the most charming philosophical writer of the day, has one striking personal peculiarity. This story, told by a New York editor, has to do with this peculiarity:

A critic at the club the other day was listening to an execrable, young novelist. The young man boasted on interminably, but at last

Mr. Arnold Bennett.

I heard the critic get in the words: "Do you know, you remind me of Arnold Bennett?"

"Really?" The novelist blushed and laughed for pleasure. "Really? Come, now, do you really think—"

"Yes; you stutter so," said the critic.

SMALLPOX IN A BAKERY.

Neighborhood Is In a State of Excitement.

A despatch from Montreal, says: A baker, who has been making and distributing bread at Matane, Que., for four days, is discovered to have smallpox, and the neighborhood is in a state of excitement and fear. The matter was reported to the Provincial Board of Health Friday by wire, and a full staff of inspectors, consisting of three doctors, has been rushed to the county to take all [illegible] against the spread of the disease.

SURPRISED DOCTOR

Illustrating the Effect of Food.

The remarkable adaptability of Grape-Nuts food to stomachs so disordered that they will reject everything else, is illustrated by the case of a woman in Racine, Wis.

"Two years ago," she says, "I was attacked by a stomach trouble so serious that for a long time I could not take much of any sort of food. Even the various kinds prescribed by the doctor produced most acute pain.

"We then got some Grape-Nuts food, and you can imagine my surprise and delight when I found that I could eat it with a relish and without the slightest distress.

"When the doctor heard of it he told me to take several small portions each day, because he feared I would grow tired of it as I had of all other food.

"But to his surprise, (and that of everybody else), I did not tire of Grape-Nuts, and became better day by day, till, after some weeks, my stomach entirely recovered and I was able to eat anything my appetite craved.

"My nerves, which had become so weakened that I feared I would become insane, were also restored by the Grape-Nuts food in connection with Postum, which has become our table beverage. I appreciate most gratefully and thankfully the good that your food preparations have done me, and shall be glad to answer any letters inquiring as to my experience." MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

PUBLIC UTILITY BONDS DO NOT OFTEN YIELD AS MUCH AS INDUSTRIALS.

But are Far Less Subject to Fluctuations—How to Get Particulars if Desired—Open Market Adjusts Prices—Readily Convertible—No Great Prospect of Appreciating in Value—Earnings Generally Unaffected by Trade Depressions.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor.")

After the investor has satisfied himself as to the safety of a public utility offering there are several other points to be considered. In passing, however, it might be noted that if the issue is a new one, that is a public offering by some well-known banking house, the particulars required to satisfy such an examination as has been set out in this column recently, if not given in the advertised prospectus, will always be available from the issuing house. Where the issue has been on the market for some years, much of the information must be taken for granted; but if the security is one which sells freely on the exchanges, such as Bell Telephone, Electrical Developments, Halifax Tramways, Montreal Street Railway or Winnipeg Street Railway bonds, the market adjusts the price, as a rule, to meet any weaknesses or alterations in the position of the companies. It might be mentioned in passing that none of the bonds mentioned sell below—in fact they are all quoted above—par.

After safety comes, of course, rate of income. As a rule, the street railway and other public utility bonds sell to yield a somewhat lower return than good industrial bonds. They return, however, more than the average municipal or railway bond—excepting equipment bonds.

The convertibility of a public utility bond varies considerably. In Canada, however, the better class of these, i.e., those based on utilities in large and growing cities, are most popular and, therefore, are readily convertible in the open market or by using them as collateral for a loan with a bank.

They do not, however, possess much prospect of appreciating in value unless they are more speculative than the average investor desires. Of course, any sound 5 per cent. public utility bond sold around par, if very well secured, is likely to advance from two to five points; but unless they are convertible into stock at the option of the holder they do not stand the same chance of appreciating in value that a sound industrial bond often shows.

For the permanent investor stability of market price is a relatively unimportant item. It is, however, always disconcerting to see one's investment selling at a price below that paid for it, and so stability is always a feature to be desired—if it can be got without sacrificing some more important quality. As a rule, public utility bonds are stable for the simple reason that their earnings are stable. Depressions in trade do not cut into their profits as they do into the profits of railways, or often industrials. The narrow market for the public utility securities, as a rule, tends to keep the price steady, too.

To summarize, we have found that the bonds as a class are safe, but they require to be carefully examined individually for several possible weaknesses. Their yield is better than municipals, but less than industrials. They are, generally speaking, readily convertible, except where the issue is relatively small. They have little prospect of more than a modest appreciation in value, and their market price is stable. On the whole, and as a class, they form an excellent medium for permanent investment.

BIG FIRE AT TORONTO.

Quarter of a Million Loss in a Down-Town Blaze.

A despatch from Toronto says: A fire which broke out at 7.45 o'clock on Friday evening in the Allen building, 103-107 Simcoe street, gutted the top two stories which were occupied by the R. D. Fairbairn Co., Limited, as stockrooms. Serious damage by water was done to the lower floors, occupied by the Allen Manufacturing Company, Limited, and the Swiss Laundry. The loss is estimated at $250,000. Three firemen were injured when a high pressure hose broke away from the men who were holding it as the water was being turned on. William H. Hawkes was thrown against the aerial truck and had his back badly bruised. John Roach, who was holding the hose, was hurt about the head. Edward Courtney, who was in charge of a low pressure stream, was struck by a flying nozzle and had his leg broken.

KENORA TOWN HALL BURNED

C. P. R. Fireman Met Death in the Flames.

A despatch from Kenora, Ont., says: Chas. Nelson, a fireman in the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was burned to death on Friday morning in a conflagration which completely destroyed the Loyal Fire Hall. The horses of the fire department, four in number, were burned, and the occupants of the building, all of whom were asleep when the conflagration began, had a narrow escape. Charles Nelson, who was burned to death, was placed under arrest earlier in the evening for threatening to shoot up the town. He was stated to be a Welshman, who had come here from Pennsylvania, and had no friends here.

AN OPEN LETTER

From a Well Known Clergyman Showing How Indigestion Can Be Cured.

Rev. T. A. Drury, Beamsville, Ont., writes as follows—"For eighteen years I have been increasingly impressed with the wonderful effects for good wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For some years I had suffered almost constantly with chronic dyspepsia of the most stubborn type, attended by different other troubles which invariably follow, or accompany it as its results, prominent among which were kindney trouble and piles. Against this complication of disease I waged a vigorous warfare for several months, using many different remedies, none of which gave permanent relief. In my discouragement I was about to discontinue treatment altogether when I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the use of which though under very unfavorable circumstances, soon revived my drooping courage. The medicine struck at the root of my weakness and the different troubles of which dyspepsia was the prime cause released, let go, and disappeared. In one month I increased fifteen pounds in weight, and received a new lease of life. Only six boxes of pills produced this wonderful change in my health, which was miraculously permanent.

Later my sister became so reduced by anaemia (though under the care of our family doctor) that she could scarcely walk. In this dangerous extremity Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were resorted to and in a brief space of time restored her to perfect health.

Being a minister of the gospel many test cases have come under my notice, in all of which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have fully sustained their world-wide reputation. This is why I can conscientiously recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as being superior to anything known to me in the treatment of the many diseases for which they are recommended."

The Best Treatment for Itching Scalps and Falling Hair

To allay itching and irritation of the scalp, prevent dry, thin and falling hair, remove crusts, scales and dandruff, and promote the growth and beauty of the hair, the following special treatment is most effective, agreeable and economical. On retiring, comb the hair out straight all around, then begin at the side and make a parting, gently rubbing Cuticura ointment into the parting with a bit of soft flannel held over the end of the finger. Anoint additional partings about half an inch apart until the whole scalp has been treated, the purpose being to get the Cuticura ointment on the scalp skin rather than on the hair. It is well to place a light covering over the hair to protect the pillow from possible stain. The next morning, shampoo with Cuticura soap and hot water. Shampoos alone may be used as often as agreeable, but once or twice a month is generally sufficient for this special treatment for women's hair. Notwithstanding Cuticura soap and ointment are sold everywhere, those wishing to try this treatment may do so without expense by sending to "Cuticura," Dept. 4M, Boston, U. S. A., for a free sample of Cuticura soap and ointment, with 32-p. book on skin and hair.

A DARING PRINCE.

Arnold White, a prominent Conservative publicist, has gone out of his way to commend the Churchill changes in the British navy, and singles out for special praise the appointment of Prince Louis of Battenburg as Second Lord of the Admiralty. Prince Louis of Battenburg.

with amazing virulence by a section of high society, who contend that his German birth precludes him from carrying on his responsible duties in the British navy satisfactorily. In truth he is more English than the English. The Prince's handling of warships, say the keenest officers in the navy, makes men hold their breath at times—it is so brilliantly daring. He is the idol of the lower deck, and there are those who expect him to work miracles in his way, in course of time, from Second Lord to First Lord of the Admiralty.

WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mothers who have once used Baby's Own Tablets for their little ones always keep them in the house. They realize the value of the Tablets in banishing baby's illness when it comes, or better still, in warding off illness by giving him an occasional dose of the Tablets to keep his stomach and bowels regular. Concerning them Mrs. Isaac McDonald, Nappan Station, writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets and would not now be without them as they are the very best medicine I know of for little ones." The Tablets are sold at 25 cents a box by medicine dealers or by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SHE STRUCK AT ROOT OF TROUBLE

MRS. COMEAU CURED HER KIDNEYS WITH DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

And her Heart Trouble, Backache and other ailments disappeared—Says she owes her good health to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Petit Rocher, Gloucester Co., N. B., Jan. 8 (Special).—When Mrs. Pierre I. Comeau, a well known and highly respected resident of this place cured her kidney disease, her heart trouble and other aches and pains also disappeared. She cured her kidney disease easily and quickly by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My heart troubled me all the time," Mrs. Comeau states; "and I feared for the terrible results that might follow. My limbs would swell, my back ached and I was always tired and nervous.

"Those symptoms led me to believe that kidney disease was the root of all my troubles, so I turned to Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I had finished the first box the swelling was gone, my back was well and my heart no longer troubled me. I am now in the best of health, and I owe it all to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

MANUFACTURED MILK.

At a time when everyone is crying out about the price of milk—an article of food that we cannot do without, whatever the price—it is worthy of note that a substitute was long ago evolved. In Japan cows are not very numerous, but the Japs are found of milk, so some thing had to be done to meet the demand for this important item of sustenance. Consequently, our Japanese brethern put their wits together and produced a substitute that few people would be able to distinguish from the real article. It is manufactured from the sojabean. These are first soaked, then boiled in water. After a time the liquid turns white, when sugar and phosphate of potash are added in proper quantities. The boiling is continued until a substance the thickness of molasses is obtained. In appearance this is very like ordinary condensed milk, but when water has been added to the fluid, it can scarcely be told from cow's milk.

TRIED POISON ON HIMSELF.

A Swiss Professor's Experiment With Nightshade Berries.

Not since the famous "cholera breakfast" many years ago, at which the German professor, Pettenkofer, demonstrated on his own body that certain bacilli supposed to be those of cholera weren't that kind after all, has so much interest been taken in a toxicological experiment as in that made the other day by Dr. Kannegiesser, of the University of Neuchatel.

He set himself the task of testing the process of poisoning by berries of the deadly nightshade, from four to ten of which, according to the age and strength of the subject, are commonly supposed to be a fatal dose. Dr. Kannegiesser had the courage to swallow ten berries.

Seven minutes afterward the chief poisonous element of beliadonna, atropine, began its work. Dizziness, dryness in the throat, and after an hour impairment of sight followed in due course.

The experimenter industriously made notes, but when he felt a leaden sensation creeping over him, and when his limbs refused to move at the bidding of the brain, he thought he had gone far enough and took a powerful emetic. Notwithstanding this the symptoms continued.

The next morning he found himself suffering from temporary loss of memory, hallucinations and painful convulsions in the arms and legs. It was a week before Dr. Kannegiesser's iron constitution overcame the poisonous effects.

His observations are spoken of very highly by the medical profession, but he says that he wouldn't make another experiment of this kind for all the wealth of the Indies.

BEST CURE FOR SKIN SORES IS ZAM-BUK.

An illustration of the way in which Zam-Buk cures even the most serious and chronic cases of ulcers, eruptions and sores is provided by Mr. R. H. Barker, of Glencairn, Ont. He says:

"I would not have believed that any remedy could cure so quickly, and at the same time so effectively, as Zam-Buk cured me.

"My face became covered with a kind of rash, which itched and irritated. This rash then turned to sores, which discharged freely and began to spread. I first tried one thing and then another, but nothing seemed to do me any good, and the eruption got worse and worse, until my face was just covered with running sores.

"Apart from the pain (which was very bad), my face was such a terrible sight that I was not fit to go out. This was my state when some one advised me to try Zam-Buk. I got a supply, and, marvellous as it may sound, within little under a month every sore on my face was healed. I have no objection to your stating my experience for the benefit of other sufferers."

Zam-Buk is purely herbal in composition, and is the ideal balm for babies and young children, for whose tender skin coarse ointments are so dangerous. Zam-Buk is a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse substitutes.

The fellow who patronizes the races doesn't always go broke, but he is apt to come home that way.

HER PRIVATE PLEASURE.

He made his wife keep a cash account. Every week he would go over it, growling and grumbling, like this:

"Look here, Hannah; mustard plasters, a quarter; three teeth extracted, $2.50. There's $2.75 in one week spent for your private pleasure. Do you think I'm made of money?"

Messrs Mitchell and Statton have just completed the work of fishing out the old pump in the Exeter Salt well. The task has been a difficult one and had been abandoned by one set of men. Messrs Mitchell and Statton certainly understand their work and have pulled through many difficult propositions of a similar nature.

The unit of representation in the forthcoming redistribution bill, based on the census of last June, according to the population of Quebec, will be 30,352 On this basis Ontario will be entitled to 81 seats instead of 86, as at present. New Ontario will be entitled to three additional seats, and Toronto will have eight seats in place of five. This will mean the elimination of 11 seats in the rest of Ontario. Nothing can be more certain than that Huron County will have two instead of three seats as at present.

HAVE THE HOUSE VENTILATED.—To go into a warm room for a few minutes probably will do you no harm. To stay there throughout the day may do so little harm that it cannot be noticed. To stay there days in succession will first make you languid, then below physical par and finally sick. The basic trouble is bad ventilation. If some of the energy spent in complaining of flat life were spent in throwing up the windows occasionally everybody would be happier. No amount of air can entirely replace sunshine.

HICKS' FEBRUARY FORECASTS.—The last regular storm period of January extends to the 1st and 2nd of February. On these dates storms will have passed into the eastern section, with cold and clearing weather in eastern parts.— A reactionary storm period is central on the 4th, 5th and 6th. This period is at the centre of the Mars equinoctial, which falls on the 6th. The Moon is on the celestial equator the same day. Low barometer, thunder, wind and rain will visit many sections on and about the 6th, all to be followed by snow, rising barometer and a change to much colder, the cold wave to dominate the weather up to about the 9th and 10th.

Some evil disposed person or persons took it into their heads to break down a lot of picket fencing in front of different properties on Huron Street Sunday night. The act is no gentlemanly one and reflects no credit on those doing it.

A fair number of the men of town attended the Layman's Missionary Movement prayer meeting at the Main Street church on Sunday afternoon, the chair being occupied by Mr. D. McInnis. An hour was spent in prayer for the advance of the cause.

Word has been received here that Mr. Wm Lynes, a former well-known resident of Exeter, is lying dangerously ill at Toronto, with no hope whatever of his recovery. Four specialists were called in consultation last week, but could suggest nothing to relieve his condition.

Mrs James Wanless of Duluth arrived here Friday, having been called home owing to the illness of her mother, Mrs L. Hardy, who is suffering from an attack of pneumonia. Mrs Hardy has also been ill with a severe cold. We are pleased to state, however, that both are improving.

Rev. Dr. Hannon is critically ill at the home of his son-in-law, Rev. F.E. Mallott of St. Marys. Since September he has been confined to this room. The doctors pronounce it a case of malignant liver, and give no hope of recovery. It will be remembered that only a few years ago Dr. Hannon was the pastor of James Street Church, Exeter.

In a letter to the Advocate from Mr. Url Cunningham of Camrose, Alta., he states that after a cold snap the weather there now is just like spring. Mr. Cunningham who is engaged in the real estate and insurance business, was among the successful candidates seeking municipal honors in Camrose at the recent elections and is now a member of the Council Board.

The Canadian Gazette has given notice of the incorporation of the National Tube Company of Guelph, with capital stock of $500,000 and headquarters in Fort William. The incorporators are Frank V. Samwell, Henry Westby, Walter E. Buckingham, Sara McCrea and Margaret Nairn, all of Guelph. A bonus to the extent of $50,000 was recently granted this company by the vote of the people of Fort William. Mr. Samwell is an old Exeter boy, though young in years, and we are pleased to hear of his success.

The Ontario Provincial Legislature will meet on Wednesday, Feb. 7th. It is expected that the session will be several weeks longer than that of last year One of the most important bills to come before the House will be the Workmen's Compensation Act, upon which Sir William Meredith is now gathering data. The bi-lingual school question also will be discussed at length when Dr. Merchant's report is presented. The extensions to the hydro-electric system will receive consideration as well as the immigration and good road schemes, which are being worked out by the Dominion and Provincial governments.

GOOD CONCERT.—The Ladies Aid of Main Street Methodist church gave a first-class concert in the church Friday evening last. The attendance was not as large as expected, nor as large as the affair merited. Miss Newberry, elocutionist of Boston, Mass., was exceptionally good and her numbers repeatedly encored, while the Rannie Ladies Quartette of Zurich sang in a very pleasing manner, and as usual were heartily applauded.

We are in receipt of a copy of the Calgary Herald containing a ten-page supplement boosting the town of Bassano, Alta. Bassano is the home of an old boy of Exeter, Mr Harry Buckingham, and his family, and it seems to be a wide-awake, thriving burg.

Within the next few months $10,000 from the annual Government grant to agricultural will be expended in amounts varying from $100 to $00 to those agricultural societies in Ontario where the fall rains seriously interfered with the gate receipts at their fall fairs.

Each auto license costs $4, so the motor car owners will pay about $50,000 to the province this year for licenses, and about $5,000 to dealers. Chauffers must pay an annual fee of $1 for their license, and there were 2,200 chauffeurs. Last year there were 900 motor cycle licenses issued. The fee for these is $3 each.

See that the boys and girls attend school regularly. A teacher cannot accomplish much with a pupil of the hit-and miss variety and it is often as discouraging to the pupil as to the instructor. Parents can do much to help by speaking encouraging words to the scholar who is often up against real difficulties and although father or mother may not be able to unwind the tangle a word of good cheer will often lend a hand over the hard places.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Percy Westaway, of London who have been missionaries in China for more than four years, have been granted a furlough by the Methodist Missionary Society, and will leave for home at once. It is expected that they will arrive about the middle of February. Under ordinary conditions they would have had a furlough next year, and the board decided that owing to the circumstances it would be better to give them leave now, so that they might return to China when matters adjusted themselves.

ANNUAL MEETING.—The congregation of the Presbyterian Church held their annual meeting on Monday evening, when a goodly number were present. The meeting was opened with devotional exercises by the Pastor, after which Mr. John H. Scott was elected chairman. Satisfactory reports were received from the various organizations of the church. The retiring members of the Board of Management were W. D. Weekes, D. McInnis and J. G. Stanbury. Mr. Stanbury declined re-election, and consequently Mr. W. D. Weekes, Mr. McInnis and Mr. G. Dow were elected. The other members of the Board are Messrs. R. G. Seldon and James Jeckell and the Secretary, Mr. Jos. Senior after seventeen years of service as Secretary-Treasurer resigned he did also Mr. E. J. Christie, who was assistant secretary. Mr. John H. Scott was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr Senior. The auditors elected were Messrs. Weidenhammer and Grieve. The appointment of ushers was left to the Board of Management. Mr. Henry Strang gave a report of the Presbytery mission budget. The financial report showed the total contributions to be $2372.65 and the expenditure $2349.42. At the conclusion of the business the ladies served a luncheon.

Messrs. E. Christie, W. D. Sanders, and Thos. Russell attended the South Huron Agricultural Society at Brucefield on Friday last and were elected directors.

Mr. Jackson Hawkins of Le Mars, Iowa, and his sister, Mrs. Brown of Calgary, Alta., who have been visiting with their mother and sister, Simcoe Street, left Monday morning for Almyra, N. Y., where they will visit their sister Mrs. Jessey, before returning to their respective homes.

Mr. Chas. Sanders of Gilbert Plains, Man., arrived here last week and is visiting with friends in and around Exeter, the guest of his brother Mr. Thos. G. Sanders. It is over 25 years since Mr. Sanders left Stephen, and it is over twenty years since he last visited here, consequently he notices many changes, particularly in the faces. Mr. Sanders farms 480 acres in the west.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hunter returned last week from a three weeks' visit with their daughter, Mrs Divine, in New York City. It was their first visit to the World's second largest city, and needless to say they thoroughly enjoyed their trip. Mr. Hunter is possessed of more than average ability to notice, remember and describe what he has seen, and his talks on the sights of the American Metropolis are very interesting.

Mrs. L. Hardy is recovering nicely from her illness of pneumonia.

A social hop was given in McTaggart's Hall, Exeter north, on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Thos. Prior is still very ill, and the sons have been sent for from the West.

Mr and Mrs. Wm. Davis of Exeter North are confined to the house through illness.

We were shown a handsome illustrated booklet and map of Saskatoon this week by Mr. Wm. Miners. His sons reside in Saskatoon and are doing well in the west.

There are some $5.00 and $10.00 notes of the Bank of London in circulation. As this bank has not been in existence for some years they are worthless.

We are indebted to Mr. Franklin O'Neil of Salt Lake City, Utah, formerly of Biddulph, for a bulky copy of the Salt Lake City Tribune, Daily, containing 76 pages.

A circular to the public school inspectors has been received from the department of education at Toronto, announcing a new schedule of examination fees. Among them is the innovation of a $1 fee for high school entrance, for which there has previously been no charge. The junior matriculation fee has been increased from $5.00 to $8.00 and the partial matriculation $3.00 to $2.00. It is stated that the increase in the fees is for the purpose of preventing candidates unprepared for their examinations trying them for the mere sake of trying.

Word has been received here from Wetaskiwin, Alta. of the death of Mr. Daniel French, a former resident of Exeter, and formerly superintendent of the Huron house of refuge. Mr. French had not been in good health for some years, and went West to visit his son, who is editor and proprietor of the Wetaskiwin Times. His wife survives him, having just come East in December, and is at present visiting her sister, Mrs. Elliott at Clinton. The body is being taken to Oshawa for burial.

Communication

(We wish it distinctly understood that articles under this head are "communicated" and the writer only is responsible for them. A newspaper is open to communications from its readers, but the editor does in no wise "father" these articles.—Editor.)

MR. EDITOR,—

I understand you have been called to account for a letter signed "Observer" which appeared in your former issue, and that some want so far as to stop their paper. Now, it always seems to me somewhat childish to stop our paper because we cannot agree with everything that may be published. The editor is a very useful member of a community, though we may sometimes blame him as severely as we do our pastor. I hope those who may have stopped their paper will after they read this letter find it in their hearts to renew their subscription, and you, Mr. Editor, will no doubt be glad to place their names on the honor roll again.

Next, as to the authorship of that letter I find that some are being wrongfully accused, and in such a case I could not honorably remain quiet. I wish to distinctly state that no one, not even my own family, knew that such a letter was being published, outside of myself and the editor; that no one either in the church or outside of it ever suggested doing such a thing, and that even I had no thought of this before last Monday, a week ago; that I am the author and must bear the responsibility and blame attached to it.

Now, why was such a letter written against a man, who is my pastor, and whom I respect and esteem, and who, if I or any of my family were sick would be the first to enter the door and minister to our spiritual need, who has been the best friend to me and mine since I came to Exeter, who has trusted not only his own life, but the lives of the members of his family in my hand? There is an immediate and a remote cause, as we say in medical phraseology. The first lies in what was said in the sermon a week ago Sunday night, the latter the effects, I might say of this unfortunate strife which has arisen in James Street church

As to the first, it annoyed me that Mr. Hobbs could take what I considered such a hard view of an innocent pastime, especially when he put the rhetorical question, "Could a person be a Christian and attend such a place", or words to that effect. Now, I have always upheld those health giving sports. I have never seen any harm in the skating and carnival, not in tobogganing or snow-shoeing. I have always urged my family to go and take in such amusements, and I suppose I shall, till I see the harm in them, for our girls and women get little enough outdoor exercise. I have never myself been to a carnival, nor to a toboggan slide, and I doubt if Mr Hobbs has. Yet we are on opposite sides of the question.

Then, again, on the question of church union we are lined up in opposition, and in my letter by "Methodism" I meant the Methodist church, and not the principles for which the church stands, for these must stand forever, or else the Bible is false. But the church, if such a union takes place, will lose its identity, I know. Then, in the stateme it "a ..... is to mind your own business" I did not mean that the pastor was not to place the matter before his congregation, because I know that he is ordered by the General Conference to do this, and it is his business, but it was as to the use of undue influence in the matter. A fair statement of the case is required.

Now, as I say, I was annoyed at these things and on Monday they came up again, and on the impulse of the moment, though I had previously sworn that no matter what my feelings were I would keep out of it—without considering what the effects might be or what were my relations to the pastor, I wrote as I did, I read the letter but once after, and passed it into the editor's hands. I retained no copy.

The remote cause is as I said the effects of this unfortunate strife on my own mind. I have not seen eye-to-eye with my pastor in this dispute. I have gone away from church on different occasions feeling anyway but as a Christian should feel. I have since had a talk with Mr. Hobbs and we went into the question quite fully. Mr. Hobbs considers himself quite innocent of any cause of blame, so that the cause must be within myself.

Now as I say it was under these influences and in such a state of mind I penned the letter, and since it has been published I see it was unnecessarily harsh, and should never have been written, and I wish publicly, just as publicly as the statements were made to ask pardon of Mr Hobbs and of any others affected thereby. Whether it will ever be the same between us as it has been, God only knows.

There is one more point I wish to mention, and that is writing in the character of one happening to stay in your town over Sunday. That was done more as an introduction to the subject and not to deceive, and I don't think any were misled by that statement but it had been better to have put my name to the article.

Now, I am making this acknowledgement to Mr. Hobbs unsolicited, and as far as I know he ignorant of the writer's name till he came into my place.

The report has gone around that not half the letter was published. There was only one sentence on the question of sports left out, and one phrase slightly changed.

Now I wish to free all others of any blame or responsibility in the matter whatever.

I have read this letter to Mr. Hobbs before publishing.

A. QUACKENBUSH.

MR. EDITOR,—

I wish to state publicly what I assured the writer of the above in his own home, namely, that I could and did forgive him a thousand times, if necessary, for any sin or trespass which he may have committed against me, and that my relationship to him and his dear family would remain as precious as heretofore.

RICHARD HOBBS

THAT COMMUNICATION

We certainly advised the author of the communication which appeared in the last issue of The Advocate not to have the article published, but on our stating that he would be wholly responsible for it, and on his accepting that responsibility, we published it, at his request. We regret such publications, believing that there is never anything to be gained by such articles, but when a sane and responsible citizen, such as the writer of the article, requests the use of our columns and assumes all responsibility it is up to him—not to us. We are pleased to state that the writer never attempted to evade the responsibility, and he has now made his name known.

Rev. Mr. Hobbs has since stated to us that he did in no way blame The Advocate, and that considering the conditions of publication and the authorship he could not well see how we could refuse publication.

The lesson to be learned in the whole affair is that the editor's pathway is not always strewn with roses, although we do occasionally have a bouquet presented to us. We think this matter will also enlighten people as to the conditions of publishing communicated articles.

The withdrawing of one or two subscriptions on a mistaken idea that an editor does not know his own business or that they are going to stop the whole works, does not effect the policy of those who have been conducting the newspaper for many years. In fact a newspaper is always up against that kind of a thing, but these little unpleasantnesses are scarcely noticed, as such losses are made up almost before they occur.

The New Home of The Canadian Bank of Commerce

The building that has been in the course of erection on Main Street for several months past, as a home for the Canadian Bank of Commerce staff stands to-day as a monument of great credit to the institution erecting it. Some old philosopher has remarked that "he who causes a single blade of grass to grow where none grew before" is a public benefactor; and surely whether it be a man or a company of men, through whose energy and enterprise the town's architecture is graced by a pleasing structure, arising where before existed nothing, or inferior buildings, is deserving the same measure of praise.

To-day the Bank of Commerce stands as one of the strongest of the great banking institutions of Canada and is among the leading banks for the introduction of more modern and business like methods in equipping their branch buildings with modern appliances, so it is eminently fitting that they should lead in the transition from the old type of building and equipment for this class of structure to the new type that must necessarily follow the more general appreciation of the fact that a modern building, modern equipment and well-appointed appartments have a direct and important bearing on business results.

NEW CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE BUILDING IN EXETER

Take a walk up main street and about midway between the old Bank of Commerce stand on the corner of James St. and the corner northward on the east side you notice a neat two story, red brick, reinforced liberally with cut stone. This is the new Bank of Commerce. It is nearly square being 40x39½ feet. It has trim windows, with stone ledges and the entrance has a large vestibule, in which hang two massive oak doors with iron grills all betokening the purpose for which they are intended—strength and durability. At the inner end of the vestibule hang almost equally massive oak swing doors and it is here you pass into the Bank proper. To the left is the Manager's office occupying the space in depth as the vestibule. His office of necessity is cut off from the main part by a partition at the top of which is chip glass panels. Appointments that would do credit to a metropolitan branch give dignity and charm to both offices. The walls are covered with Stucco plaster and burlap. The woodwork and all the furniture is of dark finish oak, thus creating a harmony of coloring that is pleasing to the eye. The floor leading from the entrance and that of the public office is laid in marble, while that to be occupied by the staff is of maple, covered with cork carpet. In the public section is a long settee in keeping with the other furniture for the accommodation of customers who are obliged to stay in waiting.

The building is equipped with two vaults—one located in the cellar for storage of old books and vouchers, while the upper will be used in the general way. These vaults are built of brick and cement and are steel lined throughout.

The upper part of the building contains four well appointed bedrooms, sitting room, bath room and linen closet.

Fireplaces in the Manager's office and upstairs sitting room, built of Roman brick, are outstanding features of both rooms.

There is a basement under the entire building with cement floor. This affords accommodation for coal supply and other necessaries, while in the basement is a well for the supply of water for drinking and other purposes.

The building is also equipped with fire-fighting appliances, which is connected with the town system, as well as being equipped with a large bucket chemical apparatus.

The building throughout is heated by a well arranged system of hot water every quarter of the Bank being made comfortable.

MR. W. H. COLLINS
Manager of the Exeter Branch

The present staff consists of the genial and obliging manager, Mr. W. H. Collins; C. L. Whitby, accountant; J. A. McKerracher, teller; S. E. Fisher, ledger-keeper; E. H. Howey, junior, all of whom justly feel proud of their new quarters.

In conclusion we may add that the entire contract work was under the control of the Dominion Realty Co.

CHURCH UNION

Church Union which is being voted on by the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches in Canada, will shortly be voted on in this district. Pamphlets are being distributed and the ballots will follow shortly. The only question on the Ballot Papers shall be: "Are you in favor of Organic Union between the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational Churches, upon the proposed Basis of Union?" This question must be answered "Yes" or "No". There shall be three Ballot Papers with the above question, prepared for three classes of voters, (a) Members of the Official Board; (b) Members of the Church who are 18 years of age or over; (c) Members of the Church who are under 18 years of age. The pamphlet gives a list of special instructions, a brief history of the union movement, recites the documents agreed upon by the joint committee as regards Doctrine, Polity or Church Government, the Ministry, Administration and law. Under the conditions of the union the pastoral relation shall be without a time limit, but either minister or the governing body of the church may, at end of one year, seek a change of pastoral relation by application to the Settlement Committee. Any charge may extend a call but the right of appointment shall remain with the Settlement Committee. The minister in charge shall be the presiding officer in charge of the governing body of each congregation within his pastoral charge. There are many other points of interest in the Basis of Union Pamphlet. In fact the whole matter is of great interest and should be read by all concerned.

Three deposits of $1,000 each have been made at Osgoode Hall in connection with the three provincial election protests filed last week. The Liberals have attacked North Middlesex and North Essex, the latter being Hon. Dr. Reaume's seat. The Conservatives have one protest against East Middlesex.

WEDDED—A quiet wedding took place at the Thames Road Manse on Jan. 24 of Mr. E. J. Campbell of Exeter, to Miss Cecelia May, daughter of Mr. Thos. White of Exeter. The ceremony was performed at high noon by Rev. C. Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Bradley of Ransomville, N. Y., acting as witnesses. After a sumptuous dinner at the home of the bride's parents they took the evening train for Hamilton and Toronto, the bride wearing a blue traveling suit and hat to match. The Advocate joins the friends in congratulations and best wishes.

S S. & E. L. CONVENTION

The Epworth League and Sunday School Convention of Exeter District was held in Centralia Methodist Church on Thursday last and was well attended. Morning, afternoon and evening sessions were held and various interesting papers and addresses were given and discussed, and musical selections rendered. The morning session was opened by Rev. Hobbs in devotional exercises, and addresses were given by Rev. Kerr and J. M. Southcott. In the afternoon Revs. Vance Snell, and Baird and Mrs. (Rev.) Hicks gave addresses and Miss Iva Essery and Mr. Harold Duplan rendered solos. In the evening music was given by the choir and addresses by Rev. Milson of Stratford and Rev. Baird of London.

THE BLIND SINGER DEAD

Walter H. Allen, a well-known blind musician, died in Toronto Sunday. Several years ago Mr Allen was a familiar figure in and around Exeter, on holidays, particularly, and he was a favorite with all. He had an excellent baritone voice and sang many favorite songs., one of which many will remember, "Pictures from Life's Other Side." In recent years he has resided in Toronto. As to the cause of his blindness many reports have been given but nothing seems to be certain. It is not known where his birthplace was, but while in this vicinity he resided near Dashwood.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER XIII.—(Cont'd)

"With a mock bow of much politeness he took his leave, carrying with him the case of diamonds. I have never seen him since. Last night in the Foreign Office I met Captain Gaultier, who told me of the rencontre on the steamer. I readily forgave him for the mistake he had made with reference to my appearance, but it was too bad that he should imagine I would bolt to Paris with a lady of theatrical appearance in broad daylight."

"Yes," cried Fairholme, "if it had been the night steamer——"

"Bobby!" exclaimed Edith.

"Oh, I meant, of course," stammered Fairholme, "that by night Gaultier might have been more easily mistaken."

"Well, and what happened at the Foreign Office?"

Brett's question recalled the younger people to the gravity of the conclave.

"First of all," said Talbot, "Fairholme drove me straight home, where it was necessary to give some slight preliminary explanation before I made a too sudden appearance, so I remained in the cab outside whilst Fairholme went in and found Edith."

"Ah!" said Brett, still surveying the ceiling; but there was so much meaning in his voice that this time it was the turn of the young couple to blush.

"We did not take long to explain matters," continued Talbot. "I sent off messengers posthaste to the Under-Secretary and others suggesting that if possible we should meet at the Foreign Office. Within an hour my chiefs were good enough to fall in with my views, and therefore I had an opportunity to tell them my story exactly as I have repeated it to you. The result is that I carry with me a letter from the Under-Secretary in which he explains his views. I am already acquainted with his reasons, but I have no doubt that he puts them before you quite clearly.

He handed a letter to Brett. Its contents were laconic, but unmistakable——

"The inquiry in which you are engaged," it read, "must be conducted with the utmost secrecy and discretion. The gravest political importance is attached to its outcome. No trouble or expense should be allowed to interfere with the restoration of the diamonds to their rightful owner. The British Government will regard this as a most valuable service to the State, and Mr. Talbot is commissioned to place at your disposal the full resources of the Foreign Office. You will also find that his Majesty's Ministers throughout Europe have been advised to give you every assistance, whilst there is little reason to doubt that the various European Governments will be ready to offer you all possible support. The first consideration is the restoration of the gems instact to the Sultan; the second, absolute secrecy as to the whole of the circumstances."

"Whew!" whistled Brett. "Read between the lines, this communication shows the serious nature of our quest. If those diamonds are not recovered, a revolution in Turkey is the almost certain outcome, and Heaven alone knows what that means to the European Powers most concerned."

"If you succeed," said Sir Hubert Fitzjames, "the Government will make you a baronet."

"If you succeed," growled Talbot, "I will get even with that Frenchman."

"And when you succeed," said Fairholme, in a matter-of-fact tone that indicated the wild improbability of any other outcome, "Edith and I will get married!"

CHAPTER XIV.

Brett now deemed it advisable to take the commissary of police fully into his confidence. The official promptly suggested that every personage in Paris connected even remotely with the mystery—Gros Jean, the Turks, the waiter at the Cafe Noir, and even the little thief "Le Ver"—should be arrested and subjected to a proces verbal.

But Brett would not hear of this proceeding.

He quite firmly reminded the commissary that the wishes of the British Government must be respected in this matter, and the proposed wholesale arrests of persons, some of whom were in no way cogisant of the crime, would assuredly lead to publicity and the appearance of sensational statements in the Press.

"But, monsieur," cried the Frenchman, "something must be done. Even you, I presume, intend to lay hands on the principal men. While they are wandering about the country each hour makes it easier for them to secrete the diamonds so effectually that no matter what may be the result the Sultan will never recover his property."

"Calm yourself, I beg," said the barrister, with difficulty compelling himself to reason with this excitable policeman. "You speak as though we had in our hands every jot of evidence to secure the conviction of Dubois and his associates before a judge."

"But is it not so?" screamed the other.

"No; it is very far from being so."

"Then what are we to do?" said the commissary, piteously throwing out his hands and shrugging his shoulders with the eloquent French gesture that betokens utter bewilderment.

"Difficulty though it may be, we must first accomplish the main part of our work. In other words, we must secure the diamonds before we collar the murderers."

The Frenchman was silent for a moment. At last he said submissively—"In what way can I help?"

"By procuring for me from the chief of your department an authorization to call in the aid of the police when and where I may desire their assistance."

"But what of the house of the Rue Bonbonnerie?"

"You anticipated my next request. Whilst you are looking to that letter you must place at my disposal two of your most trusty agents. In their company Lord Fairholme and I purpose visiting the house to-night."

They were conversing in the commissary's office at a late hour after Brett had quitted his friend in the Grand Hotel.

Within a few minutes the two Englishmen and their French companions were standing outside No. 41, Rue Bonbonnerie, and they found that Monsieur de Lisle kept a small shop, whose only significant feature was a placard announcing that letters might be addressed there.

"Oh," said Brett, when he noticed this legend, "this is simple. We need not waste much time here."

The four men walked inside, crowding the narrow space before a diminutive counter. The proprietor was supping in style, as they could perceive through the glass top of the door which communicated with the sitting-room at the back. His feast consisted of a tankard of thin wine, half a loaf of black bread, and two herrings.

The man was surprised by the sudden incursion of customers. He came out looking puzzled and alarmed.

"Have you any letters here for Monsieur Jean Beaujolais?" said Brett.

"No, monsieur."

"Have you received any letters for a person of that name?"

"No, monsieur."

"I suppose you never heard the name of Jean Beaujolais before in your life?"

"I think not, monsieur."

"Then," exclaimed Brett, turning quietly away, "I fear you must be arrested. These two gentlemen"—and he nodded towards the detectives—"will take you to the Prefecture, where perhaps your memory may improve."

The man blanched visibly. His teeth chattered, and his hands shook as if with ague, whilst he nervously arranged some small objects on the counter.

"I cry your pardon, monsieur," he stammered, "but you will understand that I receive letters at my shop for a small fee, and I cannot remember the names of all my customers. I will search with pleasure among those now in my possession to see if there are any for Mr. Beaujolais."

"You are simply incriminating yourself," said Brett sternly. "If your excuse were a genuine one you would first have looked among your letters before answering so glibly that the name of Beaujolais was unfamiliar."

"I beg of you to listen," cried the dismayed shopkeeper. "I had no idea you were from the Prefecture, otherwise I would have answered you in the first instance. There have been letters here for Monsieur Beaujolais. They came from London. He called for them three or four times. The last letter arrived yesterday morning. It is here now. I have not seen Monsieur Beaujolais since the previous evening."

He took from a drawer a packet of letters tied together with string, and the handwriting betrayed the contents of most of them.

One of he detectives did not trust to Monsieur de Lisle's examination. He seized the bundle and went through its contents carefully, but this time Monsieur de Lisle was speaking the truth.

There was only one letter addressed to Beaujolais, and it bore a foreign postmark. Brett tore it open. It contained a single sheet of notepaper, without a date or address, or any words save these scrawled across the centre—"Tout va bein."

He placed the document and its envelope in his pocket-book, and then fixed his keen glance on the shopkeeper's pallid face.

"What sort of a person is Monsieur Beaujolais? Was he a Frenchman, about my height, elegant in appearance, well built, with long thin hands and straight tapering fingers, with very fair skin and high color, dark hair and large eyes set deeply beneath well-marked eyebrows?"

"That is he to the life," cried the shopkeeper. "Monsieur must know him well. I recall him now exactly, but I could not for a hundred francs have described him so accurately."

"How long have you known him?" broke in Brett.

"Let me think," mused the man, who had now somewhat recovered from his alarm. "He came here one day last week—I think it was Thursday because that day my daughter Marie—no matter what Marie did, I remember the date quite well now. He came in and asked if I did not receive letters for a fee. I said 'Yes,' and told him that I charged ten centimes per letter. He gave me his name. He always handed me half a franc and would never take any change."

"Was he alone?"

"Invariably, monsieur."

"Thank you. You will not be arrested to-night. I think you have told the truth."

The shopkeeper's protestations that he had given every assistance in his power followed them into the street.

Brett dismissed the two detectives and returned to the hotel, where he and Fairholme found Edith and her brother sitting up for them. When Talbot heard the contents of the letter he remarked: "I suppose that 'All goes well' means that I am still a prisoner?"

"Undoubtedly," said the barrister. "The letter was posted in the Haymarket. It came from your French host. I wonder what he will write now? By the way, where is he? Did you lose sight of the couple after your escape?"

"I did," laughed Talbot. "But Inspector Winter did not. By some mysterious means he learnt all about Fairholme's action in smashing the door. Whilst I was at the Foreign Office that night he arrested the man and the woman."

"Winter is a perfect terror," said Brett. "He dreams of handcuffs and penal servitude. I hope this couple will not be brought to trial or at any rate that your name will not be mixed up in it."

"Oh, no. As soon as I heard the Under-Secretary's wishes, I promptly communicated with Scotland Yard. The Frenchman and his wife will be remanded on a mysterious charge of abetting a felony and held in durance vile until their testimony is wanted, should we ever capture Dubois."

At Brett's request detectives were hunting through Paris all that night and the next day for a sign of Hussein-ul-Mulk and his Turkish friends. But these gentlemen had vanished as completely as if the earth had swallowed them up.

It was not until Brett and his four companions quitted the train at Marseilles late at night and the barrister received a telegram from the commissary announcing that the search made by the police had yielded no results, that he suddenly recalled the existence of a doorless and windowless room in the Cafe Noir.

Curiously enough he had omitted to make any mention of this strange apartment in his recital to the official. He would not trust to the discretion of the Telegraph Department, so on reaching the Hotel du Louvre et de la Paix he succeeded, after some difficulty, in ringing up the commissary on the long-distance telephone.

Manures, fertilizers and crop rotations will not compensate for a lack of underdrainage of the soil; in fact, they only add to the real expense of growing crops without recompense.

Good farmers use fertilizers for the permanent improvement of their soils. Poor farmers use them to get a little more to sell from their impoverished soils.

Bishop Burgess of Long Island, apropos of his crusade against Sunday flying, said at a luncheon in Garden City:

"I am against the formation of bad habits, whether they be habits of laziness, of selfishness, or of Sunday flying. 'Be sure,' we are told Bishop Burgess.

—'be sure your sin will find you out.' That is true, but it is also true that, when your sin pays you a second, third, and fourth call, it generally finds you in."

THE SECOND MARRIAGE.

Little Plea For the Much Maligned Stepmother.

At the outset it would seem that a second marriage must be easier to succeed in than a first. Nothing of the sort. Indeed, matters tend in a contrary direction. The novelty which characterises and pardons faults in early wedded days is missing at the second marriage.

A great deal of stuff—sense and nonsense—is talked about this matter. In reality, it is out of the question to generalise upon it. Everything depends upon individual circumstances. Some second marriages are wise, others are not. There is no broad reasons against such unions, and often there is much to commend them. This latter fact is abundantly proved by the immense number of lightly successful second marriages which exist.

But it is equally true that many second marriages are not successful. Some are marked to fail from the very beginning. F r example. take the case of a man who re-marries and yet wants to keep the memory of his first wife perennially green.

There are many men who object to their second wife exercising her individuality in their home. The place is probably dominated by the memory, the influence, the tastes of his first wife. Is it fair to expect the second wife to have all things unchanged—to live in a place which in every direction breathes the memory of her predecessor? No. A second marriage must mean a fresh start.

But the general cause for a second marriage failing is when it creates a stepmother. It is a most lamentable thing that there are so many people in the world who glory in making a terrible bugbear of a stepmother. They commence the onslaught. The future stepmother is condemned wholesale to the children. Servants, neighbors, friends. relatives—all join in trying to poison the minds of the boys and girls against their father's second wife. Small enough wonder if under such pressure the children get perverted ideas. When the stepmother comes they look upon her with suspicion as being their natural enemy.

It is enough to harden the heart of the kindest and best-intentioned stepmother when she has all her advances repulsed—when her husband's children treat her with distrust and dislike. It is only natural, too, that where such is the state of affairs a strained feeling results all round. The marriage cannot be happy one.

Of course, things ought to be different. It is obviously unjust for people to prejudice children against their stepmother, just because in fairy-tales stepmothers are sometimes cruel. The cases in real life where stepmothers resemble the storybook ogres taken by silly people as a model, are few and very far between. The majority of stepmothers are ready and eager to help and love their husband's children, if they are allowed to. And when the children are allowed to meet their stepmother with an unbiassed mind, they will usually learn to respect and like or love her.

The lot of a stepmother is no enviable one, and only a brave woman will undertake it. Then surely people should help rather than hinder. Second marriages can be very happy ones, and very helpful also. When they do not succeed. failure is due frequently to the mischief-making and interference of people who, in reality, are not at all concerned.

AN UNDESCRIBED DISEASE OF BLACKBERRY.

(By Dr. J. B. Dandeno, Bowmanville.)

By Blackberry is here meant what some people call thimbleberry, and what others call the long blackberry. The disease appeared here and there in this locality in 1911, in June and July. It affected the canes only, and seemed most destructive where the plants were crowded or otherwise shaded.

Description—The surface of the canes became first brownish, then darker brown, and later whitish with minute black points scattered here and there in the surface. While the fungus was working on on the cane, the leaves stopped growing and turned lighter green, and later yellowish. The fruit development was also arrested and the general condition easily apparent to even a casual observer.

The Fungus—The minute black dots proved to be perithecia of a fungus belonging to one of the subdivisions of the ascomycetes. These perithecia are open and contain many asci and each ascus contains eight spores. The wall of the ascus is very hyaline and can not be seen readily except with careful staining. The asci are shaped much like those of Plowrightia morbosa, and the asco-spores are two-celled. The paraphyses are also very hyaline, about the same length as the asci and one-fourth the width.

Remedy—All the diseased plants should be cut out and burned as soon as the disease is manifest. From my observations the disease will not likely be very destructive unless the plants are crowded.

COMMERCIAL FERTILIZERS.

The use of commercial fertilizers has been one of the most baffling questions with which the farmer has had to deal. If the application of commercial fertilizers to the land had generally resulted in success, there need be very little said, because they have been in somewhat general use for a quarter of a century or more. It is easy to find farmers who are not loud in their praises of such fertilizers, and the reason probably is that they have not always been a success. Millions of dollars are spent annually in the United States, and hundreds of thousands in Canada for commercial fertilizers, and it is safe to say that at least half of this large amount is wasted, not because the fertilizers have, or have not, certain elements in their composition, but because they are not always suitable to the land to which they have been applied.

There is generally an erroneous notion regarding infertile soil, exhausted soil, or over-cropped soil. The prevailing idea is that such soil in infertile because it lacks plant food, (I have never yet met a man who could give a fair definition of "plant food") whatever that is. This is in nearly all cases entirely wrong. Soil is infertile because of something it has, rather than because of something it lacks. Plant excretions are the chief cause of infertility, and it is in the decomposition of such material that the application of fertilizers of any kind proves of value. Commercial fertilizers may remedy such conditions but, in the majority of cases, they do not, hence a loss and waste of time.

To apply a commercial fertilizer with some prospect of success at least three things are necessary, (1) a knowledge of the effect of the previous crop on the soil, (2) a knowledge of the crop now to be grown and its relation to the excreta of the previous crop, (3) a knowledge of the biology of the soil.

Up to the present time these things are only very vaguely known, consequently the use of commercial fertilizers is more or less like the use of patent medicine. The defect is only occasionally remedied.

Moreover, many of the commercial fertilizers, in the process of manufacture, have been heated to a temperature so high as to be destructive of all bacterial life. Such are of very doubtful value. In the sale of, and in the inspection of, commercial fertilizers, the chemical composition is usually given, i.e., so much phosphoric acid, so much potash and so much nitrogen, as if the value depended upon these things. The value depends chiefly upon whether the original bacterial life has been preserved, and whether the constituents of the fertilizer are favorable to the development of nitrifying bacteria of the soil, and to those organisms which prey upon plant excretions.

Certain fertilizers are adapted to certain crops, and to certain soils, and the only way to find out which is to try them by using them on part of the field so as to compare.

Another common error in this connection that organic matter is taken in by the plant roots. As a matter of fact roots absorb inorganic matter and water, but no organic matter excepting possibly in the rarest cases, or under the most peculiar circumstances. There is no question as to the benefit to be derived from barnyard manure, and this is not because it contains "plant food" (for you could carry in your vest pocket all the "plant food" that a load of barnyard manure contains) but because it always supplies abundant favorable bacteria, and abundant nutritive material for them. It has also a neutralizing effect on all plant excreta, and it produces in the soil a good phpsical condition relative to the water supply.

No mistake is made in applying barnyard manure or other excreta, but in bringing and using commercial fertilizers, "patent medicine chances" are taken. Following this will appear an article on fertilizing the apple orchard.—Bowmanville Statesman.

Royal Bank of Canada Had Record Year

Net Profits amounted to 18.58% on Stock, while Liquid Assets now stand at 48½% of Total Liabilities to the Public.

Once more The Royal Bank of Canada is able to report in its Forty-second Annual Statement all previous records broken.

Deposits increased over $16,000,000, which brings the total up to $88,294,000. Liquid assets amount to $47,738,000, being 49½ per cent of the total liabilities to the public. Actual cash on hand, balances on deposit with other banks, and call loans in New York and London, England, exceed 22 per cent. of the total liabilities to the public. Total assets increased during the year from $92,510,000 to $110,528,000. Net profits amounted to $1,152,249, showing an increase of $200,913 over the previous year—equal to 18.58 per cent. on the capital stock of $6,200,000. Commercial loans amount to $59,646,000, being 67.55 per cent. of the deposits.

As will be seen from these comparisons, the Bank has experienced a wonderfully prosperous year.

KING AND QUEEN WELCOMED

Malta Was En Fete to Greet Their Majesties on Arrival

A despatch from Malta says: King George and Queen Mary landed here on Wednesday, and were given an enthusiastic welcome. The picturesque harbor of La Valletta, formerly held by the Knights of St. John as the most easterly bulwark of Christendom in the Mediterranean, was gaily decorated, and the British fleet thundered a Royal salute. The King and Queen were received in state by General Sir Ian S. Hamilton, commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean department; Chief Justice Sir J. Carbone, members of the Legislative Council, and a crowd of nobles. A drive through troop-lined streets to Government House was followed by a reception, at which most of the Maltese officials and noblemen were presented to the King and Queen. Although many of the Maltese are closely related to the Italians, they hate their neighbors, and much prefer self-government under British rule. Therefore, the reception accorded their Majesties was one of the most enthusiastic they have received since they left England. Beside the British Mediterranean fleet, which was present in virtually full strength, a squadron of French warships, under the command of Admiral Boue de Lapeyrere, joined in the greeting, thus marking the existing friendship between Great Britain and France. The City of Valetta is thronged with British and French visitors, who have come especially to participate in the festivities.

AEROPLANE SAVES ITALIANS.

Determined Attack by Turks—Heavy Italian Losses.

A despatch from Gabes, Tunis, says: Details of the engagement between the Turks and Arabs and an Italian column near Ghirgarish, a small oasis about ten miles along the coast from Tripoli, on January 19, have reached here, and show that at the time of the fighting the Italian destroyers had temporarily withdrawn. Boats laden with contraband approached the shore and opened a heavy fire on the Italian forces. At the same time 1,000 Turkish regulars at Ainzara prepared to attack the Italians from the rear. The Italians would inevitably have been annihilated if by chance an aeroplane, coming out to try its motor, had not been seen by the Turks, who became so alarmed that they were unable to carry out the turning movement. They kept up their firing, however, until nightfall. The Italians lost fifty killed and thirty wounded.

DARING BANK ROBBERY.

Branch of Royal Bank of Vancouver is Held Up.

A despatch from Vancouver says: The Royal Bank of Canada branch, at the corner of Main street and Seventeenth avenue, was literally cleaned out of all its cash by two robbers at 11 o'clock on Friday morning, and Ledger-keeper Harrison was knocked unconscious for resisting the hold-up. The amount of loot secured by the robbers is unknown, because A. A. Steeces, Manager of the branch, refuses to make a statement. It is, however, estimated that between $1,000 and $5,000 was taken. Instead of going out the way they entered, the two men unlocked the back door and made their exit that way. Excellent descriptions of the robbers, one of whom was tall and the other short, were obtained.

STRANGE PROVISION IN WILL

Income to Stand for One Hundred Years.

A despatch from Halifax, N.S., says: Jas. Cosman, a merchant of Meteghan River, Digby, N.S., died some time ago and left an estate of about $500,000. After certain comparatively small legacies were paid the will provided that the capital should be invested and the income allowed to accumulate for 100 years. At the end of that time the accumulated funds, principal and interest, are to be divided, one-half going to charities in Ireland and the other half to build a hospital in every county in Nova Scotia. The will provided that the Archbishop of Halifax should appoint three trustees of the estate. His Grace has named Mayor J. A. Chisholm, of Halifax, Judge Wallace and T. W. Murphy. Cosman was a widower and had no children.

ALBERTA'S FINANCES.

Premier Sifton Announces a Surplus—Telephones Paying.

A despatch from Edmonton says: Premier Sifton delivered his Budget speech in the House on Thursday afternoon. He quoted figures to show that the present assets of the Province, exclusive of the telephone system, in public buildings, etc., were $7,733,579, and the liabilities in treasury bond issued $7,293,333, leaving a surplus to the credit of the Province of $440,246. He congratulated the Province on the success of the Government administration of the telephone system. Every year since the Government took control, after paying the cost of maintenance, operation, etc., there has been a surplus. The Premier announced that it had been decided to increase the sessional indemnity of members from $1,000 to $1,500, and provision was also made for a salary of $1,500 extra for the leader of the Opposition.

FORESTRY ASSOCIATION.

Annual Convention Will be Held at Ottawa Feb. 7th and 8th.

The thirteenth Annual Meeting and Convention of the Canadian Forestry Association, under the patronage of H.R.H. the Governor-General, for the reading and discussion of papers, the reception of reports, election of officers, and other business, will be held in the Railway Committee Room, Parliament Buildings, Ottawa, on Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 7th and 8th, 1912, and to it all friends of forest conservation are invited. The aim is to make this the most practical convention yet held, and to this end the gentlemen who will read papers and make addresses will direct their attention to subjects now pressing for immediate solution in Canada.

DEBT OF NEW YORK CITY.

Exceeds Public Debt of the United States by $20,000,000.

A despatch from New York says: According to official figures submitted on Wednesday to Mayor Gaynor by the Finance Department, New York City's total debt at the beginning of 1912 was $1,037,811,718, or approximately $20,000,000 more than the public debt of the United States. During 1911 the funded debt increased $71,432,485 of which $44,200,000 represents bond issues for rapid transit work and the new water supply system.

Samuel Alex was fined a thousand dollars at Sault Ste. Marie for five violations of the liquor law. He is alleged to have sold a patent medicine for whiskey.

QUEBEC HAS GOOD SURPLUS

Budget Speech of Hon. Mr. Mackenzie Shows Encouraging Features

A despatch from Quebec says: At Thursday afternoon's session of the House, Hon. Mr. Mackenzie, Provincial Treasurer, delivered his annual Budget speech, which proved an interesting review of the financial state of the Province for the past year, with encouraging estimates for the coming twelve months. The ordinary receipts amounted to $7,032,744, and the ordinary expenditures to $6,126,834, making a surplus of $905,910. But as there had been an additional extraordinary expenditure of $298,065 the actual surplus was announced as being $607,845.

The Provincial Treasurer emphasized the increasing prosperity of Quebec, by which the Government was able to announce a surplus of $600,000, with provision for increased amounts for the cause of education, for the construction of iron bridges, for the abolition of toll gates, and for the large loan for the improvements of roads, which are to be built with the co-operation of the municipalities of the Province. For the past year it was shown that both the receipts and the expenditures had exceeded the estimates, the former by $1,123,210, and the latter, ordinary and extraordinary, by $716,909.

Coming to the estimates for the year 1912-13, the hon. Minister estimated that the ordinary revenue would reach $7,133,221, and he also estimated the ordinary and extraordinary expenditures at $6,755,820.

AN ALTERNATIVE HUDSON BAY ROUTE

AN ALTERNATIVE HUDSON BAY ROUTE

Hon Mr. Cochrane has announced that if the Hudson Straits prove impracticable as a grain route from Western Canada, owing to ice, that the grain may be carried from the terminal of the Hudson Bay Railway, across James Bay to the Mattawa River, and thence to the National Transcontinental Railway, probably by a spur line. This would save 600 miles of railway haul. The map shows the proposed route and its alternative.

STORY OF HEROISM.

Former Guelph Man Saved Several Lives, but Died Himself.

A despatch from Guelph says: Word has been received here that by fighting a pack of timber wolves single-handed all night long Harry E. Fennell, lately of Denver, Colo., but up to six years ago residing in Guelph, saved the lives of seven girls and the other men who were in a party and died as the result of the exposure he was forced to endure. Fennell's desperate fight with the wolves took place near Hudson Bay. He and a chum were trapping up near Hudson Bay and went to a party or dance that some half-breeds were giving. They were the only people near, and on the way home were given a ride with another man and some girls in a bobsleigh. It was late at night and they were chased by wolves. Mr. Fennell got out and got up a tree and told the others to run the horses to their cabin and he would fight the wolves. The others wanted to stay, but he begged them to go on and not take any chances with the girls. They then went home, but could hear shots all night. Fennell killed nine wolves. The men went back at daylight and there was only three wolves left. Fennel was so cold he could hardly walk, and died before they could get help, the nearest doctor being sixty miles away.

MAD RUSH FOR GOLD.

Minitonas, Manitoba, is Now Overrun by Prospectors.

A despatch from Minitonas, Manitoba, says: One hundred more gold prospectors arrived on Thursday night from scattered points in the United States and Canada. Not much prospecting is doing, only a wild desire to stake regardless of location. The private car of Mr. R. J. Mackenzie, of the Canadian Northern, is here, with his mining expert from California and several others. They left at daybreak for the scene of action with the necessary equipment. Several are looking for residential and business sites, and the stampede is on in earnest, with all public buildings full of men, lying all night on floors like sardines. Excitement and crowds are increasing every hour.

TO DISENDOW CHURCH.

Home Secretary Will Introduce Bill at Coming Session.

A despatch from London says:—Addressing an enthusiastic meeting at Queen's Hall on Thursday night, Reginald McKenna, the Home Secretary, said that early in the coming session of Parliament he would introduce a bill for the disestablishment and disendowment of the Church in Wales. All the resources of the Government, he added, would be used to carry the measure into a law.

THE YEAR'S LABOR DISPUTES

Department Returns Showing Loss of Time and Settlement Reached

A despatch from Ottawa says: Statistics issued by the Labor Department show that approximately 2,013,740 working days were lost by employees in Canada through trade disputes during the past year, as compared with the loss of approximately 718,745 days in 1910. There were approximately 28,218 employees involved, directly and indirectly, in trade disputes last year, compared with 19,594 during the preceding twelve months. The increase in the figures for last year was due largely to the coal miners' strike in Alberta and British Columbia, involving 7,000 men for nearly eight months. The only other large strikes were the coal miners' strike at Springhill, N. S., which was settled on May 22, and the strike of the building trades in Vancouver during June and July.

Of the ninety-eight strikes throughout the Dominion, which occurred last year, forty-two took place in the Province of Ontario and nineteen in the Province of Quebec. Demands for higher wages caused strikes in forty-two cases, while the question of wages in regard to threatened reductions, etc., also entered into twenty-one other disputes.

The employers won in thirty-three of the strikes, and employees in twenty-three, while in nineteen cases a compromise was reached. In the other cases the settlement was indefinite or not reported. During the past ten years, out of a total of 1,079 trade disputes in Canada, the employers won 393 cases and the employees 380. In 244 cases the strike was settled by a compromise.

Toronto, Jan. 30.—The trade is still good for choice steers, and several loads brought as high as $7 and $7.25. Cows and bulls ranged from $2.50 to $5. Canners were bought at around $1.50. Sheep were steady, but trade was dull. Lambs were also easier at $6 to $6.75. Hogs and calves were unchanged. There was a fairly active demand for good milk cows, but common ones were not wanted. Milkers are now selling from $50 to $90.

DIED FROM RABIES.

Valuable Ponies Bitten by a Mad Dog.

A despatch from Hempstead, N. Y., says: Champion, the third of the string of imported polo ponies of John S. Phipps, of the Meadowbrook Polo Club, was destroyed on Wednesday because of an attack of rabies. The pony was valued at $4,000, and was imported from England for the polo match between teams of the United States and England last summer. Two weeks ago rabies developed in the Phipps polo stables after a cur dog had bit Gay Boy, a $4,000 pony, and also a $5,000 brood mare. Both these animals died within a few days.

THE SOCIALISTS ARE STRONG

Capture One of the "Kaiser Seats" at Close of the German Elections

A despatch from Berlin says: Thursday's second ballots brought the Socialist strength in the new Reichstag to well over one hundred. The Socialist, Dr. Liebknecht, captured the coveted "Kaiser division" of Potsdam, where the principal residences of the Emperor, the Crown Prince, and other members of the Imperial family are situated. The new member for Potsdam, where all the crack regiments of the army are garrisoned, only recently finished serving an eighteen-months' sentence in a fortress for anti-militarist propaganda. Dr. Liebknecht, who defeated the Conservative Burgomaster of Potsdam, is a brilliant barrister, and son of one of the founders of the Socialist party. He is also a member of the Prussian Diet. This is the first time in the history of the Empire that one of the "Kaiser seats" has fallen into the hands of a Socialist, and the joy of the crowd gathered in front of the office of The Vorwaerts, the Socialist paper, knew no bounds when the result was announced on Thursday night.

Our boys went to Exeter last Thursday night and played a game of hockey with the Exeterites. They suffered defeat by a score of 5—4. They are busy practicing and promise the boys of the neighboring town an interesting game when they come back here.

Pretty Wedding.—An interesting event took place on Wednesday afternoon of last week at the home of Deputy-Reeve Yearley and Mrs. Yearley, the occasion being the marriage of their daughter, Miss Jennie, to Mr. Geo. W. Lawson of Artland, Sask. Rev. R. Hicks performed the ceremony in the presence of about eighty invited guests. During the playing of the wedding march by Miss M. Parsons the bride entered the room and was given away by her father. She was handsomely gowned in cream chiffon tafeta, trimmed with lace and pearl and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Miss Annie, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and she was prettily gowned in a white embroidered dress and carried pink carnations. The groomsman was Mr. Albert Keyes. After the ceremony the guests led by the bride and groom sat down to a dainty wedding supper. Many handsome and costly presents were received, by the bride, among them being a beautiful furlined coat, the gift of the groom. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold filled locket and chain, and to the groomsman a pearl stick pin. The bride's travelling suit was of navy blue ladies cloth, trimmed with satin and overlace. After a few weeks' visit with friends in this vicinity the happy couple will leave for their home in Artland, Sask., where Mr. Lawson teaches school Mr and Mrs. Lawson are both well-known and popular here, and the Advocate unites with the host of friends in wishing them all good things.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fahner, and Mrs. Rogers, who have been visiting here returned to their homes in Michigan Wednesday.—Mr. Albert Fahner is recovering from his recent attack of Lagrippe.

Mr. Ezra Brenner and Mr. Wm. Oliver of Grand Bend were in town Monday.

Mr. John Deichert of Zurich was a visitor in town Friday.

Miss Bertha Becker arrived home last week after a few months stay in Detroit.

Mr. Homer Steer who has been teller in the Molsons Bank here has been transferred to Lambton Mills, where he will be cashier in that Branch.

A very pleasant surprise party was held at the home of Mr. H. L. Kraft Monday evening, the occasion was given in honor of his 50th birthday, and was presented with a handsome Arm chair, the evening was spent by various games and amusements.

Mr. Henry Newschwanger received word Tuesday of the death of his sister in-law Mrs. John Newschwanger of Zurich whose death occurred Monday evening.

Mr Jas. Wamboldt spent Monday and Tuesday in London.

Mrs. Henry Colfast is on the sick list We wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. Arthur Weber wears a broad smile these days his wife having presented him with a bouncing baby boy.

Miss Laura Sims of Crediton East is at present visiting friends in this place.

Rev. J. H. Grenzebach this week commenced a campaign of revival meetings in the Evangelical church.

Mr. Marcus Wild has sold his farm on the 13th con. Stephen to Christian Dietrich.

Mr. Ed. Vincent is home from the west where he has been for some time. He intends returning in the spring and taking several teams of horses with him.

The vote taken on the 13th had only two votes against the hydro-electric. We can see no human reason why anyone should be opposed to what was implied in that vote, but we suppose there was never anything proposed but what some one could be found who is narrow minded enough to be an opposition. We trust that the day is not far distant when they will realize how far astray they were in their judgment.

ANCIENT ARITHMETIC.

Problems Schoolboys Had to Solve Thirty-six Centuries Ago.

There is a ray of vindictive comfort for the modern schoolboy in the fact that for over 3,000 years his schoolboy progenitors have been worried by just such problems in arithmetic as annoy him most.

Among the archaeological discoveries made in Egypt is a papyrus roll, in excellent condition, daring from about 1700 B. C. This roll, which had a long heading beginning, "Directions how to attain the knowledge of all dark things," proves beyond doubt that the Egyptians of that time had a thorough knowledge of the elements of arithmetic.

Numerous examples show that their principal operations with units and fractions were made by means of addition and multiplication. Subtraction and division were not known in their present form, but correct results were obtained nevertheless.

Equations are also found in the papyrus. Here is one that brings the Egyptian schoolboy home to us:

Ten measures of barley are to be divided among ten persons in such manner that each subsequent person shall receive one-eighth less than the one before him.

Another example given is: There are seven men; each one has seven cats; each cat has eaten seven mice; each mouse has eaten seven grains of barley; each grain of barley would have yielded seven measures of barley. How much barley has been lost?

The papyrus also contains the calculation of the area of a circle, attempts to square the circle and finally calculations of the cubic measurements of pyramids.—New York Tribune.

WINCHELSEA

FLETCHER—SMITH—Another of those interesting events which always cause a flutter of excitement in a community took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith on Wednesday afternoon last, when their daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth, was united in marriage to Mr. Albert G. Fletcher. The ceremony which was performed by the Rev. Mr. Steadman was solemnized under an arch of evergreens in the presence of over a hundred guests. The groom was supported by Mr. Clarence Fletcher, Cousin of the groom while the bride was assisted by Miss Priscilla Penwarden, cousin of the bride. The bride entered the parlor on her fathers arm and looked charming, dressed in ivory duchess satin draped with nuinon trimmed with crystal fringe and crystal bandings and wearing the usual bridal veil embellished with Lilies of the valley and carrying a beautiful bouquet of white American beauty roses. The bridesmaid wore a cream satin trimmed with silk fringe and applique, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful amethyst brooch; to the bridesmaid a pearl crescent and to the groomsman a pearl tie pin. After the ceremony and congratulations were extended the happy couple the guests sat down to sumptuous repast the tables being beautifully decorated with ribbons streamers, wax candles and smilax. The good things having been partaken of a choice programme was rendered by the guests, consisting of solos, instrumentals, speeches, etc., over which Mr. S. Martin, of Exeter presided. The guests present from a distant were Wm. Grey of Michigan and Mr. Wm. Penwarden of Detroit. The happy couple will have the best wishes of a host of friends for their furture happiness and welfare in which the Advocate heartily joins.

ELIMVILLE

Ford-Cooper—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Skinner, Usborne, was the scene of a very pleasing and joyous event yesterday (Wednesday), when Miss Effie May Cooper daughter of Mr. Jonothan Cooper and sister of Mrs. Skinner, was united in marriage to Mr. Frederick H. Ford of the same township. The ceremony was performed at six o'clock in the evening by the Rev. Mr. Steadman, in the presence of 120 guests. The bride, who was unattended, was becomingly attired and looked charming in cream silk Bengaline with the usual bridal veil. The bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march played Miss Emily Ford, sister of the groom. The wedding presents which were numerous and costly showed the high esteem in which the bride and groom are held. The young couple will take up their residence on the Rook farm and will start out on the matrimonial sea with the best wishes of a host of friends, in which the Advocate joins.

MORRISCY'S LINIMENT UNEQUALLED

Says Physical Director Chatham Y. M. C. A.

CHATHAM, N. B., July 3, 1910.
"Having used Father Morriscy's Liniment in my capacity as Physical Director of the Chatham Y. M. C. A. for rubbing down after a hard run and severe exercises, I can heartily recommend the Liniment to runners, athletes, or anyone whose muscles are subject to strain. During the season the Y. M. C. A. have placed a large number of athletes in the field, and the majority used nothing else but Father Morriscy's Liniment. For removing stiffness and soreness of the muscles it is unequalled, and I take much pleasure in sending you this word of appreciation."
Stanley K. Smith.
Gen'l Secretary, Chatham Y.M.C.A.

Now a very prominent St. John, N. B., newspaper man.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

Try the flour that holds the confidence of thousands of home-cooks

THE present huge demand for PURITY FLOUR shows the confidence in which it is held by thousands of home-cooks.

Those who have used PURITY FLOUR have come to believe in it. They look on PURITY as a friend. They feel they can trust it implicitly, because each and every lot of PURITY FLOUR has always been uniform—always up to the high standard of quality that has made it famous.

Wouldn't you, too, like to use a flour you could always rely on? Wouldn't you like to feel certain that your bread, cakes, and pies were going to turn out exactly right? That's just how you'll feel when you become a user of PURITY FLOUR — the confidence-creating flour.

PURITY FLOUR gives high-class results, because it consists exclusively of the high-grade portions of the best Western hard wheat.

On account of the extra strength of PURITY FLOUR please remember, when making pastry, to add more shortening than an ordinary flour requires.

And when making bread add more water, and PURITY FLOUR will expand into more loaves than the same weight of ordinary flour can produce, thus making "more bread and better bread."

PURITY FLOUR
"More bread and better bread"

Make your next flour order spell P-U-R-I-T-Y F-L-O-U-R. It costs slightly more, but it's worth the difference. Add PURITY FLOUR to grocery list right now.

NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

Mr. E. N. Lewis, the M. P. for West Huron, has received a letter from the Minister of Militia, which says.—

"In response to definite and repeated representations from you and Col. Hugh Clark, M. P., and after consultation with Col. Hodgins, D. O. C., of London, Ont., I have pleasure in acceding to your urgent requests, and have directed that the Military Camp for No. 1. Division will this year be held in Goderich providing suitable arrangements to the satisfaction of Col. Hodgins can be made. Nothing definite will be arranged meantime regarding a permanent camp there, or elsewhere.

Twenty-five cattle belonging to A. Clunis, of the Onetre road, were plunged into the icy waters of the Aux Sauble River recently, when they stampeded while Mr. Clunis was watering them during a storm. The animals rushed on to the ice and though the ice was quite thick, it suddenly gave way beneath their weight, and all were thrown into the water. A terrific snowstorm was raging at the time, and Mr Clunis had the greatest difficulty in getting the animals out again. After working desperately for some hours, he succeeded, and did not lose one.

WHITECHURCH—Samuel, second son of Robert Thompson, a young man of about 22 years, dropped dead while attending revival meeting in the church here Friday evening Mr. Thompson, who was sitting beside Mr. Moore on the audience rising to sing, dropped back in his seat, and before medical aid arrived had passed away. Heart failure was the cause. The young man was highly respected, and his death is particularly sad, as Mr. Thompson lost his his eldest son less than a year ago.

NO ONE STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

The celebrated Dr. Abernethy of London was firmly of the opinion that disorders of the stomach were the most prolific source of human ailments in general. A recent medical writer says: "every feeling, emotion and affection reports at the stomach (through the system of nerves) and the stomach is affected accordingly. It is the vital center of the body * * * * ." He continues, "so we may be said to live (through) the stomach." He goes on to show that the stomach is the vital center of the body. For weak stomachs and the consequent indigestion or dyspepsia, and the multitude of various diseases which result therefrom, no medicine can be better suited as a curative agent than

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

MRS. MURKEN.

"Several months ago I suffered from a severe pain right under the breast-bone," writes MRS. G. M. MURKEN, of Corona, Calif. "Had suffered from it, off and on, for several years. I also suffered from heart-burn, did not know what was the matter with me. I tried several medicines but they did me no good. Finally, I was told it was my liver. I did not dare to eat as it made me worse. Whenever I swallowed anything it seemed that I would faint—it hurt so. I grew very thin and weak from not eating. Was told to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took five bottles of it, and could feel myself getting better from the first dose. I could eat a little without pain and grew strong fast. To-day I am strong and well and can do a big day's work with ease. Can eat everything and have put on flesh wonderfully. I will say to all sufferers write to Dr. Pierce. He has my undying gratitude."

Keep Your Bath Room Spotlessly Clean with Gold Dust

Soap will not do the work properly because soap only cleans the surface—it does not dig deep after germs and hidden impurities like GOLD DUST—the greatest of all sanitary cleansers.

To keep bath tub and lavatory shiny-white and inviting —To keep metal pipes, fixtures and taps brightly burnished—To purify metal bowl—

To keep tiling and woodwork spotless and beautiful—

Simply add a heaping teaspoonful of GOLD DUST to a pail of water. You will be surprised at the ease with which it does the work. GOLD DUST sterilizes as well as cleans —and saves you one-half the labor.

"Let the GOLD DUST TWINS do your work"

GOLD DUST is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package offers greater economy.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

GOOD POINTS OF RAILROAD EQUIPMENT BONDS NOT REALIZED IN CANADA.

Most Canadian "Equipments" Go to Americans Who Appreciate Them Highly—How This Class of Bond is Issued and What They Represent.

(By "Investor.")

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor.")

In the United States a very favorite investment are Railroad Equipment Bonds. The ordinary railroad mortgage bonds build the road, but they do not provide engines, freight cars, flat cars, sleepers, diners, passenger coaches, etc. For the reason that the life of railroad equipment is short, that it is purchased in small quantities relative to the amount of money necessary to be raised to build the road itself, and that on the other hand the amount is usually too great to charge to any one year's income, it has been found convenient to provide for the equipment by a separate issue of bonds known as Railroad Equipment Bonds, and secured by the rolling stock which they are issued to purchase.

In Canada, although quite readily procurable, investors have not quite realized the good points of equipment bonds as a means for safe investment, and so the great majority of Canadian equipment securities are sold in the United States.

The usual manner of issuing equipment bonds is to organize a separate company not part of the railroad which buys the rolling stock and sells it to the railroad for 25 per cent. down and the balance in ten equal annual installments and interest, of course. Moreover, the railroad contracts to replace or adequately repair any damaged cars, etc., keep them insured and renew any worn out or lost. The company then issues bonds, secured by a mortgage on the equipment and guaranteed absolutely, principal and interest, by the railroad until the railroad has completed the payment for a certain lot of equipment. The title to it does not pass, but remains with the company (or, rather, a trustee which is usually a trust company for the convenience of arranging the mortgage). In fact, if you are interested, a careful examination of Canadian Northern Railway cars will show, usually on the end of one of the floor beams, a cast iron plate bearing the inscription, "This car is the property of the Imperial Rolling Stock Company," and also stating the series of bonds which are secured by the equipment purchase of which that particular car formed a part. The Imperial Rolling Stock Company is the company which handles the equipment for the Canadian Northern just as the Victoria Rolling Stock Company does for the C. P. R.

These bonds are usually so arranged that part of the issue is paid off each year, although, sometimes, they are issued subject to redemption at maturity by the proceeds of a sinking fund. In either case the security, ample at the outset, increases proportionally with the reduction in obligations outstanding against it. The above method of procuring equipment and of issuing mortgage bonds thereon is known as the "Philadelphia plan," and is the method usually followed in Canada. The other plan is where the railroad issues the bond as its direct obligation, while under the Philadelphia plan the railroad is liable only as guarantor of the bonds. There is always provision, of course, that the bonds cannot be issued until the rolling stock is delivered from the makers. Just this summer a large Canadian equipment issue was purchased by a bond firm and could only be put out on the market in small quantities, owing to the fact that the construction and delivery of the equipment was delayed.

CHOICE RECIPES.

Chestnut Pudding.—Twenty-four chestnuts will be needed for a pint mold. Take off the brown skin, plunge them in boiling water for a minute or two, and peel off the red skins. Make a syrup of sugar and water sufficient to cover the chestnuts in a saucepan. Flavor this with vanilla, set over the fire and gently stew the chestnuts until they are soft; by this time they will have absorbed the syrup almost entirely. Pass them through a wire sieve while the chestnuts are stewing. Prepare a custard with half a pint of milk, boiled and cooled, a gill of cream, two whole eggs, and two yolks, or omit the cream and use three-quarters of a pint of milk. Sweeten with an ounce of sugar, mix the custard in a sauce pan over the hot water pan until it is rich and creamy, and cool it as soon as it is ready. Then make a cupful of caramel. Stir one tablespoonful of sugar over a low fire till the sugar melts and becomes a rich brown syrup, turn this into a mold to form a cap; let it harden; mix the puree and custard and pour this in cold. Cover the mold and steam. Butter the mold well beforehand.

Maple Perfect.—Beat four eggs slightly and pour on them slowly one-half pint hot maple syrup. Cook until the mixture thickens and cool it; then add one teaspoonful almond extract, remove from the range, cool, and then add one pint of thick cream beaten until stiff. Mold, pack in salt and ice, and let stand four hours. This recipe serves six persons.

Crullers.—To five potatoes add five cups of flour, two cups of granulated sugar, one cup of sweet milk, five teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of salt, and three eggs. Boil potatoes and mash them. Put in the butter while warm. One may use sour milk and soda in place of baking powder.

Doughnuts.—To one-half cup of sugar add one cup sweet milk, one teaspoon of cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon of soda, one egg beaten well, half teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of nutmeg, and flour enough to make a dough that can be handled easily. Make little rolls with the hands and pinch together. Do not roll on board or cut with cutter. Fry as you do other doughnuts. They will not soak fat.

Tomales.—Cover a four pound chicken with hot water and simmer until tender. Add to the water four onions, a stick of cinnamon, ten whole cloves and allspice, three red Chile peppers, one and a half teaspoonfuls of salt. When the chicken is cooked remove it from the pot and cut into small pieces. Strain the liquor and put the chicken meat into it. Then add enough yellow meal to make a thick mush. Have ready green corn from a dozen ears and two pounds of raisins, seeded. Put into the mush and mix. Add one-half teaspoonful of red pepper. Fill corn husks with the mixture, tying up securely at both ends. When the husks are filled, throw into hot water and boil half an hour.

Celery Soup.—Put on to stew one cup of chopped celery; one may use the outside stalks and keep the good, yellow for the table. When it is done drain, put in pepper, salt and butter to suit taste. Then scald one and a half cups milk and thicken with one tablespoon flour. Then add celery liquid; beat one egg, put in and serve.

Vinegar Frosting.—A teaspoonful of vinegar beaten into boiled frosting when the flavoring is added will keep it from being brittle and breaking when cut, and it will be as moist in a week as the day it was made. Also a teaspoonful of vinegar added to each pint of home made syrup will prevent it from candying.

DELICACIES.

Angel Food in Pyramids.—One of the prettiest things seen recently at a spring luncheon was angel food served in small pyramids. Beat the whites of nine eggs to a stiff froth; beat in a level teaspoonful of cream of tartar; add flavoring. Beat into this mixture lightly one cup of granulated sugar, sifted. Then add one cup of flour, sifted. Grease lightly with lard one dozen jelly glasses. Fill these half full of the mixture. Place the lids on and steam for one hour. After the cakes are cold, cover with boiled icing.

Confectioner's Icing.—Two cupfuls of granulated sugar, one teaspoonful of glucose, one cupful of water. Boil together without stirring until it forms a thread when dropped from a fork. Take from the fire at once and let stand until lukewarm. Beat until like soft dough; then knead with the hands until thick and creamy. Pack away in glass, cover and keep in a cool place. When wanted to use, put some in a bowl, set the bowl in hot water, and stir until soft enough to spread on cake. Add desired flavor, and use. This icing will keep an indefinite time if kept covered as directed. Corn syrup may be substituted for glucose.

Grape Juice Taffy.—Make an ordinary lemonade, add the juice of two oranges, a little pineapple syrup, and a quart of grape juice. This will make a delicious drink or punch to serve at parties or receptions.

GRAND TO LIVE

And the Last Laugh is Always the Best.

"Six months ago I would have laughed at the idea that there could be anything better for a table beverage than coffee," writes an Ohio woman, "now I laugh to know there is. (The effects of tea and coffee on the system are similar, because they both contain a drug—caffeine).

"Since childhood I drank coffee freely as did the other members of the family. The result was a puny, sickly girl; and as I grew into womanhood I did not gain in health, but was afflicted with heart trouble, a weak and disordered stomach, wrecked nerves and a general breaking down, till last winter, at the age of 38, I seemed to be on the verge of consumption.

"My friends greeted me with 'How bad you look! What a terrible color!' and this was not very comforting.

"The doctors and patent medicines did me absolutely no good. I was thoroughly discouraged.

"Then I gave up coffee and commenced Postum. At first I didn't like it, but after a few trials and following the directions exactly, it was grand. It was refreshing and satisfying. In a couple of weeks I noticed a great change.

"I became stronger, my brain grew clearer, I was not troubled with forgetfulness as in coffee times, my power of endurance was more than doubled.

"The heart trouble and indigestion disappeared and my nerves became steady and strong.

"I began to take an interest in things about me. Housework and home-making became a pleasure. My friends have marveled at the change and when they enquire what brought it about I answer 'Postum, and nothing else in the world.'" Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

PROTECT YOURSELF BY REFUSING SUBSTITUTES

Castor oil rubbed well into boots or shoes will help to preserve the leather and lengthen the life of the boots. Any oil can be used, but castor oil is the best.

To shine boots quickly do not blacken, but rub with a piece of orange. Let the juice dry in, and then polish with a soft brush, when they will shine like a mirror.

To save paint and furniture from being knocked and scratched when sweeping, nail pads of velvet cloth on all brooms and brushes, especially those used for stairs.

When boiling cabbage, tie up a piece of bread or small crust in a muslin bag and drop it into the saucepan. This will prevent the smell of the cabbage penetrating into the room.

Study the Cost of a Fence---
Not Its Price!

There is mighty little difference between one woven wire fencing and another, so far as PRICE goes. But there is a bulky difference in the COST.

Fence-cost depends upon fence-endurance. Wire fence at a dime a rod would be dear if you had to repair and replace it yearly. Thus, though LEADER Fence is no cheaper in the first place than ordinary woven wire fences, it is a whole lot cheaper in the long run—for it stands up, stays tight, and keeps the repair bugaboo at arm's length year after year. It lasts, does

LEADER FENCE

All wire fencing looks much alike. You cannot judge any woven wire fence's goodness by its looks. One makes resembles another very closely. The vital difference is in the lock—the twisted clamp of wire that fastens vertical wire to cross-wires together. On that largely depends the fence's durability. LEADER fence has the one lock that is actually perfect. Ask for a sample of it. Note the simple yet powerful triple grip this lock holds on the cross-wires. Imagine how great must be the strain that would loosen such a grip. Then you'll realize why LEADER fence, made of 9-gauge hard steel wire, specially galvanized, springy and able to stand tight stretching, WON'T sag and DOES last.

Stricken With Acute Rheumatism—Recovery Scarcely Expected.

Mrs. Dolina J. Lawlor, writing from Oxbow, Sask., says: "I would be lacking in gratitude if I did not write you and let you know of the wonderful good your Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for my daughter, Belle Lawlor. Indeed I think I may safely say that they have been the means of saving her life. For many years my home has been in Bruce Mines, Ont. Something over a year ago my son and daughter, then in her sixteenth year, left for the west. When leaving here my daughter was in the best of health, but in the following spring she was stricken with what the doctor said was inflammatory rheumatism in its worst form. After a few weeks she was able to get up, but her hands and limbs were so swollen that she could not dress herself. She continued in this way for some time, and then a second attack, worse than the first, set in, and my son telegraphed me, as she was very low. While I was getting ready to make the trip of eighteen hundred miles I got a second message to come at once, as they feared she could not live. When I reached her I found her even worse than I had expected. She was so weak and emaciated that I would not have known her, and she could only speak in a whisper. Her hands and fingers were all twisted and her limbs swollen to twice their natural size. The doctor had then been attending her for two months, and she seemed steadily growing worse. We did not dare move her in bed for fear of her heart giving out. She was as pale as a corpse, and her lips and face always cold. We had to fan her continually, and if we ceased even for a little while she would gasp for breath, and no one who saw her thought it possible she could get better. She suffered such pain that I used to go out of the room and put my fingers in my ears to shut out her gasping and moaning. I had known before of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as we could gradually see her sinking I told my son I was going to give her the Pills. He was opposed to my idea, for he thought a change in the medicine might prove fatal. However, it was finally decided to give her the Pills. In a week's time she showed some improvement and felt like eating. From that time on she began to gain steadily. Gradually her hands and fingers became straight, the swelling in the limbs went down, and her heart-beats became regular, and the color returned to her face, and soon the cure was complete. She is now as strong and healthy as any girl of her age, and to see her you would never think she had passed through an illness from which none of her friends thought she could recover. You have my sincerest thanks for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for my daughter, and you may be sure I shall always warmly recommend them."

TO THE RESCUED.

"I suppose by this time you have more money than you know what to do with," said the old acquaintance.

"No," replied Mr. Dustin Stax: "I haven't more than I know what to do with. But I might be a little puzzled about it, now and then, if I didn't get a lot of helpful advice on the subject from mother and the girls."

Eczema 25 Years Cured by "Cuticura"

Mme. J. B. Rensud Montreal

Leg Like Raw Flesh from Knee Down

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did their best, but failed to cure it. My own doctor had advised me to have my leg cut off, but I said I would try the Cuticura Remedies first. He said, 'try them if you like but I do not think they will do any good.' At this time my leg was peeled from the knee down, my foot was like a piece of raw flesh and I had to walk on crutches.

"I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. After the first two treatments the swelling went down and in two months' use of the Cuticura Remedies my leg was cured and the new skin grown on. The doctor could not believe his own eyes when he saw that Cuticura had cured me and said that he would use Cuticura for his own patients. But for the Cuticura Remedies I might have lost my life. I am truly grateful for the wonderful cure that Cuticura wrought and I always recommend it most highly as a sure and economical cure for skin troubles." (Signed) Mme. J. B. Rensud, 277 Mentana St., Montreal.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for skin and scalp humors. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book, send to Potter D. & C. Corp., 49 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

GASTRONOMIC CRIMES.

"Content the Stomach and the Stomach Will Content You."

Nor is it enough that school girls and boys should be taught to cook; they should also learn how to eat. Few learn this at home. They are usually taught to eat silently, and not to take soup off the end of a spoon or to put the knife into the mouth; but the more important art of mastication is ignored. It is a branch of physiology and should be taught by experts in the schools.

If it were, the next generation of mothers and fathers would know that it is a crime to let their children swallow food, particularly milk and cereals and vegetables, before it has been kept for a while in the mouth to be mixed with saliva and made digestible.

If it were indelibly impressed on school-children that gluttony is a vice which defeats its own end, that by eating slowly much more pleasure can be got from one mouthful than by bolting a whole plateful, that this pleasure can be vastly increased by consciously exhaling through the nose while eating, and that those who eat in this way will escape the pangs of indigestion—if these truths were impressed on every child mind, two-thirds of the minor ills of mankind would disappear in two generations, and most of the major maladies also; for the stomach is the source of most diseases. As Thomas Walker wrote nearly a century ago, "Content the stomach and the stomach will content you."

BABY'S OWN TABLETS CURE CONSTIPATION

Mrs. Albert Barriault, St. Alphonse, Que., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my baby who suffered from constipation. They completely cured her and I can strongly recommend them to all mothers." The Tablets not only cure constipation, but they cure all other troubles arising from a disordered state of the stomach and bowels such as colic, colds, simple fevers, indigestion, etc. Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EVER HOPEFUL.

"What we want," said the eminent philanthropist, "is to establish a system of universal peace."

"But aren't you likely to have some quarrels over the best way to establish it?"

"Of course. But they will be useful in their way. People must have some outlet for their activities. And while they are quarreling they are not fighting."

HER MANAGEMENT.

Mrs. Colin Gabble—"Do you ever permit your husband to have his own way?"

Mrs. Strongmind—"Oh, yes, occasionally. He is sure to make a fool of himself and that makes him easier to manage next time."

The Foe of Indigestion.—Indigestion is a common ailment and few are free from it. It is a most distressing complaint and often the suffering attending it is most severe. The very best remedy is Parmelee's Vegetable Pills taken according to directions. They rectify the irregular action of the stomach and restore healthy action. For many years they have been a standard remedy for dyspepsia and indigestion and are highly esteemed for their qualities.

NEW BRUNSWICK HEARD FROM AGAIN

ANOTHER SPLENDID CURE BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Mr. Ben Gauvang had Backache so bad he had to quit work—Dodd's Kidney Pills fixed him up.

Puellering Settlement, Kent Co., N. B., Jan. 29 (Special).—Every corner of New Brunswick tells of cures made by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and this settlement can contribute its share. Mr. Ben. Gauvang is one man who without hesitation states that he owes his good health to the great Canadian Kidney remedy.

"Yes, Dodd's Kidney Pills certainly did me good," Mr. Gauvang says in an interview. "Before I started taking them my back ached so that I had to give up work and I also had to be careful how I walked and moved about. I took nine boxes, all told, and they fixed me up. They are the best medicine for all diseases of the kidneys."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are no cure-all. They only cure the kidneys. But they always cure the kidneys, and with cured kidneys you can't have backache, rheumatism, Bright's disease, diabetes or dropsy.

QUALIFIED.

"Some detectives ought to make good sailors."

"Why so?"

"Because they're so often at sea."

A Sure Corrective of Flatulency.—When the undigested food lies in the stomach it throws off gases causing pains and oppression in the stomachic region. The belching or eructation of these gases is offensive and the only way to prevent them is to restore the stomach to proper action. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will do this. Simple directions go with each packet and a course of them taken systematically is certain to effect a cure.

DREADNOUGHT'S GUNS.

An improved rifle of 13.5 calibre is to be used on British super-dreadnoughts in place of the gun of the same calibre introduced not long ago. It is more powerful both as to range and weight of projectile. The older 13.5 gun, which is to be used on some big ships not yet completed, throws a shell weighing 1,250 pounds, but the improved gun will carry a projectile weighing 1,400 pounds. The new super-dreadnoughts will have also some improved 6 inch guns for protection against torpedo craft. Until very recently 6 inch guns were regarded as big enough for secondary batteries.

HICKS' FEBRUARY FORECASTS.—A storm period prevails from the 9th to the 14th. About the 9th the barometer will begin falling in western parts, change to warmer and cloudiness will ensue, followed by rain, turning on western flanks to snow. During the 11th, 12th, 13th and 14th these conditions will move steadily eastward across the country, preceded on the east flanks by warmth and rains, and followed on the west by snow, cold and clearing. This is the law of storm and weather movement and change—a law that all should understand and remember. The periods of fair and cold weather lie between the periods of low barometer and storms, and are progressive from west to east, the same as the storm areas.

CHURCH UNION DEBATE

A debate will be held on Church Union in Main Street Methodist Church on Thursday evening next, when Rev. James Livingstone of Mitchell, chairman of the Stratford District, will speak in the affirmative, and Rev. J. W. Hobbert of Gorrie, chairman of the Wingham District will take the negative. The debate should be instructive, although probably most of the voters have already decided what course they will take in the matter.

WILLIAM LYNES DEAD.—We mentioned last week the serious illness of Mr. William Lynes of Toronto, a former resident of Exeter. The illness terminated fatally on Sunday, Jan. 21st, deceased being about fifty years of age. Mr Lynes was married twice and is survived by his second wife. He was a tailor by trade and followed that occupation before he left Exeter some 30 years ago, since which time he has resided in London, Montreal and Toronto. Besides his mother who resides in London he is survived by one sister, Mrs. Winterbottom of London, and one brother, Wesley, of Regina. The funeral took place in Toronto on Wednesday.

HOCKEY.—Exeter and Crediton hockey teams played a game on the local ice on Thursday night, resulting in favor of Exeter by a score of 5-4. This was the first of the season and was a fair exhibition of the game. At half time the score was 3-2. At full time it was a tie, 4-4, but the locals secured one in the overtime. Harold Bissett refereed and John Snell of Exeter and Frank Snell of Crediton acted as goal umpires. The line up.—

The East and West hockey teams had a good game Monday evening, the latter winning by 2 to 1.

FATHER DEAD.—Through an item that appeared in a paper Mr. Henry Purdy late of Clandeboye, who has rented Mr. R. N. Rowe's farm, London Road South has found that it was his aged father, Henry Purdy, who was found dead in Port Huron on Saturday evening last. Upon the finding of the body in his home on Sarnia street, where he had lived alone for many years, Coroner Albert Falk happened to learn that he had relatives in Canada, but just where he did not know. It was finally discovered, however, through a news item, and the son in Exeter was notified. The body will be held until the two daughters can arrive in Port Huron. One of the daughters is located at the Canadian Soo, while the other is residing in Minnesota. Mr. Purdy formerly resided at Grand Bend, and previous to that he worked for the late Thomas Rowe near Exeter.

CURLING.—Two rinks of Parkhill curlers visited the Exeter Club on Wednesday evening of last week, when a pleasant time was spent on the ice, after which all partook of an enjoyable banquet at the Commercial House. The visitors and home teams won two games each, the final score showing Exeter four points up. The score by rinks is as follows.—

Mrs. Wylie, who has been visiting Mr and Mrs. J. A. Stewart, returned to her home in Toronto Saturday. She was accompanied by Miss Kathleen Stewart, who will visit in the city for a time.

Mr. R. Cudmore, and wife of Crystal City, Man., are visiting relatives and friends in and around Exeter. Mr. Cudmore is a son of Mr. Aaron Cudmore of Crystal City, and a former resident of Exeter, but who left these parts many years ago.

Mr. Thos. Lawson of Detroit, accompanied by his brother, Eli of Crediton, East, was a pleasant caller at the Advocate office Saturday. Mr. Lawson, who is engaged in the Automobile works in that city, states that 1912 will see the largest output of automobiles that America has ever seen.

Mrs Emma Huntley, who has been visiting with Mrs. John Essery and other friends here, left Saturday for Chicago, where she will visit prior to returning to her home in Sedro-Woolley, Wash. Mrs. Huntley travels considerably, and her present trip covers several thousand miles. We are indebted to Mrs Huntley for copies of her home paper, the Skagit County Times.

Miss Maude Elliott is visiting in Ettrick.

Mr. Greig of Clinton visited his brother here last week.

Mr. Tom Carling was in London this week on business.

Mr. Wm. Blatchford is visiting in Hamilton this week.

Mr. T. H. McCallum was in London on business this week.

Miss Edith Moncur left Wednesday on a visit to London, Guelph and Toronto friends.

Mrs. Hutton of Brantford was a guest of her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Hobbs, this week.

Miss Nellie Mason of London was the guest of Mrs. Jos. Sutton part of the week.

Mr. Paul Coates of Usborne is in Toronto this week combining business with pleasure.

Miss Stapleton, who has been visiting friends in town for the past few weeks, returned to her home in Wingham on Thursday.

Messrs. Henry Smith and Thos. Russell are in Toronto this week, attending a meeting of the Short-horn Breeders' Association.

A "Jack the Peeper" has been noticed looking into the windows of several of the homes in town. His capture should mean severe punishment.

Mr. R. Phillips, A.L.C.M., announces a concert to be given in James Street Church on March 4th. The famous London Male Quartette and Miss Smith, elocutionist, will make their first appearance in Exeter.

Mr. Thos. Kernick returned last week from his trip to British Columbia with Mr. Frank Handford's car of horses. He reports a fine trip of 24 days going and ten returning. The horses came out in the best of condition.

Mr Thos. Flynn attended the funeral of a nephew, William Flynn, at Kincardine on Monday. Deceased died from the effects of being struck by a shunted car. He was a sectionman, and he leaves a wife and two children.

"Resolved that the franchise should be extended to the Women," was the subject of a debate in Main Street League Tuesday evening. The affirmative was taken by Miss Howard, Mr. J. Elston and Mr. Russell May, while the negative was upheld by Mr. T. H. Phillips, Miss Quackenbush and Mr. L. Watson. Both sides were well taken and the debate was very interesting. After careful consideration decision was awarded the negative by the judges, Miss Edmunds, Mr. R. E. Pickard and Mr. W. B. Rydal. The home League afterwards treated their visitors, the James Street League, to a tasty lunch.

Division Court, presided over by Judge Holt, was held in the Town Hall Wednesday, when the case of James Ryder vs. The Usborne & Hibbert Fire Insurance Company came up for trial. The plaintiff sued for the amount of a loss of a horse, which the defendants declined to pay. The case is being tried as we go to press.

The death occurred in Lobo Township on Tuesday of Mrs. Ann Bennett, mother of Mrs. Wm. Taylor, of Exeter, at the age of 84 years. She had been ill three weeks following a stroke of paralysis. The husband died about 25 years ago. The remains will be brought here on Thursday evening and the next day will be taken to Zion cemetery for interment.

HOCKEY—In the first game between the town boys and the I. O. O. F. the former played rings around the latter, particularly as regards the score, which at half time was 4-1, and at full time 8-1. The difference in the score is accounted for largely because the former had a ringer on, Greig of Clinton, and the latter's star player, Tom Carling, was out of town. Greig was a tower of strength to the town team, while Tommy's aggressive playing was much missed by the I. O. O. F. team. There is no kick against the boys for playing Greig, and we are glad to see him having a game while visiting here, besides acknowledging the fact that his playing should teach the other boys something of the game, but at the same time we hope they will not make a practice of playing outsiders in their local games, or any other games for that matter. Such old timers as Ed. Dignan, Teddy Bawden, Billy Statham and Jack Snell were in the game for the I. O. O. F. They with Axt, Brad and Melv. Southcott made up the team, and, while doing some good individual work, they lacked that sureness, with skate and stick, that only comes with long practice. For the town boys "Ginger" Elliott and "Rack" Atkinson did some clever work. Billy Greig in goal was onto the job, and "Tiny" Fisher, Jack and Herb Southcott worked hard and with good effect. There were too many off-sides, too much heavy checking, too many individual attempts, and an utter lack of combination. With that kind of playing you cannot have brilliant hockey, and brilliant hockey is what every hockey enthusiast wants to see. This can only be accomplished by continued practice; a due regard for the rights of the other side; careful, consistent and strong management, and a diligent cultivation of the principles of combination. We have material enough here for four or five hockey teams, and we would suggest the immediate organization of the boys into teams with a regular schedule of local games.

Letter From New Orleans

The following interesting letter has been received by Mr. N. D. Hurdon from his son in New Orleans, Louisiana.—

Jan. 26, 1912

Dear Father.—

Your postal received to-day, and also the papers and card a day ago. I am always very glad to hear from you in the "far north," though I would not care to be up there now, with the thermometer away below zero. However, there has been bad weather down here, the worst in thirteen years. Continuous rains for three weeks with occasional sharp frosts, and at one time a very little snow, and some sleet; but this has subsided and for the past week the days have been exceedingly fine, the temperature ranging from sixty to seventy degrees at noon, to thirty-five and forty degrees at night. Here at present men go about in their shirt sleeves and one perspires at walking a few blocks. Bright sunshine prevails, the grass is green, roses are blooming and the magnolia and live oak trees are sending out their supply of spring leaves, forcing the old leaves from their stalks. Everywhere the vernal beauty of the palmetto trees is in evidence, with their fan-like foliage.

New Orleans certainly is an historic city. The old French city, the "Vieux Carre de la Ville" remains to-day almost as it was founded in 1718 by Bienville. The greatest interest centres to-day in Jackson Square and the buildings immediately surrounding it, which lie in what is now termed the "Down Town" or old French and Spanish district, in the northeastern section of the city, as distinguished from the more modern American or "Up Town" section. The dividing line is Canal Street. Canal Street is the business artery of New Orleans. It is known as the widest "street" in the world, is four miles in length and straight as a die. At one end are the cemeteries, at the other the Mississippi river. It is paved the entire length with asphalt.

Referring to the French and Spanish Section Jackson Square was originally called the "Place d' Armes". It covers about two acres and fronts the river. Back of it stands (the St. Louis Cathedral, the Cabildo and the Superior Council buildings, while the old French barracks flanks either side.

The original cathedral, built in 1722, was destroyed by fire in 1788. On its site was erected the present one in 1792 by Don Andres Almonaster y Roxas, a rich Spanish resident of New Orleans when Louisiana was ruled by Spain, and who is buried in the cathedral, and for whose soul mass has been celebrated and candles burned continuously for one hundred and thirteen years. The Superior Council building, as its name implies, was used by the Superior Council, five men, the sole tribunal of the colony at that time. The Cabildo, was so called after a Spanish Council established by the famous "Bloody O'Reilly" governor of Louisiana for Spain in 1769. Both the latter buildings are large imposing structures of stone and wood, faced smooth outside with mortar, which, except for cracks, remains whole to this day. The Cabildo is to-day a museum, where a pair of the original Spanish stocks, for punishment, may be seen, also some of the cannon and armor brought from Spanish Fort, now a summer resort on the city's outskirts. Part of the original fortification at Spanish Fort is still in existence.

The old French Market remains as it was when the city was in its infancy and is open every day in the year from six o'clock in the morning until noon.

Some little distance below Jackson Square, down the river, lies what was once called the "Plains of Chalmette." It was on this ground that the British forces under General Pakenham met and were defeated by the Americans under General Andrew Jackson on January 8, 1815. To-day the site is occupied by the largest sugar refinery in the world. Near this lie the U. S. Mint and U. S. Barracks. A dozen blocks from the river, back of the Old French town lies the St Louis Cemetery, surrounded by a crumbling brick wall. The dead are not buried in the ground here as is the custom in the north, but are deposited in marble tombs, whole families in many cases being buried in one tomb. This cemetery is completely filled with such resting places, and burials are now made in the cemeteries back of the city at the end of Canal Street. Here are many hundreds of these costly tombs, some of them superb works of art, and costing from $20,000 to $90,000. Well might these be called the "Cities of the Dead" with their beautiful driveways, lined with sweet scented shrubs and orange trees—at present bearing fruit—shaded by gigantic live-oak trees and bordered outside with palms. The Jews are the only people who adhere strictly to the practice of burying their dead underground.

The City Park, in the down town section is another place of interest to visitors. Here are the famed "Duel Oaks" under whose branches many a fatal duel has been fought. Beneath one tree is buried the body of a young Spaniard, who, it is recorded, fought no less than eighteen duels on that spot. Before each duel he requested that if he fell, his body might be buried there. At the 18th duel he fell and a heavy stone, surrounded by bushes marks his grave.

The up town section is, of course, much more modern and does not contain any places of great historic interest. Audubon Park, so named after the great naturalist who was born on a Louisiana plantation in 1780, covers 247 acres and was the site of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1884.

Along the Mississippi river for 30 miles extend the wharves, with their costly steel freight sheds, at which the largest ocean vessels afloat can be docked. Ships of all nations come here with their varied cargoes. Thousands of bags of coffee beans from S. America at present may be seen unloading, and the United Fruit Company's gigantic banana conveyors are capable of handling at least 70,000 bunches of bananas daily, conveying the bananas direct from the ship's hold to the freight trains on siding. Across the river is the U. S Naval station, where the largest floating steel dock in the world is anchored. New Orleans electric railway is one of the finest in the States.

Land values in the city have gone up enormously in the past ten years, and real estate that sold formerly for $200 a lot within two miles of the heart of the city are now worth from $1000 to $1500. This is in part due to the paving of streets and closing in of drainage canals, the establishment of a levee encircling the city and the building of pumping stations to pump the water thus drained over the levee out toward the Gulf of Mexico. In this way the danger of yellow fever has been removed, no cases of that malady having been reported since 1906. Then too, the waterworks system is one of the finest, having cost $25,000,000 to complete. It filters the Mississippi into pure drinking water and supplies the whole city at a pressure of 50 pounds. Another reason why New Orleans has progressed so within the last decade is the stimulus of the Panama Canal opening. Everyone here is impressed with the idea that this event will mean the making of the city into a second New York. Two new and handsome structures of white marble are now nearing completion the Post Office at a cost of $2,000,000 and the Court House at a cost of $1,090,000.

St. Charles Avenue, the principal residence street, is lined for six miles with beautiful homes, churches, universities and libraries. There are four or five universities for the education of the colored race, whose proportion of the population is one-fifth. There are no mosquitos during the winter season, and their numbers diminish year by year. Ants are, however, the great pest during the summer.

One hears but little French spoken excepting down in the old section at the French market. Altogether, New Orleans is a delightful place to live.

Preparations are on for the greatest event of the year, the Carnival and Mardi Gras, which is attended by thousands of visitors annually. The amount of money spent each year for this event runs into the millions, and the pageant increases year by year in magnificence. At this time the city goes into a pandemonium of revelry. Everyone is everyone's friend and parades and masquerades continue for a whole week. But that is yet to come and deserve a separate letter.

Your loving son,

R. H. DYER HURDON

STEPHEN COUNCIL.

The council of the Township of Stephen convened in the Town Hall Crediton, on Monday, the 5th day of February 1912 at 1 p.m. All members were present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted.

The clerk reported that the Hydro-Electric By-laws had passed in the Police Village of Centralia by 16½; in Crediton by 87½ and in Dashwood by 34 per cent.

Elliott—Finkbeiner—"That the clerk draw plans and prepare specifications for the construction of four small bridges and that tenders be called for which are to be opened on the 4th of March at 1 p.m. next"—Carried.

Yearley—Finkbeiner—"That Alonzo Hodgins be appointed a member of the Board of Health, his term of office to expire on Jan. 1, 1915, and that Wm. Lewis, Edward Brokenshire and Wm. Oliver be reappointed Sanitary Inspectors for the divisions formerly held by them"—Carried.

Kellerman—Yearley—"That By-law No. 187, 188, and 189 authorizing and empowering the Trustees of the Police Villages of Centralia, Crediton and Dashwood to obtain power for the respective villages from The Hydro-electric Power Commission, having been read the third time be passed and signed by the Reeve and the Clerk and the seal of the Corporation be attached thereto"—Carried.
