CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER XIV.—(Cont'd)

Having acquainted the police officer with the exact position of the hidden apartment, he ended by saying—

"Continue inquiries throughout Paris during the whole of to-morrow. Do not visit the Cabaret Noir for the purpose of police inspection until a late hour—long after midnight—when the cafe is empty and the Boulevard comparatively deserted. It is only a mere guess on my part. The Turks may not be there. If they are, they should be set at liberty and not questioned. Tell them they owe their escape to me. If you do not find them you may make other discoveries of general interest to the police. But above all things, I do not wish you to interfere with Gros Jean or his house until the next twenty-four hours have elapsed."

The commissary assured him that his desires would be respected, and soon afterwards Brett went upstairs with the full determination to secure a long night's sleep, of which he stood much in need.

He had reached the sitting-room reserved for the use of the party when Talbot and Lord Fairholme burst in excitedly.

"We have seen her!" gasped the earl.

"Seen whom?" demanded the barrister.

"Mademoiselle Beaucaire," cried Talbot; "the woman who accompanied Dubois in his flight from London. I recognized her instantly. I could pick her out among a million as the same person who so coolly made up Dubois to represent me, whilst I was lying tied on the bed in that flat."

In their eagerness the two men had forgotten to close the door. Brett ran to it, and looked out into the passage to learn if their words had perchance been overheard. No one was in sight. He closed the door behind him when he re-entered, and said quietly—

"How did you happen to meet her?"

"Whilst you were wrestling with the telephone," said Fairholme, "Edith and Jack and I went to the door of the hotel to have a look at the people passing in the Cannablere. None of us have ever been in Marseilles before, you know. We were gazing at the crowd, when suddenly Jack gripped my arm and said: 'There she is! Look at that woman, quick!' He pointed to a tall, well-dressed female, wrapped up in a fur cloak, and wearing a large feather hat. Luckily her veil was up, and the electric light fell fully on her as she passed. She was undoubtedly La Belle Chasseuse, and I bet you anything you like she had just come away from the music-hall where she is performing."

"Did she see you?" demanded Brett excitedly.

"Not a bit; she was gazing at the passing tram-cars, and evidently on the look out for some particular line."

"What happened next?" demanded the barrister. "Where is Miss Talbot?"

"Edith has gone after her," said Fairholme.

"What!" cried Brett, more startled than he cared to own.

"Yes," broke in Talbot eagerly. "She heard my words and instantly decided to follow her. She said that the woman knew both of us, and might easily detect us, but she, Edith, was unknown to her, and would never be suspected. She simply forced us to come and tell you, and then darted off like a greyhound before we could stop her."

Brett forced himself to say calmly—

"Miss Talbot has acted quite rightly. We must simply remain here until she returns. There is not the slightest ground for alarm. A woman who could act with such ready judgment is well able to take care of herself. Unless I am much mistaken, we shall see her within the hour."

It was well for the peace of mind of the younger men that Sir Hubert Fitzjames had gone to his room soon after the party reached the hotel. Had the irascible baronet known of his niece's mission, no power on earth could have restrained him from setting every policeman in Marseilles on her track forthwith.

And so they kept their vigil, striving to talk unconcernedly, but watching the clock with feverish impatience until Edith should return.

CHAPTER XV.

In the suburbs Marseilles is modern enough, but the chief thoroughfare, known to all who read, the famous and ever busy Cannebiere, plunges rapidly downhill until it empties itself on the crowded quays that surround the old port.

With the newer Marseilles of the Joliette—well found in wharfs and warehouses, steam cranes and railway lines—the town beloved of the Phoenicians has no concern. There is no touch of modern ugliness in the tiny maritime refuge, which is barely half the size of the Serpentine. Lofty, old-fashioned, half-ruined houses throng close to its rugged quays.

At night this quarter of the turbulent city wears an air of intense mystery. The side streets are narrow and tortuous. Dark courts and alleys twist in every conceivable direction, while the brightness of the many wine shops facing each other across the tideless harbor only serves to enhance the squalid gloom that forms the most marked characteristic of the buildings clustered behind them.

Edith Talbot, intent on the pursuit of a woman so dramatically bound up with the mystery affecting her brother, paid heed to no consideration save the paramount one, that the hurrying figure in front must be kept in sight.

Contrary to the opinions expressed by the two men, Mdlle. Beaucaire did not board a passing tram-car. To Edith's eyes she seemed to be eagerly watching for some person who might pass in one of the small open carriages which in Marseilles take the place of the London hansom. Even as she rapidly walked down the crowded street mademoiselle closely scrutinized each vehicle that overtook her, and once, at a busy crossing, she deliberately stopped. Edith, of course, slackened her pace, and simultaneously became aware how incongruous was her appearance at such an hour in such a thoroughfare.

Much taller than the average Frenchwoman, neatly dressed in an English tailor-made costume, with her smart straw hat and well-gloved hands, Miss Talbot naturally attracted the curious gaze of the passersby.

Instantly it occurred to her that some disguise was absolutely necessary if she would not court an attention fatal to her enterprise. It chanced that where she stood for a moment a fruit-seller occupied a tiny shop squeezed tightly between a church and a restaurant. The interior was dark enough, for a couple of flaring naptha lamps were so disposed as to cast their flickering brilliancy over the baskets of fruit and vegetables displayed in the window or crowded together on the pavement.

The woman inside had a kindly and contented face, cherry ripe in cheek and lips, and from a pair of deep-set blue eyes she looked out quizzically at the hurrying crowd.

Assuring herself with one fleeting glance that La Belle Chasseuse still remained motionless and intent at the crossing, Edith darted into the shop. She produced a sovereign.

"I have not much French money," she said hurriedly, "but this is worthy twenty-five francs. Can you let me have a large dark shawl? I do not care whether or not it is old or worn. It is necessary that I should remain out for some few minutes longer, and I do not wish to court observation."

Even as she spoke she removed her straw hat and eagerly tore off her gloves. The Frenchwoman saw that one of her own sex, English, and consequently mad, desired to screen her appearance from too inquisitive eyes.

It was sufficient for her that there should be a spice of romance in the request. With one hand she pocketed the sovereign; with the other she dived into a recess beneath the counter and produced the very article Edith wanted.

"But certainly, mademoiselle," she cried. "See. It will cover you to the waist."

Edith advanced another pace into the darkest corner of the shop, quickly arranged the shawl over her head and shoulders, and hastily murmuring her thanks, rushed forth into the street again, leaving hat and gloves behind in her haste.

She was just in time to see Mdlle. Beaucaire either abandon her search or resolve it in some manner, for the lady once more resumed progress towards the old harbor, in whose placid bosom could be seen the reflections of numberless lights from the small promontory beyond, crowned with the Fort St. Nicholas and the Chateau du Phare.

But if the Frenchwoman was a good walker, Edith Talbot was a better one, and now that she no longer feared notice—for she draped the large shawl as elegantly about her shoulders as any woman in Marseilles—she decided to adopt a little strategy. Instead of keeping directly behind mademoiselle, she broke into a run under the shadow of the houses. By thus making up ground she approached the narrow street towards which the Frenchwoman was heading almost simultaneously with her quarry, but apparently from an opposite direction. The aspect of the thoroughfare through which the two women sped was forbidding in the extreme. The houses were many storeys in height, of disreputable appearance, and so close together on both sides that, were other conditions equal, an active man might easily spring from one room into another across the street.

There were, of course, many other people in the street besides themselves, else Edith's self-imposed piece of espionage would have been rendered difficult, if not impossible.

The man of few words doesn't have to take many of them back.

The MEDICAL PRESS and Experiments with

BOVRIL

"The results were simply startling."—Medical Times.

The report on the nutritive value of Bovril read before the Annual Meeting of the British Medical Association, is attracting wide attention in the medical profession.

The "British Medical Journal" of September 16 devoted some six pages to giving a detailed account of the recent experiments, in which it was shown that in the case of human beings the body-building power of Bovril was "even more marked" than had been previously shown in the experiments with animals. A further article has just appeared in the "Medical Times," and that journal points out that the results of these experiments "were simply startling."

"It was found that in all cases the administration of the extract (Bovril) caused an immediate increase of weight."

One important point brought out by these experiments is the fact that this increase in weight is in tissue and muscle, and not fat, showing that Bovril must therefore be regarded as a true nutrient, and an essential part of the diet of every man, woman and child.

EXPERIMENTS ON HUMAN BEINGS

10 grams of Bovril were used in each case

Two examples, the figures being taken from the table published in the "British Medical Journal."

You wouldn't be satisfied to use a scythe to cut your grain, when a modern harvester can do it so much better, would you? Nor to use the old soft-iron plough-share that your ancestors walked behind, when you can get an up-to-date riding plough? Every Canadian farmer realizes the advantages of Twentieth Century implements.

The next step is

The 20th Century Material—Concrete

Concrete is as far ahead of brick, stone, or wood as the harvester is ahead of the scythe or the riding-plough is ahead of the old iron plough-share.

Concrete is easily mixed, and easily placed. It resists heat and cold as no other material can; hence is best for ice-houses, root-cellars, barns, silos and homes. It never needs repair; therefore it makes the best walks, fence-posts, culverts, drain-tiles, survey monuments, bridges and culverts. It cannot burn; you can clean a concrete poultry-house by filling it with straw and setting the straw afire. The lice, ticks and all germs will be burned, but the house is uninjured.

It is cheap—sand and gravel can be taken from your own farm. Cement, the only material you must buy, forms from one-seventh to one-tenth of the whole volume.

Do you want to know more about Concrete on the Farm? Then write your name and address in the lines above, or on a postcard, mail it to us, and you will receive by return mail a copy of

Not a catalogue, but a 160-page book, profusely illustrated, explaining how you can use concrete on YOUR farm.

HOUSEHOLD

MEATS.

Spaghetti and Beef.—Take one pound of chopped beef and same amount of chopped onions and fry brown. Add one cup of spaghetti broken in small pieces, then one can of tomatoes, a little red pepper, and one teaspoonful salt. Cook half an hour.

Scotch Meat Pie.—Get good round steak, cut into pieces, and dredge with flour. Into a frying pan put a little butter, a piece of suet, and a small onion. When hot, put in steak and fry brown quickly on both sides. Then cover with water and cook slowly for two hours. Add more flour to gravy if not thick enough. Put into a baking dish, make a rich biscuit dough for the top and bake. Put a cup in the center to keep the crust from falling into the gravy.

Beefsteak and Onions.—Take a thick steak (a flank steak is best), chop thoroughly, dredge with flour, spread with butter, pepper and salt to taste, place in a dripping pan or roaster. Cover with water, cover closely and place in the oven for about an hour. Slice onions, and twenty minutes before meal time spread the onions over the steak and return to oven. If the our with which the meat has been dredged does not make the gravy thick add a little browned flour mixed to smooth paste with water. Keep enough water around meat to have a nice gravy when done. Serve hot on a platter, either pouring gravy around steak or serve in a separate bowl.

BAKING.

Buster Brown't Delight.—Boil a pound of sugar in two-thirds of a pint of water for twenty minutes; add a cocoanut grated and a pound of prunes stoned and cut fine, and cook twenty minutes longer; remove from the fire and while still warm stir in a quarter of a pound of butter, the yolks of three eggs well beaten, and a little candied orange peel. Line small patty pans with puff paste; pour the mixture in and bake in a quick oven. Decorate each tart with a tiny pyramid of whipped cream meringue, with a candied cherry in the center.

Delicious Cocoanut Cookies. — Cream one-half cup lard, one-half cup butter, and two cups sugar; add one egg, two teaspoons vanilla, and one cup of cocoanut. Add enough our to roll and bake a light brown in a moderate oven.

Old Fashioned Gingerbread. — Use one cup of molasses, one cup of sugar, one-half cup of fried meat dripping, or lard, one-half cup of warm water, three teaspoonfuls of soda, and three of cream of tartar, one teaspoonful of ginger, and one of salt. Stir in flour to make a dough that you can knead on the board. Knead it a moment or so, then roll it out, put in small dripping pan, and bake.

SALADS.

Spinach Salad.—Mash to a paste a roll of cream cheese and add the yolks of three hard boiled eggs, forced through a sieve. Add salt to taste and a dash of cayenne, and enough salad oil or melted butter to moisten. Measure and add an equal quantity of finely chopped seasoned spinach. Mix well and shape into balls. Arrange in lettuce nests and serve with a French or boiled dressing.

Cream Salad Dressing.—Rub the yolks of two hard boiled eggs through a sieve; use one dessertspoonful of dry mustard, one tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half pint of cream, either juice of one lemon or two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, and as much cayenne pepper as can be taken on the blade of a small penknife. This is a good substitute for those who do not like oil on meats or vegetables.

DESSERTS.

Delicious Dessert. — To half pound of dates add half pound of English walnuts shelled, three tablespoonfuls of breadcrumbs, one cup of sugar, six eggs beaten separately, and one teaspoon of baking powder. Put breadcrumbs, sugar, and baking powder in bowl and beat in eggs, adding nuts and fruit last. Bake twenty minutes in layer tins. Break up, pile on dish, and serve with whipped cream.

Italian Dessert.—Melt a cupful of light brown sugar over the fire stirring constantly to prevent burning. When melted add one cup of blanched almonds chopped fine; remove quickly from fire and stir until the sugar hardens. Then break into small pieces; whip one pint of cream stiff; flavor with vanilla; add the sugared nuts, mixing thoroughly and serve immediately in compotes. This recipe should serve twelve persons.

AROUND THE HOUSE.

To keep top bureau drawers in order, gather up the empty cardboard boxes around the house and fit into the drawer, using the different ones for different articles, as hair-pins, safety pins, common pins, gloves, belts, veils, handkerchiefs, combs, and brushes. Then there always is a place for everything, and the drawer cannot get out of order.

Smart Afternoon Dress. Black velvet tunic draped over light grey satin and trimmed with silk embroidery and buttons.

In taking down your storm windows and doors, place a tag on each, telling where it belongs. Tie the screens up in a piece of paper and tie to the door or window they came out of. Always set the screens on edge, as they are less apt to warp in that position. Your screens will last longer and you will save much time when you want to put them up again.

Ammonia rubbed on beds and mattresses will keep them clean and free from bugs. A weak solution of turpentine poured down the water pipes once a week will drive the water bugs away.

Kerosene lamps are absolutely odorless if, when not in use, the wick is turned down below top of shaft.

If you wish to shut off the view from any window you can easily and cheaply do it by dissolving in a little hot water as much epsom salts as the water will absorb. Paint it over the window while hot, and when dry you will have a good imitation of ground glass. It is excellent for transoms, glass doors in cupboards, etc.

If a window sash is loose take strong cloth, the length of the sash, and six inches wide, sew up for a bag, leaving one end open. Fill with sand and close the open end. Laid over the sash the weight of the sand will fill every crevice and exclude the wind and cold air.

Newspaper for Moths.—The following is the way to put away furs in the spring: Take the garments outdoors; whip the fur thoroughly with a limber switch. Then comb every inch carefully with a moderately fine comb, hang on line, and air for half day if the weather will permit. Fold carefully and tie up in two or three thicknesses of newspaper. Put in a heavy cotton bag and tie securely. Hang in clothespress or closet after labeling with a pasted paper slip, so not to be disturbed until wanted.

For washing painted walls or woodwork, two tablespoonfuls of baking soda added to a pail of warm water makes the work easy.

To remove shiny spots from black woolen garments place garment, whether coat, trousers, or dress, on ironing board; wring a cloth from water, spread carefully over garment, then pass a hot flatiron back and forth just above the wet cloth as closely as you can without touching it. The nap will rise and the shine disappear.

To Clean Carpets—Use two ounces each of salsoda and borax, one cake of what soap dissolved in a large bucketful of boiling soft water. Let stand until cool; then add two ounces of sulphuric ether. Scrub the dusted carpet on the floor with the warm fluid and wipe dry with a clean cloth. This will destroy moths and clean and brighten the carpet beautifully.

When washing off a kitchen table many people take a knife and scrape off the particles that stay on. This often ruins the table. The best way is to put some coarse salt on the cloth and wash off the table in this way. It leaves the table clean.

To steam a few cups of pudding in a small dish use a medium sized kettle; place a wire toaster over kettle. Set the cups or dish on it and cover with a tin or enameled basin. Two biscuits or small slices of cake may be steamed by removing the lid of the teakettle, putting a flat wire egg beater over the top and covering with a small pan.

To have line in the kitchen well out of the way select the most convenient place along the wall, put two screw eyes about a foot and a half from ceiling or in the tops of window casing, allow about a yard and a half of rope to hang down sides, tie rings in centre of each and fasten on nail or hook. The rope will sag when let down; to avoid this put weights near each end, or, better still, pin baby's wooden stocking forms to line with large safety pins.

WIFE'S RELATIVES GO AHEAD

In England Husband's People Take Second Place.

In England, where the question of precedence is a vital one even at family parties, there is a definite rule as to whose relatives shall go first, those of the wife or those of the husband. As a matter of fact, says the Queen, precedence is generally accorded to the relatives of the wife.

There are several reasons for this being so. The wife's mother is taken in to dinner by her son-in-law, the host, as he could not take his own mother or his own sister. Again, a wife could go in to dinner with her brother-in-law, but not with her own brother when other men guests were present.

Concerning more distant relations the case is different. A host could take in his own married niece, and the hostess her nephew, but they would not do so if the wife's niece or the wife's nephew was present on the occasion. This because of the preference usually accorded to the relatives of the wife over those of the husband.

It is essentially at dinner parties that this question of precedence has to be considered, but in reality it comes to the front throughout the day, not only at meals, but on all those occasions where one or other of the ladies must take the lead. For instance, when a drive is proposed, either by carriage or by motor car, the first to enter the vehicle is a relative of the wife, mother or sister, followed by a relative of the husband, the hostess entering last.

At luncheon the wife's mother often occupies the seat at the bottom of the table in the absence of the host and assists in doing the honors to the guests. At tea she also assists her daughter in helping the guests to all they require in the way of cakes and break and butter, etc.

At dinner she is the first to be helped, as the waiting commences from the host's right hand, and should the guests be helped in the order in which they are seated, and they happen to be numerous, unless there are duplicate dishes the relatives of the husband have some little time to wait in each course. The signal for the ladies to leave the dining room is given by the hostess to the lady who is seated at the host's right hand, her mother in a family party, and she is the first to lead the way from the dining room to the drawing-room, followed by the other ladies, the hostess going last. The adjournment for the night is made in a like manner, the proposal being suggested by the hostess to her mother, and carred out as aforesaid. Thus it will be seen that throughout the visit the honors of the situation are bestowed upon the relations of the hostess, and this by general consent.

IN ROBES AND SANDALS.

Men and Women Try to Look Alike in London's Freak Club.

The latest freak club in London is called the Ethna. It has rooms on a street just off Picadilly, and here its men and women members meet for intellectual converse.

The rule of the club demands that there shall be as little distinction in the dress and appearance of the members as possible, and both men and women don long flowing white garments of sacklike shape and sandals before they enter the dimly lighted rooms of the club. Most of the men are clean shaven and a few of the women have short hair, while those who have long hair twist their locks about their heads as tightly as possible.

No introductions are ever made. Any member is permitted to talk to any other and to talk freely and openly on any subject. The object of the club is to foster free discussion between men and women. Visitors are occasionally allowed, but they must of course wear the flowing robes and sandals.

The membership is very limited, and a positive requisite is intellectual work of some sort. Most of the members are writers, others are interested in social problems and work on committees, while still others are members o fthe great band of men and women in London who seem always on the outlook for the very latest thing in fads and fancies.

"Mother, in sending out my birthday invitations, shall I say, 'Your presence is requested'?" "Of course not, my dear; you should say, 'Your presents are requested.'"

WILD ANIMALS AS PATIENTS

ONE RULE HOLDS GOOD IN ANIMAL KINGDOM

Elephants Lavish the Tenderest Affection on Their Young.

It is curious to see how the great animal world is in many ways a faithful reflection of our own—or is it the other way about? At any rate we find that in the animal world some babies are extremely well and carefully looked after and some have to shift at once for themselves. And, as with us, it depends on the size of the family.

The turbot, for instance, produces 15,000,000 eggs a year. And we find that in the heart of Mrs. Turbot, says the London Evening Standard, reporting the lecture of Dr. Chalmers Mitchell at the Royal Institute, there is about as much maternal instinct as you would get out of a pebble. All these 15,000,000 olive branches, so to speak, cause not the slightest flutter of pride or affection or anxiety in the maternal breast.

ELEPHANTS' AFFECTION.

This unnatural mother is among the most prolific of all mothers in the animal world. At the other end of the scale we have the elephant, and see at once how strong is the affection there between young and old. "The greatest naturalist who ever lived, Darwin," said the lecturer, "calculated that the average elephant lived a hundred years and that in that time Mr. and Mrs. Elephant had only six children, on whom they lavished the tenderest affection." It is a much prettier story than that of the turbot.

And yet in spite of the small families natural among elephants, if all the young born to a single pair of elephants lived on and on, these in their turn helping to form families of six every hundred years, we should at the end of 500 years have an elephant family on the earth numbering 15,000,000, and it would be impossible to move for elephants.

In the same way if a single turbot family all went on living, we should be able to walk across the Channel dry shod. Nature has to step in ruthlessly. There is in fact a "prodigious destruction" going on among the youth of the animal world. Nearly all young animals are good to eat, "just as a baby is better than an old gentleman," and herein lies the Spartan secret by which nature relegates all animals, from elephants to turbots, to their proper place in

THE SCHEME OF THINGS.

Throughout the animal kingdom we find that the one rule holds good: big families mean neglect and small families mean care and attention. The frog produces hundreds of tadpoles and most of these go to make a fine harvest for the ducks. The toad produces a very small family, and these are all fathered (for Mrs. Toad is not at all domesticated) until they are capable of looking after themselves.

Often it is found among the lower animals that the mother will have nothing to do with the upbringing of the young. The seahorse, the stickleback, the toad, and the emu are examples where the father rocks the cradle. It is not a very inspiring list, and throughout the higher animals the mother takes the place intended for her.

There is a moral here for those rare mothers belonging to the highest animals of all who sometimes try to shirk their natural duty and who, without being so heartless as the turbot, do not take the keen interest they should take in the upbringing of their children.

At least let them do as the penguins do, and take it in turns, so that while Mrs. Penguin is at the club Mr. Penguin watches faithfully over the unique egg at home, and then in turn takes his two hours off.

Handling an alligator egg, Chalmers Mitchell explained the attitude of

THE MOTHER ALLIGATOR.

She is callous as long as the young are in the egg, but so soon as they are hatched in the sand she behaves tenderly to them. There is a story that when the eggs are ready for breaking the youngsters inside bark loudly, whereupon the mother alligator goes and scratches them up.

But it was hinted that to consume either the egg or the story would need a tolerably large pinch of salt. But the smallest alligators do bark, and loudly. Mr. Mitchell took two home one day and put them for the moment in a small bath in the sitting-room.

A lady visitor who called immediately afterward and was left in the room for a moment had something like hysterics when she heard a deep baying proceeding from a footbath.

Finally Mr. Mitchell gave some hints on wild animals as pets. One must always remember that they are wild animals and that no wild animal can ever be trusted. The dog has been domesticated through hundreds of years, and, although he might be offending many dog lovers, had all the spirit and confidence knocked out of it. The cat, on the other hand, will only live with you on terms of perfect equality, and, unlike the dog, is not grateful for a beating. And all wild animal pets, said the lecturer, are like the cat, only much more so.

WOMAN'S TRAVELS IN AFRICA

Question of Precedence at Black Courts.

Miss Olive Macleod, who travelled through Nigeria, the German Cameroons and the French Congo to set up a stone on the grave of Lieut. Boyd Alexander, to whom she had been engaged, told how she had travelled close on 4,000 miles in Africa, chiefly on foot and horseback, penetrating to many spots which no white feet had ever trod before, says the London Daily Mail.

What struck one in her gossiping account of her travels was that humanity is very much the same beneath the surface all over the world. A native sultan's court, she said, reminded her very much of a European monarch's. The court officials had much the same apportionment of duties and quarrelled about precedence in the same way.

Black belles wear false tails of hair and pads to make their own appear more luxuriant. Even their little children play marbles in the English style. And when reformers among us advocate certificates of fitness for marriage they are only pleading for a system which obtains among many West African tribes.

The young men of these tribes are tested as to their manliness and endurance by being beaten with strips of leather or by being obliged to climb up the face of an almost perpendicular rock. Unless they satisfy the test they cannot marry. No women would accept them as husbands.

One very interesting point was that the natives pick up English quickly and regard it as "the white man's language." If Frenchmen and Germans cannot speak it they are not looked upon as "proper white men." So general is this view that the German officers and sergeants are obliged to drill their black troops with English words of command.

NO BRASS BANDS IN ARMY.

Definite Proposal That They Shall All be Abolished.

A despatch from London says: The British army without a brass band—such is the doleful prophecy of the Pall Mall Gazette. It says that a definite proposal has been brought forward that all the brass bands of the army, except those of the Guards regiments, shall be abolished, and that the sole music provided for the future shall be that of the drums and fifes and bugles, with the pipers for the Scottish regiments.

Some years ago fresh regulations were made as to the maintenance of regimental bands. The cost of them fell entirely on the officers. The new regulations threw some of the expense on the public purse. But even now it is considereds that in a modern, business army the officers should not be liable to this kind of expenditure.

Every officer to-day has to subscribe one day's pay a year to support his regimental band, and that does not cover all his expenses in the matter. Take the case of the Royal Artillery band. The public grant is $4,500 a year, and the officers of the regiment are called upon to provide a further sum of some $15,000 annually to maintain their splendid string band.

The suggestion is that if the War Office put an end to this tax on the officers as not being in the best interests of the service the Chancellor of the Exchequer is not likely to provide the whole cost of the military brass bands out of the public purse. And a veteran recruiting sergeant who catches his men by the National Gallery declares that the abolition of the bands will pretty well ruin his business.

SHIPS OF THE FUTURE.

Sir William White, a leading naval architect, declared recently that the facts that tend to limit the increase in the size of ships are chiefly commercial. Large ships cost more to build than small ones, and are more expensive to operate. Moreover, they are not so sure of obtaining their complements of passengers or cargo without delay. In addition, comparatively few harbors possess channels of sufficient depth, or docks large enough to accommodate vessels even of the length and weight of the Mauretania. Sir William believes that although large ships will continue to ply between a few favored ports for special services, and even larger ones may be built, the great bulk of ocean traffic will continue to be carried by vessels of moderate size.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, FEBRUARY 11.

Lesson VI.—The boy Jesus in the Temple., Luke 2. 40-52. Golden Text, 2. 49.

Verse 40. The child grew—Developed normally as a human being.

Waxed strong—He was a healthy child, strong both physically and intellectually. The verb wax is still good English, from the Anglo-Saxon weaxan, to assume by degrees a specified state or condition. (Compare the German wachsen, to grow.)

Filled with wisdom—Literally, becoming full of wisdom. The wisdom was a matter of growth as much as was the strength of body and mind.

41. His parents went—Women were not required to go, but often voluntarily accompanied their husbands and sons.

The passover—Originally a harvest festival, which later was observed also as a memorial of the exodus. Compare Exod. 23. 14-17.

42. When he was twelve years old—A time of special significance in every Jewish boy's life, when in a religious sense he reached his majority, becoming himself responsible for obedience to the law and for performing all requirements devolving upon adult males. In other than religious matters, he still remained subject to paternal oversight and authority.

After the custom—In harmony with the custom. This required that the feast be celebrated at Jerusalem by all males. The privilege of attendance was, however, extended to women. This brought about great annual pilgrimages to the national capital at this special season.

43. When they had fulfilled the days—Seven days, during which they were required to eat unleavened bread and to observe special ceremonies prescribed for each day. The first and seventh days were set apart for "a holy convocation." Compare Exod. 12. 15-17.

The boy Jesus tarried behind — Absorbed in the interest which the wonderful services and ceremonies of the temple presented.

44. Supposing him to be in the company—The caravan of friends and neighbors who together had journeyed from Nazareth to Jerusalem and who were now returning in the same way. Men, women and children above a certain age would quite naturally be in separate groups.

A day's journey—Perhaps not more than six or eight miles would be covered by such a caravan on the first day of their journey.

46. After three days—Counting the first day's journey homeward, a day's journey back to Jerusalem, and another day spent in search for him, in part among their kinsfolk and acquaintance (v. 44), and in part after reaching Jerusalem.

In the temple—Probably in one of the outer chambers which adjoined the courts of the main building, and in which the learned doctors of the law conducted school and held council.

Teachers—Scribes and rabbis. Among the famous teachers of this period, some of whom may have been present, were the aged Hillel and Shammai, Rabban Simeon, Gamaliel, Joseph of Arimathea, and Nicodemus.

Questions—On subjects pertaining to the national religion, upon which, as a wide-awake and gifted lad, he had meditated profoundly.

47. All that heard him—Including the learned teachers of the law.

48. Son—Literally, child. A touch of endearment as well as reproof is evident in the words of Mary.

49. How is it?—Jesus is surprised not at their coming back for him, but at their not knowing immediately where to look for him.

In my Father's house—Or, about my Father's business. Literally, in or about the things of my Father. The boy's question implies an appeal to his past obedience and loyalty to his parents, as well as to their supposed understanding of the fact that in a special sense his was to be a life for God. Mary's early training of her son without doubt contributed much to inculcating this conviction, which now is strengthened and clarified by the enlightenment of the Spirit.

51. Was subject unto them — A fact specially mentioned by the evangelist lest from what precedes his readers might infer the contrary.

52. Stature—Or, age.

Favor—Or, grace.

DIFFERENT TEMPERATURE.

STATES THAT PARISIAN SAGE IS BEST HAIR TONIC

"I had a bad case of dandruff. My scalp was full of dandruff and it came out thick and scalpy. My hair came out badly; often I nearly cried on account of losing my pretty head of hair.

I heard of PARISIAN SAGE and only had to use two bottles, before the hair stopped coming out, the scalp became clean, and all the dandruff disappeared. The hair became silky and one big reason that I liked PARISIAN SAGE was that it kept the hair smooth, silky, and clean, with no traces of stickiness.

I believe this tonic to be the best on the market as there has been no return of dandruff, or hair falling out whatever. I am glad to publicly endorse the use of PARISIAN SAGE. I have often endorsed its use and am glad to do it." 83 E. Bond St., Corry Pa.

PARISIAN SAGE, the delightful hair dressing and beautifier sold by W. S. COLE and druggists everywhere. Guaranteed for falling hair, dandruff and scalp itch. Large bottle 50 cents.

Crediton

Council meeting was held in the Hall on Monday. The Council have decided to ask for tenders for the construction of four small bridges in the Township, one on the 10th concession, on the 14th concession, one on the 21st concession and the other on the L. R. E. concession. It may be possible that a new one will be built at Essery's side road.

S. Brown made a big shipment of seed the past week. Crediton has got the name for having the best market for seed for many miles around. It is a common thing to see teams here from the other side of Parkhill.

Joseph Halse is having some good sales of tile and brick. The roads are in splendid condition for sleighing and the farmers are taking advantage of it.

Quite a number of people are ill with the grippe and suffering from colds. This is a hard winter for all concerned.

Henry Mills of Centralia was in town on Monday collecting coal bills. This is the weather the coal man likes.

The Special Anniversary services which were held in the Evangelical Church last Sunday were an entire success. Rev. Dr. Staebler of the Publishing House, Cleveland, Ohio, preached in the morning in the German language and in the evening in English. In the afternoon he gave an interesting address on "Live Y. P. A. Work" which proved very interesting. The meetings throughout the day were well attended. On Monday evening a lecture, illustrated with views, was delivered by the Reverend gentleman, entitled, "To the Golden Gate and back again", Before the lecture took place, a short song service was held, consisting of singing by the Male Chorus and the choir, and a beautiful pantomime "Rock of Ages" after which Rev. Burn sang a solo "When I survey the wondrous cross" The church was well filled and all were well pleased with the program and lecture; Rev. Staebler has many friends here, who will always welcome him any time he may choose to visit us.

ECZEMA 20 YEARS !

4 Doctors Failed. Morriscy's No. 4 Cured in 60 Days.

Mr. A. J. Kierstead, Mexico, Maine, tells in a series of letters how he was relieved.

"I am terribly afflicted with Eczema and can find no cure. I have been advised to write you, because Father Morriscy's cures are known in all parts. If you can help me, for God's sake do so. Please reply quick."

Second letter: "Thanks for your quick reply. I have been troubled with Eczema for 20 years—it is on my face, neck, arms and hands, and right now it is one solid sore. I can't seem to get any cure."

30 days later: "As you requested me to let you know how your salve worked, can say it did more good than the four doctors here who treated me. My face and neck—also my arms and hands are almost well—but I need another box of Salve."

July 10th, 1911: "I am delighted to tell you that I am entirely cured of Eczema, and am more than thankful for your Ointment. It did for me what 4 doctors here could not do, and I cannot possibly find fitting words of praise for my relief and cure."

A. J. Kierstead.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

For The Nervous Woman,

Or the woman who experiences hot flashes nothing is so good to soothe, quiet and calm the nervous system as a pure glyceric extract of native medical plants, and made without alcohol, which has been sold by druggists for the past forty years, and most favorably known as Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. In younger years some women suffer from dizziness, or fainting spells, hysteria, headache, bearing-down feelings and pain. All these symptoms of irregularity and female disturbance are relieved by the use of this famous "Prescription" of Doctor Pierce.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system, and in particular to the organs distinctly feminine. For over-worked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, it is an excellent appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

MRS. McDONALD.

"My disease was called retroversion," writes MRS. LYDIA McDONALD, of Mecosta, Mich., Route 1. "I had nervous chills and numb spells and they would leave me very weak. Then I had inflammation and the doctor said I had a floating kidney. I doctored seven months with our family physician. He said I would have to have an operation. Then I stopped taking his medicine. After taking three bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicines I have not had any nervous chills or weak spells. I am better than for years.

"My daughter is now taking the 'Prescription' and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, also the 'Pellets' for nervousness and weak, tired feeling. These remedies have helped her over so much in a short time. We have great faith in your medicines for female troubles."

Be Fair. Buy a sack or barrel before judging PURITY FLOUR

SOME people have attempted to judge PURITY FLOUR before knowing the facts about it—before using it. So we ask you to be fair and to buy a sack or barrel of PURITY FLOUR and give it a thorough try-out before attempting to arrive at a judgment.

Taste the creamy, flaky pie crust, and the deliciously light cakes PURITY FLOUR rewards you with. My! How they make your mouth water!

Such high-class results can only be obtained when using a flour consisting exclusively of the high-grade portions of the best Western hard wheat berries.

And remember, that, on account of its extra strength and extra quality, PURITY FLOUR requires more water when making bread and more shortening when making pastry, than you are accustomed to use with ordinary flour.

Free to Stock and Poultry Raisers

We will send, absolutely free, for the asking, postpaid, one of our large sixty-four page books on the common diseases of stock and poultry. Tells you how to feed all kinds of heavy and light horses, colts and mares milch cows, calves and fattening steers, also how to keep and feed poultry so that they will lay as well in winter as in summer. No farmer should be without it.

It permanently cures Bots, Colic, Worms, Skin Diseases and Debility. Restores run-down animals to plumpness and vigor. It will increase the milk yield three to five lbs. per cow per day and make the milk richer. Royal Purple is not a stock food. There is no filler used in its manufacture, and we import from Europe all the seeds, herbs, barks, etc., and grind them on our own premises. Therefore we can guarantee it to you as being absolutely pure. We do not use cheap filler to make up a large package. We give you the best condition powder ever put on the market in a concentrated form. A tablespoon levelled off once a day is sufficient for a full grown animal. It prevents disease, keeps your animals in perfect health, and is absolutely harmless. It makes six weeks old calves as large as ordinary calves at 10 weeks. You can develop six pigs ready for market in just one month's less time than you can possibly do without it at a cost of only $1.50, saving you a month's work and food. A 50c package will last a horse 70 days. A $1.50 pail or air-tight tin containing four times as much as a 50c package will last an animal 280 days. If it does not produce better results than anything you have ever used or give you satisfaction, we will refund your money. Andrew Wegrich, of Wainfleet, Ont., says that he tried it on one cow, weighed her milk on the 16th, 17 lbs., on the 29th she gave 22 lbs. Dan McEwen, Canada's greatest horse trainer, says: "I have fed Royal Purple to The Eel and all my racehorses for four years. They have never been off their feed. Your cough powder works like magic." Mr. Tom Smith, trainer for the Hon. Adam Beck, says: "We had a mare in our stables last fall belonging to Miss Clauston, of Montreal. We could not feed her any bran on account of scouring. We commenced using your Royal Purple Stock Specific. The results were wonderful. We found after using it three weeks we could feed her bran or any other soft feed and she actually took on 21 lbs. during that time."

CURED OF EPILEPSY

A Case That Should Bring Hope to Other Sufferers.

Epilepsy is one of the most serious troubles that afflicts the human race. This trouble is also known as "falling sickness" or "fits." The patient suddenly loses consciousness and falls. The muscles become rigid and there is a twitching of the face and limbs, sometimes accompanied by frothing of the mouth. The convulsion is followed by a deep sleep varying in duration. In the early stages the attack may only occur at intervals of several months, but as the disease progresses they become more and more frequent, the patient becomes debilitated and the mind weakened. Epilepsy is generally regarded as incurable, but taken in its earliest stages has in many cases been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, strengthen the system, thus enabling it to resist the progress of the disease. The following case will be of interest to any who suffer from this terrible malady. Mrs. John Mather, Bancroft, Ont., says: "My little son, Clive, at the age of five was stricken with spasms or fits and despite all we did for him, for the next five years was afflicted with them, apparently growing worse. He was under the care, at various times, of five different doctors, but they did him no good. He was growing worse all the time, until he got so bad he would sometimes have twelve of these spasms in twenty-four hours. I sent him to the Sick Children's Hospital, where they pronounced the trouble epilepsy, but did not help him. Later he was treated by a specialist, but to no avail. I was almost in despair when my mother advised me to give him Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I got the pills and gave them to him, strictly following the directions as to the diet. He continued taking the pills for several months, the spasms gradually coming less frequently, and with less severity, and finally they ceased altogether. It is now about two years since he took the last of the pills, and he has not had a fit in that time, and is now as well and strong as other boys of his age. I have great reason to be grateful for what the pills have done for him, and hope this may be of value to some other sufferer."

These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Many a man's wisdom is taken for granted because of the smart things he doesn't say.

The Poor Man's Friend.—Put up in small bottles that are easily portable and sold for a very small sum, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil possesses more power in concentrated form than one hundred times the quantity of many unguents. Its cheapness and the varied uses to which it can be put make it the poor man's friend. No dealer's stock is complete without it.

It is the man who knows all about it who has the least to say on the subject.

Pimples So Bad He Was Ashamed

Tried Everything but Did It No Good. One Box of Cuticura Ointment Took Pimples Away.

'About seven years ago pimples broke out all over my face and neck. When they would first come out they would be big and red, then after a while they would turn white, and matter would come out. Sometimes they would itch so I could hardly sleep. I was ashamed to go down street, my face looked so bad. I went to several doctors and got medicine, which did me no good, and bought ointment, salves and patent medicines, but none of them would cure my face and neck. A friend advised me to try Cuticura Ointment. I got one box, and it took the pimples away before I had it all used up. I can say it is a wonderful remedy. Any sufferer who has pimples should use Cuticura Ointment if they want a sure cure. I never had any soap equal to Cuticura Soap." (Signed) Aylmer Mathers, Parkhill, Ont., Dec. 24, 1910.

Sores All Over Baby's Body

"When my baby boy was six months old, his body was completely covered with large sores that seemed to itch and burn, and cause terrible suffering. The eruption began in pimples which would open and run, making large sores. His hair came out and finger nails fell off, and the sores were over the entire body, causing little or no sleep for baby or myself. Great scabs would come off when I removed his shirt. We tried a great many remedies but nothing would help him, till a friend induced me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment but a short time before I could see that he was improving, and in six weeks' time he was entirely cured. He had suffered about six weeks before we tried the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, although we had tried several other things and doctors too. I think the Cuticura Remedies will do all that is claimed for them, and a great deal more." (Signed) Mrs. Noble Tubman, Dodson, Mont., Jan 23, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 56 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A., for a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. booklet.

THE MAKING OF MATCHES.

Were Introduced by Derosne, of Paris, in 1816.

Chemical matches, compounds like sulphuric acid and chlorates, which would ignite on being mixed, were used, says London Engineering, more than a hundred years ago; a phosphorus compound, ignited by friction, is supposed to have been introduced by Derosne, of Paris, in 1816.

Mr. E. G. Clayton, in a lecture recently, spoke of matches which he had been able to analyse, and he considered many generally accredited statements as inaccurate. Samuel Jones introduced his "Promethean" matches in 1828. They were chemical matches, containing chlorate, sulphur, and lycopodium, and in the small glass tube sulphuric acid. He also made "friction lights" in 1832, containing sulphur, antimony, sulphide, chlorate, iron, oxide, and gum, and called them "lucifers."

But friction lights were previously made in 1826 by John Walker; these were coated with sulphur and ignited by being drawn through sand-paper. Phosphorus matches, ignited by being struck on the box, so-called "congreves," were probably introduced by Sir W. Congreve, the inventor of the war rocket, early in the 'thirties.

They were chiefly taken up under that name in Germany, and in Austria, and contained, in addition to ingredients already mentioned, frequently nitrates, powdered glass, chalk, starch, and a blue dye. Phosphoric cigar-lighters came from Vienna early in the 'fifties. The chlorate, "Engineering" adds, was, about 1835, replaced by lead oxide, which Preshi (Vienna) mixed with nitric acid and dried; strips of red phosphorus paper were manufactured by Bottger in 1848; but they did not find favor until reintroduced from Sweden.

BABY'S HEALTH IN WINTER

During the winter months the mother finds it very difficult to keep her little ones well. Colds come on quickly and the discomfort to the baby affects the whole household. To keep baby well during the winter he should be warmly clothed, have a daily bath, lots of fresh air, and Baby's Own Tablets should be given him occasionally to keep his little bowels working regularly, as nothing will bring on colds so quickly as a clogged condition of the bowels. Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little ones. They break up colds, cure constipation and indigestion, expel worms and make baby bright and happy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS EMERGE TRIUMPHANT FROM EVERY TEST.

Ernest St. Pierre tells how they rescued him from the tortures of Backache and Bright's Disease.

Le Petit Bois Franc, Temiscouta Co., Que., Feby. 5 (Special)—Ernest St. Pierre a well-known farmer of this place is telling his neighbors of his almost miraculous cure from Bright's Disease, and he always winds up with:

"I advise all persons suffering from Backache or Bright's Disease to use Dodd's Kidney Pills." For like thousands of other sufferers in Canada Mr. St. Pierre found his cure in the good old Canadian Kidney remedy.

And his indeed was a particularly bad case. His eyes were puffed and swollen, his appetite was fitful and he was always tired and nervous, while the pains in his back made any form of work something to be avoided. To-day he is strong and well. Six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills worked the transformation.

More and more in this neighborhood is it becoming a motto, "If the disease is of the kidneys or from the kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it." They have been tried in many cases of backache, rheumatism, lumbago and Bright's disease, and in no case where they have been given a fair trial have they failed to cure.

REMARKABLE RENTS.

Ancient Customs Which Prevail in Some Parts of England.

One of the most curious rents in existence is that paid yearly to the King by the Corporation of London. This consists of six horseshoes, sixty-one nails, and two faggots—the annual rental of a moor in Shropshire and a forge in St. Clement Danes.

Another strange rent is paid yearly by the Duke of Marlborough in connection with his Woodstock estate. According to the ancient laws, the duke must send a new flag, embroidered with the fleur-de-lys, every year to the Sovereign of England. To fail in this respect would cause the estate to lapse to the Crown.

Long ago St. Olave's Grammar School, in Tooley Street, let a field in Horsleydown for a red rose, to be presented on Midsummer Day, annually, for several hundred years. Some three hundred years have yet to pass before this rent can be stopped.

Quite recently the Fulham Borough Council instituted a rent as remarkable as those instituted in past years. A military band is permitted to practice twice weekly at a certain place in the borough in return for four free performances yearly in Fulham parks.

FLOORED THE BISHOP

Dr. Ingram, Bishop of London, who has many Canadian admirers, declares that children—of whom he is very fond—often upset him with their questions.

Not long ago the Bishop was addressing a gathering of poor children, and at the close of his remarks invited any boy or girl to ask him questions. His Lordship answered several, but was finally floored by a little girl, who asked:

"Please, sir, why did the angels

GOOD LOOKS AND GOOD TEMPER.

A Chat With Our Lady Readers.

Have you ever noticed how miserable and unhappy the little pains and aches make one? A stinging cut, badly chapped hands, a nasty burn, a sore foot, a poisoned finger—none of them wounds or ailments ever likely to cause serious trouble, but bad enough to put an edge on one's temper and spoil good looks.

Take this advice. When in pain from any of these everyday evils, just use Zam-Buk. As soon as you put it on to a sore, a cut, a burn, or any skin-injury, it stops the pain and the smarting and starts up healing. Don't think that because Zam-Buk is so widely used by medical men, by nurses, and for serious skin diseases and accidents it is only for serious cases. Keep it handy in the kitchen, the workroom, and use it immediately you get some injury or have some sore.

Mrs. Chas. H. Barrett, Harmony Road, Truro, N. S., says: "I had an ingrowing toe nail, which caused me acute agony. Sometimes the pain was so severe I could not sleep. It became so bad that I feared blood-poisoning had set in. I was advised to try Zam-Buk and bound up the sore toe with it. In a few days it was much easier, and I continued the treatment. The result is that to-day the toe is sound and I have no more trouble with it."

Zam-Buk cures piles, eczema, varicose ulcers, cold sores, abscesses, blood poisoning, ringworm, and all similar skin diseases. Sold everywhere at 50c. a box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

"GENTLE HINTS" IN CHINA.

There is a peculiar and long-standing custom in the Celestial kingdom of China. It is to present coffins to parents by sons and daughters, when the parents attain fifty-five years of age, and wish them very many happy returns of the day. Often these coffins are used as wardrobes until they are needed for their legitimate purpose. Therefore, coffins are usually to be seen in many houses in China. Though these are kept in the name of the elderly people, when any member of the family dies the coffin is used. Many of the customs of China have been done away with, but this seems to have a stronger hold on the people.

FOURTEEN MEN DROWNED

A Submarine Collided Off Portsmouth With Gunboat Hazard

A despatch from Portsmouth says: The total loss on Friday morning of the British submarine "A 3," with the whole of her crew, after collision with the gunboat Hazard adds another to the long list of similar accidents which have in recent years thrown the British navy and nation into mourning. The crew of eleven men on board the little vessel, which is one of the older class, was composed of volunteers from the men of the fleet, as is the case with the compliments of all submarines. Besides the regular crew of ten men and a lieutenant who were on board the "A 3" the Admiralty states three other lieutenants were on the vessel going through a course of instruction and were in the submarine when she sank, making a total of 14 deaths. The submarine "A 3," which went out of the harbor on Friday morning to carry out a series of diving and torpedo exercises, sank like a stone immediately after her collision. The submarine lies on the Princess Shoal, almost on the same spot where the submarine "A 1" was lost, with all hands, on March 18, 1910. Torpedo practice had been in progress for some time and the submarine "A 3" was partially submerged when she came into collision.

BANK MESSENGER ROBBED.

Another Daring Theft on Paris Street in Daylight.

A despatch from Paris, France, says: Another attack upon a bank messenger took place on Wednesday, and the robber escaped with about $30,000. The bank messenger, or garcon de recette, as he is known here, was making his way along the Passage Meslya at 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning when a man approached him. After a short struggle the aggressor threw pepper into the eyes of the messenger. He then pinned his arms behind his back and threw him to the pavement. He extracted a case of notes to the value of 150,000 francs from the messenger's pocket. An effort is being made to prevent further attacks upon these messengers.

HOSTLER BURNED ALIVE.

Clothes Caught Fire While Alone in Stratford Hotel Stables.

A despatch from Startford says: In a small fire of mysterious origin at the City Hotel stables on Thursday afternoon, Robert McEwen, one of the hostlers, lost his life. In some manner his clothes caught fire while he was alone in the barn, through which he ran, blazing from head to foot, to fall into the arms of his father, who had just come out of the hotel, and succumb. Deceased, who was forty-five years of age and of splendid physique, was burned almost to a crisp. The stable was very little damaged, and the horses, seventeen in number, were all gotten out safely.

LONE MAN HELD UP 30 PEOPLE

Daring Work of Unmasked Bandit in Vancouver.

A despatch from Vancouver, B. C., says: The most spectacular and the boldest hold-up in the city's recent wave of crime occurred shortly after 9 o'clock on Thursdav night when a lone bandit armed, but unmasked, entered McIntyre's cafe in Seymour street, one of the largest in the city, and flourished his revolver at the heads of thirty men and women seated at the tables. The bandit had apparently awaited his opportunity, which came when the cashier was called to the telephone. He dashed through the front door, made his haul in a few moments and disappeared.

THE CARELESS GROCER

Blundered, and Great Good Came of It.

A careless grocer left the wrong package at a Michigan home one day and thereby brought a great blessing to the household.

"Two years ago I was a sufferer from stomach trouble, so acute that the effort to digest ordinary food gave me great pain, and brought on a condition of such extreme nervousness that I could not be left alone. I thought I should certainly become insane. I was so reduced in flesh that I was little better than a living skeleton. The doctors failed to give me relief and I despaired of recovery.

"One day our groceryman left a package of Grape-Nuts food by mistake, so I tried some for dinner. I was surprised to find that it satisfied my appetite and gave me no distress whatever. The next meal I ate of it again, and to be brief, I have lived for the past year almost exclusively on Grape-Nuts. It has proved to be a most healthful and appetizing food, perfectly adapted to the requirements of my system.

"Grape-Nuts is not only easily digested and assimilated, but I find that since I have been using it I am able to eat anything else my appetite fancies, without trouble from indigestion. The stomach trouble and nervousness have left me, I have regained my plumpness and my views of life are no longer despondent and gloomy.

"Other members of my family, especially my husband, (whose old enemy 'heart-burn,' has been vanquished) have also derived great benefit from the use of Grape-Nuts food and we think no morning meal complete without it." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

ROBBED BY THUGS.

Montreal Man Victim of a Daring Hold-up.

A despatch from Montreal says: A hold-up of a most desperate type took place on St. Antoine street on Thursday evening, when Isaac Cooper of Point St. Charles was waylaid by two young highwaymen assaulted and robbed. One of the thugs struck Cooper over the head with a sandbag, and then held him by the throat against a wall while the other went through his pockets, only securing a few keys, however. The thugs escaped.

INCREASE IN CUSTOMS.

Receipts for January Reached Total of $6,598,193.84.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Customs receipts for the month of January show an increase of over three quarters of a million as compared wtih the revenues for the corresponding period of the last fiscal year. The receipts totalled $6,598,193.84 as against $5,783,822.68, an increase of $814,371.16. The increase for the ten months amounts to the gratifying sum of $11,359,944.17, the figures being for 1911-12, $70,268,252.08, and for 1910-11, $58,908,307.91.

EMPEROR'S EQUINE GUEST.

An animal belonging to the Roman Emperor Caligula was stabled in a palace in a stall of marble, fed at an ivory manger with gilded oats, and was guarded when asleep by soldiers. And every day it went to dine with the Emperor. When another steed belonging to a later Roman Emperor died, it was buried with royal honors, and a mausoleum was erected to its memory. Yet another famous horse of history belonged to Alexander the Great. It would kneel to allow its master to mount, and more than once it saved his life by its fleetness.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

RAILROAD EQUIPMENT BONDS ARE EVEN SAFER THAN RAILROAD MORTGAGE BONDS.

During Bad Times of Railroad Financing No Equipment Bondholder Has Lost Principal or Interest—Equipment Movable and Can be Sold to Other Companies—Railroads Cannot Operate Without Cars—Courts Have Ruled to Class Them with Preferred Claims Ahead of Mortgage Bonds.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor.")

It is evident from what was said last week that equipment bonds differ in two important respects from all other classes of railroad issues. First, the title to the property which secures the bonds does not vest in the railroad (but with a trustee); and secondly, the property is movable and not fixed in any one locality. As a result of these two points, the holders of equipment bonds are in a decidedly more advantageous position than the holders of the mortgage bonds in the event of the railroad becoming bankrupt.

"If a railroad is unable to meet its interest charges," writes an authority, "the mortgage bondholders can rarely do better than have a receiver appointed who will operate the railroad in their interest; but if, with honest and efficient management, the railroad cannot be made to earn its interest charges, the mortgage bondholders usually have to consent to the scaling of their bonds to a point where the railroad can operate upon a paying basis."

With the holders of equipment bonds the case is quite different. If the receiver defaults upon their bonds they have only to direct the trustee to enter upon possession of the equipment and sell it or lease it to some other railroad. (It will be remembered that the equipment is held by a trustee and leased to the railroad until such time as it has been fully paid for, i.e., until the last equipment bond secured on that particular lot of equipment has been redeemed. Then the railroad owns it outright and not until then does it own any part thereof.

The knowledge that the bondholders have this power has made the instances where it became necessary to use it very few indeed. The reasons are almost obvious.

The equipment of a railroad is essential to its operation. Rails and terminals are merely the shop as it were, the equipment constitutes the supply of tools. If, therefore, the receiver were deprived of the equipment it would be utterly impossible to satisfy the road's creditors, as the road couldn't be operated.

The result of this has been that in the States (there has so far been no occasion in Canada to adjudicate on this matter) the courts, both State and Federal, have ruled that the necessary equipment of a bankrupt railroad must be preserved. They have moreover "placed the charges for principal and interest of equipment obligations," writes Mr. Henry, of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York "upon an equality with charges for wages, materials, and other operating expenses and in priority to interest of even first mortgage bonds."

As a result, equipment bonds have made a remarkable record during times of stress in railroad circles. Between the years 1888 and 1905 took place the principal railroad troubles in the States. A careful search has been made of all reorganizations during that period and it was discovered that "sixteen different railroads, aggregating nearly one hundred thousand miles, and located in widely different parts of the country had outstanding equipment bonds at the time of default. IN EVERY CASE THE PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST OF EQUIPMENT BONDS WERE PAID IN FULL WHILE ALL OTHER SECURITIES, WITH A FEW EXCEPTIONS, WERE REDUCED IN RATE OR AMOUNT OR BOTH." Two of these railroads, it is said, offered to the holders of equipment bonds the option of an advantageous exchange of securities, which amounted to more than payment in full.

In security, therefore, the facts herein set forth, justify the conclusion that equipment bonds possess security equal or superior to that of any other form of railroad bonds.

So much for safety of principal and interest.

PROFITABLE POWER BONDS

¶ Many of Canada's shrewdest and best informed investors have bought Western Canada Power Co. Bonds. At their present price of 90 they pay over 5½%. The plant is located 35 miles from the growing cities of Vancouver and New Westminster, B.C. and has secured perpetual water rights from government. Can develop 100,000 H.P. as demand increases and should earn this year three times bond interest. Engineer in charge, R. F. Hayward successfully constructed Mexican Light Heat & Power Co. In addition to high rate of interest bonds should appreciate considerably in next year. Directorate includes Sir Max Aitken; C. H. Cahan; A. R. Doble, Secretary Bank of Montreal; Jno. Hendry; Wm. McNeill, Vancouver; Mr. Campbell Sweeney, Manager Bank of Montreal, Vancouver. This is an exceptional investment opportunity from standpoint of both security and interest. Prof. W. H. Day of the Ontario Agricultural College in speaking of underdraining in Ontario says.—"The extension of underdrainage is one of the biggest problems in Canada to-day. In the last ten years there have been 500,000 acres of farm land underdrained in this province. When I tell you that each acre so drained produced an average of $20 higher than before you will see that this has meant an increase in the value of the annual production of Ontario of ten million dollars. But there are still ten million acres in this province that need underdraining and at the same rate there would be an increase were this done, or $200,000,000 in our production. Cut the average increases in half, make it ten dollars an acre, and you still have a possible increase of $100,000,000. With nine provinces in the Dominion you can figure out what is possible in this way for the country."

Prof. Day explained the specific benefits which follow upon proper draining. The farmer is able to get upon his land from three to four weeks earlier, his land is warmer and better germination follows, there is more air circulating through the soil and in time of drought there is more moisture.

There is a movement among the great manufacturing concerns of New York City to confine their advertising almost entirely to the newspapers, having found them to be the best medium This is a wise decision. An enlargement of the borrowing powers of municipalities has been asked the Ontario Legislature in order that small loans could be raised in emergencies without submitting a by-law In fact an equalization of the powers of municipalities was asked. It was suggested that in small communities this special borrowing power should be limited to an amount equal to one mill on the dollar of the aggregate assessment.

The postmasters have sent a petition to the Government asking for an increase in salary. They ask that the commission of the sale of stamps may be made a sliding one in proportion to the revenue of the office. They also want an allowance for heating, lighting and maintenance of offices which are not situated in Government buildings, and that for work before eight in the morning and after seven in the evening overtime be paid at the rate of twenty cents an hour.

Good roads make it easier for country children to attend school and enable them to do so with greater regularity Nothing so much concerns the life of the people in the rural districts as the means of communication between communities, towns and railroad stations. Good highways make it possible to centralize schools and churches. When a doctor is needed he is needed quickly and sometimes often. If this unfortunate necessity arises what a boon it is to have good roads and what distress bad roads may cause.

You will find our town a pleasant place in which to live, and almost devoid of the evil influences usually existing in towns. Its people are charitable law-abiding, genial, clever and accommodating. You will find it a cheap place in which to live. Sharp competition in all branches of trade has so reduced prices that everything in the mercantile line can be had at the very lowest figures going and in view of which our town has become the great trading mart of the surrounding country.

As the years go by it is pleasing to note that more farmers write letters on printed letterheads and have their cards on their envelopes. It was once thought that no one could do this unless he was engaged in the production of some speciality, or breeding some pure blood farm stock. No one believes that now. Let the farm be named, and then give that with the name, of the owner and his postoffice address, and the business is done. The cost of printing is trifling in comparison with its benefits.

HICKS' FEBRUARY FORECASTS.—A reactionary storm period, with New Moon at its center, falls at the 16th, 17th and 18th. The Earth's vernal equinox will also be present during this period, intensifying storms and other phenomena. Low barometer, much warmer, with very active storms in many sections, will be natural at this time. A Seismic Period is central on the 17th extending from the 14th to the 20th.

THE BEAR AND HIS SHADOW.—Probably the average bear could see his shadow on Friday last, provided he did not have dimmed eyesight, but it could hardly be said that it was any more than the merest shadow of a shadow. At noon, however, the sky cleared a little, and possibly just at that time a shadow could be cast. As a result, according to the old legend, the bear returns to his den to remain another six weeks.

DEBATE—Owing to the fact that Rev. Livingstone of Mitchell missed his train connection at Stratford on Thursday of last week, he was unable to take part in the debate on church union in Main Street church that evening. The pastor Rev. Powell, however, filled the vacancy very creditably, taking the affirmative side, while Rev. Hobbert of Wingham District took the negative. A large number were present and enjoyed the debate, both sides being well taken. Under the circumstances it was deemed advisable that no decision be given.

DEATH OF MRS. CAMM.—The death of Mary Bailey, widow of the late John Camm, which took place at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. M. J. Fletcher, North street, Exeter, on Sunday last, was an event causing much regret among her many friends in the community who knew her best. Mrs. Camm was enjoying her usual health up to about 2 weeks ago, when she was taken her advBanced age being against her down with an attack of pneumonia, and gradually sank until death claimed her. Mrs. Camm was born in Devonshire, Eng., in the year 1826, consequently she was aged 86 years. In early childhood she came to this country with her parents, who first settled in Usborne, where the greater part of deceased's life was spent. For the past year she had lived with her son-in-law, Mr Fletcher, and the vacancy in the home will be one of deep regret and sorrow to the household. Mrs. Camm was a member of the Methodist church and was much admired for her consistent Christian character, as well as being much esteemed for her lovable qualities. She is survived by three daughters and four sons, — Mrs. John Lewis and Mrs. Wm. Grey of Crosswell, Mich., and Mrs. M. J. Fletcher, Richard, Charles and Albert of Usborne, and Thomas of Crosswell, Mich The funeral took place to the Zion cemetery on Tuesday.

DEATH.—Another of the aged residents of Exeter passed away on Wednesday of last week, when Nancy McTaggart, relict of the late W. L. Wright, departed this life at her home in Exeter North, in her 85th year. Deceased has suffered with grip and pneumonia for about ten days, and owing to her great age she was unable to successfully combat the disease. She was a native of Canada, being born in Prince Edward County. Fifty-six years ago she moved to Huron and has been a resident of this neighborhood ever since. Her husband died about 40 years ago Seven children were born, three of whom survive, Frank of Exeter, Henry of British Columbia, and Mrs. Fuller of Kansas. There also survive one brother, Alfred McTaggart of Rodgerville, one sister, Mrs. Peter Englis of Colborne, and a half-sister near Sarnia. Previous to her demise Mrs. Wright was the oldest living member of the old Wesleyan church, which has since become the Main Street Methodist church She was a woman of many excellent parts and respected by all. The funeral took place on Friday afternoon to McTaggart's cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Westaway and children of Centu, Se Chuan, West China arrived in London on a furlough Tuesday morning. Mrs. Westaway is a daughter of Mr. Wm. Moore of West London. Mr. Westaway, formerly of Exeter is connected with the Chentu Methodist publishing house.

Mr and Mrs. Westaway have spent four years in China. They are the first London missionaries to arrive home, but a number of others are expected shortly. Furloughs have been granted to the majority of the missionaries on account of the unsettled conditions of affairs in the interim between the downfall on the empire and the complete establishment of the republic.

HOCKEY—The Hensall and Exeter juniors played a good game of hockey on Thursday evening, resulting in favor of the home team, 5—4. At half time the score was 3—1 in favor of the visitors, but the home boys got busy in the last half and won out by one goal.

The outstanding feature of the second hockey game between the Oddfellows and the Town team which took place on Monday night, was the remarkable progress shown by the boys in the science of the game. Combination work on both sides, while not always effective, was repeatedly tried; tried so frequently, in fact, that this feature alone made the game many times more interesting from the spectators' viewpoint than the game of a week before. The off-sides were greatly lessened in number, and considering the fact that players, themselves, do not always understand what an off-side is, it is surprising that there were not more of them. There was considerable heavy body checking, done in a proper manner, but which, by the way, is not the most effective way of playing hockey. That the result was in favor of the Oddfellows by a score of 4-3 is only an incident in the game, although gratifying to them and to their supporters, particularly after their severe defeat in the game of a week ago. The game from start to finish was a swift one and both sides made strenuous efforts to win out. The old-timers had their joints loosened up a little more and had regained some of their old time skill, which probably accounts for the victory for the Oddfellows. The only changes in the line-up were that Garvey Acheson of London, who was visiting at his home here, played with the Town boys in the place last week occupied by Greig of Clinton, and on the Oddfellows' line-up Tom Carling replaced Herb Axt. The third game will probably be played on Tuesday night next, and it should be remembered that the game starts at seven o'clock.

Mr. Nelson Prior of Portage La Prairie, Man., is here owing to the illness of his father, who is very low. Nelson is also quite ill, with a severe attack of la grippe.

On Monday evening the quarterly board of James street Methodist church voted on church union. Twenty-four members were present and all but one were in favor of union.

Yesterday was St. Valentine's Day but the old time-honored custom of sending appropriate cards on this occasion is fast dying out, and merchants and others do not reap the rich harvest in this line they did years ago.

Rev. E. J. Millyard, of Hensall gave his celebrated lecture on "Ten nights in the Bar Room; Shamrock, Rose and Thistle." illustrated with lime-light views and interspersed by songs rendered by Misses Olive Treble, and Rhoda Chowen, and Mr. Herbert Southcott, in James Street Church under the auspices of the Epworth League on Tuesday evening last. The attendance was large and the lecture proved an intellectual treat and highly pleasing to all present.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES—The Thames Road Presbyterian Church will hold their anniversary Sunday, February 25th. They have procured Rev. Prof Kilpatrick, B. D., of Knox College, Toronto, who will occupy the pulpit morning and evening. No doubt large numbers will take advantage of the opportunity of hearing this noted divine. Mrs. Wyatt, Soprano Soloist, of London will sing at both services. Remember the date, Feb. 25th.

NEARLY LOST AN EYE— Mr. Frank Wood met with a painful accident while on duty at the butcher shop on Tuesday last, whereby he narrowly escaped the loss of an eye. In some manner he accidentally came in contact with a meat hook, the sharp end of it penetrating under the eye lid until it reached the bone above, causing a nasty and painful wound. It was thought at first the eye ball had been penetrated, but fortunately for Mr. Wood it proved otherwise.

DIED SUDDENLY IN CLIFFORD.—Rev. James H. Collins, brother of the late Fred. Collins, assistant post-master here, dropped dead at a prayer meeting over which he presided in the Methodist church, Clifford, on Wednesday night of last week. The first hymn had just been started, when Mr. Collins fell over. Everything possible was done, but he died in a few minutes. The remains were taken to Ancaster for interment. Mr Collins was well-known throughout Western Ontario, being connected with charitable institutions with headquarters at Hamilton. Mr. Collins will be remembered by older residents of Exeter, he having been pastor of the then B.C. church, now James Street Methodist, and who was much esteemed as a pastor, and noted for his devout Christian character.

THE HABIT OF SAVING

"As a man soweth, so shall he reap and youth is the time in which he must do his sowing if the granary is not to be empty when old age overtakes him as it surely will, if he lives long enough The making of money and the saving of money, as distinguished from the miserly love of money, should be the ambition of everyone; but it does not necessarily follow that if you make money you will have it in your old age, as many a one-time millionaire has died in the poorhouse". But if you take advantage of you opportunities when a young man improve your chances, live within your income—systematically lay aside a litte every month or year, you need have little fear of having enough to care for you in the declining years.

BIDDULPH FIRE

Mrs. Johnstone Aikens, who is lying critically ill at her home five miles north of Lucan and her three little children barely escaped with their lives in a fire which destroyed the house early last Wednesday morning. A nurse in attendance on Mrs. Aikens got up and started a fire in the kitchen to get some things ready for the patient, and noticed that the stove smoked badly. She went back and told of the affair, and was told that the chimney was simply smoking. By the time she got back the smoke was pouring from the room in such quantities that it was impossible to enter. The nurse at once gave the alarm, and the little children and Mrs. Aikens was carried across the way to the house of Mrs. Simpson. Inside of twenty minutes from the time the nurse noticed the smoke, the house was a mass of flames, and only the brick walls were left standing a short time afterwards. The loss is partially covered by insurance. Mrs. Aikens is suffering greatly from the shock.

DOMINION FINANCES

The monthly statement of the department of finance for January shows that for the first ten months of the fiscal year up to January 31, the total revenue for the Dominion was $109,556,983 as compared with $94,810,707, for the same period last year, an increase of over fifteen millions. The expenditure for the same period amounted to $70,655,589, as against $65,447,763 for the same ten months of the last fiscal year. For the month of January alone the revenue was $10,084, 763 as compared with $9,141,873 for January, 1911, while the expenditure for the month was $16,351,716, as against $12,458,630. The increase in customs revenue for the ten months has been $6,896,803, while the returns have increased 1,534,057.

YES, ITS COLD THIS MORNING.

Of course, you have noticed that it has been cold. The thermometer has hovered from a few degrees above zero to 25 below for about a month, which is by long odds the longest period of extremely cold weather in these parts in the memory of white man. It is claimed by some that Lake Huron is frozen over, and if such is the case no white man that we ever heard of has witnessed this before. On Friday night the temperature dropped to 24 below. Saturday night it struck 12, and Sunday night 15., which for us is surely going some, and then some more. Like the westerner we will soon be able to tell our friends in the warmer climes that it was very cold, and after a reasonable probation, add—that we didn't feel it. However, brick walls are cracking, cellar floors are skating rinks, wells are frozen, and worst of all, an ordinary supply of coal and wood has long since vanished, and from the looks of things we'll have to buy another full supply.

EDUCATE PEOPLE TO PAY BILLS

The subject of "business ethics" has occupied the attention of a number of newspapers recently. A Hamilton paper asks,—"Do you owe any unpaid debts of 1911? Are you square with your grocer, hardwareman, tailor, outcher and baker and the rest?" And then proceeds to admonish its readers on the score of the unfairness of neglecting to pay bills. A Peterboro paper talks in the same strain, pointing out that the pleasure and profit, the thrift, the interests of business and the general prosperity of the city depend very largely upon the promptitude with which citizens pay their bills. Merchants and business men of all kinds are long suffering and suffering too, many of them from lack of the money represented by long overdue bills, small and large.

It is refreshing to find the press taking up this subject. No force is more potent to effect reforms than the newspaper. It is apparent that an educational campaign is needed to bring the public to see that flagrant neglect and careless indifference in meeting bills is highly reprehensible and grossly unfair to all concerned; and if the press can help to drive this truth home, it will render a valued service to the mercantile interests.

It is no exaggeration to say that a very large majority of failures are due to inability to collect outstanding accounts. If every merchant secured what was owing to him on time and in full commercial failures would be few and far between. Industrial depression has its first inception in slow collections. If the money does not come in, hesitancy and lack of confidence soon manifest themselves. Business progress is halted, things soon reach a standstill, then go back and a period of hard times sets in. It is probable that the slow pay party, who dodges petty debts does not realize that he is responsible when business conditions become sluggish. But he is at the root of the trouble. Eradicate the small debt dodger and the surest means of insuring a consistent measure of business prosperity will have been found.—Hardware and Metal.

AN INTERESTING INSURANCE CASE

The case of Ryder vs. The Usborne & Hibbert Mutual Fire Insurance Co., which was tried by Judge Holt at the Division Court Sittings in the Town Hall on Wednesday of last week, proved a very interesting one, and a large number of people assembled to hear the evidence. James Ryder of the Township of Biddulph had a horse killed in a field sometime during the night of August 18th, 1911. The animal was found dead about the middle of the following afternoon. A director of the above named insurance company in which the horse was insured against lightning was called in to examine the horse, but a veterinary was not called. James Ryder and his son Patrick Ryder gave evidence that the director, Mr. Brock, had said that it was not necessary to call a veterinary, and that everything pointed to death by lightning. These stattements were disputed by Mr. Brock in his evidence. Several witnesses said that there was lightning on the night in question, while others claimed there was not. Three veterinaries, Dr Sweet, and Dr. Houze of Exeter and Dr. Tennant of Lucan gave evidence as to the probability that lightning might have caused the death of the animal. The Judge reserved his decision which will be published as soon as the Judge forwards his decision to the clerk. L. H. Dickson appeared for the plaintiff and F. W. Gladman for the defendant.

DOGS AND SHEEP IN N. HURON

Since the compulsory tax on dogs went into force, the municipalities have a fund from which the owners of sheep killed or injured by unknown dogs may be reimbursed. Ashfield and other township councils have passed a by-law appointing a valuator for each polling sub-division. The owner of sheep killed or injured must endeavor to locate the dog or dogs that did the damage and seek reimbursement from the owner. If he cannot do so he must ask the valuators to investigate the matter and report to the council The valuators are paid by the council.

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH

Under a costly canopy;
The village blacksmith sits;
Before him is a touring car
Broken to little bits—
And the owner, and the chauffeur, too,
Have almost lost their wits.

The village blacksmith smiles with glee
As he lights his fat cigar—
He tells his helpers what to do
To straighten up the car—
And the owner, and the chauffeur, too,
Stands humbly where they are.

The children, going home from school,
Look in at the open door;
They like to see him make his bills
And hear the owner roar—
And the chauffeurs weep as they declare
They never paid that before.

He goes each morning to the bank,
And sails away his cash;
A high silk hat and long frock coat
Help him to cut a dash—
But the owner, and the chauffeur, too,
Their teeth all vainly gnash.

The chestnut tree has long since died
The smith does not repine;
His humble shop has grown into
A building big and fine—
And it bears "Garage" above the door
On a large electric sign.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

CHAPTER XV.—(Cont'd)

Men, women, and children lounged about the doorways and kept up a constant cackle of conversation in a mysterious patois which Miss Talbot, though an excellent French scholar, could make nothing of. The presence of these people naturally shielded her from the direct observation of La Belle Chasseuse, but nevertheless threatened a slight danger should it be necessary for her to stand still, for she well understood that in such a locality each person was known to the other, and the loitering of a stranger could not fail to arouse curiosity.

Soon after passing beneath the lamp mademoiselle vanished into a doorway. Edith perceived to her joy that at this point there was no group of loungers. Indeed, for a few yards the street was empty. Keeping her eyes sedulously fixed upon the exact spot where the Frenchwoman disappeared, she reached the door, and, after a moment's hesitation, stepped lightly into the interior darkness.

The narrow entrance was at once lessened to half its width by a staircase. She listened intently, and could hear the other woman ascending the second flight of stairs.

At the next landing mademoiselle paused and knocked three times. Presumably in reply to a question within, she murmured something which Edith could not catch, and was at once admitted. The shooting of a rusty bolt supplied evidence that the door was locked behind her.

Edith's next task was to identify the house. She stepped out into the street again and crossed to the opposite pavement. She looked up to the second story, but, owing to the short distance—barely fourteen feet—that separated her from the house—she could discern nothing, save that the windows on that floor were closely shuttered.

She rapidly noted that the door was the third removed from the lamp.

Whilst wondering what to do next, a couple of girls approached her. They were young and of course inquisitive. Without any dissimulation, they stood in front of her and scrutinized her face, wondering, no doubt, who this tall graceful newcomer could be.

"What is your name?" said one. "Where do you live? Have you just come here? Are you staying with old Mother Peter?"

With difficulty Edith caught the drift of their questions. But she answered smilingly—

"No, I do not live here, and I do not know Mother Peter. But I want you to tell me who lives in the house opposite?"

Her Parisian French greatly surprised the two girls who giggled at each other, and one of them cried—"Oh, here's a lark!"

But they scented an intrigue, and were quite ready to give all the information in their power.

"A lot of people there," said the elder one, trying, with the ready tact of her nation, to accommodate her words to the understanding of the stranger. "It all depends who youn want to know about. On the ground floor is Josef the barber and his wife, and three little ones. It cannot be them, I am sure, and it cannot be Monsieur Ducrot, who is their lodger, for he is seventy years old and a sacristan in the Church of the Sacred Heart. Then on the first floor there are three men, not a woman amongst them. One is a bill-sticker, another a fisherman, and the third a waiter in the Cafe du Midi. I do not know their proper names. We call the bill-sticker 'Paste-pot,' and the fisherman 'Crab.' The waiter is called 'Thomas' in the cafe, but when a letter comes for him it is in another name. Then, on the second floor—by the way, Marie, who is it that lives on the second floor?"

Edith with difficulty restrained her excitement. She felt that if only these youngsters rattled on a little longer she might gain some valuable information.

Marie, thus appealed to, was evidently of a more cautious temperament than her companion.

"If the young lady will tell us why she wants to know, we may be able to help her?" she stipulated.

"Certainly," cried Edith, instantly resolving to pursue the tactics of the penny novelette. "I have been deserted. My lover has been taken away from me by another woman—at least, that is what I am informed. I do not wish to make any trouble about it. There are plenty as good men as he left in the world; but, on the other hand, I must not act unjustly. I have been told that he lives in this house—that he is living with her at this moment, in fact. If I can make sure of it, I will go away and never set eyes on him again unless by chance, and then you may be sure I will take no notice of him. I am not one of those silly girls who break their hearts over a faithless sweetheart."

Marie was reassured.

"I should think not," she said, with a sympathetic and defiant sniff. "On the second floor, I am afraid you will find your man. They are a funny couple that live there. They only came on Monday. When did your young man leave you?"

"I saw him on Saturday."

"Where?"

This was a poser, but Miss Talbot answered desperately:

"At Lyons."

"What is he like?"

Another haphazard shot.

"He is tall and dark, and, oh! so good-looking, with a beautifully white skin and a pink complexion."

"That is he!" cried both girls together.

"The scoundrel! But tell me," went on Edith, whose excitement was readily construed as the pangs of jealousy, "who is the creature that lives with him?"

"We think she is a music-hall artiste," replied Marie. "At least, that is what the people say. I have not heard yet what hall she appears in. They say she is very pretty. Are you going to throw vitrol over her?"

"Not I," said Edith, with a fine scorn. "Do they live there alone?"

"Yes, quite alone. They rent the place from Pere Didon. He owns most of the houses in this street, you know, and is a regular skinflint. He won't let any one get behind with their rent for an hour. He is old, so old that you would not think that he could live another week, yet he is that keen after his francs you would imagine he was a young man anxious to get money for a gay life. You ought to have heard the row here last Saturday when he turned the people out from their rooms where your lover now lives with his mistress. It was terrible. There was a poor woman with two sick children."

How much further the revelation as to Pere Didon's iniquity might have gone, Miss Talbot could not say, but at that moment there came an interruption.

From the opposite doorway appeared the figure of Mlle. Beaucaire, carrying a small bag. She was followed by a man, tall, slight, and closely muffled up, who shouldered a larger portmanteau. Edith grabbed both the girls, and pulled them close to her against the closed door behind them.

"It is he!" she whispered tragically. "Silence! Let us watch them!"

The man darted a suspicious glance up and down the street. There was no one whom even the clever Henri Dubois could construe as an enemy—no one save some chattering Marseilles loitering around their doorsteps, and three girls huddled together in close concave directly opposite.

Thus reassured, he strode after La Belle Chasseuse, who cried out impatiently:

"Come quick, Henri, what are you waiting for?"

"Is his name Henri?" whispered the awe-stricken Marie.

"Yes. Isn't he a villain? I wonder where they are going now!"

"Let's follow them and see," suggested Marie.

"Yes, let us follow them and see," chimed in the other one, who delighted in this nocturnal romance. It was a veritable page out of one of Paul de Kock's novels.

The programme suited Miss Talbot exceedingly well.

They strolled off down the street, nestled together, Edith in the centre, and keeping the shrouded couple in front well in sight. This time, when Mademoiselle Beaucaire and her companion reached the point where the street emerged on to the harbor, they did not cross over towards the broad and brilliant-lighted Cannebiere, but hurried on through darkness in the direction of a cluster of fishing smacks that lay alongside the Quai de Rive Neuve.

"My faith, Eugenie!" cried Marie, "they must be going on board one of the vessels."

"What a lark!" was the answer. "I suppose they fear you," she added, turning her sharp eyes on Edith. "What is your name?"

"Lucille," came the answer on the spur of the moment.

"Lucille what?"

"Lucille Beauharnais."

"My gracious!" cried Eugenie, "what a swell name!"

"Oh, let us hurry," interrupted Miss Talbot desperately. "You girls know everybody. You must know all the vessels. If they are going on a boat an dyou find out the name and number for me I will give each of you a whole louis. I will give them to you now—I mean, that is, if you will walk with me afterwards to my lodgings."

Even amidst the exciting circumstances surrounding her, Edith recognized the absolute necessity there was to maintain the credibility of her previous narrative.

Unquestionably Dubois and the lady intended to embark on one of the fishing boats. They hastened to the further end of the harbor, through whose tiny entrance Edith could now see the dark waters of the bay beyond, for the night was beautifully clear and fine, and the bright stars of the south lent some radiance to the scene, when the girls quitted the deep shadow of the houses.

A solitary boat, a decked fishing smack of some forty tons, was lying by the side of the quay, apart from the others. Edith, who knew something about yachting, recognized that her gearing was not fastened in the trim manner suggestive of a craft laid by for the night. At the same instant, too, she caught sight of a third form—that of a man who had been seated on a fixed capstan, and who now strode forward to peer at the newcomers.

Some few words passed between the three, but it was impossible for girls to hear a syllable. Instantly the sailor assisted Dubois and Mademoiselle Beaucaire to step down from the quay on board the smack. He followed them, and three other men, who appeared out of the chaos of sails and ropes, commenced to labor with a large pole in order to shove the sturdy vessel out into the harbor.

"Quick!" murmured Edith, in an agony lest the opportunity should slip. "Tell me what vessel it is."

"I think," said Marie, "it is the Belles Soeurs. Anyhow, we can easily make certain. All we have to do is to go back around the top of the harbor, walk down the Quai du Port, and watch her as she passes under the lighthouse of the Fort St. Jean. They will hoist her sail then and we shall see her number."

"Oh, come," cried Edith, "let us run!"

"We can run if you like," replied Marie coolly, "but there is no need. They have to get out by using the sweeps, and we will be underneath the lighthouse at least a minute or two before they pass, even if we walk slowly."

Whilst they were talking the three girls put their words into practice, and Edith found herself battling with a logical dilemma. Dubois was evidently escaping from France—making out from Marseilles at this late hour on a vessel capable of sailing to almost any point of the Mediterranean.

What could she do? Was it possible to invoke the aid of a policeman and get some authority to hail the craft and order her to return, or was there time to take a cab in the Cannebiere and drive furiously to the hotel, where Brett, Fairholme and her brother must be anxiously awaiting her return?

Rapidly as these alternatives suggested themselves, she dismissed them. It was best to fall in with Marie's suggestion and ascertain beyond doubt the identity of the fishing smack. Then, at any rate, Brett would have a tangible and definite clue.

So she hastened with her companions along the three sides of the now almost deserted quay, and, in accordance with the prediction of her youthful guides, she reached the promenade beyond the small lighthouse of the inner port before the vessel had quitted the harbor. To move a forty-ton boat with oars is a slow matter at the best.

As the craft came creeping steadily through the narrow channel Edith saw, to her great relief, that two of the men drew in their sweeps and commenced to haul upon ropes whilst the clanking and groaning of pulleys heralded the slow rising of the mainsail.

You will observe $200,000 has been added to Rest Account. The Rest Account is now $2,500,000, or about 58 per cent. of the subscribed and paid-up capital of the Bank.

The business of the Bank continues to grow most satisfactorily, as the comparative statement submitted shows. The deposits during the year have increased $4,193,898.29, and the circulation has increased $583,595.

The Head Office and all the Branches have been carefully inspected during the year, and a full report of each office brought in review before your Directors, and, in addition to these inspections, a Committee of the Directors, other than the officers, and composed of Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., Mr. W. J. Sheppard, Mr. C. S. Wilcox, and Mr. H. S. Strathy, was appointed to examine and appraise all the securities held at the Head Office, which they did, and reported to the Board that they are as represented to it.

The increase in Bank premises is partly accounted for by discharging the encumbrances which existed at the time of the purchase of Vancouver and Winnipeg properties, and partly by the purchase of the property immediately east of your Head Office Building, which was acquired at a reasonable figure, a portion of which will be used for the purposes of the Bank. This purchase will be of great advantage in protecting the lighting of the east side of the Head Office Building. Your Bank premises now comprise 34 separate buildings.

The Directors have much pleasure in testifying to the good work performed by the Staff during the period under review.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

CHAS. D. WARREN, President.

HOUSEHOLD

CHOICE RECIPES.

Cabbage with Cream.—The so-called plebeian cabbage may be served in a number of appetizing and attractive ways. Prepared with cream it is especially dainty. Wash and blanch the cabbage well. When cool remove the outer leaves and chop the rest fine. Put into a saucepan with a large lump of butter, some salt and pepper. Thicken with about a tablespoonful of flour and then add a cupful of sweet cream. Mix thoroughly and cook for about three-quarters of an hour. Heap on a hot dish and serve. This will accompany any meat, and is a particularly wholesome dish.

Braised Veal.—Lard evenly two sides of a piece of veal, dredge with salt and pepper and a litle flour. Lay two or three thin slices of pork in the bottom of an iron pot, and as soon as lightly browned lay in the veal with a small carrot sliced, one onion sliced, a bay leaf and a sprig or two of parsley. Add two cupfuls of veal stock (this can be made from some of the veal bones which the butcher will throw in if you ask him), and simmer steadily for two or three hours until tender and a golden brown. It must be basted frequently during the braising, adding some stock if necessary.

Prune Soufflé.—Soak and stew two dozen prunes, and when tender press through a colander. To the beaten whites of four eggs add six tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and the prunes and beat well. Put into the mixture one tablespoonful of sifted flour, one-quarter teaspoonful cream tartar and one teaspoonful of lemon extract. Bake twenty minutes in a slow oven. Serve cold with sauce made as follows: One pint of sweet milk, three-quarters of a cup of sugar, the yolks of four eggs and one teaspoonful of lemon, made into a soft custard. The sauce should also be cold when served.

Apple Slump.—Put two quarts of pared, sliced or quartered apples, with one pint of water, into the dish in which the slump is to be cooked. Take one quart of sifted flour and mix through it three teaspoonfuls of baking powder; then rub one teaspoonful of butter into it. Mix with a little cold milk or water, the same as for biscuit. Roll the crust about an inch thick, cut it into quarters, and with it cover the apples, in the dish; then cover the whole with a close-fitting cover and boil or steam until done. Take out on a platter and grate nutmeg over the apples. Serve with a sweet sauce or sugar and cream.

Fricassed Chicken.—Cut two fowls into joints. Season them with salt and pepper, and dip each one in flour. Put them in a saucepan and cover with boiling water. Let them cook very gently for about two hours, or until very tender. When they are done put three tablespoonfuls of butter in a frying pan, add the same amount of flour, rub smooth, then add the water in which the chickens have been boiled, which should not amount to more than a quart. After the gravy has boiled up add a cupful of rich cream, and season with salt, white pepper and a little cayenne. Just before removing from the fire add an egg well beaten. Pour over the chicken, which should be laid on toast or soda biscuits cut in halves.

Potato Chowder.—Pare and cut into dice five good-sized potatoes and throw into cold water. Cut a quarter pound slice of fat ham into shreds and put it in a frying pan with a minced onion and fry a light brown. Put a layer of potato dice in a kettle, sprinkle in ham, onion, salt, pepper and minced parsley, then add more potatoes, pork, onion, etc., until all are used. Add the fat in which the onions were fried and a pint of cold water. Cover and cook gently until the potatoes are nearly done, about twenty minutes. Rub a tablespoonful of butter and same of flour to a smooth paste (roux) and stir into the chowder; then when it begins to thicken add a pint of hot milk, stir carefully together so as not to break the potato dice.

Checken Stew.—Cut a young but full-grown chicken and put it on to stew in a pot with plenty of water, adding salt only; then take a pint of flour, one egg and water enough to mix into a very stiff dough, which knead till perfectly smooth. Roll out into a sheet as thin as possible, and let it stand to dry for at least an hour, then cut into narrow strips, pull these into pieces two or three inches long, and drop—one by one—into the boiling stew—with plenty of water in it—and boil for at least an hour, shaking the pot occasionally, but never stirring or the dumplings will stick together. When done, pour all into a large platter and dust with pepper. This is a delicious stew, and the dumplings, besides being tender and toothsome, can be eaten with impunity by an invalid.

Coffee Bread.—Add to one cupful of scalded milk one-third cupful of shortening, a cupful of sugar and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Cool to lukewarm, and then beat in a yeast cake dissolved in one-quarter cupful of lukewarm milk and enough sifted flour to make a stiff batter. Cover and place where it will keep warm over night. In the morning blend a beaten egg with the dough, add one-half cupful of seeded raisins and roll out the mixture in a sheet three-quarters of an inch in thickness. Put in a buttered dripping pan or a deep pie plate, having in its center a muffin ring or piece of stiff paper pinned together to make a ring. Cover and let rise until double its original bulk. Brush with melted butter, sprinkle with powdered sugar and cinnamon, and bake in a moderate oven about half an hour.

USEFUL HINTS.

Hot sunshine will remove scorch.

Hot tartaric acid will take ink stains out of white cloth.

A package or envelope sealed with white of egg cannot be steamed open.

Even delicate glass can be safely washed in very hot water if slipped in edgewise.

Mutton tea is a pleasant change from beef tea to many invalids, and is very wholesome.

Insects like neither salt nor alum and enough adheres to the carpet to keep them away.

If feather pillows have an unpleasant odor give them a thorough drying before a clear fire.

A piece of salt pork cut thin and bound on a corn or bunion at night will give great relief.

Never keep bread and cake in the same box, as the cake loses its flavor and tastes like bread.

Rice possesses more nutriment than wheat, oats or barley. It will sustain life longer than any other starch producing plant.

Burning oil is spread by water. To extinguish it throw down flour, sand or earth. The idea is to prevent the oil spreading.

You may keep the top of your kitchen range clean when frying steak, etc., by having two sheets of asbestos prepared as covers.

Clotheslines and pegs will last much longer if they get boiled for ten minutes when new. It is a good plan to repeat the boiling occasionally.

Sew buttons on firmly. Do not put a lot of cheap work and trimming on a dress of cheap material. Rather get better material and make it up simply.

Mend a cracked stove with a cement made of wood ashes and salt in equal proportions, reduce to a paste with cold water. Fill cracks when stove is cool.

It is not generally known, but to prevent cakes from burning, place a little bran at the bottom of the tins. This will save a lot of grumbling and vexation.

Many women put paper pads under the stair carpet, and layers of thick brown paper under room carpets. These underlays cost nothing, and can, therefore, be burnt instead of beaten and beaten and re-used as a felt has to be.

Before relaying the carpets after the spring cleaning try washing around the edge of the floor to the depth of a yard from the baseboard with a strong solution of alum water. Several times a month sprinkle salt over the carpet before sweeping.

For a liquid shampoo take four ounces of finely grated castile soap, cover with a quart of cold water, let cook until it forms a jelly. Take from the fire and add two thoroughly beaten eggs; shake well, and it is ready for use.

For coughs, put a lemon in the oven, leave it until warmed through, then squeeze out the juice, and add sufficient honey or sugar to make a thick syrup. Keep it warm, and take a teaspoonful when the cough is troublesome.

Buy a strip of asbestos cloth and use small squares to interline your iron-holders. Keep a good-sized piece fastened to your ironing board to save the sheet, and lay a square under the table pad where the meat platter rests.

To prevent a shabby, dull look coming to the kitchen painted woodwork, wash it in bran water, made by boiling one pound of bran in a gallon of water for an hour.

Hard water is softened by having a little powder lime put in, which at once throws down the chalk in it. The clear fluid can then be boiled without risk of furring pot or kettle.

Light straw hat may be cleaned by being brushed with flour of sulphur, moistened with lemon juice. Rinse the hat well with clear, cold water, but do not let it lie in water and soak.

Equal parts of turpentine and ammonia will take paint out of clothing, even if hard and dry. Saturate the spot as often as necessary and wash off the spot with warm soapy water.

To iron silk sprinkle the article to be ironed with water, then roll them tightly in a towel. After this it is easy to iron out the creases. Do not use a very hot iron, as the silk quickly discolors.

When purchasing tinned meat notice the tin. If it bulges outwards in any part the meat is probably unfit to eat, an outward bulge being a sign that the tin was not properly sealed and air has got in.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

ISTERNATIONAL LESSON, JANUARY 18.

Iesson VII. The ministry of John the Baptist, Mark 1. 1-8; Luke 3. 1-20. Golden Text, Matt. 3. 2.

MARK 1. 1-8.

Verse 1. Mark does not concern himself with the earlier life of Jesus, but proceeds at once with the narrative of his public ministry and preaching, to which he refers as The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ. The proclamation of that gospel (glad tidings) continued even after the Christ was no longer among men. It began with the utterances that fell from the lips of Jesus himself. The use of the double name Jesus Christ indicates the established faith of the writer in Jesus as the Messiah, which faith is further defined by the addition of the phrase the Son of God.

2. In Isaiah the prophet—Only the substance of verse 3, not that of verse 2, is found in Isaiah (40. 3). The reference to my messenger is taken from Malachi 3. 1, a prophecy which was applied by Jesus himself to John the Baptist.

3. The voice of one crying in the wilderness—The figure in this instance, as in the prophecy of Malachi, is that of a forerunner sent by an Oriental monarch in advance of his journeys to see to it that roads and highways are cleared of obstacles and prepared for his use.

4. John came heralding in the wilderness the coming of One greater than an Oriental monarch, and preparing human hearts and minds to receive the Christ by the preaching of repentance unto remission of sins.

5. All the country—Multitudes of the inhabitants from all parts of Judaea. The appearance of this new prophet stirred the whole nation. Luke specifies publicans and soldiers and Matthew Pharisees and Sadducees as being among those who went out to the river Jordan to hear John preach.

6. Camel's hair . . . a leathern girdle—A short tunic of coarse camel's hair cloth (not of camel's skin), fastened about the waist with a girdle of corresponding simplicity, made probably of rough, untanned leather and like those worn by Bedouins and dervishes to-day.

Locusts . . . wild honey—Food such as the desert afforded. In Lev. 11. 22 we find enumerated the species of wild locusts, the eating of which is permitted by law.

7. Mightier than I—So much mightier that John feels himself unworthy to render the service of a bondservant or slave.

Worthy—Greek, sufficient.

8. Water . . . Holy Spirit—The contrast gives us the key to John's humility. John's baptism unto repentance was in itself incomplete, even as repentance itself is incomplete and must be supplemented by the control of new impulses and aspirations (compare the parable in Matt. 12. 43-45.)

LUKE 3. 1-20.

Verse I. The fifteenth year—Probably A. D. 25-26, reckoning A. D. 11, the year when Tiberius was made the colleague of Augustus with equal authority over provinces and armies.

Tiberius Caesar—The second Roman emperor and successor to Caesar Augustus.

Pontius Pilate—The procurator or governor of Judaea, an inferior official position in the Roman empire, in view of the comparatively small importance to the empire of the province intrusted to him.

Herod—Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great. In A. D. 40 he was banished to Spain. The entire public ministry of Jesus falls within the period of his reign, and most of it within the territory over which he ruled.

Tetrarch—One of four rulers, that is, ruler over one fourth part of his father's dominion.

His brother—Really his half brother.

Ituraea—The valley region at the foot of Hermon.

Trachonitis—In the ancient territory of Bashan.

Lysanias—Otherwise unknown.

Abilene—A small province of Syria.

2. Annas and Caiaphas—Annas, the rightful life occupant of the office according to Jewish law, had been deposed by the Roman governor, and one after another his sons put in his place. The fourth of these was Caiaphas, who, from the time of his appointment (A.D. 18), was recognized by the Roman authorities as the rightful incumbent of the position. Loyal Jews, however, would still regard Annas as the real high priest.

3-6. Compare comments on parallel verses in Mark given above.

7. Offspring of vipers—A wilderness metaphor and most appropriate in its characterization of the particular group of people to whom it was addressed.

8. We have Abraham to our father—Lineal descendance from Abraham was considered a sufficient guarantee of divine favor by most Jews.

Stones . . . children—Hebrew, banim . . . abanim—a play on words not lacking in emphasis.

9. The ax also lieth at the root of the trees—The ax of the gardener or husbandman, ready for use as the harvest shall determine which of the trees of the orchard are no longer profitable.

12. Publicans—That is, collectors or renters of Roman taxes; men who paid to the Roman government a specified sum in lieu of the taxes from a given district and who, by the collection of exorbitant taxes, then proceeded to enrich themselves.

13. Extort—Extortion was the common method of collection. Those who could escape paying naturally did so.

14. Soldiers—Greek, soldiers on service. The exhortation given these men indicates some of the wrongs they were commonly guilty of.

17. Fan—Such as were commonly used in connection with threshing, the grain being thrown, together with the chaff, against the wind, which, in driving back the chaff, permitted the grain to fall to the ground in a heap by itself, after which it was gathered into the garner.

Unquenchable fire—Not necessarily eternal, but unquenchable in the sense of beyond control or mastery.

19. For Herodias his brother's wife—For whom he had divorced another wife, and whom he had persuaded to forsake her husband. Luke regards the indignity shown to the Messiah's forerunner in casting him into prison as among the greatest wrongs perpetrated by the wicked governor.

A JOKE ON SERVICE.

Mr. R. W. Service.

Some time ago a British Columbian wrote a book of verse entitled "Derby Day in the Yukon, by Yukon Bill." The real name of the author did not appear, but whoever it was signed the name, "M. Markwell" in writing to the George H. Doran Company of New York, who published the book; and the Doran people wrote back to "M. Markwell, Esq."

When the book came out, Robert W. Service, the famous Yukon poet, received a copy from the publishers, and when in New York some time afterwards he sent this letter of appreciation to the head of the firm:

"Dear Sir: Shortly before leaving Dawson I received your book, 'Derby Day in the Yukon,' and beg to thank you for your kindness in sending it to me. I thought the book was bully good stuff and quite true of the Land God Forgot. I showed it among my friends, and much curiosity was expressed as to the identity of Yukon Bill. However, all agreed that the atmosphere, expression, and tone were the real thing, and that he is assuredly a Sourdough of an early vintage.

"Needless to say, I was immensely flattered at the lines addressed to myself. I thank the writer from the bottom of my heart and wish him all prosperity and success. I will write no more Yukon verse, so he has a clear field. In conclusion, I wish again to express my appreciation of his veracious and virile verses, and thank him for the genuine pleasure they gave me."

Sincerely yours,
"ROBERT SERVICE."

It now turns out that the book was written by a woman. And she had never seen the Yukon!

HOW ANIMAL'S FEED.

When one thinks of the many curious ways in which common animals partake of their food, one realizes more than ever the vast difference there is between classes in the creature kingdom. For instance, the squirrel carries its food to its mouth by means of its paws, whilst the elephant uses its trunk. The giraffe, ant-eater, and toad employ their tongues, but spiders masticate their food with horny jaws. The caterpillar is provided with saw-edged jaws, and uses them so well that every day he consumes at least three times his own weight in food. Toads, turtles, and tortoises do not possess teeth. Frogs have only an upper row of teeth, and lobsters and crabs have a set of teeth in their stomachs. The tiger and lion do not grind their food as we humans do; as a matter of fact, their teeth only work with an up-and-down movement much like chopping-knives.

THE ENERGY OF CHURCHILL

NEW HEAD OF THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY.

Important Reforms Have Already Been Introduced in the Navy By Him.

Young Winston Churchill is being taken seriously by a large part of the British press and public, writes a London correspondent. This tribute to his ability has been a long time coming, but apparently many who were disposed to criticize his methods and temperament are now of the opinion that he has a certain force, which is being used for the good of the nation.

The change in public opinion in the matter has been sudden. A month or two ago Mr. Churchill was merely a bad boy hardly worthy of adult notice except in the way of admonition. The public would not forget a certain reported music hall episode of his early youth or the Sidney Street affair during his service as Home Secretary, when under his personal direction a body of troops and a considerable portion of the Metropolitan Police laid siege to a London tenement in which two alleged murderers were supposed to be hiding.

There was plenty of encouragement given to the public not to forget. Even now music hall comedians have fun with the young man. They parody Sir Joseph Porter's song from "Pinafore" with Mr. Churchill in Sir Joseph's place as First Lord of the Admiralty, "the ruler of the King's navee." "Winnie," they call him, and the audiences always laugh. None of the known peculiarities of Mr. Churchill escapes mention.

MEANING OF THE CHANGE.

There was a good deal of adverse comment when Mr. Churchill became Home Secretary in the Asquith Ministry. The Opposition newspapers refused to take him seriously. When he traded Cabinet places with Mr. McKenna, then First Lord of the Admiralty, much of the irony that would have been uttered by press and public at Mr. Churchill's expense was sidetracked in animated discussion of the meaning of the change.

There had been danger of war with Germany shortly before. That the Government had decided that the fleet needed an overhauling, an application of new methods, was generally accepted as the underlying reason. It was argued that the Government wanted more push and energy in the Admiralty, and that, in spite of all that had been said about him, nobody had push and energy developed better than this young man, half English, half American. The fleet is very dear to the average Britisher's heart, and the experiment of putting Winston Churchill at the head of the Admiralty was watched with verying degrees of hope and trepidation.

Mr. Churchill's first move was to have a new deal in the composition of the administrative body known as the Sea Lords. He appointed new men. There was much comment on this rather radical move, but on the whole it was not in the line of adverse criticism.

SURPRISING APPROBATION.

The recent creation of a naval general staff has been received with a degree of approbation that is surprising in view of what amounted to a habit in certain quarters to poke fun at anything of an administrative character for which Mr. Churchill was responsible. The general staff idea had its opponents, quite as active as its friends, and until Mr. Churchill took the bull by the horns and announced to the country that a general staff was to be created without saying "By your leave" to Parliament or anybody else, the opposition was in the ascendant. But when the thing was done there was a chorus of approbation and mighty little booing.

Under his authority as First Lord of the Admiralty Mr. Churchill has created an operations division and assigned a high ranking officer to take charge of it with the title of director. Other directors of other new divisions were assigned from the naval list.

"The personnel of the War Staff," he said in an explanatory memorandum, "will consist of naval officers fresh from the sea and returning to the sea fairly frequently."

ANOTHER REFORM

is provision for frequent consultation and co-operation between the army and the navy in the preparation of war plans.

"The navy and the army," to quote Lord Haldane, the Secretary of State for War, "are now going to co-operate in this problem of defence in a fashion they never did before." In his memorandum Mr. Churchill made it plain that he intended to do his utmost to abolish what he called "watertight compartments," meaning the establishment of a bureaucratic system in which each bureau came to be sufficient unto itself without necessary co-ordination and co-operation in the various elements of the naval establishment. To overcome this he intends to bring the heads of the General Staff divisions into frequent consultation with the chief of the General Staff, so that each will regard himself as part of a whole and not a separate entity, having no responsibility or relationship to the other branches of the naval establishment.

To guard further against falling into a rut Mr. Churchill has invited the entire commissioned personnel of the fleet to give play to professional opinion. That is a rather dangerous experiment in a great navy, but Mr. Churchill apparently believes that it will do good in brushing away the cobwebs that are bound to appear if constant effort is not made to destroy them.

Mr. Churchill has rather pleased a nation disposed to criticize his acts and is now experiencing the unusual pleasure of being regarded seriously.

STAMP COLLECTING.

Great Many More Collectors Than Ten Years Ago.

Stamp collectors were interested some days ago by the first new Newfoundland postage stamps bearing the head of the Prince of Wales to arrive here.

The young prince, like his father, is an enthusiastic stamp collector. His collection was included in the London exhibition five years ago. One of its chief features is a unique collection of the stamps of his namesake colony, Prince of Wales Island, in which the Prince of Wales takes a keen interest.

Stamp collecting seems to be taking a firmer hold on its devotees and making more recruits than ever. W. S. Lincoln, one of the best-known philatelists in London, England, says that there are thousands more collectors than there were ten years ago. Within that period, he says, stamp collecting has grown from an art to a science. In the old days people collected for quantity, but now it is quality only that counts. Value is found to-day in watermarks. In some kinds of stamps perforations are the hallmark of excellence. In British stamps, for example, the rarest are those with fourteen perforations on the long side. But there are cases in which those with fourteen and a half or fifteen perforations are the prize specimens.

The penny and halfpenny stamps of King Edward always used to have fourteen perforations. The new stamp printers, whose first Georgian stamps raised an outcry, are still supplying halfpenny and penny Edward stamps, some of which have fourteen and a half and others fifteen perforations. Before long they will cease to issue King Edward stamps and these fourteen and a half and fifteen perforation specimens will become scarce, or even rare.

Another stamp which should soon become valuable is the Italian war stamp surcharged "Tripoli," as their issue continued only for a very short time.

CRAZY QUERIES.

Short and sharp would be the shrift of the person who dared to intimate that every one of us at times utters in perfect good faith ridiculous—not to mention nonsensical remarks. Yet the fact is indisputable. For instance, what can be more foolish than the question, "Oh, there you are, are you?" Yet this is asked scores of times a day. Just as absurd is the query, "Hello, going out?" put to one palpably preparing to leave the house. Equally wanting in sense is a question so often put by a wife to her husband. He is perhaps at the most crucial point in his morning shave, when the door bursts open, and his better-half exclaims, "Are you shaving, darling?" The darling's razor hand slips, leaving in its wake a lovely gash; and one could forgive him if he sarcastically exclaimed, "No; I'm just cutting myself!" And yet his wife would think him terribly irritable if he pointed out that her silly query was responsible for the damage.

MISAPPREHENDED.

Gertie—"Those roses you sent me were lovely and fresh. I do believe there is a little dew on them still."

George—"Well, there is since you mention it; but I shall pay it off shortly."

From the reports that appear from time to time of the voting on the question of Church Union it would appear that with few exceptions the congregations are strongly in favor of Union. Local conditions, undoubtedly have a great influence on the vote.

Rev. Joseph Elliott, who contested West Huron in the last provincial election, and was defeated by Wm. Proudfoot, M. P. P., has received an appointment to act as emigration agent for the Dominion Government in Glasgow, Scotland, Mr. Elliott expects to leave for Scotland at once, and will be away all summer. Mrs. Elliott will probably accompany him.

The Ontario Government has this year placed in the Estimates a grant of $18,000 for Standing Field Crop Competition to be conducted under the auspices of Boards of Agricultural Societies. Of the above amount the Federal Government have agreed to reimburse the province to the extent of $1000 for each million of acres of cultivated land up to $18,000.

In Quebec Province the Government is passing an act which provides that any man who earns $10 a month becomes a qualified voter. By this provision the mass of the people will have votes and it is hard to say who is excluded except vagabonds and tramps of no known occupation and of very uncertain income. Plural voting, which has existed in Quebec since colonial days, is abolished, and the "one man, one vote" principle is to be enjoyed. This will of itself become a notable step in advancement in Quebec.

The sleigh was upset and quite badly broken while the cream colored pony ran about half-a-mile south before it was captured. It received a few cuts but nothing very serious happened.

MOORESVILLE.

About seventy neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs Marshall Miller, gave them a surprise on Thursday evening last when they congregated to spend an evening prior to the departure of the host and hostess for London where they will reside, leaving the care of the farm to their son William. A very pleasant evening was spent, during the course of which the following address and presentation was made to them.

Mooresville, Feb. 8, 1912.

Dear Friends and Neighbors,—

It is with feelings of sympathy and regret that we are assembled here tonight on this eve of your departure from among us. It has been impressed upon our minds by that sense of loss, which we all so soon undergo, that it is our duty in some slight way to show our appreciation of you both as friends and neighbors. We have lived together from childhood to the present, many of us with the very closest feelings of good fellow-ship, and those ties, which are bound the more closely by years of intercourse with one another, are seemingly hard to sever.

We have always found you ever ready to lend a helping hand in any of our daily toils, also share in our sorrows and extend a word of sympathy when ever you found us burdened with the greater trials of life, we therefore ask you to accept this purse as a small token of our esteem and goodwill not for its intrinsic worth; but that it may refresh the many pleasant memories of the years we have spent together.

To you all, we extend our best wishes for your future happiness and prosperity, and also trust that God's choicest blessings may be strewn along your path way. Signed on behalf of all

W. Maguire, W. R. Simpson.

CLANDEBOYE

The late Mr. Flynn, who was killed by a train at Kincardine last week was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Flynn of Clandeboye and was in his 34th year. He was found lying beside the track about 200 yards south of the depot by Mr. S. Sleeman, who was attracted by his groans. He was conscious during the time of his removal to the Hospital, and explained briefly that, while at work removing ice on the track, he had been struck by one of the cars which were being shunted after the arrival of the afternoon train. An examination at the Hospital showed that his right shoulder and arm were badly mangled, also that he had sustained a severe scalp wound and was suffering internal injuries. Amputation of the arm was necessary, and death came a few hours later.

A valuable horse belonging to Williams Bros. was instantly killed in its stall when it got its hind foot over halter, and in its struggle broke its neck.—Miss Nellie Smith, of Winnipeg, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Atkins, of Mooresville.—Mrs. Love, of Medicine Hat is visiting her mother here.—Miss Ann Casey, who has an attack of muscular rheumatism, is still quite ill at her home.—Master Searle Carter is quite ill with the grip.—The G.T.R. yard here is nearly covered with sawlogs, which are to be shipped to St. Thomas.— Mr. Whiteford of the second concession is busy drawing gravel for building in the spring.

While being rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday morning, Cyril Carter, aged 12, of Clandeboye, died on the Huron and Bruce train just after it had left Denfield station. The boy is the only son of Mrs. Carter, whose husband died a year ago, and the circumstances of his death are unusually sad. About a week ago while going home he slipped and fell against an icy rut in the road. He complained soon afterwards of a pain in his ankle, and it was thought for a time that the ankle had been sprained. It swelled very rapidly, and bloodpoisoning developed. As a last hope it was decided to rush young Carter to the hospital, but the excitement and strain proved too much for him, and he died on the train. The remains were taken out at Ilderton and taken home the same evening for interment.

Mr. J. A. Atkinson, sectionman here has been laid off work the last few days on account of being on the sick list. —Mr. George Hodgins has returned home after spending a couple of weeks with relatives in London.—Mr. Johnson Aikens of Mooresville moved to Lucan Friday on account of his home being destroyed by fire on Thursday last.

Fred Atkinson, a young Western Canada real estate agent, had a close escape from being seriously injured here Monday, when he jumped from a moving train. Atkinson was talking to a traveller when the train pulled out, and as soon as he noticed that it was his station ran to the door and jumped. He landed in a big snow drift. The train was stopped. It was found that Atkinson was not badly hurt. —R. Atkinson, the Grand Trunk agent here, left for Denfield, where he will take charge for a few days during Mr. Case's visit to Toronto. During his absence his brother will be the acting agent here. —Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Abbott returned Sunday, after an extended visit to Chicago and the Pacific coast.

Fred Mallett, who has been confined to his home for several days through a injury to his knee, is able to be out again, although not fully recovered.

CRIPPLED BY RHEUMATISM AND KIDNEY TROUBLE 10 YEARS!

Morriscy's No. 7 Cured him. Other Doctors unable to help.

RANDOLPH, MASS., May 15, 1911.

"I suffered from Rheumatism for the last ten years, and at the suggestion of a friend I decided to try your No. 7 Tablets. Before I had taken one dozen I could notice a change—and as I always had a bad pain across my kidneys I found to my great delight the pain was gone by the time I had finished the first box. I used several boxes, and my Rheumatism gradually left me. I gave a box to a friend to try, and he is getting well very fast. No. 7 is a Great Remedy, and was the only thing that would help me. However, before using it I had tried everything I ever heard of, besides several good doctors, and all without success. I hope every sufferer will read of my cure, and try No. 7 if they want quick and sure relief."

John P. Hanley,
General Merchant.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

Father, Mother, Sister, Brother All Should Use Parisian Sage.

PREVENTS BALDNESS—BANISHES DANDRUFF—STOPS FALLING HAIR AND ITCHING SCALP

PARISIAN SAGE is a family hair tonic and dressing that will do much good in every home.

The man who uses PARISIAN SAGE if only occasionally will never grow bald. Baldness is caused by dandruff germs which dig down into the roots of the hair, devour its nourishment and cause the root to die and the hair to fall and thin out.

PARISIAN is a scientific hair remedy that not only kills dandruff germs but gives the hair root just the same nourishment that nature gives it.

PARISIAN SAGE first kills the germs, then nourishes the weakened hair root and causes a growth of healthy hair. This same nourishment (PARISIAN SAGE) causes the hair to grow vigorous which means that the hair becomes full of life and lustre, and grows radiant and beautiful.

MONEY BACK DANDRUFF REMOVER

Thousands are wasting time, losing hair and growing bald because they are using superficial tonics. While they may clean the scalp and make it feel refreshed, they do not get to the root of the hair where the real destroyer of hair, the pernicious dandruff germs, thrives and multiplies.

So harmless that it can be used by every member of the family from the oldest to the little tot. It is pleasant to use and means life to the hair, for all hair trouble; it Try PARISIAN SAGE ENLIVENED THE SCENE.

But Hero's Improvisation Did Not Help Leander Much.

Innumerable are the tales of actors in difficulties. Here is one related of Christian Brandes, the dramatist, who in his youth belonged to a strolling company which played pieces of an extremely primitive kind.
On one occasion the play was entitled "Hero and Leander," the dialogue being left pretty much to the discretion of the players. It had been agreed, however, that Hero was to be coy and not confess her love for Leander till he had again and again expressed his readiness to be hanged, burned and drowned in her behalf. But the lady was soft hearted, besides being exceedingly fond of Brandes, nor could she listen unmoved to the first passionate pleadings of the youth, who explained that he had swum across the Hellespont to see her. "My dear Leander," she exclaimed, "I cannot resist you. Accept my hand and my heart."
Leander knew not what to say. All his prepared phrases were useless. The manager came to his aid with a loud whisper addressed to Hero, "In the fiend's name, improvise a few words and retire!"
The poor girl, turning to the audience, repeated her lesson. "In the fiend's name, I improvise a few words and retire," and then tripped off the stage, greatly relieved.—London Graphic.

A Rossini Joke.

Rossini promised a place in the opera orchestra to a trombonist and then forgot about it, says the Musical Courier. At one of his dinner parties the butler announced the visit of this same protege. Rossini hastened to welcome him and, relieving him of his instrument, disappeared a few moments to return with his friend. Handing the instrument to the trombonist with a request to let the company hear him, Rossini prepared to listen. Trombone to lips, the musician rose—dismay, no sound, cheeks bulging, eyes distended. In vain the unhappy man makes superhuman efforts to produce harmonious sounds. At last! Oh, effort supreme! With a sound like a hoarse goose cackle there shoots from the trombone a mass of sticky macaroni. "No harm, my friend," said Rossini; "you have proved yourself a strong musician." And the next day the coveted position was offered to the trombonist.—Boston Transcript.

Sunlight and Germs.

Here is an instructive experiment made recently on the effects of sunlight. Some germs of the terrible disease, anthrax, were sown on two plates of gelatin, and while one plate was kept in the dark the other was placed in the sunlight. The germs grew, and at the end of ten minutes there were 360 colonies or groups in the sunshine plate and 400 colonies in the dark plate.
One hour later the result was: In the sunshine plate, none; in the dark plate, 2,520. No disease germ thrives in sunlight.

Modesty.

Modesty is one of the sweetest and most desirable qualities one can possess, and yet too much modesty hinders advancement. When this quality is overdeveloped it antagonizes aggressiveness, without which no great success can be attained.

Parried.

Wife—A tree, you know, gets new clothes every year—hat, parasol, everything. Husband—Yes, darling—and makes them all itself.

What She Might Catch.

She—They say there are germs in kisses. What do you suppose a girl could catch that way? He—A husband.—Exchange.

Resist thy inclinations in the beginning.—Thomas a Kempis.

AN INSPIRING TRIBUTE.

It Made a Remarkable Scene in the House of Representatives.

A touching scene occurred in the house of representatives a number of years ago when an aged member from New Jersey arose and for the first time addressed the speaker. All eyes were turned in his direction as he stood calmly awaiting recognition. He was tall, spare and erect. His venerable appearance and kindly expression, coupled with most courteous manners, at once commanded attention.
As in husky tones he again said "Mr. Speaker" there came from the farthest end of the great hall in a whisper, but distinctly heard by all, the words, "Sweet Alice, Ben Bolt." A moment later and from the floor and gallery many voices blended in the familiar refrain, "Don't you remember sweet Alice, Ben Bolt?"
The ovation which immediately followed was such as is rarely witnessed in the great hall. Business was suspended for the moment and the hand of the new member warmly grasped by the chosen representatives of all parties and sections. It was an inspiring tribute, one worthily bestowed. The member was Thomas Dunn English, author of the little poem, sung in palace and cottage, which found its way into all languages and touched all hearts.—Adlai E. Stevenson in "Something of Men I Have Known."

CURIOUS ESKIMO LIVING.

The Pallet Rooms in Homes Entirely Devoid of Furniture.

"Furniture is quite unknown in a common Eskimo home," writes the wife of the Danish governor of Greenland, Anna Bistrup, in an article on "Eskimo Women in Greeland" in the Century.
"The houses of the Eskimos are all built of stone and turf, with the windows opening toward the sun, the one entrance always being on the side that is least exposed to the wind. Along the back wall runs a platform, a pallet of boards, raised eighteen inches above the floor. It is from six to eight feet deep, and through its whole length it is divided into rooms or spaces of eight or ten feet. Each room is separated from the neighboring room by a partition of board or skin. An open passage runs the whole length of the house along the pallet rooms and serves for the traffic of all the inmates but each pallet room claims for its own the bit of passageway adjoining.
"Each pallet room is occupied by one family, and there they stay night and day. The best pallet room is the innermost and is always occupied by the owner of the house or the oldest if the house has more than one owner."

TRAPPING EAGLES.

The Chinese Get Them With a Baited Net and a Decoy Bird.

Every year, according to an old custom, in the second quarter of the September or October moon, the inhabitants of the Chinese province of Shantung go to Mongolia to hunt the eagles which abound in that region. The huntsmen march in troops along the roads, carrying on their shoulders long poles from which are suspended their baggage and provisions and on which are perched tame eagles to be used as decoys.
The hunters make use of a large net, spread open on the ground and baited with small dried fishes, in the midst of which is placed a tame eagle. The decoy naturally begins to devour the bait and thus invites its wild cousins to follow its example. When the birds have alighted and are feeding the hunter, from his hiding place two or three hundred yards distant, quickly closes the net by means of cords and thus captures the eagles.
Eagle hunting is very lucrative. The feathers are used in the manufacture of fans and are sold at a high price even in China. There are three sorts—Kicpei, black with white centers; Chema, white spotted with black; Toutsing, half white and half black. Several eagles contribute to the making of a fan, for only a small part of the plumage can be utilized; hence these fans are very costly.

ANIMAL EVOLUTION.

Changes in the Partridges of the Canary Islands.

A remarkable example of the effects of environment and changed conditions of life upon the forms of animals is furnished by a species of partridge living in the Canary islands. Over 400 years ago the Spaniards introduced the red legged partridge from Europe into these islands, and the bird has continued to flourish there; but, as recent examination proves, it has undergone modifications clearly brought about by the conditions under which it lives.
Its back has turned from russet color to gray. This looks like protective coloration, since the bird passes its life among gray volcanic rocks.
Its beak has become one-fourth longer and thicker than that of its ancestors and of its European relatives, and its legs also have increased in length and grown stouter.
These changes are exactly such as were needed to suit it to the life that it is now compelled to lead amid the rocks and on the mountain sides of the islands, where a more rigorous physical development is required than was needed in its former home.—Harper's Weekly.

GRANTON—Mrs. William Baynes, of Granton, who is visiting her brother, Mr. John Crone, London met with an unfortunate accident Friday. While stepping out of the back door of her brother's house she slipped and fell and broke her left arm between the shoulder and elbow.

PARKHILL—The house of Mr. C. Barnes, on concession 16, was destroyed by fire. The fire started early in the evening from an overheated stove-pipe, and members of the family noticed it in time to remove some of the furniture from the lower floor. Nothing upstairs was saved, as the flames spread so rapidly that little could be done, and the men were forced out of the house by heat and smoke.

MAN AND THE SOIL.

Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, author of the Common Sense Medical Adviser, says "why does not the farmer treat his own body as he treats the land he cultivates. He puts back in phosphate what he takes out in crops, or the land would grow poor. The farmer should put back into his body the vital elements exhausted by labor, or by ill-health induced by some chronic disease." Further, he says, "the great value of my Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is in its vitalizing power. It gives strength to the stomach and purity to the blood. It is like the phosphates which supply nature with the substances that build up the crops. The far-reaching action of is due to its effect on the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases that begin in the stomach are cured through the stomach. A bilious spell is simply the result of an effort made by the liver to catch up when over-worked and exhausted. I have found the 'Discovery' to be unsurpassed as a liver regulator and rich blood-maker."

MISS LOTTIE KNISELY of Perth, Kansas, says: "I will here add my testimony of the effectiveness of your remedy upon myself. I was troubled with indigestion for two years or more. Doctored with three different doctors besides taking numerous kinds of so-called 'stomach cures' but received no permanent relief. I was run down, could not sleep at night with the pain in my chest, caused by gas on the stomach. Was weak, could eat scarcely anything although I was hungry nearly all the time. About one year and a half ago I began taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and after having taken several bottles am nearly cured of stomach trouble. Can now eat without distress and have gained fifteen pounds in weight.
I thank you for your remedy and wish you all success in your good work."

CHURCHILL AT BELFAST

Outlines The Home Rule Bill For Ireland Before 6,000 People

A despatch from Belfast says: The essential features of the Liberal Government's Home Rule bill, to be introduced into the British Parliament, were set forth for the first time on Thursday in the course of the speech of Winston Spencer Churchill, the first lord of the Admiralty. The unusual efforts taken to allay Unionist resentment and to afford military and public protection was effectual, and there was no serious attempt at disturbance, although there were signs of the Ulster spirit from the time that Churchill, with his wife, arrived at the Central Station. A number of Orangemen who had gathered at the station greeted him with groans and boos, but these were drowned in the hearty cheers of the large crowd of Liberals and Nationalists. There was no disturbance and the large force of police on duty in the station had a very easy task to perform.

Rain fell pitilessly the whole morning. The football ground where the meeting was held is a swamp and the saturated canvas marquee in which Mr. Churchill spoke sagged threateningly several times.

The surroundings of the football grounds, which is known locally as "Paradise," were appallingly desolate. The deluge was incessant and the approaches to the marquee were a sea of black ooze. The supports and ropes holding up the marquee were strained with the weight of the sodden canvas, through which the water dripped like a shower bath.

Mr. Churchill was greeted with a rousing reception from the 6,000 people gathered within the tent, whose exthusiasm not even the depressing surroundings were able entirely to quench. A steady shower bath poured through the canvas roof, making the floor an incipient marsh.

Mr. Churchill immediately got on good terms with his audience, promising them that the Government intended to pass a Home Rule bill which would be harmonious with imperial interests, smooth the path of the British empire, liberate new forces for its service, and for ever do away with the accursed machinery by which hatred had been manufactured in the past. "The Government's Home Rule bill," continued Mr. Churchill, "would fit into a general scheme of Parliamentary devolution leading ultimately to the federation of the Empire. That was the only way to free the House of Commons from its present congestion. Look at our great rivals, the United States of America and Germany. Both of those powers conduct their business through 46 and 23 separate Parliaments respectively," he said. In order to keep pace with the world movement, he said, he considered it vitally necessary for England to learn how to combine the fullest expressions of national and local aspirations and activities with the strongest framework of imperial unity. Home Rule for Ireland, he said, he regarded as the first milestone along the road to the eventful unity of the English-speaking races. Mr. Churchill contended that the settlement of the long quarrel between the British Government and the Irish people would be a boon to the Empire beyond compare, as the Irish throughout the world were a power for good or ill who had in the past mostly worked counter to British interests. Mr. Churchill then outlined the proposed Home Rule measure, and said that the Government is prepared to fight the bill through Parliament. He asked for fair play from the Unionists. On the subject of finance Mr. Churchill said that under the present system Ireland was entitled to a subsidy of $10,000,000 a year from Great Britain, and this would be increased largely through the maturing of existing legislative obligations. The Government would approach the question in the desire to achieve a good settlement and would provide for prosperity both social and economic. Home Rule would give the Irish Parliament, he said, real responsibility in finance, and it would have complete control of large areas of taxation, and the power within reasonably wide limits to supplement its income by new taxes.

The national anthem was sung by all present at the close of the proceedings. Mr. and Mrs. Churchill returned to their hotel in a motor car, and then took a special train for Larne, on their way to Scotland.

Uses Only Cuticura Soap for Prize Baby

"I have always used Cuticura Soap and no other for my baby, and he has never had a sore of any kind. He does not even chafe as most babies do. I feel that it is all owing to Cuticura Soap for he is fine and healthy, and when five months old won a prize in a baby contest. It makes my heart ache to go into so many homes and see a sweet faced baby with the whole top of its head a solid mass of scurf, caused by the use of poor soap. I always recommend Cuticura, and nine times out of ten the next time I see the mother she says 'Oh! I am so glad you told me of Cuticura.'" (Signed) Mrs. G. A. Selby, Redondo Beach, Calif.

Although Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. 38M, Boston, U.S.A., will secure a liberal sample, with 32-p. book on the care of skin, scalp and hair.

A TROUBLE MAKER.

Tea and Coffee Poison Breeds Variety of Ills.

A California woman who didn't know for twenty years what kept her ill, writes to tell how she won back her health by quitting coffee: (Tea contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee.)

"I am 54 years old," she says, "have used coffee all my life and for 20 years suffered from indigestion and insomnia. Life was a burden and a drag to me all the time, and about once a year my ailments got such hold upon me that I was regularly 'sick in bed' for several weeks each time.

"I was reluctant to conclude that coffee was the cause of my trouble, but I am thankful that I found out the truth.

"Then I determined to use Postum exclusively—for a week at first—for I doubted my ability to do without coffee for any length of time. I made the Postum carefully, as directed, and before the week expired had my reward in a perceptible increase in strength and spirits.

"Seeing the good that my short experiment had accomplished, I resolved to continue the use of Postum, cutting out the coffee entirely. This I did for nine months, finding, daily, increased cause for gratification at my steadily improving health. My indigestion gradually left me, my sleep returned, I gained 26 pounds in weight, my color changed from sallow to a fresh, rosy hue and life became a blessing.

"Then I thought I would try coffee again, and did so for a few weeks. The punishment for deserting my good friend, Postum, was a return of my old troubles.

"That taught me wisdom, and I am now and shall be all my life hereafter using Postum exclusively and enjoying the benefits it brings me." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

EQUIPMENT BONDS ARE READILY SALEABLE, BUT HAVE LITTLE CHANCE OF APPRECIATING IN VALUE.

High Yield When Security is Considered is Particularly Strong Feature of Equipments—Public Not Educated to Them—High Convertibility—Stable in Price—Very Excellent Investments for Business Surplus.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor.")

We have seen that so far as safety is concerned railroad equipment bonds possess security equal or superior to that of any other form of railroad security.

The remaining characteristics—rate of income, convertibility, prospect of appreciating in value and stability—may now be briefly considered.

A particularly strong feature of equipment bonds is the fact that as a rule they yield a relatively high rate of income. As a general thing they return from one-half to one per cent. more than do the mortgage bonds of the railroad issuing them. In the case of Canadian railroads, this is due to the fact that the English market is not keen for a serial bond or for bonds of such short date as "equipments," and also to the fact that the general Canadian public has not yet been educated to the very high quality of equipment bonds as investments. For this reason the return is high. In the case of Canadian Northern "Equipments,"—the only bonds of this class at present available to the Canadian investor—the return varies from 4 1-2 per cent. for short maturities to 5 per cent. for bonds with some years to run.

As regards convertibility, equipment bonds vary according to the date of maturity. Bonds maturing within a short time are highly convertible, while the more distant ones are only slightly less so. Many investors, particularly those investing a business surplus, which may be called upon at any time, choose short term equipments—or even those with 8 or 10 years to run—as a highly liquid and very satisfactory medium in which to invest in order to be able readily to convert their securities into cash. Indeed, there is probably no security, excepting shares, which possesses a readier market at all times.

Shares, however, are by no means stable in price. Equipment bonds, on the contrary, owing to their short duration, and the fact that the security on the longer maturities increases each year by ten per cent. of the total issue—owing to the fact that one-tenth, as a rule, are retired yearly—do not fluctuate in price. It is seldom that one hears of sales more than a fraction from the established yield price of this class of security. As a class they are relatively considerably more stable than other railroad issues.

Owing to the same reasons that renders them stable equipment bonds possess a very slight chance of appreciating in value.

The short maturity of equipment bonds, as suggested before, render them particularly adaptable for the investment of business surplus or other funds, which may be required at short notice. For example, suppose an individual, or a firm, has a surplus of $10,000. In the bank he would get but 3 per cent. By purchasing a 4 1-2 per cent. equipment bond with three years to run, at the present time he could purchase them at about 98.62, which would yield about 5 per cent. Suppose at the end of two years it was necessary to realize. The bonds would have but one year to run and would sell—as a rule—at par. The purchaser would, therefore, not only make 5 per cent on his money, but a small profit, which would make his total income for the two years he held the bonds average 5 1-4 per cent. This is a point worth considering.

Dirtier Than Naples, Says Sir William Van Horne.

A despatch from Montreal says: "Even notorious Naples is clean as compared with Montreal," said Sir William Van Horne, discussing the condition of the streets of this city. "The dirt in them at all seasons of the year is enough to turn one's stomach. In no city in Canada or the United States is there anything to compare with it. Why, the dirtiest streets of Cuba are cleaner than Montreal's." Sir William advocates the appointment of a Parks Commission to plan better conditions.

20 MEN KILLED OR MAINED

Many Charges of Dynamite Were Set Off Without Warning

A despatch from Fort Frances, Ont., says: A terrific explosion took place shortly before 12 o'clock on Friday at the construction works of Johnson and Carey's camp on an island on Rainy Lake, some eight miles east of here, when 12 men were killed outright and six badly injured. One of the injured has since died, making the number of dead 13. There are still some of the men unaccounted for, so that the list may be still further augmented before the search now being prosecuted is finished. The cause of the explosion was the premature discharge of one of the holes charged with dynamite. The gang of men under Foreman Thomas Casey had sunk 64 holes at a uniform depth of 22 feet, and one of the charges in the holes was not properly prepared, and it was while this charge was being taken out that it was set off, the concussion immediately causing the other 63 charges to explode. The men were hurled into the air along with tons of rock and debris. So great was the explosion that large pieces of rock half the size of a small house were upheaved, while the foreman, who must have been standing over one of the holes, was blown into the air for 150 feet, the body landing near the Canadian Northern Railway line, with both legs blown off and terribly disfigured. The other men were badly bruised, and in some cases almost every bone was broken in their bodies. A gang of shovel men who were working in a lower level taking out the loose rock and loading it in the dump cars were not 50 feet distant when the explosion occurred, and were not injured in the least.

One of the men said that as soon as they heard the blast go off they made at once for cover. The sight, he said, was a terrible one. "We saw Casey hurled over our heads, and with the tremendous thunder of the explosion, the crash of falling rocks, and the screams of those who were not killed outright, I will never forget the sight."

It is said that the amount of dynamite in the explosion was over 200 bolts, or about five tons.

WAR MINISTER FOR GERMANY

After an Audience with the King, Lord Haldane Departs.

A despatch from London, England, says: Lord Haldane, Minister for War, left London suddenly for Berlin on Wednesday after having had an audience with the King and Sir Edward Grey. Although no official announcement was made as to the cause of his hastily arranged journey, it is believed to have a direct bearing upon the strained situation which everyone recognizes is being brought about by the rising tide of indignation in Great Britain over the conviction and sentence of Bertrand Stewart, for espionage. On the train with Lord Haldane was Sir Ernest Cassel, the banker, and representative of the great financial interests which are exerting every effort to avoid war with Germany. It is considered significant that before Lord Haldane's departure the King saw both Sir Edward Grey and Lord Lansdowne, who was the former's predecessor as Minister of Foreign Affairs. British hopes for a peaceful and friendly cure for the present inflamed state of public opinion rest largely in the belief that the Kaiser may be induced either to pardon Stewart or take steps to bring about a revision of the court's drastic action.

The entire British press is united in demanding vigorous action to uphold the national honor. Even The London Times takes the view: "That a British citizen abroad has been harshly condemned in circumstances affording no security for innocence and raising a strong presumption of grave miscarriage of justice."

Unfortunately for the hope that the Kaiser may pardon Stewart, all advices from Berlin indicate that public opinion is too highly aroused there to permit any action of this kind at the present time.

STRONG AND PROGRESSIVE

NINETEEN HUNDRED AND ELEVEN PROVES A RECORD YEAR.

That the Dominion of Canada is making great strides in all directions, and that, generally, prosperity reigns in business and financial circles, is indicated by the publication of the statements of the different financial institutions for the year 1911.

Among the companies worthy of mention as being strong, progressive, and in a healthy condition, should be mentioned the North American Life Assurance Company of Toronto. Its new business of last year exceeded that of the year previous by over a million dollars; its assets increased by about the same figure, while it paid to its policyholders during the same period the large sum of $998,348.87. A notable item is the amount paid for dividends to policyholders of about $150,000. This very considerable sum, especially in comparison with the small amount paid shareholders of $6,000, is striking evidence of the insignificant outlay for the protection of the shareholders' fund, and of the real mutuality of the policyholders' interests.

The Company's assets are over $12,000,000, invested in the highest class of securities, mainly consisting of mortgages, bonds, and debentures.

The liabilities are all amply provided for, the reserve being on a basis ensuring absolute protection and at the same time most substantial surplus or dividend returns to policyholders. After making full provision for every known liability, there remains a further guarantee by way of net surplus of over $1,300,000. Apart from this, the Company has a contingent surplus of nearly $170,000, being the excess of market value of bonds, etc., over the book value, and which is not included in its surplus, although it is the custom with many institutions to take advantage of this item to increase the net surplus.

Some years ago, the Company organized a Loan Department for the West, with headquarters at Winnipeg, and it has already invested a very large amount of money in mortgage loans in that great and growing country as well as in British Columbia. It is gratifying to know that these loans have proved highly satisfactory, thereby encouraging the making of further investments in that direction.

The Company is well and carefully managed, being recognized as among the leaders in that respect in Canada, while its Agency Staff is composed of highly respectable gentlemen representing it at all important points throughout the Dominion.

The people of Canada are now so well served with excellent home life insurance companies, among which the North American holds a prominent place, that it appears now quite unnecessary for intending insurers to look elsewhere than to their own companies for life insurance, which is recognized to-day as the only means by which the majority of people are enabled to provide for the future if living, or for those dependent upon them, when taken away.

THE POWER THAT DRIVES THE HUMAN FACTORY

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Help the Blood and Make You Well.

The human body is the busiest factory in the world. There is no eight hours day, no slack season, no holidays, no cessation of labor at any time. Day and night work is being carried on in the workshop of your body, and it never ceases until the engine—the heart—stops forever.

The factory of your body has its motive power, without which it would have to close down at once. That motive power is the blood, healthy, rich, red blood which keeps your whole system efficient and which drives away all diseases that may attack it.

Good, red blood is the chief controller of every action; the source of all the energy you possess. It builds up every substance of your muscles, nerves, sinews and flesh. It removes the waste and poisonous products constantly created in your body, which, if allowed to remain set up disease and weakness of every kind. Good blood gives energy and vitality to the nervous system, besides regulating the function of the stomach, intestines, liver, kidneys and other organs of the body. Briefly, on the purity and richness of your blood the health of your whole body depends.

Often the blood begins to fail and becomes thin and poor in quality. Ie becomes loaded with waste matter and charged with poisons. Then it is that the motive power of your bodily workshop goes wrong, your physical machinery becomes disorganized and you fall ill. You become anaemic; maybe the nerves break down, or you begin to suffer from indigestion, neuralgia, general debility, severe headaches, pains in the back or side, rheumatism, or even paralysis.

In all failures of the blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best known remedy. These pills actually make new, rich blood, which brings health and energy to every part of the body. Thousands and thousands of people, not only in Canada, but all over the world, testify to the truth of this statement. The following is a bit of proof. Mrs. Fred. Stricker, jr., Moosefield, Ont., says: "A few years ago I was a physical and nervous wreck; I had pains throughout my whole body. I had no appetite and my stomach felt as if there was a big lump in it. The least exertion would make my heart beat violently, and I would be attacked with trembling spells, and such a weakness that my breath would come in gasps. I was under a doctor's care for nearly two months, but got very little relief. I then tried other remedies, but with no better results. Finally I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and this was the first medicine that reached the root of my trouble. After taking the pills a few weeks I was much better, and by the time I had taken ten boxes I was entirely recovered. I now always keep the pills in the house and if I feel the least worn out take an occasional box and feel all right again."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Caller—Your paper, sir, refers to the man charged with entering my house as "the alleged diamond thief."

Editor—Well, sir?

Caller—Well, I want you to understand that I had no alleged diamonds on my premises; they were all genuine.

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores

When the sewers of the body—bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up, the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:

"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this.

At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box. 6

BOLDNESS OF SWALLOWS.

One Nest Built in a House—Another on an Electric Lamp.

A very curious instance of boldness in swallows was recorded in 1886 from Ceylon. It was in case the birds built over a lamp in the dining-room; what made their choice of site more remarkable was the fact that the lamp could be raised or lowered by counter weights and the connecting chains actually passed through the mud walls of the nest.

Occasionally the bird selects a nesting site which invites comparison with the boldness of the robin. In July last a pair of swallows took advantage of the open window of an unoccupied bedroom in a house at Felmersham in Bedfordshire to begin building their nest on the curtain rod of the bed.

The return of the owner of the house and his occupation of the bed did not in the least disturb or alarm the birds, which completed the nest and brought off three nestlings within seven weeks of the house owner's return. They took no notice of the occupant of the bed when flying in and out of the window feeding their young; but the hen bird would fly off the nest if anyone entered the room during the daytime.

Three years ago a pair of swallows built their nest on top of the shade of an electric lamp which hangs outside the asylum at Narborough, near Leicester.—Baily's Magazine.

A VALUABLE MEDICINE FOR YOUNG CHILDREN

Baby's Own Tablets are a most valuable medicine for infants and young children. They break up colds, expel worms, regulate the stomach and bowels, and in a natural way promote healthy sleep. They contain no injurious drugs and cannot possibly do harm. Concerning them Mrs. J. A. Rix, Ebbsfleet, P. E. I., writes: "My baby was troubled with her stomach, but Baby's Own Tablets speedily cured her and now she is a bright, healthy child." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FLOWERS HAVE EYES.

Many common garden and wild flowers—the nasturtium, begonia, clover, wood sorrel and bluebell among others—possess eyes on their leaves. Moreover, these eyes in their principle of construction resemble those of animals. They consist of minute protuberances filled with a transparent, gummy substance, which focuses the rays of light on a sensitive patch of tissue. The nasturtium has thousands of such eyes on its leaves, and these form as many images of the surrounding objects. While flowers have eyes, however, it does not follow that they can see. It is not known whether or not the sense impressions are transmitted to some nerve centres corresponding to the brain of animals.

An Oil Without Alcohol. — Some oils and many medicines have alcohol as a prominent ingredient. A judicious mingling of six essential oils compose the famous Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and there is no alcohol in it, so that its effects are lasting. There is no medicinal oil compounded that can equal this oil in its preventive and healing power.

Hemlock, foxglove, monkshood, the seeds of laburnum, common laurel, and yew are all poisonous to human beings.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.

NO MORE COLD FEET.

In the near future there should be no more cold feet, and even those unfortunates who cannot get near the fireside will not suffer from chilled pedal extremities because they have to sit back in the room. By means of an invention for adapting electricity it is now possible to make carpets, rugs, or even linoleum perfectly warm. The whole floor is ingeniously threaded with electrical wires, the majority of them running in parallel lines, and an ordinary lighting current is passed through them. The effect is naturally to warm the floor covering, and, as the temperature is easily regulated, a greater or lesser intensity of heat may be arranged. Carpets, by the way, retain heat for some time, so the use of electrical current need not be continuous.

CURED ACHES AND PAINS LIKE MAGIC

WHEN HE USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS FOR RHEUMATISM.

Saskatchewan man tells of quick relief after three years of suffering.

Holbeck, Sask., Feb. 12 (Special). —Among the many of the prairies who are shouting the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills none speak with more enthusiasm than Mr. Matt. Syverson, a well-known resident of this place.

"I suffered from rheumatism for three years," Mr. Syverson says; "and I was also troubled with an acute pain around my heart. My case was a severe one and several times I doubted if recovery was possible. But seven boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me completely.

"I can truly and honestly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as a remedy for cases like mine. They surely cleared out all my aches and pains as if by magic."

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. When the kidneys are right they strain all the uric acid out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills make the kidneys right. That's why they never fail to cure rheumatism and kindred diseases.

CULTIVATE SIDE-VISION.

Guards Against Dangers From Unexpected Sources.

One of the most useful gifts one can have is a good side-vision. By "side-vision" is meant, literally, the ability to see in several directions at once, and to know what is going on in other directions besides that upon which the gaze may be fixed at the moment.

Just try the next time you are reading in the train, for instance, and you will understand clearly what is meant.

You can with little effort, and while still reading, follow the movements of those sitting opposite you, and even those at your side.

With a little practice the range of your side-vision can be extended behind you, in each direction to an angle of forty-five degrees, and you can see clearly every movement that takes place on both sides simultaneously.

Now, just think what this means. The man in possession of a good side-vision is not an easy one to take by surprise. In business he finds it a valuable asset, especially when talking with more than one person at a time.

He can guard against dangers from unexpected sources, and when crossing a roadway he can clearly see the traffic coming from either direction, while still looking straight ahead.

SORES FROM ELBOW TO FINGERS.

Zam-Buk Worked a Miracle of Healing.

Reverend Gentleman Fully Corroborates.

Miss Kate L. Dolliver, of Caledonia, Queens Co., N. S., says: "I must add my testimony to the value of Zam-Buk. Ulcers and sores broke out on my arm, and although I tried to heal them by using various preparations, nothing seemed to do me any good. The sores spread until from fingers to elbow was one mass of ulceration.

"I had five different doctors, and faithfully carried out their instructions. I drank pint after pint of blood medicines, tried salve after salve, and lotion after lotion; but it was of no avail.

"My father then took me thirty miles to see a well-known doctor. He photographed the arm and hand. This photograph was sent to a New York hospital to the specialist; but they sent word they could do nothing further for me, and I was in despair.

"One day a friend asked me if I had tried Zam-Buk. I said I had not, but I got a box right away. The first box did me more good than all the medicine I had tried up to that time, so I continued the treatment. Every box healed the sores more and more until, to make a long story short, Zam-Buk healed all the sores completely. Everybody in this place knows of my case and that Zam-Buk alone cured me."

Minister corroborates.—The Rev. W. B. M. Parker, of Caledonia, Miss Dolliver's minister, writes: "This is to certify that the testimonial of Miss Dolliver is correct as far as my knowledge goes. I have known her for a year and a half, and her cure effected by Zam-Buk is remarkable."

Wherever there is ulceration, blood-poison, sores, cold-cracks, abscesses, cuts, burns, bruises, or any skin injury or disease, there Zam-Buk should be applied. It is also a sure cure for piles. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. per box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

HICKS' FEBRUARY FORECASTS.—A regular storm period covers the 20th to the 25th, being partly covered by the incoming Mercury period. Disturbances of the preceding reactionary period will scarcely subside, until falling barometer, change to warmer and electrical storms will appear on the 20 Rain and thunder, with violent winds south, will mark the first stages of this period; but as the storms progress during the 21st, 22nd, 23rd and 24th, rain will turn to sleet and snow, amounting to blizzards, followed from the north by high gales and a sweeping cold wave. A reactionary storm period is central during the last three days of February. The Mercury, Earth and Mars periods combine their disturbing forces at this time, calling for prolonged and very decided storms of rain, wind, sleet and snow. It should always be remembered especially by all who are exposed to gulf and south Atlantic coast regions, that equatorial, or West Indian storms are probable the last half of February, and such probability is greatly increased, when such a combination exists as we have during the last half of the present month.

DEATH—The death occurred on Wednesday of last week of Eliza Rudd, widow of the late Samuel Isaac, at the advanced age of 89 years and 6 months. Deceased had been residing with her daughter, Mrs. Philip Madge, Lot 15, Con. 8, Usborne for the past fifteen years. Her death was due to the infirmities of old age and the decline was slow but certain. Born in Devonshire, Eng., she and her husband settled in Usborne on the farm on which she died 62 years ago. Thirty years later they moved to Exeter, where they resided until the death of Mr. Isaac fifteen years ago, to a day, since which time she has been living with her daughter in Usborne. Besides the daughter, she is survived by one sister Mrs. Chas. Rowe of Exeter. The late Mrs. Isaac was a consistent member of the Methodist church, very highly respected and esteemed and her demise is regretted by all who knew her. The funeral took place to the Exeter cemetery on Friday.

Mr. John Mitchell is confined to his bed with the old enemy.

An annual grant of $15,000 a year has been made by the Ontario Government to the Western University of London placing that institution on a firm footing and enabling the senate to proceed with the whole scheme of the university's extension in all branches.

Mr Philip Rowcliffe has disposed of his dwelling on Sanders street to Mrs. Samuel Passmore of Usborne. Mrs. Passmore will take possession in the course of a few weeks. Mr. Rowcliffe has not yet decided whether he will move to London or remain a citizen of Exeter.

Capt. W. J. Heaman has received word from headquarters that the unit under his command will be re-armed with Ross rifles, Mark., 11, three star. The old Lee Enfield rifles will be withdrawn from service and returned to head quarters. The pay to those attending camp in future will be increased from 50c. to 75 cents a day.

The Methodist boards are voting very strongly in favor of church union. The Methodist church as it exists to-day is the result of the union of a half-dozen different bodies in 1883, and the success which has attended that union is probably regarded as a forecast of what will follow the larger confederation now proposed.

Do you know that an editor or a reporter for a newspaper can in his rounds stop and ask a hundred persons "What is the news" And ninety out of the hundred will reply. "Nothing special and yet fifty out of that number know something that it not found in the next paper will astonish them greatly and disappoint them more, and perhaps makes them madder than hornets. Don't be afraid to let the newspaper man known it.

The Brucefield Seed Show.—The annual spring show under the auspices of the South Huron Agricultural Society will be held in Walker's Hall, Brucefield, on Friday, March 1st, This is an event of which farmers should take advantage. There is nothing more important than the procuring of good seed. This fair enables the seller and buyer to get together at close range, gives the man who has seed to sell an opportunity of showing its excellence and gives the man who wants to buy seed the opportunity of learning where to get his seed and get the best. On this occasion very liberal prizes are offered and it is hoped there will be a good display of seeds of all kinds. The seed will be judged by Mr Porter, B.S.A. of Petrolea, who will also deliver an address to those present. Mr. Porter is a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College, and is being sent by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Mrs. Morlock is confined to her room owing to illness.

Rev. Mr. Hobbs is still confined to his room with little or no improvement.

Rev. R. J. Bowen, District Secretary of the Canadian Bible Society occupied pulpits of the Presbyterian and James street churches on Sunday morning and evening respectively, and gave very interesting addresses on the work of the society in translating and furnishing the bible to aid in the great missionary movements. Mr. Bowen has been twenty years at the work, and has crossed the continent eighteen times, visited Yukon and Labrador, and has been in nearly every town and village in Canada. He claims that there are 110 distinct languages spoken in Canada, and the duty is to furnish them with the bible in their own language.

BUSINESS CHANGED HANDS. — To take effect March 1st.—Having bought the Butchering Business and good will of Mr F. Wood, we would like to do business with all the old customers, and as many new ones who would wish to give us a call. Our aim will be to give satisfaction, and having had some 15 years of experience I have some idea of the wants of the people. As I cannot see you all personally I take this way of soliciting your patronage.

WM. RIVERS.

DEATH OF THOMAS PRIOR.—A well known and highly respected citizen of Exeter passed away on Friday evening last about 8.30 o'clock, when the death occurred of Mr. Thomas Prior, at the age of 68 years, 1 month, 4 days. Deceased had been very ill for several months of pernicious anaemia and while at first it was thought he might recover, after a period of illness, it soon developed that it was only a matter of a short time as his strength was gradually ebbing away. During the last two weeks the end was expected at almost any time and he was unconscious for several hours before the end came. Born in Devonshire, England, he came to Canada in 1854 with his parents and family of three brothers and one sister. They settled in Southwold, near St. Thomas, then in 1860 moved to the 2nd concession of Usborne. He was twice married, his first wife being Rhoda Hunkin and the second Susan Cudmore, who together with six children, survives. The children are, Mrs. Robert Sweet, Nelson and Herman Prior of Portage la Prairie, Mrs. Wm. Kay of Farquhar; Mrs. E. Beebe of Ridgetown, and Miss Olive at home, all of whom have the sincere sympathy of a wide circle of friends. The late Mr. Prior was a man of many excellent parts, honest, straightforward and conscientious in business; forty years a consistent member of the James street Methodist church where he took an active interest in the various departments of church work. For several years he conducted a butcher business here and for many years latterly had been in partnership with Mr. I. Armstrong in the hog business. In politics he was a Conservative. He was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters, and the Independent Order of Oddfellows. The funeral service was held in the James street church on Tuesday afternoon, and interment took place in the Exeter cemetery, at which place the Oddfellows took charge of the service. The casket bore many beautiful floral tributes, among them being a wreath from the White Packing Co., the Oddfellows, and the Canadian Order of Foresters.

DROPPED DEAD.

A startlingly sudden death occurred in Usborne on Friday morning last, when Daniel Kernick, one of the oldest residents of the township and a former well-known resident of Exeter, dropped dead. Since the deceased moved from Exeter he has been residing with his son Frank on the fourth concession of Usborne. He possessed a hearty and robust constitution and was up and around the morning of his death in the best of health and spirits. As was his usual custom he took a walk out to the barn about nine o'clock and that was the last seen of him alive, having dropped dead where he stood, and apparently without a struggle. He was discovered a short time afterwards by his son Frank, but life was extinct. A doctor was called and after an examination it was found that death was caused through the rupture of a blood vessel in the head. Mr. Kernick was born in Cornwall, England, in the year 1831 and came to Canada with his parents when a mere boy. The family first settled in Darlington, and about thirty five years ago moved to the township of Usborne, where deceased spent the the most of his life. He was a blacksmith by trade and served several years in the shop conducted by the late Sam'l Buckingham. He was a man of industrious habits, faithful in duty, upright and honest and was much respected. Strange to say two of Mr. Kernick's brother's died under similar circumstances. Mr. Kernick was twice married, his first wife being Elizabeth Tuer, who predeceased him about 11 years, His second wife was Mrs. Brewer, who died about two years ago. He is survived by three sons and four daughters—Thomas of Exeter and William and Frank of Usborne, Mrs. Charles Johnston of St. Marys; Mrs. James Frayne of Usborne; Mrs. Leake Smith of St. Cloud, Minn., and Mrs. Henry Dilling of town. Deceased was aged 80 years and four months. The funeral took place Monday to the Exeter cemetery.

Mr. John W. Taylor is recovering nicely from his attack of pneumonia.

Mr. Ed. Dignan is off duty owing to a sore foot, the result of it being stepped on by a horse.

THE ROYAL ENGLISH HAND-BELL RINGERS

(Peterboro Examiner)

In spite of the intensely cold weather of last night there was a large attendance at St. Andrew's church to be delighted with the splendidly presented program of the Royal English Hand-Bell Ringers. This organization had just completed a very successful tour of the United States and made the first appearance of their Canadian tour under the management of Miss Maude Bradley of Brockville.

The program was admirably balanced, a charming blending of popular and classical music. The bell ringers are far beyond in range of executive capability, other organizations of the kind, and eight performers, using 171 bells, executed with wonderful correctness, and unbelievable ensemble, involved operatic overtures as well as simpler music. Their program was heard with enthusiastic appreciation, and nearly every number was encored. The company has voices as sweet and full toned as the bells, and were heard in solo, duet, quartette and double quartette. Mr. Wain a male alto, Mr. J. E. Jessop, bass, and the quartette demonstrated the wonderful vocal capacity of the company and their splendid powers of entertainment. Altogether the entire program distinguished the Royal English Hand-Bell Ringers as one of the most unique and musically capable organizations that has visited Canada.

She thought the sail would never climb up in time, but as it began to yield to the steady pull of the men it mounted more and more rapidly, and at last, feeling the influence of a gentle breeze blowing off the land, it shook out its cumbrous folds and the number stood clearly revealed in huge white letters on the dark brown canvas.

At first, in her eagerness, she could hardly discern it, save a big "M" and an "R."

"There!" cried Eugenie, bubbling over with excitement. "There it is! 'M.R. 107,' Marseilles, No. 107, you know. Why, isn't that Jacques le Bon's boat?" she demanded from her companion.

"Yes, it is," said Marie; "and there is Jacques himself standing by the tiller."

Edith's eyes were now becoming accustomed to the night and the dancing water.

"Where are the others?" she said. "I cannot see them. There is no one standing on the deck but the sailors."

"Oh, they have gone below, I expect," said the practical Marie. "They will be in the way of the sails, you know. There is not much room for people who don't work on the deck of a small ship like that. Besides, they don't want to be seen. If a customs officer or a harbor official were to notice the boat now he would think that Le Bon was going out fishing for the night, but he would be sure to wonder what was happening if he caught sight of a woman on board. Funny, isn't it," she rattled on, "that Jacques should be called 'LeBon,' for he is the worst man in Marseilles! They say that his ugly grin when he draws a knife would frighten anybody!"

CHAPTER XVI.

When one o'clock came and Edith had not arrived, the three men waiting in the hotel made no further effort to conceal their anxiety. The impetuous Fairholme was eager to commence an immediate search of Marseilles, but Brett steadily adhered to his resolution not to stir from their sitting-room until either Miss Talbot came back in person or it became certain that she was detained by some other influence than her own unfettered volition.

With this view Talbot could not help concurring, so Fairholme had to content himself by smoking many cigarettes and walking uneasily about the room. Sit down he could not, whilst any casual ring at the hotel door found him leaning over the balustrade of the inner court and listening intently for the first words of the new arrival.

But the Englishmen were not the only persons in the hotel that night whose composure was disturbed. Their extraordinary behavior caused uneasiness to the manager and those members of his staff who remained on duty. The facts disclosed by the hall-porter were certainly remarkable. Only one member of the party had behaved in a normal manner. Sir Hubert Fitzjames, soon after his arrival, went quietly to bed, but the hall-porter's report as to the conduct of the others was passing strange.

One of them, to his surprise, had rung up the Prefecture of Police in Paris on the Telephone. The others were standing at the hotel door, gazing quietly enough at the passers-by, when suddenly about midnight much excitement rose amongst them. They conversed eagerly in their own tongue for a few moments, and the lady had rushed off down the street by herself, whilst her two companions ran with equal precipitancy to join the third in the sitting-room they had engaged, and there they were still seated in moody expectancy, apparently watching for some dramatic event to happen.

It was time that all good people were in bed. But it has hopeless to approach such lunatics with questions, for they were English, and no descent Frenchman could possibly hope to understand their actions or motives. It was satisfactorily that hey could speak French well; therefore the manager counselled the hall-porter to exhibit patience and prudence. Moreover, millords upstairs would be sure to recompense him for an enforced vigil by a liberal pourboire.

At last, when even the Cannebiere was empty, and when the latest cafe had closed its doors and the final tramcar had wearily jingled its way up the hill towards a distant suburb, the electric bell jangled a noisy summons to the front door. It produced the hall-porter and Fairholme with remarkable celerity.

The Frenchman cautiously opened the door and saw outside a muffled up female who eagerly demanded admittance. He knew by her accent that she was not a Marseillaise, but the shawl that covered her head and shoulders showed that she belonged to the working classes.

"Whom do you wish to see at this hour?" he gruffly demanded.

"I live here," said Edith. "I came here to-night with my brother from Paris. Please let me in at once."

In her excitement and breathlessness—for she had hurried at top speed from the harbor—Edith forgot that the homely garment she adopted as a disguise effectually cloaked her from the recognition of the hall-porter as from all others.

Moreover, her French accent was too good. It deceived the man even more thoroughly than did the shawl.

"Oh, really now," he said, "this is for laughter! A woman like you staying at the hotel! Be off, or I will call a gendarme."

In his amazement at her demand he had not heard Fairholme's rapid approach behind him He was now swung unceremoniously out of the way and the earl jumped forward to seize Edith in his arms.

"My darling girl!" he cried, "where have you been? We almost gave you up for lost. Where is your hat? Where did you get that shawl?" And all the time he was hugging her so fiercely that it was absolutely impossible for her to say a single word. At length she disengaged herself.

At that instant Brett's voice was heard upon the stairs. He wanted the telephone again.

Edith had rapidly detailed her adventures to her astonished auditors, and Brett seemed to resolve on some plan of action with the lightning rapidity peculiar to him.

Owing to the late hour, he got through to Paris without much difficulty, and then he returned to the sitting-room, where Edith was rehearsing in greater detail all that had happened since she left them at the hotel door. Brett explained to his companions the motives of his second telephonic message.

"I am convinced," he said," "that Gros Jean is in communication with his daughter. For this reason I did not wish the police to put in an appearance at the Cafe Noir until to-morrow night, or rather to-night, for we have long entered upon another day. I wished to have a reasonable time for quiet inquiry at Marseilles before mademoiselle could be apprised of our presence here. Miss Talbot's remarkable discovery has, however, wholly changed my plans. Mlle. Beaucaire and her lover have set off for some unknown destination, and the best chance we have of discovering it is to secure the immediate arrest of her father Possibly, being taken by surprise at this hour of the morning some document may be found on him which will reveal his daughter's destination. It occurs to me that she half expected him to arrive by a late train. Again, when the fishing smack puts into port, the girl will probably adopt some method of communication with him, and that communication must come into our hands, not into his. So I have telephoned the police officials in Paris to raid the Cabaret Noir forthwith, and it is possible that they may report developments within the next two or three hours."

"Is there no chance of your discovering the whereabouts of that fishing smack?" said Fairholme.

"In what way?" demanded Brett.

"Well, this is a big port, you know, and there are always tugs knocking about with steam up, on the off-chance of their services being required. Isn't it possible to charter a steamboat and set off after the smack?"

"I do not think so," said Brett. "I imagine it would be wasted effort. By this time the Belles Soeurs is well out to sea. She will certainly not show any lights, and I personally feel that although there is, perhaps, a thousand to one chance we might fall in with her, it will be far better for our purpose to remain quietly here and await developments in Paris." Brett shook his head dubiously.

"There is even a possibility that the Belles Soeurs will never be seen again, and that her number will long remain vacant on the shipping register of Marseilles. However, we shall see."

"Then, Mr. Brett," put in Edith quietly, with a tired smile, "I suppose we may go to bed?"

"Most certainly, Miss Talbot. You have earned your rest more than any of us to-night," he answered.

He held up his hand to wish her good-night, but she demanded with some surprise, "What are you going to do? Surely you want some sleep"

"I will remain here," he said. "I have bribed the hall-porter to keep awake, and I may be wanted on the telephone at any moment."

Left to himself, Brett again interviewed the hall-porter and returned to the sitting-room, where he disposed himself for a nap on the sofa. Like all men who possess the faculty of concentrated thought, he also cultivated the power of dismissing a perplexing problem from his mind until it became necessary to consider it afresh in the light of further knowledge.

Within five minutes he was sound asleep.

At length he woke with a start. He was stiff with cold, for the fire had gone out, and the tiny gas jet he had left burning was not sufficient to warm the room. He sprang to his feet and looked at his watch. It was half-past six.

"Surely," he cried, "there must have been a message from Paris long before this!"

He ran downstairs, encountering on his way some of the hotel servants, who even thus early had commenced work, for your industrious Frenchmen is no laggard in the morning. Going to the hall-porter's office he found that functionary snoring peacefully. The poor fellow was evidently tired out, and twenty telephone bells might have jangled in his ears without waking him.

So, for the third time, Brett rang up the exchange to get in touch with Paris. As he had anticipated, he quickly learnt that the Prefecture had endeavored to get through to him about 4.30 a.m., but the operators were unable to obtain any answer.

"I can hardly blame the man," said he to himself, "for I was just as tired as he."

The information he received from the Prefecture was startling enough. In accordance with his instructions, a number of detectives had raided the Cabaret Noir soon after three o'clock. They found the place in possession of a waiter and couple of female servants. Gros Jean had quitted the house the previous evening, and, most astounding fact of all, with him were three Turks.

Neither the waiter nor the domestics could give any information whatever concerning the hidden room. They knew of its existence, but none of them had ever seen it, and the place was generally regarded as a sort of cellar for the reception of lumber.

The police forced a padlock which guarded its trap-door, and found to their surprise that the place was much more spacious than they anticipated. It really contained two apartments, one of which was so firmly secured that it had hitherto resisted all their efforts to open it. The other was a sort of bed-sitting room, and it had recently been occupied. From various indications they came to the conclusion that its latest tenants were Hussein-ul-Mulk and his confederates.

Judging from the facts that these gentry had quietly left the cafe in Gros Jean's company about half-past seven the previous evening, they were not in confinement against their will. In fact, the police theory was that this secret chamber proved a safe retreat for any person who desired complete seclusion other than that provided by the atuhorities.

"It is assumed," said the officer who communicated this bewildering information to Brett, "that the locked room contains a quantity of stolen goods. The police remain in charge of the cafe, and when the necessary workmen have been obtained this morning the door will be forced. We will at once let you know the result of our further investigations."

GRASS BAD FOR TREES.

Stunts Them and Arrests All Healthy Growth.

At the Woburn experimental fruit farm a long inquiry has been conducted into the effect of grass on trees, and the experiments which have been carried out form the substance of the thirteenth report of the farm, which has just been issued, says the London Daily Mail.

It has been shown that the general result of grassing the ground, either by sowing seed or replacing the turf after the trees have been planted, is the arrestation of all healthy growth and the absolute stunting of the tree.

A light and unhealthy character imparted to the leaves is one of the first noticeable results of the action of grass upon trees. With trees that are feeling the full effect of grass the fruits are found to be small and ill developed.

The variations in soil temperature are less when the ground is grassed, and this alone would be favorable to the growth of trees; but this good influence is outweighed by the deleterious effects.

ALMANAC STARTED IN 1686.

The oldest almanac in existence is the "Almanach National," which has been issued by the French Government since 1686, says the London Chronicle. Its name has been changed a good many times during its career of 225 years. Originally the "Almanach Royal," it became "National" in 1793, "Imperial" in 1805, and reverted to its original name nine years later. Since then the title has been altered four times. Like most publications of this sort the "Almanach National" has grown bulky with advancing years. The first issue contained forty-eight pages, as compared with 1,580 pages in th ecurrent issue.

BUSY ALL THE TIME.

Little Howard came in the other day crying and rubbing several bumps, caused by a series of butts administered by a pet sheep.

"I didn't do anything. I was getting up all the time."

DRUG HABIT GROWING.

Becoming a Fashionable Indulgence In London Society.

Alarmists assert we are living in times of peril, but, according to medical testimony, there is more insidious danger lurking in society which has nothing at all to do with the unrest in the labor world, or the wild doctrines of Socialists. The peril lies in the growing habit of drug-taking, now fast becoming a fashionable indulgence among women belonging to the "Upper Ten" in London, England.

Nowadays a drug becomes the vogue in much the same way as a new style of dressing the hair. The exhilarating qualities of various poisons are openly discussed, and recommendations to use this or that narcotic are passed on with as much confidence as a doctor's prescription.

Morphia retains the favorite place with women of the smart set, who are expert users of the hypodermic syringe. Young girls of the day are in constant danger of acquiring the vicious habit. Mothers buoy up the flagging energies of their daughters at the fag-end of the season with some seductive drug. Quite recently a maid gave information to a young husband which led him to discover that his wife and a coterie of her friends visited each other with remarkable regularity for the purpose of indulging in morphia.

Such are the ravages that the drug craze is making in homes far removed from the pressure of poverty that Parliament will be asked to amend the Act governing the sale of poisons with a view to stamping out the dangerous mania by rendering it next to impossible for any one save a medical man to obtain drugs. Almost every week a death occurs in some well-known family from an overdose of veronal or sulphonal, taken to procure sleep or steady the nerves. Yet there are no restrictions on the sale of these poisons at the drug stores.

A FUTURE FINANCIER.

A very nice young man was calling on his sister. To make things easy, he gave him a beautiful new penny, saying: "Save each penny, and soon you will have a dollar."

"I'll soon have a dollar!" replied the boy, with great eagerness.

The young man smiled good-naturedly, dug into his pocket, saying:

"Well, just how much more do you need?"

"Only ninety-nine cents."

He soon had a dollar.

Don't let repairs eat up your profits

Whether they represent actual cash outlay, or only the time of yourself and your help, repairs are waste just the same. When you make an improvement—no matter how small its cost may be—let it be permanent. Then it is a real investment, something on which you can realize in cash should you decide to sell your property; and something that will pay you constant dividends in convenience, sightliness and comfort as long as the farm remains your own.

Concrete Improvements Are Permanent

They last as long as the very hills themselves. They do not require experts to build them. Their first cost, in most cases, is no more than for inferior materials.

Aren't you interested in the subject of permanent, modern farm improvements?

Then write for the book that describes hundreds of them—

"WHAT THE FARMER CAN DO WITH CONCRETE"

It isn't a Catalogue. Every one of its 160 handsomely illustrated pages is interesting and instructive. They tell how to mix concrete, how to place it, what can be done with it. The book was printed to sell for 50 cents, but we have a copy for you, free.

HOUSEHOLD

SELECTED RECIPES.

Cream Pie.—Stir together three tablespoonfuls of sugar and one scant tablespoonful of flour. Add the white of one egg well beaten, and one pint of cream, with a few raisins. Bake like a custard pie.

Stirabout.—Mix one egg, one cupful of maple sugar,—not maple syrup—one cupful of sour cream, one even teaspoonful of soda, one-fourth teaspoonful each of cinnamon, nutmeg and salt, and two scant cupfuls of flour. Bake in a shallow pan and serve warm.

Almond Cake.—Mix one and one-half cupfuls of sugar and one-half cupful of butter. Add one-half cupful of milk, two cupfuls of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of baking-powder, the whites of six eggs and one-half cupful of almonds, chopped fine. Frost, and put split almonds on top.

Herring Balls (Danish recipe. — Soak two salt herrings in water for four hours, then soak in milk for one hour, after removing all skin and bones. Chop fine, and mix with an equal quantity of mashed potato, and to this add the same amount of finely chopped veal or beef (cooked). Shape this compound into small balls or cones, dip in egg and finely rolled dry bread-crumbs, and fry in deep fat.

Baked Brown Bread.—Use two cupfuls of sour milk, one-half cupful of molasses, two teaspoonfuls of soda, one teaspoonful of salt, two cupfuls of Graham or rye flour, one-half cupful of corn-meal and one half cupful of flour. Stir the milk and molasses together, add the soda, dissolved in a little hot water, then the different kinds of meal, and stir until the mixture is free from lumps. Bake in a moderate oven one hour.

Cheese Custard.—Heat one pint of sweet milk in a double boiler. Beat one egg thoroughly, and add to it one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of black pepper. Beat into this the milk. Have ready one-fourth pound of domestic cheese chopped or one ten-cent jar of Imperial cheese. Stir the cheese into the custard and pour into either a well-buttered baking-dish or into individual cups or ramekins well-buttered, and bake slowly about twenty minutes; or, if desired, it may be steamed. Serve with hot buttered toast. Care should be taken to cook the custard only enough to set it so that it will not whey, and milk and eggs in combination should always be cooked slowly, at a comparatively low temperature.

Picanti, or Spanish Potatoes with Rice.—Fry one small onion chopped fine, and one fresh tomato cut fine, or two tablespoonfuls of canned tomatoes in a pan with a piece of lard the size of an egg; add one coffeespoonful of salt and one-fourth coffeespoonful of Cayenne pepper and let the mixture fry for five minutes. Add one and one-holf pints of milk, two slices of soaked bread, one-half of a ten-cent cake of cream cheese cut up, and twelve potatoes which have previously been boiled in the skin, but from which the skin has been removed. Boil the mixture for eight or ten minutes; serve it on a platter and sprinkle over it two hard-boiled eggs finely chopped, and parsley, also chopped. Serve with this hot rice which has had salt and butter in the water in which it was boiled, and which has been pressed into a mold before being turned into a dish.

Ham Pie.—A Southern receipt for this economical and delicious dish has been handed down in one family for several generations. To one quart of boiling water add about one-half pound of boiled ham—or the meat from a ham bone—cut into small pieces. Let this boil while preparing biscuit dough. Roll out thin a piece of dough about the size of a pie crust, cut it into small pieces, and drop them into the boiling broth—one at a time, so that they will not stick together. Line a well-greased two-quart saucepan with strips of dough, put in a layer of ham, a seasoning of butter, pepper and salt, add dumplings, more seasoning, and then another layer of ham. Over this break one egg for each person in the family; cover loosely with a top crust having an opening in the center to allow the steam to escape. Bake in a moderate oven until a light brown, and dredge with butter.

ECONOMY IN THE KITCHEN.

One of the most serious problems with which the ordinary housewife is confronted during the winter is the question of the best means for the economical disposal of the left-over vegetables. In the summer months, when green vegetables are plentiful, there are scores of uses to which the small scraps left from dinner may be put, but when the foods to be disposed of include such things as squash, turnip, onions, cabbage, celery, radishes, etc., the cook often feels like abandoning the task as a hopeless one. In spite of this feeling, however, there are ways and means by which these apparently worthless left-overs may be utilized to advantage.

Thus, on excellent method of disposing of the left-over squash is to add two well-beaten eggs and about a tablespoonful of flour to each pint of the cold vegetable. Blend the ingredients thoroughly, shape the mixture into square cakes; cover with egg and crumbs, and fry brown in deep fat.

Fried cabbage is another delicacy that cannot be enjoyed until the cabbage has first been boiled. If some of the cooked cabbage is left from dinner, therefore, it lends itself gracefully to this method of treatment. To prepare it, cut some slices of fat bacon into strips, and put them in the frying pan. When they have commenced to cook, and the bottom of the pan is well greased, add the cabbage and fry until thoroughly heated. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

To prepare left-over onions delectably, boil some rice in a little salted water, and when done, drain, but reserve the liquor. Butter a baking dish and arrange the rice and cold onions in alternate layers, cutting the onions into small pieces, if desired. Make a sauce by adding milk, butter and salt to the rice water, and, if necessary, thicken with a little flour. Pour this into the baking dish, saturating the rice and onions thoroughly; cover the top with buttered bread crumbs, and bake until brown.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Never leave the flatirons standing on the stove after you have finished ironing. After they have been left to heat and cool time and again they lose their "temper" and will not hold heat.

Ammonia rubbed on beds and mattresses will keep them clean and free from bugs. A weak solution of turpentine poured down the water pipes once a week will drive the water bugs away.

Spots in light dresses may generally be removed by laying on them a paste made of fuller's earth and eau de cologne. Let it dry, and then brush it off. A second application may be necessary.

To make sweetbread salad, mix and boil until tender one pair sweetbreads. Add three stalks of celery chopped fine, one-half cup of English walnuts chopped fine. Pour over mayonnaise dressing.

To clean a comb, grasp a whisk broom firmly in right hand near broom end, comb in left hand; brush between teeth of comb vigorously. You will have a perfectly clean comb in a few seconds.

To revive withered flowers, put the stems into boiling water, and by the time the water is cold, the flowers will have revived. Then cut afresh the ends of the stems and keep them in fresh cold water.

Old brooms make fine brushes for sinks and are nice for cleaning bed springs and mattresses. Cut off big handle, cut even at both ends; tie in two places with strong cord. One broom makes three brushes.

Keep a little package of absorbent cotton in one of the sideboard drawers. If oil, milk or cream is spilled on a woollen dress or cloth a bit of the cotton instantaneously applied will remove all traces of the stains.

If overworked homemakers whose nerves are "worn to frazzle edge" would acquire the habit of sitting or lying absolutely still, relaxed and motionless, for five or ten minutes twice a day, they would soon see improvement.

To make flaky pie-crust, use one and one-half cups flour, two-thirds cup lard, mix with as little cold water as possible, roll out, then spread lard on, and roll again; repeat the process several times. You can use it for tart crusts or patties, baked in pans.

When making the round perforations for eyelet embroidery hold a piece of white soap underneath the cloth, allowing the stiletto to pass into it. When it is withdrawn it gives a slight stiffness to the material which ensures even and perfect embroidery.

To ventilate a room having double windows that do not open bore a number of holes in the lower edge of the outer window frame and fit the holes with cork stoppers. The inner windows may then be raised and the corks taken out to admit fresh air.

Clothespins will keep the window from rattling if they be split in two and one piece used as a wedge for each frame. If they are painted white and fitted with a screw eye in each head they may be hung on a hook by the window and be always ready for service.

CATS SCRATCH TABLE LEG.

A table has been in the possession of a Dulwich family for over eighty years, and during this time the various cats they have possessed have scratched one leg, and one leg only, till at last they so wore it away that it became useless and had to be replaced with a new leg. The old leg is still in existence and kept as a curiosity.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, FEBRUARY 25.

Lesson VIII.—The baptism and temptation of Jesus, Mark 1. 9-13. Matt. 4. 1-11. Golden Text, Heb. 2. 18.

MARK 1. 9-13.

Verse 9. In those days—While John was still baptizing in the wilderness, preaching repentance and announcing the early advent of the Messiah. In Luke's account we are told that Jesus was at this time "about thirty years of age" (3. 23), which was the age appointed by law for the inauguration of Levites into their office (Num. 4. 43. 47).

Nazareth — Compare note on verse 23, Text Studies for February 4. The importance of Nazareth in the early life of Jesus was threefold: (1) It was a secluded village, separated by a range of hills from the main high road of traffic, and thus afforded opportunity for a more quiet and reflective life than would have been possible either in Jerusalem or Capernaum. (2) At the same time the outlook from this range of hills above Nazareth afforded a most wonderful and highly educative panoramic view, including the main road of international trade with its continual procession of Jerusalem pilgrims, Egyptian and Midianite caravans, Roman legions, and princes' retinues. Well might the diversified elements mingling in such a scene inspire within the mind of a thoughtful and especially gifted youth, whose heart was open to the best and highest influences that come from simple outdoor life and reverent religious training in the home, a vision of the transitoriness of earthly splendor and an appreciation of the higher values of life. Nor could a life philosophy or vision of opportunity thus obtained be cramped within the narrow boundaries imposed by national prejudices and traditions. (3) Situated in Galilee, the village life of Nazareth was under the influence of the simple synagogue form of worship rather than that of the temple, with its greater emphasis on formal ritual.

In the Jordan—The place of baptism is not positively known. The fourth Gospel speaks of John as baptizing in "Bethabara (or Bethany) beyond Jordan"; and again "in Aenon, near to Salim" (1. 28; 3. 23). The location of these places is, however, uncertain.

10. Straightway—The word is characteristic of the author's vivid style.

He saw—That is, Jesus, although the Baptist also was a witness of the heavenly manifestation (John 1. 32).

The Spirit as a dove descending upon him—Compare Luke's wording, "the Holy Spirit descended in a bodily form, as a dove, upon him" (3. 22).

11. A voice came out of the heavens—For two similar instances of a voice speaking from heaven, compare Mark 9. 7 and John 12. 28.

12. The wilderness—An uninhabited region, not a barren desert.

13. Forty days—Perhaps a "round number" (compare Exod. 34. 28; 1 Kings 19. 8; Acts 1. 3). The temptation is here represented as continuing through the entire period.

Satan—A Hebrew word meaning adversary. Compare 1 Chron. 21. 1; Psa. 109. 6; Matt. 16. 23. In the sense here used as the adversary of mankind its Greek equivalent is diabolos, meaning devil, the word used by both Matthew and Luke.

MATTHEW 4. 1-11.

Verse 3. Command that these stones become bread—The first temptation is prompted by physical appetite, the suggestion being to make use of powers granted for a higher purpose in allying the cravings of hunger.

4. It is written—In Deut. 8. 3. Israel had been forty years in the wilderness, but God had provided for all the needs of the people, "that he might make thee know that man doth not live by bread only, but by everything that proceedeth out of the mouth of Jehovah doth man live."

5. The devil taketh him—A literal interpretation of this account of the temptations of Jesus would require us to think of both Jesus and the devil actually leaving the solitude of the wilderness, and together going to Jerusalem, many miles distant, and then back to the high mountain-top, or vice versa, if we follow Luke, who places the second and third temptations in reverse order from Matthew. The journey would occupy some time, possibly a full day, unless we suppose Jesus to have been transported instantaneously in some miraculous manner into the holy city and to the pinnacle of the temple. To imagine Jesus, fatigued and all but exhausted, making that long journey slowly, and in company with Satan, is to recognize the improbability and incongruity of the situation implied. To imagine the transportation to have been instantaneous and miraculous becomes equally incongruous as soon as we inquire whose miraculous power it was that was exercised. For either we must think of Jesus as exercising his divine power to accompany and accommodate Satan, or we must imagine Satan performing the miracle involved and taking Jesus with him by force.

6. It is written—The reference is to Psalm 91. 11, 12.

7. Again it is written—In Deut. 6. 16.

8. Showeth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them—The vision which Jesus had of the glory of earthly kingdoms must, of course, have been purely mental, and this is the argument usually brought forward in support of the view that the whole series of temptations transpired in the realm of mind or spirit only. The cogency of the argument is evident. The realism of the narrative, however, adds vividness to the whole and brings us into vital touch with the awful mental struggle which transpired in that lonely Judaean wilderness.

9. If thou wilt . . . worship me—Acknowledge my lordship over the kingdoms of this world.

10. Get thee hence, Satan—The climax of the temptation has come. A point has been reached where Jesus must either surrender or rise in the power of his manhood and drive the tempter from him.

11. Leaveth him—Luke adds, "for a season," indicating that we are not to imagine the subsequent earthly life of Jesus as entirely exempt from further temptation. Indeed, the writer to the Hebrews tells us definitely that Jesus was "in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb. 4. 15).

SCOTCH MARRY EARLY.

Official Records Show Many Girls Wed Before Sixteen.

That early marriages take place frequently in Scotland is proved by the annual report of the registrar-general, recently issued. Here are some of the most notable cases:

One girl of 14 married a man twice her age; six married at the age of 15; fifty-four at the age of 16, in three cases the bridegroom being a widower; 326 at the age of 17; ten girls of 18 married widowers. Of the boys who entered matrimony, there were: One aged 16 married a girl of 15; one of 16 married a girl of 16; one aged 16 married a woman of 21; twenty boys married at the age of 17.

In contrast to these youthful partners, there were recorded the weddings of a widower of 86 years of age, and two others of 78 remarrying, and eight others of over 70. Most of the latter married widows.

Since the introduction of registration, over half a century ago, irregular marriages in Scotland have greatly increased. Of the 30,108 marriages recorded in the year under review, 2,015 (or 6.69 per cent.) were irregular, the majority of them taking place in Glasgow and Edinburgh.

HEREDITY AS HE SEES IT.

Biologist Says Sons do not Inherit Characteristics of Fathers.

Sons do not inherit personal traits and characteristics of their fathers, according to statements made by Dr. Johannsen, of the University of Copenhagen in an address on "Inheritance," in Huntington Hall, of the Institute of Technology, Boston.

That Tom has inherited his father's bad habit of smoking, or that Harry has inherited his mother's sweet disposition are entire misconceptions, according to the Denmark biologist. "That is only tradition," he said. "It has absolutely nothing to do with inheritance. Inheritance is not the transmission of personal characteristics, but merely the existence of the same constitutional characters in parents and offspring."

SPUN COTTON LONG AGO.

Lancashire's proud record of three hundred years in the cotton trade is far behind India's. Cotton was manufactured to perfection in India more than three thousand years ago. Thus Mr. Thomas Ellison, in his "Cotton Trade of Great Britain," says: "Fabrics as fine as any that can be turned out at the present day by the most perfect machinery in Lancashire were produced by the nimble fingers of Hindoo spinners and the primitive looms of Hindoo weavers, a thousand years before the invasion of Britain by the Romans." When Britons, in fact, were suffering from their skins, Indians were "luxuriating in garments of a texture so fine as to have earned the poetic description of 'woven wind.'" What Lancashire makes to-day, India made the day before yesterday!—London Chronicle.

SIR FRANCIS HOPWOOD.

Head of the Biggest Business in the British Empire.

When Winston Churchill went to the British Admiralty to take charge of "the King's navee" there were misgivings among the "Tite Barnacles" of that department, for Winston has established a reputation for clearing out inefficients. With the establishment of a "business war board" the misgivings have been fully justified, and already the modern spirt of alertness is invading the sleepy abode where for years dignity and "good form" have been more admired than vigorous capacity.

In Rear-Admiral David Beatty, Winston Churchill has a private secretary whose record has been phenomenally rapid. The Admiral has ability away beyond the average, but he would be the last to deny that the social eminence of his beautiful wife, a daughter of the late Marshal Field, has aided his meteoric advancement.

After Admiral Beatty, chief interest centers in the choice of Sir Francis Hopwood as additional Civil Lord—the "buyer and business manager" of the Admiralty. The description gives only a faint idea of the responsibilities that will fall upon him. His selection as the man to run the business side of Britain's first line of defence once more proves Winston Churchill's keenness to put the right man in the right place. As the Admiralty spends upwards of $100,000,000 a year, Sir Francis Hopwood thus becomes the working head of the biggest business in the British Empire. His vast experience of affairs has been gained at the Board of Trade. He first became their authority on railroads and traffic matters. Having successfully conducted various missions to America, where he added to his knowledge the art of effective hustle, Sir Francis was transferred to the colonial office and became advisor on the short-lived constitutions for the Transvaal and Orange River Colonies. He attended King George on his visit to Canada, and the Duke of Connaught when he went to South Africa to inaugurate the Union Parliament.

The British public has the utmost confidence in the new business head of the navy, a refreshing departure from the old-time type of permanent official, whose strength was often found in social qualifications rather than in efficiency in his department.

ATLANTIC FLYERS.

British Aviation Expert Says They Will be Silent Aeroplanes.

"People are afraid of aeronautics, but when the aeroplane is flying frequently from town to town silence will become imperative." So says Mervyn O'Gorman, superintendent of the army aeroplane factory at Farnborough, England, who has turned out the new all-British "silent" aeroplane that the experts have been demanding.

"As a matter of fact," he says, "silence is very easy to obtain. This machine shows a little step in advance.

"As far as I know, this is the first absolutely silent aeroplane; it is silent to this extent, that when the wind is blowing strongly from it towards you you cannot hear it.

"A military aviattor who was present at our trials remarked that there was other machines with which he was acquainted which it would not have been safe to have gone up in, in the wind that was blowing. I see no reason why every aeroplane which does not employ a rotary engine should not be silent. It is a very simple matter. The reason why it has been put in the background hitherto is because other matters have required more attention, but everyone knew that the moment for silence would soon arrive—at all events on a large class of engines.

"There is a certain loss of power in silencing, but there is no difficulty about it beyond just a careful study of the engine proposition. Silence will become very important when the confidence that will come as soon as the 'chudders' have left aeronautics has arrived.

"You can imagine, for example, that it might be worth a man's while, instead of taking a special train, to be carried along what might be called the postal route between Dover and Liverpool. He comes from the Continent and wants to go to America, and on such a route as that silence would before long become compulsory.

"The extent to which the weather delays or controls the doings of an aviator depends largely on two things—one, the speed of his machine; the greater the speed the less is he affected by the relative fluctuations in the speed of the wind. The other thing is that his means of control of his balance shall be very powerful in response to a small effort on his part, and by making that small effort, he shall obtain a large result."

An old bachelor will stay out till 2 a.m. if he wants to, but he misses the fun of trying to sneak upstairs with his shoes off.

MARKETING IN FINLAND.

Scenes Familiar to English Life Many Years Ago.

Finland grows modern with the rest of the world, but the people still cling to some of the old customs—the old market-days, for instance, and the market-places, such as were familiar to English life one or two hundred years ago. There is no chance there for the middleman to make a profit on either side of the transfer from the producer to the consumer. Moreover, the market-place furnishes many little scenes which illuminate national character and national life. One of these is given by Paul Waineman in his book, "A Summer Tour in Finland."

The market is a veritable delight to the eye of the visitor, it is so ridiculously primitive and old-fashioned. There are lines upon lines of quaint booths and rows of springless two-wheeled market-carts, with patient little Finnish horses standing as motionless as if they had been made of the same gingerbread that a smiling market-woman offered to me as I wended my way through their midst.

The market was too tempting—I forgot all about state archives and picture-galleries. Some lilies-of-the-valley, plucked that morning from a forest glade, hung their heads wearily, even when in contact with big, cool cabbages. Dainty ladies picked up their skirts as they threaded their way here, there and everywhere, inspecting minutely the goods on the various stalls, always followed by a red-cheeked handmaiden, bearing a huge Old-World wicker basket, from which a very varied assortment of edibles peeped out.

At that market you can buy everything—meat, poultry, fruit, vegetables, milk, butter, flowers, even to the humble wild lilies. The hum of voices is something astonishing. There are apparently no fixed prices, and a tragedy of renunciation may be observed in the surrender of a handful of vegetables to a customer who has bargained too hard.

One especial bunch of carrots caught my attention. They appeared to me to be very ordinary carrots, but their owner, an old man, bent nearly double with his years, lifted them tenderly from the corner of his cart. The would-be purchaser was an elderly woman with sharp, greedy eyes. I could see from the first that it would go badly with that old man.

The scene that took place between them was tragic. Every emotion of which a human countenance is capable was portrayed in turn upon both faces—polite inquiry, astonishment, contempt, incredulity, wounded pride, determination, hesitation, avarice; finishing up at last with triumph on the one side and resignation on the other, as the bunch of carrots was carried off by the woman.

SCHOOLBOYS FIGHT DUEL.

German Youths Use Firearms to Settle Dispute.

Once again the morbid reading indulged in by German schoolboys and youths, and the peculiar ideas of honor and the duel held in Germany, have resulted in a "schoolboy duel," in which one of the combatants received injuries which will probably cost him his life.

A boy of seventeen years was found a few days since in a small wood near Detmold, in an unconscious condition, with a bullet wound in the right breast. He was taken to the local hospital, where his chances of recovery are regarded as small.

It seems that the lad, a scholar in the Detmold higher grade school, quarrelled with a schoolmate of his own age over a girl, even younger than themselves, and for whose favors both were aspirants. Driven to extremes of jealousy by the knowledge that each was sharing the girl's affections with the other, the two youthful Romeos mutually decided on an "affair," in which one should seek the only possible escape from his passion in death, while the victor remained in undisputed possession of the field.

This programme was duly carried out. The boys, by some means, obtained possession of firearms, and repaired to the wood, without seconds or other witnesses. At the first exchange of shots one of the combatants fell wounded, while the victor callously walked off without even troubling to send help to his fallen opponent.

HIS WAY.

Fair Guest—"But if you ignore all social rank and precedence, how do you manage, for instance, in arranging guests for dinner?"

Prominent Leader of Socialist Community—"Let the hungriest go in first."

"How clear the horizon is!" remarked a young lady. "Yes," agreed her humorous companion; "I've just swept it with my eye."

She—"You married me simply because I had money!" He—"No; I married you because I didn't have money!"

FARQUHAR.

Greenwood--Bell--An interesting event took place on Wednesday afternoon of last week at four o'clock at the home of Mr. George Bell, the occasion being the marriage of their eldest daughter, Vina Mae, to Mr. George B. Greenwood of Logan Township. Rev. Colin Fletcher performed the ceremony in the presence of about sixty invited guests. During the playing of the wedding march by Miss Margaret Bell, sister of the bride, the bride entered the room and was given away by her father. She was handsomely gowned in cream material with satin trimmings and fringe, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. They married under an evergreen arch, trimmed with white roses, and were unattended. After congratulations the guests sat down to a dainty wedding supper, after which the evening was spent in games and dancing. The presents received by the bride were both costly and useful. The young couple will reside in Mitchell and will have the best wishes of their many friends for a long and happy wedded life.

Mrs. Scorr.

Following letter selected at random from a large number of similar ones and cited merely to illustrate these remarks:

"In the winter of 1908, I became greatly run down and irregular," writes Mrs. Henry Scorr, of Swan Creek, Mich., Route 1, Box 49. "I slowly but surely grew worse, and, at last, resolved to apply to the doctors for help. The doctor said I had inflammation, enlargement and laceration. I was in bed eleven weeks and got no better. The doctor said I would have to have an operation, but to that I would not listen. My husband purchased two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I started to take this remedy I could not walk across the floor, but after I had taken three bottles I could feel myself gaining, so I dropped the doctor and took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Only for it I think I would have been dead—I really believe it saved my life. I feel better now than in twenty years."

STOMACH TROUBLES CANNOT EXIST

With Morriscy's No. 11 Tablets, say Messrs. Cox and McQuarrie, prominent eastern travelers.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 25, 1910.

"I was troubled with Indigestion for several years, and after eating suffered intensely with sour stomach, belching of gas, heartburn, etc., and everything I ate seemed to lay in my stomach and made me feel all puffed up and distressed. Someone proposed that I try a box of your No. 11 Dyspepsia Tablets, which I did, and to my delight found immediate relief. I am now enjoying three meals a day, and feel that your No. 11 Tablets deserve all the credit. Those who have stomach trouble, and especially men who travel on the road eating at different places every day should try No. 11 Tablets, as they will relieve you of indigestion, and enable you to enjoy your meals."

Lyman W. Cox.

NEW GLASGOW, N. S., Nov. 10, 1910.

"For the past two years I have used Father Morriscy's No. 11 Dyspepsia Tablets, and during that period have not suffered the severe attacks of Indigestion to which I had been a victim for many years. My attacks were very distressing, and no need to say I am glad to be relieved, and I feel that your No. 11 Dyspepsia Tablets deserve all the credit. For years I did not know what it was to enjoy a good meal, but now I can eat anything on the bill of fare with no distressing after-effects—thanks to No. 11 Tablets."

Geo. J. McQuarrie.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

Learn why PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand

PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand of flour. No two milling companies follow exactly the same process of milling. In fact, no two different brands of flour in the world are exactly alike in quality.

And here is another fact worth knowing: Every wheat berry contains both high-grade and low-grade portions.

The process of milling PURITY flour costs more than to mill ordinary flour. The low-grade portions are separated and excluded. PURITY is an ALL HIGH-GRADE, hard wheat flour. It has greater strength, greater absorption and greater expansion. It is a thirstier, more elastic flour. It drinks more water and expands into more loaves.

Use PURITY FLOUR for your next batch of bread. Count the loaves. You'll find you have made "MORE BREAD AND BETTER BREAD" from PURITY than when you've used an equal weight of weaker and cheaper flour.

PURITY FLOUR

"More bread and better bread"

IMAGINE, if you can, how much whiter, and more toothsome, and more nutritious, the bread made from such a HIGH-GRADE flour must be.

And can you imagine yourself enjoying the flaky pie-crust and the light, delicate cake? —your reward for using PURITY flour

When making pastry, please remember to add more shortening than required with ordinary flour—for on account of its extra strength, PURITY FLOUR requires more shortening for best pastry-results

Yes, PURITY FLOUR costs slightly more than ordinary flour. But use it once and you'll say it's worth more—much more—than the difference.

Add PURITY FLOUR to your grocery list right now.

THE DYNAMITE CONSPIRACY

The Prosecution Have 40,000 Letters And Telegrams From The Prisoners

A despatch from Indianapolis, Indiana, says: Sensational and specific charges that the dynamite conspiracy was conducted with the full knowledge of the members of the Executive Board of the International Association of Structural Ironworkers, including Frank Ryan; that the conspiracy, extending over years, was recorded on paper, and that Ortie McManigal, the confessed dynamiter, was shifted shuttlelike over the country on missions of destruction were made public on Thursday by District Attorney Charles W. Miller. Mr. Miller announced the contents of an indictment known as that covering "unconsummated acts" of the conspiracy, and it is to be the basis upon which the Government intends to conduct its prosecution. The indictment charges Ryan, Herbert S. Hockin of Detroit, Mich., M. J. Young of Boston, John T. Butler of Buffalo, Frank C. Webb of New York, with conducting the conspiracy through the mail, and names all of the fifty-four defendants as abettors. It declares that a regular system of pointing out non-union steel and iron construction jobs was carried on, and that the Executive members not only contributed money to buy explosives, but assisted in the work which McManigal was to do.

The basis of all the charges lies chiefly in 40,000 letters and telegrams taken from the Ironworkers' International headquarters. These letters purport to be between Ryan, Hockin, Webb and various other officials and business agents. Exhaustive details are given regarding the incriminating correspondence.

ROBBERS AT TORONTO.

Armed Men Get $400 at Standard Chemical Office.

A despatch from Toronto says: With revolver in hand and masked beyond recognition, two men entered the office of the Standard Chemical Company, foot of John Street, at 7.30 on Friday evening, and got away with about $400. The men rushed through the door just as Night Superintendent George Ross and his assistant, J. W. Mayo, were putting away a good portion of the day's receipts. The hold-up men called for Ross and Mayo to throw up their hands, and one of them started around the counter while the other kept guard. Ross did not comply with the request at once and was struck a blow on the side of the head, the stunning effect of which made him realize that the intruders meant business. Some of the money had been put in the safe and the remainder was on the counter, but the safe was unlocked and the task of the hold-ups was easy. One of them kept Ross and Mayo covered while the other took possession of all the money in sight. Ross and Mayo did as they were told. The office was in darkness, as was everything outside. Every mode of communication from within had been cut off, and they feared that any move on their part to give an alarm would be too much to their own peril. They remained quiet for a while, and eventually ventured out of the office. Then the police were notified, but the hold-up men had made good their escape.

OWEN SOUND TRAIN DITCHED

Several Persons Seriously Hurt Near Chatsworth.

A despatch from Chatsworth says: Striking a spread rail at the William Lake siding, four miles southeast of Chatsworth Station and fifteen miles from Owen Sound, the Canadian Pacific passenger train from the latter city, due in Toronto at 7.55 p.m., was thrown into the ditch at 4 o'clock on Friday afternoon. The engine passed the break successfully, but the baggage car and all three passenger cars jumped the rails and rolled down a four-foot embankment, two men in the former being injured and all the rolling stock being more or less damaged. This is the second accident of precisely the same nature occurring on this division within two days, the other mishap having been to the Toronto Express from Vancouver, which was ditched at Bala on Wednesday. The injured men are two railway mail clerks, called Savage and Parks. Savage fractured his right arm, and Parks was badly shaken up, also sustaining scalp wounds and a bruised knee. The express messenger and baggage man, who were in the other part of the car, escaped with nothing worse than a shock. Temporary medical attention was given by Drs. Ego and Brown of Markdale, and Dr. McCullough, of Chatsworth.

COMBINE OF MINE WORKERS.

British Miners Seek to Block Coal Imports During Strike.

A despatch from London says: The British Miners' Federation has decided to appeal to the mines on the continent of Europe to boycott all attempts to export coal to the United Kingdom in the event of a national strike being declared on February 29. A meeting of international delegates is to be held to discuss what action shall be taken. There is no doubt that a similar request will be made to the American miners, and should the proposed restrictive action be ineffective the foreign miners will be asked to stop work in support of the British strike.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

SHARES OF STOCK, UNLIKE BONDS, INVOLVE NO "PROMISE TO PAY."

A Company Not Obligated to Repay to Its Shareholders Par Value of their Shares —Bondholders in a Different Position.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible, of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor.")

So far, in this series of articles on the general principles of investment very brief reference has been made to stock investment. There are two reasons for this. First shares in joint stock companies are not—as a class—ideal securities for investment, and secondly, because any investigation which may be found useful in determining the safety of a bond may be applied—with modifications, of course—in the case of shares.

Shares of stock and bonds are essentially different. As was pointed out some time since, a bond is a promise to pay, a share is an equity only; if the company is liquidated the bonds are paid in full and if there is anything left the stockholders divide it—that is, in the case of a company being wound up. In the case of an actively operating company, the bondholders receive their regular interest, 4, 5, 6, or 7 per cent., whatever it may be. The shareholders may receive nothing, or, as in the case of Winnipeg Electric, they may receive 12 per cent. per annum or even more.

A farmer working his land is, in a small way, similar to the shareholders of a large company considered collectively. He may owe John Smith money secured by a mortgage. John Smith gets his interest every year and his principal when it is due, or he forecloses the mortgage, sells the farm, pays himself and gives the farmer the residue. If the farmer can pay his interest he has to deduct his operating expenses from what is left over, and the balance he uses to supply the necessaries of life, or, if fortune has smiled, luxuries for his wife and family. His profit, after paying interest and operating costs—wages, feed for his stock, etc.—represents the dividends, sometimes large, often small and perhaps nothing, in which event he may have to look to his small savings, or the bank, to tide him over.

And so, it is with the shareholders of a company. In lean years they may get no dividends, in fat years they may get large ones. But it is the bondholder who doesn't have to worry. He has to have his interest or the shareholder stands to lose his property. In other words, shares (speaking generally, of course, for many shares are far safer investments than some bonds, and some shares are as safe as most bonds) shares are in nature speculative, while bonds are not.

The purchase of a share of stock in a company involves no reason to expect a return of the money so invested. If the company prospers your dividends are large and if you want to "get your money out" you can sell to some one who wants to buy, even the holders of C. P. R., or even Bank of England shares, have no other method of ever getting their money back. In 1670 the Hudsons Bay Company (its real name is the Governor and Company of Adventurers of England Trading into the Hudsons Bay) was formed and its shares issued. These shares are actively traded in on the London market. In the 240 years since they were put out, there has been no time at which the shareholders could get their money back except by selling their shares to others. Offhand, I can think of no bond which would not have been redeemed at least four times (and a fifth time in 1920) during that period.

These are the chief points of difference between bonds and stocks. Stocks, however, have many good points, which will be taken up subsequently.

MARINERS MAKE REQUESTS.

Want Canals Opened Earlier and Also on Sundays.

A despatch from Ottawa says: A representative delegation of the Dominion Marine Association waited on the Ministers of Marine and Railways and Canals on Wednesday morning. Their most important request was that the canals be open on Sunday. The "Soo" Canal already is operated on Sunday. Another request was for the opening of the canals earlier this season than usual, owing to the congestion in the West. The association renewed its demand that navigation be paramount, and that on the St. Lawrence and other rivers it should not be subordinated to power schemes. Some slight amendments to the Shipping Act were also suggested, among them one that tugs or wrecking vessels be allowed without license to carry men in cases of emergency.

YUAN SHI KAI,

Who will become the first president of the Chinese republic, Dr. Sun Yan Sen, the provisional President, retiring. Yuan is about 55 years old. In younger life he was sensual and reckless. He has a wholesome respect for the foreign powers, which put great confidence in him. His critics, however, say he has always been a trimmer and guilty of double-dealing. Certainly, he has been hand-and-glove with the republicans while professing to be striving with might and main to save the monarchy, and has now given the Imperialists the "double-cross." Stories of his cunning and ruthlessness would fill a book.

THE DOCTOR HABIT.

And How She Overcame It.

When well-selected food has helped the honest physician place his patient in sturdy health and free from the "doctor habit" it is a source of satisfaction to all parties. A Chicago woman says:

"We have not had a doctor in the house during all the 5 years that we have been using Grape-Nuts food. Before we began, however, we had "the doctor habit" and scarcely a week went by without a call on our physician.

"When our youngest boy arrived, 5 years ago, I was very much run down and nervous, suffering from indigestion and almost continuous headaches. I was not able to attend to my ordinary domestic duties and was so nervous that I could scarcely control myself. Under advice I took to Grape-Nuts.

"I am now, and have been ever since we began to use Grape-Nuts food, able to do all my own work. The dyspepsia, headaches, nervousness and rheumatism which used to drive me fairly wild, have entirely disappeared.

"My husband finds that in the night work in which he is engaged, Grape Nuts food supplies him the most wholesome, strengthening and satisfying lunch he ever took with him." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

A despatch from Ottawa says: An Order-in-Council has been passed dividing the position of Veterinary Director-General and Live Stock Commissioner, hitherto held by Dr. J. G. Rutherford, into two separate branches. The man most prominently mentioned for Veterintry Director-General is Dr. A. H. Hall, V.S., of Grimsby, Ont., formerly of Quebec. A prominent Western Ontario live stock man is mentioned for the Live Stock Commissionership.

THE FLAVOR OF TEA.

The flavor of tea is contained in an essential oil. With age the oil decays and the agreeable aroma and flavor of fine tea is destroyed.

Tea keeps better in sealed lead packets than it does in open chests or canisters, but it deteriorates more or less under any circumstances. Fresh tea is as necessary to a successful tea trade as fresh butter is to a successful butter trade. No wholesaler or retailer should keep a pound of tea in his stock for more than four months, yet, with some, the fashion is to keep it for years, during every day of which it is deteriorating.

In Ceylon—that land of eternal summer—every bush in a tea garden is picked over every week in the year, and you always get it fresh and fragrant in the "SALADA" packages. "SALADA" does not show the dealer as large a profit as other teas, but it gives him, through his customers, more satisfaction.

PARALYSIS YIELDS TO DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS

MANY FORMS OF THIS DREAD DISEASE ARE CURED BY THIS REMEDY.

Mrs. Ritchie, of Galt, Ont., Says She Believes It Saved Her Life—Doctors Said She Had Not Long To Live When She Began This Treatment—Read Her Grateful Statement.

Scarcely a day passes but fresh proof is offered of the wonderful power of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills over disease. In many of these cases relief and new health comes to the sufferer after the best efforts of medical men had been in vain. One such case is that of Mrs. D. M. Ritchie, of Galt, Ont., who writes:—"I feel it my duty to let other people know what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. I was taken sick first in May, 1910, with rheumatism. Treatment at home having failed me I went to Grace Hospital, Detroit, where I remained for some weeks, but instead of improving I became absolutely helpless, as if from paralysis, and could not move hand or foot. I was under the heavy expense of a trained nurse, and the best of medical treatment, but seemed to be growing worse. Finally, about the middle of July my husband decided to bring me home to Galt, where I remained under medical treatment, and with a nurse constantly attending me until October, when I took a further turn for the worse. Then the doctor told my husband that it was only the matter of a few weeks, as I could not possibly get better. Up to this time over six hundred dollars had been spent for medical and hospital treatment. In this condition, with hope abandoned, my husband saw a testimonial in a local paper of a cure of paralysis through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided at once to try them. In a few weeks there was a little improvement, and from that time on each day showed some change for the better. I can now (March, 1911) walk all about the house, do up my room, wash the dishes and sew and mend, but am still a little shakey, but am looking for the fullest cure, as I feel myself growing stronger daily. I give the full credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for I feel they are an instrument under Providence given for the benefit of suffering humanity."

Writing again under the date of August 16th, 1911, Mrs. Ritchie says: "As to my general health I can say that I have not felt so well in years. My stomach is in the best of condition and I can eat things I have not eaten for years. I can walk quite well, but use my cane when I go out, as I have not quite confidence in myself yet. But if you had seen me when I started to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, you would realize what a miracle they have worked in my case. All that I have stated is absolutely true, and I may add that the pills have cured my husband of kidney trouble that other medicine seemed to have no effect upon, for which we are both thankful."

Again under the date of Jan. 16, 1912, Mrs. Ritchie says: "I am fully recovered and able to do all my housework. I shall always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and trust some sufferer will receive as much benefit by reading this as I did through a faithful use of the pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such apparently hopeless cases as Mrs. Ritchie's because they make new, rich, red blood, which feeds the starved, overworked nerves, and gives tone and strength to every organ in the body. No sufferer from paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus dance, or any nervous disorder can afford to neglect Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the great blood builder and nerve tonic, which have more remarkable cures to their credit than any other medicine in the world. But be sure you get the genuine pills with the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OLD LADY ALMOST CRAZY WITH ECZEMA

A Remarkable and Convincing Statement of the Success of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the Treatment of the Pain, Itching and Burning of Eczema

"I, the undersigned, cannot give enough praise to the Cuticura Remedies. I had been doctoring for at least a year for eczema on my foot. I had tried doctor after doctor all to no avail. When a young girl I sprained my ankle three different times, paying little or no attention to it, when five years ago a small spot showed upon my left ankle. I was worried and sent for a doctor. He said it was eczema. He drew a small bone from the ankle about the size of a match and about an inch long. The small hole grew to about the size of an apple, and the eczema spread to the knee. The doctors never could heal the hole in the ankle. The whole foot ran water all the time.

"My husband and my sons were up night and day wheeling me from one room to another in the hope of giving me some relief. I would sit for hours at a time in front of the fireplace hoping for daybreak. The pain was so intense I was almost crazy, in fact, I would lose my reason for hours at a time. One day a friend of mine dropped in to see me. No more had she glanced at my foot than she exclaimed, 'Mrs. Finnegan, why in the world don't you try the Cuticura Remedies?' Being disgusted with the doctors and their medicines, and not being able to sleep at all, I decided to give the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment a trial. After using them three days that night I slept as sound as a silver dollar for eight long hours. I awoke in the morning with but very little pain, in fact, I thought I was in heaven. After using the Cuticura Remedies for three months I was perfectly restored to health, thanks to the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I will be sixty-four years of age my next birthday, hale and hearty at present." (Signed) Mrs. Julia Finnegan, 2224 Hebert St., St. Louis, Mo., Mar. 7, '11.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter D. & C. Corp., 47 Columbus Ave. Boston, U. S. A., for free sample of each with 32-p. book.

Relief for the Depressed.—Physical and mental depression usually have their origin in a disordered state of the stomach and liver, as when these organs are deranged in their action the whole system is affected. Try Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They revive the digestive processes, act beneficially on the nerves and restore the spirits as no other pills will. They are cheap, simple and sure, and the effects are lasting.

Poverty is no disgrace—but the same cannot always be truthfully said of wealth.

Costiveness and its Cure.—When the excretory organs refuse to perform their functions properly the intestines become clogged. This is known as costiveness and if neglected gives rise to dangerous complications. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will effect a speedy cure. At the first intimation of this ailment the sufferer should procure a packet of the pills and put himself under a course of treatment. The good effects of the pills will be almost immediately evident.

Some men are too lazy even to indulge in guesswork.

KING AND BOY SCOUTS.

Corps Organized in Bangkok After Visit to England.

There are thousands of Siamese Boy Scouts in Bangkok, and there is also an adult society of "Wild Tigers," wearing similar uniform.

The appearance of a group of olive-skinned Boy Scouts sauntering along one of the streets, writes The London Daily Mirror special correspondent, who attended the Coronation of the King of Siam, was my first surprise in the Siamese capital. And my astonishment has increased during my stay of several weeks as I discovered the thoroughness and extent of their organization.

They wear the familiar Baden-Powell uniform, drill nearly every day after school hours, and do practically everything that the British Boy Scout does.

The movement is due directly to the King of Siam, who was so impressed by what he saw in England of General Baden-Powell's wonderful movement that he decided, after consulting his chief Ministers and finding them in entire agreement with him to introduce the system to his own country. But his Majesty's enthusiasm did not stop at organizing a corps of Boy Scouts.

He was anxious to inculcate a military spirit and improve the physique of the grown-up men of his country, and with this end in view he inaugurated a body called "The Honorable Corps of the Wild Tigers," making himself its head, and endeavoring by every possible means to make it popular. To-day nearly every Minister and Government official belongs to it.

A MODERN MEDICINE FOR THE BABY

What mother cannot remember the times of her childhood when the castor oil bottle was brought into use—the dread with which she looked forward to a dose of it—the fight she put up when forced to take it. Surely all mothers will be glad to spare their little ones this discomfort—this dread. Modern science has banished the bad smelling, evil-tasting, griping castor oil and given in its place a modern remedy—a remedy pleasant to take, mild, though thorough in action, absolutely harmless and something the little one won't dread. That medicine is Baby's Own Tablets—the only remedy used by thousands of mothers of little ones—the medicine that has forced castor oil and "soothing" syrups out of the home and has taken their place to bring health to baby and joy to the parents. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Fairville, Sept. 30, 1902.
Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.
Dear Sirs,—We wish to inform you that we consider your MINARD'S LINIMENT a very superior article, and we use it as a sure relief for sore throat and chest. When I tell you I would not be without it if the price was one dollar a bottle, I mean it.
Yours truly,
CHAS. F. TILTON.

Don't be a stranger at the church, your father's old pew looks lonesome without you.

The Oil of Power.—It is not claimed for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil that it will cure every ill, but its uses are so various that it may be looked upon as a general pain killer. It has achieved that greatness for itself and all attempts to surpass it have failed. Its excellence is known to all who have tested its virtues and learnt by experience.

SAVING A DESPERATE MAN.

"Why did you get engaged to Harry. You swore that you would never, never have anything to do with such a man."

"Yes, dear, I know I did. But—well, I wouldn't have accepted him if he hadn't made such a perfectly dreadful threat."

"Oh! That old stall about rushing out and committing suicide?"

"No; worse than that."

"But any of those threats are bluffs. I suppose he said he'd kill the next man who called on you, eh?"

"No, no! I've heard that before. Dearie, he threatened that if I did not accept him he'd go and propose to you. And I believe he would have done it, too—he was perfectly desperate!"

WOMEN STILL ARE PRAISING THEM

MRS. GEO. BUTLER TELLS WHAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DID FOR HER.

She was tired, nervous and run down, and suffered from pains in the back.—Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured her.

Paquetville, Gloucester Co., N. B., Feby. 19 (Special).—That Dodd's Kidney Pills are suffering woman's best friend was never better demonstrated than in the case of Mrs. Geo. Butler, a well-known and highly respected resident of this place.

"My trouble was brought on by hard work," Mrs. Butler tells her friends. "For four years I suffered from pain in the back. I was always tired and nervous. My head ached and I had dark circles under my eyes, which were also puffed and swollen.

"I was in a generally run-down condition and feeling very much discouraged when I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I can only say I found relief at once."

The mainspring of woman's health is the kidneys. If the kidneys are right the blood will be pure. Pure blood is absolutely essential to good health. Dodd's Kidney Pills make the kidneys right.

THE CAR.

Knicker:—"Thought Jones bought a runabout."

Bocker:—"Yes, but after the bills came in he called it a runup."

Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Sore Throat will not live under the same roof with Hamlin's Wizard Oil, the world's best liniment for the relief of all pain.

UP AGAINST IT.

"What's the matter with your father? He looks worried."

"He is. He got up the other morning and put on ma's new overcoat instead of his bathrobe. Then he bumped up against the coal bin and smudged it before he discovered his mistake. He knows he'll get it when ma finds it out."

JUST AS EASY.

"I would rather be happy than be rich," he declared.

"Oh, yes, so would I," she replied, "but one might as well try to be happy without being rich as to be an angel without having to die."

ROSES SPREAD DISEASES.

No Italian Ones Allowed Into France—Fabulous Prices.

More trouble has arisen between France and Italy, but fortunately this time there is no danger of a rupture of diplomatic relations.

Orders have been given that no Italian roses are to be admitted across the frontier. These flowers suffered this year from a contagious disease called diapsis pentagona, and M. Pams, the Minister of Agriculture, is determined that the French rose trees shall not be contaminated.

In consequence, roses are worth almost their weight in gold to-day in Paris, for the rain on the French Riviera has made the flowers very scarce and there is a rose famine.

The importance of the prohibition may be gathered from the fact that, as a rule, at this time of the year 6,000 cases of roses come into France from Italy every day.

AS TO SPOONS.

"So Billy Jones and Daisy Juniper were married at last, eh?"

"Yep. Worst case of spoons you ever saw."

"Well, why not? That's the way it ought to be. You wouldn't have it a case of knives, would you?"

"They got seventeen dozen desserts, four dozen soups, fifteen dozen sets of coffees, eight dozen tables, and thirty-two salads."

WHAT FOLLOWED A CUT.

A Magistrate's Wonderful Experience With Zam-Buk.

Mr. J. E. Arsenault, a Justice of the Peace, and station master at Wellington, on the Prince Edward Island Ry., says:

"Four years ago, I slipped in the station and fell on a freight truck, sustaining a bad cut on the front of my leg. I thought this would heal, but instead of doing so it developed into a bad ulcer and later into a form of eczema which spread very rapidly and also started on the other leg. Both legs became so swollen and sore that I could only go about my work by having them bandaged. My doctor said I must stop work and lay up.

"After six months of this trouble I consulted another doctor, but with no better result. I tried all the salves, liniments and lotions I heard of, but instead of getting better I got worse.

"This was my condition when I got my first box of Zam-Buk. Greatly to my delight that first box gave me relief. I continued to apply it to the sores, and day by day they got better.

"It is now over a year since Zam-Buk worked a cure in my case, and there has been no return of the eczema or any trace of it."

Such is the nature of the great cures which Zam-Buk is daily effecting. Purely herbal in composition, this great balm is a sure cure for all skin diseases, cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, blood-poisoning, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, cuts, burns and bruises. All druggists and stores at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price.

"Does your son profit by your example?" "Thunder, no! Why, he wants to get married."

Warts on the hands is a disfigurement that troubles many ladies. Holloway's Corn Cure will remove the blemishes without pain.

GAME.

"He's a game loser, isn't he?"

"I should say he is. He doesn't seem to care what his wife and children have to go without."

A sad-faced editor, with fringes on the bottom of his trousers, and the wind sighing mournfully through his whiskers, sat in his sanctum thinking—thinking. Presently a shadow fell across the room and a shrill voice demanded to known if he was the editor "Yes sir," said he with a look of alarm The owner of the voice mopped the floor with the editor and went his way. Thank heaven; exclaimed the editor, after he had gathered together the wreck of his former self and had straightened up the furniture, life is still worth living; I expected he would tell me to stop his paper.

For a good every day household angel, give us a woman who laughs. Home is not a battlefield, nor life one long unending row. A trick of always seeing the bright side, or, shining up the dark one, is a very important faculty and one of the things no woman should be born without. We are not all born with the sunshine in our hearts, as the Irish prettily phrase it; but we can cultivate a cheerful sense of humor if we only try.

It may surprise some people to know that there are, according to the American Newspapers Annual 13 fewer daily newspapers published in the United States and Canada than there were in 1911, fewer weekly newspapers and 12 fewer semi-weekly newspapers. This news may dissuade some who are anxious to go into the newspapers business The cost of conducting a newspaper is much larger now than it was a few years ago, and it has become a question of the survival of the fittest, only those in a good field and with ample capital being able to overcome the heavy strain put upon them.

Referring to the Hockey Match last week in Exeter between the Exeter and Hensall juniors the special correspondent of the Hensall Observer must have been possessed of a distorted imagination and an unfortunate disregard for the truth when he wrote—"In the first half Hensall played Exeter team to a stand still score being 4-1. This was a sore touch to Exeter and seeing they could not win by playing hockey they started to rough it and if a Hensall player got hold of the puck in the second half, he was lucky to come out without a few broken bones. This is usual with Exeter bunch who are noted for being poor sports. The spectators wanted to get out and fight with a few 16 year old kids but they were a false alarm. They only beat our juniors by the score of 5—4. The crowd of Exeter sports managed to swipe quite a bunch of caps and gloves and everything of value left in the Hensall boy's coats." It is regrettable that the Hensall fellows could not take a defeat without passing all kinds of dirty insinuations, in which there is not a particle of truth.

HICKS FORECASTS FOR MARCH — A regular storm period will develop and run its regular course from the 4th to the 7th inclusive. The full Moon falls on the 3rd, and the center of the Mercury period on the 2nd. The Mars influence will extend to all the early part of March. Hence look for very low barometer, followed by heavy storms, on the 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th—first in the west, shifting regularly to eastward, with possible lightning and thunder and rain first, followed west by general and damaging sleet, and possibly snow blockades. A cold wave will follow blizzardous storms from the northwest, calling for timely provisions against exposure and danger to man and beasts A very decided seismic impulse will be felt in many places; within a period of seven days, central on the 3rd—watch telegraphic reports.

DEATH OF ROBERT FANSON.—One of our oldest residents passed away on Saturday after a short illness in the person of Robert Fanson, at the age of 84 years, 3 months. The deceased had owing to his great age been in an enfeebled condition for some years, but was able to be around as usual until a few days previous to his death. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon from his late residence, Huron-st. East, interment being made in Exeter Cemetery. The late Mr. Fanson was born in Devonshire, England, in 1827, and came to Canada with his parents when he was twenty years of age, first settling in Darlington. In 1854 he came to the Huron tract and purchased the old Gibson farm on the Thames Road, where he lived for over twenty years. He then bought the property owned and occupied by Mr. Geo. Snell, just west of town. From there he moved to near Seaforth, where he continued to reside up to the time of his removal here about seven years ago. The deceased was a staunch Reformer in politics and a life-long member of the Methodist church. Mr. Fanson possessed many good traits of character and was much respected by his many friends. The deceased was three times married, his first wife being Miss Gibson, the second Mrs. Sherbrooke and the last Mrs. John Gram of Weston, by whom he is survived. He also leaves to mourn his loss three children—Mrs. Dinney and Mr. Wilbur Fanson in the West and Miss Maretta at home.

AGED HENSALL MAN DEAD.

The funeral of Mr. Benjamin Kaiser, one of the pioneer residents of Hensall, was held Tuesday to the Union cemetery and was largely attended. An impressive service was conducted at the house by Rev. Doherty of the Anglican church. Mr. Kaiser was in his 84th year, and died on Saturday after a brief illness. Prior to coming to Hensall he kept hotel at Brucefield. He was born Feb 22, 1828, in the Township of York, 12 miles north of Toronto. In 1858 he moved to Huron County, settling in the Township of Tuckersmith, where he carried on a blacksmithing business for 25 years. Later he came to Hensall and as a contractor built many places here. When a young man Mr Kaiser took a part in repelling the Fenian Raid, and he had many stirring stories to relate of that and other stirring times of the early years. Besides his wife he is survived by five sons and four daughters, William of Los Angeles, Joseph of Caron, Sask., Brigham of Clinton; John of Brucefield; Albert of Winnipeg; Mrs Meddagh of Pellston, Mich., Mrs. J Zuefle of Hensall, and Misses Gertrude and Lottie at home. Mrs. S. Strong a sister, is 74 years of age. 18 grandchildren survive.

BE A BOOSTER

Do You know there's lots o' people
Settin' round in every town,
Growlin' like a broody chicken,
Knockin' every good thing down?
Don't you be that kind o' cattle,
'Cause they ain't no use on earth,
You just be a booster rooster,
Crow and boost for all you're worth.
If your town needs boostin' boost 'er;
Don't hold back and wait to see
If some other fellow's willin'—
Sail right in, this country's free.
No one's got a mortgage on it,
It's just yours as much as his,
If your town is shy on boosters,
You get in the boostin' biz.
If things just don't seem to suit you
And the world seems kinder wrong,
What's the matter with a-boostin'
Just to help the thing along?
'Cause if things should stop agoin'
We'd be in a sorry plight;
You just keep that horn ablowin'—
Boost'er up with all your might.
If you know some feller's failin's,
Just forget 'em, 'cause you know
That same fellow's got some good points,
Them's the ones you want to show.
"Cast your loaves out on the waters,
They'll come back" 's a sayin' true,
Mebbe, too, they'll come back "buttered"
When some feller boosts for you.

A SEVERE STORM

This section, like many others all over Ontario, was visited by a very severe blizzard last week. A gale from the east, accompanied by a heavy fall of snow, commenced about noon on Wednesday and lasted until Thursday night, piling up the highways and railways, blocking traffic by rig and train for many hours. No trains passed through on Thursday until eleven o'clock at night and even on Friday they were many hours late. Travellers and doctors were stalled in various places, and no person ventured on the roads unless it was an absolute necessity. Dr. Hyndman drove to McGillivray Wednesday afternoon but was forced to abandon his team and got home by foot and by train Thursday night. Dr McGillicuddy left about two a.m. Thursday on a trip west of Crediton and did not get home until 2 p.m. Both gentlemen state that it was the worst storm they had ever been out in, which is saying something, as doctors have many rough experiences.

Another storm of snow and wind commenced on Monday morning, but luckily let up shortly after noon. The mails were a few hours late.

STORM AT GODERICH.

Goderich, Feb. 26—One of the strongest gales of the winter blew from the east here this morning, blowing the roof off the wheel rige factory and doing heavy damages. Some of the workmen were injured by the flying debris. This is the second time this factory has suffered from a similar gale. The building being largely composed of windows was not strong enough to stand a heavy gale. The damage to machinery and stock will be considerable. Signs in the business portion were blown off and several pedestrians had narrow escapes from injury thereby.

MORE PAY FOR MILITIA

The pay of the men of the nonpermanent militia forces in Canada has been increased from 50 cents a day to 75 cents a day. The schedule of efficiency pay has been done away with and the schedule now is a flat rate of 75 cents a day and 85 cents a day for those serving two years in succession, with an efficiency allowance of 15 cents a day. The old rate was a flat one of 50 cents and an efficiency and service allowance of 20 cents to 40and 50 cents a day. The increase to non-commissioned officers is on the same relative basis. The object of the increase to the non-permanent forces is to revive the interest in the annual camps. In the past few years there has been a marked falling off in the attendance of men in camp, due particularly to the fact that camp would be held in the busiest season of the year for the rural forces and that the 10 cents a day allowance was not sufficient inducement to bring the men out.

OVERCOME BY GAS

Londesboro, Feb 15th—Mr John Bedford, his wife and their infant child had a remarkably close call from being asphyxiated by gas from a coal stove at their home on concession 13, Hullett Township, early yesterday morning Mrs. Bedford was awakened by hearing the baby crying, and at once smelled gas. She had hardly got up before she fell to the floor in a dead faint. The noise awakened her husband. He felt very ill, but managed to get the windows open, and after awhile restored his wife and the baby. They were very ill for some time, but no serious effects are anticipated.

SECTIONMAN KILLED AT CLANDEBOYE.

Mr. James Atkinson, the sectionman of Clandeboye, who was struck by a train coming north on Thursday last, the day of the big storm, died about 1.30 Friday morning. After the accident Mr. Atkinson had been conscious only at intervals of a minute at a time. Dr. Hyndman of Exeter, not being able to reach the patients' bedside owing to the storm, Dr. Stevenson of London was sent out, but before Mr. Atkinson could be removed to the hospital he died. Deceased was 58 years of age, and had lived in Clandeboye for twelve years. He is survived by a wife and five children. Death was due to concussion of the brain, the man having been hurled into the ditch with great force when struck by the train. Dr. Hossack held an inquest.

The jury viewed the body and then went to the scene of the accident, after which the coroner decided to adjourn the case until March 1. A large number of witnesses have been summoned. The jury is composed of E. Williams, foreman, Wm McWilliams, G Carter, Ed. Simpson, E. McKenzie, Geo. Lewis, E. Collins Ben Marr and John L. Simpson. The funeral of Mr Atkinson was held on Monday to St. James cemetery, and was largely attended.

The evening was spent in all kinds of games and amusements. Mr. Johns in spite of his great age enjoyed them as much as the youngest there. The daughters-in-law provided a bountiful supper after which Rev. Steadman made a speech and hoped that Mr. Johns would live to spend many more such occasions as it was very seldom a person attaining so great an age had their health, sight and hearing so good as Mr. Johns, after coming through so many hardships as he had since coming to the country over sixty years ago.

THE BOUNDARY QUESTION

Far above all expectations are the privileges accorded to the Province of Ontario in the settlement of the boundry between this province and the Province of Manitoba. Sir James Whitney's efforts on behalf of the people of Ontario are shown to have been flawless and the Dominion Government in making its bequests, has done no more, as the Government itself says, than make reasonable provision for the rights of this province. Not only does Ontario receive a five-mile strip of land running from the eastern boundary of Manitoba to Port Nelson and a ten-mile strip at the terminal, but it also has been accorded special privileges by the Dominion Government regarding the entrance of the Temiskaming&Northern Ontario Railway to Port Nelson.

LA GRIPPE'S VICTIMS

Left Weak, Miserable and Prey to Disease in Many Forms

One of the most treacherous diseases afflicting the people of Canada during the winter months is la grippe, or influenza. It almost invariably ends with a complication of troubles. It tortures its victims with alternate fevers and chills, headaches and backaches. It leaves him an easy prey to pneumonia, bronchitis, and even consumption. Indeed the deadly after-effects of la grippe may leave the victim a chronic invalid. You can avoid la grippe entirely by keeping the blood rich and red by an occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If you have not done this and the disease attacks you, you can banish its deadly after-effects through the use of this same great blood-building, nerve-restoring medicine. Here is proof of the wonderful power of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills over this trouble.

Mr. Emmanuel Laurin, St. Jerome, Que., says: "I was seized with a severe attack of la grippe. I was obliged to stop work and remain in my bed for several weeks, and while I appeared to get over the first stages of the trouble, I did not regain my usual health. I suffered from headaches, loss of appetite and extreme weakness. I did not sleep well at nights, and would arise in the morning feeling tired and worn out. This continued for about two months during which time I was taking treatment, but apparently without avail. Then I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a half dozen boxes. By the time I had taken three boxes there was a decided improvement, and actually before I had completed the sixth box I was enjoying my old-time health. I was strong as ever, could sleep well and eat well, and no longer suffered from lassitude and headaches. I have proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the pernicious after-effects of la grippe, and can therefore recommend them to other sufferers."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the trouble in the blood, which they enrich, and make red and pure. These pills cure all troubles due to bad blood, and if you are ailing you should start to cure yourself to-day by taking this great medicine. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Toronto Man Cured of Intolerable Itch

Mr. J. E. Hooper, Toronto.

By Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment

"I just want to say a good word for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Four or five years ago I was in Port Arthur, and I had an attack of the itch. It certainly was an intolerable nuisance. The itching was principally at nights before I went to bed. The thighs were especially affected.

"I went to two doctors about it, and tried more than one remedy. I was beginning to think the complaint was incurable, when I was telling my trouble to a barber, and he said that he would guarantee to cure me. He told me to take a hot bath, use Cuticura Soap, and then apply Cuticura Ointment. I took his advice, and, sure enough, the itch vanished. I had probably been troubled with the itch for two or three months before I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and they completely cured me of that intolerable nuisance. After one warm bath with Cuticura Soap and use of the Cuticura Ointment I was never troubled with the itching again. Anything in this testimonial I would be prepared to swear to in a court of law." (Signed) J. E. Hooper, 263 Parliament Street, Toronto, Jan. 10, 1911.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the speediest, simplest and most economical treatment for skin and scalp humors. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. THE FIDDLER AND THE KING.

Frederick William I. of Prussia Could Take a Joke.

The severity of the Prussian King, Frederick William I, especially toward the son who became Frederick the Great, has given him a perhaps undeserved reputation for sternness. Anecdotes that reveal gentler qualities are related in "The House of Hohenzollern." One anecdote in particular shows that Frederick William could even take a rebuke good-humoredly.

In Berlin assemblies and dinner-parties were often given, and the king was a frequent guest at the houses of the foreign envoys and at the houses of his own subjects. He was always most amiable on these occasions, and, with his jokes and gaiety, quite the life of the evening.

When the King of Poland, Augustus the Strong, visited Berlin, he was accompanied by the famous violinist, Locatelli. Although Frederick William hated virtuosi, he was abliged to listen to this artist, who appeared in a coat of blue velvet embroidered with silver.

"The fellow looks like a minister of war, at least!" the king ejaculated. But wishing to be civil, he sent him twenty thalers by a servant.

The artist sent the king his homage and thanks, but handed the money as a gratuity to the servant who had brought it.

On hearing of this, Frederick William was indignant, and complained to Augustus of the impudence of his fiddler. Augustus, however, pointed out that an artist of the eminence of Locatelli was accustomed to receive presents of gold watches, snuff-boxes and diamond rings.

Frederick William, therefore, decided to have a laugh at him. A second concert was arranged, after which the Prussian King himself gave the artist a snuff-box filled with ducats, and added, "You are so magnificently lavish that I should prefer, on this occasion, to earn the gratuity myself."

But the resourceful artist was not to be overmatched. He replied that such a present from such a king was too weighty for him to part with.

LEAP YEAR PROPOSALS LEGAL

Woman Originally Given Right by Statutes.

Although most women are well aware of the great privilege which they may enjoy during leap year, it is not to be presumed that they are all equally conversant with the fact that their prematrimonial right was originally secured to them by a statute law of England, enacted in 1606 under James I. (1603-1625). which readeth thus: "Albeit it is now become a part of the common laws, in regarde to the social relaytions of life, that so often as everie besextile year doeth returne, the ladyes have the sole privilege, during the time continueth, of making love unto the men, which they may doe, either by words or looks, as unto them seemeth proper; moreover, no man will be entitled to the benefit of clergy who dothe refuse to accept the offers of a ladye, or who dothe in any wise treat her proposals with slight and contumely."

A Scotch statute of 1228, under Alexander II. (1214-1249), however, preceded the above, and will appear to be even more stringent:

"It is statet and ordaint that during the year of his maist blissit majestie, ilk fourth year known as leap year, ilk maiden lady of both high and low estait, shall hae liberty to bespeak ye man she likes, albit, if he refuses to take her to be his wife he shall be mulcted in the sum of one poundis (£1) or less, as his estait may be, except and anis if he can make it oppear that he is betrothed to ane woman, that he shall then be free."

Mrs. Hen, having performed her oviparous function, took a constitutional around the yard. Returning to her nest she found it empty and clucked angrily.

"What's the trouble, ma'am?" asked the rooster.

"It's mighty funny," she grumbled, "that I can never find things where I lay them."

An Oil of Merit.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is not a jumble of medicinal substances thrown together and pushed by advertising, but the result of the careful investigation of the curative qualities of certain oils as applied to the human body. It is a rare combination and it won and kept public favor from the first. A trial of it will carry conviction to any who doubt its power to repair and heal.

SIDE-STEPPING PNEUMONIA.

Chicago Health Bureau Tells How to Avoid Infection.

Rules for "side stepping" pneumonia are offered in unique form by the Chicago department of health in a recent bulletin and causes of the infectious disease made plain. Under the caption, "Some things you should know about pneumonia," these conditions which render infection probable are listed:

"Contact with a pneumonia patient. Working in a dusty, poorly ventilated place. Living in rooms that are unventilated or too hot and dry. Sleeping in an unventilated room. Eating more or less food than the system needs in relation to work, exercise and exposure. Drinking alcoholics. Excessive work. Lack of sleep. Worry and grief. Other diseases. Unseasonable clothing.

"If you can sidestep all these, pneumonia will not get you."

An Easy Pill to Take.—Some persons have repugnance to pills because of their nauseating taste. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are so prepared as to make them agreeable to the most fastidious. The most delicate can take them without feeling the revulsion that follows the taking of ordinary pills. This is one reason for the popularity of these celebrated pills, but the main reason is their high tonical quality as a medicine for the stomach.

NE TEMERE DECREE NOT LAW

Sweeping Verdict Given Validating Marriage in Famous Hebert Case

A despatch from Montreal says: In a judgment it is impossible to conceive could be more sweeping, Mr. Justice Charbonneau on Thursday morning "wiped the ne temere decree off the map of Canada," to use the words of a prominent Montreal lawyer, when he delivered his pronouncement on the famous Hebert-Clouatre marriage case. So sweeping is it that it more than surprised the lawyers interested in the case, while Rev. Mr. Timberlake, who performed the ceremony, said it "fairly took his breath away."

His Lordship's findings, in short, are as follows:

1—That the ne temere decree is of absolutely no force in the Province of Quebec as far as the legal aspect of marriage goes. He holds that it is a decree which has spiritual obligations only, and that its jurisdiction in these spiritual matters does not affect anyone outside the pale of the Roman Catholic Church.

JUDGE CHARBONNEAU WHO HEARD THE FAMOUS MARRIAGE CASE

"The ne temere is a religious decree only," he said, "and its influence is confined to spiritual matters only, and in no way has any effect on the legality of marriage."

2—His Lordship holds that the marriage performed by Rev. Wm. Timberlake, Methodist clergyman, between Emma Marie Clouatre and Eugene Hebert, on July 14th, 1908, is now and has always been perfectly valid.

3—The court holds that no matter what the religious persuasions of the contracting parties are, any duly authorized clergyman can perform marriages which are perfectly legal in the eyes of the law of the Province of Quebec.

4—The court holds that the annulment of the Hebert-Clouatre marriage by the Roman Catholic authorities of Montreal on November 12, 1909, is of absolutely no effect as far as the legality of the marriage is concerned.

5—The court holds that Mr. Justice Laurendeau erred when on March 23, 1911, he gave civil effect to the annulment of the marriage done by the Roman Catholic authorities.

All of this is contained in the last part of the judgment, which is as follows:

"Basing itself on the motives given above, the court declares the marriage of the said Emma Clouatre and Eugene Hebert, celebrated on the 14th of July, 1908, before Rev. Wm. Timberlake, on production of a license of the 9th of July, 1908, good and valid, declares that the decree promulgated by the congregation of the council of the Roman Catholic Church on the 2nd of August, 1907, starting with the words 'ne temere,' has no civil effect, and that the decree of the ordinary of the diocese of Montreal, dated November 12, 1909, produced in this case by the plaintiff, has no judicial effect in the said case." Each party is to pay its own costs.

It is doubtful that the Church authorities will appeal, as the Hebert judgment has no more effect than other decisions as strongly upholding ecclesiastical law, but Hebert's lawyer says he will appeal if the money is forthcoming.

There was a tremendous crowd in the court when the judge appeared on the bench, while the corridors leading to the court were blocked with spectators and lawyers. The judgment took his Lordship over an hour to read.

NOT FINAL DECISION.

Judge Charbonneau's decision does not finally settle the question of the status of the marriage law in Quebec. In another case another judge might give a decision diametrically opposed to this verdict, and the issue will remain unsettled until a decision is secured by appeal to the court of last resort, which is the Privy Council, or until the law is changed.

CONSUMPTION SANITARIUM.

Hebrews of Montreal Have Raised $500,000.

A despatch from Montreal says: The Hebrews of Montreal, who have just embarked upon a campaign to raise $500,000 for a consumption satitarium at Ste. Agathe, Que., reached that sum on Wednesday morning. Collection will continue, notwithstanding the amount wanted has been obtained.

EARNINGS OF THE T. & N. O.

Net Receipts of the Provincial Railway Total $593,152.

In the annual report of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway, presented to the Ontario Legislature on Thursday, there is an increase in operating expenses over 1910 of $16,637.27, although there has been a decrease in the percentage from 73.2 to 66.4, while the total net earnings for the year are $593,152.69, compared with $436,130.31 for 1910, which represent 33.6 per cent. of the gross earnings for 1911, as against 26.8 per cent. for 1910.

The total revenue from transportation for the year was $1,708,249.02; from sources other than transportation, $72,715.81, making a total operating revenue of $1,780,369.83. The operating expenses were $1,181,998.63, as compared with $1,165,361.36 for 1910, making the net operating revenue $598,966.20 and $426,490.66 respectively, which, including ore royalties of $17,060.56, give a total net revenue of 616,026.76 for 1911, as against $458,253.58 for 1910. Ore royalties for the year show a failing off of $20,702.36. Deducting from the total net revenue the cost of hiring equipment, etc., for the year named, $22,874.07 for 1911 and $22,123.27 for 1910, the total net earnings for the road are $593,152.69 for the year ending October 31, 1911, and $436,130.31 for the same period in 1910.

In respect of these earnings a cheque for $515,000 was paid to the Provincial Treasurer, while the 1910 payment was $420,000.

The itemized pay-roll of the railway for operation shows payments amounting to $748,522.65, and $34,696.24 for construction, which represents a total sum paid for labor of $783,218.89.

The total mileage in operation is 397.63, which includes branches to Charlton, Kerr Lake, Haileybury, Porcupine, together with yards and sidings. The main line from North Bay to Cochrane is 252.8. Net earnings for the year increased $189,122.81, which is principally due to traffic to Porcupine gold camp, "although the opening of the rich clay belt and increased agricultural operations are becoming important."

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

WHY SHARES RISE OR FALL SHARPLY WHEN EARNINGS ARE GOOD OR BAD, WHILE BONDS MOVE NARROWLY.

Shares Depend for Their Market Price on the Amount of Dividends They Can Produce—Bonds Cannot Pay More Than Fixed Rate of Interest, so Good Earnings Cannot Help Bond Holder Beyond Adding to His Security.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible, of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor.")

Even if, as was pointed out last week, shares involve no promise of repayment, they usually command a readier market than bonds. Shares listed on any of the large stock exchanges are always in demand at some price, but unlike bonds of proportionate merit, the price is subject at times to wide fluctuations.

This constitutes one of the chief weaknesses of shares as investments. The share depends for its intrinsic value first on the amount of the assets of the company left after the amount of bonds and other liabilities are deducted, and secondly, on the amount of profits which are resulting from the business being carried on. If profits are poor as a result of an off year, the shares decline in the market; if, on the contrary, profits are large the price of shares tends to rise. In the case of bonds, however, even those of a company whose shares are subject to sharp fluctuations, the price is usually unchanged, except, perhaps, a matter of a point or two in extreme cases—unless the bonds are of an unusually speculative nature.

The reason for this is often overlooked, although the fact itself is a matter of everyday knowledge to anyone interested in investment matters.

A bond, as readers of these articles know, is a mortgage bearing on its face a promise to pay a certain rate of interest at certain times. Whether the company does well or ill, so long as it makes ample to provide for bond interest, the bondholder is secure. Of course, most good bonds are backed by earnings, running from double to many times the bond interest. Therefore, an off year cannot affect the bonds' value materially, nor can a good year offer any hopes of a greater return on the investment.

In the case of the share, however, conditions are reversed (we do not speak of "preferred" shares, which will be considered soon at some length). The share does not involve a promise to pay its face value back at any time, nor does it promise any income to the shareholder. If the company makes substantial profits the directors may consider it wise to "declare a dividend"—i.e., divide the profits pro rata among the shareholders, usualily on a basis of so much per cent. on the par value of each share. In this case the share tends to rise in price, irrespective of whether there are any assets behind it to make its intrinsic value greater or not. As a rule, the market price of shares (not the intrinsic value, remember, which alone depends on the value of the assets) depends primarily on the company's ability or not to pay dividends.

Take a concrete case. A few years ago a company was formed to manufacture a certain well-known breakfast food. At that time the product was not well known, and its market problematical. The company was organized and floated in the States, and bonds were sold equalling in amount the total value of the visible assets. The stock that was given away with the bonds at the time had—in the usual nature of bonus stock—no intrinsic value.

In time the company prospered. The stock sold at 40, and the General Manager of the company advised a friend to purchase. "What assets are behind the stock," asked the friend, who was of a nature not given to taking such "tips" on trust. "Not a dollar," said the G. M., "but the company is earning enough to lay aside a substantial sinking fund to pay off the bonds before maturity, and to provide a very fair dividend on the stock."

The next year two dividends of 1 per cent. each were paid; the next year the return totalled 3 per cent., last year 4 per cent. was paid in regular dividends, and, in addition, a bonus of 1 per cent. additional was handed out. This year the company should pay 6 per cent.

Now, if this company were to go out of business its bonds would be retired at par and its stock would be represented by assets chief of which are included under the head of "good-will." Good-will may be properly reckoned as an asset only so long as the company is doing business. In the case of liquidation its value vanishes—and so from a strictly investment point of view the company's shares are intrinsically worth very little; their quotation of between 80 and 90 representing their value merely as sources of dividends.

It is easy to see from this extreme case why stocks fluctuate violently in reflection of good or bad business being done, while bonds are not subject to such movements, except to a very moderate degree.

HOUSTON SWEPT BY FIRE.

Fanned by Gale, Over 250 Buildings Were Destroyed.

A despatch from Houston, Texas, says: Impelled by a gale that swept in with one of the coldest northers of the Winter, flames swept clean through the eastern section of Houston early on Wednesday morning. At least twenty-five blocks of the city have been destroyed, covering an area one and one-half miles long and at points one-quarter mile deep. Streets of cottages were destroyed, several big manufacturing plants were burned down, and thousands of persons are homeless. The losses are conservatively set at from six to ten million dollars. About $5,000,000 of this is confined to the manufacturing, lumber and cotton industries. Forty-five thousand bales of cotton stored in warehouses and compresses were burned. This item alone represents a loss of $2,000,000. Besides the 45,000 bales of cotton destroyed with the Standard Compress in the conflagration, 36 Southern Pacific cars loaded with cotton bales were burned. The number of homes and stores burned amounts to more than 250.

ELK LAKE BRANCH.

Chairman Englehart Says Line Will Start From Earlton.

A despatch from Cobalt says: Chairman Englehart of the T. & N. O. Commission made the announcement here at noon on Wednesday that the Elk Lake branch of the railway would start from Earlton, 25 miles north of here and ten miles south of Englehart. The new line will be 30 miles in length, and run through ninety per cent. farming country. It was at first thought the branch line would go in from Charlton, but the excellent farming country that will be opened up by the new route was taken into consideration.

TWENTY KILLED IN CYCLONE.

Houses and Live Stock Destroyed in Louisiana.

A despatch from New Orleans says: Twenty persons were killed and at least three score injured, many of them seriously, in a cyclonic storm which swept through a strip of northern Louisiana and Mississippi Tuesday evening. Dozens of small houses were blown down and many cattle killed.

GILLETT'S PERFUMED LYE

CAUTION.

Put a strong glass on the label and examine it closely every time. Always look for the name "Gillett's."

Like all good articles, which are extensively advertised, Gillett's Lye is frequently and very closely imitated. In some instances the imitators have actually copied directions and other printed matter from our label word for word. Be wise, and refuse to purchase imitation articles for they are never satisfactory.

Insist On Getting Gillett's Lye

and decline to accept anything that looks to be an imitation or that is represented to be "just as good" or "better," or "the same thing." In our experience of over fifty years in business we have never known of an imitation article that has been a success, for imitators are not reliable people. At the best the "just as good" kinds are only trashy imitations, so decline them with thanks every time.

PROFITABLE POWER BONDS

¶ Many of Canada's shrewdest and best informed investors have bought Western Canada Power Co. Bonds. At their present price of 90, they pay over 5½%. The plant is located 35 miles from the growing cities of Vancouver and New Westminster, B.C. and has secured perpetual water rights from government. Can develop 100,000 H.P. as demand increases and should earn this year three times bond interest. Engineer in charge, R. F. Hayward successfully constructed Mexican Light Heat & Power Co. In addition to high rate of interest bonds should appreciate considerably in next year. Directorate includes Sir Max Aitken; C. H. Cahan; A. R. Doble, Secretary Bank of Montreal; Jno. Hendry; Wm. McNeill, Vancouver; Mr. Campbell Sweeney, Manager Bank of Montreal, Vancouver. This is an exceptional investment opportunity from standpoint of both security and interest. THURSDAY, FEB. 29, '12

Hon. Geo. P. Graham was elected in South Renfrew on Thursday last by a majority of 280 over Dr. Maloney, the Conservative candidate. The election was due to the resignation of Mr. Low, the successful Liberal candidate by 613 in September last. Mr. Low resigned to give his seat to Mr. Graham who was defeated in his own constituency; and apparently an agreement was made between certain Conservatives and Liberals of the riding to allow a Conservative to be elected to the Ontario House and Mr. Graham to the Dominion House. Such agreements are rotten, a robbery of the rights of the rank and file of the electors, and should never be recognized by either party. But if the Liberals did recognize the agreement, and it would appear as if they did as McGarry was elected by acclamation to the Toronto House, the Conservatives should have done likewise, and allowed Graham to take the seat vacated by Low in the Ottawa House. At that point the Conservatives may have made a mistake. But it is all nonsense for Liberal newspapers to state that the result of the election signifies anything detrimental to the Borden Government. The Conservatives couldn't hope to win, and Graham got a greatly reduced majority. If there is anything to be deduced from from it surely is that Borden and his policies are gaining ground in the hearts of the people, as contrasted with the gross mismanagement of the late Government as shown lately in the G. T. P. As far as Graham personally is concerned he had a right to fight for a place in parliament as well as the next fellow. Although a newspaper man, and consequently a real good fellow, he has never shown such extraordinary cleverness, that the good things should come to him without an effort. The results of his railway policy do not show him in any too favorable a light. It is to be hoped, however, that this will be the last of such agreements between the heads of the parties in any constituency. The rank and file have rights in these matters.

Hon. J. S. Duff, Minister of Agriculture, has introduced a bill in the Ontario Legislature to prohibit the planting, cultivating or selling of the barberry shrub under a penalty not exceeding $10. The bill also provides that the council of any municipality may order the owner or occupant of any land on which a hedge or fence formed by this shrub is growing to remove and destroy it. If the owner or occupant removes and destroys it within thirty days of receiving notice, he shall be entitled to compensation for the value of the plant and the cost of removal. In case of neglect or refusal to do so within one month, the council may cause it to be removed and destroyed, and the owner or occupant will not be entitled to compensation.

Col. Roosevelt has signified his intention of allowing his name to go before the Republican convention for nomination as candidate for the presidency of the United States. When Roosevelt threw his mantle over Taft and secured his election they were very great friends, but something seems to have gone wrong with the works, and now Roosevelt is up in arms against Taft. It will add to the excitement of the election, and this split in the Republican party should spell success for the Democrats.

Once more we would ask the business men why they do not form a Business Men's Association? One would think they could not trust each other. In the meantime they are trusting everybody else when they ought not to be.

In the supplementary estimates for the present year presented to the Legislature Monday $2,000,000 was included for the construction of the Hydro-Electric transmission lines in Huron, Bruce and Grey Counties.

One business man in this town says he has $12,000 charged on his books, and mighty few paying up. The credit system is a lovely thing.

GODERICH—Fred W. Doty, jr., President of the Doty Engine Works, Limited, of Goderich and Winnipeg, dropped dead at his residence here Monday morning of heart failure. Up to the hour of death he had apparently been in the best of health.

BRETON PEASANTS.

They Always Treat a Stranger With Generous Hospitality.

In Brittany all peasants carry their own knives, and, as for forks, they have no use for them. George Wharton Edwards tells in "Brittany and the Bretons" of a visit to an inn where he met with the proverbial Breton hospitality.

An old withered Breton woman sat at the fireside busily knitting at a jersey of blue wool, and three men sat at a table playing some sort of game with dominos. The men gave no apparent heed to our entrance, but I knew we were being discussed in their patois.

We asked for bread, butter and a pitcher of cider, which was forthcoming, but no knives were brought. Noting our predicament, the three men at once produced their knives, immense horn handled affairs, and after wiping them very carefully and considerately on their coat sleeves they opened and proffered them to us.

"And now, madame," said I, "what shall I pay you?"

"Five sous for the cider, m'sieur. There is no charge for the bread, for is not that the gift of bon Dieu?"

Thus it is throughout this strange land of Brittany. One may travel from end to end away from the large cities and everywhere meet with the same hospitality. The peasant will willingly share with you what he has in the cupboard and will not ask for pay.

I left an offering of silver upon the window sill among the balls of woolen yarn. I noticed that the act was not lost upon the old Bretonne, who when she caught my eye gave me a charming courtesy and a smiling "Merci, m'sieur."

THE ROCK PTARMIGAN.

A Bird of Storms and Ice, Raw Mists and Bleak Winds.

In order to make the acquaintance of the ptarmigan it is necessary either to journey into the snows and ice of the far north or to climb up to the very highest glacier valleys among the frozen peaks of the Rockies or Cascades, where circumpolar conditions are reproduced. While this curious bird is essentially a subarctic type, it is occasionally found among the isolated fields of eternal snow as far south as Colorado and northern New Mexico.

The rock ptarmigan is a bird of storms and ice and raw mists and bleak winds, in the summer gray as the rocks among which he lives, in winter white as the whirling snows in the midst of which he survives after every other feathered living thing, save only the fearless eagle, has fled to the lower valleys.

His brother, the willow ptarmigan, dives lower down by 500 or 1,000 feet, among the dwarfed shrubs which mark the upper edges of tree life, and, while similar in size and structure, is of a less somber plumage and more friendly disposition than the ghostly gray specter of the upper world, the rock ptarmigan. The males of the willow ptarmigan especially are beautiful birds, brownish gray upon the backs and wings, with rich reddish brown throats almost chestnut in color and dazzling white breasts.—Country Life In America.

Violins Old and New.

There is a general impression that very old violins and violoncellos are much superior in tone to similar instruments of modern construction. The point was debated by a number of Paris musicians, who decided in favor of the modern instrument. Six ancient violoncellos were chosen, including a Stradivarius, a Theckler, a Cappa, a Pressenda and a Guarnerius, together with six modern instruments. These were played alternately by Senor Casals, who was hidden from sight, the instruments being indicated to the jury by a number and marks awarded according to beauty of tone. The modern instruments aggregated 1,484 marks and the ancient instruments only 883, although the six ancient cellos represented a value of £6,000 and the modern ones £160.—London Express.

A Chinese Columbus.

According to a Chinese chronicler, Hui Sen, who lived in the sixth century of the Christian era, North America was known to the Chinese under the name of Fusang or Fusu. It was said to be a continent lying 6,500 miles to the east of Asia. The chronicle states that in the year 453 five Buddhist priests sailed from China for Fusu, landing in Mexico, where they taught their religion to the natives, built temples and set up enormous statues of their gods all over the country. Traces of a Mongolian civilization have been found in Mexico. There exists in particular a statue of a god resembling not the Aztec god, but one of the grotesque deities of the Chinese.—Harper's.

Deceit.

Tis a cowardly and servile humor to hide and disguise a man's self under a visor and not to dare to show himself what he is. By that our followers are trained up to treachery. Being brought up to speak what is not true, they make no conscience of a lie.—Montaigne.

A Pen Pun.

Assistant Editor—Here is an article submitted by a convict in the penitentiary who signs merely with his prison number. Editor—Doubtless that's his "pen" name.—Kansas City Star.

Nothing more completely baffles one than is full of trick and duplicity than straightforward and simple integrity in another.—Cotton.

A LUCKY SHOT.

It Helped the Captain Out of an Embarrassing Situation.

In the good old days the revenue cutters carried small rifled cannon, but they were only used to fire salutes with and now and then break up a derelict. The gunners were never expected to hit anything. When they used the guns on floating wrecks the cutter would be alongside, and the master gunner would bang away until he'd smashed the wreck or used up his ammunition. No one ever thought of keeping tab.

Captain E. P. Berthoff told a story the other day which illustrates the conditions which formerly prevailed on the "treasury fleet." When it is a matter of running down smugglers or putting an end to poaching or mapping a bad channel or destroying derelicts the cutters average 100 per cent of efficiency.

"Few gunners could hit a target," he said. "Really there was little need. They didn't use a loaded shell once in a lifetime. But now and then the board of inspectors came on board, and then every one was worried and nervous until the ordeal was over. The inspectors visited the cutter commanded by a friend of mine. He ordered out the firing squad.

"'Bang!' went the rifle. The projectile hit the target squarely in the center.

"'Cease firing,' ordered the captain happily. And he turned to the inspectors, pleased as Punch. 'There's no use wasting ammunition,' he said. 'Our gunners can do that every time.'"—Herbert Corey in Cincinnati Times-Star.

OLD BAVARIAN TOWNS.

Many of the Smaller Ones Merely Walled Farm Villages.

In old Bavarian districts many of the smaller towns are merely walled farm villages. These settlements of agriculturists reproduce the ancient lager for all. Each is built in the form of a parallelogram, the shorter sides having each a gateway, with double gates, over which rise central square watchtowers capped with conical red roofs. A narrow road or street runs from gate to gate, with old half timber houses set back close to the inclosing wall. The ground floor of these houses affords stabling for cattle, and from these stables the cows are driven out through the town gates in the morning and brought in at night. Townships like this are merely clusters of houses intimately connected with the farm lands that lie beyond their gates. The peasantry, whether peasant proprietors or allotment leaseholders, go in and out to their work.

In eastern Bavaria, toward the Danube, where the better class farms are to be seen, one finds farmhouses of wood, a great shingled roof covering—as in Holland—not only the large living apartment, with many bedrooms, but also the stables for the horses and cattle. On such farms much of the farm work is done by girls, who usually wear short petticoats, tight bodices and kerchiefs on their heads. Most of the men are either in the army or working at trades.

Chinese Music.

All Chinese music is weird and screeching. They say their pleasure comes in exciting, not soothing, the nerves. They have flutes, horns, violins, mouth organs, guitars and table harps to be played with a loaded feather, which last make a delightful music akin to our mandolins. Every business house has its musical corps (just as we organize company baseball clubs), who in the evening are supposed to amuse the master, who lives on the story above the comprado's house. Seated on the counters which at night are also their beds, the fokis essay with a vengeance discords which are unquestionably disturbing to the occidental nerves, but for that reason the phlegmatic Chinese find them exhilarating.—J. S. Thompson's "The Chinese."

A year old baby in Walkerton, while in its cradle had one of its fingers almost entirely chewed off by rats, and is in a very critical condition as a result of blood poisoning.

SEAFORTH—Dave Stoddart, an employee of the Egmondville brewery, was severely burned about the face. He had gone into the acetylene gas house to see what was wrong with the machine, and thoughtlessly lit a match which caused an explosion. His burns, though painful, are not as serious as they were thought at first.

There in 1851 she was united in marriage to David Brethour and in 1858 they moved to Blanshard making their home on the Base Line. To them were born three sons and four daughters, six of whom still live. Mrs. Brethour was ever a peace loving and industrious, and her home was the centre of goodwill and generous hospitality. She was an able supporter of her husband in his public activities especially in connection with the Orange Order. She was blessed with good health and was seldom sick in old age. Her end came peacefully in the early morning of Feb., 16th. The funeral service was held at the house in which she lived and died, on Monday the 19th inst. and was conducted by the Rev. W. R. Vance, assisted by Rev. G.W. Racey, Kirkton. Interment took place in the Kirkton Cemetery. Mrs. Brethour was a lifelong member of Methodist church. Her husband preceeded her in death by seven years.

You will be proud of the bread you'll make with PURITY FLOUR

AFTER seeing a batch of big, golden-crusted, snowy-white loaves, that you have baked from PURITY FLOUR, you will, indeed, be proud of your cooking-ability—and proud of your wisdom in deciding to pay the little extra it costs to procure such high-class flour. You will admit, too, that we are justified in the pride we take in milling this superb flour.

PURITY FLOUR

"More bread and better bread"

PURITY FLOUR is milled exclusively from the best Western hard wheat—the world's finest. More than that, PURITY FLOUR consists entirely of the high-grade portions of the wheat. The low-grade portions are separated and excluded during the PURITY process of milling. Such high-class flour, of course, expands more in the baking. It makes "more bread and better bread."

It makes lighter, flakier pastry, too, if you just take the precaution to add more shortening. On account of its unusual strength PURITY FLOUR, for best results, requires more shortening than ordinary flour.

Progressive dealers, everywhere, sell PURITY FLOUR and take pride in recommending it.

Add PURITY FLOUR to your grocery list right now. 106

WINGHAM—Physicians are greatly interested in the strange case of Mrs. Barber, a woman 74 years of age, who retired as usual on Saturday evening, and never awakened again for 62 hours. After she had been awake for about an hour, in which time she was apparently all right, she went to sleep again, and all efforts to rouse her have been unsuccessful. Mrs. Barber has been in excellent health, and the reason for her long sleep is puzzling the doctors.

MITCHELL.—Miss Mary Rosenburg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rosenberg, North ward, died suddenly Friday afternoon at the age of 24 years. She had been in poor health for some time, but was up and around the house until the last day, and almost until the last hour.

MITCHELL.—A few days ago Albert Robinson was kicked on the head by a horse and a gash was made which had to have eight stitches to close. His eyes were so badly swollen that they were closed for some days. Had the animal been wearing shoes it is altogether likely that the young man would have been killed.

The fact of his having a public office right in the centre of the business street will be appreciated by those having to do business with him. BOSTON HARBOR FROZE.

But That Didn't Keep the Britannia From Sailing on Time.

Boston harbor froze over in January of 1844, and the advertised sailing of the Britannia, then in dock, seemed surely to be impossible. But the merchants of Boston would not have it so. They met and voted to cut a way, at their own expense, through the ice, that the steamer might sail practically on time.

The contract for cutting the necessary channels was given to merchants engaged, like Frederick Tudor, in the export of ice, but not ice cut from the harbor. Their task was to cut within the space of three days a channel about ten miles long. For tools they had the best machinery used in cutting fresh water ice, and horsepower was employed. The ice was from six to twelve inches in thickness.

As the Advertiser of Feb. 2, 1844, described the scene: "A great many persons have been attracted to our wharfs to witness the operations and the curious spectacle of the whole harbor frozen over, and the ice has been covered by skaters, sleds and even sleighs. Tents and booths were erected upon the ice, and some parts of the harbor bore the appearance of a Russian holiday scene."

On Feb. 3 the work was done, and the Britannia, steaming slowly through the lane of open water, lined on either side by thousands of cheering spectators, made her way to the sea.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

It Has Frequently Expelled Members Legally Qualified to Sit.

The assumption made in more than one daily journal that the house of commons cannot expel a member who is "legally" qualified to sit is not warranted by precedent, the only authority to which the commons bow, says an English writer.

In the eighteenth century the south sea bubble caused many expulsions, although the members' defense had not been heard in the law courts. One of the victims was Chancellor of the Exchequer Aislabie, credited with having bagged £250,000 from the public. In addition to expulsion, he was sent to the Tower and ordered to refund his booty. An Irish peer was expelled for directing a lottery, while for organizing a "charitable association" of shady habits Sir Robert Sutton and two others were shut out in 1730. Steele of the Tatler was prohibited the house for "maliciously insinuating that the Protestant succession in the house of Hanover is in danger under her majesty's administration."

But perhaps the oddest reason for closing the doors of the house of commons upon a man is to be found in the case of Mr. Asgill, whose sin was that of writing a treatise "On the Possibility of Avoiding Death."—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Odd Incident of War.

In the Philippine portion of his book "The Memories of Two Wars" General Funston tells of a unique instance at the siege of Malabon: "Company I. was firing a few volleys, and one of the men, having just discharged his piece, felt a second blow against his shoulder, it being almost as hard as the kick of the gun. Upon trying to reload it was found that the breech of the piece could not be opened, and it was laid aside to be examined by daylight, which was done in the presence of a number of us officers. Upon forcing the breech open it was found that the base of the copper shell of the cartridge that had been fired just before the weapon had been disabled had been shot away, while mixed all up in the breech mechanism we found the remains of the steel jacket and the lead filling of a Mauser bullet. There was a very pronounced dent on the muzzle of the piece. What had happened was that while the man had the gun extended in the firing position a bullet had gone down the muzzle. This weapon is now in the Army Ordnance museum in Washington."

The Wettins of England.

If the king of England were to renounce the throne and resolve to become an ordinary citizen he would be called George Wettin. How does the name Wettin come to be the king's surname? This is the answer:

Queen Victoria married Albert, duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, of the senior branch of the house of Saxony. The family name by which this house, dating from the middle of the tenth century, came to be known afterward was Wettin, and this was and is the surname of both branches—the Ernestine and Albertine—of the house of Saxony. The name comes from the castle of Wettin, near Magdeburg, which claimed Wittekind as the founder of the race.—London Answers.

Preaching and Practice.

The college instructor should take pains to practice what he preaches.

One member of a class in English composition brought his theme to the professor after recitation hour in order that the professor might read a marginal correction which he had written and which the pupil had been entirely unable to make out.

"Why," explained the professor, "that says, 'Write more plainly!'"—Youth's Companion.

An Eye to Business.

"I want to marry you," said the rising young author bluntly.

"Why?" coyly asked the great heiress, preparing to listen to his impassioned confession.

"Well," he replied, "it would be a great advertisement for me."

Human foresight often leaves its proudest possessor only a choice of evils.—Colton.

HOUSEHOLD

MISCELLANEOUS RECIPES.

Oatmeal.—Cook this cereal overnight in a fireless cooker or double boiler. If a coal range is used, cook an hour in the double boiler, then remove to the back of the range, and let it continue to cook overnight. If gas is used, cook one-half hour in double boiler, fill the water receptacle with boiling water, turn out the gas and wrap the double boiler in an old blanket, paper or any convenient non-conductor, thus retaining the heat. The flavor of oatmeal thus cooked is delicious. Serve warm with cream or add chopped raisins, dates or figs, or mold and serve cold, as preferred.

Radish and Celery Salad.—Six tender red radishes, one bunch celery, one head lettuce, one-quarter cup French dressing. Cut celery in 2-inch lengths, slash ½ inch and ¼ inch apart on each end, throw into ice water and allow to stand two hours. The cut ends will curl up. Wash, wipe and slice the radishes in thin circular slices, leaving the peel on for the color. Rub the celery bowl with onion and line the bowl with the lettuce leaves, which have been crisped in ice water. Arrange the radishes on the lettuce leaves, then add a layer of celery; continue until all are used. Pour the French dressing over all, taking care each portion is marinated. Serve at the table.

Baked Pig Ham.—Procure a choice ham from a young animal. Remove rind, stick cloves over the surface at intervals of 3 or 4 inches, coat with sugar syrup and cover with sifted flour. Place in roaster and bake in a moderate oven until well done. Baste with warm water and drippings each half hour. Remove cover and allow the ham to brown. Serve hot with apple sauce.

Sponge Cake.—Six eggs, one cup sugar, one tablespoon lemon juice, one cup flour; salt. Separate eggs, beat the whites until creamy. To the beaten yolks add gradually the sugar and seasoning and half the whites. Then sift in gradually the flour and salt. Add the remainder of the whites and bake as a loaf or in small cakes. This recipe is used for ladyfingers also.

Potato Apples.—Two cups mashed potatoes, one tablespoon melted butter, two tablespoons hot milk, one dozen whole cloves. If left-over mashed potatoes are used, heat thoroughly in a double boiler. When warm beat until thoroughly mixed. Divide into eight portions, form into a ball, dent the top and insert a clove, pushing well down, to represent the bloom end of the apple. Dent the opposite end and insert a clove as a stem; cinnamon sticks may be used if preferred. Brush apple with melted butter, sprinkle one side with paprika or cinnamon to give a red cheek. Bake ten minutes in a medium oven. Serve hot.

Cereal with Fruit.—One cup water, one-quarter cup cereal, one-quarter cup chopped dates, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one-quarter cup chopped raisins. Cook the cereal in boiling salted water five minutes. Place over water and cook several hours as directed in case of oatmeal. Before taking from the cooker add the fruit and mix carefully. Mold and serve with whipped cream.

Veal Birds.—Two pounds veal chops (about), one bunch parsley, two ounces bacon, one-half onion, one-half cup bread crumbs, one saltspoon salt, one-quarter saltspoon paprika. Cut veal in three-inch squares. Put bones in soup kettle. Pound each piece out flat, place on top of strip of thin bacon three inches long and a half-inch wide, a spray of parsley and a teaspoonful of bread crumbs. Sprinkle with salt, paprika and add a few drops of onion juice. Roll the veal tightly and skewer in place in casherole. With the fat in which the birds have been browned make a thin brown sauce and add to the casserole, covering the birds. Bake till tender. When ready to serve arrange the birds on the platter, remove the skewers, cover with brown sauce and garnish with spring of parsley.

Bird's Nest on Toast.—Prepare four slices of buttered toast. On each slice make a ring of white of egg beaten stiff. Slip the yolk into the center of the ring. Sprinkle with salt and place under the boiler until the egg is "set." Serve very hot.

Tomato Green Pepper Salad.—One-quarter cup French dressing, three medium-sized tomatoes, one small green, sweet pepper, one bunch head lettuce. Select firm tomatoes, peel and slice. Remove the seeds from a fresh green pepper and slice the pod in very thin strips with a paring knife. Rub a small salad bowl with a bit of onion, and line with crisp lettuce leaves. Arrange a layer of sliced tomatoes upon the lettuce and sprinkle with the sliced green peppers, then another layer of the tomatoes and the remainder of the green peppers. Pour the dressing over all. The salad is intended to be served at the table.

Larded Beef Tenderloin.—Select the tenderloin from a prime beef if possible and have your meat cutter "lard" it for you. Brown in hot fat, remove to the roaster, baste well and bake about forty-five minutes, basting every five minutes.

Broiled Bananas with Bacon.—Two bananas, two slices best bacon, half bunch cress. Select firm bananas, peel and split through the center lengthwise. Arrange upon a broiler with cut surface uppermost. Cut the bacon into narrow strips and arrange on the bananas. Close broiler and broil over coals or under gas flame until bacon is crisp and bananas well cooked (about ten minutes). If coals are used be careful to avoid smoking the bananas. Serve on hot platter garnished with cress.

HOUSEKEEPING HELPS.

Don't try to save coal at the expense of the viands; always have a steady and sufficient fire for cooking.

A stock pot should always be handy, and bones and odd pieces of meat put in for the making of soups and gravies.

Every drop of dripping and bacon fat, etc., ought to be saved. The former, when clarified, will keep a long time, and the latter is excellent for making pastry.

A discarded wire bonnet frame can be bent to any desired shape and fitted in the mouth of a jardiniere or wide vase, forming just the support that certain long-stemmed flowers need to keep them in graceful position.

If you use kerosene lamps and do not personally see to having the inner parts taken out and boiled in vinegar and soda, you do not realize how bright the light can be made.

Half of a dress shield fastened on the under side of baby's bib prevents the moisture from wetting his dress and underclothing.

Perhaps few people know that china silk waists should be washed, then starched in a thin starch and ironed while damp. This makes them look just as they did when they were new.

If in search of a soil covering for potted plants, invest a few pennies in a packet of Jonopsidium seed, known as diamond flower, and you will be rewarded after sowing, in a very short time, with a beautiful green carpet, set with diamond-shaped blossoms of a pale blue color.

A corn broom (floor or hand) which has become worn so the corners are round, should be cut off across the bottom until they are square as wen new. The broom will do better work as well as look better.

Ordinary baking soda, either as a powder or dissolved in a little water, will put out a small fire immediately. It forms a gas, carbon dioxide, which smothers the flame. A small handful in a cup of water or by itself is nearly always sufficient.

For removing smoke and dust from wall paper, especially the ingrain, nothing is more effective than cotton batting cut into convenient squares. As the work progresses, peel off the soiled cotton and burn.

Every now and then, instead of allowing the carpet to remain in exactly the same position as first placed, the tread of the carpet should be moved a couple of inches or so either up or down. This has the effect of keeping the pile of the carpet in a uniform condition, and, besides retaining the fresh appearance of the carpet, it helps to last much longer than it would if left exactly as laid. It costs nothing to do this, yet saves much.

A substitute for the mirror or window frame as a place for drying handkerchiefs is a sheet of glass large enough for two handkerchiefs on each side. This can easily be kept clean, and the handkerchiefs can be more conveniently exposed to light and air.

TWENTY-ONE BROTHERS MET.

Introduction Made at Home by Grey-haired Mother.

A meeting of twenty-one sons, some of whom had never seen each other before, took place in London on the birthday of their mother, Mrs. Corfield, a grey-haired Lincolnshire (England) woman.

The sons, who are all grown up, came from all parts. Two had journeyed from fruit farms in Canada; others who are soldiers had obtained special furlough. But the strangest feature of the meeting was that the mother had to introduce some of the sons to each other. They met as strangers. For the first time, for instance, the eldest son saw his two youngest brothers. He had left his mother's home for distant lands before the others were born. Only the happy, smiling mother with the silver-grey hair was able to recognize each member of this vast family.

NEW SPRING MODELS FROM PARIS.

These three models are early Spring fashions which show in detail some of the important features that will soon be popular. The gown on the right is of pearly grey satin, fastened at the side with flat glass buttons and collar and cuffs of embroidery. The middle gown is of white taffeta with a deep girdle of black satin with a bow, and sash ends to hem of skirt. The gown on the left is of marine blue voile with corded puff of taffeta at all edges. On this skirt is shown the new accordion pleated flounce.

SIMPLE LIFE OF JAPANESE

WAGES MEAGRE AND EXPENSES ARE LOW.

Well-to-do and Poor Housed Nearly Alike and All Enjoy Themselves.

In Japan a remarkable feature of the industrial and social life is the great uniformity in the manner of living, among different classes, says the Westminster Review. They all live in very similar dwellings. The poorer people have four wooden walls, and for furniture a few mats and blankets and a coal pot.

In Manchuria Japanese settlers are beginning to build stone houses with steam heating, but they are bare inside. Nor is this feature confined to the working classes. It is found through all strata of the population.

The food, save in the very highest classes, is in the main very uniform, rice and green tea, with sake as a stimulant. Among those who have not yet adopted European fashions, even the dress is in substance the same brought out in the middle and the lower classes.

HIGH WAGES NOT NEEDED.

The question of the balance between wages and the cost of living is the one that in the long run makes revolutions. It has not come into the open yet in Japan. Wages vary exceedingly, and no real standard can be given, but they are, as a rule, very small, though recent years have witnessed a steady rise. They are given sometimes by time, sometimes by piece, mostly by weird combinations of all possible methods.

But the weekly budget of the Japanese working man is very small. His rent is a mere trifle; the same may be said of his food. His only extras are a hot bath regularly every other day, twice a month or so a family trip to the theatre, a few pence for toys for his children and a few more to propitiate the deities or the priests. Counting the family at two adults and three juveniles, and including every necessary and likely outlay the weekly bill will come to about three dollars a week.

WORK HOURS VARY.

Hours of labor are to western notions outrageous, on an average eleven a day but frequently twelve, thirteen or even fourteen. Attempts have been made repeatedly to start trade unions, but never successfully. Where they have struggled into wretched existence they are of no account whatever, because they do not as yet answer to a need of the people. It is significant that many of these attempts were brought to a ruinous end by the dishonesty and corruption of their promoters.

Insurance against old age and infirmity is unnecessary in Japan, so long as the present firmly anchored tradition endures, which ascribes it as a duty upon each person to contribute to the maintenance of an aged, incapable or infirm member of his family.

Flour will lose its goodness if kept in a damp place.

WHEN HUME WAS ORTHODOX.

David Hume, famous for his history, his philosophy and his atheism, was once, we are told, reduced to a very humble and obedient orthodoxy—although that state of mind did not long endure. The story is thus told by the London Chronicle:

Having fallen into a swamp at the back of Edinburgh Castle, he called for assistance to a woman who was passing. At first she took no notice, but presently she asked:

"Are na ye Hume, the atheist?"

"Weel, weel, no matter," Hume said. "Christian charity commands you to do good to every one."

"Christian charity here or Christian charity there," the woman said, "I'll do naething for you till ye turn a Christian yourself. Ye maun repeat the Lord's Prayer and the Creed, or faith, I'll let ye grafe (grovel) there as I found ye."

And he had to repeat them.

JOHNNY'S MA OBJECTED.

Complaint is sometimes made of the home work necessary in connection with the schools. It will be seen there is only a qualified objection in the following instance related in the Youth's Companion: This is the note which was handed to one of the grade teachers the other day:

"Dear Mum — Please incuse Johnny to-day. He will not be at school. He is acting as timekeener for his father. Last night you gave him this ixample, if a field is 4 miles square how long will it take a man walking 3 miles an hour to walk 2½ times around it? Johnny ain't no man so we had to send his daddy. They left early this morning and my husband said they ought to be back late to-night, though it would be hard going. Dear Mum, please make the nixt problem about ladies, as my husband can't afford to lose the day's work."

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, MARCH 3.

Lesson IX.—The call of the first Disciples, Mark 1. 14-28; Luke 5. 1-11. Golden Text, Matt. 9. 37, 38.

MARK 1. 14-20.

Verse 14. After John was delivered up—Imprisoned by the order of Herod, whom the fearless prophet of righteousness had rebuked for his open disregard of the laws of morality and justice.

Jesus came into Galilee — From Judaea, where, according to the record preserved for us in the fourth Gospel (John 1. 19 to 3. 36), Jesus had already taught in public, cleansing the temple courts, discoursing with Nicodemus, and preaching near the Jordan. It was on his way from Judaea to Galilee that Jesus had stopped in Samaria, speaking with the woman at Jacob's well and preaching the gospel at Sychar.

15. The time is fulfilled—Every loyal Jew expected the early advent of the kingdom of God. This Messianic expectation of his countrymen furnished Jesus with a point of contact for his public teaching and gained for him the attention of the multitude. Before, however, giving his own interpretation of the significance of that Messianic hope or the character of the Messianic kingdom, Jesus took pains to indorse the preaching and ministry of John the Baptist. This he did by linking his own message on to the message of his forerunner, upon whose exhortation, Repent ye, and believe, he places a new emphasis by incorporating it into his own gospel message.

Between verses fifteen and sixteen of Mark's narrative belong two events not recorded by Mark, namely, the healing of the nobleman's son (John 4. 46-54), and the first rejection at Nazareth (Luke 4. 16-30). From Nazareth Jesus proceeded to Capernaum (Matt. 4. 13-16; Luke 4. 31), in and near which all the events recorded in the remainder of our lesson passages took place.

16. By the sea of Galilee—This beautiful inland lake is about twelve and one half miles long by eight miles wide at its broadest part. It is very deep and lies six hundred feet beneath sea level in the deep gorge of the Jordan, which enters it at the north and passes out from it again at the south. It has been compared, by reason of its charm and natural scenic beauty, to the lakes of Lucerne and Geneva.

Simon—Given the name of Peter by Jesus (John 1. 42). Both Simon and Andrew, as probably also James and John, had met Jesus before (compare John 1. 35-42; 2.11).

Mark's account of the events which follow (verses 16-20) is considerably abbreviated and reveals several important differences from the longer account given in Luke (5. 1-11), which compare below. Many commentators have thought that we have in the two gospel narratives accounts of separate though similar events, but on the whole it seems easier to regard the two accounts as records of the same event in spite of their differences, which a comparison of the two accounts makes clearly evident.

17. Come ye—Luke pictures Jesus as addressing himself to Peter, who doubtless on this as on other occasions was the spokesman of the group.

Fishers of men—A beautiful figure of their later work and ministry, which, like their secular calling thus far, would require the qualities of alertness, energy, patience, and promptness in the seizing of opportunities.

19. James—Or, Jacob. He is always mentioned first when spoken of in connection with his brother John, who seems to have been the younger.

20. Left their father . . . with the hired servants—Zebedee was not left helpless. The family was apparently in comfortable circumstances. At least one of the four men here mentioned had been a disciple of John the Baptist, and all of them, doubtless, had often spoken of Jesus. Their determination to become active disciples of his may have been already formed; his unexpected appearance and call at this time simply furnished the opportunity for carrying their resolve into effect.

LUKE 5. 1-11.

Luke's account of the call of the four disciples, Simon, Andrew, James and John, adds many circumstantial details to the concise statement of Mark. At this point in his narrative Luke's information is clearly taken from another fuller account which it seemed to him important to incorporate in his narrative.

Verse 1. Gennesaret—The name of the little plain touching the northwestern shore of the Sea of Galilee (Matt. 14. 34; Mark 6. 53); and hence frequently also given to the lake itself.

2. Two boats—One belonging to Simon and Andrew and the other probably to James and John.

5. Master—Simon's use of this title indicates that he already regarded himself as a disciple of Jesus.

6. They inclosed a great multitude of fishes—The fourth Gospel records a similar miraculous draught of fishes at the end of our Lord's ministry and following the resurrection (John 21. 6). The differences between the two narratives, however, warrant their being considered as accounts of two separate events.

7. Began to sink—Were in danger of sinking.

10. Jesus said unto Simon—Addressing him as the spokesman of the group and in response to his own words.

11. They left all, and followed him—This is the important fact recorded in the narrative, and for which the other events narranted simply form the appropriate setting.

MARK 1. 21-28.

The remaining verses of our lesson (21-28), together with six additional verses not included in the lesson selection (29-34), record the successive events crowded into a day of helpfulness which Jesus spent at Capernaum. A parallel account of this day of miracles and teaching is found in Luke 4. 31-41, one of the passages which Luke seems to have taken from Mark, as suggested in the introductory paragraph above.

Verse 21. Capernaum—Situated near the northwestern shore of the Sea of Galilee. The exact site has never been determined. Capernaum was for some time the headquarters of Jesus during the period of his Galilean ministry, and a center to which he often returned from shorter teaching journeys.

22. As having authority, and not as the scribes—The scribes were in the habit of citing various authorities for the teachings they set forth. Jesus spoke in his own name, without this usual deference to the recognized authorities in matters of law and doctrine.

23. A man with an unclean spirit—A man with a malady which made on those about him the impression of being under the control of some foreign, hostile power or spirit. For a fuller discussion of the whole problem of demoniacal possession, see Introduction to Text Studies for March 10.

27. They were all amazed . . . . What is this? . . . he commandeth even the unclean spirits—This verse gives us the key to a correct understanding of the narrative which precedes. We have in Mark's account of these events, as in all of our gospel narratives, a record of the impression which the words and works of Jesus made on his contemporaries, including the disciples and evangelists.

HOW TO STOP STAMMERING.

Pathetic as it is, one can hardly help smiling at the story of the little stammerer who, when asked by a gentleman the way to the station, stuttered out: "You'd be there before I could tell you, sir!" Stammering is due to a peculiarly nervous temperament, and only very sympathetic treatment can effect a cure. In a child it should have immediate attention, and the first thing is to improve the little one's health by means of plenty of sleep, fresh air, and good food. Every day he should take deep-breathing exercises in the open air, to strengthen the muscles of the throat, and counteract a spasmodic habit of breathing. Notice should be taken of the sounds which the little stammerer has most trouble with, and sentences containing these sounds should be composed for him to repeat each day—very slowly and clearly. He should be asked to read aloud every day, and, what is very important, he should never be laughed at or scolded.

AH-TISH-OO!

The only attention we pay to a sneeze at the present day is to endeavor to get rid of the chill which causes it; but a sneeze in the days of old Greece was a matter of great concern and import. There was then a god of sneezing, and great undertakings would even be abandoned if a man sneezed at an inappropriate moment, the act being looked upon as the oracle of the god. A sneeze between midnight and noon was looked upon as a fortunate sign, but between noon and midnight it betokened great misfortune. To sneeze to your right was lucky; to the left unlucky. Two or four sneezes were lucky, one or three very unlucky, and any undertaking in hand should, if possible, be abandoned; more than four sneezes did not count. There is a saying in many parts of England to-day, "Once a wish, twice a kiss, three times a letter, four times something better." If people sneezed together it was a good sign, particularly if they happened to be discussing business.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER XVI.—(Cont'd)

"But what about Gros Jean and the Turks? Surely Paris cannot again have swallowed them up?" inquired Brett.

"Every effort is being made to trace their whereabouts," was the reply; "but you must remember, monsieur, that they had many hours' start of the police, and that this period of the day is the most difficult of the twenty-four hours in which to make successful inquiries. You must rest assured that the moment we receive even the slightest clue we will ring you up, provided, that is, you arrange for some one at your end to answer the telephone."

"Oh," said Brett with a laugh, "there is little fear of future delay in that respect. It will be daylight in another hour, and the servants are already busy about the place."

He rang off and then darted back to his sitting-room to consult a time-table, for the thought came to him that Gros Jean and the Turks had quitted the cafe in order to reach Marseilles.

He could not yet explain this strange alliance. It was impossible to believe that the innkeeper would betray his daughter to serve the ends of a political party. No; there must be some other explanation which the future alone could reveal.

He well knew that the last thought likely to occur to the Paris police would be to suspect the missing men of any desire to reach the south coast. It was with an almost feverish anxiety that he scrutinized the pages of the indicateur des chemins de fer, and he heaved a sigh of profound relief when he discovered that the first train Gros Jean and the Turks could travel by left Paris the previous evening, and was not due at Marseilles until 8:59 that morning.

It was now close on seven o'clock, so he went to his bedroom, effected some much-needed changes in his personal appearance, and then consumed an early breakfast of coffee and rolls. At half-past eight he called a carriage and was driven to the railway station, where, punctually to the minute, the Paris train arrived.

Brett managed to secure a favorable point whence he could observe the passengers without being seen, for on the platform were stacked hundreds of baskets of fruit and vegetables which had arrived by a local train.

There were not many passengers in the express, and among the first to alight were Gros Jean and the three Turks—Hussein-ul-Mulk and the two others he had seen in the Rue Barbette.

It would be idle to deny that the barrister experienced a thrill of satisfaction at his own shrewdness, and he smiled as he realized the consternation of the Paris commissionary when informed that he had so easily allowed the rogues to slip out of the net.

The travellers were evidently tired after a sleepless journey. Gros Jean, being a fat man, had wobbled about a great deal during the night. He much needed the restorative effect of a comfortable bed; whilst the Turks, though younger and more active, also showed signs of fatigue, for this long journey, in their case, was a sequel to many hours of detention in an ill-ventilated apartment.

So they paid not the slightest heed to their whereabouts, save in so far as to eye with suspicion a harmless gendarme who happened to be on the platform.

The policeman, of course, took no notice of them whatever. Gros Jean was to him merely a typical Frenchman, whilst persons of dark complexion and Moorish appearance are everyday sights in Marseilles.

A diminutive railway porter loitered near Brett in the conceit that perhaps this well-dressed stranger might have felonious designs on the oranges and cabbages. His intense joy may therefore be pictured when the barrister beckoned to him, placed a gold piece in his hand, and said—

"You see those Turks there. Go after them and find out where they are going. They are sure to take a carriage, as their luggage appears to be somewhat heavy."

The man darted off, secure in the belief that no one who could afford to give away twenty francs for such trivial information would be likely to pocket a cauliflower. In half a minute he returned.

"They have all driven off together, monsieur," he announced eagerly, "and the French gentleman first of all inquired of the driver how much he would charge to take them to the Jolies Femmes. Two francs was the fare, and this was agreeable, so they have gone there."

"I hope, in this instance," said Brett gravely, "that the Jolies Femmes is the name of a hotel."

"But certainly," replied the porter elevating his eyebrows.

He meditated on this question for five minutes after Brett's departure, and then an idea struck him.

"Ah," he cried, slapping his thigh with a grin, "he is a droll dog, that Englishman."

Brett, secure in the knowledge that his quarry had been located, drove back to the hostelry. He found Edith, Fairholme, and Talbot just sitting down to breakfast. He joined them, and had barely communicated his startling intelligence when Sir Hubert Fitzjames put in an appearance.

"Dear me," said the genial old soldier, smiling pleasantly at the assembled party. "I see you are all nearly as lazy as I have been myself. I hope you slept well and enjoyed a quiet night."

The burst of merriment which greeted this remark not only amazed the worthy baronet, but startled the other guests in the dining-room. "That is a strange thing," whispered a Frenchman to his wife. "I thought the English never laughed!"

CHAPTER XVII.

After breakfast the party adjourned to their sitting-room, and there Brett detailed his immediate plan of action.

"The first point to determine is an important one," he said. "Which of you three—Sir Hubert Fitzjames, Talbot, or Fairholme—looks most like a Frenchman?"

The trio at once began to scrutinize each other carefully, to Edith's intense amazement.

Jack delayed the selection by inquiring—

"May I ask, Brett, why you wish one of ous to haul down the British flag?"

"Because it is necessary that some one should keep a close eye on Gros Jean and the Turks. Sir Hubert Fitzjames might possibly be made up to represent un vieux moustache, but it is essential that he should speak French well."

"Then," cried Sir Hubert decisively, "I am out of court, because my French is weak, and I always want to go off into Hindustani whenever I open my mouth."

"Very well," concurred the barrister, "it comes back to you, Talbot, and I regret to inform you that for the next few hours you must be content with the inferior cooking and accommodation of the Jolies Femmes Hotel. If you will come out with me now I will get you rigged up in a cheap French suit. That, and a supply of bad cigarettes, will provide a sufficient disguise for your purpose. You must pack a few belongings in a green tin box and betake yourself to the Jolies Femmes. Do not make any inquiries about Gros Jean. Simply watch him."

"Can't you find me a job?" demanded Fairholme.

"Yes, a most pleasant one. It will be your duty to accompany Miss Talbot and Sir Hubert, and show them the sights of Marseilles. I will meet you here at luncheon, but we probably cannot see Mr. Talbot again until late to-night, when he will have an opportunity to come here quietly and detail the results of his observations. Of course," he added, addressing the young man directly, "if anything important happens during the day you know where to find me, either personally or by messenger."

It was natural that Edith's first steps with her lover and uncle would tend towards the scene of her overnight adventure. But Miss Talbot was a clear-headed girl and took no risks. She knew well that in a chance encounter the sharp eyes of Marie and Eugenie might pick her out unless she was to some extent shrouded from observation. So she donned a large Paris hat and a smart costume, which, with the addition of a thick veil, rendered her very unlike the girl who twelve hours earlier was pursuing a recalcitrant lover.

Secure in the changed appearance effected by these garments, and especially in the escort of two such English-looking persons as Lord Fairholme and Sir Hubert Fitzjames, she walked with them down the Cannebiere and on the quay.

Then she strolled back around the harbor, still pursuing the track of Edith's midnight wanderings, when Fairholme suddenly whistled with amazement.

"By Jove, look there!" he cried. "That's a piece of luck."

He pointed to the upper part of the basin, in which a number of smart yacht were anchored side by side. Marseilles is a natural point of departure for Mediterranean tours, and many yacht-owners send their vessels here to be coaled and stored for projected trips.

"What is it?" queried Edith, when she could see nothing in the locality indicated save the vessels and the small expense of water dancing in the rays of a bright sun.

"The very best thing that could have happened. There is Daubeney's yacht, the Blue Bell. Suppose it becomes necessary for us to follow up Dubois and his fishing smack, and we let Daubeney into the know. The Blue Bell would pursue the Belles Soeurs to China. He would ask no better fun. I tell you that Brett will be delighted when he hears of it."

"Yes, dear, but we do not even know that Mr. Daubeney is in Marseilles."

"Let us go and see. It doesn't matter a pin anyhow, because a telegram from me to him would place the yacht at our disposal, and he would join us by express at the first possible stopping-place. You do not know what a good chap Daubeney is," and Fairholme continued to dilate upon the superlative excellencies of Daubeney until they reached the yacht itself.

A smartly attired sailor was pretending to find some work in carefully uncoiling a rope which did not satisfy his critical eye. Before Fairholme could hail the man, a rotund form, encased in many yards of blue serge, surmounted by a jolly-looking face on top of which was perched an absurdly small yachting cap, emerged from the companion.

"Why, there he is," shouted the earl. "Halloa, Daubeney! Yoicks! Tally-ho!"

The person addressed in this startling manner stopped as though he had been shot. He gazed at the sky and then gravely surveyed the gilded statue that surmounts the picturesque church of Notre Dame de la Garde.

"Here I am, you idiot," continued Fairholme. "I am not in a balloon. I am on the quay. Come here quick. I want to introduce you to Edith and Sir Hubert."

The meeting on the quay was hearty in the extreme.

Miss Talbot thought Mr. Daubeney rather curious. But still he was very nice, and unquestionably the services of the Blue Bell might be more than useful.

So she was graciousness personified in her manner, and promptly determined to invite him to luncheon, thinking that the chance direction of their conversation with Mr. Brett might lead towards the use of the yacht being hinted at.

She counted without Fairholme. The latter slapped his heavy friend on the back.

"Look here, old chap, are you fixed up for a cruise? Plenty of coal, champagne, and all that sort of thing?"

"Loaded to the gunwales."

"That's all right, because we may want the Blue Bell for a month or so."

"There she is," said Daubeney; "fit to go anywhere and do anything."

The Blue Bell was an extremely smart little ship of 250 tons register, and an ordinary speed of twelve knots. Incidentally Miss Talbot discovered that the owner made the vessel his home. He was never happy away from her, and the Blue Bell was known to every yachtsman from the Hebrides to the Golden Horn.

To eke out her coal supply she was fitted with sails, and Daubeney assured his visitor that the Blue Bell could ride out a gale as comfortably and safely as any craft afloat. Altogether Miss Talbot congratulated herself on Fairholme's discovery, and she could not help hoping that their strange errand to Marseilles might eventuate in a Mediterranean chase.

When the tour of inspection had ended Daubeney suggested an excursion.

"I understand you have never been to Marseilles before, Miss Talbot. In that case, what do you say if we run over and see the Chateau d'If—the place that Dumas made famous, you know?"

"Is it far?" said Edith.

"Oh, not very; about a mile across the harbor. Monte Cristo swam the distance, you know, after his escape."

"Shall we go in the yacht?"

Daubeney bubbled with laughter.

"Well, not exactly, Miss Talbot. You cannot swing a ship of this size about as easily as all that, you know. I have another craft alongside that will suit our purpose."

He whistled to a tiny steam launch which Edith had not noticed before, and without further ado the party seated themselves.

PLACER GOLD MINING IN QUEBEC.

By the expenditure of a large sum of money, and with no noise or publicity, there has been opened up in the Eastern Townships of Quebec, right here at home, and not thousands of miles away, the largest placer gold mining proposition east of the Canadian and American Rockies. The holdings consist of 71,000 acres of land, known as the Seigniory Rigaud Vaudreuil, Beauce Co., including a number of rivers following the beds of ancient streams, with their immense deposits of gold-bearing gravel. Gold had, until a few years ago, been mined from these gravel beds in a primitive way for many years. Differences as to mining rights checked operations until very recently, when a strong company, organized by prominent business men of Montreal, purchased from the original owners of the seigniory the perpetual rights to mine for precious minerals on the 71,000 acres. They entered into the practical exploration and development of the wonderful gold deposits on the seigniory, and expended many thousands of dollars in exploitation. A complete hydraulic plant, with all necessary machinery, has been installed on one of the many gold-bearing river beds, and actual mining operations established. Three large "giants," throwing solid streams of water under immense pressure, wash the sand and gravel into a sluice where the nuggets and dust are collected and recovered. Three short "clean-ups" were made before the event of freezing weather last November, resulting—for the first clean-up—in a recovery of 56 cts. in gold per cu. yard. The second clean-up gave 42 cts. in gold per cu. yard, and the last one, after only two hours of washing on virgin ground, gave values of $152.00.

The Company owning this valuable property is capitalized for $1,000,000, in shares of $1.00 each, fully paid, and a small amount of stock, being the balance of Treasury Stock, is now offered for sale to the public. This is a profitable and permanent investment. A real, producing gold-mining proposition, not a prospect. The Company will pay large dividends from the work of this one alone of their many gold deposits, while incomes from the operations of proposed subsidiary companies on other deposits of their large holdings, will swell the profits to shareholders of the original company. It is a worth-while investment!

A limited number of beautifully illustrated 20 page booklets, in English or French, have just been issued, showing, among other things, photographs of nuggets washed out at the "workings"; the exploration work; hydraulic "giants" in operation; the "clean-up," maps, etc., etc., and giving a complete history of placer gold in Quebec. The book is extremely attractive and will be mailed free, upon request, to anyone interested. Address, E. E. Helmick, Special Representative, Champs d'Or (gold fields), Rigaud Vaudreuil, Limited, Board of Trade Building, Montreal, Canada.

The King has also presented to the families of Joseph Noel Remond, Florent Emile Carel and Georges Marie Lagadec, the members of the crew of the barge who lost their lives on the same occasion, the gold medal for gallantry in saving life at sea, which would have been conferred upon them had they survived.

INVENTOR'S TROUBLES.

Thirty-six years ago last Wednesday—on February 14th, 1876—Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, formerly of Brantford, Ont., invented the telephone.

Like other scientific discoverers, he had a hard time at first to get people to understand and believe in his invention. Dr. Bell says that it was his work among the deaf and dumb which led to the telephone idea, and he tells a deaf man's story to illustrate public distrust of anything new.

One Sunday a man appeared in a country church with an ear trumpet—something unfamiliar to the congregation. Just before the service began an official approached the stranger.

Dr. Alexander Graham Bell.

"Say," he said, excitedly, "you can't play that horn in here. If you try it, I'll put you right away."

Dr. Bell is a Scotchman by birth. His residence in Canada was brief. After going to the United States he became professor of vocal physiology at Boston University, and founded the American Association to Promote Teaching of Speech to the Deaf, to which organization he donated $250,000. Dr. Bell is sixty-five years of age, and now lives in Washington.

TOO LATE.

She looked at him sadly after she had promised to be his wife.

"Why do you gaze at me like that?" he asked. "You look as if you were unhappy."

"I'm sorry this couldn't have happened before," she replied. "Now everybody will think I took advantage of my Leap Year privilege."

HIS PREFERENCE.

What a curious question this must have seemed to little James!

Hostess:—"What part of the chicken do you like best, my little man?"

James (passing his plate timidly)!—"I like the meat."

In the rush and hurry of modern life do we think as much as we might of the happiness of those who are growing old. They have lost so much. Their youth, often their health, most of the friends and companions who started with them on life's journey are gone and yet we often grudge them the brightness and joy we might so easily put into their lives. We will not stay to hear the recollections of old and happy days, which they love to tell us. We let them see so plainly that their day is over and ours has come. That those who have borne the burden and heat of the day, toiled and struggled and worn themselves out for others, should be left to feel lonely and neglected is sorrowful. We can and ought, each and all, in our own place and way, do something to bring the glow of summer and the remembrance of the days of roses and love into the lives, now fast nearing their winter and their end.

TUMOR REMOVED.—Mr Garnet Heywood had a fatty tumor removed from his forehead, above the right eye on Monday. Two years ago this winter he was struck by the puck while playing hockey, and the tumor was the result. It had grown to a considerable size.

NO BULLET, NO BEAR.—Mr. John Essery tells and interesting bear story of 78 years ago when his family lived near Devon. He was eight years old and he and a younger sister were after a pail of water when a black bear came out of the woods near them. They lost no time in reaching the home of Richard Bailey, who had unluckily shot the last bullet into a tree. There being nothing else to use in its stead he took an axe and cut the bullet out of the tree. By this time, however, the bear had disappeared.

EARLY MORNING RUNAWAY.— Mr. Arthur Kerslake, son of Mr Robert Kerslake of Usborne, and his sister had a most exciting and unpleasant experience about 3 o'clock Tuesday morning when returning home from a party. The horse they were driving became frightened coming down Main-Street, and when the cutter struck a huge snowdrift in front of the Bank of Commerce it overturned, throwing the occupants out. The horse then turned in on the sidewalk in front of W. J. Carling's store, and continued its mad career until it reached home. The cutter and harness were badly smashed and a window of Carling's store broken, but the occupants of the cutter were uninjured. A good Samaritan drove them home.

When an hotel quotes its rates at $2 a day up, that means up as near as the roof as it is possible to place the guests.

The rural mail delivery boxes of Messrs Fred Hunkin and Peter Moir, Usborne, were ruthlessly torn from their posts and thrown into the ditch by some miscreants on Tuesday night of last week., after which the destructive curs damaged the weigh scales and building of Mr. L. McTaggart at Exeter north. It will be a serious job for them if they became known.

RUNAWAY—Two sons of Mr. Samuel Parsons experienced a runaway on Friday afternoon. They were driving a colt hitched to a cutter, and were going east on the Thames Road when the bit broke, and losing control of the horse they were thrown out in front of Mr. P. Moir's gate. The horse ran on and struck slam-bang into a team driven by Mr. Fred Ellerington's hired man. In the mix-up' it got free from the cutter and turning into Fred Hunkin's gateway it ran down athe lane through and over the snow banks until it reached the woods at the back of the farm. The boys or horse were not injured, but cutter and harness were somewhat damaged. It was a very surprising thing neither of the team was injured by the cutter shafts.

A BAD MIXUP—Mr. E. M. Brokenshire and Miss Theo. Hartleib of Dashwood had a most unpleasant experience on their way to town about noon on Saturday last, just as they crossed the railway track on the Lake Road. They had waited for the train to pass in front of them and had just proceeded on their way when a runaway team of horses came up behind them and separating sufficiently passed one each side of the cutter, the tongue passing between the heads of the occupants. The whiffle trees stopped the team from going farther and then one of the team fell over on the snow and the other fell partly on the single horse and partly on the cutter. The occupants scrambled out of the cutter, and immediately the horse rolled over the single horse and cutter and fell beside its mate. The driver of the team Mr. Arthur Glanville, had by this time arrived on the scene, together with others, and the tangle of harness and horses was righted. Strange to say, neither Mr. Brokenshire or Miss Hartleib was injured in anyway, although the latter's hat was totally destroyed and her fur coat torn in several places. The cutter was considerably damaged and one of the team was somewhat injured.

Mrs. Thos. Cornish has returned from a visit in London.

ARM BROKEN—Miss Hannah Reardon of Mount Carmel met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon by slipping on some ice on the sidewalk in front of W. J. Carling's store, breaking her arm between the wrist and elbow.

DEATH OF MRS. PERKINS—Another of our aged and respected residents has passed away, in the person of Almira Wilkins, relict of the late Charles Perkins, who died on March 1st, at the age of 73 years. Deceased had been in failing health for some years and of late had been confined to her room, her illness being largely due to a general breaking up of the system. She was a woman of many excellent parts, a consistent Christian and member of the James Street Methodist Church, beloved by her family and highly esteemed by all who knew her. She married her late husband in Halton County fifty years previous to his death which occurred in June, 1906. Shortly after their marriage they moved to Usborne Township, where they settled on the 4th concession. They retired to Exeter over twenty-five years ago. Since the death of Mr. Perkins the widow had resided the greater part of the time at the home of Mr. S. M. Sanders. She is survived by one son and six daughters, Chas. H., Mrs. Thos. Harvey, Mrs. S. M. Sanders, and Mrs. S. Rowe of Exeter; Mrs. (Rev.) Buchanan of Rolleau, Sask., Mrs. John Loadman of Battleford, Sask., Mrs. Albert Johnston of St. Augustine, all of whom have the sympathy of their many friends. The funeral took place from the residence of Mr. Sanders on Monday, interment being made in Exeter cemetery. Rev. Kestle, assisted by Rev. Salton of St. Johns, conducted the service.

COMMUNICATION

Mr. Editor,—

Being an old bandsman and taking a deep interest in the young band so recently organized, I think the present time an opportune one to lay their condition before the people of Exeter. The boys have made a wonderful progress during the winter, and, with proper encouragement to keep them together give every promise of becoming a first class band. Now, would it not be nice if they could come out in the spring with a nice new uniform, worthy the (ought to be) town of Exeter. You will all say, 'Of course it would," Well, how are they going to get it? I know our town fathers gave them a handsome grant, but by the time they pay their leader and hall rent, to say nothing of music or an occasional instrument, that will be more than used up. Now, if I might make a suggestion I would say that we have a number of ladies of wonderful executive ability. Could they not see their way clear, together with some of our men folks, to get up a concert out of home talent to be held in the Opera House at some near date the proceeds to go toward the suits. I am sure every one would be patriotic enough to attend. And then the ones that did not attend we could hold up for a subscription. Again, could not the rink be secured for one night for the benefit of the band, a small admission being charged for spectators and a little extra for skaters. I am sure there are very few but would drop in to hear the band play a selection or two. But, I must not trespass on your space. I would be pleased to hear from any one who thinks the object a worthy one and will help push the good work ahead for the honor of the town and the encouragement od the band

Yours respectfully,
A. E. FUKE
Ex. Bandsman.

THE ROYAL ENGLISH HAND BELL RINGERS.

As you are all aware the storm of two weeks ago prevented the Royal English Hand Bell Ringers from appearing in James Street Methodist church, Exeter, on the date arranged for. However a new date has been made— TUESDAY, MARCH 12.— and you will then have the opportunity of hearing this high-class entertainment.

The Guelph Herald of Feb. 27th says, —'Norfolk Street Methodist church was filled last night to listen to the Hand Bell Ringers and all were delighted with the excellent music rendered. The work of the ringers was at times marvellous, their rendition of the musical classics being especially appreciated, while the vocal part of the entertainment was highly commendable."

R. C. Crawford of Port Elgin writing to Miss Bradley, says, that although the night was stormy the house was packed, and that since the entertainment he had heard nothing but good words of all and from all.

Mrs. J. P. Hockin of Guelph says,—Our church was filled to standing, much to our delight. The Bell Ringers are wonderfully skilled musicians. Everybody was delighted and that to us is just as good as making money. We were pleased with the appearance of the men on the platform. Their uniforms are neat and attractive.

Remember the date—Tuesday, Mar.12

HICKS FORECASTS FOR MARCH—

A reactionary storm period is central on the 10th, and 11th, involving the 9th and 12th. March the 11th, each year, is the central day of a four to six day period, in which the Earth passes a maximum crisis of electric and magnetic unrest. Electrical storms, streams of solar magnetism, earth-currents, volcanic outbursts, auroral lights telegraphic interruptions, and seismic tremors are all quite common and natural at this annual crisis. Rain turning to sleet and snow, will return in force on and touching the 10th and 11th. Be prepared for this, and for the change to much colder, which will most likely follow, up to about the 14th. A regular storm period covers the 14th to 19th, having its center on the 16th. The barometer will begin falling in the west about the 14th, with cloudy and threatening conditions. By the 15th and 16th these conditions will bring rain across moving eastward, and on the 17th, 18th, and 19th, a marked low barometer will pass the central Mississippi valley attended by decided storms of rain and wind, with possibly tornadoes and hurricanes southward. Snow rising barometer and change to much colder, will push the western flanks of these storms leaving cold, fair weather over most parts for several days following storm. The new Moon on 18th, and on equator 19th, will hold the culmination of this high period back until those dates. A seismic period is central on the 18th, covering the 15th to the 21st. Watch the World's Record.

SAINTSBURY

Mr. Sidney Hodgins was home Monday on business and bought some horses for his livery in Parkhill. His brother, L. No. 493, followed by an excellent program of songs, speeches and music. Among them were speakers from Moorsville, Parkhill, Saintsbury and Biddulph. The program was followed by a dance which lasted until early morning. The L.O.L. tendered a hearty vote of thanks to the host and hostess before departing for their homes.

Dashwood

Mrs. Henry Callfas entertained a number of her friends one evening last week, it being a surprise party in honor of her birthday.

Little Nettie Brokenshire celebrated her birthday on Tuesday evening by inviting a number of friends to spend the evening.

On Sunday evening at the close of the evening service several new members were taken up in the Evangelical church, the fruit of the recent revival meeting. Very encouraging indeed were the words of the Pastor to those lately starting the new course of life.

Messrs Jacob Kellerman and Richard Baker, each delivered a horse on Monday to Mr. Adolphus Allen who shipped from Parkhill.

E. M. Brokenshire and Miss Theo. Hartleib had a rather unpleasant experience on Saturday last while driving to Exeter. A runaway team of horses coming from behind were neither seen noor heard until they plunged upon them. Luckily they escaped with only a few bruises, torn clothes and a badly broken cutter.

Mr. Henry Brenner is busily moving his effects to the farm he recently purchased in Stanley Township.

Several from here attended the cattle sale at Exeter on Saturday.

Mrs. Jonas Hartleib is laid up with muscular rheumatism.

Mr. Herman Walper, who has been sick for some time, succumbed to his illness on Sunday night. It was thought of late that he might survive, but during the last few days his illness became such that to those of his friends it became apparent that it was only a matter of time and he passed as above stated. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community in this their severe trial.

This community was greatly surprised on Tuesday night, when it was learned that Daniel Messner, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Messner had passed away after a short illness. What makes it seem harder is the fact that an elder brother and the father had left about two weeks ago for the Peace River District to locate on some land in that settlement. The young man, who has just passed away was to have gone with them, but not feeling just well at the time it was decided that he remain at home for a time and join them later, but his illness terminated in death, thus their plans have been thwarted. The bereaved family and friends have the sympathy of the entire community in this their severe loss.

From Another Source

On Wednesday evening of last week the lady Maccabees with their other halves drove to the home of Mr. Robert Mawhinney, the occasion being to celebrate some of the ladies' birthdays. The evening was all that could be wished for and the sleighing grand. Arriving at Mr. Mawhinney's all were made welcome. The evening was spent in music, games, recitations and speeches until about 11 o'clock, when all repaired to the dining-room where the table was fairly loaded with good things provided by the ladies. When all had done ample justice, thanked Mr. and Mrs. Mawhinney for their kindness, and sang 'God be with you till we meet again," they repaired to their homes well pleased with the evening they had spent.

HOUSEHOLD

CHOICE RECIPES.

Onion Dressing.—Select four or five small onions, pare and core them and place them in the body of the duck to give flavor. The onion is not to be served.

Maple Sauce.—One cup maple syrup, one-half cup water, one tablespoon flour. Make a paste of the flour and water, add to the maple syrup and boil three minutes. Serve while warm.

Peach Melba.—Two large ripe peaches, one-half pint ice cream. Pare the peaches, cut in halves and remove the stones. Place each half in an individual dessert dish, with the outside of the peach next the dish. Fill the cavity with ice cream. Canned peaches may be used.

Angels on Horseback.—Twelve slices best bacon, twelve large oysters, twelve small skewers. Place an oyster on the end of each slice of bacon, roll the bacon over and over and skewer through the roll. Arrange the rolls upon a wire rack and place in the oven until the bacon becomes crisp and brown. Serve very hot.

Lettuce and Onion Salad.—Four crisp leaves of head lettuce, two small Spanish onions, four sticks celery, half cup French dressing. Place a lettuce leaf on each salad plate. Slice the onions very thin and place upon the lettuce. Pour the French dressing over the salad when ready to serve. Serve with celery cheese stick.

Corne Beef Hash.—One cup chopped corned beef, one cup mashed potatoes, one-half teaspoon onion juice, one egg (white). Season the hot mashed potatoes and beat until light, add the onion juice, corned beef and the beaten white of an egg. Mix well, form into balls and fry in deep fat. Serve while hot. This hash may be baked if preferred.

Cress and Celery Salad.—One-quarter bunch cress, one large bunch choice celery, one-half cup French dressing. Crisp the lettuce in cold water. Cut the celery into two-inch lengths and cut six or eight half-inch slits in both ends of each strip. Throw the celery into cold water and let it remain an hour or until the edges curl up. Rub a small salad bowl with a bit of onion, line with cress, arrange the celery in the cress-lined bowl, garnish with bits of nuts and chopped pimento. Pour the French dressing over all just before serving.

Oysters in Ramekins.—One cup boiled rice, one-half cup catsup, one-half pint oysters. Line the oiled ramekin with boiled rice. Cook half pint oysters, chop, season with salt and pepper and moisten with catsup. Put this mixture in the ramekins and cover with a layer of rice, brush with melted butter and place in a quick oven to brown. Garnish with a bit of parsley or cress and serve very hot.

Green Peppers Stuffed with Meat.—Four green sweet peppers, half cup thick white sauce, two-thirds cup chicken (ground), one-third cup pork tenderloin (ground), half teaspoon onion juice. Use the remains of pork tenderloin and chicken previously cooked for dinner. Cut the stem end off the green peppers, remove the seeds and parboil the pod. Mix the meat, seasoning and white sauce, fill the peppers with this mixture, covering with crumbs, brush with butter and place in a baking dish in a moderate oven and bake a half hour.

Celery Cheese Stick.—Two sticks crisp celery, two ounces pimento cream cheese. Cut celery into 4-inch lengths, fill the cavity with cheese. These sticks are used in place of wafers.

If the oven is too hot and your cake browns too fast put a piece of buttered paper over it.

Instead of pillows, try a cushion from a morris chair with which to prop up an individual in bed.

A piece of chiffon or veiling twisted is a much better rat for a pompadour than one made of hair.

Burn cinnamon on the stove to remove the odor of cabbage or onions, which have been previously cooked.

Before going shopping make your memoranda on an envelope, and put inside it any samples you may wish to match.

The finest of manicure acids is made by putting a teaspoonful of lemon juice in a cup full of warm water.

When painting the inside of a house place buckets of water around to absorb the poisonous fumes from the paint.

Before giving castor oil, squeeze orange juice over it and see that the patient chills his mouth by chewing cracked ice.

If you live in a house where there is a fragrance always keep a vessel of water on the register, and you will always have hot water.

Frozen plants should be placed in a dark place, then sprinkled with cold water. Geraniums, fuchias, and similar plants may often be saved if care is given in thawing them out.

Don't throw away dairy butter that is too strong for eating or cooking. Put it on the stove with two raw potatoes to about one and one-half pounds of butter. Boil until potatoes are cooked, then strain through a damp cloth. Add salt if needed. When cold it is excellent for frying or cake baking.

CHOKED FATHER TO DEATH.

Russian Sect Which Kills Off All Members at Sixty.

To the seven ancient Russian sects which practice self-immolation, self-mutilation, or self-torture has been added an eighth. It bears the strange title, "Raskol Shestidesyatilietnuikh," which means "Sect of the men aged sixty." Its main tenet is that all men who have reached the age of sixty are "called to God," and that their friends and relatives ought to assist them to obey the call. The assistance is given in the shape of throttling, crushing the skull, or dosing with chloroform.

The police the other day arrested the high-priest of the sect a young man named Kabankin, son of a rich house-owner of Saratoff, on the Volga. Kabankin's father recently disappeared. Kabankin junior said he had gone on a pilgrimage to a forest cloister. Neighbors, however, knew that the son was priest of the Sixty Sect. They began to talk, and finally the police found under Kabankin's bed a trap door which led to the subterranean temple of the sect. It was a small, gorgeously decorated chamber with ikons, prayer-books, and holy vessels; also a case ofsteel instruments made for some mysterious use.

On pressure, Kabankin admitted that he had choked his father, and buried him in a stable. The search brought to light an unrecognizable corpse.

Kabankin is in jail and a search is being made for his followers, whose names he conceals. He admits that the steel instruments are for inflicting death in queer ways. One is to squash in the head. This has the effect of "releasing the soul at once." If blood is shed the soul remains in the body and tortures it for years, according to this revolting belief.

The Kabankin revelations have led to reports of missing men being sent in to the police by scores. During the last four years abnormal numbers of persons have disappeared; nearly all were elderly men. Five out of nine who vanished in 1910 were just over sixty. The police have finished digging around Kabankin's house but they have not come upon the corpses. They will now begin digging at the village of Dubovoe, where the sixty sect sometimes met at night.

CHANGED HER MIND.

Mrs. Zuba Creel, a young colored woman who did housework by the day, was for a time obliged to devote herself exclusively to a new member of the family. Miss Lucy West, one of her customers, called one morning to find out how Zuba was getting on..

"What are you going to name the baby, Zuba?" asked Miss Lucy, after inspecting the tiny newcomer with due interest.

"Well'm," returned Zuba, "I been studying over a new name I heard, and I 'spec' I'll name him Rodent."

"Rodent!" gasped Miss Lucy. "Whatever made you think of that?"

"Well'm, one day las' spring, when I was i'ning clo'es at Mis' Parlin's, I heard Miss Alice tell her maw she seen some signs that made her think de rodents was a'coming.

"I didn't hear no mo'n dat, but I 'lowed de rodents was frien's o' de fambly, and somehow de name kind o' struck me. I kep' saying it over and over till it stuck fas' in my mind, and den I laid it up for a time o' need, 'cause, don't you know, I don't never favor names dat's common, and rodent sounds kind o' tony to me. Don't you lak it, Miss Lucy?"

"No," said Miss Lucy, "and I don't think you will, either, when I tell you that Miss Alice probably meant rats and mice when she spoke of rodents. I never heard of a person named that, but any small animal that gnaws is called a rodent."

"Hush!" cried Zuba, in astonishment. "Ef dat ain't de cap-sheaf! Well, I shore ain't goin' name dis po' little lamb after no varmint. I reckon I'll name 'im Beelebub. Dey'll call him 'Bub,' anyway, no matter what I names 'im."

MEMORY MAKES THE MAN.

Memory is an excellent quality, and every business demands a special memory adapted to its particular needs. Take the doctor, for example. He has to know a human body better than its very owner, and must carry in his mind, perhaps for years, little points that may be needed for future reference. Medical memory is quite as important as medical knowledge. Every lawyer is obliged to know, as a child knows its alphabet, the principles of law, and the judge must carry his trained memory even further. Naturally, clergymen must allow their memories to run upon religious matters, and there are many divines who can literally repeat whole chapters from the Scriptures. Each profession, each business, has use for a man whose memory can be trained for the one purpose of applying it to the particular vocation in which he is engaged.

Meerschaum means sea-foam, and derives its name from the fact that it is sometimes found floating in the Black Sea.

"See that Miss Milyuns? Before her father became rich they called her long and lanky." "Well, what do they say now?" "They say she is divinely tall."

THE BLUE NILE IN FLOOD.

Water Rises Several Meters During the Night.

When the flood begins in the spring, the natives of the upper regions of the Blue Nile prepare for their journey to the north, with whatever produce is considered worth taking. In "Five Years in the Sudan," Mr. Edward Fothergill tells how quickly the Nile rises. The Blue Nile flood comes down between the comparatively narrow banks with tremendous swiftness.

One night we went to bed with the river as usual. The boat was lying at the bottom of a high bank. Halfway up the bank we had a thriving vegetable-garden, and from the windows of our house it was impossible to see even the top of the steamer's mast. When I waked the next morning I fancied for a moment that I was the victim of a hallucination, for there, opposite the door of the house, swung the steamer at her anchor. The flood had come, and the water had risen several meters during the night.

In connection with the coming of this flood, I remember once being out on a shooting expedition about the time when the flood was expected, and camping in a dried-up channel of the river for the night. At daybreak I was waked suddenly by my servant, who shook me roughly, telling me that the waters were almost upon us. The camp was awake, and already the men were busy loading the donkeys and collecting our belongings. Away to the south we could hear a dull roar, as of many waters gradually approaching, and we all had an anxious few minutes, until at last we were left high and dry, out of the reach of the highest flood.

We must have looked a party of fools when the cause of the roar became apparent. Instead of a rush of water at our feet, the sky grew darker, and over our heads, flying in the direction of the river, came millions of small birds going for their annual holiday to the north. It was a most wonderful sight, and it impressed me as much as anything which I saw in the Sudan.

TOUCHING THOSE TUNNELS.

There are three famous tunnels which make it possible for the traveller to reach Switzerland through France and Italy—the Mont Cenis, the St. Gothard, and the Simplon. The first of these was begun in 1857, and took three years to complete. It is eight miles in length, and it cost over $1,000 a yard to construct. This was thought to be a veritable triumph of engineering, but the difficulties encountered in the building of the St. Gothard were far greater. The tunnel was a mile and a quarter longer than the Mont Cenis, and, of course, cost more in proportion. With regard to the Simplon Tunnel, which is the longest in the world, it was completed in 1906. Fortunately, in its construction the death-rate was very low, as the authorities had learned to counteract the effects of the enormous air-pressure. The tunnel took over eight years to build, and is twelve and a quarter miles long. Electric locomotives haul the trains through it.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, MARCH 10.

Lesson X.—Jesus the Healer, Mark 1. 29-45; Matt. 4. 23-25. Golden Text, Matt. 8. 17.

MARK 1. 29-45.

Verse 29. And straightway—The scene of the events of this lesson is still Capernaum, where Jesus had cast out the unclean spirit from the unfortunate sufferer in the synagogue.

The house of Simon and Andrew—Their permanent home.

30. Sick of a fever—Possibly malarial fever, which travelers report is still rife at certain seasons of the year in the plain in which Capernaum is situated.

Tell him of her—Fully convinced that he would be able to help.

31. Took her by the hand and raised her up—Luke changes Mark's wording to "stood over her, and rebuked the fever." This wording in Luke would seem almost to imply that illness from fever was also attributed to spirit-possession. This inference, moreover, is borne out by Luke's words in the verse parallel to the preceding in which he speaks of Simon's wife mother being "holden with (held in the grip of) a fever."

32. At even, when the sun did set—After the close of the Sabbath day, which began and ended with sunset.

All that were sick—From all parts of the city.

Possessed with demons—Originally the Greek word here used for demon was applied only to the gods; gradually it became customary among the Greeks to use it with reference to spirits, whether divine or intermediary between gods and men, and of the latter regardless of whether they were good or evil. Only gradually was it applied to evil spirits, emissaries of Satan as distinguished from spirits emanating from the gods. In this later sense the word, as well as the concept, for which it stood, was taken over by Greek-speaking Jews, and is to be understood in this sense here, as in most of the passages of the New Testament in which it occurs.

34. Because they knew him—Many ancient authorities add to be the Christ; so also Luke (4. 41). At this early point in his public ministry Jesus carefully avoided proclaiming himself as the Messiah, nor did he permit such proclamation either from friendly or unfriendly sources. If we think of those to whom demon-possession is here attributed as suffering from some form of mental derangement, it is easy to understand how any slight suggestion of the supernatural power of Jesus would be augmented and magnified in their imagination.

35. A great while before day—The burden and strain of the day's work was not conducive to restful sleep; rather did it fill the mind of Jesus with a sense of his own need of strength and inspiration from the heavenly Father. Hence he hastens away before the house and city are again astir and seeks the solitude of a desert place, where he prayed.

36. Followed after him—Apparently Simon was already familiar with the personal habits of Jesus, which included the observation of periods of meditation and prayer.

38. Into the next towns—The shore country about the Sea of Galilee was thickly dotted with small villages between cities.

For to this end came I forth—Jesus may have referred simply to his leaving Capernaum and not consenting to return at once, even though informed that all who had heard of his presence there were seeking him (verse 37). Another permissible interpretation is that he refers to the benevolent purpose of his life mission as a whole.

39. Preaching and casting out demons—Here clearly the expression "casting out demons" must be interpreted to include the healing of various kinds of diseases.

40. A leper—Leprosy was one of the diseases the evil working of which could be seen and measurably understood; hence leprosy was not ascribed to demon-possession.

Make me clean—Disease of every form, but especially the loathsome disease of leprosy, was regarded as punishment for sin committed either by the sufferer himself or his immediate ancestors. Persons thus afflicted were moreover ceremonially unclean, their touch being prohibited by ritualistic rules.

41. Being moved with compassion—These words give us the secret of the public ministry of Jesus on its human side. His life, his love, his strength went out in self-forgetful service to the needy, regardless of their class or station.

Touched him—A touch was sufficient to reassure the faith already strong.

44.—See thou say nothing to any man—Another evidence of the unwillingness of Jesus to have himself proclaimed as the Messiah at this time. (Compare verse 34 above.)

Which Moses commanded—Compare Lev. 13. 49 and 14. 2.

45. Could no more openly enter into a city—Being fully occupied in teaching and healing the multitudes which flocked after him into desert places.

MATTHEW 4. 23-25.

These verses from Matthew's narrative parallel and briefly summarize verses 32-39 in Mark's account.

23. All Galilee—So extensive a tour must have occupied several months.

24. Into all Syria—His fame spread even beyond the borders of Galilee into the region of Tyre and Sidon on the northwest and Caesarea Philippi to the northeast; also to the region of Decapolis southeast of Galilee, and southward into Samaria and Judaea.

Possessed with demons, and epileptic—Perhaps the comma should be omitted and the word epileptic considered as synonymous with "possessed with demons," since Matthew elsewhere clearly attributes epilepsy to demoniac possession (Matt. 17. 14-18; compare also Mark 9. 14-29; Luke 9. 37-43).

25. Decapolis—A region of ten cities east and southeast of Galilee.

QUEER PLACES FOR NESTS.

Swallows Built on the Curtain Rod of a Bed.

A very curious instance of boldness in swallows was recorded in 1886 from Ceylon. In this case the birds built over a lamp in the dining-room; what made their choice of site more remarkable was the fact that the lamp could be raised or lowered by counter weights and the connecting chains actually passed through the mud walls of the nest.

Occasionally the bird selects a nesting site which invites comparison with the the boldness of the robin. In July last a pair of swallows took advantage of the open window of an unoccupied bedroom in a house at Felmersham in Bedfordshire, England, to begin building their nest on the curtain rod of the bed.

The return of the owner of the house and the occupation of the bed did not in the least disturb or alarm the birds, which completed the nest and brought off three nestlings within seven weeks of the house-owner's return. They took no notice of the occupant of the bed when feeding their young; but the hen bird would fly off the nest if any one entered the room during the day time.—Bailey's Magazine.

FORMATION OF CHARACTER.

Requires Courage to Weigh Our Own Defects.

To nothing in life, perhaps, is there directed so little thought as to the shaping of a career—the molding of a character. Thousands of men and women around us live their indifferent lives, and pass away without doing anything really worth while, failing to get out of life its best and most beautiful. We need not achieve wonderful things or become great personages high in the esteem of the world; it matters not whether we are king or peasant, the stamp of merit is placed on those who give their whole-hearted attention to whatever they undertake. Whether it be the making of an intricate marvel of workmanship or the execution of everyday duties. Whatever is assigned to use should call forth the best that is in us.

Let us not be afraid to examine our faults. It requires courage, certainly, to weigh our own defects and look them bravely in the face; but it is only by so doing that we may overcome them and cast them aside. Shall we be content to drift along without striving to rise above the level of those who do not care? Our character lies in our own hands. There is no one else in the whole world who can make or mar it. We may be influenced of course by good or evil associates, but with ourselves lies the uniform moulding of our career. We are the sculptors, our life is the clay. We can make it an indistinguishable mass of material or the masterpiece of a Michel Angelo. Which shall we choose?

REASSURING "MISS BLAKE."

As they boarded the train they had every look of being a bridal couple. The young man carefully escorted the young woman to a seat while the interested passengers smiled indulgently.

Then extending his hand to the supposed bride, he said, in a very loud voice, "Well, Miss Blake, the train is about to pull out. I wish you a very pleasant journey" and doffing his soft hat, he hurried off the train. The passengers looked disappointed.

But the young woman seemed nervous. By and by she called the porter, and in a whisper gave him some mysterious errand. He came back in a moment, and said in a voice audible to every one:

"Yo're all right, ma'am. He's in de smokin' compartment."

Everybody smiled, and the bride blushed prettily.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER XVII.—(Cont'd)

They sped across the waves towards the Chateau d'If, and drew up alongside its small landing-stage.

The island supplies an all-the-year-round resort for the townspeople. Every fine day a steamer runs at intervals to and fro between it and the inner harbor. The good folk of the south of France, whether Marseilles or visitors to the city, find a constant delight in taking the short marine excursion and wandering for half an hour about the rocky pathways and steep turrents of the famous prison, whilst they listen with silent awe to the words of the guide when he tells them how the Abbe died, and shows them the hole between the two walls excavated by Monte Cristo.

They wandered round with the crowd until Edith looked at her watch.

"It is past twelve o'clock," she said. "Should we not be going back to the hotel to lunch? You will come with us, of course, Mr. Daubeney?"

"I am famished with expectation," answered the irrespressible Jimmy, "but before we go away you certainly ought to climb to the leads and get the panoramic view of the harbor which the tower affords on a clear day. It is a sight to be remembered.

So they made the ascent, Daubeney leading in his capacity of guide, though he was quite breathless when they reached the top.

Edith followed him, and to her alarm perceived that he was purple in the face. He tried to smile, and indicate by a gesture that he would recover in a minute. Meanwhile he was speechless.

Fairholme was the next up. He had hardly set foot on the roof before he exclaimed—

"Well, I'm darned!"

Edith turned round quickly.

"What on earth is the matter?" she cried. "Why are you using such horrid language? Mr. Daubeney only hurried a little too fast, that is all."

Fairholme dropped his voice to a whisper.

"Look," he said, indicating with his eyes a distant corner.

Edith followed his glance, and instantly comprehended the cause of his startled exclamation. For in that quiet spot, far removed from watchful police or inquisitive hotel-servants, stood four men, whom she could not fail to recognize as Gros Jean, Hussein-ul-Mulk, and the other two Turks, although, of course, until this moment she had never previously set eyes on them.

She instantly understood that they must continue to talk and act in the guise of ordinary tourists. In this respect the presence of Daubeney was invaluable, for he naturally could not guess the community of interest between his aristocratic friends and the motely group in the corner.

As soon as he regained his breath, Edith and he commenced a lively conversation. Sir Hubert joined them, and in the course of their casual stroll round the tower they passed close to the Frenchmen and his companions, attracting a casual glance from the former, who instantly set them down as English people bound for the East, and whiling away a few hours in Marseilles prior to the departure of their steamer.

But another surprise awaited them.

A small staircase led to the top of the turret, which, as already described, formed part of the angle that sheltered the group of men.

When Edith and the others strolled past the door they glanced inside and caught sight of a shabby-looking Frenchman, who had paused halfway up the stairs, and was leaning eagerly forward through an embrazured loophole, obviously intent on bearing every word uttered by the quartette beneath.

Fortunately, Edith, who was nearest the door, was completely shrouded from Gros Jean's observation, else that astute gentleman might have noticed her involuntary start or suprise. For the shabby-looking Frenchman was her brother.

The instant Talbot heard footsteps he naturally turned to see who it was that approached, and he also was amazed to find Edith's wondering eyes fixed upon him at a distance of only a few feet.

She nodded her head and placed a warning finger upon her lips. As it happened, Daubeney caught her in the act, and for the next few moments that gentleman's emotions were intense, not to say painful.

"You seem to be preoccupied, Mr. Daubeney. What has happened?" she inquired.

"I—I—really don't know."

His distress was so unmistakable that her quick woman's wit divined the true cause. They had now sauntered some distance away from the part of the tower that might be marked "dangerous," so she grasped Jimmy's ponderous arm, and whispered with a smile—

"You saw me make signs to that Frenchman, didn't you"

"Well—er—I—er—"

"Oh, yes, I understand. Of course you were surprised. But don't jump now, or say anything; he is my brother!"

She need not have warned Daubeney as to any reamrks he might feel inclined to make, for her announcement again rendered him speechless.

"It is a mystery," she whispered, "a deep secret. We will tell you all about it at lunch."

CHAPTER XVIII.

Sublimely unconscious of the excitement raging in their breasts, Sir Hubert Fitzjames could not understand why they each and all answered him in such a flurried manner when he dilated upon the beauties of the bay. Finally he turned to Edith with an air of apprehension.

"I fear," he said, "that your expedition of last night has upset you. Have you a headache?"

Then she could contain her news no longer. Drawing him close to the rampart, and bending down so as to apparently take a deep interest in the laughing excursionists beneath, she murmured—

"Listen to me carefully, uncle. Don't look around. Have you noticed the party of Turks and a Frenchman grouped together in the opposite corner?"

"Yes," he said. "You do not mean to tell me that they are the people whom Mr. Brett met this morning at the station?"

"Yes, unquestionably they are. But the most marvellous thing remains. You know the turret close to which they are standing?"

"Yes."

"Well, in the staircase leading to the top, and leaning out through a window, trying to hear what they are saying, is Jack!"

"What an extraordinary thing," said the major-general, who was really very annoyed that such a meeting should have taken place under his very nose and its significance remain hidden from him.

"Can we do anything?" he added.

"Nothing save to remain here a little longer and be most careful not to appear to have the least knowledge of their identity."

They were joined by Daubeney and Fairholme, and Edith knew by a single glance at the expressive expanse of the former's face that should he be again brought into close proximity to the Turks and her brother it was quite possible the quick-witted Gros Jean might detect the look of interested amazement which must inevitably appear upon his honest British countenance.

"Bobby," she said at once, "I want you and Mr. Daubeney to go down to the launch. We will join you in a few minutes."

"Certainly," was the reply, for Fairholme knew that some motive lay behind the request. "You cannot do much by remaining here, can you, so I suppose you will not be long?"

"No; uncle, and I will survey the view until it is firmly fixed in our minds. After that it is full steam ahead for the Hotel du Louvre."

The two young men disappeared down the stairs leading to the courtyard.

At this moment, the siren of the small pleasure steamer at the quay announced she was about to make her hourly trip back to the town. Whereupon Gros Jean and the Turks, having apparently ended their consultation, crossed the roof and disappeared.

Instantly Jack Talbot strolled after them, but no sooner had the bulky form of Gros Jean—who was the last of his party—vanished than Talbot ran towards his uncle and sister, and said rapidly—

"Dubois and the girl have gone to Palmero. Gros Jean and the Turks have been in communication with the Sultan, and there is a movement on foot to buy the diamonds. That is all that I can tell you now, but let Mr. Brett know. When I have seen these chaps safely home, I will at once come to the hotel."

Then he, too, vanished.

Edith felt a thrill of elation that her good judgment should have led her to remain sufficiently long on the tower to glean such important information.

When Brett heard the news it seemed to annoy him.

"I feared as much," he said. "I had not much faith in the patrotism of the Young Turks. I wonder how much the Sultan has offered. However, we must possess our souls in peace until Talbot comes here and tells us all that he has learnt. At this moment I cannot help marvelling at the strange coincidence which should have led the Turks and yourself to select the Chateau d'If for a morning stroll. I fully expected that Gros Jean would be in bed. He must have received some startling intelligence to keep him away from the rest after a long journey. Meanwhile, I have not been idle."

Every one awaited with interest his next words, for Brett seldom made such a remark without having something out of the common to communicate.

"I telephoned to Paris," he explained, "to tell the Prefecture that Gros Jean and the Turks had arrived at Marseilles. The police were surprised, and perhaps a little sore, that they had not discovered the fact for themselves, but when I soothed them down they informed me that 'Le Ver'—the diminutive scoundrel whom we rescued from the Rue Barbette—had faithfully kept his appointment with me at the Grand Hotel yesterday.

"It seems that he was much upset when he learnt that I had left. He went straight to the commissary to inform him that, contrary to expectations, the Turks were acting in complete accord with mademoiselle's father. This naturally puzzled the commissary a good deal, and the affair became still stranger when an attache from the Turkish Embassy called a little later and urged the police to do all in their power to discover the whereabouts of Hussein-ul-Mulk, as he was particularly anxious to have a friendly talk with him.

"Close on the heels of the Turk came a confidential messenger from the British Embassy, requesting the latest details, and, when questioned by the commissary, this man admitted that he had in the first instance called to see me at the Grand Hotel.

"In a word, Miss Talbot, I had suspected the existence of the negotiations, which your brother's smart piece of work this morning has confirmed."

Whilst they were talking Fairholme took Daubeney on one side, and with Brett's permission gave him a detailed account of the whole affair.

The Honorable James Daubeney was delighted to be mixed up in this international imbroglio. He told the earl that the Blue Bell was at his disposal at any moment of the day or night she might be required, and it was evident that Daubeney, if nothing else, was a man of action, and his yacht might become very useful.

He had hardly quitted the hotel when a waiter announced that a jeune Feancais wished to see Mr. Brett.

"Show him up," said the barrister, and a moment later Talbot entered. He stood near the door twiddling his hat in his hand until the waiter had gone. Then he told them what had happened since he took up his quarters at the Hotel des Jolies Femmes.

"When I reached there," he said, "I was under the impression that Gros Jean and the Turks were in bed. I hired my room; sent my tin box there, and then settled myself in the cafe to smoke cigarettes and read these vile Marseilles newspapers until lunch time. You may judge my surprise when I saw the three Turks and Gros Jean come out into the street and ask the way to the post-office.

A FORTUNATE GIRL.

Thirty million dollars, just because she was beautiful!

And a poor girl—working girl—got it; not because she was beautiful only, but because she was a poor working girl and also because she is the most beautiful working girl in all Austria-Hungary.

The girl is Ilona Vardis. She is 20 years old, and until she became a great heiress she worked in a fancy goods shop in Budapest, the Hungarian city so famous throughout the world for the beauty of its women. Ilona's parents were of the great masses, and nowhere are social distinctions more closely drawn than in Austria-Hungary. Ilona had to toil twelve hours a day in the shop, and if she dreamed of the fairy prince who seemed beyond reach she did not allow it to interfere with her work. Though she earned only $5.20 a week, that is good pay for a shop girl in Hungary, and her parents needed the money to help keep the pot boiling. The great event in Ilona's life which meant the change in the whole story of her life came two years ago when a rich old man, Jean Kronyl, entered the shop to buy some needles. Like many other men, he was fascinated by her beauty, and he came there again and again, each time buying something as a pretext for his visit.

Miss Ilona Vardis.

Ilona did not know he was rich, for he wore paper cuffs and collars and a shabby coat. He was old, with deeply furrowed forehead and unkempt hair. Neither Ilona or any other girl in the shop knew that he was Kronyl, the great millionaire, who owned vast quantities of real estate. Kronyl made discreet inquiries through detectives, and found that Ilona was as good as she was beautiful; and then began a remarkable quest. He travelled all over Hungary modestly. Quietly he poked around in obscure corners of Budapest, and he even went to Vienna.

He had few friends, and they did not know the object of his journey, which did not leak out until after his death. The object was to find the prettiest working girl in Austria-Hungary; for, having no near relatives of his own, he had then and there decided to find the fairest of all working girls and make her the heir to his vast fortune. For twe years he prosecuted his search, and then when he died he left a will bequeathing all that he possessed to the beautiful young shop girl. And now she is the richest heiress in Europe; and if she has not been wooed by all the eligible men she soon will be courted by most of them.

Kronyl's reason, as given in his will for his strange bequest, was that he wished to enable the prettiest shop girl to marry whomever she desired; for he said that it was unfair that she should be deprived of a suitable husband for lack of a owry.

SACRIFICED TO SCIENCE.

Many Animals Killed Every Year in the Pasteur Institute.

At the Pasteur Institute, Paris, France, a scarcity of guinea pigs has almost paralyzed certain branches of research since last June. Every year at least 20,000 guinea pigs are sacrificed to the insatiable thirst for new scientific knowledge on the part of the scientists at the Pasteur Institute.

The institute possesses a guinea pig farm out in the country near Garaches, where some 10,000 guinea pigs are bred each year, at an average cost of 12 cents per head. The remaining guinea pigs are bought from dealers at about 25 cents each. Last year, however, the farm failed to produce its usual number, much to the regret of the ardent scientists.

More than 20,000 mice, 15,000 rabbits, 10,000 rats, 500 monkeys of all descriptions and sizes, 400 dogs, 400 to 500 chickens, the same number of pigeons, a hundred cats, 50 goats, a hundred sheep, a hundred horses, a score of geese, and about 50 pigs—in all some 50,000 animals—are sacrificed yearly on the altar of science at the Pasteur Institute.

THERE'S no mistaking the expression of a man whose farm is well "improved." He looks as prosperous as he feels.

It isn't the size of a place that counts most, nor its actual dollars-and-cents value. It's rather that "well-kept," thrifty appearance; the appearance that makes you think of fat stock, and well-filled barns, and comfortable, contented living.

Neat, permanent improvements go further in giving a farm this appearance than any other feature.

Concrete Is The Ideal Material

for such improvements. It is neat, harmonizing with its surroundings in the country. Everlasting, it cannot be injured by fire, frost, wind or lightning. Age—instead of causing it to decay—actually makes it stronger.

Concrete never needs repair—first cost is last cost. New improvements can be added year after year with less expense than would be required to keep wooden structures in repair.

Concrete walks, feeding floors, dairy-barns, ice-houses, root-cellars, well-curbing, fence posts, silos—which of these does your farm need most? Whatever you want to build, it's best to build it of concrete.

Do you want to know more about this subject of permanent farm improvements? Then write for your copy of

"What The Farmer Can Do With Concrete."

It's a book of 160 pages, telling how other farmers have used the "handy material" to good advantage. Published to sell at 50c. a copy, it is now being offered free to all farmers who write for it. Address

The people can always obtain what they want if they want it bad enough and are persistent enough in their appeals till they obtain that for which they ask. If they want a Live Board of Trade they can have it. They have only to ask loud enough and long enough.

That Ontario has 298,347 acres of orchards, 24,384 acres of small fruits, and 57,982 acres of gardens is shown by the report of the bureau of industries for the Province of Ontario for 1910 which has just been issued. The total number of acres under crop in 1910 was 9,725,684, as compared with 9,578,323 in 1909. The total value of the crop for 1910 was $175,115,742, an increase of $4,000,000 more than that of 1909.

In this country, where fatal railroad accidents are a matter of almost daily happening, it is a remarkable contrast that is presented by the official figures of railroads. During the past year there were but three accidents to British trains attended with loss of life, the total number of fatalities being but fourteen. For the seven years preceding the average of killed in railroad accidents was but 23.

As will be seen by a communication in another column, and ex-bandsman has conceived the idea of the citizens assisting to provide the band with a new uniform and suggests methods of raising the money for that purpose. We wish to state that we are heartily in sympathy with this or any movement that will help the band and help the town. We are only too willing at all times to make public any suggestions that our citizens would like to make, and our only regret is that we have not many more citizens who are willing to sit down and do a little hard thinking as to methods of advancing the best interest of our town. Come, get your shoulders to the wheel and everybody boost.

Quite a few Presbyterians and a few Methodist churches have voted heavily against union. People have been wondering what these churches would do provided union carried throughout the country. Would they be satisfied, or would it mean the formation of another church? Or will union be considered at all if it is not almost unanimous? Local conditions, however, are having a very marked effect on the vote in some places. Perhaps in the older settled parts union is not so necessary, but what about the new settlements or the rural districts where there are only a few score of people? Should they be forced to keep up three or four churches when one would be more successful? And to the heathen mind what a disturbing influence there must be when several denominations are struggling for converts to their particular churches and beliefs. In missionary work alone the value of union, in our opinion, cannot be over estimated.

NEWSPAPER PROFITS—The Watford Guide-Advocate in a recent issue contained the following pointed remark on subscriptions. The experience of other local weeklies is again verified. 'We wish to confide a secret to our readers. It is this:—If a man pays his subscription to the weekly promptly in advance, and everything is favorable the publisher will probably make 10 or 15 per cent. profit on that dollar. If it is not paid promptly and he has to spend something for postage etc., he does not make more than 5c. profit on each subscription and sometimes if it is a year or two behind, he makes less than nothing. The big city papers don't make anything on their subscriptions but their advertising rates are high and they come out alright. The home paper is the same now that it was when butter was 10c. a lb. and eggs 8c. a dozen and if you ever hear of an editor getting rich, lay it down as a sure thing that he didn't get it from the profits of his subscription list."

As they grow older they are made to lie out of doors at night with no clothes on, sometimes for a week or so at a stretch. The consequence is that either they die or become so hardened as to be able to go naked in any weather without the slightest discomfort.

The aforesaid James Atkinson came to his death, February 18, 1912, at Clandeboye, from injuries struck by a snowplow, about 120 rods south of Clandeboye crossing on the L. H. & B. division of the G. T. R. We feel that we must severely censure the company for their lact of promptness in securing medical aid in this case. We must also express our disapproval of the conduct of the conductor of train No. 31, on February 22, in refusing to go to the aid of the injured man, leaving him to be picked up by the section foreman and one helper."

Mr. Thos. Rosser of Denfield is spending a few days with his sister, Mrs. E. McKenzie.—Several of our farmers delivered horses at Ilderton last Tuesday, purchased by Mr. Doyle of Exeter.—Mrs. H. Simpson, who has been in a very low state of health for some time past, is improving under the care of Dr. Banting.—Mrs. Jas. Atkinson is spending a few days in London on business.—Mr. E. McKenzie spent Monday in London.—The A. Y. P. A., in connection with St. James' Church, was addressed by Rev. Dean Doherty of Hensall on Lent—What it is and how to observe it—and was greatly appreciated by those present.—Miss Myrtle Simpson had to lay off duty as teacher for a few days owing to illness.—Mr. Joseph McIlthargey, while shoveling coal at the station, had the misfortune to have a piece strike him in the eye, consequently he is suffering with a very sore eye. —Mr. Liddicott, missionary, addressed the congregation in the Methodist church on Sunday last.

BIDDULPH.

Death of John McFalls.—Another of the early pioneers and worthy residents of Biddulph has answered the great end of his creation and passed to the better world. We refer to the demise of John McFalls of the 3rd concession of Biddulph, who died on Wednesday of last week, at the great age of 88 years, 8 months and 4 days. The deceased had been in feeble health for some time, but other than the natural infirmities he displayed no signs of the approaching dissolution—in fact he was walking around fifteen minutes before the end came. Mr. McFalls was a native of Ireland, having been born in the County of Derry in the year 1823. He came to Canada with his parents just seven years later, first settling in the Township of Biddulph, and where he has resided continuously ever since. Deceased was a man of more than ordinary intelligence, and that intelligence was in no-wise displayed in a selfish manner. He always took a deep interest in matters pertaining to the welfare of the township in which he lived and served faithfully and well for many years at its council board, first as councillor and then for many years he filled the office of reeve, and it may be said that none left a better municipal career than he. He was a man among men and his death will be deeply regretted, and the friends who had known him for a life time will mourn for him the most. The example of his consistent daily life, his sterling qualities and the memory of his kindly deeds will always be to them an incentive to live better and truer lives. He was a member of the Presbyterian church and in politics a staunch Conservative. The deceased is survived by five sons and three daughters—Alexander of Lucan; Robt. of London; John, Oscar and Albert of Biddulph; Mrs. Boyle of Centralia; Mrs. Lintott of St. Thomas, and Mrs. Chas. Atkinson of London. Mrs McFalls predeceased her husband about 21 years. The funeral took place on Friday to St. James' Cemetery.

A WOMAN'S GOOD LOOKS

Depend on her general health and freedom from pain. Many a woman looks old before her time because of those irregularities which are essentially feminine. Starting from early womanhood, she suffers from frequently recurring derangements that upset her womanly health. If she be beautiful she grows into that mellow age without wrinkles and crowfeet about the eyes or the blue circles underneath. It is invariably the rule that such women suffer little, or not at all, from womanly derangements which sap the health and leave in the face the tell-tale story of pain and suffering. Dr. R. V. Pierce, the famous specialist in the diseases of women, found a prescription in his early practice that soothed the organism peculiar to womanhood—oiled the machinery, as it were, of the human system—and helped the woman to pass those painful periods that scar-lined and aged her face. This remedy became the well-known Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that has benefited thousands of women and saved them from misery and suffering at different periods in life.

MRS. PIERCE.

MRS. HARKLY E. PIERCE, of 244 Bright Street, Sarnia, Ont., writes: "I am now a well woman after suffering for three years and doctoring with several different doctors, each one saying it was something different, and the last one, after putting me through a thorough examination, said I was suffering from a growth, which, in time, would result in cancer, and said I would not live more than two years if not operated upon right away. I became hopelessly discouraged but would not consent to the operation as I was too weak and too much afraid, but at last, through the advice of a friend, I tried Dr. Pierce's medicines, and after using two bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I immediately felt a change. I also used two boxes of 'Healing Suppositories' and eight boxes of 'Lotion Tablets,' and can safely praise the name of Dr. Pierce's medicines to all who suffer from any female disease, for these medicines are all they are claimed to be, and I hope will help others as they have helped me."

Wonderful Nervous System

EARLY INDISCRETIONS AND EXCESSES HAVE UNDERMINED YOUR SYSTEM

The nerves control all actions of the body so that anything that debilitates them will weaken all organs of the system. Early Indiscretions and Excesses have ruined thousands of promising young men. Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, specks before the eyes with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, bashful, debilitating dreams, sediment in urine, pimples on the face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careworn expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, premature decay, bone pains, hair loose, etc.

Free to Stock and Poultry Raisers

We will send, absolutely free, for the asking, postpaid, one of our large sixty-four page books on the common diseases of stock and poultry. Tells you how to feed all kinds of heavy and light horses, colts and mares milch cows, calves and fattening steers, also how to keep and feed poultry so that they will lay as well in winter as in summer. No farmer should be without it.

NOW is the time to use Royal Purple Stock Specific At a cost of only two-thirds of a cent per day per animal it will increase it 25 per cent. in value. It permanently cures Bots, Colic, Worms, Skin Diseases and Debility. Restores run-down animals to plumpness and vigor. It will increase the milk yield three to five lbs. per cow per day and make the milk richer. Royal Purple is not a stock food. There is no filler used in its manufacture, and we import from Europe all the seeds, herbs, barks, etc., and grind them on our own premises. Therefore we can guarantee it to you as being absolutely pure. We do not use cheap filler to make up a large package. We give you the best condition powder ever put on the market in a concentrated form. A tablespoon levelled off once a day is sufficient for a full grown animal. It prevents disease, keeps your animals in perfect health, and is absolutely harmless. It makes six weeks old calves as large as ordinary calves at 10 weeks. You can develop six pigs ready for market in just one month's less time than you can possibly do without it at a cost of only $1.50, saving you a month's work and food. A 50c package will last a horse 70 days. A $1.50 pail or air-tight tin containing four times as much as a 50c package will last an animal 280 days. If you have never used it try it on the poorest animal you have on your place and watch results. If it does not produce better results than anything you have ever used or give you satisfaction, we will refund your money. Andrew Wegrich, of Wainfleet, Ont., says that he tried it on one cow, weighed her milk on the 16th, 17 lbs., on the 29th she gave 23 lbs. Dan McEwen, Canada's greatest horse trainer, says: "I have fed Royal Purple to The Eel and all my racehorses for four years. They have never been off their feed. Your cough powder works like magic."

Mr. Tom Smith, trainer for the Hon. Adam Beck, says: "We had a mare in our stables last fall belonging to Miss Cleuston, of Montreal. We could not feed her any bran on account of scouring. We commenced using your Royal Purple Stock Specific. The results were wonderful. We found after using it three weeks we could feed her bran or any other soft feed and she actually took on 25 lbs. during that time."

Mrs. Wm. Burnham, of Sandford, Ont., says: "I fed your Poultry Specific to 32 hens during the winter and sometimes got as many as two dozen eggs per day in February and March."

THE BOUNDARY SETTLEMENT

Premier Whitney Announced Terms of Dominion Government's Order

Sir James Whitney announced in the Legislature the results of an order delivered by the Dominion Government, giving the Province running rights through her sister Province, and certain parcels of tax-free land on the Nelson River and along the Hudson Bay itself. Sir James Whitney briefly explained the Federal order before reading its text. Approach to Hudson Bay is gained by a five-mile strip of land running from the proposed new boundary of Manitoba to the Nelson River, and terminating in a half-mile strip of land along the eastern shore of the Nelson River and the Hudson Bay. Provision is hereby made for railway terminals, docks, and elevators; but the extent of these strips along the river and bay must not be greater than ten miles.

Access is thus given to Hudson Bay for the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway; and should this railway desire to extend its terminal facilities to Fort Churchill, an additional right of way 200 feet in width from Nelson River to the nearest available point on the Hudson Bay Railway is granted. The T. and N. O. would then be granted running rights to Fort Churchill for the remaining distance over the Hudson Bay line by the Dominion authorities.

The strip from the boundary to the Nelson River will be transferred to Ontario either by grant or by statute upon the Provincial Government making known the location preferred, providing that location is not more than fifty miles from the shore of Hudson Bay at any point.

For the selection of these lands Ontario is allowed a period of five years.

HON. EDWARD BLAKE DEAD.

Ontario Loses a Distinguished Native-Born Son.

A despatch from Toronto says: Hon. Edward Blake, K.C., LL.D., died at his home, 449 Jarvis street, shortly before 7 o'clock on Friday night after a lingering illness. About two weeks ago Mr. Blake's condition took a change for the worse. He sank rapidly, and Friday afternoon it became apparent that the end was near. Dr. Wm. Goldie, who was in attendance, summoned the members of the family to the bedside of the distinguished Canadian. Mr. Blake lost consciousness about half an hour before death. As he breathed his last he was surrounded by his wife, Mr. Hume Blake, K.C., a son, Mrs. (Prof.) G. M. Wrong, a daughter, and Dr. Goldie. Mr. Samuel Blake, another son, is at present in England, and was advised of his father's decease by cable.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

WHERE "PREFERRED" AND COMMON STOCKS DIFFER.

A Very Important Medium of Investment—Comes Ahead of Common as Regards Assets and Dividends—Usually No Voting Power—Only an Equity, However, Not as High Class Investment as Bonds—Classes of Preferred Shares.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible, of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor.")

To the uninitiated the distinction between shares and bonds is confused by a similarity of terms. In England the term "stock" refers to what we know as "debentures" or "bonds"—usually those issued by a municipality or government, although there are several unimportant points of difference. The term "stock" here usually refers to what the English call "shares"—which term has been superceded in the States, and to a large extent here, by the former. Then, to add to the confusion, there is a security known as debenture stock, and there are other terms more calculated to confuse than elucidate.

Last week, the expression, "preferred stock," was used. This is a form of security which cannot be passed over in the consideration of investments. While what is known as "ordinary," or "common," stock has long been known to finance, "preferred," or "preference," stock is a comparatively recent invention. During the financial crisis of a generation ago the railways were hard put to finance. They had no property which they could mortgage and issue bonds on and their common stock capital was already too large and selling at too low a price to make it worth while selling it to investors. So Necessity produced the "preference" share.

This security, like common stock, is but an equity coming after the bonds, but it is preferred as to assets and dividends, and therefore comes ahead of the common, or any other class of stock. Generally speaking, a preferred stock carries a fixed dividend, which, in the majority of cases does not vary much from 7 per cent. (seldom higher, but in many cases lower). As a rule, however, preferred shares do not—as do the common shares of a company—carry any voting power. That is, the preferred shareholders have no vote for directors, and therefore, no say in the management, or in shaping the policies of the company. When this class of stock was invented it took rapid hold, and now almost every joint stock company has for convenience of financing a certain part of its capital in the form of preference stock.

This class of stock has now become a favorite form of business men's investment. Involving, as it does, no promise to return its face value at any time, and with its dividends depending wholly on the ability of the company to earn them, preferred stock cannot, as a class, rank as high an investment as would a bond; but there is always more chance of an advance in price, just as there is more chance of a break.

However, preferred shares cover quite a variety of classes of themselves, and so the above description can be taken only as a very general outline of the whole. For example, the dividend on preferred shares does, of course, depend upon earnings, and in the case of the usual class of preferred shares, if the dividend is not paid that is an end of the matter until the company again gets into a position to pay a return to the preferred shareholders. Such shares merely involve a promise—if they are say 7 per cent preferred shares—to pay seven per cent. on the preferred before anything can be paid on the common. Where the shares, however, are "cumulative," it means that not only are they preferred, but that if the dividend is not paid in any one year it is still due the shareholder, and if, as in the case of Dominion Steel cumulative preferred shares, the divdend were not paid for six years, there is a small matter of 42 per cent. of accumulated dividends coming to the preferred shareholders before anything could be paid on the common. This feature, while most pleasing to the preferred shareholders of the Dominion Steel Company, meant that until the $42 a share was "forked out" to them the common shareholders would receive nothing. And they had no chance of receiving anything until not only was the $42 paid, but the $7 for the year then current was earned, as well as sufficient for any small dividend—it has been but 4 per cent. so far in the company's history—which they might receive. So the cumulative feature is a very important consideration for the prospective investor in preferred shares, but should be looked at askance by anyone considering the common stock of such a company unless they are prepared to take chances.

Next week other features of preferred shares will be taken up by Investor.

CHINESE TROOPS MUTINY

Thrilling Experiences in Pekin.—Missionaries Holding Out in Compounds

A despatch from Pekin says: A mutiny of Yuan Shi Kai's soldiers started in Pekin at 8 o'clock on Thursday night. Many of the native's have been killed or wounded, but so far as is known all foreigners are safe. The Legation quarter is crowded, but the missionaries are holding forth in their own compounds. When the outbreak occurred it was estimated that 2,000 soldiers took part, but since then the mutineers have been augmented by large numbers of the police, coolies and loafers. The Legations know no reason for the outbreak. The idea is expressed that Yuan Shi Kai's soldiers began the trouble when they learned that he intended to leave the capital for Nanking. The soldiers are everywhere looting from house to house. They have not spared even the foreign residences within one block of the Legation quarter.

Fires were started in various sections, and territory of more than a mile in area has been burned. This stretches from the Forbidden City to the building of the Chinese Foreign Board, where Yuan Shi Kai resides, the flames reaching within half a mile of the Legations. The quarters occupied by the Nanking delegates who came here to notify Premier Yuan of his election as President have been enveloped in flames. Much reckless shooting has occurred, and one shell, which fell into the compound of the American Legation, tore through a tent of one of the soldiers of the recently-arrived reinforcements, but did not explode. Refugees at the American Legation had thrilling experiences as they traversed the streets in which the Chinese troops were engaged in looting. The soldiers did not attempt to interfere with them, but there was great danger from flying bullets and fire brands, which were flourished in all directions. Mr. W. D. and Mrs. Straight saved their records and valuables, but deserted a richly-furnished house, which was given over to the looters.

Queen-Mother, Princess Royal and Princess Louise Victims.

A despatch from London says: Many thousands of persons in London are victims of influenza, among the latest sufferers being Queen Alexandra, Princess Victoria and Princess Louise, all of whom were prevented by the disease from attending the funeral services of the Duke of Fife, whose body was placed temporarily in the Royal vault at Windsor on Wednesday.

A WOMAN DOCTOR.

Was Quick to Discover What Was Doing the Mischief.

A lady tells of a bad case of coffee poisoning (Tea is equally harmful, because it contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee) and tells it in a way so simple and straightforward that literary skill could not improve it.

"I had neuralgic headaches for 12 years," she says, "and have suffered untold agony. When I first began to have them I weighed 140 pounds, but they brought me down to 110.

"I went to many doctors and they gave me only temporary relief. So I suffered on, till one day, a woman doctor advised me to drink Postum. She said I looked like I was coffee poisoned.

"So I began to drink Postum, and gained 15 pounds in the first few weeks and am still gaining, but not so fast as at first. My headaches began to leave me after I had used Postum about two weeks—long enough, I expect, to get the coffee poison out of my system.

"Now that a few months have passed since I began to use Postum, I can gladly say that I never know what a neuralgic headache is like any more, and it was nothing but Postum that relieved me.

"Before I used Postum I never went out alone; I would get bewildered and would not know which way to turn. Now I go alone and my head is as clear as a bell. My brain and nerves are stronger than they have been for years." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

THE WEARY SMILE THAT COVERS PAIN

Women are Themselves to Blame for Much of Their Suffering.

Women are weak, yet under a smile they will try to hide pain and suffering that any man could not bear patiently. If women would only remember that their frequent failures of health arise from feeble or impure blood their lives would be smoother and they would longer retain their natural charm.

When the blood fails then begin those dragging backaches and headaches; unrefreshing sleep that causes dark lines under the eyes; dizziness; fits of depression; palpitation or rapid fluttering of the heart; hot rashes and indigestion. Then the cheeks grow pale, the eyes dull and the complexion blemished.

Women should know that much of this suffering is needless and can be promptly remedied. Purify and enrich the blood through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and your suffering will vanish. Thousands of women know that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have brightened their lives by making the new, good blood of health, and so toning up all the vital organs into healthy, vigorous action. Here is an instance from among the many. Miss Cora Cornell, St. Catharines, Ont., says: "Ever since the age of fourteen I have suffered terribly with pains in my back, and severe headaches. I was also much troubled with indigestion and had to be extremely careful as to my diet, and sometimes did not feel like eating at all. Some two years ago the headaches became so bad that I had to give up my position, which was clerking in a store, where, of course, I was constantly on my feet. I took a position in an office, where I could be seated most of the time, but even then I suffered terribly most of the time. As the medicine I had been taking did not help me I finally decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I got a supply, and soon felt they were helping me and I continued taking the pills for several months until I felt perfectly well. Although my doctor advised me not to go back to my old position, I decided to do so, and have not felt any ill effect. I never have backache now, seldom a headache, and all traces of the indigestion have disappeared. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I hope this letter will help someone who suffers as I used to."

PUNISHED AS A SPY.

Some indignation has been expressed in Great Britain at the sentence of three-and-a-half years' detention in a German fortress which was passed upon Mr. Bertrand Stewart, a London solicitor, at Leipzig, on February 3, after a four days' trial before the Supreme Court of the German Empire. When the sentence was pronounced, Mr. Stewart, it is said, protested vigorously, saying: "I am innocent, and desire that everybody in England shall know it." The chief complaints are that the trial was in camera, and that apparently Mr. Stewart was condemned on the sole evidence of a Belgian informer, alleged to have been convicted of various offences. In a letter to the Times, however, Mr. Stewart's father, Mr. Charles Stewart, himself a lawyer, has said: "I desire to express emphatically my respect for the judgment of the Supreme Court of an enlightened and friendly country." He also deprecates the fomentation of Anglo-German ill-will on the subject. "My son's actions," he writes, "which have been grievously misunderstood and misrepresented to the Court, are no proof at all of anti-German feeling among the people of England."

SOOTHING MIXTURES DANGEROUS TO CHILDREN

Mixtures sold under the name "soothing" are usually dangerous to the life of the little ones whom they are supposed to help. They contain opiates and narcotics and any sleep prompted through their use is false sleep—to be plainer, the little one is drugged into insensibility. The only absolutely guaranteed remedy for little ones—the only remedy backed by the guarantee of a government analyst to contain no opiates, narcotics or other harmful drugs is Baby's Own Tablets. They cannot possibly do harm—they always do good. Thousands of mothers have learned their value. They help not only the newborn babe, but also the growing child. Stomach and bowel troubles; worms; colds, simple fevers are all banished by them and they promote that refreshing sleep so helpful to little ones. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup is an unparalleled remedy for colds, coughs, influenza and diseases of the throat and lungs. The fame of the medicine rests upon years of successful use in eradicating these affections, and in protecting mankind from the fatal ravages of consumption, and as a neglected cold leads to consumption, one cannot be too careful to fight it in its early stages. Bickle's Syrup is the weapon, use it.

Mr. Brown—"What is it, dear?"

Mrs. Brown—"She turns around and looks back every time we pass on the street!"

Mr. Brown—"How do you know she does?"

"I'm looking for something really nice for a young man," said a young and pretty shopper. "Why don't you look in the mirror?" asked the gallant shopman. And she was so flustered that he managed to sell her four different things that she did not want before she knew what she was doing.

C. MATTESEN HAS HAD RHEUMATISM ALL HIS LIFE.

But Dodd's Kidney Pills Have Benefited Him so Much He Recommends Them to Others—Why They Always Cure Rheumatism.

Holberg, B. C., February 26 (Special).—That Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure Rheumatism has been proved again and again. Where the dread disease is making its first inroads into the system the cure is quick and complete. Where the rheumatism is of longer standing it takes longer treatment, but the result is always the same. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure. Probably the hardest test Dodd's Kidney Pills have ever been given is in the case of Mr. C. Mattesen of this place. It is best stated in his own words:—

"I have been troubled with Rheumatism all my life," Mr. Mattesen states, "but I am happy to tell you that I have received so much benefit from Dodd's Kidney Pills that I can recommend them to others."

Here is a case of the longest possible standing. But Dodd's Kidney Pills will surely cure it. Why? Because uric acid in the blood is the cause of rheumatism, and Dodd's Kidney Pills take the uric acid out of the blood by making the kidneys do their proper work.

SENT TO ASYLUM.

Was Deaf and Dumb, and Thought Him Insane.

A startling story of a man consigned to Nottingham (England) Lunatic Asylum simply because he was deaf and dumb, reported to the Notts County Council, led to Mr. R. M. Knowles issuing a grave warning to magistrates to take greater care that patients they certify for the asylum are really insane..

"Recently," he said, "a man was sent to the asylum from a distant part of the country. The medical facts were so glaringly deficient, simply stating he was deaf and dumb, that when the report was sent to the Lunacy Commissioners in due course they ordered the man's immediate release.

"The sending of a person to an asylum was a serious matter," he said, "and although the magistrates are in a great measure guided by doctors' opinions, they must take the utmost care to satisfy themselves that the person alleged insane was really a proper person to be detained." He declined to give the names of the doctor and the magistrate concerned.

Always Serviceable.—Most pills lose their properties with age. Not so with Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. The pill mass is so compounded that their strength and effectiveness is preserved and the pills can be carried anywhere without fear of losing their potency. This is a quality that few pills possess. Some pills lose their power, but not so with Parmelee's. They will maintain their freshness and potency for a long time.

A PORT OFTEN CROWDED.

In a seaport town in the north of England there is a wealthy but illiterate man who owns many vessels, and follows their course over the seas by aid of a large atlas and a ten-horse-power magnifying-glass.

"I've just had a letter," he said to a neighbor, "from one of my captains, and he tells me he's been in a fearful storm. I'll read you from this letter what puzzles me. He says:

"'The waves rose like mountains. We were driven before the wind to the danger of our lives and put into great jeopardy.'

"What I want to know," said the shipowner, "is, where is Great Jeopardy? It's somewhere in the Mediterranean, but I can't find it on this map anywhere."

SLIPPER FOR STAIR CLIMBING

Thick Soles Eases Strain on the Heart.

To make calls on dwellers in top floor flats which are without elevators is a trial to people with weak hearts. To minimize the strain of stair-climbing, Dr. Schurig, a German army surgeon, has, so the Munich Medical Week says, devised a slipper which does away with the exhaustion.

This new slipper, which is to be worn on one foot only, does not differ from other slippers, except in one particular. It has a very thick sole of about three inches. Each step being about six inches high, the energy needed for passing from one step to a higher one is reduced by half, the doctor calculated.

It must be noted, of course, that both feet have to go on every step. The slipper is light, easily slipped over the shoe, which is also collapsible, and on the wearer reaching the level can be easily put into his pocket.

John—"So you paid a visit to your rich uncle, Tom, and he seemed glad to see you?" Tom—"Yes. I'm almost afraid the old chap has lost his money."

It is Wise to Prevent Disorder.—Many causes lead to disorders of the stomach and few are free from them. At the first manifestation that the stomach and liver are not performing their functions, a course of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills should be tried, and it will be found that the digestive organs will speedily resume healthy action. Laxatives and sedatives are so blended in these pills that no other preparation could be so effective as they.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

"There is one question I want to ask you, George, dear," said the dear girl who had promised to merge her future with him. "When we are married, will you expect me to bake my own bread?" "You may do as you like about it, darling," replied the diplomatic candidate for matrimonial honors, "but I certainly shall insist upon your not baking mine."

Mr. J. E. Arsenault, a Justice of the Peace, and station master at Wellington, on the Prince Edward Island Railway, says:

"Four years ago I slipped in the station and fell on a freight truck, sustaining a bad cut on the front of my leg. I thought this would heal, but instead of doing so it developed into a bad ulcer, and later into a form of eczema which spread very rapidly and also started on the other leg. Both legs became so swollen and sore that I could only go about my work by having them bandaged. My doctor said I must stop work and lay up.

"After six months of this trouble I consulted another doctor, but with no better result. I tried all the salves, liniments and lotions I heard of, but instead of getting better I got worse.

"This was my condition when I got my first box of Zam-Buk. Greatly to my delight that first box gave me relief. I continued to apply it to the sores, and day by day they got better. I could see that at last I had got hold of something which would cure me, and in the end it did.

"It is now over a year since Zam-Buk worked a cure in my case, and there has been no return of the eczema."

Such is the nature of the great cures which Zam-Buk is daily effecting. Purely herbal in composition, this great balm is a sure cure for all skin diseases, cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, blood-poisoning, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflated patches, cuts, burns and bruises. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., upon receipt of price.

The entertainment given in the James street Methodist church on Monday night last by the London Male Quartette, Miss Edna L. Smith, and Mr. R. Phillips, was greeted with a large patronage. A program consisting of seventeen numbers together with several encores, was rendered, and many of the numbers were much appreciated. The piano solos by Mr. Phillips were admirably rendered and were highly pleasing to all in attendance.

A junior hockey team drove to Hensall on Monday evening to play a game with the team of that place. At half time the score stood 1-0, in favor of Exeter. At this juncture Hensall wanted to substitute two fast senior men for two of their weak chaps. This, of course, the visitors would not stand for and the game came to an end. There is no comment needed, and there is only one conclusion to be drawn. If that is a sample of the sportsmanship of Hensall hockey club the quicker they quit the game the better.

Died in the West—Word was received here last week that Mrs. Walter Whyte had passed away at her home in Hamiota on Sunday afternoon after a lingering illness of five or six months. Mrs. Whyte was a daughter of the late Wm. Sillery, of Hibbert, and was twice married. Her first husband was the late Mr. F. Bickell, of Staffa, by whom she left three children all grown up. She also leaves a sorrowing husband, two brothers, Robert Sillery of Exeter, and Richard, of Hibbert, and seven sisters, Mrs. R. Sadler, Mrs. W. Sadler and Mrs. J. Livingstone of Staffa; Mrs. D. Hill, of Hibbert and Mrs. Kidd of Winnipeg. Deceased was 52 years of age and was a very highly respected resident of Staffa for years, where the news of her death was received with sorrow by all.

An exchange says.—A man who was too economical to subscribe for a paper sent his little boy to borrow the copy taken by his neighbor. In his haste the boy ran over a $4 stand of bees and in ten minutes he looked like a warty summer squash. His father ran to his assistance, and failing to notice a barbed wire fence, ran into that, cutting a handful of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a four dollar pair of pants. The old cow took advantage of the gap in the fence and got into the corn field and killed herself eating green corn. Hearing a racket, the wife ran out upset a four-gallon churn full of rich cream into a basket of little chickens, drowning the entire hatch. In her haste she dropped a $25 set of false teeth. The baby having been left alone, crawled through the spilled milk and into the parlor, ruining a brand new $20 carpet. During the excitement the eldest daughter ran away with the hired man, the dog broke up eleven setting hens and the calves got out and chewed the tails off'n four fine shirts on the clothes line. (Now is the time to subscribe.)

DIED.—Word was received here last week of the death in Winnipeg of a former resident of Exeter, Mr. John Ranton, who with his brother Mr. Geo. Ranton of Brantford, conducted a general store business here about twenty-five years ago. Mrs. Ranton is very seriously ill.

EARLY HATCH.—Mr. Frank Coates has an early brood of chicken. Two weeks ago he was surprised to find a bunch of fine little fellows running around, and reports that they are all doing well.

Mr. and Mrs. Camm who bought Mr. D. Mack's house, are moving in this week from Usborne. We welcome them as citizens

A man cannot do two things at a time A woman will broil a steak and see that the coffee does not boil over, and watch the cat that she does not steal the remnant of meat on the kitchen table, and dress the youngest boy and set the table and see to the toast, and stir the oatmeal and give the orders to the butcher and she can do it all at once and not half try.

The Brantford Courier of Tuesday contains the following regarding an Exeter Old Boy, Rev. C. W. Sanders,—"The largest congregation during a period of two years attended St. John's Church on Sunday evening. The rector preached a fine Lenten sermon, based upon the prodigal son. His treatment of this otherwise well worn topic was distinctly new and certainly unusual. The Rev. gentleman is making a name for himself as a preacher of more than ordinary merit, and, while thoroughly orthodox, is inclined to break away somewhat from the beaten track. A large confirmation class was held at the close of evensong."

The following taken from the Crosswell, Mich., paper, has reference to the death of Mrs. Camm, who recently died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. Fletcher,—"Mrs. Camm joined the M. E. Church when she was 14 years old and always lived a christian life till the last. She was a loving mother. She left 56 grand children, 66 great grand children and five great-great-grand children.

ATTEMPT TO WORK THE "SPANISH PRISONER" GAME.

Every once in a while one hears of an attempt to work the 'Spanish Prisoner" game. Mr. James Dignan last week received the customary letter and the printed article. The printed article, arranged so as to appear as though a clipping from a newspaper, contains a supposed account of the arrest of an absconding Russian banker in England for the theft of the money, only $480,000, and for the murder of a man in Spain, to which place he is about to be sent for trial. The letter states that having heard of the honesty of the person to whom the letter is addressed, he asks him to advance the amount of money necessary to cover expenses of his trial, the reward to be the third part of the fortune, that is, $160,000. The reply is to be sent to an address in Spain.

Of course, the whole thing is a fraud and is well-known as such, so that there is little danger of anyone being taken in on the game. Although there must be some dupes or the game would not be carried on so long.

The remaining 900, holding first and second class certificates, will be available after midsummer. But a practical joke isn't it if you are the victim.

The weather conditions have been ideal this week.

Lawyers would probably starve to death if the fool killer wasn't so far behind with his work.

Enthusiasm is one of the most powerful engines of success. Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm.

Mr. J. J. White, who went to Outlook, Sask., about two years ago, has been appointed inspector of homesteads for his district, by the Dominion Government. A good salary goes with the job.

Rev. Dr. Wilkie, a returned missionary from India, gave a most instructive and interesting talk in the Presbyterian church on Friday evening on the work of the church and the life of the people in India. It was regrettable that there was not a larger number present.

The British Exchange Hotel, Goderich, the pioneer hostelry of Huron County, with its many functional events dating back more than half a century, changed hands this week, Mr. Brown of Windsor, being the purchaser. The present proprietor, E. R. Swartz, intends to go west.

Engineer Boyd, G.T.R., surveyor, of Toronto and others, were here Friday and Saturday last making a survey of the land between the Grand Trunk yards and Messrs Harvey Bros. mill, for the purpose of making an estimate of the cost of a siding. If matters can be satisfactorily arranged the proposed siding would be of great convenience, not only to Messrs Harvey Bros. but all down-town shippers, which would constitute the bigger bulk of the shipping trade from this section. Now that the project is on the foot a strong effort should be put forth by those interested to secure this much needed piece of road

BAND BENEFIT—The 'band benefit" at the rink on Monday night was a huge success from every standpoint. The ice was good, the skaters were packed in like fish in a shoal, the galleries were filled with spectators, the evening was pleasant, the music was excellent, the burlesque hockey match between the Bachelors and Merry Widows was ridiculous, which is necessary to a good burlesque, and, in fact, the whole evening was one of pleasure. But best of all the receipts amounted to $50 net which will go at least a third of the way towards buying the uniforms for the band, which is the object aimed at. Now, who is ready with another good suggestion? Keep the ball a-rolling while the rolling is good.

RETURN ENGAGEMENT—The Trustees of the James street church have secured the Royal English Hand Bell Ringers for a return engagement here on Monday night next, March 18th. The entertainments given by them on Tuesday night last was highly pleasing to everybody present and the church was filled. Many who heard them will be pleased to hear them again, but if you missed it last time do not miss the second opportunity. The program will be different from the last, but the price will be the same.

We have printed several lots of stationery for farmers recently. We are glad to receive these orders as it shows a progressive spirit and is another indication of the fact that farmers are beginning to realize that their business requires the same up-to-date methods as any other. Not only this but you can have five hundred sheets of writing paper and envelopes with your name and address nicely printed on them for less than you can buy the same amount of blank stationery. You had better come in and see us about some for yourself next time you are in town.

The timetables for the departmental examinations have been issued, and are being posted in the various schools in the county. The senior high school entrance, the senior public school graduation, model school entrance, and lower school examinations for entrance into the normal schools and faculties of education will be held from June 10 to June 18. This is two weeks earlier than usual. The Huron school entrance into the normal schools, the upper school entrance into faculties of education pass matriculation and honor and scholarship matriculation examination, will commence on June 12 and finish on June 28. The dates are just two weeks earlier than former years. The hot weather is not conducive to good work, and the department have decided to get the work over before July.

HORSE CASE—Magistrate Kay heard a horse case in the Town Hall on Friday last between Dr. Houze of Exeter and Mr. Milton Hooper of Blanshard. It appears that the latter sold the former a horse, the plaintiff claiming that the defendant had guaranteed the animal to be sound and with no bad habits. The horse, however, proved to be a "criber" or "wind sucker" and Dr. Houze entered the action to force the defendant to take the horse back. After hearing the evidence the magistrate decided that the horse should be returned the price refunded, and the defendant pay the court cost; each man to pay his own lawyer. L. H. Dickson appeared for the plaintiff and F. W. Gladman for the defendant.

A FAST GAME OF HOCKEY WON BY EXETER

The hockey fans had a joyful time on Thursday night when Hensall and Exeter played a great game on local ice, the locals winning in extra time by a score of 6 to 5. Considerable interest had been worked up previously owing to the fact that the hockey teams of the two towns had locked horns with some dissatisfaction two or three times this winter, and this game was brought on to see which town had the best team, and Exeter demonstrated the fact that they were on top. It took some time, however, for the boys to get their scoring-gait on, but when they did things went some, and then some more. The first score was in Exeter's favor, but for some reason was disalloyed by the referee, A. Whitesides of Hensall. Hensall then got two in the first half, and two more in the second half before Exeter had notched a permanent count. The home team in quick succession tallied three. Hensall followed with one, and Exeter two more before time was called. 5-5 was then the score, and they played five minutes each way in an endeavor to break the tie. Failing in this they played to sudden death, and the homesters scored one in a minute and half, winning the game. The play was fast all the time. Some good individual work was done, a little fine combination work was indulged in, considable heavy body checking was in order, and a deal of tripping and slashing prevailed, only a little of which was penalized. The players all showed genuine form in spots, and on the whole it must be considered the best game seen on Exeter ice for years. Hensall had a big bunch of fans down for the game, and the enthusiasm ran high on both sides. The players carry a few bruises, and Tommy Carling has a real black eye, but no funerals will result.

The line up,—

A very interesting event took place on Wednesday last at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Finkbeiner of the 7th Concession of Stephen, when their daughter, Miss Rose, became the happy bride of Mr. Edward Fahner, a prosperous young farmer of the 6th concession of the same township. The ceremony was performed at four o'clock by Rev. Burn of the Evangelical church, in the presence of about seventy of the relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The bride, who was given away by her father, was attired in cream silk, while her sister, Miss Maudy, the bridesmaid wore white mull. The groom was assisted by his brother Albert. Miss Mildred Klumpp played the wedding march. The ceremony and congratulations over all partook of a sumptuous supper, served by a bevy of adept and charming young ladies. The evening was pleasantly spent in various amusements. At 10 o'clock Rev. Burns performed the ceremony of christening a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Finkbeiner, being Dorothy Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mallett of Exeter. Mr. and Mrs. Fahner have the best wishes of the Advocate for a long and happy wedded life.

Mr. J. G. Wein, who resides north of here, had the misfortune to lose a valuable mare last week. It appears the young folks had driven the mare to Mr. Ed. Fahner's of the same township, where a gathering of young folks had taken place. The mare was put in the stable with a number of other horses but when the young folks returned they were sadly surprised to find their driver prostrated, with the right hind leg broken and otherwise badly used up by another horse kicking it. The mare was a good one and valued at $160.

Immense quantities of tile and brick have been hauled through the village the past week by farmers living to the west of us. It is said the traffic to the east is the same. Our tile and brick men are happy now, and will be anxious to start the season's work just as soon as the weather permits.

Chas. Fahner has been drawing coal from Centralia the past week to help out our people. Nothing like looking ahead. There may be another cold snap.

The Ladies and Knights of the K.O.T.M. met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hartzel on Monday night, to the number of about fifty, and spent a very pleasant evening. A program of music, singing, reading, recitations and speeches was given. Mr. Silas Brokenshire occupied the chair in an able manner. After the program all repaired to the well-appointed dining room and sat down to a supper prepared by the ladies. The table was decorated in the colors and emblems of the order; a large wasp nest stood in the centre, representing a bee hive.

Mrs. Wambold is doing as well as can be expected, and it is believed that eventually she will be alright again.

LATER

Death of Mrs. Wambold.—The cold hand of death, which has been busy in our midst of late, has laid hold of another of our esteemed and respected residents. We refer to the demise of Mrs. Joseph Wambold, who passed away about four o'clock yesterday (Wednesday) morning, at the age of 48. Mrs. Wambold had been in very poor health for some time, and on Saturday underwent an operation for the removal of a growth in her head. The operation was a success in every way, but the shock proved too great for her already weakened constitution and she peacefully passed away. The deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Weigand of this place, by whom she is survived, together with her sorrowing husband and three children—one son and two daughters, all whom will have the sympathy of a large circle of friends. The funeral takes place Friday.

This week we must record the death of one of our oldest residents, in the person of Valentine Ritter, who passed away on Wednesday morning, a few minutes after midnight, at the great age of 88 years and 10 months. Deceased had been in his usual health and was around as usual until Saturday last, when he became ill and gradually growing weaker he passed away as above stated. Interment will be made in the Gosfen line Cemetery. The friends of the deceased will have the sympathy of the community in this sad trial. He leaves to mourn his departure his aged widow, one son Albert of North Dakota, and three daughters, Mrs. J. A. Schesser of Prairie View, Kansas, Mrs. Ezra Otterbein and Mrs. Fred Macrae, both of this place.

DASHWOOD

From Another Source

Dr. H. J. Stevens, one of the house surgeons at Victoria Hospital, is suffering from a severe attack of septic poisoning, contracted while operating on a patient. His finger was pierced with a needle, but for some time it did not bother him. The arm, however, began to swell and it was necessary to lance two abscesses, one at the elbow and the other under the shoulder. Dr. Stevens is well known in Dashwood, being a Stephen Township Old Boy. Last year he commanded the steamer Forest City, running from Port Stanley to Cleveland.

REACHED THE SOUTH POLE

Cable From Captain Amundsen Says He Attained the Goal December 14th.

A despatch from London says: Captain Roald Amundsen has discovered the South Pole. Definite news has been received in London, via Christiania, that he reached the Pole between the 14th and 17th of December. December "14 to 17" is taken to mean by experts that when he reached the geographical Pole Amundsen waited three days, taking noon observations so as to accurately determine his position and exclude uncertainty—that is to say, to establish proofs that would be incontrovertible.

The London Chronicle adds: England will wait most anxiously for news of the Scott expedition. Though robbed of its crowning glory, geography and science will undoubtedly profit from it. Captain Amundsen's expedition, which has now ended successfully, was originally planned for the conquest of the north pole, but hearing the news which Peary brought back, Amundsen showed his resource and promptness of decision by at once steaming south to the region which still offered a similar prize. He has won that prize. To England the glory of discovery neither the north nor the south pole has fallen, but in the story of the exploration of the great ice continents this country played a splendid part, and we can join heartily with the whole world to-day in offering to the conqueror and to Norway a meed of praise which is so well deserved. The prize has been finely won. It has also been grandly lost."

FROM THE NORTH COUNTRY

Where the Winters are Cold and the Snows Deep.

Writing from the vicinity David Harum made famous, a man says that he was an habitual coffee drinker, and, although he knew it was doing him harm, (Tea is equally harmful, because it contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee) was too obstinate to give it up, till all at once he went to pieces with nervousness and insomnia, loss of appetite, weakness, and a generally used-up feeling, which practically unfitted him for his arduous occupation, and kept him on a couch at home when his duty did not call him out.

"While in this condition Grape-Nuts food was suggested to me and I began to use it. Although it was in the middle of winter and the thermometer was often below zero, almost my entire living for about six weeks of severe exposure was on Grape-Nuts food with a little bread and butter and a cup of hot water, till I was wise enough to make Postum my table beverage.

"After the first two weeks I began to feel better and during the whole winter I never lost a trip on my mail route, frequently being on the road 7 or 8 hours at a time.

"The constant marvel to me was how a person could do the amount of work and endure the fatigue and hardship as I did, on so small an amount of food. But I found my new rations so perfectly satisfactory that I have continued them—using both Postum and Grape-Nuts at every meal, and often they comprise my entire meal.

"All my nervousness, irritability and insomnia have disappeared and healthy, natural sleep has come back to me. But what has been perhaps the greatest surprise to me is the fact that with the benefit to my general health has come a remarkable improvement in my eye-sight.

"If a good appetite, good digestion, good eye-sight, strong nerves and an active brain are to be desired, I can say from my own experience, use Grape-Nuts and Postum." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

SOME VARIOUS FORMS OF PREFERRED SHARES.

How They Differ From Each Other—Important Points for the Investor Contemplating Stock Investments to Know—How Debenture Stock is Not Stock at all as We Understand the Term.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible, of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

Like many other good things—and bad—there is more than one kind of preferred stock. There is, of course, the ordinary preferred and cumulative preferred stock referred to last week, but there is also a preferred stock which has the advantages of common stock as well as those of preferred stock. Such a stock, for example, is "participating" preferred stock. In the case of the "Soo" railway stocks (Soo being an abreviation for Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie) the preferred shares are "participating." The preferred stock qualifies for its seven per cent. dividends before the common can receive any return; but after the common has received seven per cent. any further profits which might be divided among the shareholders must go to preferred and common shareholders alike. In other words, after the common shareholders receive the same return as the preference shareholders the preference shareholders "participate" in the surplus profits of the company. This is in many ways a very satisfactory form of investment, as it adds to the safety of the preference share the prospects of appreciation (that is the speculative element) that attaches to the common.

Still another form of preferred share which has many of the advantages of the participating share is the "convertible" preferred share. For illustration, let us take that of the F. N. Burt Company, which is listed and well-known on the Toronto Stock Exchange, and whose annual report has recently appeared in this paper. In this case the preferred stock bears 7 per cent. dividends, which must be paid before the common can receive any return. So soon, however, as the shareholder desires, he may turn into the company his preferred shares and receive from them an equal number of shares of common stock.

Not a very sensible exchange, you say: Certainly not, when the common bears a four or five per cent. dividend; but suppose, instead, it were eight or ten per cent. Then, of course, by the simple process of exchanging the shares the old 7 per cent. preferred may be converted into 8 or 10 per cent. common with a corresponding increase in income, though, of course, not of market price, as the fact that the preferred shares are convertible will prevent any great divergence in the market quotations for the two classes of stock.

There is also preference stock which carries voting power, and which has the right to elect certain members to the board, and there are other ingenious kinds of preferred shares calculated to attract the investor who wants a certain amount of safety coupled with a little speculation.

Of an entirely different class, however, is the security known as "debenture stock," which, as part of its name implies, is more in the nature of a bond, though as a general rule, and as sometimes may be inferred by the use of the term in the name, is perpetual. This fact and the fact that it may be subdivided and must be registered in the name of the owner, constitutes the chief similarity between this class of security and a share. If, however, through any cause the debenture stock's interest is in default, the mortgage under which it is secured—for it is in this manner nothing but a special form of bond—will be foreclosed and the holders of the debenture stock will be repaid, as if they were holders of the ordinary mortgage bonds. So debenture stock should not be confused with shares, for the difference between the two is quite as great, if not quite so apparent owing to confusion of names, as between bonds and shares.

These complete the common forms of shares and stocks, and, although one may find many other variations, if one looks hard enough they are by no means usual or important, being chiefly alterations in name rather than form.

FIVE INSTANTLY KILLED.

C. P. R. Passenger Train Collided With Engine Near Ottawa.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Five killed and a score injured, many of them seriously, is the toll of an accident on Friday morning on the Canadian Pacific Railway between Hull and the Union Station here, when about 9.30 a freight train ran into the rear of the Pontiac passenger train, which was backing into the Union Station. There were 34 passengers on the train. In backing up the first-class car was first, and it was the car struck by the oncoming engine of the freight. The impact caused the first-class passenger car to completely telescope the second-class car, over one-half of the latter being demolished. It was in this car that the five were killed. The official statement issued Friday night by the Canadian Pacific Railway officials shows five killed, eleven injured, two of whom are in a serious condition, and a property damage of $3,000. The dead are: John C. Anderson, conductor of the passenger train, Ottawa. Peter Moyles, a retired farmer, Quyon, Que. E. J. Tabor, contractor, Hull. Walton M'Allister, Eardley, Que. Miss Agnes Putnam, 28 years of age, Ottawa.

A MOTHER'S DUTY TO HER DAUGHTER

Her Health Must Be Carefully Guarded as She Comes to Womanhood.

Every mother who calls to mind her own girlhood knows how urgently her daughter is likely to need help and strength during the years between early school days and womanhood. Then it is that growing girls droop, become fragile, bloodless and nervous. Nature is calling for more nourishment than the blood can supply, and signs of distress are plainly evident in dull eyes, pallid cheeks, weak and aching backs, a languid step, fits of depression, nervousness and a dislike for proper food. These signs mean anaemia—that is bloodlessness.

The watchful mother takes prompt steps to give her girl the new, rich blood her weak system is thirsting for by giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, because so many thousands of feeble, anaemic, unhappy girls have been transformed into robust women through the rich, red blood these pills actually make. No other medicine has ever succeeded like them, and thousands of mothers have proved their worth. The case of Miss Marguerite Boisclair, St. Jerome, Que., proves the truth of these statements. Miss Boisclair is sixteen years of age, and says that since the age of thirteen or fourteen she had been afflicted with extreme weakness, and seemed to be going into a decline. The least effort left her weak and breathless, so that she was unable to do any household work. She had no appetite, suffered from terrible headaches, dizziness and sometimes fainting spells. She was under medical treatment, but made absolutely no improvement, in fact seemed to be steadily growing weaker. When her case seemed most hopeless a lady friend advised the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking a few boxes she began to gain new strength, and after the continued use of the pills for about two months she was again as well and strong as ever she had been, and has since enjoyed the best of health.

Sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A COLD WELCOME.

A clergyman in a small town was deploring the fact that none of the couples that came in from the country to be married stopped at his house for the purpose.

Cured of Shingles and Eczema

Mr. J. H. Jarvis, Kingston

By Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Chest Raw, Bleeding and Itchy.

"I just want to say a good word for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In November, 1909, I had what the doctors call shingles and eczema. My chest was raw and bleeding and itchy. I was that way all winter. It was not so bad in the summer. In September it got worse. I had the best doctors treating me, but did me no good, and I was all run down in health. In November, 1910, it got worse again. I sent to you for a sample cake of Cuticura Soap. You sent it to me and I got a box of Cuticura Ointment. I have used two boxes and on the third one it has cured me of shingles and eczema. I am delighted with them and do feel pleased to think I have something I have confidence in. Should anyone be suffering as I did, I hope that they will do as I did, and I am sure of the results. I am recommending them from experience." (Signed) J. H. Jarvis, 7 Ann St., Kingston, Ont., May 30, 1911.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for itching, burning, scaly and bleeding skin and scalp humors, of young and old. A single set is often sufficient. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, but to those who have suffered much, lost hope and are without faith in any treatment, a liberal sample of each with 32-p. booklet on the skin will be mailed free, on application. A HAGGARD STORY.

Mr. Rider Haggard tells a good story about the premature publication of an obituary notice of himself. Hearing that a ballet based on "She" was to be produced in Hungary, he wrote asking for programmes and photographs. A reply came that the manager was shocked at the request, for he had believed the illustrious Herr Author to be dead. Long obituaries had appeared in the Hungarian journals. Mr.

Mr. H. Rider Haggard.

Haggard then wrote and asked that a contradiction might be circulated, but the manager reported that the editors refused to insert it, as they believed it to be an unscrupulous attempt to obtain a free advertisement for the ballet.

VOICE FASTER THAN SOUND.

The difference in the speed of sound over a telephone wire and through the atmosphere is illustrated by the experience of a man in Paterson, N.J. He was talking to a man in a factory two miles away when the factory whistle blew for 1 o'clock. He heard the sound very distinctly through the telephone and five seconds later he heard the same sound repeated, this time through the open window.

AN EXCELLENT MEDICINE FOR ALL LITTLE ONES

Mrs. Ovila Lamarre, Malvina, Que., writes: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets an excellent medicine and would not use any other for my little one. I think all mothers should keep the tablets in the house." Thousands of other mothers have the same praise for the tablets. They are absolutely safe—being guaranteed by a government analyst to contain no opiate or other harmful drug. They break up colds, expel worms, cure constipation and indigestion, in fact they are good for all the minor ills of little ones. The tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"No," said the grocer, "you'll be wondering how I can afford to sell vegetables so cheap."

Faultless in Preparation.—Unlike any other stomach regulator, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the result of long study of vegetable compounds calculated to stimulate the stomachic functions and maintain them at the normal condition. Years of use have proved their faultless character and established their excellent reputation. And this reputation they have maintained for years and will continue to maintain, for these pills must always stand at the head of the list of standard preparations.

BUY SALT AT TOBACCONIST'S.

If you want to buy salt in Italy you must go to a tobacco shop to get it; for both salt and tobacco are government monopolies. In France you can buy stamps and postcards at tobacco shops, which are under government jurisdiction there as well. In both countries you can send telegrams at as low a rate as 14 cents for 10 words, and special delivery letters will go for six cents in Paris if you remember to write across your envelope "Pneumatique," which means that the letter will be shunted through a pneumatic tube in no time at all, and delivered almost as soon as a telegram.

SPLENDID WORK DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ARE DOING.

Mrs. Norman L. Dow Tells What They Have Done for Her—People Talking of Them on Every Side.

Port Daniel West, Bonaventure Co., Que., Mar. 11 (Special).—Bonaventure County is ringing with the great work done by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and on every side people are telling their neighbors of aches relieved and ills cured by the great Canadian kidney remedy. To the great mass of evidence already published is now added that of Mrs. Norman L. Dow of this place:—

"I can recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as an excellent remedy for rheumatism and palpitation of the heart," said Mrs. Dow. "After using one box I was greatly benefited."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure rheumatism and palpitation of the heart, because they both come from the same cause—impure blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills make the kidneys right, and when the kidneys are right they strain all the poison and impurities out of the blood. Cure the kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills and you can't have such diseases as rheumatism or palpitation of the heart.

PETROLEUM.

The Total Amount of Production Is Increasing.

A recent publication shows the present production of petroleum and gives some idea of the relative heat value of the coal and oil produced. Thus in the United States about 27 million tons of oil were produced in 1910. Russia produced a full third of this weight, Roumania about a twentieth part as much as the United States, and the rest of the world together not quite as much. The total production is not 50 million tons. Let it be assumed as such, and even then it is not more than one-twelfth the tonnage of the coal produced by Great Britain and the United States. But the amount is increasing and the equivalent heating effect was estimated at about five per cent. that for coal, so that there is progress. The greater the production of petroleum the more it will be employed, for at present the uncertainty of a supply often prevents its use. The future of oil fuel is certain if the suply can be assured in sufficient quantity. Nobody to-day doubts the ability of liquid fuel to do either steam raising duty or metallurgical work. In fact, in metallurgy liquid fuel is so economical, efficient and cleanly in operation that it can be well afforded even at a price, per thousand heat units, greater than the price of coal. It is merely a matter for suitable furnaces and apparatus.

LOVE MADE IN GERMANY.

How Courting and Betrothals Are Conducted.

Elopements are never heard of in Germany, and yet there is no such thing as getting married there without the consent of the parents. Certain prescribed forms must be gone through, or the marriage is null and void. When a girl has arrived at what is considered a marriageable age, her parents make a point of inviting young men to the house, and usually two or three are invited at the same time, so that the attention may not seem too pointed.

No young man, however, is ever invited to the house until after he has called at least once, and thus signified his wish to have social intercourse with the family. If he takes to calling on several occasions in rather close succession it is taken for granted that he has "intentions," and he may be questioned concerning them.

In Germany the man must be at least eighteen years of age before he can make a proposal; but when it is made and acepted th eproposal is speedily followed by the betrothal. This generally takes place privately, shortly after which the father of the bride, as he is then called, gives a dinner or supper to the most intimate friends on both sides, when the fact is declared, and, naturally, afterwards becomes a matter of public knowledge.

SALT RHEUM FOR 6 YEARS.

Zam-Buk Has Cured Him.

For over six years Mr. William H. Birt, of Pisquid, P.E.I., suffered from salt rheum. He says: "The disease attacked my arms and hands, and the fore-finger of my right hand was the worst.

"I was engaged as a blacksmith by the Bruce Stewart Co., of Charlottetown, and sometimes every stroke of the hammer would cause the finger to bleed freely. I tried various ointments and salves, and then went to several doctors in and around Charlottetown.

"One medical man, after treating me for some time said he did not think I could ever be cured. Trying one thing and another I spent over $50.00; and all in vain.

"I saw an account of some of the great cures which Zam-Buk has worked and decided to try it. The first box did me a lot of good, and the finger showed traces of healing, so I kept up the Zam-Buk treatment, and a few boxes worked a cure."

Reader, if you have any skin disease, cut, burn, cold sore or skin injury, try Zam-Buk. It is absolutely unique as a healer. Druggists and stores everywhere at 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

READING BY SHARK-LIGHT.

Since deep-sea dredging began, more than six hundred species of deep-sea fishes have been discovered, all of a more or less wonderful nature; but it is very rarely that large fishes are taken. The net on the bottom, dragged along by a wire three or four miles long, catches only the very sluggish forms; the large and active animals dart away and escape as the strange object comes bumping along over the bottom, or ploughing through the ooze. Off the coast of Scotland a curious ribbon-fish, with a length of more than forty feet, has been caught—a beautiful creature, of satin texture, with scarlet fins. That this fish comes from the deep sea is almost positive. While the larger creatures of the deep sea are not well known, the conditions in which they live are well understood. The ocean-bed has been reached with a net in about six miles of water, and that there are valleys and depressions of greater depth may well be imagined.

Impurities of the Blood Counteracted.—Impurities in the blood come from defects in the action of the liver. They are revealed by pimples and unsightly blotches on the skin. They must be treated inwardly, and for this purpose there is no more effective compound to be used than Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They act directly on the liver and by setting up healthy processes have a beneficial effect upon the blood, so that impurities are eliminated.

THURSDAY, MAR. 14, '12

When Hon. W. T. White brings down his budget he will be able to announce the largest surplus in the history of Canada. It will be about $35,000,000 for the fiscal year, an increase of some $15,000,000 over the surplus which Hon Mr. Fielding announced a year ago.

The financial statement for the past 11 months shows that the country is at the high tide of prosperity, and that business is ever expanding. The revenue for the eleven months was $120,645,818 and the expenditure was $77,145,924 on consolidated fund. The increase in the revenue for the eleven months is $16,348,000, and of expenditure $6,557,953.

The dearth of men for the work of the Ministry is a fact which all denominations have to face. In the Anglican Diocese of Huron it is evident by the fact that this year there are but two graduates from Huron College, though the fact that the college has the largest enrolment on record augurs well for coming years. In its shortage of men this year Huron College is in similiar position to a majority of the other theological colleges, both in the Anglican and other denominations.

That church union will not be brought about by present voting is now very evident. The Methodists have voted in greater proportion for it than have the Presbyterians, but it is doubtful if either one will be in greater proportion than 5-1, and this at least seems to be necessary according to the state ments of Rev. Dr. MacKay, General Moderator of the Presbyterian Church, and Rev. Dr. Carman, superintendant of the Methodist church.

TRICKY ART DEALERS.

Astute Parisian Scheme For Booming a "New Master."

For the booming of a new artist an astute dealer is necessary. He catches his artist as young as possible, preferably as an exhibitor of crazy canvases at the autumn salon of the independents' exhibition, and commissions him to paint 100 pictures a year

One by one, occasionally in twos and threes, at judicious intervals the dealer sends the pictures to the Hotel Drouot for sale by public auction There he has confederates, who raise the price at each sale, and he buys them in himself.

After a few months the young artist's canvases have a certain market value, and the next step is taken to turn their painter into a modern master. The critics are attacked. One of them is asked to look at some daub and when he cries out with horror the dealer says:

"What? You don't like it? Take it home with you as a favor to me, live with it six months and then"—

In due course an art amateur calls upon the critic and cannot contain his admiration for the new artist's picture.

"What a masterpiece! The most modern thing in art I have seen for a long time!" he exclaims.

Doubt begins to invade the critic's mind, and when one or two more enthusiastic amateurs have visited him he is worked up to writing a column of panegyric on the new master. The amateurs are, of course, sent by the dealer.

One or two articles and the boom is in full swing. Wealthy and simple minded collectors, remembering how other painters have been decried in their early days and how their works later have commanded fancy prices rush in.

The new master makes about 10 per cent of the profit and the dealer the other 90 per cent. The new master is at the mercy of the dealer. If he grumbles the dealer floods the auction rooms with a hundred or so of his masterpieces and orders his agents not to bid, the result being that the canvases sell at rubbish prices, and the boom is burst.—Gil Blas.

"Mad," but He Knew It.

FitzGerald, the author, was once walking down Church street, Woodbridge, in company with a friend on the way to the Deben to go aboard his yacht. The day was hot, and he walked barebeaded and barefooted, his shoes slung by their laces across his shoulders, his clothes untidy and ill fitting. At the four cross ways, where the postoffice now stands, was gathered a party of yokels, who made the strange figure the butt for coarse wit. "Ah, bor," exclaimed one in the singsong Suffolk vernacular, "'e's as mad as a hare in March." FitzGerald turned to his friend, having overheard the remark. "Yes," he said, "the fellow is right, but I'm sane enough to know that I'm mad."—T. P.'s London Magazine.

Love and a Breakfast.

"John," she said to her husband, who was grumbling over his breakfast, "your love has grown cold."

"No, it hasn't," he snapped, "but my breakfast has."

"That's just it. If your love hadn't grown cold you wouldn't have noticed that your breakfast had."

Legal Lore.

"As a lawyer how would you advise me to sue for a girl's hand?"

"Take the case to court and ask for immediate trial."—Baltimore American.

Incongruous.

Little Alick—What is an incongruity, uncle? Uncle William—An incongruity, child, is a divorce lawyer humming a wedding march.—Satire.

Hatred is like fire. It makes even light rubbish deadly.—George Eliot.

Lost His Hair, Beard and Mustache

TERRIBLE PLIGHT OF A PENNSYLVANIA MAN REPORTED BY A PROMINENT CITIZEN.

"About two years ago my hair, beard and mustache started to come out in spots. These spots were entirely bare of hair.

Seeing PARISIAN SAGE advertised, I purchased 4 bottles and after using two of the bottles, the hair came in and now I have as good a head of hair as I had before this trouble started.

I can truthfully recommend this preparation to any one for what it is recommended for. Sam Galder, Jamison City, Col. Co., Pa. Oct. 11, 1911."

Please bear in mind that PARISIAN SAGE is not guaranteed to grow hair on bald heads.

In Mr. Galder's case the hair root was not dead and there is no good reason why PARISIAN SAGE should not do just what he writes it did.

"The next time Mr. Galder came into my store after purchasing the PARISIAN SAGE," writes the druggists who sold him, "his appearance was so changed I did not know him."

PARISIAN SAGE is without doubt the most efficient hair grower, beautifier and dandruff cure in the world, and people who are wasting time with ordinary commercial tonics should wake up.

PARISIAN SAGE will banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp will put life, lustre and beauty into faded hair or money back. It is a most delightful and refreshing tonic for men, women and children. Large bottle 50cts. at W. S. COLE'S and druggists the country over.

FERTILIZER

WHY NOT USE FERTILIZER INSTEAD OF BARNYARD MANURE?

It is easier to apply to the land and gives better satisfaction in every way. It is used for all grain crops and also a good catch of clover on poor meadows. Give your land a good top dressing of Fertilizer before planting your potatoes and it will double your crop. It is good for beans and for all kinds of root crops It has been tested and found to be better than other fertilizers. Give it a trial. Over three hundred tons sold already.

The National Fertilizer, which is placed on the market by the National Land, Fruit and Packing Company, is the only organic fertilizer made, and shows the following analysis compared with barnyard manure:—

Nitrogen 3.50, equal to 4.0 ammonia.
Phosphoric acid 5.75, equal to 12. soluable phosphates.
Potash 3.50.

MECCA THE SACRED.

A Shrine That Draws One-seventh of the Human Race.

Although one of the most inaccessible cities on earth, Mecca each year has visitors in such numbers that it must be ranked in this particular with London and New York. Even the world's metropolis on the Thames can boast no such cosmopolitan character as is imparted to this mysterious city in the wilderness of Arabia by the myriads of pilgrims who, at the cost of incredible pains, annually crowd into its confines.

This city is the oldest place of resort in existence, yet of all the millions who have visited it not a score of Christians are known to have come out alive. No flag of citizenship would save a man's life were he known to be a Christian within the sacred precincts of the city where the prophet himself decreed that no unbeliever should set foot.

Of the 225,000,000 Moslems in the world only 15,500,000 live under the Turkish flag, yet most of them acknowledge the sultan of Turkey as their caliph, the successor of the prophet. As Mohammed shrewdly foresaw, the Mecca pilgrimage binds together his disciples into a unity which could be effected in no other way.

"Mecca," says Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer of Arabia, "has become the religious capital and the center of universal pilgrimage for one-seventh of the human race."—Harper's Magazine.

WONDERFUL ECHOES.

Effect Produced by a Pistol Shot at a Lake in Bavaria.

Probably the finest echo which the world knows is in the cathedral at Pisa, where the leaning tower is. Sing two notes and there is no reverberation. Sing three and they are at once taken up by the walls of the edifice, swelled, prolonged and varied till they seem as a divine harmony from some majestic organ.

There is a cavern in Finland in which, if you test your lungs to the top of their capacity, there will answer you such horrible roarings, moanings and mutterings that you will be glad to rush out in absolute terror.

The cutting down of trees in a certain locality on the Hudson river spoiled a splendid echo. A word shouted there was repeated forty-two times.

Undoubtedly the most extraordinary natural echo in the world is to be heard by the side of a small lake in Bavaria. On one hand rises a perpendicular cliff several thousand feet high, while on the other side is a dense forest. If a pistol is fired on the lake the woods send back a faint echo that gradually dies away, but presently it is heard from the cliff, continually increasing in power till it bursts over one's head like a deafening peal of thunder.—Pearson's Weekly.

Making Up His Mind.

Deliberateness, a quality generally ascribed to the Scots, must reach a kind of quintessence among the Shetlanders, if this story from the Christian World may be held to represent them fairly:

The Rev. James Hamilton, minister of the Church of Scotland, Rodney street, Liverpool, while on holiday in Shetland had a narrow escape from drowning. Accompanied by a boy Mr. Hamilton was fishing for sea trout, when he slipped on a stone, lost his balance and, being incumbered with heavy wading boots, had great difficulty in keeping his head above water.

Finally he managed to get back to the shore, although in a very exhausted state, and said to the boy:

"I noticed that you never tried to help me."

"Na," was the response, "but I was thinkin' o'ti"

Craft of the Gypsies.

Gypsies introduced the practice of palmistry into England. This appears from a statute of 1531 called an "acte concerning Egypsyans," which recites that "afore this tyme dyverse and many outlandysshe People, callynge them selfes Egyptians, using no crafte nor faicte of marchaundyse, have comen into this Realme and gone from Shire to Shire and Place to Place, and used greate subtyll and crafty meanes to deceyve the people that they by palmestre could tell menne and womens fortunes, and have by crafte and subtyltie deceyved the people of their money."

The Giant Petrel.

The giant petrel of the arctic regions will feed on offal until it is so absolutely gorged as to be unable to rise off the ice in flight. Then it runs along the ice if chased, spreading its wings out as sails. Before being captured, however, the petrel will suddenly stop and disgorge a quantity of semidigested food and then go off on a run again. If overtaken a second time it will repeat the performance and when once it has got rid of its dinner flies away.

As "Home Sweet Home" Is Sung.

She had a voice like a siren, and when she sang "Mid play sures, sand palaces, tho fleam a roame, be it averse oh hum bull, there snow play sly comb," and so on to the conclusion, there wasn't a dry eye in the room.—United Presbyterian.

Misleading.

"Well, well," exclaimed Nagget over his paper, "that's a queer heading for this article. It says 'Woman's Talk.'"

"What's so queer about that?" demanded his wife.

"Why, there's only about half a column of it."

Unless the habit leads to happiness the best habit is to contract none.—Zimmerman.

Why Women Are Not RICH.

Man is a millionaire many times over in the possession of blood cells. Woman is not quite so rich, for scientists have proven that the normal man has five million—the woman only four and a half million to a cubic millimetre of blood.

A decrease in number of red blood corpuscles and a person "looks pale"—in fact, is anæmic, the blood does not get the right food and probably the stomach is disordered.

Dr. R. V. Pierce found years ago that a glyceric extract of golden seal and Oregon grape roots, queen's root and bloodroot with black cherrybark, would help the assimilation of the food in the stomach, correct liver ills and in Nature's own way increase the red blood corpuscles. This medicine he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By assimilating the food eaten the system is nourished and the blood takes on a rich red color. Nervousness is only "the cry of the starved nerves for food," and when the nerves are fed on rich red blood the person looses those irritable feelings, sleeps well at night and is refreshed in the morning.

J. D. LIVELY, ESQ.

"I was attacked with a severe nervous disease, which was caused by a disordered stomach and liver," writes MR. JAS. D. LIVELY, of Washburn, Tenn., Route 2, Box 83. "All my friends thought I would die and the best physicians gave me up. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and derived much benefit from same. My case had run so long, it had become so chronic that nothing would effect a permanent cure, but Dr. Pierce's medicine has done much for me and I highly recommend it. I heartily advise its use as a spring tonic, and further advise ailing people to take Dr. Pierce's medicines before their diseases have run so long that there is no chance to be cured.

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS

BEFORE TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER XVIII.—(Cont'd)

"They set off, and, being sure of their destination, I did not quit the cafe myself until they were well out of sight. Then I walked away in the same direction, inquired of a policeman the quickest way to reach the post-office, and stepped out rapidly.

"I had not gone far when I overtook them. They reached the building. The Turks remained in the street and Gros Jean went inside, so I followed him, and found him inquiring for letters at the Poste Restante department. Whereupon I sent a telegram to London."

"Who on earth did you telegraph to, Jack?" broke in Edith.

"To my shirt-maker, telling him to put a couple of dozens in hand at once."

This unexpected answer provoked a general titter.

"The funny thing to me," said Talbot, "was the effect of the message on the telegraph clerk. He could evidently read English, and he surveyed me curiously, for in my present appearance I looked a most unlikely person to order shirts by telegram from a well-known London house. However, I achieved my purpose, which was to overhear Gros Jean's request. He asked if there were any letters for M. Isidor de Rion."

"Good gracious," cried Edith, "what an aristocratic name for that fat man."

"Anyhow, it was effective. There was a letter for him, and he evidently only expected one, for, before the clerk who handed it to him was able to examine the remainder of the packet, he tore it open, glanced briefly at its contents and then hurried out to join his friends in the street. After a short conclave they entered a cafe and procured a railway guide. I tried hard to find out what section of the book Gros Jean was looking at, but failed, for the double reason that he did not consult the Turks, nor did he seem to make up his mind, for he looked through the book, sighed impatiently and suggested to the others that they should go out again. I followed them into the Cannebiere, and thence down towards the harbor. When we reached the quay a small pleasure steamer was whistling for passengers, and a placard announced a fifty-centimes return trip to the Chateau d'If.

"Seemingly on the spur of the moment, Gros Jean invited the others to accompany him. So, of course, I followed them. When we reached the island, I quickly perceived that the castle filled the whole of it. Therefore, in place of keeping behind them I went in front. We all passed on with the stream of sightseers until we reached the courtyard. I had never been in the place before, but Gros Jean seemed to know it well. Owing to my policy of preceding them I found myself halted for a moment at the foot of the stairs leading to the tower. It struck me that the Frenchman was making in this direction, so I took the chance and ran up. I reached the top and looked over before the party had entered the doorway at the bottom. They came in. Thus far I was right. I looked around, and found, as you know, the square roof surrounded by bare battlements with a turret in one corner. I decided instantly that it would be hopeless to try to get close to them if they halted at any other point save in the vicinity of the turret. Elsewhere I must remain too far away to catch any portion of their conversation. So I darted across and entered the turret, noting on my way up the stairs the existence of the loopholed window where you finally saw me. It would never do to be caught there, so I went to the top and peeped over. You can guess how delighted I was when they came straight across and settled themselves in the angle beneath. Then I crept half-way down the stairs and leaned as far as I dared through the loophole, being just in time to hear Gros Jean read a letter from his daughter. Fortunately the innkeeper had to speak plainly, as his companions were foreigners, and for the same reason I had no difficulty in catching the drift of what the Turks said.

"The letter was quite short. It told him that H. had decided to leave France, and had made arrangements to proceed at once to Palmero, whither the writer would accompany him.

"One sentence I remember exactly: 'H.' she wrote, 'has friends in Sicily, and he feels assured of a kind reception at their hands.'"

"Friends!" interrupted Brett. "That means brigands!"

"The information seemed to annoy the Turks very much. They were very angry at what they described as the enforced delay, and discussed with Gros Jean the quickest means of reaching Palmero forthwith. Then he told them that he had endeavored to find out the trains running through Italy to Messina, but they could not leave Marseilles until to-night, and he thought it best that they should have a quiet talk on the situation before deciding too hurriedly upon any line of action.

"The rest of their conversation was inconsequent and desultory, alluding evidently to some project which they had fully discussed before."

Brett smiled grimly. "The commissary in Paris always follows up the wrong person," he said. "Had he only used his wits yesterday morning he would have discovered that the agent of the Embassy was in touch with Hussein-ul-Mulk. Hence the presence of the quartette in Marseilles to-day."

Talbot was naturally mystified by this remark until Brett explained to him the circumstances already known to the reader.

"Was there anything else?" inquired the barrister, reverting to the chief topic before them.

"Only this. I gathered that Gros Jean did not know his daughter's whereabouts in Marseilles, but she had arranged that if circumstances necessitated her departure from the town she would leave a letter for him in the Poste Restante, giving him full details. Nevertheless, this presupposes the knowledge on her part that he would come to Marseilles, so I assume therefore that telegrams must have passed between them yesterday afternoon."

"Obviously!" said Brett. "Anything else?"

"Yes," and now Talbot's voice took a note of passion that momentarily surprised his hearers. "It seems to me that this under-handed arrangement, if it goes through, condones the murder of poor Mehémet Ali and his assistants, and places on me the everlasting disgrace of having permitted this thing to happen whilst an important and special mission was entrusted to my sole charge by the Foreign Office. Dubois has been able to commit his crime, get away with the diamonds, hoodwink all of us most effectually, and, in the result, obtain a huge reward from the Turkish Government for his services. I tell you, Mr. Brett, I won't put up with it. I will follow him to the other end of the world, and, at any rate, take personal vengeance on the man who has ruined my career. For, no matter what you say, the only effective way in which I can rehibilitate myself with my superiors is to hand back those diamonds to the custody of the Foreign Office. No matter how the panic-stricken sovereign in Yildiz Kiosk may sacrifice his servants to gain his own ends, I, at least, have a higher motive. It rests with me to prove that the British Government is not to be humbugged by Paris thieves or Turkish agitators. If I fail in that duty there remains to me the personal motive of revenge!

"No, Edith; it is useless to argue with me," for his sister had risen and placed her arms lovingly round his neck in the effort to calm him. "My mind is made up. I suppose Mr. Brett feels that his inquiry is ended. For me it has just commenced."

The young man's justifiable rage created a sensation.

"May I ask," he said, "what reason you have to suppose that I should so readily throw up the sponge and leave Monsieur Henri Dubois the victor in this contest?"

"Do you mean," cried Talbot, starting to his feet, "that you will stand by me?"

"Stand by you!" echoed the barrister, himself yielding for an instant to the electrical condition of things. "Of course I will. We will recover those diamonds and bring them back with us to London if we have to take them out of the Sultan's palace itself!"

"And now, Lord Fairholme," he added, before Talbot could do other than grasp his hand and shake it impulsively, "we want your friend's yacht. We will set out for Palmero at the first possible moment. We must reach there many hours, perhaps a whole day, before Dubois, who is on a sailing vessel, and even with the start he has obtained cannot hope to equal the performance of a fast steamer. Let Gros Jean and his Turks travel overland. We will beat them, too. Come, now, no more talk, but action. You, Fairholme, go ahead and prepare Daubeney. I will see to your luggage being packed. Talbot and I will join in half an hour."

"Eh! what is that?" broke in Sir Hubert. "Fairholme, Talbot, you—what are Edith and I going to do?"

"Mr. Brett, of course," said Edith, in her steady, even tones, "did not trouble to include us, uncle, because we shall be on the yacht first. A woman can always pack up much better than a man, you know, and I will look after you, dear."

Brett gave one glance at her flushed and smiling face, and forthwith abandoned argument as useless.

An hour later the Blue Bell was skimming past the outer lighthouse in Marseilles bay.

CHAPTER XIX.

Next morning they reached the Straits of Bonifacio, and here they had to slacken speed somewhat, for the navigation of the rocky channel was difficult and dangerous. Far behind them they could see a huge steamer approaching. As the morning wore, this vessel came nearer, and Daubeney, important now in his capacity of commander, announced that she was the P. and O. steamship Ganges, bound for Brindisi and the East, via the Straits of Messina.

"She left Marseilles at a late hour last night," he said, "and will call at Brindisi for the Indian mails."

An idea suddenly struck Brett. "Do you know how fast she is steaming?" he inquired.

"Oh, about thirteen and a half knots an hour. That is her best rate. The P. and O. boats are not flyers, you know."

"And does she stop at Messina?"

Daubeney now caught the drift of the barrister's questions.

"I don't think so."

Another hour passed, and the Ganges was now almost alongside. Although both ships were well through the Straits of Bonifacio, and the Ganges should have followed a course a point or two north of that pursued by the Blue Bell, she appeared to be desirous to come close to them.

Suddenly the reason became apparent. A line of little flags fluttered up to her masthead.

"She is signalling us," cried Daubeney excitedly. "Here you," he shouted to a sailor, "bring Jones here at aonce."

Jones was the yacht's expert signaller. He approached with a telescope and a code under his arm. After a prolonged gaze and a careful scrutiny of the code, he announced—

"This is how the message reads: 'Turks on board Stopping Messina. —Winter.'"

For once the barrister was startled out of his usual quiet self-possession.

"Winter!" he almost screamed. "Is he there?"

A hundred mad questions coursed through his brain, but he realized that to attempt a long explanation by signals was not only out of the question, but could not fail to attract the attention of passengers on board the Ganges. This he did not desire to do. Quick as lightning, he decided that by some inexplicable means the Scotland Yard detective had reached Marseilles full of the knowledge that Dubois and the diamonds were en route to Sicily, and had also learnt that he, Brett, and the others were on board the Blue Bell.

He had evidently taken the speediest means of reaching the island, and found himself on board the same ship as Gros Jean and the Turks. Hence he had approached the captain with the request that the Blue Bell should be signalled.

HOW TO BECOME TALL.

Undergo a Course of Electrification —That's All.

Interesting experiments are being made in Stockholm, Sweden, as to the effect of electricity on the physical growth of children.

The walls and ceilings of a school room were lined with a coil of wires through which a high frequency current was passed. The children in the room were thus in a position of an iron core in the centre of a magnetizing coil. Fifty children were kept in this room, while 50 others of the average age, size and mental development were kept in an adjoining room without electrical treatment.

At the end of six months the children under electrical treatment showed a growth of two inches, while those without electricity grew only one and a half inches. The electrified children showed an increase in weight and other forms of development in proportion to their height.

A GREAT SLEUTH.

If Octave Henri Acodat Hamard, the Paris detective chief, who has been promoted to be director of the Criminal Investigation Department, were to reveal his secrets, they would make the most blood-curdling record of crime of modern times; for Paris is the most wicked city in the world.

Hamard is provincial by birth, having been born at Chatillon-sur-Loing in the Loiret, fifty years ago. Though only in his prime, his hair is quite white, not by heredity, but by reason of the intense strain consequent upon the chase of crime.

Unlike M. Lepine, chief of police, Hamard is tall. Unlike the little magician he has never known any other calling than that of policeman. He entered the prefecture in 1888 in the capacity of a senior clerk at a salary scarcely sufficient to keep body and soul together. Six years later he was made a police magistrate.

Soon he became Assistant-Chief of Detectives, his immediate superior being Cochefert, the terror of evil-doers. Hamard succeeded Cochefert in 1902, and from then till now has held the office of Chief of Detectives in the capital where the criminals of all nations congregate. But criminals, like kings, are closely watched, and, unlike the latter, are rarely disturbed in Paris provided they keep quiet.

Of the many celebrated cases with which he has had to deal, none attracted more widespread attention than that of Madame Steinhall, the "tragic widow," who was accused of having killed her husband, and her mother, and whom some hold responsible for the death of President Felix Faure. The distracted woman, in her frantic efforts to free herself from the disgrace of murder and parricide, blamed people indiscriminately. Finally, to cast the blame upon a servant, she put a pearl in his pocket book. Hamard had her arrested. She was acquitted, but the terrible ordeal she was put through during a long trial has forced a change in the form of French criminal procedure.

Hamard says his most amusing experience concerned the bank clerk named Galley, who stole a large sum of money from the Comtoir National Escompte, chartered a yacht, and eloped with a music-hall artist named Merelli. For a time the clerk played the part of a grand seigneur, but finally he and Merelli, whom he called "a sister soul," were arrested at Bahia. The most revolting case of M. Hamard's experience was that of Soleilland, who killed the ten-year-old daughter of his friend, put her little body in a sack and deposited it in a luggage office of the Western Station. Hamard stuck to the prosecution till the scoundrel was condemned to the guillotine; but President Fallieres, who does not believe in capital punishment, commuted his sentence to imprisonment for life.

"LADY HELPS" NOW TRAINED.

To Meet Household Needs in Great Great Britain.

In order to embark on a career in England, many girls of fairly good social position are cheerfully going in for a six months' training in housework.

The girls, who are either bent on helping themselves or who intend to "go into service," as the English say, mean real business, or they would never submit to the rigorous curriculum which the gently-nurtured students at these domestic training schools have to undergo. At the St. Martha's Guild of Housecraft, London, for instance, the future lady parlormaids rise at six o'clock and are kept on the go till tea time. Throughout the week they are given demonstrations in hygiene, physiology, cookery, and household management.

The student, on finishing her course, can pick and choose her position, that of lady-cook being so far the most popular. Some of the pupils, however, are prospective brides, who wish to gain sufficient practical knowledge to control the work of their own servants when they set up housekeeping.

Lady nurses are already established on the pay roll of many a wealthy Britisher, and the employment of lady cooks and lady parlormaids is following in natural sequence. Those who have tried the high-grade helps vote them a great improvement on the ordinary types, who now yearn for the factory and store as affording more evening liberty.

Optimist—"I don't care what you say, marriage is one of the greatest institutions in the world." Pessimist—"Of course it is. It gives two people a chance to lay the responsibility for their unhappiness on each other."

HOUSEHOLD

CHOICE RECIPES.

Chocolate Nougat Cake.—One-fourth cup butter, two cups granulated sugar, one-third cup sour milk, one-third cup sweet milk, two cups bread flour, two eggs, one-quarter teaspoonful salt, one-half teaspoonful soda, three teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-half teaspoonful vanilla, three squares chocolate, one cup almonds (blanched and shredded). Cream the butter and add one and one-half cups of sugar and unbeaten eggs. Mix well and add sour milk, flour sifted with soda, baking powder and salt and mixed with two-thirds of the almonds; mix well and add vanilla. Cook together until smooth melted chocolate, sweet milk and one-half cup sugar; cool slightly and add to the cake mixture. Bake in two layers and put white mountain cream sprinkled with the remainder of the almonds between the layers and on top. Keep in a stone jar. It improves with age.

Panned Oysters.—One pint oysters, one-half cup butter, one-half a pepper, one spoonful salt. Drain the oysters. Heat the butter in a chafing dish, add the oysters, and when they begin to "curl" sprinkle with salt and pepper and serve on squares of hot buttered toast arranged on a hot platter.

Fruit Gelatin.—One glass currant jelly, one-half package granulated gelatin, one-half pint cold water, one-half pint pineapple juice, one-half cup sugar. Steep the gelatin in cold water one hour, add sugar, pineapple juice and jelly, then very hot water; mix, strain and allow to cool slowly. Prepare the day before it is needed. This quantity will serve the family twice. Keep in a cool place. Serve with whipped cream.

Banana Salad.—Two bananas, one-half bunch of cress, one-quarter cup chopped nuts, one-half cup mayonnaise dressing. Select firm ripe bananas, peel and slice lengthwise. Arrange the cress on individual salad plates, place a half banana, cut side down, on each plate, sprinkle with nuts and put a spoonful of mayonnaise on each.

Veal Cutlets with Tomato Sauce.—Two pounds veal cutlets, one teaspoonful salt, one-quarter spoonful pepper, one-quarter cup butter, one-quarter flour, one teaspoon onion juice, two cups tomato sauce. Cut the veal into pieces suitable for serving. Dip in crumbs, beaten egg and crumbs and fry in hot fat just enough to sear and brown the outside. Put into a baking dish and cover with tomato sauce, heat to boiling point and place in the fireless cooker for the day.

Potato Soup.—One cup riced potatoes, four cups thin white sauce, two onions (grated). Mix all together, pass through a colander and serve very hot. (Riced potatoes left over from dinner the day before may be used.)

Fresh Pineapple.—Select a ripe, juicy pineapple with a strong fork pull the circular sections from the core. Arrange ten or twelve of these on a dessert plate with a cone of powdered sugar in the center. This is to be eaten like strawberries on the stem.

Cress and Cheese Salad.—One bunch crisp watercress, one package pimento cream cheese. Remove cheese from the package and cut in half-inch rounds; arrange the cress on individual salad plates; place the round of cheese in the center with a spoonful of mayonnaise on top. Decorate with blanched and split almonds.

Cream of Celery Soup.—Use the leaves and tough part of the celery for soup. Wash carefully and boil a half hour in the fireless cooker kettle, then place it in the cooker overnight. In the morning strain and put away in sterilized jars to be ready for use. Mix equal parts of celery stock and white sauce and serve very hot.

Toasted Cheese Sandwiches.—Cut white bread in one-inch slices, trim the crusts, toast the bread on both sides, butter one side and cover with sliced cheese; place under the broiler until the cheese melts, then cover with another slice of toast with the buttered side in. This should be served hot.

Fillet of Beef.—Sear and brown in a skillet, place on a rack over boiling water in the fireless cooker and let it remain all day. At dinner time it will be tender, juicy and still warm. While the remainder of the dinner is prepared in the oven make brown gravy in the skillet in which the metal was seared.

Tomato Sauce.—Melt the butter and add gradually the flour, salt, pepper and tomato juice to make a smooth sauce.

Almond and Fruit Salad.—One pineapple, one cup almonds, one-half celery, one-quarter cup mayonnaise, four crisp lettuce leaves. Cut the pineapple and celery in pieces the size of almonds. Blanch and split the almonds. Mix all together and arrange on individual salad plates, garnished with lettuce. Put a spoonful of mayonnaise on each.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Eat plenty of onions, especially in the spring.

To make smooth mush, when thickened, take crank egg beater and beat it well.

Placing a towel or cloth over the ragged edges of a can in opening will save cut fingers.

In sewing on sleeves, instead of binding the seams, use the French seam. It is much neater and is quickly done.

Large pads of colored blotting paper make practical underlinings for a thin bureau scarf; they also save polished surfaces.

To keep fruit cake fresh, wrap in towel and put into flour bin; cover with flour, and it will keep moist and fresh for weeks.

To make a good eye wash, add a teaspoonful of powdered boric acid to one cup of boiling water; strain and apply to the eyes night and morning.

When making a garment which requires two rows of machine stitching, make the second row from the edge first, and it will insure a straight edge.

Save egg shells when baking. Take one shell, crush and put in cruet, add a little water and shake well; also good for cleaning baby's milk bottle and bowls.

If you find the sardine can hard to open place a screw-driver or something equally strong in the loop of the key and turn, using the screw driver as a lever.

In sewing tape on hosiery, put it through the length of the stocking or sock instead of across. It will not tear the hose nor rip as when sewed on the other way.

Do not give a bird a bath oftener than three times a week; then add a little warm water to take the chill off. This will keep your bird from taking cold easily.

To mend rubbers, buttonhole each side of tear with heavy thread, then sew button-hole stitches together. Cover with liquid blacking and it never will be noticed.

To iron thin wash curtains easily and keep them straight, double them and iron, which shapes them, and they then can be opened out witrout trouble and ironed all over.

Infants' all wool stockings can be kept from shrinking by washing them in a light suds of a pure soap and stretching them over jelly glasses to dry. When dry press with a medium hot iron.

To clean stovepipes successfully, saturate a cloth with gasoline and wipe. The dirt and grease will come off like magic. Be careful of fire. The best place to clean it is on the back porch or yard.

An easily made gate to keep baby in a room or from attempting to climb the stairs is an ordinary sliding window screen put in at the botton of the door or stairway the same as it is put in a window.

If the icing should harden before putting it on the cake add a teaspoonful of cream and stir quickly for a few seconds. This will soften the icing long enough to enable it to be put on the cake smoothly.

Take a safety pin, stick securely through end of tape, fasten pin, then as the pin is smooth it will go through goods easily, drawing tape with it. Is especially good for tape that is too wide for ordinary needle.

If milk burns in bottom of pan, pour water in pan, set on stove, let boil a few moments, and scum will loosen of itself, where otherwise you might scrape half an hour. To remove burnt taste from milk, pour in fresh pan, set in cool water, and milk will be all right in a minute.

SURVIVAL OF CUSTOMS.

Quill pens still survive at the Law Courts. The barrister may use a gold or steel pen in chambers, but in court the quill pen is an indispensable accessory to oratory, whether to flourish at a jury or to point a warning finger at a witness who is reluctantly disgorging the truth. And the law is conservative in many other matters. Nowhere else but at a Chancery Lane law stationer's can you buy letter wafers, which were abandoned by ordinary people nearly a century ago. And this writer remembers an aged copying clerk—old enough to have been a contemporary of the unfortunate Mr. Nemo of "Bleak House"—who used a sprinkle of sand instead of blotting paper—London Chronicle.

COLORS IN FLAGS.

Red is by far the most predominant color in the flags of the world. There is only one flag in Europe that does not contain red, and that is the standard of Greece. After red, blue takes pride of place; but many flags are entirely red, except for minor devices. Egypt, Morocco, Austria-Hungary, and Japan possess all-red flags. No fewer than forty-two other countries display red freely in their banners, and the color is, in a natural sense, typical of valor and bravery. Blue in flags represents justice; white stands for purity.

Ships can be weighed in a few minutes by means of an instrument known as a per-hydrometer.

A GREAT SPEAR THRUST.

Hunter Drove Blade Into Rhinoceros's Breast.

Arab Tumo, the rhinoceros-slayer, was a mighty spearsman. Common report said that no less than sixty rhinoceros had fallen to his thrusts, each one of which he had killed in single combat. Such an achievement seems impossible; but an anecdote of Tumo, told by Mr. E. B. Bronson in his book, "In Closed Territory," makes it comparatively easy to believe. Arab Tumo was leading a party down a precipitous hillside, covered with the ghastly gray leaves and stalks of the tall elephant-grass.

Amid the grass everything is shut out from your view except the patches of sky that now and then appear through the rustling russet roof above your head. At your very feet a poisonous cobra or mamba may be coiling to give you a death-stroke; within reach of the muzzle of your rifle a great python may be preparing to toss his mighty folds about your neck; rhino, buffalo, lion or elephant love and always haunt this convenient ambush, and one of them may any instant catch your wind and be literally upon you before you have time to throw your rifle to your shoulder.

When I was about half-way down from the summit to the swamp, with Arab Tumo marching ahead of me, and although no more than six feet in advance, quite out of my sight, suddenly I heard from just beyond him the swishing and crashing of some mighty body.

I jumped forward just in time to see a giant rhino, which had been crossing our line of march directly in front of us, start to swing for a charge up our line. We had not attacked him, but his great head was shaking with rage; his little pig-like eyes were glaring with fury.

It was all over in a second. When I reached Tumo the man and the brute were within arm's length of each other. He crouched low, with shortened spear, and in the very second of the rhino's swing to charge, with one bound and mighty thrust he drove the blade of his great three-foot spear deep into the creature's breast behind its left shoulder.

The weapon ranged diagonally through the rhino's vitals toward his right hip, and was buried to the very haft in his body.

The rhinoceros instantly gave a shrill scream of pain. A gush of foam-flecked blood told of a deadly lung wound, and then, with Tumo's spear still transfixing him, the monster wheeled and lurched out of our sight down the hill at right angles to our course.

And there Arab Tumo, with pulse apparently unquickened by a single beat, stood quietly smiling and signing for permission to follow and recover his spear!

DUKE OF SUTHERLAND.

Disposes of Another Big Slice of His Holding in England.

The Duke of Sutherland, the aristocratic prophet of national decay, seems bent on preparing for the day when he believes England will not be a fit and proper place for noblemen to live in. Another proof that his hopes are centred in Canada, where picked Scotsmen are being settled on his Alberta farms, is now forthcoming. Another slice of his enormous holdings in real estate on this side is to come into the market, this being his Lilleshall estate in Shropshire, England, comprising eight thousand five hundred acres of the best agricultural land in the county. But the Duke has still over a million acres to dispose of, and no doubt his heir, Lord Stafford, who is soon to marry Lady Eileen Butler, will put his foot down good and hard if his exalted parent goes too far in his policy of shedding the ancestral estates.

Evidently the Duke of Sutherland's example is contagious, for about the time his next lot of land is put up to auction, the Rev. R. E. Walker, rector of Frant, with his wife, Lady Emily Walker, their five children, a footman, and a maid, will be making tracks for Vancouver, all bent on seeking their fortune in the West. "We are being taxed out of existence," is the reason Lady Walker gives for this drastic departure.

"YOU'RE ALL RIGHT."

Many a heart is kept from aching;
Saved, perhaps, at point of breaking
By these words—no trouble taking—
"You're all right!"

When you feel like growing colder,
Just a hand upon the shoulder,
Nothing greater, nothing bolder,
Makes things brighter.

Say the words to those you're meeting,
And infuse a cordial greeting
Into just a phrase so fleeting,
Words seem light.

But they start the mind a-straying
Into pleasant paths, obeying
The suggestion in the saying,
"You're all right!"

DO PROSPECTS OF SHILLALAH FIGHT GIVE THEM SECRET JOY?

The above excellent photograph, reproduced from the London Tatler, shows Lord Londonderry, on the left, and Sir Edward Carson, the two leaders, or ringleaders, as your fancy may call them, of the Irish Unionists, who are organizing all the opposition in Ireland to the forthcoming bill giving Home Rule to Ireland. They are breathing blood and thunder, and every step the Government makes toward putting the bill into the form of law, is to be marked by a gravestone. The Tatler says of this feature of the agitation: "Underneath the cloak of political ferocity which both sides adopt, we believe there is a secret joy in the contemplation of a period when they can unrestrainedly 'see a head and hit it.'"

A VENERABLE AGREEMENT.

Natives of Egypt Loyal to One Written in 1799.

To the dwellers in far corners of the earth, black or brown or yellow, Europeans are Europeans only. They are all white men and all Christians; the trifling differences between Englishman and Frenchman and German are not understood any more clearly by them than the distinction between Basongo and Matabele and Baganda is understood by us. An amusing instance in illustration is given by Mrs. Butcher in "Egypt as We Knew It."

When the British troops were making their way up the Nile in a vain attempt to relieve Khartum and save Gordon, they came to a certain town and camped for the night. Some of the soldiers went off to obtain provisions, and appear to have behaved badly. At any rate there was a brawl of some kind, and some natives were injured. Order was restored, but a deputation of village elders shortly appeared and insisted on seeing the officer in command.

To his surprise, they formally remonstrated with him for breach of contract. "On our side," they said, "we had loyally kept and were keeping it. You were allowed to camp without interference, and we were preparing to send you supplies. Why, then, did you break your agreement and send your men into our village?"

"But," said the officer, "I have no agreement with you. I never saw or heard of your village before."

"Are you not a white man and a Frangi?" asked the village elders, indignantly. "It is true we did not make the contract with you; our fathers made it with the white officer who came before you. But we have the contract still, and can show it you."

The officer naturally expressed a desire to see the contract, and the deputation went away and brought a letter written in 1799 by General Desaix of Napoleon's army, in which he undertook that none of the soldiers of the advancing army should at any time enter that particular village so long as the camp was kept supplied with provisions. I am sorry to say that the story as told to me stopped at this point. But I have no doubt that the English officer, whose name I cannot remember, loyally accepted his inherited obligations.

BIRTH OF THE WORLDS.

Prof. Bickerton Explains How New Stars are Born.

How new stars were born was explained at the Royal Institution last week by Professor A. W. Bickerton in the first of two lectures on "The New Astronomy."

Professor Bickerton, who has been sent by the New Zealand Government to expound his theory of the birth of the worlds to scientific men in England, said that new stars were born by solar collision.

"The impact of two colliding suns," he said, "results in the formation of a third body; a brilliant star flashes out and becomes permanent.

"A complete collision of two gaseous suns would result in the formation of a new sun. Such collisions are not accidental, and do not occur at random. Gravitation is included among a number of agencies tending to develop collisions; before suns come into collision they fall toward each other, and get up speed for hundreds of years.

"The tremendous speed thus developed is stopped suddenly in the colliding parts, and converted into heat. Thus, in about an hour a new star is born, explosive force expands it, and it swells out its diameter at a speed of millions of miles an hour."

Professor Bickerton, speaking of Nova Persei, the new star of the new century, said it was so brilliant that nothing equal to it has been seen for 300 years. It was 10,000 times as brilliant as the sun.

IMPORTANT INVENTION.

From Straw It Is Possible to Obtain Fibre for Spinning.

An invention perfected and tested in Austria has caused no little excitement in the textile world. It consists of a process of treatment of common straw whereby it is now possible to secure therefrom a fibre suitable for spinning. The discoverers themselves assert that their success far exceeds their original expectations.

While the entire method is not revealed, it appears that the straw is reduced to a jelly-like substance by boiling, causing the separation of the fibre from the outer shell, and the fibre is then treated in hot air machines. To this product is added another fibrous material, but never more than twenty per cent., so that fully eighty per cent. is straw. The resulting "stuff" has many of the characteristics of the "fore" yarn used in jute spinning.

The principal advantages claimed by the inventors are that the new fibre has all the merits of the yerns now produced; that the cost is only one-half that of similar products; that the weight is forty per cent. less; and that the goods are in every way desirable. Experts who have examined this material are agreed as to the truth of these claims.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, MARCH 17.

Lesson XI. The paralytic forgiven and healed, Mark 2. 1-12. Golden Text, Psa. 103. 2, 3.

Verse 1. He entered again into Capernaum—After an absence of some days, during which he made the preaching tour of Galilee referred to above.

It was noised—The rumor that he had returned and was again in the house (probably the house of Simon and Andrew, where he had last been seen) spread quickly through the city.

2. Spake the word unto them—The message of truth and glad tidings he had come to bring to the world.

3. And they come—Certain unnamed persons, a larger company than just the four men with their afflicted friend. The incident which follows is introduced into the narrative to illustrate how the words of Jesus aroused the antagonism and hatred of "certain scribes" (verse 6).

A man sick of the palsy—Literally, a paralytic.

4. Uncovered the roof—The roofs of Palestine houses were flat and covered with tiles or, in the case of the more modest dwellings, with thatch.

5. Their faith—More especially the faith of the four men who would not be deterred by any difficulties, however great, from bringing their friend to the notice of Jesus. The sick man doubtless also exercised faith, but the antecedent of the pronoun they is clearly the word four in verse 3.

Son—Greek, child.

6. Certain of the scribes—Pharisees and lawyers, present for the express purpose of watching, and, if possible, finding cause for legal accusation against him. Doubtless some of those referred to were emissaries from the hostile party at Jerusalem, by whom the death of Jesus had already been determined upon (compare Luke 5. 17; John 5. 18).

7. He blasphemeth—For strict orthodox Jews who rejected the Messianic claims of Jesus there was no alternative verdict; the claim to forgive sins implied, according to their strictly orthodox views, a claim to distinct equality with God. This implied claim of Jesus these men were quick to recognize. Hence their question, Who can forgive sins but one, even God? Having rejected his claim to divinity they could not do otherwise than bitterly antagonize Jesus.

8. Perceiving in his spirit—Knowing who these men were, Jesus knew they would understand his message. He knew, too, that for them there would be but two possible courses of action with regard to himself. Either they must receive his message and become his disciples or they must reject it and treat him as an impostor and blasphemer. The expression on their faces doubtless indicated which of these alternatives they were choosing.

9, 10. Which is easier, to say—As if Jesus had said, "You have heard me say, Thy sins are forgiven, but have no way of knowing whether my word carries the necessary power with it. But there is another simple sentence, as easily spoken, though as difficult of fulfillment with which we may make the test of the power and authority to which I lay claim. That word is, Arise, and take up thy bed, and walk. And that ye may know that this power is really mine I will speak that second word also."

Jesus doubtless would have healed the sick man any way, since none of his miracles were performed merely to gratify curiosity or prove his power. Now, however, at the very beginning of the long conflict with the recognized religious authorities, his enemies were not to be left in reasonable doubt of the validity of his claims, and, therefore, the miracle is permitted in this case to serve a double purpose. It relieves actual suffering and reveals to the doubting scribes a sure and adequate ground for faith in Jesus.

11. The word translated bed signifies any slight pallet or mat used for midday sleep, or the service of sick.

12. Before them all—They were all eye witnesses of the sudden and complete healing of the sick man. There was no reason left for doubt.

Jack—"Percy, if a man were to sit on your hat, what would you do?" Fred—"I should call him a confounded idiot!" Jack—"Then don't sit on it any longer, dear fellow!"

Witherby—"You keep a joint banking account with your wife, don't you?" Flutterby—"Yes." "How does it work?" "It's usually out of joint."

Tommy, when told he was growing fast, answered: "Yes, too fast. I think they water me too much. Why, I have to take a bath every morning!"

"They usually contain a note saying; Enclosed find two cents postage, for which send us four copies which has the notice of our daughter's wedding. We are sorry you made such a mistake as to say 'the bride was dressed in pink chiffon;' it wasn't chiffon at all, it was tulle.

Now-a-days when people want anything they look in the newspaper to find where to get it. If they want the services of a painter, a carpenter, a plasterer, a plumber or any other mechanic or trades man, they expect to find a card in the paper. They look for it. If they find one the advertiser gets a job. Judicious advertising pays!

The marriage of Miss Mabel S. Kemp, elder daughter of the late Capt. G. S. Kemp of Exeter, and of Mrs. Kemp of Toronto, to Arthur Honour Tring of Hertfordshire, England, took place very quietly on Monday last in the church of the Redeemer, Toronto. The rector, Rev. C. J. James, performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs Tring will reside in England. The bride's many friends here extend congratulations.

The result of the vote on church union in James Street Methodist church is as follows,—Official Board 52 members. 22 for, 2 against; members of the church 626, over 18 years 319 for, 56 against; under 18 years 61 for, 2 against. adherents 18 for and 3 against.

The Main Street Methodist Church rolled up a handsome majority for union. The voting was completed last week with the following result,—Official Board for 38, against 0; Members over 18 years, for 281, against 3; under 18 years, for 46, against 0; adherents, for 29, against 2.

That the advance notices regarding the Roy English Hand Bell Ringers did not exaggerate the ability of the company to entertain the public, is the verdict of all those who heard them in the James Street church on Tuesday evening. Their playing was wonderful, the difficult classical pieces, such as "Caliph of Bagdad," Halleujah Chorus" and "Poet and Peasant" being played with the greatest accuracy, and as much ease as the simpler numbers. Not only was the bell ringing very good but the singing of several of the members of the company was very pleasing. Mr. Jessop, basso, has a wonderfully pleasant voice, while the tenor of Mr. Wain, and the alto of Mr. Charlesworth were also good. The church was filled and all are loud in their praise of the entertainment furnished. The company appears here again on Monday night next, and those who missed this treat should not miss it the second time.

In every country town there is a sign at the railroad crossing like this "Look out for the Cars". Now everybody in that town knew it was a railroad crossing the day the track was laid When the sign was put up it took two days—not longer— for every inhabitant it become familiar with it. In a week even the small children could read and spell it backward. Did the railroad take it down? No. If they had the warning would have been forgotten in a week and smash-ups and damage suits would have resulted. One-time advertisements act the same way. You must keep everlastingly at it, like the railroad crossing sign.

SAVE YOUR STRAW HATS—If your last year's straw hat is still in existence don't let it be cast away into the ash-barrel when the spring cleaning comes on, for you may need it. Straw hats are to cost more this year. The reason is that there is an enormous shortage in the Japanese straw crop, a shortage of many million pounds. A vast number of straw hats are made in Japan, but this year the output will be much smaller than usual and the world will have to reply upon other sources, with the inevitable result of higher prices. It is said that the manufacturers will get 12 cents a hat advance on last year's prices, and of course this 12 cents will be multiplied before it gets to the consumer. So last year's straws are worth saving.

Marriage is a lottery in which some people are never satisfied till they take three or four chances.

What is the good of holding the key to the situation if you cannot find the key hole.

HAPPILY WEDDED.—A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Main Street Methodist parsonage on Wednesday morning last, when Rev. E. G. Powell, united in marriage Mr. Albert Willis Etherington of Usborne, and Miss Bertha Lillian Cobbledick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Cobbledick, Exeter North. The ceremony was performed about eight o'clock in the morning, after which the happy couple took the train for Detroit, Brown City, Mich., Chicago and other points to spend their honeymoon. On their return they will settle down on the groom's fine farm in Usborne. The Advocate is pleased to join in wishing that adversity may never cast a shadow across their pathway.

DEATH OF VERCY HARDY.—The sad news was received here on Saturday last by Mr. and Mrs. Lancelot Hardy of the death the previous day of their son, Vercy Lancelot, at Denver, Colorado. Death was due to pneumonia of which the young man had been ill only a few days. The word of his demise was first sent to his sister, Mrs. James Wanless at Duluth, who gave instructions to have the remains sent to Exeter for interment. The late Mr. Hardy left Exeter several years ago, and after spending four or five years in the northwestern states and British Columbia, went to Denver, where he had since resided. Last summer he visited his parents here for several weeks, and the news of his death only a few months later came as a great shock to the relatives, who have the sincere sympathy of their many friends. Deceased when residing here was a general favorite of his companions, who greatly regret his early demise. He was 28 years of age. The remains arrived here on Tuesday evening and the funeral, which was of a private nature, took place from the parents residence Wednesday afternoon, interment being made in Exeter cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Wanless of Duluth arrived Tuesday morning to attend the funeral.

The music as rendered at Eastertide is beyond doubt the most tender yet beautiful of all the special seasons of the year. The choir of the Caven Presbyterian church are arranging for a very attractive program both for Easter Sunday and the following Monday evening. Assistance has been secured in Prof. Brown and Mr. L. C. Fleming of Galt, who will take part in all services.

A LITTLE LATE—Owing to the non-delivery by the Grand Trunk of our paper supply for this week's edition the Advocate is of necessity a little late. These unavoidable delays are even more annoying to us than to our subscribers but we have to grin and bear it.

RUSK—The sudden death occurred in Goderich on Monday night of last week of Mrs. James Rusk, after only a day's illness, the result of a paralytic stroke. Deceased was the mother of Mrs. W. C. Huston of morningside, Alta, formerly of Exeter, who will have the sympathy of her many old friends here. Two other daughters, Mrs. Ed. Swarts of Goderich, and Mrs. Hall of California also survive.

LIN. BISHOP DEAD—His many old friends here regret to hear of the death of former resident of Exeter, Mr Lindsay Bishop, eldest son of Mr. Harry Bishop, at the home of his father in Los. Angeles, California. Deceased was well and favorably known by the people of Exeter, when residing here several years ago. He was in his 37th year. Interment took place in Los. Angeles.

HICKS FORECAST FOR MARCH — A reactionary storm period falls at the center of Earth's vernal equinox—on the 22nd, 23rd and 24th. Should the barometer fall to very low readings especially in the south coasts and gulf regions at this period, with high temperature and humid atmosphere, tornadic storms, or West India hurricanes should be apprehended. Rain, turning to snow, will visit many interior parts, followed from the northwest by rising barometer, cold wave and gales from the norethwest. A regular storm period is central on the 28th, practically covering the last week in March. This does not mean that it will be storming everywhere all this time—only fools can so expect or so argue. Low barometer and cloudiness, and storms of rain, turning to snow will start in the west early in the period, will move eastward in successive days, preceded by falling barometer, fair and warmer weather, and followed from the westward by rising barometer, colder and clearing weather—all within the limits of, and days immediately following the storm period. Equinoctial storms are due at any storm period during this month, and one or more such storms may be reckoned as a certainity. The barometer should be watched at the oncoming of every period, and its faithful monitions carefully noted and heeded. Such precautions would save life and property.

THE MARRIAGE ACT

If there is any one thing in Canada that should be receiving the attention of Governments and experts, it is the marriage law. If there was as little care in the mating of beasts as there is in the mating of human beings we would have a much inferior grade of domestic animals than we have to-day The marriages of misfits and feeble-minded, drunkards and idiots is doing more to fill our asylums than any other thing.

Dr. Forbes Godfrey, a member of the Legislature for West York, will introduce a bill to amend the marriage act. It would prohibit any clergyman from solemnizing a marriage if he has reason to believe that either of the parties to the contract is an idiot, or insane or if either of them is under the influence of liquor.

A penalty of five hundard dollars is provided for the infraction of this law, and at the discretion of the court any minister violating this statute is also liable for imprisonment for any term up to twelve years. Responsibility is also placed upon the contracting parties and placed upon the issuer of licenses. An applicant for a marriage license, under the Godfrey bill, would be required to make a statutory declaration as to his mental condition.

If the issuer of licenses should have reason to suspect that the applicant were an imbecile, an epileptic, idiotic or insane, he must refuse the license until the certificate of a duly-qualified practitioner is obtained declaring that the applicant is not, on any of the grounds named, unfitted for matrimony. In case of the marriage license being issued in spite of the issuer having reason to suspect the applicant's soundness and not having the sanction of a medical certificate, the issuer shall be liable to a fine of $500.

BOYS THAT SUCCEED

A new boy came into our office to-day" said a wholesale grocery merchant to his wife at the supper table. 'He was hired by the firm at the request of the senior member, who thought the boy gave promise of good things. But I feel sure that the boy will be out of the office in less than a week."

'What makes you think so?" inquired his wife.

'Because the very first thing that he wanted to know was just exactly how much he was expected to do."

'Perhaps you will yet change your mind about him."

'Perhaps I shall," replied the merchant, 'but I do not think so."

Three days later the business man said to his wife, 'About that boy you remember, I mentioned two or three days ago. Well, he is the best boy who ever entered the store."

'How did you find that out?"

'In the easiest way in the world. The first morning after the boy began to work, he performed very faithfully and systematically the exact duties assigned him, which he had been so careful to have explained to him. When he had finished, he came to me and said; Mr. ——, I have finished all that work Now, what can I do?"

'I was a little surprised, but I gave him a little job of work and forgot all about him until he came into my room with the question, 'What next?' That settled it for me. He was the first boy that ever entered our office who was willing and volunteered to do more than was assigned him. I predict a successful career for that boy as a business man."

AILSA CRAIG—The funeral of Mrs. William Thompson, aged 85 years, took place from her son's residence in London Township on Monday afternoon, interment being made at Carlisle.—The remains of Mrs. Harper formerly of Ailsa Craig were brought from London on Monday and interment took place at Nairn.

THE MARCH ROD AND GUN.

'An Experience Off the Coast of Newfoundland; Hunting the Hair Seal" opens the March issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor Limited, Woodstock, Ont., and the interest of this article is a criterion of the interest of those that follow, which include articles descriptive of outdoor life from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Among these is the first of a series of articles on the Culture of Black and Silver Foxes, which should prove of value to the many seeking practical information on this subject. A new feature this month is the creation of a Game Conservation Department edited by Mr. Frank Hyde, wherein matters pertaining to the subject of game conservation will be freely discussed. As this subject is a live one at the present time and is likely to be for some time to come, or until the improved laws for which good sportsmen are agitating have been enacted, this department should prove of exceptional interest.

ITALIAN KING FIRED AT

The Would-be Assassin Declares That He Is An Anarchist

A despatch from Rome says: A dastardly attempt to assassinate King Victor Emmanuel of Italy was made by an Anarchist in Rome on Thursday morning. The would-be regicide chose for his attempt the anniversary of the birthday of the late King Humbert, the father of the present King, who himself died the victim of an assassin's blow at Monza on July 29, 1900. The King was fortunate enough to escape the shots fired at him from a revolver. They were several in number and were aimed from a very short distance. One of his Majesty's bodyguards, however, who was in the immediate vicinity of the King, was dangerously wounded. The unsuccessful attempt to assassinate the King was made as his Majesty, with Queen Helen, was proceeding from the Palace to the Pantheon to take part in the annual memorial service in honor of the late King Humbert. The Royal carriage was preceded and followed by an escort of Cuirassieurs. The procession was passing along the Via Lata when three shots rang out from amid the crowd. Consternation was on every face. The soldiers following the carriage immediately dashed forward, and as they did so their commander fell from his horse. The wounded officer was moved to one side by some of his men while the others dashed up to the Royal carriage, where they found the King and Queen sitting calm and unmoved.

Meanwhile the crowd seized the man who had fired the shots and attempted to lynch him. He was so badly handled that he was scarcely able to answer questions when he was handed over to the police.

REVOLVERS FREELY USED

Judge, Lawyer and Sheriff Slain in Virginia Court-room

A despatch from Hillsville, Virginia, says: In a flame of unprecedented outlawry the entire human fabric of the Carroll County Circuit Court, in session here on Thursday, was wiped out by assassination. Just as Judge Thornton Massie had sentenced Floyd Allen to one year in prison for aiding in the escape of a prisoner, two of Allen's brothers and several friends opened fire with revolvers. Judge Massie fell dead in his place on the Bench on the first volley. The weapons were then turned on the Commonwealth's Attorney, William Foster, and he sank to the floor with several bullets in his brain, death being instantaneous. Sheriff Lewis Webb, making a frantic effort to reach the ringleaders, was shot dead before he had taken ten steps. Several of the jurors who had tried the case were seriously wounded, J. H. Blankenship probably fatally. The Allens, including the prisoner and their friends, after the killing of the Sheriff, backed slowly out of the courtroom, holding all would-be pursuers in check at the point of revolvers. Once outside they made a dash for the mountains on horseback. Special officers are being rushed into the county to help in running down the murderers. Governor Mann is holding two companies of militia in readiness in case the Allens and their friends gather recruits in the mountain fastness.

Hillsville is in a remote quarter, fifteen miles from Barren Springs, the nearest railroad station.

COST OF LIVING GOING UP.

The Record Shows High-Water Mark for February.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Department of Labor wholesale prices record up to date shows a still higher level for February than for January, notwithstanding that the latter month was reported as having seen the highest prices since 1882-4, and possibly since 1873. The index number rose during February from 131.4 to 134.3, those being percentages of the average level of prices during the last decade of the last century. The upward movement was largely the result of advances in grains, animals and meats, dairy products and potatoes. Retail prices were also upward, especially in the food products derived from the lines above mentioned.

U. S. MINERS TO STRIKE

Conference in New York Breaks Up Without Result.

A despatch from New York says: "All negotiations with the anthracite coal operators are off," declared John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America, at the adjournment of the meeting on Friday afternoon between the miners and operators in which the miners declined the operators' counter-proposition. "I look for a general suspension of work on April 1," he added.

HARD TO DROP.

But Many Drop It.

A young Calif. wife talks about coffee:

"It was hard to drop Mocha and Java and give Postum a trial, but my nerves were so shattered that I was a nervous wreck and, of course, that means all kinds of ills. (Tea contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee and is equally harmful.)

"At first I thought bicycle riding caused it and I gave it up, but my condition remained unchanged. I did not want to acknowledge coffee caused the trouble, for I was very fond of it.

"About that time a friend came to live with us, and I noticed that after he had been with us a week he would not drink his coffee any more. I asked him the reason. He replied, 'I have not had a headache since I left off drinking coffee, some months ago, till last week, when I began again, here at your table. I don't see how anyone can like coffee, anyway, after drinking Postum'!

"I said nothing, but at once ordered a package of Postum. That was five months ago, and we have drank no coffee since, except on two occasions when we had company, and the result each time was that my husband could not sleep, but lay awake and tossed and talked half the night. We were convinced that coffee caused his suffering, so he returned to Postum, convinced that the coffee was an enemy, instead of a friend, and he is troubled no more by insomnia.

"I, myself, have gained 8 pounds in weight, and my nerves have ceased to quiver. It seems so easy now to quit the old coffee that caused our aches and ails and take up Postum." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

HOW THE HIGH RATE ON WESTERN MORTGAGES AFFECTED BANK SHARES.

Loan Companies Which Formerly Loaned Heavily to Speculators on Bank Shares as Security Found the Extra One or Two Per Cent. Too Great a Temptation—Failure of Several Banks Helped Make Them Less Popular.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible, of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor").

Not long ago, a business man was remarking on the altered position which bank stocks occupy now in the Canadian markets as compared with a few years ago. "Why," he said, "in 1897 or 1898 I made my expenses to Europe by buying a few shares of one bank—which one I have now forgotten—but if I had bought the same stock only five years ago and held it until to-day I should probably have lost heavily."

Undoubtedly he would have lost, as a large percentage of Canadian bank stocks are lower at the present time than they were then.

There are several reasons for this, which are not only not generally realized, but which have a very important bearing on bank stocks as investments.

Ten years ago the loan and trust companies commenced investing in Western farm mortgages. Up to that time they were satisfied with a modest interest of from 4 per cent. to 6 per cent., but the demands of the West put the price up to 8 per cent., and even to 10 per cent., and the loan companies, finding this a very satisfactory method of making money, naturally used all their surplus funds in investing out there, until now probably a very large proportion of their funds are so loaned. The insurance companies then followed suit, and now, instead of having large amounts of surplus funds available for loaning in the market—as they and the loan companies formerly did to a very considerable extent—they cut down the proportion of the money so used. They opened loaning offices in the West, employed skilled valuators and, as would be very costly in the case of an individual, took advantage of the high rates, without taking any chance to speak of.

Now what effect had this on bank stocks?

As might be inferred from the first paragraph of this article, in the '90's bank stocks were a popular medium of speculation. Men bought them on margin; that is to say, paid for them by borrowing money on the stock as security up to about 85 per cent. of its market value, and themselves putting up the 15 per cent. balance, which is known as "margin."

One of the very stringent laws concerning banking in Canada prevents one bank from loaning on the security of shares in any other bank, or of its own, and so it was that the loan, the trust and the insurance companies, and, of course wealthy individuals, alone could lend the speculators in bank shares the wherewithal to buy them. And just here is where the Western demand for money altered the position bank stocks were to occupy. Where formerly these companies could get from 4 1-2 per cent. to 6 per cent. for call loans (in those days more than the average mortgage paid) on bank shares, they could now get 8 per cent. on western mortgages, and so they naturally no longer took the same interest in call loans they formerly did. As a result, loans on bank shares became more and more difficult to obtain, until speculators found bank stocks by no means satisfactory, and gradually they were left to investors altogether, with the further result that they did not get the same attention in the market.

This is one very important cause of the change in the past few years, which removed bank stocks very largely from the realm of marginal speculations, and accounts partly for the lower prices of bank stocks during the past few years.

There is another reason, however, why bank stocks fell in price and this was the uneasiness caused to nervous investors by the failure of the Ontario, Sovereign and Farmers banks in Ontario, and a couple of small ones in Quebec. The Ontario failure, especially—which came as a surprise to all but a very few people—made people wonder whether their own investments were safe, and so the more timid rushed into the market with such unquestionable shares as those of the Bank of Montreal, Nova Scotia, Toronto and a score of others. Nor did the failure of the Sovereign and Farmers banks, a few years later, help matters, and many people who had, perhaps, put money into Dr. Beattie Nesbitt's bank, who wouldn't have trusted him with a cent personally, lost sight of the fact that the other banks were different.

And so, bank shares have come to be in strong hands at the present time, which is an important feature of an investment.

RIOT IN LANCASHIRE.

Miners Seized Pit Head and Fought the Police.

A despatch from London says: The first serious strike riot was reported from Haydock, in Lancashire, on Wednesday night. The strikers, who claimed that firemen had been employed to fill the coal tubs, seized the pit head and fought with the police, who were sent to dislodge them. Several of the strikers were injured and three policemen were seriously wounded. The rioters were repulsed, but the police were unable to make any arrests. The Government has issued notice to all local authorities that if the police at their command are unable to control the situation and prevent rioting to apply immediately for troops.

GREAT BATTLE IN TRIPOLI.

Italians Hurled 28 Bombs Into Turks' Camp.

A despatch from Rome says: Another battle has been fought in Tripoli, this time at Benghazi. The official announcement was made on Wednesday at the War Office and it is stated that 1,000 Turks and Arabs were killed. The loss on the Italian side was 29 killed and 62 wounded. The Turkish positions were captured after hard fighting. The Arabs left 400 dead on the field. The dirigible balloons hurled 28 bombs at the Turkish encampment at Zanzur, Tripoli, and created great havoc. Two of the bombs exploded in a caravan of 60 camels with disastrous results.

75,000 CASES OF SMALLPOX

Dr. Beaudry Says the Disease Is Epidemic in Quebec Province

A despatch from Montreal says: Dr. Beaudry, Chief Inspector of the Provincial Board of Health, estimates that there are over 75,000 cases of smallpox in the Province while the cases kept secret will probably increase this number. The contagion is distributed all over the Province, especially in the north, from Ottawa to the Lake St. John district, as much of it originates in the lumber camps. But it is not confined to the north, as was shown by the recent outbreak of Rigaud, where twenty cases were found in the college a week ago.

Since the beginning of the epidemic the Provincial authorities have found smallpox not reported to the proper authorities in five convents and two colleges, the last being that of Rigaud, which is still under quarantine.

GIRL WHO SHOT HER FATHER.

Ella Perry Acquitted on Ground of Self-Defence.

A despatch from Moose Jaw, Sask., says: Miss Ella Perry, a pretty seventeen-year-old girl, was on Thursday acquitted of shooting Louis T. Perry, her father, on the ground of self-defence. Perry, who is a merchant, struck his daughter, and she fired two shots into his body.

THE KING'S KINDLY ACT.

Helps Welsh Lad Who Had Lost His Feet.

A despatch from London says: A Welsh lad, Idris Thomas, who recently had to have both his feet amputated owing to tuberculosis, received from King George a gift of money to enable him to buy artificial feet. Thomas on Tuesday painfully made his way to Buckingham Palace for the purpose of personally thanking the King, who, however, at the time was absent. Hearing of the call and of the lad's disappointment, King George had him sent for and on Wednesday received him. His Majesty gave the lad a scarf pin as a memento of the occasion and sent him into Treloar Cripples' Home, where he is to be taught a trade.

A GREAT FINANCIAL INSTITUTION

The report of the business transacted in 1911 by the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, which the management of that institution placed before their shareholders and policyholders at their annual meeting on the 5th March, makes one realize that Canada has in this Company a concern big—even in these days of large undertakings.

Comparing the Life Assurance in force with that shown for 1910, an increase of over twenty-one millions of dollars is shown—the total being over one hundred and sixty-four millions.

The Assets now stand at almost forty-four millions, an increase of five and three-quarter millions of dollars over last year.

The income has grown to ten and one-half millions and the surplus is not far short of five millions of dollars.

Such figures tell of prudent and yet aggressive management and justify the confidence of the public.

6% INTEREST AND SAFETY

¶ Price Bros. and Company Bonds pay 6 per cent on the investment. They offer the strong security of first mortgage on 6,000 square miles of pulp and timber lands—which are insured at Lloyds against fire. The earnings of the Company at present approximate twice the bond interest. The new pulp mill in course of construction will double this earning power. Purchased at their present price they pay interest at the rate of 6 per cent. The best posted investors in Canada and England have purchased these bonds. Owing to the security and increasing demand of the products of the Company, these bonds will unquestionably increase in value.

MARCH WEATHER RHEUMATIC WEATHER

Victims Can Cure Themselves With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

With the coming of March people who are afflicted with rheumatism begin to have unpleasant reminders of their trouble. The weather is changeable—balmy and springlike one day, raw, cold and piercing the next. It is such sudden changes of weather that sets the pangs and tortures of rheumatism, lumbago and sciatica going. But it must be borne in mind that although weather conditions start the pains, the trouble is deeply rooted in the blood and can only be cured through the blood. All the lotions and liniments in the world can't cure rheumatism. Rubbing may seem to ease the pain while you are rubbing, but there its value ends. Only through the blood can you cure rheumatism. That's why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have so many thousands of cures of this trouble to their credit. The new, rich blood which they actually make drives out the poisonous acid, and rheumatism is vanquished. Here is an example. Mr. W. C. Douglas, Webbwood, Ont., says: "I was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism, which spread through my entire system. For two months I was not able to go about, and seemed to be hovering between life and death. My joints were swollen and my legs and arms twisted, until I expected that they would never return to their normal shape. The doctor seemed to help me, but not to cure me, and I would be better one day and worse the next. At this time a friend strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a dozen boxes. Soon after beginning the pills there was a change for the better, and I continued using the pills until I was quite well again. The swelling disappeared from the joints. My limbs returned to their natural shape and I feel as if Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved me from being a rheumatic cripple. I hope my experience may prove a blessing to some other sufferer."

If you suffer from rheumatism, or any other disease of the blood, begin to cure yourself to-day with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

KEEPING IN PRACTICE.

Why Irish Peasant Could Keep Up to Duke and Duchess.

Probably one of the heartiest laughs which the Duke of Connaught, now Governor-General of Canada, ever enjoyed, says the Tatler, was that occasioned by the remark of an Irish peasant, who one day, while the Duke was driving in Dublin with the Duchess, ran alongside the carriage and kept up with it in an astonishing fashion. So persistent was the man in his endeavors to keep pace with the carriage that at length the Duchess had the vehicle stopped, and asked the man what he wanted. He said that he was anxious to get a good look at their Royal Highnesses. The Duchess was much flattered, and asked him how he managed to keep up with them. "Oh," he said, "shure, haven't I been chasin' pigs all me loife!"

RASH SO BAD BABY CAME NEAR DYING

Head Broke Out. Spread to Arms, Legs and Entire Body. Itched So He Would Scratch Until Blood Ran. One Box of Cuticura Ointment and Nearly One Cake of Cuticura Soap Cured Him. Has Had No Return.

"When my boy was about three months old, his head broke out with a rash which was very itchy and ran a watery fluid. We tried everything we could but he got worse all the time, till it spread to his arms, legs, and then to his entire body. He got so bad that he came near dying. The rash would itch so that he would scratch till the blood ran, and a thin yellowish stuff would be all over his pillow in the morning. I had to put mittens on his hands to prevent him tearing his skin. He was so weak and run down that he took fainting spells as if he were dying. He was almost a skeleton and his little hands were thin like claws.

"He was bad about eight months when we tried Cuticura Remedies. I had not laid him down in his cradle in the daytime for a long while. I washed him with Cuticura Soap and put on one application of Cuticura Ointment and he was so soothed that he could sleep. You don't know how glad I was he felt better. It took one box of Cuticura Ointment and pretty near one cake of Cuticura Soap to cure him. I think our boy would have died but for the Cuticura Remedies and I shall always remain a firm friend of them. He was cured more than twenty years ago, and there has been no return of the trouble. I shall be glad to have you publish this true statement of his cure." (Signed) Mrs. M. C. Maitland, Jasper, Ontario, May 27, 1910.

For more than a generation mothers have found a speedy, agreeable and economical treatment for their skin-tortured little ones in Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Although they are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a liberal sample of each may be obtained free, from the Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., 82 Columbus Ave., Boston, U.S.A.

MARCONI'S HUMOR

Gugilielmo Marconi, the wireless wizard, who has been much in the public eye lately by reason of the part he has played in the war between Italy and Turkey and because of his reported discovery of mastless wireless, had an Irish mother, and naturally possesses a sense of humor.

The first time Marconi visited Toronto, some years ago, he was given a big banquet. One of the speakers, a prominent citizen, in heaping eulogies on the guest, by a slip of the tongue, used the word "done" when he should have said "did." Signor Marconi's English is excellent, and in the course of his speech he remarked, in referring to a phase of his work: "I scarcely know how I did—I mean, done it." There was a twinkle in his eye, and everybody roared.

"Well, boy, what do pou know? Can you write a business letter? Can you do sums?"

BABY'S OWN TABLETS CURE CONSTIPATION

No ailment causes more suffering to little ones than does constipation. Hardly a little one escapes this trouble—many of them suffer from it continually. The surest cure and safest remedy—one that is absolutely guaranteed to be free from harmful drugs—is Baby's Own Tablets. They never fail—they have cured thousands of cases. Concerning them Mrs. Lev. Blanchet, St. Racine, Que., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for constipation and vomiting and have found them an excellent remedy, and I have recommended them to several of my neighbors." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Best Liver Pill.—The action of the liver is easily disarranged. A sudden chill, undue exposure to the elements, over-indulgence in some favorite food, excess in drinking, are a few of the causes. But whatever may be the cause, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills can be relied upon as the best corrective that can be taken. They are the leading liver pills, and they have no superiors among such preparations.

HIS FAVORITE PARABLE.

A country clergyman on his round of visits interviewed a youngster as to his acquaintance with Bible stories.

"My lad," he said, "you have, of course, heard of parables?"

"Yes, sir," shyly answered the boy, whose mother had instructed him in sacred history, "yes, sir."

"Good," said the clergyman. "Now, which of them do you like the best?"

The boy squirmed; but at last heeding his mother's frowns he replied:

"I guess I like that one where somebody loafs and fishes."

THAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURE SUFFERING WOMEN.

Mrs. Savard Tells How They Cured Her Kidney Disease From Which She had been a Sufferer for Many Years.

St. Simeon, Doriel, Charlevoix Co., Quebec, March 11 (Special).—Only those who have suffered know the blessings of perfect health. The joy that it brings into their lives makes them want to shout the good news from the housetops. They want other sufferers to know the road to health. Such is the case with Mrs. Alfred Savard of this place.

"I have been a sufferer for many years with Kidney Disease," Mrs. Savard says, "Reading an advertisement telling what Dodd's Kidney Pills had done for a similar sufferer I decided to give them a trial. Six boxes cured me completely."

What Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for Mrs. Savard they have done for thousands of other sufferers in Canada. The daily papers tell of cures made by them every day. They always cure Kidney Disease and Kidney Disease is the cause of nine-tenths of the troubles from which women suffer.

CHURCH OF HID TREASURE.

Its Walls Said to Contain a Chest Full of Money and Jewels.

A small building popularly known as "The Church of Hidden Treasure" stands in the little town of Barelas, New Mexico. During the Mexican war many of the richest families in the neighborhood hid their gold and valuables in all sorts of curious places.

Senor Sandoval, a very rich landowner, chose the thick walls of the village church as his treasure vault, according to a writer in the Wide World, and tradition says that the precious hoard has never been removed.

Only a few years ago several groups of men, armed with pickaxes, crowbars and other implements, beseiged the place in search of the fabulous wealth said to be concealed somewhere on the premises. The treasure is believed to be contained in a large wooden chest, such as most of the wealthy Mexicans formerly possessed. It is claimed that the box contained thousands of dollars in gold, besides emeralds, diamonds and pearls, set in pure native gold.

The Sandoval family, however, guard the place most carefully, while they in turn are jealously watched to see that they do not disturb the church property. Bold and daring plans are sometimes laid, but nothing seems to come of them, and the ancient building still guards its precious secret.

HOW TO HOLD YOUR JOB.

Factory Commandments Contain Good Advice.

A manufacturer posted these comandments in his large establishment:—

1. Don't lie. It wastes my time and yours. I'm sure to catch you in the end, and that's the wrong end.
2. Watch your work, not the clock. A long day's work makes a long day short, and a day's short work makes my face long.
3. Give me more than I expect and I'll pay you more than you expect. I can afford to increase your pay if you increase my profits.
4. You owe so much to yourself that you can't afford to owe anybody else.
5. Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men, like good women, always scorn temptation when they meet it.
6. Mind your own business, and in time you will have a business of your own to mind.
7. Don't do anything here which hurts your self-respect; the employe who is willing to steal for me is capable of stealing from me.
8. It's none of my business what you do at night, but if dissipation affects what you do the next day, and you do half as much as I demand, you'll last half as long as you hoped.
9. Don't tell me what I'd like to hear, but what I ought to hear.
10. Don't kick if I kick; if you're worth correcting, you're worth keeping.

A FIREMAN'S PERIL.

How Zam-Buk Delivered Him.

At 215 Fraser Ave., Edmonton, Alta., lives W. P. Mahy, a former member of the local fire brigade, who has wonderful cause to be thankful for the curative powers of Zam-Buk. He says: "A serious skin disease broke out on my face, and spread until I was in a terrible state. The spots and little ulcers were frightfully irritating, and yet when scratched or rubbed they bled and smarted. Shaving caused me agony, and sometimes I would have to go two weeks without a shave. I tried home-made remedies, herb salves, and various other preparations, but the sores got no better. When Zam-Buk was mentioned I had little faith that it would be able to do me any good. I gave it a fair trial, however, and the first box made such a wonderful change for the better that it gave me encouragement to continue. I did so, and to cut a long story short, Zam-Buk, in the end, quite cured me."

Zam-Buk cures eczema, blood poison, ulcers, chronic sores, piles, ringworm, cold sores, cuts, burns and skin injuries. All druggists and stores at 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse substitutes.

THURSDAY, MAR. 21, '12

Talking of Germany and the United States and other countries overtaking Great Britain because of the childish views on economics held by the Old Lady, what do you think of the following figures showing the shipbuilding tonnage of the principal European countries, including the United States.

	Tons
United Kingdom	2,042,928
Germany	326,754
France	176,212
United States	146,711
Holland	121,295
Austria-Hungary	51,654
	822,626

Great Britain built a larger tonnage during 1911 than was ever built by any ed such figures before. Great Britain's nation in one year in the history of the world. It may even be doubted if all other nations put to-gether ever reach own record for 1906 probably comes nearest to the figures of the past year the 1906 figures being, however, only 2,000,000 tons. Germany is commonly supposed to be showing some considerable growth in commerce and in shipbuilding, and no doubt she is. But her shipbuilding in 1911, put alongside that of Great Britain, makes her look like a Chinese yen. In 1910, the tonnage built by Germany was only 288,758 tons, so that the increase was some where around 40 per cent. That is very satisfactory so far as it goes, but it will have to go a long time till it even threatens the two-million mark. In fact, as may readily be seen, five of the largest shipbuilding countries of the world, combined, only built 822,626 tons or less than one-half the amount built by the United Kingdom alone.

When Canada next tries to instruct the Old Lady in the art of making progress and keeping the lead, she may well retaliate in the homely rejoinder supposed to be so popular in the agricultural communities, 'Now child, y' can't teach your old grandma how to suck eggs."—Saturday Night.

The following from a real estate firm in Edmonton, undoubtedly applies to other western cities as well.—"Practically every day of the week we are called upon to quote the values of Edmonton subdivision property purchased by some unfortunate being from a visiting salesman in Winnipeg and the East, and in the large majority of cases the buyer has been 'stung' to twice or over the actual selling value of the property in this city. It is a very lucrative business this selling land away from home. Take for example a certain instance we have in mind. A smart, crooked talker purchased from a real estate man two blocks of lots in a subdivision at $50 per lot with terms of one-quarter cash, balance six, twelve and eighteen months, he visited Winnipeg and sold these same lots for $250 per lot, one-quarter cash, six, twelve and eighteen months. How he did it we hardly know, but he was a smart, crooked talker. It does not matter a tinker's cuss to this man whether the buyer gets wise and refuses to complete his contract, for he drew out of the first payment sufficient cash to buy the lots outright and make a good profit besides. We cannot understand why the Easterner does not comprehend that if the property is such good buying the seller could dispose of it in his home town. There is without the slightest doubt an excellent future for Edmonton and Edmonton real estate, but this placing upon the market lots so far out is both hurtful to the real estate broker and the city in which he endeavors to earn his livelihood."

ELIMVILLE

An Unpleasant Experience.—Rev. T. A. Steadman and wife and little daughter met with a very unpleasant accident on Tuesday last, while returning home from Woodham. It appears they were driving along the road in a cutter and while crossing Turnbull's bridge just east of Winchelsea the horse became choked by the breast collar, and taking a plunge landed out over the bridge, taking the cutter and occupants with it, into a deep pool of water. The horse lay prostrate and had it not been for Mr. Steadman's assistance in lifting its head out of the water doubtless it would have drowned. Mr. Steadman and the little girl managed to escape without much of a wetting, but Mrs. Steadman did not fare so well, she receiving a terrible drenching. Eventually Mr. Steadman got matters adjusted and they continued on their way rejoicing that matters were not worse. The only thing broken was a small strap on the harness.

Presentation and Address.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hawkins, concession 6, Usborne, was the scene of a pleasant event on Tuesday night, March 19th, the occasion being the gathering of about sixty of the neighbors and friends to do honor and show a worthy appreciation of the good qualities of the host and hostess, prior to their retiring from the farm and moving to Exeter. Shortly after all had got nicely settled Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins were called forward, when Mr. Frank Coates read the following address and Messrs. Russell Skinner and H. Coultis presented them with two elegant easy chairs, upholstered with leather. Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins were entirely taken by surprise, but Mr. Hawkins, on behalf of himself and worthy wife made a suitable and becoming reply, following which a choice program of musical selections singing, speeches, etc., was rendered, Mr. John Essery, acting as chairman. To Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hawkins:—

Dear Friends,—For about thirty years we, your neighbors and friends, have known you and during that period you have endeared yourselves to us. You, Mr. Hawkins, have not only been a good neighbor, but your influence was felt as you served for six years on the School Board and then you evidently were called to do larger things in township work. For ten years you sat at the Council Board, four out of which, you represented us in County Council. There you proved yourself a worthy representative. And now that the evening is far spent we desire to take this privilege of expressing our appreciation of you and your wife's kindness. You have both been earnest in your duties and your untiring efforts will ever be remembered with gratitude. As a slight token of our feelings for you we ask you both to accept these chairs and our sincerest regards for your labors among us. We hope to have the pleasure of gathering together with you again in the future and when done with the things of this earth may we all meet as one great throng in the fairest home above.

Signed on behalf of your neighbors and friends.

Money Back Dandruff Cure

W. S. COLE GUARANTEES PARISIAN SAGE FOR DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR

Destroy the Dandruff germs, that's the only known way to eradicate dandruff, and PARISIAN SAGE contains just the ingredients that will destroy germs.

Dandruff causes falling hair and baldness because the little dandruff germs rob the hair roots of the nourishment that should go to supply life, luster, and vigor to the hair.

PARISIAN SAGE costs but 50 cents a bottle at W. S. Cole's, and druggists everywhere. It is guaranteed to banish dandruff, stop falling hair or scalp itch, or money back. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. It is a most delightful and daintily perfumed dressing that quickly invigorates the scalp.

"My hair was falling out badly until I began to use PARISIAN SAGE, but it looks fine now. My hair was getting very thin, but it is getting thick and wavy."—Eliza Archer, 60 Church St., Hartford, Conn., June 5.

So many mothers are confronted by this question that the following suggestions may satisfactorily answer your child the next time she confronts you with such a demand. Try making vegetable furniture.

In preparing the vegetables give the child a thin slice of potato or carrot or any vegetable of that description and allow her to hold it up to the light. She will be amazed and delighted at the beauties it contains. Show how the apple sliced horizontally through the core displays the star, which she will at once connect with the blossom.

Wonderful sets of furniture may be constructed from slices of vegetables and match sticks. A piece of carrot with four match sticks makes a charming table, while two slices of carrot cut lengthwise may be converted into a comfortable sofa, the back fastened on with match sticks and four legs added. Innumerable other forms will suggest themselves to the child, and always encourage originality and inventiveness.

There are many possibilities in a handful of small grain, such as rice, hominy or barley, or, best of all, lentils, if you have them. Spread these out on the table, and many objects may be made in mass, such as circles or apples, or any vegetable and fruit. These will then suggest different animal forms or trees. Another way of using lentils is to make the shape of the desired object by putting one grain next to another and then filling in the outline with the rest of the seeds.

Another game growing out of this one may be played with a piece of string, not too heavy. First allow the child to experiment with it and then suggest laying a circle. One dent in the outline will make an apple, another opposite will suggest a butterfly or a spool, three dents a three leaf clover and four dents a flower.

This will suggest straightening out the curves into points to form a star or into lines to make a square, or a small circle with a string is a toy balloon or is modified into a kite. Besides these the outlines of vegetables or fruits or kitchen utensils are made, not to mention scrolls and other conventional forms.

Until now no mention has been made of the delights of baking day. Oh, the joy of a piece of dough and the tin lid of a baking powder can! What delectable pies and cakes are made, what sumptuous feasts are served to dolly!

Swimming Without Water.

The school children of Germany are taught to swim without the use of water. It is claimed that the proper stroke and motions of the arms and legs are more readily acquired in this manner than in the water, as is the more general way of teaching swimmers. The student is suspended by a wide belt from on overhead rail, while the feet are attached to a pair of ropes running over pulleys and adjustable to various requirements. The pupils thus suspended are then taught how to perform the movements of the breast stroke until the action becomes almost instinctive. The advantage in teaching these movements in such a way is that the pupil is not distracted by the fear of a ducking.

Chewing Gum For Children.

After all the sarcastic comments on the chewing gum habit it is interesting to note in a recent issue of American Medicine a good word in its favor. Dr. La Grand Kerr writes that one of the most trying problems in infectious diseases of children is to keep the mouth clean and that many of the secondary infections which occur as a result of infectious diseases in childhood occur because the mouth has not been kept clean. He adds that children rebel against the cleansing process while they are ill, and he advises the use of chewing gum as offering the easiest and best relief.

Training Children.

Obedience, order and cleanliness are the three most important points to instill into a child's mind.

When baby is old enough to understand simple nursery rules he should be taught that rules are made to be kept at all times.

Mothers and nurses who are not skilled in the science of medicines and children's diseases should never give drugs to young children without the advice of a physician.

When the Baby Doesn't Gain.

If a child is delicate and there is a question of his not gaining in weight he should be weighed frequently.

When he does not gain in weight his food is not nourishing him properly, and a change should be made.

But if he is healthy and hearty and shows no signs of wasting there is no object in weighing him every week unless it is for the satisfaction of his fond and admiring parents.

A Mending Hint.

The best way to reduce mending is to guard against it. One reason why children's clothes rip is because the seams are sewed with cotton thread, which is brittle. Any dress which will be given hard wear should be made up entirely of silk. The sun and water rot cotton, but do not affect the silk.

HOW TO PRESERVE YOUTH AND BEAUTY.

One great secret of youth and beauty for the young woman or the mother is the proper understanding of her womanly system and well-being. Every woman, young or old, should know herself and her physical make up. A good way to arrive at this knowledge is to get a good doctor book, such for instance, as "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by R. V. Pierce, M. D., which can readily be procured by sending thirty-one cents for cloth-bound copy, addressing Dr. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. Y.

The womanly system is a delicate machine which can only be compared to the intricate mechanism of a beautiful watch which will keep in good running order only with good care and the proper oiling at the right time, so that the delicate mechanism may not be worn out. Very many times young women get old or run down before their time through ignorance and the improper handling of this human mechanism. Mental depression, a confused head, backache, headache, or hot flashes and many symptoms of derangement of the womanly system can be avoided by a proper understanding of what to do, in those trying times that come to all women.

MRS. WILLIAMS.

MRS. G. H. WILLIAMS, of Lynnhaven, Va., wrote: "It is six years since my health gave way. I had female trouble and all the doctors (I employed three) said I would die. I was not able to do my work, had to hire someone all the time. Finally, I read in the papers about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and decided to try it. I had not taken but one bottle until I found it had done me good. I took, in all, five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and now I am able to do all my housework, and have gained fourteen pounds. I advise all women who suffer from female trouble to try your 'Favorite Prescription.' It's the only medicine on earth."

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $15 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

CURIOSITY Prompted Many Women To Try PURITY FLOUR

THEY were curious to see exactly what results would be produced by flour consisting entirely of the high-grade portions of the best Western hard wheat.

They were curious to know more about a flour that contained none of the low-grade portions, which are found in every wheat berry, but which are separated and excluded from the high-grade in the process of milling PURITY FLOUR.

THEY were curious to know whether an ALL HIGH-GRADE hard wheat flour was really superior to a mixed hard and soft wheat flour.

They were curious to see and taste the kind of bread, buns, biscuits, cakes and pies PURITY FLOUR would make.

Curiosity prompts you to seek the knowledge they discovered. It's urging you to try PURITY FLOUR.

REMINDER: On account of the extra strength and extra quality of PURITY FLOUR it is necessary, for best pastry-results, to add more shortening than you are accustomed to use with an ordinary flour. Add more water when making bread.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER XIX.—(Cont'd)

"What shall we answer?" said Daubeney, breaki'g in upon the barrister's train of thought.

"Oh, say that the signal is fully understood."

Whilst the answering flags were being displayed Daubeney asked—

"What does it all mean?"

"It means," said Brett, "that if the Blue Bell has another yard of speed in her engines we shall need it all. It perhaps will make no material difference in the long run, but as a mere matter of pride I should like to reach Palermo before Gros Jean. If I remember rightly, Palermo is six hours from Messina by rail. Can we do it?"

"Mac," the chief engineer, was consulted. Of course, he would not commit himself.

"We will try darned ha-r-rd," he said.

And with this emphatic resolve the Blue Bell sped onwards through the sunlit sea until, late in the evening, the Ganges was hull down on her quarted.

Macpherson came on deck to take a last look at the P. and O.

"It will be a gr-reat race," he announced, "and I may have to kill a stoker. But——"

Then he dived below again.

The Blue Bell ran merrily on until the small hours of morning, when everybody on board was suddenly awakened by the stoppage of the screw.

The passengers on board the Blue Bell one and all found some pretext to gain the deck in their eagerness to find out why the vessel had slowed down. The answer was a reassuring one. She had burnt a flare for a pilot, and quickly an answering gleam came from afar out of the darkness ahead.

The pilot was soon on board. He was an Italian, but, like most members of his profession doing business in these waters, he spoke French fluently.

Brett asked him how long, with the north-easterly breeze then blowing, a small sailing vessel, such as a schooner-rigged fishing-smack, would take to reach Palermo from Marseilles.

"It is a trip not often made, monsieur," he said. "Fishing vessels from Marseilles are frequently compelled to take shelter under the lea of Corsica or even Sardinia, but here—in Sicily—why should they come here?"

"Oh, I don't mean a schooner engaged in the fishing trade, but rather a small vessel chartered for pleasure, taking the place, as it were, of a private yacht."

"Ah," said the Italian, "that explains it. Well, monsieur, with this breeze I should imagine they would set their course round by the north of Corsica in order to avoid beating through the Straits of Bonifacio. That would make the run about 650 knots, and a smart little vessel carrying all her sails and properly ballasted, might reach Palermo in a few hours over three days."

"Thank you," said Brett. "Is Palmero a difficult port to make?"

"Oh no, monsieur. There is deep water all round here, no shoals, and but few isolated rocks, which are all well known. The only thing to guard against is the changeful current. Brett smiled.

"It would be an ignoble conclusion to the chase if the Belles Soeurs were wrecked with her valuable cargo. I most devoutly pray," he said to himself, "that the breezes and currents may combine to bring Dubois safely on shore. Then I think we can deal with him."

Soon after daybreak the Blue Bell, after a momentary halt at the Customs Station, crept past the Castello a Mare, and amidst much gesticulation, accompanied by a torrent of volcanic Italian, she was tied up to a wharf in the Cala—the small inner harbor of the port.

Edith, who could not sleep since the advent of the pilot, made an early toilet and climbed to the bridge, whence she had a magnificent view of the sunrise over the beautiful city that stands on the Conca d'Ora, or Golden Shell—the smiling and luxuriant plain that seems to be provided by Nature for man's habitation.

Naturally Fairholme was drawn to her side.

"Italy is a fine country," he remarked. "Yet there are more murders to the square inch there than in any other place on earth."

Edith laughed. "Really, Bobby," she pouted, "you are becoming sentimental. I half expect to find you break out into verse."

"I can do that, too," she said, 'though it is not my own. Hasn't Heber got a hymn which tells us of a place where

Every prospect pleases,
And only man is vile.

I forget the rest of it."

Miss Talbot faced him rapidly.

"Bobby, what is the matter with you? I never knew you in such a melting mood before."

"How can I help it?" he half-whispered, laying his hand on her shoulder. "We have never been together so much before in our lives. Don't you realize, Edith, what it means to us if Mr. Brett discovers those diamonds within the next few hours or days?"

He bent closer towards her and his hand passed from her shoulder round her neck. "When we return to England, if you are willing, we can be married within a week."

A bright flush suffused her beautiful face. She bent her head and was silent. It is quite certain that Fairholme would have kissed her had not Daubeney shouted—

"Look here, you two, flirting on the bridge is strictly forbidden. You will demoralize the whole crew. Even the pilot cannot keep his eyes off you."

They laughed and giggled like a couple of children caught stealing gooseberries. Yet the incident and the words were fraught with a solemn significance which often came back to their minds in other days.

The party breakfasted on board and then set out to survey the hotels. Brett's first care was to ascertain the scheduled hours of the train service between Messina and Palermo. To his joy he discovered that neither Winter nor the gang he was shadowing could possibly reach the city until a quarter to four in the afternoon. They decided in favor of the Hotel de France as being most modern in its appearance and centrally situated.

The next thing to do was to provide an efficient watch on all sailing vessels entering the harbor, and here the pilot proved to be a valuable ally. Brett explained to him that he was most anxious to meet some people who were coming from Marseilles on a fishing smack named the Belles Soeurs, No. 107. It was possible, he explained, that both the number and the name might be obliterated, so he wished the pilot, or any helpers he might employ for the duty, to take particular note of all strange boats answering to this description, and at once report their appearance. This the man guaranteed to do. He said that it was quite impossible for a French-rigged smack to enter Palermo without attracting his notice.

By approaching the police authorities and requesting their co-operation, and also using Gros Jean and the Turks as a stalking-horse, Brett felt tolerably certain that the time would soon arrive when Dubois and he would stand face to face.

In making these manifold preparations the morning passed rapidly. The barrister insisted that his companions should go for a drive whilst he busied himself with the necessary details, and they should meet at the hotel for the midday meal. It was then that he singled out Sir Hubert for his personal share in the pursuit.

"You know Mr. Winter?" he said to the baronet.

"Yes, I remember him perfectly."

"In that case I wish you to go to the station and meet the 3:45 p.m. train on arrival. You will probably see the Turks and Gros Jean, but pay no attention to them. Keep a bright lookout for Mr. Winter. Walk up quite openly and speak to him, and the probability is that should Gros Jean have become suspicious of this Englishman who follows in the same track as himself, your presence on the platform will convince him that he was mistaken in imagining the slightest connection between Winter's journey and his own."

"That is good," said the major-general. "It would never have occurred to me. Any other commands?"

"None save this," continued Brett, smiling at the old soldier's eagerness to obey implicitly any instructions given to him. "When you meet Winter, tell him if possible so to direct his movements as to find out Gros Jean's destination, if it can be done without giving the Frenchman the slightest cause for uneasiness. Otherwise the matter is of no consequence. I have already interviewed the chief of police here, and it will only be a question of an hour's delay before the local detectives effectually locate the quarters occupied by Gros Jean and the Turks."

CHAPTER XX.

Sir Hubert was all eagerness to undertake his mission. He reached the station at least half an hour too soon.

At last the train arrived. To Sir Hurbert's delight, he at once caught sight of Gros Jean and the Turks, whom, of course, he quickly identified as to the loungers on the tower of the Chateau d'If.

It occurred to him that there was a remote chance of recognition by Gros Jean, so he busied himself for an instant in a seeming scrutiny of the bookstall until they had passed. A little further down the platform he caught sight of Inspector Winter, that worthy individual being engaged in a fiercely unintelligible controversy with an Italian porter as to the possession of his portmanteau.

Sir Hubert hurried forward, and seized the amazed policeman by his hand, wringing it warmly.

The stolid detective quickly recovered himself, and his first words were— "Did Mr. Brett fully understand my signal?"

"I think so," said the other; "but he will tell you all about that afterwards. At present he wishes you to ascertain Gros Jean's intended residence."

"Oh, that is too easy," he condescended to explain. "I have been talking to him."

"You don't say so!"

"Yes, I have. My French is bad, and his English is worse, but he understands that I am in the wholesale grocery trade. I have come to Palermo to buy currants!"

"Most extraordinary! How very clever of you!"

Mr. Winter drew himself up with an air of professional pride.

"That is nothing, sir," he said. "We often make queer acquaintanceships in the way of business. But Gros Jean is a smart chap. He eyed me curiously when he happened to hear that I was the fifth passenger who wished to leave the steamer at Messina, so I took the bull by the horns and made myself useful to him in the matter of getting his baggage out of the hold."

Meanwhile the subject of their conversation had quitted the station, and Sir Hubert's respect for Mr. Winter's powers as a sleuth-hound yielded to anxiety lest the slippery Frenchman might vanish once and for all.

"Hadn't we better follow him?" he suggested.

Mr. Winter winked knowingly. "Don't be anxious, sir. He wants to be seen in my company. He believes I am here for trading purposes, and the association will be useful to him."

Nevertheless the baronet was glad to find that Mr. Winter's confidence was not misplaced, when, ten minutes later, he again encountered the Frenchman and the Turks at the door of the Campo Santo, a cheap hotel near the square that forms the center of Palermo.

The detective was eminently suited for the role he now filled.

"Ah, monsoo," he cried with boisterous good humor, "permittez-moi introducer un friend of mine, Monsoo Smeeth, de Londres you know. Je ne savez pas les noms de votre companiongs, but they are tres bons camarades, je suis certain."

Gros Jean was most complaisant. "It ess von grand plaisir, m'sieu," he said, whilst the Turks gravely bowed their acknowledgments.

DON'T think that concrete can be used only for building bridges, silos, walls and walks; because if you do, you will probably overlook all the places where you can use it now.

T. L. Irving, of North Georgetown, Quebec, used concrete for 81 different purposes on his farm in 1911.

There are probably at least a dozen profitable uses for concrete on your farm at the present moment.

Perhaps you haven't thought of Concrete, except for a new barn, or a silo, or some other big improvement for which you aren't quite ready yet. That's why you should read

"What The Farmer Can Do With Concrete"

It will open your eyes to the hundreds of uses that other farmers have found for this material. In plain language, and with the aid of many photographs, it explains just what these uses are, and how they can be applied to your farm.

Concrete can not only be used for all the purposes to which wood has been applied, but also many others for which wood would never be suitable.

It is not only a building material; it's a "handy" material, something that you'll grow to depend upon more and more, as you learn its possibilities.

So write for this book. You'll find it isn't a catalogue, nor an argument for you to buy our cement. Every one of its 160 pages is devoted to telling you what farmers have done and can do with concrete.

HOUSEHOLD

HOME PAPER HANGING.

First, in selecting the paper, select a pattern that will match easily and that can be cut without much waste. This rule may be layed down, that large figures should be avoided in small rooms. A dark room or one on the north side of a house, may be brightened by using a warmer tone of paper than in a room with a sunny exposure. A soft shade of yellow or deep cream is desirable to see day after day, and has the advantage of harmonizing well with nearly all colors of carpets, curtains, etc. Pale sage green or cold blue may be used with good effect in a room where the bright sunlight streams the greater part of the day. Striped paper increases the apparent height of the room. Never choose a pattern with wave-like lines, or one with a decided figure, for a bedroom. In case of sickness the invalid will almost involuntarily count the spots or follow the wriggling lines on the paper. A soft ingrain paper of one color is restful to the eye.

If their are more than two layers of paper on the walls they should be removed. Pull off as much of the old paper as you can get off, then saturate what still sticks to the wall, with warm water; let it stand a half-hour then saturate it again, and the paper can be easily scraped off with a knife blade. Remove all nails and fill the holes with putty or else a paste made of plaster-Paris and cold water. Whitewashed walls should be washed with water and strong vinegar. Use one quart of strong acid vinegar to two of water, apply the solution well around the casings, baseboards and corners.

As the paste is to be used cold, it would be best to make it the day before using. To every quart of well sifted flour, add a teaspoon of powdered alum, mix smooth with cold water, and pour in boiling water, stirring rapidly, till the paste is of the consistency of thick cream. Remove it from the stove as soon as it comes to a boiling point; strain it through a flour sieve or colander. If the paste is lumpy, the air will not all pass out from under the paper and as the paper is drying it will crack wherever there is an air bubble. Pour in a little cold water on top of the paste to prevent a scum from forming.

Do not undertake to paper a room without a helper. If you have no assistant change off work with a neighbor. A smooth board, the exact length and width of the paper will facilitate the work of spreading the paste. If you have nothing better, an extension table will do nicely. Begin with the ceiling. Measure it the shortest way of the room, ascertain how many strips will be required and cut and match them before spreading the paste. Cut the strips fully two inches longer than the measurement of the ceiling. This extra amount is to allow the paper to lap down an inch upon the walls at both sides, which is necessary to insure a neat finish when the border is put on.

Now draw a guiding line across the ceiling with a lead pencil as wide as the paper. Use a clean whitewash brush to spread the paste. If the paste is too thick to spread well, thin it out with cold water. Spread it evenly, being careful not to leave any dry spots of paper. Turn up two or three feet of the paper to make it easier to handle, with the pasted sides together, with your helper's aid, lift the paper to the ceiling, and when you have it matched press the edges of the paper on the wall, then let the helper turn back the folded end, and when it is all nicely matched, brush the rest of the paper to place with a clean whisk broom. If wrinkles appear, gently pull the paper loose, remove the wrinkles, and press the paper in place again. Air bubbles should be pricked with a pin to allow all the air to escape. If the seams of the paper are lapped from the light they will be less noticeable.

To hang the paper on the side walls, follow the instructions as given for the ceiling. Cut the strips long enough to extend down on the baseboard about an inch when the paper is applied. Press it down on the baseboard. Then loosen it and cut off the paper below the mark made by the baseboard, and press the paper to place again. This is the only way to get a neat finish to the baseboard.

SELECTED RECIPES.

Bacalao.—Fry three slices of salt pork and four sliced onions. Add one can of tomatoes, and one pound of salt fish which has been soaked for several hours and cut in small pieces. Cook one hour. Serve with one cup of rice which has been boiled in plenty of salted water for one hour.

Southern Cranberry Muffins. — Beat one-third cupful of butter to a cream; gradually beat in one-quarter cupful of sugar, one egg beaten light, three-quarters cupful of sweet milk, two cupfuls of sifted flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking-powder and a pinch of salt. When these have been well mixed, beat in one cupful of cranberries, cut in halves. Bake about twenty-five minutes in well-buttered muffin-pans. The muffins may be served as dessert, with a cream sauce poured over them.

Red Pea Soup.—A delicious soup for the winter months is made as follows: Boil one quart of peas in two quarts of water until they are half-done. Then add one pound of bacon or a ham bone with a little meat on it. When the peas are thoroughly boiled, take out and rub them through a colander or coarse sieve. Put the pulp back into the pot with the bacon or the bone, and season with pepper, salt and some chopped celery. Boil the soup until it is quite thick and serve with a slice of lemon in each plate.

Savory Bean Loaf.—Brown or golden beans, or black or white haricot beans may be pressed into service for this dish. Boil or steam them tender, then mash smooth; add half as much brown bread in crumbs as there is bean mush, ground black pepper and salt to taste, a small onion chopped and browned, and the yolk of one egg. Mix well together with the hands, and form into a large ball flattened top and bottom, dip first in the unbeaten white of egg, then roll in cracker-crumbs; repeat and put in the oven, basting it well with vegetable butter or drippings till nicelp browned. When cooking beans remember not to add an salt till they are tender; salt hardens the outer skin and causes the bean to be indigestible. The same rule holds good for peas and lentils.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Clean white felt hats with magnesium, rubbing with woollen cloth.

Stains on brown boots can generally be removed by rubbing with methylated spirit. Then clean and polish in the usual way.

Some people wash the hair with tar soap after an egg shampoo, but the plain egg is cleansing and leaves the hair much softer than if soap is used with it.

Take a large mouthed bottle, half fill it with turpentine, tie a string around the neck, and hang it up in a closet or wherever the moths are. This will drive them out and prevent their return.

In cases of cold or overfatigue there is nothing that so quickly acts as a stimulant as a cup of hot milk. Heat it just to the boiling point and sip slowly. A little salt may be added to make it more palatable.

To clean the railing of banisters, wash off all the dirt with soap and water, and when dry rub with two parts of linseed oil, and one part of turpentine. A good rubbing will bring up the polish as if the rails had been repolished.

To relieve choking, break an egg in a cup and give to the distressed one to swallow. The white of the egg seems to catch around the obstacle and remove it. If one egg does not answer the purpose try another. The white is all that is necessary to use.

Small doses of cod-liver oil are very useful for children who catch cold easily. They should be given two or three times a day, directly after food. It is a great mistake to give large doses of cod-liver oil; they are not digested, and really do more harm than good.

Boiled eggs which adhere to the shell are fresh. A good egg will sink in water. Stale eggs are glassy and smooth of shell. The shell of a fresh egg has a lime-like surface. A boiled egg which is done and dries quickly on the shell when taken from the saucepan is fresh.

When washing a new blanket for the first time, begin by soaking it for twelve hours in cold water, then rinse in clear water. This will remove the sulphur used in the bleaching. After this wash the blankets in a lukewarm lather made of boiled soap and water. Rinse well in clear water, shake thoroughly, and hang out to dry.

To Circumvent Moths.—An ingenious housekeeper has discovered that empty coffee and cracker tins make safe and convenient receptacles for the storage of small woollen articles during the season when moths abound. The articles are thoroughly brushed and placed in the cans. A piece of paper is then pasted round the cover, and a slip is affixed to the top on which can be written a list of what the can contains.

REVISION.

Suitor—"I am afraid that I am not worthy enough for your daughter."

Parent—"Bosh! The point nowadays is, Are you worth enough for her?"

ANSWERED.

"Why do you put the hair of another woman on your head?" he asked severely.

"Why do you," she replied sweetly "put the skin of another calf on your feet?"

After all, there's no higher praise than envy.

AMUNDSEN WAS LONG AT IT

BEGAN EXPLORING ABOUT FIFTEEN YEARS AGO.

Captain Raold Amundsen Decided to Make Polar Research His Life Work.

Capt. Raold Amundsen has for many years been considered one of the most daring and most competent of Arctic and Antarctic explorers. A sailor from his youth, he started polar research at the age of twenty-five, when, as first officer, he participated in the Belgica Antarctic expedition of 1897-9. He made up his mind to continue polar research, but to go to the north in an endeavor to discover the northwest passage, which had been sought for 300 years by such daring sailors as Frobisher, Cabot, Sir Hugh Willoughby, Richard Chancellor, John Davis, Sir John Ross, and Sir John Franklin.

STUDIED MAGNETISM.

He prepared himself by undergoing a course of two years' study in magnetism and meteorology, after which he sailed from Christiana with a crew of only eight men on June 16, 1903.

For many months Amundsen drifted along, and finally did bring his little vessel through the Bering Strait. He also determined exactly the position of the magnetic pole. Altogether he was three years away from Norway, arriving in New York Nov. 6, 1906.

Several years were spent in making preparations for an expedition to the North Pole on which he was to start in 1910. He, however, later changed his plans and decided to go to the Antarctic instead.

REMARKABLE SHIP.

The "Fram" has been used for many years in Arctic exploration. From 1893 to 1896, during the expedition of the Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, she covered about 7,000 miles in the Arctic Ocean, 3,000 miles of this being accomplished while she was frozen solid in the ice.

The Fram has a hull from 32 to 40 inches thick, and is as stout as a block of wood. She is only 125 feet long, 17 feet from deck to keel, and her heavy beams criss-cross until the inside of her hull looks like a forest. She is so sound that she can be driven into an ice floe with such force that the impact will send her rebounding one hundred feet and not so much as make her groan. She can withstand pressure as no other Arctic vessel.

HAD EXPERIENCED CREW.

Amundsen left Buenos Ayres on his trip toward the close of 1910 with a small party of Norwegians, all experienced in Arctic work. He took with him a large pack of Siberian dogs, and his men were all provided with skis, which were thought to offer great advantages in traversing the glacier ice. The party made its base and winter quarters 80 miles nearer the South Pole than did his British rival.

THE NORTH AND SOUTH.

The journey from McMurdo Sound to the South Pole is nearly twice as great as that from Cape Columbia, Commander Peary's base of supplies, to the North Pole. To compare the two in anything except mere distance is almost impossible. Peary's route lay across the drifting ice of a great ocean. For a hundred miles from shore it was piled in great pressure ridges, row behind row, as high as the houses in a city block. Open leads of water held him back till they froze or closed again. A steady drift of the ice carried him constantly back on the course he had come.

ROAD OVER GLACIAL ICE.

The Antarctic ice sheet is different. It is not the frozen surface of a sea; it is glacial ice, part of the primeval sheet that has planed off from the Antarctic continent for centuries. It floats in the sea; yet it is not moved by the water, but only seamed with crevasses. On the Arctic Ocean the floes are from twenty to sixty feet in thickness. This sheet, as has been said, probably reaches 3,000 feet in places, or more than half a mile. Its surface is rolling and open, and save for the constant and terrible danger of the crevasses, it is not a difficult road.

THOUGHTFUL THOUGHTS.

A man has only a definite amount of force in him, and if he spends it in one way he goes short in another.

Our minds are endowed with a vast number of gifts of totally different uses—limbs of mind, as it were, which, if we don't exercise, we cripple.

It is always the charm of the unknown which attracts a man most strongly.

'Tis a rule in eloquence that the moment the orator loses command of his audience, the audience commands him.

Worry pulls down the organism, and will finally tear it to pieces. Nothing is to be gained by it, but everything is to be lost.

Stand at thy real height against some higher nature, that shall show thee what the real smallness of thy greatest greatness is.

SUBMARINE TORTURE.

Those who go down in a submarine must live on compressed air. To the old hand this is nothing; but to the novice the sensation when the boat first sinks is most disagreeable. A tingling comes all over the body, and a pounding of the eardrums, and then perhaps a sense of nausea. Another submarine "torture" is "gasoline heart." The fumes from the machinery, which is propelled by gasoline, become overpowering, and generally cause the unfortunate sufferer to become unconscious. Cooking is also very limited on board a submarine. The only appliance allowed for this purpose is a small electric heater, which, at the most, is capable of boiling an egg. Woe betide the submarine sailor if he is caught in a storm! All his efforts must then be put forth to avoid death by being battered against the steel walls, or becoming involved in the purring dynamoes.

PLAGUE OF PALMISTS.

London, England, was recently at the mercy of a veritable plague of fortune-tellers, palmists, and other self-proclaimed necromancers, who preyed upon the rich and poor alike, particularly in the shopping districts. They even became so fearless that they advertised by means of sandwich-men along the Strand, in Piccadilly Circus, and in Regent and Oxford streets. It seemed impossible to convict them of obtaining money under false pretence of foretelling the future, and it was almost impossible to get evidence against them, as they received no unrecommended clients. Their success among the superstitious and the credulous was due to the fact that their clients unconsciously revealed information concerning would-be visitors.

SNOW STATUES ERECTED FOR CHARITY

Copenhagen's sculptors and sculptresses provided an unusual sight recently when they faced a cold winter's night, and moulded with snow a number of statues, to each of which was affixed an appeal for the poor. On the left is seen "Mother and Child," by Mademoiselle Brandt, and on the right a "Lion on a Pedestal," a contribution of M. Eriangsen.

DYING LEVIATHANS.

Beasts at London Zoo Whose Kin Are Passing Away.

Tom died recently. He was the last of the great rhinoceroses in the London Zoo. There are only two left, and each is a child. Moreover, each of these two children is African. Jim died eight years ago. He was an Indian, and lived for forty years in captivity, hating it all the time. There is no Indian and no Javan in the Zoo now. Indeed, there are very few of the great beasts. They are dying out not only from their places of captivity, but from their own homes. Even the elephants are growing fewer, says the London Standard.

If you go into the elephant house at the Zoo you will find the first pen vacant; that is where Tom lived. His kin came into the world long before men, and he always resented their presence. Sullenly he looked through his pig-like eyes at all who came to see him. No biscuits tempted him. He never tolerated his keepers, and the cleaning of his pen was always rather difficult. With the two that are left the case is different.

Billy, who lives in the last pen of all, is only a baby, not three years old. When he was sent as a gift to the King he was a very little baby, so a black Swahili boy was sent to take care of him. Billy weighed rather less than a ton, and played with his black keeper in a loving way. When the boy went back to his own people the great baby was inconsolable for a few days. Now he is affectionate, but he weighs a great deal more, and his caresses are big enough to crush a man.

Near him is the other, heavier still. He is being carefully watched, for the keepers know that very soon his baby mind will change, and that the grown-up beast will long for the place he came from. At present he is the finest specimen we can see in England, but Billy is the one the children will like. They should watch him swallow his porridge. The keepers pour a bag of oatmeal into his trough and turn a fire hose on it. He buries his nose in the food before they have properly mixed it.

KING GEORGE'S KEY.

Fits the Writing Desk in All the Royal Palaces.

The only key which King George habitually carries about with him, says Answers, is one which opens the writing-desk in the King's private writing-room at each of the royal residences, each desk being specially fitted with the same type of lock. This key, which is a small one, is attached to the end of the King's watch chain, and is carried in his Majesty's waistcoat pocket.

The King's private bunch of keys is kept in the writing-desk in his Majesty's writing-room at whatever royal residence the King may be staying.

The bunch of keys is not a large one; there are only eight keys in all. One opens the bureau containing a number of the late King's private papers, which is kept in King George's personal writing-room at Buckingham Palace; another opens a safe containing a number of private documents relating to private business affairs of the royal family, and another case containing, among other things, the King's collection of postage stamps.

No one ever uses these keys except the King. When the court moves from one royal residence to another the keys are taken charge of by one of the secretaries, and handed subsequently to the King, who locks them in his desk.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, MARCH 24.

Lesson XII.—Fasting and feasting, Mark 2. 13-22. Golden Text, Mark 2. 17.

Verse 13.—Went forth again—Left Capernaum for the seaside, which, during much of his Galilean ministry, seems to have been a favorite resort, perhaps in part for purposes of recreation as well as for teaching.

14. As he passed by—Along the public highway of the city, perhaps at its gate, where Matthew, here called Levi, the son of Alphaeus, collected the toll or revenue from incoming merchants and others.

Follow me—The call to discipleship here, as in the case of Andrew and Peter, James and John, involved a giving up of the regular business and means of securing a livelihood.

15. Sitting at meat—Luke explains that Matthew made "a great feast" in honor of Jesus.

Sinners—Those outside the pale of official religion, with its minute observances and duties. The association of publicans with sinners in the same phrase reveals the religious factor in the popular hatred of the publicans, whose very business was a sign and symbol of Israel's subjection to a heathen power.

For there were many—Publicans and sinners were already conspicuous among the multitudes that crowded to hear the preaching of Jesus.

16. Scribes of the Pharisees — Some ancient manuscripts read, scribes and the Pharisees. The use of the preposition of may, perhaps, imply that some of the scribes were Sadducees, though this was rare. The office of the scribe still flourishes in the Orient, where most of the people are illiterate and find it necessary to employ the services of this public officer whenever a letter is to be written or deciphered. In New Testament times one of the principal functions of the scribe was to read, transcribe, and interpret the law. The Pharisees were a patriotic religious party, devoted to a strict observance of the law as interpreted by their own distinguished rabbis. Both parties looked down upon and despised the common people and considered it a decided reflection upon the standing of Jesus as a teacher that he should consent to dine with such people as were gathered about the festal board of Levi.

17. Whole—Or, strong, that is, perfect in health.

Not to call the righteous — Not those who, like the Pharisees, were self-righteous, satisfied with themselves, and not seeking help or instruction.

18. John's disciples—Not all of the great forerunner's disciples had, like Andrew and Philip, joined the company of those who followed Jesus.

Were fasting—Were in the habit of fasting as part of their regular religious observance.

19. Sons of the bride chamber—Margin: companions of the bridegroom.

21. Undressed cloth—Cloth which has not been shrunk.

That which should fill it up—The patch which should cover the rent.

Taketh from it—By shrinking, tears a hole larger than the first.

22. New wine—Unfermented wine.

Wine-skins — Water-tight skins used as bottles. In these not only wine but water and certain drinks made from fermented milk were carried. With age these skins became creased and worn and therefore easily torn by the expanding force of fermenting wine.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Owing to the difference in weight, people now invest in fake mining stocks instead of buying cumbersome gold bricks.

If a man has a big family he can seldom be induced to spend his money on anything else that may cause him more trouble.

Lady—Couldn't you possibly have saved your friend who was captured by the cannibals? African Traveller — Unfortunately not. When I arrived he was already scratched off the menu.

This summer we should see that the common house fly is not given a chance to carry disease. It is claimed that this little insect is responsible for a great many cases of contagious diseases, and to prevent infection the authorities should take every precaution. It is certain that the housewives will co-operate with the authorities in trying to get rid of this great pest, as there is nothing more annoying than to have flies "tickling" you when attempting to work or nothing more disagreeable than to have the little insects getting in your food.

During February there were 73 cases of smallpox in the province, but none resulted fatally. In February, 1911, there were 719 cases of contagious diseases reported in the province. Of this 130 resulted fatally. This is a marked decrease from February 1911, when there were 766 cases and 224 deaths. While there is a sharp decrease in the number of typhoid cases, the death rate is startlingly high. While there were only 34 cases, there were 15 deaths. Tuberculosis shows a welcome decrease with 92 cases, 58 deaths, as against 181 cases and 114 deaths last year.

It should be known to everybody in these days of gasoline lamps and stoves that gasoline will not explode until its fumes have been mixed with at least six parts of atmospheric air. Gasoline will catch fire as soon as any liquid known, but let it alone and it will burn out, doing no damage and leaving no scar or sign of fire. Mixed with air in the proportions mentioned it is far more dangerous than dynamite. No receptacle of this liquid should be left uncorked, for to do so is to make the room where it is kept far worse than a powder magazine. This matter of safely handling gasoline is very easy, and no one should be ignorant of how it should be done.

There is nothing that calls attention and draws people to a town equal to a good newspaper. In order for a man to make a good newspaper he must have the patronage of the people among whom he lives. If he has halfway support it stands to reason that he must make a poorer paper, and in doing this every man in the town and surrounding country has to bear a part of the loss. For this reason, if for no other, the man who tries to make a good newspaper should have the support of his town people, all of whom reap fully as much benefit from its effort as he does himself.

DEATH OF DR. HANNON

St. Marys, March 28—Rev. James Hannon, D. D., one of the best-known Methodist ministers in Western Ontario, died here this evening at the home of his son-in-law, Rev. F. B. Malott, after a lengthy illness. He was 75 years of age.

The late Dr. Hannon was a widely known and highly honored minister of the Methodist church, having held some of the most important charges in the Toronto, Hamilton and London conferences. At the age of 20 he entered the ministry, beginning his clerical career in what is now Toronto Conference.

After ordination he was stationed successively at Newcastle, Bowmanville, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Dundas, St. Marys, Kincardine, Guelph, St. Thomas, Stratford, Chatham, Exeter (James street). Seven years ago he retired from the active work after 47 years of almost continuous toil. He was a man of fine physique, superior mental powers kindly nature and broad sympathies.

He was president of the Guelph Conference for a term and was elected a member of every general conference except the first, as long as he continued in the active work.

Dr. Hannon is survived by his wife and one son, Judge J. W. Hannon, of Regina. His death will be lamented by a large circle of friends who were sincerely attached to him.

A service for the family was held at the parsonage, St. Marys, on Tuesday at 9.30 a.m. and a public service in First Methodist Church, London, the same day at 1.30 p.m. after which the remains were interred at Mount Pleasant cemetery.

FAMILY OF AGED PEOPLE

Mr. David Miller, a pioneer of Usborne Township, and a former resident of Exeter, writing from Spohane, Wash., where he is making his home with his daughter, Mrs. P. Morrison, gives some ineteresting information regarding the advanced ages of his family.

There are five sisters still living on the Thames Road, Usborne, who have resided there close neighbors to each other ever since they came to this country in 1853, in which year the family left Scotland and settled on the Thames Road, and with the writer, their united ages average eighty years, a record which is very exceptional, and which we doubt if it can be equalled in any other part of this province. The several members of the family, taken according their ages, are, Helen, widow of the late Charles Monteith aged 86, the next is the writer Mr. David Miller, aged 83; the next, Mary, widow of the late James Hackney, aged 79; the next, Jane widow of the late Robert Monteith, aged 77, and the fifth, Ann, wife of Mr. Alexander Hackney, aged 75. There were two others in the family, James the second son, and Elizabeth, wife of Rev. Robert Foley, both of whom were the youngest members of the family, and died some years ago. It will thus be seen that the united ages of the surviving members of the Miller family average 80 years.

When first I noticed on the breeze the perfume of Limburger cheese, in my hot haste I sternly cried; Some animal has surely died" Too often thus we judge things by externals greeting nose or eye, and often does the vain galoot skip luscious dates for Dead Sea fruit. The Limburg cheese for many years I held to scorn with ribald jeers, and when a chunk of it was passed I put my nose in plaster cast. But all that glitters is not gold, and handsome feet are sometimes cold, and blushing roses have their thorns, and lovely girls complain of corns. And, likewise, on the other hand, the cheese that smells to beat the band belies its loud, aggressive scent and comforts you to such extent that you (or any other man) become at once a Limburg fan. It is a nipping, eager cheese that warms you up from neck to knees and cheers your stomach till it feels like kicking up its joyous heels. Its fragrance once I did detest, but now from Araby the blest there comes no increase-laden air that with Limburger can compare—And thus we see, my friends and foes, we cannot trust our eyes and nose, which deal in roorbacks day by day, and lead our twinkling feet astray.

VOTES FOR UNION

Huron Presbytery's record on the recent Union vote is as follows—Elders for 115, against 30; Members for 2158, against 1113; Adherents 451 for and against 231. Total for 2724, against 1374.

IN THE MOTHERLAND.

At this distance we hardly realize the tremendous effects of the great coal strike in England, but the following extracts from a despatch from London on Saturday gives a faint idea of the condition of affairs in the motherland

England is spending one of the gloomiest weekends in her history. In every town, village and hamlet throughout the country where skilled workman are usually engaged in the great industries unemployment is on the increase and the families of the workers, who have been rendered idle by the strike of the million coal miners, who quit work on March 1st, are suffering want and in many cases facing starvation.

Only the utmost efforts of charitable societies and private individuals are able to relieve some of the terrible distress, an idea of which may be gathered from the figure of the employed alone, which, besides the miners, reaches almost 2,000,000.

Residents of the cities who usually spend the Saturday afternoons and Sundays in the country are unable to-day to leave town, as the railways, pleading a shortage of coal, have cancelled trains by the hundred. The cotton mills are nearly all closed down, and foundries and factories of all kinds ar closing up. The fishing vessels are tied up and even the work on the naval docks is being decreased.

Hawkins, and Laura M. to Mr. John Simpson, both of the same township. The home was most tastefully decorated for the occasion and the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. T. A. Steadman of Elimville, took place about six o'clock in the evening under an arch of evergreens, suspended from the centre of which was an artistically arranged floral wedding bell. The brides, attired in cream diagonal satin, trimmed with fringe and ball trimming and carrying bouquets, entered the parlor leaning on the arms of their father, to the sweet strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Goldie Mills, cousin of the brides. The brides were unattended, save that Hubert Hunter and Ernest Prout acted as page boys. The grooms' gifts to the brides were pearl crescents, while the page boys were each presented with a watch and chain. The ceremony over and congratulations extended to the happy couples, about fifty guests from Alvinston, Seaforth, London, Kincardine Rondeau, Berlin, Saskatchewan, Exeter, and elsewhere, sat down to a sumptuous wedding feast, after which a pleasant evening was spent. BRITISH STRIKE IS OVER

Minimum Wage Bill Gets Second Reading And Will Become Law

A despatch from London says: The fears that the Minimum Wage Bill would be rejected, that there would possibly be a dissolution of Parliament and a general election, which were widespread overnight, practically disappeared late Thursday night with the rejection of the motion of former Premier Balfour that the second reading of the bill be postponed for six months, which was tantamount to a motion to reject the measure altogether. The change in public feeling, however, was due almost entirely to the assurance given by Mr. Balfour in his speech that his party did not want dissolution. This was received with a sigh of relief by the Government, although there was evidence that ex-Premier Balfour and his colleagues did not share the panic of their supporters. Mr. Balfour's assurances calmed the feelings of the over-excited Liberals, and confirmed what those who are closest in touch with the situation were confident would happen.

Premier Asquith still seems to think that the bill will end the strike. If it does not, the Prime Minister will be obliged to take the "further steps, which God forbid," that he had in mind when he indicated in the House of Commons on March 19 that the Government would not stop its active efforts for the resumption of work at the mines if the bill fails of its purpose. This is interpreted to mean that the Premier expects serious strife in the event of the miners who accept the bill returning to work against the wishes of others, in which case the Government will have to protect them with soldiers.

WILL MINERS RESUME WORK?

The Times' Parliamentary correspondent, who is usually accurate, states that the Cabinet on Thursday decided not to accept the miners' minimum wage of five shillings a day for an adult and two shillings a day for a minor as an amendment to the strike bill, and this, as well as the schedule amendment, which never had a chance of acceptance, will be rejected by the House of Commons. Nevertheless, the correspondent does not think that all the Labor members will vote against the Government on the third reading of the bill. Some of them will abstain from voting, and the bill, according to the writer, will certainly pass. The chief question will then become whether the miners will resume work without either of these amendments being incorporated in the bill. Many Unionists and some Liberals think the will not, and the bill will thus become a fiasco.

WOMEN VOTERS IN CHINA.

Franchise Extended to Women on Equal Terms with Men.

A despatch from San Francisco says: Equal suffrage was granted to the women of China on Wednesday by the Parliament at Nanking, according to a cablegram received here on Thursday. Women voters will be subjected to the same restrictions as men, and must be able to read and write and also to be property-owners and at least twenty years old. Yik Yug Ying, who has been called the Mrs. Pankhurst of China, was elected a member of the Parliament on Wednesday, from Canton Province. She is a college graduate.

Her length is 555 feet, beam 89 feet, draft 27½ feet. Her armament will consist of ten 13.5-inch guns and twenty-four 4-inch quick-firers. Her engines are to be of about 31,000 horse-power, and she is expected to attain a speed of twenty-one knots.

SEAMEN APPROVE OPEN SHOP

The action is said to affect about 14,000 men.

MONTREAL'S POLICE DOG.

Attacked Men Who Were Fighting With an Officer.

A despatch from Montreal says: Montreal's police dog has added another notable feat to his long list of good performances by attacking and holding one of two newly-arrived immigrants, named Hastie and Lord, who were fighting with an officer. KING ALFONSO ILL.

Recurrence of His Aural and Nasal Troubles.

A despatch from London says: There are disquieting reports in London in regard to the health of King Alfonso, of Spain. There has been, according to these reports, a recurrence of his aural and nasal troubles and two operations have already been performed, while a third is likely to be necessary immediately. The Bordeaux specialist who was consulted by the Spanish King, declares that this third operation is imperative. It is said that there is apprehended no danger from the operation.

KILLED BY HIS OWN BOMB.

Portuguese Plotter One of the Victims of Oporto Explosion.

A despatch from Oporto, Portugal, says: The police arrested several revolutionists on Thursday on suspicion that they were concerned in the destruction of four houses in the suburb of Miragaia by a bomb explosion on Wednesday night. They say that the explosion, which killed five persons and wounded ten, was caused by Antonio Costa, a barber and revolutionary leader, dropping a bomb he was manufacturing. Costa is one of those who are dead. The roar of the explosion was heard for miles. Four houses were reduced to ruins and the authorities believe that the bodies of other persons are still buried beneath the debris.

NAVY RETURNS REVENUE.

Ship Captured by Rainbow for Poaching Sold for $13,000.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Pacific division of the Canadian navy has been the means of adding an amount slightly exceeding $13,000 to the consolidated revenue. The Rainbow, last Summer, caught the Seattle ship Edrie poaching in Canadian waters, within the three-mile limit. The Edrie was confiscated. Her owners went to the courts and endeavored to show that the fishing had been done outside the limit. The Supreme Court of British Columbia recently decided that the Edrie was poaching, and ordered the sale of the vessel by public auction. The Marine Department on Wednesday received word that the sale had brought the Government $13,000.

RECORD OF WRECKS.

Chart to Give History of Island of Anticosti.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Department of Marine and Fisheries is preparing a chart, showing the number of wrecks off the Island of Anticosti since 1820. The chart shows the south coast to be closely fringed with wrecks, the north coast and the points of the island also having their share. No fewer than 110 ships are recorded as having been lost on these coasts. The Government has now four modern lights on Anticosti.

NO TRACE OF CAPT. SCOTT.

Japanese Antarctic Expedition Has Returned.

A despatch from Wellington, N. Z., says: The Japanese Antarctic expedition returned here on Saturday. They report having seen nothing of the British Polar expedition of Captain Robert F. Scott. The Japanese reported all on board well. They were engaged chiefly in coastal exploring on King Edward Land.

NOTED SOCIALIST ARRESTED

Charge Laid Against Agitator By The Imperial War Office

A despatch from Salford, England, says: Because he urged soldiers to refuse to shoot their "fathers and brothers" if called out for strike duty, Tom Mann, the most noted of all the British Socialistic labor leaders, was remanded to jail without bail here on Thursday. The charge against him was brought by attorneys representing the War Office, and it is alleged that he had incited the soldiers to mutiny. Mann was not given an opportunity to present any defence on Thursday, the court proceedings being very brief. After the Crown's complaint had been read the court adjourned the hearing for a week. When attorneys for Mann asked permission to furnish bail they were curtly informed that the offence was not bailable at present. The Government wants to keep Mann behind the bars at this particular time, as his vitriolic utterances are greatly feared with the temper of the working people already strained close to the breaking point.

ELK LAKE BRANCH.

Contractors Will Prepare the Grade for $180,000.

A despatch from Toronto says: McCaffery and McQuigge, a local firm, on Thursday were awarded the contract to construct the right-of-way for the Temiskaming Railway branch into Elk Lake. Their tender, which undertakes to do the work of grading and other preparation of the line for about $180,000, was accepted by the commissioners at a meeting Thursday in Chairman J. L. Englehart's office, and operations will begin at once. The line comprises about 28 miles, from Earlton to Elk Lake, with a maximum gradient of six feet in one thousand. The commission itself will lay the ties, steel and other incidentals of the permanent way.

IMMIGRANT TRAIN DITCHED.

Accident on C.P.R. at Jackfish—Injuries Not Serious.

A despatch from Fort William says: Four passenger coaches, laden with old country immigrants, were ditched at Jackfish early Thursday morning. Several passengers were injured, but none severely, and it was not necessary to call for medical aid. The coaches belonged to the fourth section of No. 1. The wrecking crew at Schreiber had to be wired for via Montreal, Chicago, Winnipeg, and Fort William, as the wires were down west of Jackfish.

MUST EXTEND RELIEF.

Many Sufferers in Other Industries as Result of Strike.

A despatch from London says: In view of the prevailing distress among the poor caused by the coal strike, the local Government Board on Wednesday sent a circular to all Boards of Guardians in Great Britain warning them to prepare to grant extra relief to sufferers in other industries who have been thrown out of employment by the closing down of the collieries. The Liverpool International Exhibition, which was to have opened this spring, has been postponed until next year because of the coal strike.

C. P. R. COLLISION.

Three Men Killed and Two Others Badly Injured.

A despatch from North Bay says: Another serious wreck occurred on the C. P. R. Lake Superior division on Saturday morning, following closely the accident to the Colonist special on Thursday last. Saturday's wreck was a head-on collision between a freight train with settlers' effects and stock going West, and an eastbound freight train, and occurred near Amyot, a station 362 miles west of North Bay, through misinterpretation of orders. Both trains had orders to meet and pass at Birch Station, six miles west of Amyot, near where the accident occurred. One of the trains had two engines, and the eastbound train passed Birch instead of stopping to wait for the other train, and both met with frightful impact, demolishing a number of cars, killing the cattle and horses, besides destroying the settlers' effects and tearing up the track for a considerable distance, tying up traffic for many hours. A farmer named Jamieson, of Owen Sound, was killed. J. Smith, engineer, of Toronto, was injured. He was taken to Toronto, and subsequently died in the hospital. Fireman Nyal is missing, and it is supposed he was killed. Engineer Dooner was injured. Trainman Loyst was seriously injured, and may not recover. He was taken to Chapleau. A farmer named Conley was also seriously injured. Six or seven cars of settlers' effects were demolished and stock killed.

The resolutions are in accordance with the demands of the temperance bodies for less liquor selling in the ancient capital. The resolutions provide that an indemnity of $3,000 shall be paid to every person who loses his license under the said Act. The new regulations are to go into force in May, 1913. It is provided that the revenue to be derived from the sixty licenses shall be equal to that derived from the existing number. The last of the resolutions provide for the naming of a commission to enquire into the sale of intoxicating liquors and as to changes expedient to be made in the present law.

TYPHOON IN AUSTRALIA.

A despatch from Perth, Western Australia, says: A disastrous typhoon has occurred on the northwest coast of Western Australia. It continued from Wednesday until Friday and extended far inland. Many vessels were dashed to pieces on the rocks, numerous buildings have been wrecked, and, it is believed, a large number of lives lost. The total extent of the damage is not known, as telegraphic communication is badly interrupted.

ROBBERS SHOT CAPTOR.

Constable Ashton Was Fatally Wounded.

A despatch from Vernon, B. C., says: Provisional Constable Ashton of Bellevue was shot and mortally wounded early on Wednesday by two men who had robbed a store. Constable Ashton arrested the men and took them aboard a steamer, where he guarded them in a stateroom. Overpowering their captor, the desperadoes muffled him in blankets and then shot him in the head. The robbers disembarked at Peachland and officers are searching for them.

The Marquess of Hartford died after undergoing an operation.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER XX.—(Cont'd)

The upshot of this extraordinary meeting was that when Mr. Winter had secured a room and the party had ordered dinner, the six men set out for a stroll through the town.

Sir Hubert strongly recommended the spectacular beauty of the street where the Hotel de France lay, but Gros Jean politely insisted that he wished to make some inquiries at the shipping office, and Mr. Winter backed him up, being ignorant of the baronet's real motive.

They soon reached the quay. Sir Hubert became almost incoherent with agitation when they passed the Blue Bell and came into full view of Edith, Jack, Fairholme and Daubeney, who happened to leave the hotel shortly before five o'clock in order to visit the yacht and secure a good cup of tea.

Brett refused to accompany them, on the ground that his Italian scout, the pilot, might bring news at any hour, and he must remain within immediate call.

It was a supreme moment when Gros Jean halted and called general attention to the smart-looking vessel and the tea-drinkers.

Sir Hubert keenly examined the top of the funnel, and tried simultaneously to yawn and light a cigar. In the result he nearly choked himself. Mr. Winter, somewhat more prepared for emergencies, endeavored to interest Gros Jean in the wonderful clearness of the water.

But Hussein-ul-Mulk and his two sedate friends suddenly betrayed a keen interest in Fairholme.

When they last met the earl on the tower of the Chateau d'If they were so engrossed in the object of their visit to Marseilles that he passed them unnoticed.

But now, looking steadily at him—for Fairholme was seated facing them, and was striving to maintain the semblance of an animated chat with Edith—there came to the Turks a memory, each instant becoming more definite of an exciting scene in the Rue Barbette, and the opportune arrival of a stalwart young Englishman, backed up a couple of gendarmes.

Hussein-ul-Mulk's swarthy countenance reddened with suspicious anger. He drew Gros Jean on one side and whispered something to him. The Frenchman started violently.

"They have recognized you, Babby!" murmured the quick-witted Edith. "Oh, why didn't we remain with Mr. Brett!"

There is no knowing what might have happened had not Fate stepped in to decide in dramatic fashion the important issues at stake.

Whilst Gros Jean and the Turk were still conferring in stealthy tones, and the English people endeavored to keep up an appearance of complete unconcern, a tramp steamer swung round the corner of the mole that protects the harbor.

In tow, with sails trimly furled and six people standing on her small deck—a lady and gentleman and four sailors—was the Belles Soeurs, fishing smack, No. 107, from Marseilles. Instantly a watcher, otherwise unperceived, ran off from the quay at top speed towards the Hotel de France.

Gros Jean, the Turks, Edith, Fairholme—each and every member of the two parties on the wharf and on the deck of the Blue Bell—momentarily forgot the minor excitement of the situation in view of this unexpected apparition.

"Voila! Ils viennent! Venez vite!" cried Gros Jean.

He ran further along the quay, followed by the Turks.

"Quick, Bobby! Oh, Jack, do something! Mr. Brett could not forsee this, though he seemed to have an inspiration that kept him in the hotel. What can we do? Dubois and the girl will know you at once! Jack, shouldn't you keep out of sight?—go below—go and fetch Mr. Brett. Oh, dear, this is dreadful!"

Daubeney, now purple with perplexity, and Fairholme, swearing softly under his breath, sprang from the deck to the low wall of the quay. Almost unconsciously they joined Sir Hubert and Mr. Winter. Edith followed them. She glanced at her brother. He was gazing curiously, vindictively, at the two figures on the deck of the Belles Soeurs. There was a fierce gleam in his eyes, a set expression in his closed lips, a nervous twitching at the corners of his mouth, that betokened the overpowering emotions of the moment.

With a woman's intuition Edith realized that no power on earth, no consideration of expediency, would restrain him from laying violent hands on Dubois at the first possible opportunity. She knew there must be a struggle, in which Gross Jean and the Turks, perhaps the four sailors, would participate. They might use knives and firearms, whereas the Englishmen were unarmed.

So she ran back on board the yacht and cried to the Scotch engineer—

"Oh, Mr. Macpherson! Please come with some of your men. There may be a fight on the wharf, and Mr. Daubeney and the others will be outnumbered!"

Macpherson for once forgot his cautiousness. There was none of the characteristic slowness of the Scottish nation in his manner or language as he yelled down the fore-latch: "Tumble up, there! Some darned Eye-talians are goin' to hammer the boss. Bring along a monkey-wrench or the first thing to hand. Shar-r-p's the wo-r-rd!"

Forthwith there poured from the hatchway a miscellaneous mob of seamen, firemen and stewards. Following Edith and Macpherson, they ran along the quay. Already there was something unusual in progress. Loungers by the harbor, perceiving a disturbance, were running towards the scene of action.

A solitary Italian policeman, swaggering jauntily over the paved roadway, was suddenly startled out of his self-complacency.

"Caramba!" he shouted. Drawing his sabre, he broke into a run.

For matters had developed with melodramatic suddenness. Casting off the steamer's tow-ropes, the Belles Soeurs swung alongside the wharf much more easily and quickly than did the friendly vessel by whose aid she had so soon reached Palmero.

Both steamer and smack had already been searched by the Customs officers, who boarded them in the quarantine station, and the reason that the schooner had not been earlier sighted from the shore was supplied by the mere chance that she was rendered invisible by close proximity to her bigger companion.

The instant that the fishing-boat was tied to the wharf, Mlle. Beaucaire sprang ashore. Gros Jean, breathless and excited, was there to greet her. But the greeting between father and daughter was not very cordial. The innkeeper seemed to be dumfounded with surprise at her early arrival.

Dubois followed more leisurely. He took no notice of Gros Jean, and appeared to be looking around for a cab. Two of the sailors were handing up a couple of portmanteaus from the deck. Hussein-ul-Mulk, and the two other Turks, unable to restrain their excitement, crowded round the pink-and-white Frenchman, jabbering volubly, but Mademoiselle and her father moved some slight distance away.

At this juncture Mr. Winter strode resolutely forward, seized Dubois firmly by the shoulder, and said—

"Henri Dubois! In the name of the King of England I arrest you for the murder of——"

The detective's words were stopped by a blow.

Frantic yells and oaths came from the confused mob, and knives were drawn. Talbot had but one desire in life—to get his fingers on Dubois throat. He had almost reached him, for Winter clung to his prey with bull-dog tenacity, when an astounding thing happened. The Frenchman's handsome moustaches fell off, and beneath the clever make-up on her face were visible the boldly handsome features of La Belle Chasseuse, now distorted by rage and fear.

"You fool!" yelled Talbot to Winter. "You have let him escape!"

Tearing himself from the midst of the fight, he was just in time to see the female figure, which he now knew must be Dubois masquerading in his mistress's clothes, jumping into a cab and driving off towards the Corso Vittorio Emmanuele.

"Come on, Fairholme!" he cried. "He cannot get away! Here comes an empty carriage!"

But now Macpherson and his allies had reached the scene. Using a monkey-wrench or the first thing to hand, they placed the Turks, Gros Jean, and the crew of the Belles Soeurs on the casualty list.

Mr. Winter's indignation on finding that he had arrested a woman was painful. In his astonishment he realized his grasp and turned to look at the disappearing vehicle containing the criminal he so ardently longed to lay hands upon.

La Belle Chasseuse, with the vicious instinct of her class, felt that Talbot's pursuit of her lover must be stopped at all costs.

She suddenly produced a revolver and levelled it at him. Fairholme and Edith alone noted her action. At the same instant they rushed towards her, but the girl reached her first.

With a frenzied prayer that she might be in time—for she had been told of this woman's prowess with a pistol—Edith caught hold of her wrist and pulled it violently. Her grip not only disconcerted Madamoiselle's deadly aim, but also caused her to press the trigger. There was a loud report, a scream, and Edith collapsed to the ground with a severe bullet wound in her left shoulder. Even her cloth jacket was set on fire by the close proximity of the weapon.

It is to be feared that Fairholme flung La Belle Chasseuse from off the quay into the harbor with unnecessary violence. Indeed, the Italian onlookers, not accustomed to sanguinary broils, subsequently agreed that this was the piece de resistance of the spectacle, for the lady was pitched many feet through the air before she struck the water, whence she was rescued with some difficulty.

Careless how or where Mademoiselle ended her flight, the earl dropped on his knees beside Edith and quickly pressed out the flames of the burning cloth with his hands. He burnt himself badly in the act, but of this he was insensible. Then he bent closer and looked desparately, almost hopelessly into her face.

"Speak to me, darling!" he moaned in such a low, broken-hearted voice that even Sir Hubert himself, almost mad with grief, realized how the other suffered.

Edith heard him. She opened her eyes, and smiled bravely.

"I don't think it is serious," she murmured. "I was hit high up—somewhere in the shoulder. Don't fret, there's a dear."

Then she fainted.

Not knowing why Fairholme did not join him, Talbot raced towards the carriage he had seen approaching. It was a smart vehicle, with a sleek, well-groomed horse, and he guessed that it must be a private conveyance. Gazing anxiously around, he could not see another carriage anywhere in the vicinity. There was nothing for it but the method of the brutal Saxon. Explanations would need precious time and might be wasted. So Talbot jumped into the victoria, hauled the coachman off the box, threw him into the roadway, seized the reins, and climbed into the vacant seat.

Brett, hurrying with the pilot from the Hotel de France, saw a veiled and curious-looking female vehemently urging the driver of a carriage to proceed up the main street of Palermo as fast as his horse could travel.

Even in the turmoil of thought caused by the pilot's intelligence he noted something peculiar in the lady's manner. Half a minute later he encountered Talbot, driving an empty vehicle and furiously compelling with reins and whip a lazy animal to exert himself.

Brett shouted to him. He might as well have addressed a whirlwind.

"I saw them all together on the yacht when I came away, signor," exclaimed the pilot. "That is, all except the old signor, who was walking with some Turks, a Frenchman, and another who looked like an Englishman.

"The old signor was walking with the Turks?" cried Brett.

"Without doubt. He conversed with them. I thought it strange that he took no notice of those on board the yacht, but just then the steamer—"

"Now," said Brett to himself. "Winter has arrested somebody. Talbot is on the right track!"

Yielding to impulse he stopped suddenly and called a cab.

"Here," he said to the pilot, "ask the driver if he saw two carriages pass up the Corso just now at a very fast pace? Very well! Tell him to follow them if possible. Jump in with me. I may need your services as interpreter. We must overtake one or both of those carriages!"

SHRINKING EVE'S APPLE

A curious tradition of the Talmud relates that the "apple" of which Eve ate was really a kernel of wheat, which in those days grew on a wonderful tree whose trunk glowed like gold, whose branches gleamed like silver, whose twigs, resplendent as precious coral, were covered with emerald leaves, and bore globes of ivory the size and shape of the egg of an ostrich.

The story goes on to state that the hapless pair having gathered more than they could eat, were conducted by the angel Gabriel beyond the boundaries of Paradise, and given the remaining fruits of their trespass with instructions as to the proper methods of cultivating and using it. The paradisical fruit has, however, never thriven since its banishment from Eden, and in the days of the later patriarchs had shrunken to the size of an egg, in Moses' time to the dimensions of a plum, and at the fall of the Jewish sovereignty to the size of a small grape, thereby practically asserting that the race has been eating the veritable fruit of the "tree of knowledge of good and evil" ever since.—Charles Winslow Hall, in National Magazine for March.

CONDUCTOR CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

"Mr. Copeland, Dear Sir,—For the benefit of others I wish to make known what Copeland's Cure for Consumption has done for me. When I commenced taking it I could not sit up in bed, nor keep anything on my stomach. My doctor. and a consumption specialist of Toronto said I had the worst form of Consumption, that nothing could be done for me, and gave me only eight or ten days to live. After taking two bottles of your cure my appetite improved, and that weakening perspiration stopped. To-day I am healthier and stronger than I have been for years. I will answer any correspondence. Wishing you every success. David Warnock, Street Car Conductor, 220 Silver Birch Avenue."

Every day I receive testimonials like the above from persons given up by doctors, and who have tried all other medicines, but after taking this cure are speedily recovering. Many claim to be cured. A BIT OF SNAKE SURGERY.

Setting the Fractured Jaw of a Great Python.

Animal surgery becomes more common and more skilful year by year. A most difficult operation was recently performed at the Regent's Park Zoo in London by Professor Woolridge. The patient was a great python,—the largest in captivity,—that was presented to the gardens some thirteen years ago by the Hon. Walter Rothschild.

The python fractured his jaw while making a hearty meal, and since it was impossible for the reptile to live long in such a condition, an immediate operation was decided upon. To set the broken bones in the jaws of the python, which measured nine yards, was a ticklish job, for the creature was capable of crushing to death any man coming within reach of its coils.

To avoid this danger, advantage was taken of a moment when the python was asleep. Its tank was covered over with stout boards, and a gap was left no larger than would permit the passage of the head. When the python's head did appear through this aperture several men grasped it, and when the frantic writhings of the maddened reptile had ceased, the operator placed the broken bones in position, and bound the jaws securely with a long bandage smeared with plaster of Paris.

Over this another coating of plaster was placed, with due care to leave the nostrils free. Seven weeks had to be allowed to elapse before any attempt was made to remove the wrappings to see whether the operation had been successful.

Although the python was, of course, not able to take food during that time, there was no occasion to fear starvation, for only ten days earlier a young goat furnished a meal for the patient, and he was hardly more than decently hungry when he was again able to exercise his powerful jaws.

There is something wrong with the woman who doesn't enjoy a good cry occasionally.

AID TO THOROUGHBRED STALLIONS

The department of Agriculture is wisely continuing the granting of aid to owners of thoroughbred stallions.

The stimulus given, in this manner, to the use of Thoroughbred blood will it is believed, lead to an improvement in the light horse stock of the country.

While it is not the intention of the Department to encourage the breeding of Thoroughbred horses, or to develop a type in light horses approximating closely to that of the Thoroughbred, there is no question but that a strong infusion of thoroughbred blood in the light legged mares of the country will be of inestimable value in improving the quality of the stock got from them by stallions of the various light harness breeds

The conditions under which assistance will be given are as follows:—

(1) All horses on account of which aid is given by the Department must be registered in the Thoroughbred Stud Book of the Canadian National Live Stock Records.

(2) Horses shall be of good size, quality and conformation and shall be free from all hereditary unsoundness; these conditions to be ensured by submission annually to a thorough careful examination, either at the hands of the Veterinary Director General or such other members of the veterinary staff of the department, or other persons as the Minister may appoint.

(3) Horses so approved shall be duly and properly advertised to stand for service of mares, under the ordinary and general conditions usual in the districts in which they are to be kept, at an annual service fee, except in case of thoroughbred mares, of not more than $10 to insure, such service fee to become due and payable only when mares prove to be in foal.

Any person fulfilling these conditions and giving proof of same shall be entitled to a grant of $250 at the close of the season. The necessary forms will be furnished on application to the Veterinary Director General and Live Stock Commissioner, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

BUTTERMILK—This much despised by product of the dairy seems to be coming to its own, Of late years there has sprung up in the cities and towns a big demand for buttermilk as a beverage It can now be had at first-class hotels being sold over the bar like ale and Scotch" at so much per glass. Then many householders use buttermilk when ever they can get it. So great has grown the demand that the supply is always below requirements. To meet this demand producers are ever ways and means of increasing the supply. True, as yet, the farmer has not realized its true value, and the supply of buttermilk on the average farm still finds its way to the hog trough, while people in towns and cities cannot get all they require. This increased demand has come about largely because of recent scientific investigations which show buttermilk to be of great value in keeping the human system in good working order. It is especially good for intestinal disorders.

In a country like this, where land is comparatively cheap, and where the demand for agricultural products of all kinds is strong and prices high, a government is running no risk in working out some scheme for loaning money to farmers at cost. Some will say, perhaps, that conditions are so favorable for making good in agriculture, the man who goes on the land will not need any assistance. Conditions in farming to-day are quite different from what they were fifty or seventy-five years ago. To make a success of farming to-day, whether it be on the prairie or on the newer lands in the eastern provinces, the farmer must have some capital to begin with. There is machinery to buy, live stock to secure, all of which takes money. The farmer who starts in to-day on a new farm, with no equipment and with no ready money to pay for it is seriously handicapped at the start and his chances of making good are very materially lessened. If some means were provided for supplying farmers, thus handicapped, with ready money at a rate of interest of say three per cent., the price for which government loans are obtainable, plus the cost of administering the loan, the country would be greatly benefited and the production of farm products increased.

A TERRIBLE MIXUP.—A Skookumchuk editor, who was full of hard cider, got a sale bill and a marriage notice badly mixed. The description ran as follows.—William Smith, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Smith, was disposed of at public auction to Lucy Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Anderson, on my farm, one mile east of this place, in the presence of seventy guests, including the following, to wit,—2 mules, 12 head of cattle. Rev. Jackson tied the nuptial knot averaging 1250 pounds on the hoof. The beautiful home of the bride was tastefully decorated with a Kiwash clam spade, 1 sulky rake, 1 feed grinder, 1 set double harness, nearly new; just before the ceremony was pronounced Mendelssohn's inspiring wedding march was given by 1 milch cow, 5 years old, 1 Jersey cow to be fresh next April, carrying a bunch of flowers in her hand, and looking charming in a gown made of light spring wagon. 6 boxes of apples, 3 ricks of hay. 1 grindstone, mousline de sole, trimmed with 100 bushel of spuds. The groom is a well-known and popular young man and has always stood well in society circles of 12 Berkshire hogs, while the bride is an accomplished and talented teacher of a splendid drove of Poland Chinas—pedigrees furnished if desired. Among the nuptial presents were 3 sets of silver knives and forks, one spring harrow, 1 wheelbarrow, go-cart, and other articles too numerous to mention. The bridal couple left yesterday for an extended trip, terms twelve months time to responsible parties; otherwise cash; lunch will be served at the sale. After this Mr. and Mrs. Smith will go to keeping house in a cosy home at the corner of Main and Dr. L. R. R. Granby, auctioneer.

BIDDULPH

Just 64 years ago Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dagg of Kincardine, formerly of this township, now 93 and 90 years old, respectively, were wedded in the village of Lucan. Though it is four years since the diamond anniversary of that wedding was celebrated, the couple, who have by two decades and more passed the prescribed three score and ten, are still actively interested in the world about them and appreciative of the joy of life and action.

It was on March 21st, 1848, that Richard Dagg, a young Irishman who had come to Canada while yet a youth took as his bride Miss Elizabeth Culbert, of Lucan, the wedding ceremony having been solemnized at that village.

One of the pioneers of Biddulph Township, Mr. Dagg hewed his farm there from the virgin forest, fighting with the other pioneers of the township the battle of civilization against the gigantic pines and maples of the forest In the Fenian Raid of '66 he shouldered his rifle and marched to the front for the protection of home and country.

Prominently indentified with the advancement of the Township of Biddulph and of Middlesex, he is one of the best-known men, not only of this section of the country, but of the entire Western Ontario peninsula. For the past few years Mr. and Mrs. Dagg have been residents of Kincardine, retiring from the farm in Biddulph.

The Roman Tribune.

The tribunes in ancient Rome represented the people in much the same way that the house of commons does in England and the house of representatives in this country. For a long time the patricians or aristocrats of Rome had everything their own way. But when the plebeians (or, as we would say, the "plain people") got their tribune the reckless tyranny of the patricians ceased The tribune had great power. He could veto almost any act and nullify almost any law passed by the Romans. Liberty among the Romans dates from the time they first secured their tribunes.—New York American.

The late Mrs. Elder—It is with deepest regret we make mention of the death of Mrs. Wm. Elder, formerly of Tucksmith, who passed peacefully away at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Andrew Moir, in Usborne on Mar 15, at the advanced age of 81 years. She had been in declining health for some years but none thought the end so near. She was much respected and beloved for her kindly deeds and many amiable qualities. She emigrated to this country with other members of the family, settling in Hay township where she endured all the hardships of pioneer life. Mrs. Elder's maiden name was Helen Shirray. She was married to her late husband, William Elder, of Tuckersmith, some 46 years ago, where by hard toil and industry they made a good competency She is survived by a family of three sons and one daughter, viz., Mrs. Andrew Moir of Usborne, Thomas, of the second concession of Tuckersmith John of Hay Township, and William J. on the homestead.

Presentation and Address.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Atkinson, con. 2, Biddulph, was the scene of a pleasant event on Tuesday night, March 19, the occasion being the gathering of about fifty of their neighbors and friends to do honor and show a worthy appreciation of the good qualities of the host and hostess, prior to their leaving for their new home in London. Shortly after all had got nicely settled Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson and Cepher were called forward when Miss Rose McLeod read address and Messrs. Wilbert McFalls and Mark Hodgins presented them with two polished oak rockers and table and to Cepher a signet ring and pair of cuff links. Mr. and Mrs Atkinson were entirely taken by surprise, but Mr. Atkinson on behalf of himself and worthy wife, made a suitable and becoming reply, following which a choice program was rendered.

Dear Friends and Neighbors,—

It is with feelings of sympathy and regret that we are assembled here tonight to spend another evening with you before your departure from among us. It has been impressed upon our minds by that sense of loss, which we all so soon undergo, that it is our duty in some slight way to show our appreciation of you both as friends and neighbors. We have lived together from childhood to the present, many of us, with the very closest feelings of good fellowship, and those ties which are bound the more closely by years of intercourse with one another are seemingly hard to sever. We have always found you ever ready to lend a helping hand in any of our daily toils, and also share in our sorrows, whenever you found us burdened with the greater trials of life. We, therefore, ask you to accept these small tokens of our esteem and good will, not for their intrinsic value, but that they may refresh the many pleasant memories of the years we have spent together. To you all we extend our best wishes for your future happiness and prosperity, and also trust that God's choicest blessings may be strewn along your pathway.—Signed on behalf of all, by Wilbert McFalls and Mark Hodgins.

Are the Fly and Mosquito Dangerous?

The fly, with spongy feet, collects the invisible germs of diseases, spreads them over our food and poisons us with typhoid and cholera. The mosquito with its bite injects into our veins malaria and yellow fever. The bacteria of consumption, or grip, are everywhere present for us to breathe into our lungs. The blood which flows through our veins and arteries is our protection. It should contain healthy red and white blood corpuscles—capable of warding off these disease germs. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood medicine and alterative made entirely without alcohol, a pure glyceric extract of bloodroot, golden seal, Oregon grape root, queen's root, mandrake and stone root, which has enjoyed a good reputation for over forty years. The refreshing influence of this extract is like Nature's influence—the blood is bathed in the tonic which gives life to the blood—the vital fires of the body burn brighter and their increased activity consumes the tissue rubbish which has accumulated during the winter.

M. MAGUIRE, ESQ.

"About forty years ago while in Newark, New Jersey, I had chills and fever," writes MR. MICHAEL MAGUIRE, of National Military Home, Kans. "I went to Kansas City and in the spring of 1877 the chills and fever returned. Doctors and everything I tried failed to do me good. Finally I saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advertised. I took one bottle of it and the chills vanished. In about a year afterward I felt them coming back so I got another bottle and have never had any symptoms of fever or ague since. That is all of twenty years ago, for I had the chills about twelve years before I started to take 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"

SPRING IMPURITIES IN THE BLOOD

A Tonic Medicine is a Necessity at This Season.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an all year round tonic, blood-builder and nerve-restorer. But they are especially valuable in the spring when the system is loaded with impurities as a result of the indoor life of the winter months. There is no other season when the blood is so much in need of purifying and enriching, and every dose of these pills helps to make new, rich, red blood. In the spring one feels weak and tired—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give strength. In the spring the appetite is often poor—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills develop the appetite, tone the stomach and aid weak digestion. It is in the spring that poisons in the blood find an outlet in disfiguring pimples, eruptions and boils—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills speedily clear the skin because they go to the root of the trouble in the blood. In the spring anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia, erysipelas and many other troubles are most persistent because of poor, weak blood, and it is at this time when all nature takes on new life that the blood most seriously needs attention. Some people dose themselves with purgatives at this season, but these only further weaken themselves. A purgative merely gallops through the system, emptying the bowels, but it does not cure anything. On the other hand Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood, which reaches every nerve and organ in the body, bringing new strength, new health and vigor to weak, easily tired men, women and children. Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills this spring—they will not disappoint you.

THE COURT TRAIN.

Queen's Regulations Not So Severe as at First Reported.

The rules and regulations regarding the exact length and breadth of Court trains recently issued by the Lord Chamberlain has again called forth the manifestly absurd statement that those who purpose attending these functions must beware of following the present fashion too closely if they would avoid the risks of being turned back from the doors of the throne room, says the Pall Mall Gazette.

The so-called new regulations differ in no way from those which have been in force since time immemorial. That the Queen does not approve of the exaggerated fashions of the present day is sufficiently indicated by her Majesty's own style of dress, but between that and any definitely expressed opinion on the subject, except as regards the ladies of her household, there is a wide margin; and the statements that the Queen has set her face firmly against this or that fashion where the general public is concerned are incorrect, and gave so much offence in high quarters some time ago as to call forth an official contradiction.

It is to be hoped, however, that the majority of the ladies attending the Courts will avoid that monstrosity, the hobble skirt, even in its modified evening form, as it is an absolute impediment to grace of movement.

When passing the presence, every woman has, so to speak, the stage to herself, and to have to proceed up the strip of crimson carpet as though she were endeavoring to win a sack race, under the gaze of hundreds of critical eyes, must be the reverse of gratifying.

FOUNTAIN TOOTH BRUSH.

Hollow Handle Carries Cleansing Fluid to Bristles.

No longer will it be necessary to carry a bottle or box of tooth wash, or tooth paste, when you go away from home. All you will need will be your tooth brush—that is, if it is the tooth brush devised by a Georgia man. This little implement has a hollow handle and a hollow brush frame with slits on the under side. The handle, which has a screw cap at the outer end, is designed to contain the cleansing preparation, whether fluid or powder, and the flow of this stuff into the brush frame is controlled by a valve. When the fluid is allowed to run the frame it trickles down the bristles and the brush is all ready for use without a drop of the preparation being wasted. With the handle of this brush loaded and a clean collar a man is ready for a trip.

BABY THIN — HAD NO APPETITE

Mrs. Ulderic St. Georges, St. Mathias, Que., writes: "I am writing to say I am well satisfied with Baby's Own Tablets. My baby was ill and I tried several remedies, but the result was discouraging. He became very thin, had no appetite, hardly slept at all and was extremely weak. I got Baby's Own Tablets and they soon set him right again, till at the age of eleven months he was able to walk and was a strong, healthy child. I do not think there is anything to equal Baby's Own Tablets for little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The lace trade of France is said to afford employment for 200,000 persons.

To Men Who Live Inactive Lives.—Exercise in the open air is the best tonic for the stomach and system generally; but there are those who are compelled to follow sedentary occupations and the inactivity tends to restrict the healthy action of the digestive organs and sickness follows. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills regulate the stomach and liver and restore healthy action. It is wise to have a packet of the pills always on hand.

GOOD MARKSMEN.

A Yankee entered a hotel in the Highlands, when he overheard a party of gentlemen speaking about shooting.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I guess I have seen some good shotting in my time. I have seen a fly killed on a flagpole at 300 yards."

An Irishman, who was one of the party, said: "Begorra, it's purty good, but I believe I've seen better. When I was in the army the major used to roll an empty beer barrel down the hill, and every time the bung hole turned up we put a bullet in. Any man who couldn't do it was discharged."

A SCOTSMAN BLOWING.

An Englishman and a Scotsman, both commercial travellers, were bragging about the firms they represented. "You may judge of the extent of our business," said the Englishman, "from the fact that we spend £215 a year in ink for our correspondence." "That's nothing," said the Scotsman. "My firm saves twice that amount yearly by not dotting its 'i's' and not crossing its 't's.'"

ON THE PLATFORM.

"Don't you see that sign 'No smoking'?" asked the car conductor.

"Yes," replied the inconsiderate and obstinate passenger. "And all I have to say is that the man who wrote that sign was no prophet."

ALONG THE LINE OF C.N.O. RAILWAY

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS WORK WONDERFUL CURE.

Mrs. Ed. Lloyd, Weak and Worn and Wracked with Pain Found Relief and Cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ardbeg, Ont., March 18 (Special)—"Dodd's Kidney Pills have done wonders for me," so says Mrs. Ed. Lloyd, wife of a well-known farmer living on the line of the C. N. O. Railway near here.

"I was so weak I could hardly walk around," Mrs. Lloyd continues, "I suffered from female weakness and kidney trouble. My heart troubled me so that at times I would almost pant with the palpitations. I was treated by the doctor, but he could give me no relief.

"I was sick all over when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, Rheumatism, Lumbago and Neuralgia adding to my sufferings. But Dodd's Kidney Pills helped me almost at once. After taking eight boxes I was completely cured."

Naturally Mrs. Lloyd wants other suffering women to know how she found a cure, and Dodd's Kidney Pills will do for other sufferers just what they did for Mrs. Lloyd, make new women of them.

LIVELY WEDDING GIFTS.

Exciting Honeymoon Caused by "Useful" Presents.

No one ever received a more curious consignment of wedding presents than the famous lion-trainer Bidel. "We spent our honeymoon at Lyons, France," he once told a friend, "and we had some queer presents from the ordinary point of view, as all my friends were anxious to give 'something useful.' Among other gifts were three boa-constrictors and five alligators. I shall never forget how annoyed I was and how frightened my wife was when during the night two of the alligators broke out of their boxes in our bedroom and began exploring. I could not find the matches, and my wife and I remained on top of the bed canopy till morning. Luckily my wife did not think of the thing that was worrying me. I was deadly afraid that the alligators would waken up the boa-constrictors."

An Oil That is Famous.—Though Canada was not the birthplace of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, it is the home of that famous compound. From here its good name was spread to Central and South America, the West Indies, Australia and New Zealand. That is far afield enough to attest its excellence, for in all these countries it is on sale and in demand.

GOSSIP.

"What did she say?" inquired the chambermaid.

"She said we was neither of us any good."

BABY TERRIBLY SCALDED.

Relieved by Zam-Buk.

Doctor Agreed Zam-Buk was "Best Possible Treatment."

Mrs. Albert Sawyer, of Midland (Ont.), says: "While living in Brantford last winter my little son spilled a vessel of boiling water over his neck. He was terribly scalded, and we immediately called in a doctor. The treatment did not seem to give the child ease or heal the terrible scalds, so after a week's trial we got some Zam-Buk and applied it. It gave the child ease almost immediately, and after a few days' use the scalds seemed to be getting along finely.

"To make quite sure that all was right, however, we called in a second doctor. He said everything was going along splendidly, the scalds were healing and the little one would soon be quite recovered. Then we told him we were using Zam-Buk, and he said we could use nothing better. Zam-Buk worked a complete cure."

Mrs. S. Smith and Mrs. J. H. Teakle, of 73 Brock St., Brantford, who knew of the above accident, and what followed, write: "We certify that these facts are true in every detail."

Doctor Rose at Four A.M. to Evade Wife Who Kept Him Home.

The trial at Krakow of a Polish doctor named Steinfeld, who has come to grief through gambling, has been the occasion of some curious revelations about the hold which this vice has on business men in Austrian Poland. Dr. Steinfeld's wife, in her endeavor to keep her husband out of temptation, tried the plan of never leaving him out of her sight, even when a practice of going to bed early and rising at four in the morning, before his wife was awake, in order to hurry off to the so-called "Monte Carlo" at Krakow, which he would find still in full swing at that hour. When staying at hotels during the summer he would arrange meetings with other players in the bathroom, and play there for hours, while he told his wife that he was taking a cold water cure.—London Standard.

UNCLAIMED JEWELS.

The value of the jewels lost and found in the streets and public places of London, England, sometimes amounts to as much as $100,000 in a year. The London police keep all such property as is delivered up to them for twelve months, advertising it in three daily papers during that period. If it is not claimed, and the account given by the finder seems reasonable, it is handed over to him, the police deducting the bare cost of the advertisements. If a cabman should find valuables in his cab, it would be his duty to hand them to the inspector at the nearest police-station, and every day a neat little motor vehicle circulates among the police-stations of the metropolis garnering jewels and other lost property for transit to headquarters at New Scotland Yard.

LETTER FROM THE CAPITAL

INTERESTING GOSSIP FROM THE QUEEN CITY.

Countess of Warwick's Visit—"Kitty Gordon," the Actress—Rumors of Strikes—Knights of the Future.

(We have arranged for a weekly letter about Toronto affairs, which, we believe, will be of great interest to many of our readers. These letters will be from the pen of one of Canada's foremost journalists, a man who has covered some of the world's greatest happenings and now occupies a leading position on one of the Toronto dailies.)

Toronto has been anticipating with interest the promised visit of the Countess of Warwick, one of the most remarkable women of the generation. In her younger days she was a famous court beauty, and a great favorite with the late King Edward when he was Prince of Wales. Like Queen Alexandra and Mrs. Langtry, perhaps the two other most famous beauties of the era, the Countess of Warwick retains to-day but the vestige of her former personal charm. Her name was prominently associated with the notorious baccarat scandal, the aspersion against her being that it was she who had first tattled, thereby being responsible for the entire disclosure. Hence she acquired the epithet, "Babbling Brook," the Countess of Brooke being her title at that time. It is believed, however, that the allegation was untrue.

A SOCIALIST COUNTESS.

In recent years she has professed an ardent devotion to the cause of Socialism. She is continually appearing on the platform, and has made large contributions to the cause of labor. Perhaps because of the latter fact she is held in high esteem by what may be termed the official labor party, but it is doubtful if she carries much weight with the masses who are not often tolerant of ostentation and flightness. As a Socialist propagandist she has made several visits to the United States, where a title as distinguished as hers never fails to make a commotion. Whilst she may be the messenger of a new era for democracy her lecture tour is arranged as if she were a star amusement attraction. Seats for her lectures are offered at about top prices for the season, which may be taken as an evidence of faith in her drawing powers.

RARE BEAUTY, POOR ACTRESS.

Of present-day beauties Toronto recently had an opportunity to judge "Kitty Gordon," who, with Princess Patricia, is included by a prominent artist among the ten most beautiful women in the world. Theatregoers were duly impressed with her physical charms and her marvelous jewels and dresses, including the $100,000 string of pearls and the $10,000 gown of gold (press agent's figures). But as an actress it has to be confessed she was a frost. Nevertheless, her memory is to be preserved for us by a local beauty specialist who has invented a "Kitty Gordon" facial cream. Another lotion is to be named "Vera Beresford" in honor of Kitty Gordon's daughter—the actress who came from the ranks of a London theatre, being married to a nephew of Lord Charles Beresford.

SPRING CROP OF STRIKES.

This year's annual spring disturbance in the labor world may be unusually severe. After a duration of several weeks the strike of a thousand cloak makers and garment workers at Eaton's threatened to spread to other trades, including carpenters, electrical workers, plumbers and steamfitters, and threatened to be presented by the unions in such a way that it would become a national affair, affecting as far as they can make it do so, all parts of Canada. Such a situation contains all the elements of a serious struggle.

Already too, thirty leading tailor shops have been tied up. The building trades, particularly the carpenters, are restless and are just waiting for the opportunity to demand more money. The 1,500 street railway employes are dissatisfied. In fact, there is scarcely any department of organized labor, in which if wages are not advanced, there is not the probability of trouble.

SOCIAL UNREST NEARLY OVER?

Of course, in this Toronto is but getting its share of a discontent that seems to be world wide. According to the views of Prof. James Mavor, who occupies the chair of Political Economy in the University of Toronto, and who is, perhaps, one of the best informed authorities on industrial affairs anywhere, there is no special significance to be attached to this world wide unrest. Many of the causes, he says, are purely local and the present ferment may be expected to shortly subside. There is, he admits, a general conviction on the part of the workingman that he has not been sharing as he should in the extraordinary prosperity of the past decade, and there is, too, a growing class hatred engendered, perhaps, by the growing public ostentation of the rich, for example, in motor cars, and, perhaps, also, by the publicity of the doings of the rich given in the modern newspaper. Prof. Mavor says he himself recently heard in front of St. James Cathedral violent language directed at the guests at a wedding, by passing laborers, who could have had no direct personal interest. Such an incident is unusual in this country, and may have significance.

SQUEEZING UP COAL PRICES.

The coal strike in the United States mines threatened for April finds Toronto factories with scarcely any stock on hand. And a shut-down of long duration will mean the closing of many establishments and much hardship in consequence. There is a feeling that much of the strike talk is advanced by coal owners on the other side who, with large stocks on hand, see a chance of selling their supply at greatly advanced prices. During the last strike a new crop of millionaires was made in Buffalo and other points by this means. On that occasion, however, some Toronto dealers had better supplies on hand than they have now.

RUMORS ABOUT TITLES.

There are already interesting rumors respecting the recipients of honors at the future distributions of titles. Two names prominently mentioned for knighthood are those of Hon. Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., formerly Judge of the Supreme Court, and Mr. J. S. Willison, editor of the Toronto News, and Canadian correspondent of the London Times. Both are distinguished speakers, both have rendered the present Dominion Government important services, and both are working hard for the centralization of the governing forces of the Empire. Their elevation would be popular with a wide circle of friends.

CUTLERY WITHOUT STEEL.

New Alloy Dispenses Even With Iron for Knives.

An American scientist has discovered a new alloy which is likely to work a great change in some parts of the industrial world. By means of this alloy manufacturers will be able to make cutlery without the use of iron or steel—a feat that has hitherto been impossible of accomplishment. The inventor is, by profession, an automobile manufacturer, who makes a hobby of chemistry. His discovery is a combination of cobalt and chromium. It is unoxidizable and retains its lustre under all atmospheric conditions. It will take an edge which will compare favorably with the best steel, to which it is claimed to be superior in many respects. The alloy will take a hard polish, and is pleasing in appearance. Pocket knives and razors have been made from it and used with remarkable success. Iron has been turned on a lathe with it, while the fruit knives made from it have been found not to tarnish from contact with fruit juice.

NO WORDS WASTED.

A Swift Transformation Briefly Described.

About food, the following brief but emphatic letter from a Georgia woman goes straight to the point and is convincing.

"My frequent attacks of indigestion and palpitation of the heart culminated in a sudden and desperate illness, from which I arose enfeebled in mind and body. The doctor advised me to live on cereals, but none of them agreed with me until I tried Grape-Nuts food and Postum.

"The more I used them the more I felt convinced that they were just what I needed, and in a short time they made a different woman of me. My stomach and heart troubles disappeared as if by magic, and my mind was restored and is as clear as it ever was.

"I gained flesh and strength so rapidly that my friends were astonished. Postum and Grape-Nuts have benefited me so greatly that I am glad to bear this testimony." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

NEW BANK SHARES SHOULD BE LEFT TO RICH MEN.

Only Well Seasoned Bank Securities are Suitable for the Investment of Men of Moderate Income—During Past Few Years Values of Bank Stocks Have Increased Materially while Price Has Fallen—Look Cheap in Some Instances at Present Time.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible, of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

Since bank stocks have ceased being used as a medium of speculation they have increased their income yield considerably, either by dropping in price or without material price change having increased their dividends. Even now, however, many bank stocks return, on the market price, a lower rate of income than do many high class municipal bonds and shows that in some measure—only some, however—these shares were much too high before if judged on income alone.

The present situation is a decidedly unusual one, for, as a rule, the income yield decreases with every step a security takes from the purely speculative toward the purely investment class. Moreover, to make the result more surprising, it is a practice of banks every year to add out of earnings a very substantial sum to reserve—or rest account—in the course of time this amount equals or exceeds the paid up capital—in comparatively few cases is it very much below the amount of paid up capital. During the past ten years the reserve accounts of the various banks have increased tremendously. This, of course, adds dollar for dollar to the market value of the stock—or should. Then large quantities of real estate have been acquired for branches and other offices, much of which has been placed on the banks' books at an almost nominal figure, and in very few cases has it been written up to anything approaching its market value. Furthermore, the earnings of the Canadian banks have shown a steady increase during the same period. In some cases the increases in capital that have taken place during this time have prevented the percentage earned on capital from altering materially, but in several outstanding cases not only earnings, but dividends also, have increased and prices have failed in any manner to respond.

So, considering these points, one would not be far wrong in concluding that many bank stocks are cheap at the present time.

Looking at the matter from an investment point of view, the first question is that of safety. First and foremost, however, in this question it must be pointed out that shares in new banks are not suitable investments for those dependent on the income from their investments, or others who cannot afford to speculate. New banks and, as we have seen sometimes, old ones, too, come to grief, and even if they do not they are not wise in paying dividends until they have built up a reserve—and this is not a matter of one or two years, either. So, the offerings of shares in new banks may very wisely be left to the rich man who can afford not only to take a chance, but wait for his profit.

(The various investment points of bank stocks will be taken up next week.)

TOO SIMPLE.

The Kind of Food Which Should Be Served in High Society.

The favorite dish of Napoleon III. was perdrix aux choux,—partridge served with cabbage,—but he never ate it at home. Alexandre, his chef, was emperor in the kitchen, and would not serve it to the emperor who ruled the rest of the palace. Partridge—well and good; he would willingly serve partridge, but serve it "with cabbage" he would not. Cabbage was plebeian in itself, and partridge with cabbage was a dish popular in some parts of France, doubtless, among families of a certain social grade, but for the imperial table distinctly a culinary impropriety.

In England, after the fall of the empire, the emperor would occasionally send Comte Clary personally to the kitchen to order the desired delicacy; but either the cabbage could not be obtained, or the partridges could not, or something went wrong with the fire. Alexandre, after assuring the count that it should appear at the next meal, had always some good excuse to offer why it did not.

"I thought we were to have perdrix aux choux to-day," the emperor would say, in his mild, drawling voice, searching the table vainly with his eyes; and an explosion of wrath would follow from Comte Clary, who could not see the imperial orders disobeyed with the phlegmatic goot-nature that the disappointed emperor himself always displayed.

Alexandre was not the only French chef with ideas as to what kind of food should be served in "high life," as the French society papers, in what they think is English, term the higher circles of society. A chef in the service of an English lady of noble birth and the bearer of an historic title who had a preference for new and simple dishes, exquisitely prepared, gave notice after only a few weeks in the place. She offered him higher pay if he would remain, but he firmly declined.

"Madame is generous, but it is a matter above money," he explained. "Madame's tastes are wholesome, also refined, but they are not such as I am accustomed to. Without criticism of madame's preferences, it must be admitted they do not afford a wide range for the abilities of her chef; therefore my departure is inevitable. Alas, I already feel that my genius is beginning to deteriorate!"

Friendliness towards Great Britain is said to be practically universal among the people of the Russian middle-class.

Study the Cost of a Fence—Not Its Price!

There is mighty little difference between one woven wire fencing and another, so far as PRICE goes. But there is a bulky difference in the COST.

Fence-cost depends upon fence-endurance. Wire fence at a dime a rod would be dear if you had to repair and replace it yearly. Thus, though LEADER Fence is no cheaper in the first place than ordinary woven wire fences, it is a whole lot cheaper in the long run—for it stands up, stays tight, and keeps the repair bugaboo at arm's length year after year. It lasts, does

LEADER FENCE

All wire fencing looks much alike. You cannot judge any woven fence's goodness by its looks. One make resembles another very closely. The vital difference is in the lock—the twisted clamp of wire that fastens vertical's and cross-wires together. On that largely depends the fence's durability. LEADER fence has the one lock that is actually perfect. Ask for a sample of it. Note the simple yet powerful triple grip this lock holds on the cross-wires. Imagine how great must be the strain that would loosen such a grip. Then you'll realize why LEADER fence, made of 9-gauge hard steel wire, specially galvanized, springy and able to stand tight stretching, WON'T sag and DOES last.

Occasional advertising is like an occasional shower—it thunders and there is lightning and a few drops of rain and after its all over everybody asks, what was it all about anyway? The steady rain makes the fields green and the crops grow and fills the streams So does steady advertising fill a merchant's coffers.

HICKS' FORECASTS FOR APRIL.—A reactionary storm period falls centrally on the 3rd and 4th, but it is more than probable that storms of both thunder and rain will develop a day or two earlier, or on the 1st, with Moon at full and on the celestial equator, The Venus equinox, also earth's equinox bear upon this period, making very active storms possible and probable. A change to much cooler, with snow to the northward may be expected behind and after the storms. A seismic period, centering on the 1st, covers three or four days before and after that date. A regular storm period covers the 6th to 11th Change to much warmer, with falling barometer and threatening clouds, will appear westward on the 6th and 7th, and during the 8th, 9th and 10th, these conditions will grow into active storms of rain, wind and thunder, as they pass eastward over central and eastern parts of the country. Your barometer, thermometer and hygrometer will at the time tell you what is coming if you will watch them. Hail, rain, and thunder, with marked drop in temperature, and sleet and snow possible far northward, are among the probabilities at this period—all followed by high barometer, cold nights and frost northward

MISS SELDON MARRIED.—A quiet pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. Richard Seldon, Ingersoll, on March 28, when his youngest daughter, Emma Grace, was united in marriage to John Egerton Wilkinson of Rainy River, Ont. Rev. H. B. Christie officiated in the presence of the immediate friends of the bride and groom. The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her father. The wedding march was rendered by Mrs. A. R. Seldon. After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served. After a honeymoon trip to Exeter and other points Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson left for Rainy River, where they will reside. Exeter friends will extend best wishes.

DIED AT OLD PEOPLE'S HOME, LONDON.—Another old and former resident of Exeter passed away at the Old People's Home, London, on Wednesday of last week, in the person of Mr. John Wamsley. The deceased was well and favorably known here, having resided for several years with the late Samuel and Mrs. Buckingam. Mr. Wamsley was among the oldest railway men of Ontario, and was the first conductor to run a train up the L. H. and B. for the property of the Great Western. The road was afterward taken over by the Grand Trunk and he continued in their service and on the same branch up to within about ten years ago, when he retired owing to ill health, rhematism being his trouble. He has since lived in London and Exeter, but the greater part of the time here. He was over 80 years of age. The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon.

Judge Holt's Judgment

IN THE JAMES RYDER vs. THE USBORNE AND HIBBERT FIRE INSURANCE CO. CASE

As received by R. N. Creech, Clerk of the Fifth Division Court at Exeter

This case was heard before me at the last sittings of this Court, and I withheld the giving of judgment until a later date in order to enable counsel for both parties to hand in any cases they wished to bearing upon the points in issue. At the close of the evidence I expressed myself as of the opinion that the case was one that perhaps might properly be settled. Since then I have delayed giving judgment so that the parties might have an opportunity of arriving at a settlement. Nothing, however, seems to have been done in this direction and I shall now proceed to dispose of the matter. The plaintiff upon the 13th day of August last was the holder of a policy in the defendant company and upon that day this policy, No. 4951, "Exhibit A" was in due force and effect, and by it the defendants agreed among other things to insure the plaintiff against loss or damage to certain animals caused by lightning, such loss or damage being limited to a certain amount in each case. The plaintiff on the 13th of August last was and had been for some time previous thereto the owner of a mare which he valued at $150, and which mare was included as one of the animals in the said policy. This animal the plaintiff saw alive and well on the afternoon of the 13th of August, and on the following day one of his family told him the mare was lying dead in the field. The plaintiff went over to where the mare was lying and his son followed him. The mare was found lying on her side and there were no indications of any struggle, and the plaintiff in his evidence said that he then had no thought of her being killed by lightning, and that the son came with a team to draw the animal away. They then got a Mr. Brock, a director of the defendants to come over, and the mare was examined, but nothing could be discovered which would indicate that she had been killed by lightning. By "by-law number 9 of the policy, endorsed on it in red ink, it is provided that within 24 hours after the loss or injury the claimant shall notify a director and shall on oath declare that the animal was in good health up to the time of death or injury, and that there was a thunder storm at the time and place, and in the event of the assured and the director not being able to agree as to the cause of death or injury of the animal or animals the ASSURED shall have a veterinary surgeon examine the animal or animals, and if required by the director shall file the statutory declaration of the veterinary as to the cause of death or injury." I don't think it can be successfully contended that at the time Brock, the director, came over to see the mare that he and the plaintiff agreed as to the cause of her death. They, perhaps, and no doubt did, think she might possibly have been killed by lightning, but I am unable to come to the conclusion that what was said by Brock upon that occasion in any way absolved or relieved the plaintiff of his manifest duty, namely, to have the animal examined by a veterinary surgeon and the cause of death if possible, ascertained. This not having been done and the mare having then been buried, it became practically impossible for any witness to testify what really was the cause of the death of the mare. The night of the 13th of August last was not, according to the evidence, a stormy night. Some of the witnesses testify to it having been a beautiful, fine, and clear night, with hardly a cloud in the sky. The evidence adduced by the plaintiff as to there being lightning at or near the vicinity in which the plaintiff resided, is, to say the least of it, of a very meagre character, and no witness other than perhaps one would say that there was anything other than sheet or flash lightning. I am now asked by the plaintiff upon the evidence to find positively as a fact that there was not only lightning upon that night, but in addition to that to find that this mare was killed by a stroke of lightning. As I take it the plaintiff must prove, in order to succeed in this action, and the onus is undoubtedly upon him to prove affirmatively that the animal was killed by lightning. In view of the evidence adduced I feel that the only conclusion at which I can arrive is that the plaintiff has failed to prove that which is essential to his right to recover, namely, that the death of the mare occurred from or through a stroke of lightning. Should I hold otherwise it would be upon mere conjecture and not upon proof. Several questions were raised at the trial objecting to the proofs of claim filed by the plaintiff, but having regard to the views I have already expressed upon the merits of the case it becomes quite unnecessary for me to deal with these objections. This I may say, however, that had I been able to come to the conclusion that the mare was killed by lightning these objections so far as I can at present see, would not have created any formidable barrier to the plaintiff succeeding. There will be a non-suit, and following the usual order costs will be to the defendant if they see fit to exact costs. (Signed by)

POTATO CANKER A DISEASE

Affects Farm Lands and Is Injurious To The Health of The Consumer

A despatch from Ottawa says: Owing to the shortage in the potato crop this year dealers in and growers of potatoes find it necessary to import large supplies for table and seed purposes from Great Britain, Ireland and other European countries. Bulletin 63, issued by the Dominion Experimental Farm, Ottawa, explains how potato canker has found its way across the Atlantic into Newfoundland with potatoes imported from Europe.

Potato canker is a disease at present unknown in Canada. It is one of the most serious diseases known, affecting not only the farm lands on which potatoes are grown, but the disease is also directly injurious to the health of the consumer of affected potatoes. Boiling does not destroy the injurious properties. The disease is characterized by nodular excrescences, which may often be larger than the tuber itself. These "cankers" affect the eyes of the potato and are very small in the early stages. Any tubers found with smaller or larger outgrowths rising from where the eyes are situated, should under no condition be used for seed or table purposes. The introduction and establishment of this disease would seriously compromise one of the most important agricultural industries of Canada, viz., potato-growing. Farmers and consumers should be exceedingly careful in using potatoes that may have been imported from Great Britain or the continent of Europe. Suspicious-looking tubers should be destroyed by fire, and not be thrown on the ground, or the disease, if present, will establish itself permanently in the soil.

The bulletin referred to explains in detail the character of the disease, and is available to anyone making application for the same.

REMAINS FOUND.

Police Believe Farmer Was Victim of Foul Play.

A despatch from Densil, Sask., says: Fire was discovered on Friday by neighbors of Frank Hasmerl, living north of the town. Upon search being made of the ruins of his barn, Hasmerl's body was found along with the remains of his four horses. The Mounted Police are investigating as to the cause of the fire, and an inquest in all probability will be held. Hasmerl had just proved up his homestead, and is thought to have put a loan through, and no one knows yet what became of the money. Investigation is needed to discover if there was foul play or not.

PHYSICIAN FOUND DEAD.

Sudden Death of Dr. E. Pearson James, of Galt.

A despatch from Galt says: Dr. E. Pearson James, aged thirty-three, was found on Wednesday night dead in his office on Water street north. It was noticed that the usual light was not in the surgery, and when the police, who had been notified, entered they found the body stretched rigid on the floor. Coroner Dr. Vardon stated that death was due to heart disease, the end being likely brought on by a sudden convulsion.

SHE QUIT.

And Much Good Came From It.

It is hard to believe that coffee will put a person in such a condition as it did a woman of Apple Creek, O. (Tea is just as harmful as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee). She tells her own story:

"I did not believe coffee caused my trouble, and frequently said I liked it so well I would not quit drinking it, even if it took my life, but I was a miserable sufferer from heart trouble and nervous prostration for four years.

"I was scarcely able to be around at all. Had no energy and did not care for anything. Was emaciated and had a constant pain around my heart until I thought I could not endure it. I felt as though I was liable to die any time.

"Frequently I had nervous chills and the least excitement would drive sleep away, and any little noise would upset me terribly. I was gradually getting worse until finally one day it came over me and I asked myself what is the use of being sick all the time and buying medicine so that I could indulge myself in coffee?

"So I thought I would see if I could quit drinking coffee, and got some Postum to help me quit. I made it strictly according to directions, and I want to tell you that change was the greatest step in my life. It was easy to quit coffee because I had the Postum which I like better than I liked the old coffee. One by one the old troubles left, until now I am in splendid health, nerves steady, heart all right and the pain all gone. Never have any more nervous chills, don't take any medicine, can do all my housework, and have done a great deal besides.

"My sister-in-law, who visited me this summer, had been an invalid for some time, much as I was. I got her to quit coffee and drink Postum. She gained five pounds in three weeks, and I never saw such a change in anyone's health."

"There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

When you ask your dealer for any of the above goods and he reaches for a substitute, STOP HIM. That is the time. It is too late after you have used part of it with poor success, as is always the case with substitutes.

There is every reason why you should insist upon Gillett's Goods, and absolutely no reason why you should permit a dealer to substitute something he claims to be "Just as good" or "better" or "the same thing" as the article asked for.

The buying public and the dealers acknowledge the superior quality of Gillett's Goods. Why accept something inferior when you can buy Gillett's pure goods at the same price?

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

PERSONNEL OF DIRECTORS AND MANAGEMENT TOO IMPORTANT TO OVERLOOK.

Banks depend chiefly on skill of management to make them successful or otherwise—Big reserves useful—Danger of the double liability always present, though usually negligible.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible, of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor").

As in the case of industrial bonds, and, to a very large measure, whenever investing in shares of any company, the personnel of a bank's board of directors is of prime importance. This point cannot be too strongly emphasized. As we pointed out last week, what person knowing either Dr. Beattie Nesbitt or Mr. Travers, would have entrusted them personally with their money, and yet, although almost any banker could have informed prospective investors of the reputation—or, rather, lack of it—which each of these men bore, most of those who bought Farmers Bank shares apparently didn't take the trouble to make this simple investigation, or if they did, failed to avail themselves of the advice. However, in the case of our older bank stocks the names of most directors are household words—financially speaking—in Canada, and it is not an easy matter to go wrong so far as personnel is concerned.

There is one feature, however, which all investors in bank shares must bear in mind, and that is the "double liability" which hangs over the head of the bank stock investor. Banks are limited liabilities companies it is true, but the limit is fixed at double the amount of the par value of the shares which one owns. Suppose some years ago one bought ten Ontario Bank shares at 130. The holder of this 10 shares would have paid $1,300. When the bank failed he lost not only his $1,300—as he would in the case of an ordinary "limited" company if it failed—but stood to lose an additional $1,000. Such an investor may not eventually lose the whole $2,300, but his chances of getting much of his double liability call back are not very excellent.

This feature of bank stocks makes it essential that the investor take the utmost care in choosing a stock for investment, unless he pick one of the first ten or so "gilt edged" stocks. Not that there is any present danger, but the possibility of prolonged hard times while remote to be sure, should not be overlooked, as their effect on the banks is to cause severe and sometimes crippling losses.

In one way banks offset the double liability by laying by a substantial reserve. As pointed out in a former article, many banks have reserves equal to or greater than the total amount of their outstanding capital stock. This, of course, is very satisfactory while it lasts, but good management and careful choice of business are of more value to a bank's shareholders than all the reserves in Canada. Poor management may cause reserves to disappear; dishonesty and foolishness had this effect in the case of the Ontario Bank; but good management is an asset always.

In examining a bank report previous to investing in the stock, first look at the list of directors. Be sure that they are men noted for their careful management of their own business and successful withal. Then see that the past few years' business has shown steady advancement, making due allowance of course for periods of trade depression, such as affected earnings during 1908. Notice the reserve, too, and then take note of the amount of the excess of assets over current liabilities, and the amount of quickly available assets. The latter, including "Specie," "Dominion notes," "Investments in bonds and stocks," "Call and short loans," etc., should be at least 25 per cent. of the total liabilities, though if the cash and non-earning assets amount to too great a proportion, very often the management is making the mistake,—one which cannot be harshly criticized, however,—of keeping too great a proportion of their assets in a form which, while eminently safe, might better be used in earning interest. And, finally, see that the bank has a good name. A bank's really important asset is its good-will—that is its reputation. Take away its reputation, cause men to distrust it, and its business disappears. Not so many years ago the Sovereign Bank was a flourishing institution. Hard times came and showed that many of its assets were not of sufficient value to withstand the pressure of a depression in business. They had to be written off, and in order to make up for their loss the capital stock had to be cut in half. The result was that every holder of ten shares found that after the cut he only had five. But that wasn't the worst. The public lost confidence in the bank. Accounts were withdrawn, business dwindled. The bank's good name was lost. In a few months it went into liquidation, and last fall its shareholders had to "fork out" their double liability. All of these steps but the first of cutting the capital in half resulted from the loss of the public's "good-will." The importance of a good name is sufficiently obvious from the illustration to require no further comment.

HOW PRICES HAVE ADVANCED

Statement Submitted to the Commons By The Minister of Labor

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Minister of Labor tabled in the Commons on Thursday a report of Mr. R. H. Coats of the Department of Labor on the rise in wholesale prices, particularly during the past year. It is shown that in 1911 prices were higher in Canada than at any time save the years 1872 and 1882, the most pronounced hoist taking place during the last half of the year. Wholesale prices during 1910 were twenty-four per cent. higher than the average for the last ten years of the last century. In 1911 this percentage went up to twenty-seven, due in a great measure to the crop shortage. The present high wave began to make itself felt in 1909. Volumes of figures are cited and tables given to indicate how the rise occurred. The principal commodities affected are dairy produce, fish, fruit, vegetables, groceries, provisions, footwear, fuel, house furnishings, drugs, oil, tobacco, and textiles.

HOISTING MULES TO SURFACE

Proof that United States Anthracite Mines Will Close.

A despatch from Mahoney says: That the anthracite operators are preparing for a long period of idleness is shown by the fact that at several of the largest collieries in this section preparations are being made to hoist the mules to the surface. This is never done unless a period of idleness, covering several months, is expected. A prominent operator told the correspondent on Thursday that the situation was one that evidently could not be worked out in any way except by a test of endurance. "We simply cannot comply with the demands of the men for increased compensation," he said, "and we will not recognize the union and practically keep up its membership, something that its own officers have failed to do, by collecting the union dues at the mines. Under the circumstances what are we to do except close down the mines and practically go out of business for the time being."

INFLUX OF IMMIGRANTS.

Eleven Thousand Reached Montreal on Monday.

A despatch from Montreal says: In the neighborhood of 11,000 immigrants from seven boats, whose times of arrival happen to coincide through their regular time tables being interfered with by the British coal strike, were brought into the Canadian Pacific Railway stations on Monday, and the authorities here were the busiest men in the city until they got them transhipped for the West. There will be 6,550 steerage passengers, mostly bound for west of Winnipeg, 3,000 second-class passengers, and 1,500 first-class passengers.

BONDS PAYING 6% INTEREST

The First Mortgage Bonds of Price Bros. & Company at their present price pay 6 per cent interest. The security they offer is first mortgage on 6,000 square miles of pulp and timber lands scattered throughout the Province of Quebec. The timber is insured with Lloyds of England against loss from fire. The earnings at present are sufficient to pay bond interest twice over, and when the mill now in course of construction is in operation, earnings will be enormously increased. These bonds can be quickly converted into cash, as there is a ready market for them.

From standpoints of interest return and security, these bonds constitute an investment of exceptionally high order. There is every reason to believe these bonds will considerably increase in value.

We will be glad to send you literature further describing these bonds.

CANADA DRAWING ON STATES

125,000 American Settlers Brought About $125,000,000 To This Country

A despatch from Washington says: The sum of $125,000,000 was taken to Canada by 125,000 Americans, who were attracted to various province of the Dominion by lands that were procured practically for the making. Iowa and other States of the northwest declined in population, or failed to show normal increases in the decade between 1900 and 1910. Western members contend that this condition of affairs is directly traceable to the more liberal laws governing the disposal of the public domain in the Dominion. While the population of the northwest is decreasing, or failing to increase, the population of Canada is increasing at the rate of 1,000 a day. Canada is drawing on this country to increase her population and the farming regions of the border States are yearly losing thousands of citizens who are attracted to the provinces by lands given in patent to settlers at low prices and on terms that are favorable otherwise. This, in brief, is the argument that was used on Wednesday in behalf of a bill passed by the House, governing the disposal of the public domain in the United States. The measure, which has already passed the Senate, will soon be submitted to the President for approval. It was framed by western members and is designed to check the flow of emigration from the United States to Canada. The bill in a large measure is patterned after the laws of Canada. In the first place it reduces the residence required on the American homestead from five to three years. Second, it permits an entryman and his family to be absent from a homestead for five months during each year of the residence period.

It was pointed out in the report on the bill that most of the desirable public lands in the United States have already been settled, and that in order to attract homesteaders it has become necessary to soften the rigor of the American land laws.

A GOOD MEDICINE FOR THE SPRING.

Do Not Use Harsh Purgatives — A Tonic is All You Need.

Not exactly sick—but not feeling quite well. That is the way most people feel in the spring. Easily tired, appetite fickle, sometimes headaches, and a feeling of depression. Pimples or eruptions may appear on the skin, or there may be twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia. Any of these indicate that the blood is out of order—that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon you and may easily develop into more serious trouble.

Do not dose yourself with purgatives, as so many people do, in the hope that you can put your blood right. Purgatives gallop through the system and weaken instead of giving strength. Any doctor will tell you this is true. What you need in spring is a tonic that will make new blood and build up the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only medicine that can do this speedily, safely and surely. Every does of this medicine makes new blood, which clears the skin, strengthens the appetite and makes tired, depressed men, women and children bright, active and strong. Mrs. Maude Bagg, Lemberg, Sask., says: "I can unhesitatingly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a blood builder and tonic. I was very much run down when I began using the pills, and a few boxes fully restored my health."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HIS RULE.

"I have made it a rule through life," he said at the table the other day to a man to his left, "never to meddle with another man's business."

"That's right—perfectly right," was the reply.

"But I see you have a new confidential clerk."

"Yes, sir—yes."

"He's a hard-looking case. I have seen him intoxicated a dozen times and I wouldn't trust him out of my sight with a ten cent piece. Took him out of charity, eh?"

"Well, not altogether, you know. He happens to be my eldest son."

There was a period of silence so painful that both wished some one would yell "fire" to break it up.

In its initial stages a cold is a local ailment easily dealt with. But many neglect it and the result is often the development of distressing seizures of the bronchial tubes and lungs that render life miserable for the unhappy victim. As a first aid there is nothing in the handy medicine line so certain in curative results as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the far-famed remedy for colds and coughs.

WELL INVESTED.

"Seven years ago I landed in this town with only one dollar, but that dollar gave me my start."

"You must have invested it very profitably."

"I did, I telegraphed home for money."

POLITE!

First Tramp—"After all, it pays to be perlite, pardner."

Second Tramp—"Not always. The other day I was actin' deaf and dumb, when a man gave me ten cents, I says, 'Thank you, sir,' and he had me arrested."

Specialist Did Skin Trouble No Good

Very Itchy and Disfiguring. Got a Little Cuticura Soap and Ointment and Was Cured.

"For two summers I suffered with skin trouble on my arms, and on my legs from my knees down. My arms were badly disfigured, and I kept them covered. It came like the hives, and was very itchy. I consulted a specialist, who gave me medicine, as well as an ointment, but seemed to do no good. It was beginning to appear on my face.

"I got a little Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap. The first touch of Ointment seemed to relieve, and before the Cuticura Ointment was finished I was cured. I have not the least sign of trouble. I think it would have spread over my whole body if Cuticura Soap and Ointment had not cured me. I am delighted with them, and do feel pleased to think I have something I have confidence in. I tell all my friends about them, and I think Cuticura Ointment is the best I ever saw." (Signed) M. J. Boddy, 73 McCaul St., Toronto, Dec. 22, 1910.

Cold-Sore Began to Heal With First Use of Cuticura Ointment.

"Cuticura Ointment cured a very bad cold-sore that gave me hours of severe pain and loss of sleep. I tried lots of other remedies but nothing did me any good till I tried Cuticura Ointment, and from the very first application it began to heal and now there is not even a scar left." (Signed) Mrs. W. Boyce, Mermaid Farm, P.E.I., Jan. 8, '11.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have afforded the speediest, safest and most economical treatment for skin and scalp troubles, of young and old. Although they are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a liberal sample of each may be obtained free, from the Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., 57 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

Sir Frederick Treves.

LUCKY SIR CHARLES.

A good story is told of that famous English society surgeon, Sir Frederick Treves. The story deals with one of Sir Frederick's distinguished patients, Lord Charles Beresford. Lord Charles fell ill and sent for the great surgeon. "Tell me your symptoms," said Sir Frederick. His lordship enumerated pains here and pains there, with an ache and a stiffness somewhere else. Each item was greeted by the doctor with a great chuckle, and at last when the catalogue of ills was completed he rose and turned to Lord Charles, "My dear fellow," he said, "let me congratulate you; you have the rarest disease of the century. You lucky dog! you have a disease that was thought to be extinct." Lord "Charlie's" answer is not recorded.

MOTHERS RECOMMEND BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Baby's Own Tablets are recommended by thousands of thankful mothers who have used them for their little ones and have found them a safe and sure cure for constipation, indigestion, worms, simple fevers and all stomach and bowel troubles. Concerning them Mrs. Auguste Blier, St. Damase, Que., writes: "Please send me another box of Baby's Own Tablets. I have already used them and have found them an excellent remedy for little ones. I would strongly recommend them to all mothers." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Revive the Jaded Condition.—When energy flags and the cares of business become irksome; when the whole system is out of sorts and there is general depression, try Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They will regulate the action of a deranged stomach and a disordered liver, and make you feel like a new man. No one need suffer a day from debilitated digestion when so simple and effective a pill can be got at any drug store.

Some writers have a wealth of thought, and they all have a thought of wealth.

Requisite on the Farm.—Every farmer and stock-raiser should keep a supply of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil on hand, not only as a ready remedy for ills in the family, but because it is a horse and cattle medicine of great potency. As a substitute for sweet oil for horses and cattle affected by colic it far surpasses anything that can be administered.

MODEST BLACKSMITH.

Shortly before his departure for India, King George was visiting at a country house near the scene of one of Oliver Cromwell's battles. Strolling out one morning alone, he met the village blacksmith. "I say, my good fellow," said his Majesty, genially, "I understand there was a big battle fought here."

"Well—er," stammered the blacksmith, recognizing and saluting the King, "I did 'ave a round or two with Bill the potman, but I didn't know your Majesty 'ad 'eard of it."

WOMEN IN ALL PARTS OF CANADA

TELL OF THE HEALTH DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS BRING.

They Made a New Woman of Mrs. Eli Amirault who was a Victim of Kidney Disease for over a Year.

Amirault's Hill, Yarmouth Co., N.S., March 25 (Special)—"Four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new woman of me." Those are the words of Mrs. Elie Amirault of this place. They are words that have been used again and again by women in all parts of Canada who have suffered, and who have found relief and cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I suffered for over a year from kidney disease," Mrs. Amirault continues. "Nothing I tried helped me. At last some one told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I had finished the first box I felt better. Four boxes made a new woman of me."

No remedy ever given to the public has brought health and happiness into the lives of so many women as Dodd's Kidney Pills. This is because nine-tenths of the ills to which women are subject come from diseased kidneys. No woman who uses Dodd's Kidney Pills can have diseased kidneys. They always cure the kidneys.

THE ROYAL PAIR OF RUSSIA.

A Glimpse at the Crowning of the Czarina.

The widow of an American diplomat, who has published her memoirs of foreign courts in "Intimacies of Court and Society," describes the royal pair of Russia as they looked at their coronation.

"The Czarina was easily the most beautiful woman to be seen, and many spoke of her as the artist's ideal of the queenly queen. But her loveliness had nothing of the vanity which seeks a public homage; it had rather the appealing gentleness which made her mother, under the happy freedom of English skies, the most beloved princess of her day, and to me she was more the type of the sheltered woman to be mated to a Brutus of lofty soul. . . . Her face upon her coronation day was charged with profound emotion—it has haunted me ever since. It was like the face of a martyr walking with measured steps to her funeral pyre.

"And the man who was the centre of the gorgeous pictures, whose autocratic aloofness and sanctity of person were proclaimed by every possible accessory of pomp and sacred ceremonial, produced in himself no illusion of royalty such as may impress and thrill even the most democratic when face to face with a king who is really kingly. His narrow forehead and receding chin, visible even behind the beard, spoke little of intelligence and nothing of power, while the insignificance of his small form was emphasized beside the tall men of his family, splendid-looking fellows, all over six feet."

SLIGHT DELAY.

FLOOD AND FAMINE.

Awful Stories Reported From Lower Volga, Russia.

An appalling account of the sufferings of the famine-stricken peasantry on the lower Volga comes from Tzzaritzin, Russia. To give but one instance, in the village of Gavriloff an official inspector discovered that most of the inhabitants were in a state of terrible emaciation; many were affected with boils, and their teeth were falling out. Several families were living in one house, and the abandoned cottages had been pulled down in order to use the wooden walls for fuel. Even this supply was almost exhausted, and in some houses there were icicles on the top of the stoves. Twelve hundred pounds of corn was sent to the village, and several cartloads of fuel.

The consequence of the present widespread famine are most serious. The Government is attempting to deal with the evil of supplying food, but the corn for sowing in the spring has been long ago consumed by the hungry peasants, and they have been obliged to sell at very low prices or to kill off their cattle and horses on account of the lack of fodder.

It is to be feared that the discontent bred by the famine may result in excesses such as took place in the revolutionary period. Perhaps this fear accounted for the sharp punishment just inflicted on forty peasants, who were condemned to terms of imprisonment at Saratoff for burning down the house of a nobleman, and cutting down his forest.

ZAM-BUK IN THE HOME

Read How Useful It Proved in These Widely Different Cases.

Zam-Buk's strongest point is its effectiveness in all kinds of skin diseases and injuries. Just note how excellent these persons proved it in widely different directions.

Sore Heel.—Mrs. C. A. Campbell, of Powassan, Ont., writes: "One of my heels was very badly blistered by a pair of new shoes, and the poisonous dye from my stocking got into it, and made a bad sore. For a week I could not put on a shoe, and suffered great pain. I applied Zam-Buk, and in a few days it healed the wound."

Bad Cut.—Mrs. J. Virgint, of Onondaga, Ont., writes: "Zam-Buk healed a bad cut which I sustained. I was hurrying across my yard one day when I slipped and fell heavily, my knee striking a sharp stone. At the moment I did not realize how badly I was hurt, but I found I had a bad cut about two inches long, very jagged and very deep. We bathed the cut and applied Zam-Buk. This stopped the smarting very quickly, and in a few days it had healed the wound completely."

Eczema Cured.—Mrs. Antoine Arsenault of Maxiamville, P. E. I., writes: "I had eczema and was under doctor's treatment for two years without any good result. I then tried Zam-Buk and in the end it cured me."

Zam-Buk is just as good for piles, blood-poison, festering sores, pimples, eruptions, cuts, burns, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Try Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

TO FIND A NEW CRAZE.

The fashionable world of London must lead a quaint existence. The dearest object of every one's life seems to be to find a new craze. For a time it was bridge. Now bridge is a capital game, but when you are invited to play bridge in the morning, in the afternoon, in the evening, and nearly all night, bridge becomes a form of lunacy. Heaven knows many crazes have had their day since bridge began to wane. Everything from caravanning and skirt-dancing down to appendicitis and laundry work has had its turn. But society has now found a new fad, and, wonderful to say, it is as old as the hills. Society has taken to sewing.

Exeter Advocate,

Sanders & Cresch, Props.

THURSDAY, APR. 4, '12

With that coal strike on in United States we are mighty glad spring is near.

The hotel licenses in Ontario have decreased from over 6,000 in 1875 to 1,800 now. At intervals of five-year periods the number of bars in Ontario have been as follows,—1875, 6,185; 1880, 4,020; 1885, 3,970; 1895, 3,151; 1900, 2,950; 1905, 2,836; 1912, May 1st 1,800.

The first session of the first Borden parliament came to a close Monday afternoon, when His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught delivered the prorogation speech, amid the thunder of the royal salute. The session is marked for the great amount of constructive legislation, besides the settlement of the Manitoba boundary question to the satisfaction of all.

In the supplementary estimates in the Dominion House the town of Mitchell gets an additional $2000 for public buildings, Grand Bend for a pier $5000 Goderich for harbor improvements $50,000; and Kincardine for harbor $10000. We are hoping to see Exeter have a share of the public money next year, and we believe there is every reason to expect that this town will have a fine new post office built next year.

During the dying hours of the session the Liberal majority in the Senate slaughtered no less than four Government measures, three of them bills of more than ordinary importance. The measures which the upper chamber, at the direction of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, chloroformed the tariff commission, the Highway Act, the bill to give a subsidy of nearly two millions to the T. & N. O. Railway, and a minor measure amending the Weights and Measures Act which was introduced by Hon. Mr. Foster. This is an unprecedented action on the part of the Senate and coming from a bunch of aged and worn out politicians should not be tolerated in Canada for a minute.

CONSERVATIVES SWEEP BRITISH COLUMBIA

VANCOUVER, March 29—Corrected returns of the provincial election of Thursday last for the British Columbia Legislature show that two Socialists were elected and 40 Conservatives, leaving the standing in the next House as follows,

Conservatives	40
Socialists	2
Liberals	0
Total	42

Newcastle was in doubt until to-day, but here Parker Williams (Socialist) is declared erected over R. B. Dier (Conservative), by nine votes. Jack Plant (Socialist) retained his seat in Nanaimo by 209 majority.

Vancouver and Victoria went overwhelmingly Conservative, the former electing five Government supporters and the latter four. In Vancouver the highest Conservative received 1,180 over the highest Liberal.

Thirteen Socialists and three Liberals possibly six, lost their deposits. Seven independents shared the same fate.

Each plot is to be two rods long by one rod wide, except No. 28, which is to be one rod square. Any person in Ontario may choose any ONE of the experiments for 1912 and apply for the same. The material will be furnished in the order in which the applications are received while the supply lasts. It might be well for each applicant to make a second choice, for fear the first could not be granted. All material will be furnished entirely free of charge to each applicant, and the produce will, of course, become the property of the person who conducts the experiment. Each person applying for an experiment should write his name and address very carefully and should give the name of the County in which he lives.

A correspondent at Mather, Man., contributes the following concerning a former well-known resident of Crediton, —A quiet marriage took place at the Presbyterian Manse, Mather, Man., on Wednesday, March 27th, when Mr. Wesley Clark and Miss Elenor Kennedy were united in marriage by the Rev. C. Moore. Miss Hamson of Bolkington, England, played the wedding march. The bride looked dainty in a dress of white organdie, her only ornament being orange blossoms. After the ceremony the hostess, Mrs. Moore, served refreshments, and the newly married couple left for their home seven miles south-east of Mather. Mr. Clark came to Manitoba a few years ago from Crediton, Ontario, and secured a half section of good wheat land, which is now in a good state of cultivation. He is one of the many Ontario young men who have come west and prospered.

One of Lucan's prosperous business men took unto himself a bride on Wednesday last, when Mr. Harry E. Lankin was married to Miss Lucy daughter of Mr. John Young, London. Rev. Whiting performed the ceremony, and Miss Welda Bain of Crediton played the wedding march. The bride was given away by her father, and looked charming in her travelling suit of navy blue broadcloth. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful pearl necklace, to the pianist a gold signet ring. After dejeuner Mr. and Mrs. Lankin left for their new home in Lucan, amid hearty congratulations and good wishes of all present. The bride was a former resident of Crediton and has our very best wishes.

Tom Treve thich and Alonzo Hodgins made a business trip to Wingham.

Mrs. McMurray and son Laverne, who have been visiting friends here for a few weeks have returned to their home in Wellburn.

Death—Our people were shocked to learn on Friday morning that Mrs. Michael Hertzel had died quite suddenly the night before. Her husband had been to town in the evening and returning home did not find his wife in the house, and as she had spoken of visiting the neighbors, did not think anything of her absence. He retired to his bed and awoke sometime afterwards. Not finding his wife he made an investigation and to his surprise found her kneeling in his room dead. She appeared to have been dead for sometime before he retired, but on account of no light being in the room he did not notice her. The aged husband then got the assistance of his neighbors. The deceased although suffering from heart trouble did not appear to be ill and her sudden demise can hardly be realized by the family. Her remains were interred in the Evangelical Cemetery on Tuesday. After the burial a short service was held in the church, at which the resident pastor, Rev. Burn and Rev. J. C. A. Schmitt of Berlin took part. The bereaved family have the sincerest sympathy of the entire vicinity in this their sad bereavement.

STATES THAT PARISIAN SAGE IS BEST HAIR TONIC

"I had a bad case of dandruff. My scalp was full of dandruff and it came out thick and scalpy. My hair came out badly; often I nearly cried on account of losing my pretty head of hair.

I heard of PARISIAN SAGE and only had to use two bottles, before the hair stopped coming out, the scalp became clean, and all the dandruff disappeared. The hair became silky and one big reason that I liked PARISIAN SAGE was that it kept the hair smooth, silky, and clean, with no traces of stickiness.

I believe this tonic to be the best on the market as there has been no return of dandruff, or hair falling out whatever. I am glad to publicly endorse the use of PARISIAN SAGE. I have often endorsed its use and am glad to do it." 33 E. Bond St., Corry Pa.

PARISIAN SAGE, the delightful hair dressing and beautifier sold by W. G. COLE and druggists everywhere. Guaranteed for falling hair, dandruff and scalp itch. Large bottle 50 cents.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease the science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Is he a Fake?—For some time a man has been travelling through this district soliciting subscriptions for several papers, and among others the Toronto Globe, Star and World, and also the Farmer's Advocate. He was offering these papers at ridiculously low prices for cash, and in this way picked up quite a bit of money. A lady suspecting that something was wrong wrote to the Farmers' Advocate and received a reply to the effect that no such person had any authority to represent that paper. If this is the case with all the others a good many here will lose some small change. It would be well at any rate to be on this look-out for such characters.

MOORESVILLE.

WEDDING—A very fashionable wedding was solemnized last Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hodgins, of Mooresville, when their fourth daughter, Miss Pearl, was married to Mr. Percy Dauncey, son of Mr. T. Dauncey, of Clandeboye.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. William Lowe, pastor of St. James Church, and Rev. G. J. Kerr, pastor of the Methodist Church, both of Lucan, in the drawing room, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Florence, and the groom was supported by his brother, George.

The bride was beautifully gowned in cream silk, prettily trimmed, and carried a beautiful bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

A large number of guests were present. Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held in the drawing-room. The wedding dinner was served in the dining-room, which was also decorated with flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Dauncey left on the 8 o'clock train from Lucan for Detroit and Chicago. On returning from their wedding tour they will reside in Clandeboye.

WOMEN TAKE NOTICE!

A man cannot understand the torture and suffering many women endure uncomplainingly. If the majority of men suffered as much pain and endured with patience the weakening sicknesses that most women do, they would ask for immediate sympathy and look for a quick cure.

Many women have been saved from a life of misery and suffering by turning to the right remedy—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—a remedy which is safe to take because containing no narcotics, alcohol or injurious ingredients. It is an alterative extract of roots, made with pure glycerin, and first given to the public by that famous specialist in the diseases of women—Dr. R. V. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y.

MRS. HESSHEIMER.

MRS. LIZZIE M. HESSHEIMER, of Lincoln, Neb., 529 "C" St., says: "I send a testimonial with much pleasure so that some suffering woman may know the true worth of your remedies. I was a great sufferer from female troubles but after taking one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which a friend advised me to take, I found myself very much improved. After taking three more bottles, and using two boxes of Dr. Pierce's Lotion Tablets, I found myself on the road to recovery. I was in poor health for five years but now I am cured.

"I hope all women suffering from female weakness will give Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a fair trial.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER XXI

Dubois had evidently offered his cocchiere a lavish bribe for a quick transit through the city, and the Italian was determined to earn it. By the time they reached the Corso Catafini, which carries the chief artery of Palermo out into the country—crossing the railway and passing the magnificent convent of San Francisco de Sale—the horse was laboring heavily, notwithstanding the efforts of the cabman.

It was at this point, when mounting the bridge, that Dubois knew for certain he was followed. Three hundreds yards behind, he saw Talbot whipping an equally unwilling, but better-conditioned steed than that which carried his own fortunes. At the distance he could not recognize the Englishman, but instinct told him that this impassioned driver was an enemy.

Brett, of course, was not visible, being far in the rear.

"My friend," said Dubois, standing up in the small carriage and leaning against the driver's seat, "I offered you twenty francs if you crossed the city quickly. I will make it forty for another mile at the same pace." "It will kill my horse, signorina."

"Possibly. I will buy you another."

The cocchiere thought that this was a lady of strange manner. There was an odd timbre in her voice, a note of domination not often associated with the fair sex. But she had given earnest of her words by a couple of gold pieces, so he murmured a prayer to his favorite saint that the horse might not die until the right moment.

Now it became evident that the leading horse could barely stagger another fifty yards notwithstanding the inhuman efforts of the cocchiere to make the most of the poor brute's failing energies. At last the animal fell, nearly pulling the driver off his perch.

"My horse is done for signorina," cried the cabman. "It is marvelous that he—Corpo di Bacchio! It is a man!"

Dubois felt that his feminine trappings were no longer a disguise, only a hindrance. He had torn off jacket, skirt, hat and wig.

Some portion of the discarded clothing lay on the seat of the carriage, but Dubois had thrown the skirt over his arm.

"Here! Come back!" yelled the Italian. "What about payment for my dead horse?"

But Dubois paid little heed to him. He was fumbling with the pocket of the skirt as he ran. Not until he had withdrawn a revolver from its folds—whereupon he at once threw away the garment—did the maddening remembrance come to him that he unloaded the weapon prior to the Customs examination, and had forgotten to reinsert the cartridges.

They were in the pocket of his serge coat, the coat which Mademoiselle wore. She, like a prudent young woman, had been careful to reload the revolver she carried, and which she transferred to her new attire when, at the last moment, Dubois suggested the exchange of clothing as a final safeguard in the most unexpected event of police interference with their landing.

For an instant he was tempted to fling the weapon away, but he controlled the impulse.

"As it is," he thought, "this fellow who is pursuing me may not be armed, and I can terrorize him if he comes to close quarters."

Moreover, this superlative scoundrel could feel tightly fastened round his waist a belt containing diamonds worth over a million sterling. Such a ceinture was worth fighting for, whilst his pocketbook contained ample funds for all immediate necessaries.

On the edge of the wood Dubois halted and turned to face his pursuer. Instantly he recognized Talbot, and for the first time in his career a spasm of fear struck upon the Frenchman's heart. In the young Englishman he recognized the only man who had cause to hate him with an implacable animosity.

But the unscrupulous adventurer quickly recovered his nerve.

"So it is you who follow me so closely," he cried. "Go back my friend. This time I will not tie you on a bed. You are becoming dangerous. Go back, I tell you!"

And with these words he leveled the revolver at Talbot's breast, for the latter was now within fifty yards of him. But Jack was animated with the mad elation of a successful chase, and governed by the fierce resolve that his betrayer should not escape him.

Dubois reached a small glade among the trees before he comprehended that his ruthless adversary was still close at his heels. He stopped for the last time, resolved now to have done with this irritating business, once and for all. Talbot too halted, about ten yards from him. He felt that he had the Frenchman at his mercy, and there were a few things he wished to say to him before they closed in mortal combat.

"This time, Henri Dubois," he panted, "I am not drugged and strapped helplessly to a bed. You know why I am here. I have followed you to avenge the stigma you inflicted on my reputation and at the same time to recover the diamonds which you obtained by subterfuge and murder."

The Frenchman was quite collected in manner.

"I murdered no one," he answered. "I could not help the blundering of other people. If I am regretfully compelled to kill you today, it is your own fault. I am only acting in self-defence. How shall we fight?" he calmly demanded.

"Any way you like, you villain. As man to man if you are able. If not, as dog to dog, for I am going to try and kill you!"

"But you are probably armed, whereas I am defenceless! My revolver as you saw, was not loaded."

"We are equal in that respect, if in no other," retorted Talbot.

An evil smile lit up the Frenchman's pallid face. He pulled out his knife with a flourish and hissed—"Then die yourself, you fool!"

He advanced upon Jack with a murderous look in his face. Talbot awaited him, and he, too, smiled.

"You are a liar and a coward to the end!" he cried.

At that instant a cold, clear voice rang out among the trees, close behind the two men.

"Halt!" it cried.

Both men involuntarily paused and turned their eyes to learn whence came this strange interruption. Brett quietly came a few paces nearer.

He held a revolver significantly at Dubois' breast.

"Drop that knife," he said with an icy determination in tone and manner that sent a cold shiver through his hearer's spine.

"Drop it, or I will shoot you this instant!"

Dubois felt that the game was up. He flung down the knife and tried even then to laugh.

"Of course," he sneered, "as I am cornered on all sides I give in."

Brett still advanced until he reached the spot where the knife lay. He picked it up, and at the same instant lowered the revolver. Then he observed, with the easy indifference of one who remarks upon the weather—

"Now, you can fight, monsieur. My young friend here is determined to thrash you, and you richly deserve it. So I will not interfere. But just one word before you begin. Two can play at the game of bluff. This is your own pistol. It is, as you know, unloaded."

Dubois' cry of rage at the trick which had been played on him was smothered by his efforts to close with Talbot, who immediately flung himself upon him with an impetuosity not to be denied.

The fight, while it lasted, was fast and furious.

The two men rolled over and over each other on the ground—one striving to choke the life out of his opponent, the other seeking to rend with teeth and nails.

From the writhing, convulsive bodies, locked together in a deadly struggle, suddenly there came a sharp snap. The Frenchman's right arm was broken near the wrist.

Then Talbot proceeded to wreak his vengeance on him. Unquestionably he would have strangled the man had not Brett interfered, for with his left hand he clutched Dubois' throat, whilst with the right he endeavored to demolish his features. But the barrister, assisted by the Italian pilot—whose after-life was cheered by his ability to relate the details of this Homeric fight—pulled the young man from off his insensible foe.

Talbot regained his feet. Panting with exertion, he glared down at the prostrate form, but Brett, being practical-minded, knelt by the Frenchman's side, tore open his shirt, and unfastened the precious belt.

"At last!" he murmured.

Peering into one of the pockets, which by the way of its bulging he thought would contain the "Imperial diamond," he looked up at Talbot with the words—

"Now, Jack, we are even with him."

It was the first time he had addressed Talbot by his familiar and Christian name. The very sound brought back the other man to a conscious state of his surroundings, and in the same instant a great weakness came over him, for the terrible exertions of the past few minutes had utterly exhausted him.

"I can not even thank you, for I am done up. But I owe it all to you, old man. If it had not been for you we should never have found him."

Brett's grave face wrinkled in a kindly smile.

"I think," he said, "we are even on that score. If you had not followed this rascal he might have escaped at the finish, and my pride would never have recovered from the shock. However, go and sit down for a minute or two and you will soon pull yourself together."

The Frenchman regained consciousness.

"Be good enough to remain quite still, M. Dubois," said Brett soothingly. "You have reached the end of your rope, and we do not even need to tie you."

With the aid of some handkerchief's and a couple of saplings cut by the Italian he managed roughly to bind the fractured limb. Then he assisted Dubois to his feet.

"Come," he said, "we are regretfully compelled to bring you back to town, but we will endeavor to make the journey as comfortable as possible for you. In any event, the horses will not travel so fast."

In the roadway they found the carriages where they had left them, whilst three wondering cocchieri were exchanging opinions as to the mad behaviour of the foreigners.

Brett and the Frenchman entered one vehicle, Talbot and the pilot the other.

"But, gentlemen," moaned the disconsolate cabman who had headed the procession from Palermo, "and who will pay me for my dead horse?"

"I know not," replied Brett. "In any event you had better occupy the vacant seat and drive those two gentleman to the city, where you can secure the means of bringing back your carriage."

In this guise the party returned to Palermo, evoking much wonderment all the way through the Corso Vittorio Emmanuele, whence no fewer than six outraged policemen followed them to the Hotel de France to obtain their names and addresses.

CHAPTER XXII.

Palermo was in a perfect ferment. Not since the last revolution had people seen such a pitched battle in the streets, for Macpherson and his myrmidons had used no gentle means to pacify Gros Jean and the Turks, whilst the crew of the Belles Soeurs would not be in a fit state to go to sea for many days.

An excited mob of people surrounded the hotel when Brett and Talbot arrived with their wounded prisoner. Fortunately the Chief of Police came in person to ascertain the cause of all this turmoil. The first alarmist report that reached his ears made out that a species of international warfare had broken out in the harbor.

He told his subordinates to clear away the crowd, and explanations by Brett and Winter soon demonstrated the wisdom of an official communique to the Press that the row on the pier was merely the outcome of a quarrel between some intoxicated sailors.

The Chief of Police politely offered to place detectives at the disposal of the Englishman for the proper custody of their captive. Brett thanked him, but declined the proffered assistance.

"The only prisoner of interest," he explained, "received such severe injuries during the struggle which he brought on himself that he will be quite unable to be moved for several days. His right arm is broken, and his face has been reduced to a pulp. There is a stout Frenchman named Beaucaire and three Turks who accompanied him, whom I recommend to your safe custody. We bring no charge against them, but it would be as well to keep them under lock and key until we have left Palermo."

Concrete-mixing is Easily Learned

IT is no more difficult than mixing bran mash, once the simple instructions have been read.

The materials—sand, crushed rock or gravel and cement—each play a separate part. The rock provides the bulk of volume at very low cost. The sand fills in all crevices between the pieces of rock or gravel. The cement, mixed with water, forms a "bond," in other words a rocky "glue," that binds the other materials firmly together with a strength that increases with time.

Concrete is really artificial rock, more firmly bound together than natural rock, which often has cracks, veins, fissures and other weaknesses.

Any farmer can learn how to mix Concrete and to apply it to the hundreds of uses to which it is fitted.

But in order to be absolutely sure that his proportions are correct and that his materials are properly suited to the purpose, he should send for the book, and read the careful directions for mixing Concrete for all purposes. It also describes in detail hundreds of ways in which Concrete may be used to make the farm more comfortable, more convenient, more profitable and more valuable.

"WHAT THE FARMER CAN DO WITH CONCRETE,"

Just send us your name and address—in a letter or on a postal—and the book will be sent to you by return mail free. Address

HOUSEHOLD

CHOICE RECIPES.

Cabbage Salad.—Mix two cupfuls of chopped cabbage with a half or one whole cupful of chopped celery, just as one happens to have the amount or desires a certain amount of salad. Add one teaspoonful of finely chopped chives or a mere suspicion of garlic. Mix with a boiled or mayonnaise dressing, as desired. Apple may be used in place of the celery and cabbage, and chopped beets make a most excellent salad to serve with fish.

Chicken Souffle.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and stir over a slow fire until mixed smooth and thoroughly cooked. Add one cupful of chicken stock and cook, stirring until the sauce thickens. Add the yolks of one raw egg, mix well, take from the fire and add one cupful of finely minced cooked chicken. Grease the small ramekin or souffle cases and garnish, if desired, with small button mushrooms, and slices of truffles. Mix the whites of two eggs beaten to a stiff froth with the chicken, fill the ramekins quickly and bake in a moderately hot oven for twenty minutes. Serve at once. This mixture may be baked in a single baking dish, if desired, and should then bake a little longer.

Beauregard Eggs.—Boil hard one egg for each person to be served and make one piece of toast for each, making allowance, of course, for requests for more. For each four eggs make two cupfuls of cream sauce. Put this mixture on the hot buttered toast and press the yolks of the eggs over this. Garnish with parsley and serve.

Meat Scallop.—In this case leftover pork is to be used for the scallop, and this means a different seasoning than would be used with turkey. Meat scallops should not be made all alike, for the material one has on hand governs to a very extensive degree what shall be used with the scallop. In this case roast pork, apple sauce and a brown gravy should be on hand to use. Mix the meat with half the quantity of breadcrumbs and add whatever gravy was left over. Grease the baking dish and fill with alternate layers of meat and apple sauce, having the meat layer thick, the apple sauce layer spread lightly on it. If the scallop does not seem moist, add a little hot water or tomato juice. Cover the top with greased breadcrumbs and bake in a moderate oven for thirty minutes. Scallops are better if baked in a covered dish and the cover removed just long enough before serving to brown the top. This keeps them from getting too dry and hard.

Horseradish Sauce.—Mix four tablespoonfuls of grated horseradish with the same amount of fine breadcrumbs, one-half teaspoonful of powdered sugar, two tablespoonfuls of not too strong vinegar, a pinch of salt and a little paprika. Cook in a double boiler or over hot water until thoroughly hot. Add one-half cupful of hot cream and cook until the mixture is thick enough to serve with a spoon. The sauce is served both hot and cold.

Cheese Sauce.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until smooth and thoroughly well cooked. Add one cupful of white stock, if possible; if it is not to be had, use milk and cook until the sauce thickens. Add the yolk of one egg, three-fourths of a cup of cream and one-fourth pound of soft cheese—a well flavored cheese which will melt in the sauce without lumping. A soft Canadian, a gruyere or cheddar cheese may be used, or some of the potted cheese. The cheese should be cut in shavings and the sauce should stand over hot water until the cheese is entirely melted. Serve hot.

Frozen Cream Cheese with Figs.—Scald one cupful of cream, take from the fire and add one cupful of cream or cottage cheese. Mix well, season and freeze. When ready to serve in slices and serve with preserved figs in syrup, serving crackers with this dessert just as they would be served with cheese and bar-le-duc jelly. In place of serving the cheese plain it may be sweetened in the following manner: Scald one cupful of cream, add one cupful of granulated sugar and stir until dissolved; take them from the fire, add one cupful of whipped cream, mix well and stand away to cool; flavor slightly with vanilla, adding a pinch of salt, and begin to freeze. As soon as the cream begins to free add two cupfuls of cream cheese, previously beaten smooth with a little cream. Finish freezing, pack and let stand some little time before serving. This may be served with all sorts of fruits that have a syrup with them, such as preserved strawberries, peaches, etc.

WORTH KNOWING.

To remove tar marks rub a little butter on the spot and allow it to stand till the tar is softened, when it may be washed off with warm water and soap.

To make savory hash boil potatoes with the skins on the day before using. When the meat is boiled save some of the stock and put in when meat and potatoes are mixed.

Metal teapots, if disused for some time, give a musty flavor to the tea when next used. This may be prevented by placing a lump of sugar in the teapot before putting it away.

A few minutes' rest lying down in a darkened room, with closed eyes and thinking of nothing, will brighten up a woman who has been hard at it during the morning hours without a break.

When the smell of frying pervades the house, examine the outside and bottom of the frying-pan, and you will probably find that it is covered with burnt fat, which smells directly it is at all hot.

To remove rust on nickel cover spot with mutton tallow and allow it to stand for five days, then rub with finely powdered rotten stone. Wash off with strong ammonia water and then with clear water.

Turn your colander over eggs or hominy or anything that spatters while cooking. They will not steam and will brown nicely and will not dry out and burn you. You can raise the handle a little to turn.

To prevent the heel plates of children's shoes wearing and cutting through their rubbers, glue in pieces of felt or thick flannel in the heels where the wear comes, and the rubbers will last three times as long.

To all suffering from ringworm—rub the part with vinegar that onions have been pickled in. It has never failed to cure the worst cases, but must be rubbed with it several times a day. The flavor of the onions kills the germ.

A simple dessert and a most excellent one is made with one cup rich cream, one cup sugar, one-half cup strong coffee; have cream and coffee chilled, add sugar, whip stiff. Pour in mould, pack in snow, and salt or ice for several hours.

To cool an oven while baking keep the door shut, put in the damper of the oven flue, and, if the oven is still too hot, remove one of the rings of the hot plate. This will reduce the temperature quickly without admitting cold air to the oven.

When boiled bacon is to be eaten hot its most suitable accompaniment is boiled beans. They are best boiled separately; it is impossible to boil them together without spoiling one of them. Parsley and butter sauce should be served along with the beans.

Neither salt fish nor mackerel should ever be plunged into boiling water or fish stock, the result in the latter instance being that the delicate skin would break, whilst in the case of highly salted cod or other fish, the heat of the water would not extract the salt as would be the case if tepid water were employed.

RED CROSS SHIP FOR NAVY.

Plans Drawn Up for Floating Hospital for British Tars.

The British Admiralty has now complete plans drawn up for a specially built navy hospital ship, which is to be ready in June, 1913. The estimated cost is $500,000.

Before this all hospital ships have been merely merchant ships converted and have consequently suffered from inevitable defects. The new vessel will have accommodation for 260 in peace and a permanent staff of eight medical officers and forty male nurses.

Built on yachtlike lines, she will have a tonnage of 5,000. She will be fitted with turbine engines, but her speed will be limited to twelve or fourteen knots an hour in order to avoid vibration, and with the same object in view, she will be fitted with the most recent anti-vibration devices.

There will be two large operating rooms with two extensive preparation rooms adjoining, a special ophthalmic dark room, a dental room, a special laboratory for bacteriological tests, an elaborately fitted X-ray room, isolating wards and a magnificently equipped dispensary by telephone.

The cots will be made to swing with the motion of the ship. Ten of the beds will be specially constructed with firmer bottoms and somewhat larger than the others for the use of patients with fractured thighs and other injuries which require a specially stable bed.

She will be painted white outside and mostly green inside, with one yellow funnel. Her flags will be the cross and the blue ensign, not the Union Jack.

FIND NEW SERUM.

That Will Greatly Reduce Death Rate from Tuberculosis.

A remarkable discovery that is expected to rapidly cut down the high mortality from pulmonary tuberculosis and other ailments that cause excessive hemorrhages has been made by physicians at Bellevue Hospital. After months of experimental work they have produced a serum which they declare will prevent the occurrence, or almost immediately stop hemorrhages.

During the last few weeks the new remedy has been used with almost invariable success on patients at Bellevue. Most of those treated were tubercular victims. It was also used on several cases of internal hemorrhages and on a boy who had bled for a week after two of his teeth were extracted.

The research work that led to the discovery was based on the theory that hemorrhages are caused by the condition of the blood itself. When one or more of the constituent parts of the blood is lacking, or when certain constituents are present to an abnormal percentage, the blood breaks down the capillaries and hemorrhages follows. The task which the physicians set for themselves was to find and supply the missing blood constituents.

They decided to get the blood materials from fourteen horses that were supplanted in the ambulance service by motor vehicles. A pint of blood was taken from each of the animals and treated, creating a colorless fluid. This fluid constitutes the serum and supplies the missing constituents that are, in most cases, required to prevent hemorrhages.

"Thus far the serum has been successful in almost all cases," said one of the Bellevue doctors. "In fact, the failures were so few that we consider the serum a complete success. It is true, however, that it has no effect whatever on some persons."

Dr. Charles Norris directed the research work and was assisted by Drs. C. W. Field and M. E. Hall. They tested it on mice, rabbits and other animals before it was used on the hospital patients. Dr. Charles F. Baxter, a house physician, and Dr. L. B. MacKenzie, a visiting physician in the tubercular service, had charge of nearly all the cases in which the serum was administered.

"The value of the serum cannot be overestimated," said a pathologist connected with the Board of Health. "While it will not cure tuberculosis, it will prolong the lives of a large percentage of tubercular patients, and give them a chance to be cured.

"The new serum will also be of great value in connection with operations. By using it patients will be kept from bleeding profusely."—New York American.

SUCCESSFUL BONE-GRAFTING.

Parisian Surgeon Cites Two Cases of a Remarkable Nature.

Dr. Tuffier, one of the most prominent surgeons in Paris, France, reports that he was called upon to treat the arm of a young man whose elbow joint was affected by ankylosis. The joint had been removed, as the entire arm was paralyzed. The bone of another patient, a woman, whose foot had been amputated, was used to replace the missing bone. The young man after thirteen months is now able to use his arm.

Another case is that of a young man whose elbow had been destroyed by tuberculosis. In this case (14 months ago) Dr. Tuffier successfully grafted cartilage preserved for five days from an operation on the leg of another person.

Two more municipal bowling greens are being laid out at Blackpool.

SOON AVERTS STRIKE.

Churchill's Mother Supports Demands of Men.

Mrs. Cornwallis West, who is the moving spirit in the "Shakespeare's England" exhibition, which is to be the great London attraction this summer, has taken precautions that labor troubles shall not disturb the steady progress of the structural work at Earl's Court, London, England.

The workmen had only been on the scene a few days when a dispute arose as to the employment of union and non-union labor. Very soon all the elements of a strike were manifest. Mrs. West did not wait for the contractors to adjust the dispute. She came down to the grounds and heard the workmen's story from their own spokesmen, with the result that she insisted upon the full trade union rate of wages being pay to every man employed, whether laborer or mechanic.

Mrs. Cornwallis West.

The contractors pointed out to her that such a stipulation was not embodied in the agreement and that if they were forced to pay the higher scale of wages it would seriously interfere with their financial calculations. She replied she was not interested in their calculations, but if they did not care about the job they could clear out and do as they pleased.

"I am preparing these grounds for my exhibition and I don't want them to be a battlefield for labor disputes," was her parting shot, as she picked up her skirts and hurried to her automobile. The contractors capitulated on the spot.

SERPENT SERUM.

Austrian's New Safeguards for Men Against Snake Poison.

It is reported in the London Lancet that the chief medical officer of one of the Austrian army corps has recently ordered the use of Calmette's serum against serpent bites, and a fairly large stock of it has now been issued to each regiment in the south of the Empire. The men and the medical officers are instructed in the use of it, and regular inspections of the stock, as well as lectures on the natural history of the poisonous kinds of serpents are provided for. In addition to the serum the various appliances necessary for its proper application have been supplied to the army hospitals. Hitherto much dependence has been placed on the treatment of such injuries by alcohol and the application of permanganate of potash.

"Oh, for the matter of that, I think it worth while for the sake of peace to swallow some insults."

Over 170,000,000 pounds of tea are exported annually from India to the United Kingdom.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, APRIL 7.

Lesson I.—The appearances of the risen Lord, 1. Cor. 15. 1-11. Golden Text, Acts 2. 32.

Verse 1. Now—In the preceding portions of the letter the apostle has discussed in order certain questions of discipline, personal morals, and the regulation of Christian worship. He now proceeds to discuss the central fact and doctrine of Christian faith.

Unto you, brethren—Paul is addressing the members of the recently organized church in Corinth, the Grecian metropolis and most important trade center of the Peninsula.

The gospel—The glad tidings, the message of hope and salvation. Here the word refers more particularly to the doctrine of the resurrection, which had been of central importance in the preaching of the apostle.

2. In vain—Or, without cause. The classical meaning of the Greek word used is hastily, or rashly, that is, without due consideration.

3. That which also I received—Paul had himself believed in Christ on the testimony of others, accepting the teaching of those who introduced him into the Christian fellowship following his miraculous conversion.

According to the scriptures — In harmony with the Old Testament prophecies. The apostle undoubtedly had in mind such passages as Isaiah 53 and Psalm 16. 10, which were interpreted by all of the apostles as referring to Christ.

5. He appeared—Altogether ten different post-resurrection appearances of Jesus are mentioned in the New Testament, not including his appearance to Saul on the road to Damascus, and these may, perhaps, be regarded as selected instances of a still larger number.

To Cephas—That is, Peter. This was the third recorded appearance, the appearance to Mary of Magdala and to other women who had gone early to the sepulcher preceding the appearance to Peter.

To the twelve—Really to the company of ten apostles, Thomas being absent. Again we must insert the appearance of Jesus to Cleopas and another disciple on the road to Emmaus, which immediately preceded this first appearance to the apostles at Jerusalem.

6, 7. To above five hundred—On a mountain in Galilee. We cannot with certainty determine the order in which all of the recorded appearances took place. Clearly the apostle is not attempting either to give a complete list or the exact order. If we endeavor to do both we must insert after the first appearance to all the apostles mentioned in verse 7; and after this the appearance to James. Also the appearance to a small group of disciples, including Peter, on the shores of the Sea of Galilee, on which occasion he required of Peter a threefold assurance of loyalty and love. The last appearance of Jesus recorded in the Gospels is his appearance of Jesus recorded in the Gospels in his appearance to the disciples at Jerusalem, from whence he accompanied them to the Mount of Olives and there departed from them, ascending into glory.

8. To me also—The apostle refers to his experience on the road to Damascus at the time of his conversion. The list of post-ascension revelations of Christ includes two others, those, namely, to Stephen at the time of his martyrdom, and to John on the isle of Patmos.

9. The least of the apostles—The most unworthy and not meet to be called such.

The church of God—From a persecuted company of trouble makers the followers of Jesus had risen in the estimation of this man until he recognized in them a company of true believers and the instrument in God's hand for the establishment of his kingdom upon earth.

10. I am what I am—That is in the capacity of an apostle. Paul attributes his conversion and his opportunity of service alike to the grace of God.

Vain—Or, void.

Labored more abundantly than they all—In his next letter to the Corinthians Paul enumerates the trials and tribulations through which he has passed for the sake of Christ: "In prisons more abundantly, in stripes above measure, in deaths oft. Of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one. Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day have I been in the deep; in journeyings often, in perils of rivers, in perils of robbers, in perils from my countrymen, in perils from the Gentiles, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren; in labor and travail, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness."

11. So we preach, and so ye believed—The Corinthians had received the gospel message gladly without questioning. Their acknowledged faith, therefore, warrants the apostle in proceeding from the mere insistence upon the fact of the resurrection of Jesus to an interpretation of its deeper significance and bearing on the faith and life of all Christians.

A NEW RACE OF PIGMIES.

Diminutive People Have Been Seen In Dutch New Guinea.

Fresh and interesting information regarding the habits and conditions of life of a curious pigmy race will be sought by the new expedition to Dutch New Guinea, which is now being planned in London, England. This strange race of people were first seen by white men when the recent expedition under Captain C. G. Rawling penetrated into the heart of the island.

Rawling's expedition comprised six Englishmen and was sent out by the British Ornithologists' Union. Their objective was a long range of snowy mountains, called the Nassau range, but between them and it lay 60 miles of absolutely unexplored country, and of the most difficult kind to negotiate. Dense forest covered most of it, intersected with rivers which for one half of the year were torrents and the other half nearly dried up river-beds.

The pigmies were first discovered near the Kapare river, one of the immense streams which, rising in the Nassau mountains, make their way down to the sea. The Japanese soldiers who accompanied Rawling as bearers spied a couple of the little people one day in the hills. The pigmies bolted at once, and an exciting chase took place, which ended in their being captured, and two days later more were surprised and surrounded. They proved to be sturdy men averaging about four feet, eight inches high, and much better developed than the tribes encountered in the plains. They were also industrious, and decidedly more intelligent. They had neatly constructed huts, and after some time it was discovered that they had words in their language to denote numerals up to ten, words entirely lacking from the language of the plainsmen. Although the most strenuous search was made, only solitary huts could be found. Strangely enough, no children and only one woman, who was being escorted to her new home from her wedding, were seen.

PROBLEM OF ARMAMENTS.

German Military Expert Discusses English Entente.

Among all the contributions to the debate on an Anglo-German understanding, none are more interesting than those of the naval and military expert, Count Reventlow. He has always shown an anti-English attitude; therefore his moderate expressions are the more notable.

He lays down the principle that if there is to be an agreement at all it should be an understanding on the breadest political basis. Germany, he says, does not require small colonial favors from England at the expense of a third power. England should not be allowed to say "Germany does not want our friendship, it only wants our coaling stations."

The root of the whole matter is the general political relations between the two lands, and an improvement is not possible without a change in the direction of English foreign policy. Recently England has been following a policy harmful to itself merely in order to combine other powers against Germany. English statesmen themselves say that this is to be changed, and their intentions can be carried out "only when they work for a kind of entente or general political treaty with Germany."

It is said that there are no points on which such a treaty can be based. But both Powers might agree to enter into a political or military action with third Powers which are directed against the other. A declaration of neutrality of this kind would give an excellent opportunity of proving that the Entente Cordiale is, as both French and English statesmen have always asserted, of a purely peaceful nature. If this were once made clear, colonial questions in Africa and economic problems in other parts of the world could be discussed in a thoroughly friendly spirit. Of course an arrangement dealing with various small points is of some use if a more general understanding cannot be reached. But it is not likely in itself to do much to remove mutual suspicion. Behind the political question lies the problem of armaments, and without political sympathy this final difficulty will not be solved.

Incidentally Count Reventlow scoffs at the recent "revelations" as to planned attacks by Germany or England on each other and says they merely reveal "ignorance and undignified mistrust."

A sensible woman is known by the acquaintances she cuts.

HICKS' FORECASTS FOR APRIL.—A Reactionary Storm Period, central on the 13th, 14th, and 15th, is at the centre of the Mercury period, under the increasing strain of the Venus period, with Moon on the celestial equator on the 15th. As this period comes on, the barometer will almost surely fall to threatening conditions, the temperature will rise very high, and severe storms of wind, rain, hail and thunder will pass eastwardly across the country, on and touching the 14th and 15th. The western tangent of these storms will change to sleet and snow in northern sections, with rising barometer, followed by clearing and much cooler weather.

The weatherman on Easter Sunday handed out a variety that was far from pleasing to the ladies who had hopes of displaying their Easter bonnets and spring suits. The day was real chilly and one was happier beside the fire than out of doors.

On Tuesday evening "The Scenes at a Union Depot" were put on in the Opera House by Miss Jones, assisted by a number of young people of town. A large number of people were present and witnessed the affair with interest and appreciation.

The department of agriculture of Ontario has decided to encourage the study of agricultural subjects by the children of the public schools by establishing a system of school fairs to be held each year, independent of all the other fairs. A children's day will be set apart, when the youthful competitors may come together with their seeds vegetables and poultry.

The Easter services in the Trivitt Memorial Church on Sunday last were of a particularly bright and interesting character. The discourses by the rector, Rev. D. W. Collins, were appropriate and deeply interesting, while the singing by the choir was well and pleasingly rendered, the anthem at the evening service being rendered with beautiful effect, Mrs. Billings and Mr. Wm. Lightfoot singing the solo parts admirably. There were nearly sixty communicants at the eleven o'clock service.

Mr. W. H. Collins, manager of the Bank of Commerce, who recently received word from headquarters to go to Belville as manager of that branch of the Bank, will leave for that place to-morrow (Friday.) His many friends here, while being pleased at his deserved promotion to the Belville branch, will sincerely regret his departure from Exeter, and likewise his worthy wife. His genial and obliging disposition, and his courteous dealings with the public made him extremely popular with the customers of the Bank and the business community generally. Socially and otherwise Mr. and Mrs. Collins will be much missed. The new manager, Mr. Waugh, arrived Tuesday night to commence his duties here.

EASTER SERVICES.—The Easter Services in the Presbyterian church were very bright and interesting. The sermons by the pastor, Rev. Sharp, were appropriate to the occasion, while the music by the choir, assisted by Mr. L. C. Fleming and Prof Wm. Brown of Galt was a very pleasing feature. The anthems were well chosen and well-rendered. The solos by Mr. Fleming and Miss Kinsman, and the organ selections by Prof. Brown were well received. On Monday evening an organ recital and sacred concert was given and was thoroughly appreciated. Solos were sung by Mr. Fleming, a duet by Misses Moncur and Follick, a trio by Messrs. Senior, Kinsman and Fleming; a quartette by Messrs. Senior, Kinsman, Gillies and Christie; instrumentals by Prof. Brown and anthems by the choir. The attendance was not as large as the affair deserved. To the choir leader, Mr Senior, is due much of the credit for the success of these Easter services.

SUDDEN DEATH.—The sudden death took place on Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. Peter Case, Usborne, of his sister, Mrs. Robert Ross of Byron. Mr. and Mrs. Ross had come up to spend the holidays, Mr. Ross returning Saturday morning. Deceased had been in her usual health at breakfast time and shortly after went outside, and while in the act of placing a piece of board across a wet spot she apparently sustained a stroke of paralysis. She was able, however, to reach the house and report what had happened. She complained of severe pain in the head and shortly afterward passed into a state of comptose, from which she did not recover, passing away about four o'clock in the afternoon. Besides the husband she is survived by her mother, who is nearly 90 years of age, two sisters and four brothers, Mrs. P. McTaggart of Exeter, Mrs. G. Moir of Virden, Man., Dr. Thos. Case of Dungannon, George of Hensall, Adam of Toronto, and Peter of Usborne. The funeral took place to the Exeter cemetery on Wednesday afternoon.

TRIVITT MEMORIAL VESTRY.—The annual Vestry meeting of the Trivitt Memorial Church was held in the School Hall on Monday evening last, the rector, Rev. D. W. Collins, presiding. The rector in part gave an interesting review of his labors in the parish during the past year and other matters pertaining to the church, after which the wardens' report was read and this disclosed a very creditable showing. The total receipts amounted to $1511.72, while the expenditure was $1408.70, thus leaving a balance of $103.02. As the financial church year is not yet closed the receipts will be considerably augmented by the time the auditors' report is issued. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year,—L. H. Dickson, People's warden; C. H. Sanders, Rector's warden; N. D. Hurdon and Thos. Boyle, auditors; Jos. Davis, Vestry clerk; Select vestry, T. Boyle, Dr. McGillicuddy, Samuel Sweet, N. D. Hurdon, Thos. Sanders, Frank Sweet, Thos. Hawking, L. Day, Sidesmen, T. Boyle T. Sanders, Samuel Sweet, Thos. Case, G. Atkinson, Jos. Davis, P. Rowcliffe, E. Elliott. The selection of Lay delegates was left over till the adjourned vestry meeting to be held two weeks hence—April 22.

Mr. Thos. Newell spent the holidays in Toronto.

Miss Delight Hobbs spent the Easter holidays in Toronto.

Miss Cora Spackman of St. Thomas visited at Mr. Hugh Spackman's this week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith of Talbotville, Mr. Joseph Spackman of Shedden and Miss Edna Beatty of Bayfield were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Spackman during the week.

WHAT IS SPRING?

When the birds have all come back again
And the woods with their songs do ring,
When the boys bring out their marbles and tops
'Tis spring, spring, spring.

When the young people talk quite lightly of love
And speak of marriage and ring,
When the cats on the fence keep squalling all night
'Tis spring, spring, spring.

When the earth throws off her mantle of white
And snow to the trees do not cling;
When out of the bucket, the sap you can suck it
'Tis spring, spring, spring.

The spring thaw caused the river to rise to a great height but no particular damage was done On Saturday while Robert Flynn's sons were driving to town on the 4th concession their horse jumped the culvert at Davey's and in spite of the strenuous efforts of the neighbors to get it out the animal was drowned. There is some talk of the Township being sued for the loss of the horse as no barriers were on the culvert. Fortunately the occupants of the buggy suffered no worse than a ducking in the cold water.

The following visitors were in town during the Easter holidays,—Mrs. Wright Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Baker, Frank and Christian Finkbeiner of London, Mrs. Hugh Girvin of Lucknow, Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Clark of Adsa Craig, Wilbert Clark of Granton, Miss Carrie Kuhn of Alma College, St. Thomas, Aaron Brown of Bright, Harry Trick of Stratford; Rev and Mrs. Schmitt of Berlin.

The following visited out of town,—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Morlock in Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Elber in London, Wm. H. Wenzel, Merner Elber Henry Voelker, Mrs. Orme and Miss Helen in Detroit, W. H. Paget in St. Catharines, Russell Carey in Goderich Miss Snider in Drysdale, Miss Watson in Bayfield.

The special Easter Service given in the Evangelical Church on Sunday evening was well attended. The song service was a treat. Special selections were rendered by the choir, the male chorus, as well as a solo by Miss C. Haist, one by Rev. Burn and a trio by the Misses Haist and Finkbeiner and Mr. Alfred Wuerth.

H. Elber, M. P. P, returned to Toronto on Monday to continue his Legislative duties. It is expected the House will wind up its business this week.

On Wednesday evening last the annual business meeting of the Evangelical Church was held in the basement of the church. Mr. J. H. Holtzmann as Treasurer gave a very interesting report. There is a handsome surplus in the Treasury which speaks well for the congregation in view of the fact that there has been a heavy expenditure the past year. In addition to this the Church sheds, which have been in the neighborhood of $2400.00 have been paid in full. The congregation is in a very flourishing condition and it speaks well for the pastor, Rev. Burn to have brought it up to such a high standard. Mr. W. B. Gaiser was elected trustee for three years and Mr. Herb K. Elber organist and Miss Lillian Gaiser, the assistant. There was quite a discussion as to the regulations for the use of the shed. It appears that outsiders use the sheds without paying for the privilege and the least they could do would be to pay something for the right. Only one man has been conscientious enough to pay the Trustee Board $2. It is expected that the Trustees will adopt strict rules and unless non-members of the church pay for the use of the building, they will be stopped.

Last Friday evening, the Ladies Bible class of the Evangelical church entertained the Young Men's Bible Class to a social evening in the Town Hall. About 65 were present. The Hall was beautiful decorated for the occasion. Before the supper took place, a short program was rendered. Rev. Burn acted as Chairman and Mr. Holtzman. Mr. Sam Brown and Mr. Whiting addressed the audience. The Male Chorus rendered a selection, Miss Clara Haist sang a solo and Mrs. Chris Haist delivered a reading. After the program a splendid supper was served by the ladies. The meeting broke up at a late hour and the men are loud in their praises for the entertainment the ladies gave them The boys say they will return the compliment in right royal style.

Miss Olivia Holtzman, who has been taking a course in the Deaconness Home and Hospital in Chicago the past two years arrived home on Thursday for a short visit with her parents.

Don't forget the Shredded Wheat Banquet given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid in the Methodist Church next Wednesday evening, the 17th inst. The menu is composed of the Company's products and it will be a treat to be able to eat them. All should come.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER XXII.—(Cont'd)

"Do you mean the innkeeper Gros Jean and the Turks who accompanied him from Messina by train today?" "Yes."

"You need not trouble about them. They have all been carried to the hospital."

"What!" exclaimed Brett. "How did they come to be injured?"

"I cannot tell you exactly, but they, together with some sailors from the fishing-smack, were knocked senseless by the crew of the steam yacht when the young lady was shot."

"What young lady?" demanded Brett and Talbot together. This conversation had taken place in the entrance of the hotel, whilst Dubois was being carried to a bedroom by the servants.

"Did you not know?" inquired the official gravely. "The young lady was of your company who stayed here with you—the niece of milord, the elderly gentleman."

"Edith! Shot, did you say!" cried her brother, leaning against the barrister for support.

"Yes, but not seriously, I hope. She has been brought here. The doctors are now with her in her room."

"Who shot her?" demanded Brett savagely.

"The person who was flung into the harbor by the other milord. It is stated that she is a woman, but really at this moment I have not heard all the facts. She was carried to the hospital with the others."

The two waited to hear no more. They ran upstairs, and Talbot would have fallen twice had not Brett supported him. Reaching the corridor which contained their apartments, they found Sir Hubert, Lord Fairholme, Daubeney, and Mr. Winter standing silently, a sorrowful, motionless group, outside Edith's room.

"What terrible thing has happened?" Brett asked them. "Surely Miss Talbot cannot be seriously hurt?"

The only one who could answer was Mr. Winter.

"We hope not, sir," he said, "but the doctors will be here in a moment. They are extracting the bullet now."

Before the bewildered barrister could frame another question the door of Edith's room opened noiselessly, and two Italian gentlemen emerged. One of them spoke English well. He addressed himself to Sir Hubert Fitzjames.

"I am glad to tell you," he said cheerfully, "that the young lady's wound is not at all dangerous. It looks worse than it is. Most fortunately, the bullet first struck a large bone button on her coat. This combined with the thick woolen material, and some small amount of padding placed beneath the collar by the maker, offered such resistance that the bullet lodged itself against the collar bone without breaking it. Consequently although the wound has a nasty appearance, it is not at all serious."

Sir Hubert managed to stammer—

"When can we see her?"

"As soon as she wakes from sleep."

With this reassuring statement they had perforce to rest content. The medical men were about to take their departure when Brett intervened.

"There is yet another patient who requires your attention, gentlemen," he said. "You will find him in room No. 41. He is suffering from a broken arm and other injuries."

The doctors hurried off, and it was not long before they were able to make a satisfactory report concerning Dubois.

"The fracture of the ulna is a simple one," said the spokesman, "and will become all right in the ordinary course of nature. But what happened to the man's face?"

"He settled a slight dispute with my friend here," said Brett, indicating Talbot, who was leaning with his head wearily resting on his hands. The accident to Edith had utterly unnerved her brother.

"Then all I can say," remarked the doctor, when he took his leave, "is that the settlement was complete. Whatever the debt may have been, it is paid in full!"

The Englishmen were now safe in the seclusion of a private room, so Brett resolved to arouse Talbot from the stupor which had settled upon him.

"Listen to me, Jack," he said. "You must pull yourself together. Don't forget you have an important trust to discharge. Our first duty is to ascertain whether or not the diamonds are intact."

He laid on the table the belt taken from Dubois, and lifted out its precious contents with careful exactness. The men crowded around. Even amidst the exciting events of the hour, the sight of the fateful stones which had caused so much turmoil and bloodshed could not fail to be deeply interesting.

Predominant among them was the Imperial diamond, luminous, gigantic, awesome in its potentialities. Its size and known value rendered it one of the most remarkable objects in the world, whilst even in its present unfinished state the facets already cut by the workmen gave evidence to its brilliant purity.

Pulling himself together by an effort, Talbot advanced to the table and slowly counted the stones. There were fifty-one all told, and even the smallest of the collection was a diamond of great value.

"Yes," he said, "that is the correct number. I cannot be certain, but I believe they are the originals. The big one certainly is. It will be one of the happiest days of my life when I see the last of them."

"That day will arrive soon," remarked Brett quietly. "You and I, Mr. Winter, must sail on the Blue Bell to-night for Marseilles. That is, if Mr. Daubeney is agreeable," he added, turning to that worthy gentleman, whose face was a trifle paler than it had been for years.

"I am at your service, gentlemen," he announced promptly.

"But what about Fairholme and the young lady?" he went on, turning to Sir Hubert.

"I think I understand," replied the baronet. "Mr. Brett means that these wretched diamonds should pass officially out of the control of the British government as early as possible."

The barrister nodded.

"That being so, no time should be lost. Edith, should all go well, will be compelled in any event to remain here for several days before she can be removed. You, Jack, and you, Mr. Brett, should you so desire, can easily return here from London, after having fulfilled the trust reposed in you."

"Then I only make one stipulation," put in Daubeney quickly. "The Blue Bell will remain in Marseilles and bring you back."

His eagerness evoked a quiet smile all round, and it was generally agreed that the programme should be followed. In the brief discussion which ensued, Mr. Winter explained his earlier movements. The detectives attached to the British Embassy in Paris told him of Dubois' journey to Marseilles.

Learning that Brett was staying at the Hotel du Louvre et de la Paix, he went straight there on his arrival, only to learn that the barrister and some friends had quitted Marseilles that day on a private yacht bound for Palermo. The local police filled in some of the details, but chance did the rest.

Going to the P. and O. office to book his passage to Messina on the Ganges, he heard of Gros Jean and the Turks, and then knew that he was on the right scent.

There was a touching meeting between Edith and the others that evening. Se was naturally pale and weak, but her buoyant spirit triumphed over physical defects, and she made light of her injuries. Even Fairholme was restored to a state of sanity by his brief visit, a fact that was evidenced by his quiet enjoyment of a cigar when he walked down to the quay to witness the departure of the Blue Bell.

The reception of the party in London may be detailed in a sentence. The Turkish Ambassador was specially instructed from Constantinople to take charge of the diamonds, and Talbot had the keen satisfaction of personally handing them over to the Sultan's representative, in the presence of his chief at the Foreign Office. The unlucky gems were forthwith taken back to their owner, and no doubt repose at this moment in a special reliquary, together with other mementoes of the Prophet, for the project which led to their first visit to London was definitely abandoned.

Meanwhile daily telegrams from Palermo assured Talbot and Brett as to the continued progress of the fair sufferer, who had so nearly sacrificed her life in her championship of her brother's cause.

At last a day came when the Blue Bell again steamed into the harbor of Palermo, and the manner in which Fairholme shouted when he caught sight of Daubeney standing on the bridge was in itself sufficient indication that all had gone well during their absence.

The travellers were surprised and delighted to find Edith herself seated in a carriage with her uncle on the wharf. Were it not that she was pale, and her right arm was tightly strapped across her breast to prevent any movement of the injured shoulder, no one could have guessed that she had undergone such a terrible experience.

But Brett, delighted as he was to meet his friends again under such pleasant conditions, experienced the keenest sentiments of triumphant elation when he entered the apartment where Dubois was still confined under the watchful guard of two detectives.

Talbot accompanied him. The young Englishman had by this time quite forgiven his enemy. He felt that he was more than quits with him. Indeed, he was the first to speak when they came together.

"I am sorry to see it is your turn to be trussed up in bed, Dubois," he said. "How are you feeling now? Getting along all right, I hope."

The Frenchman did not answer him directly. A faint smile illumined his pale face. He turned to Brett with a nonchalant question—

"Mr. Brett, have you any influence with those two worthy Italian doctors?"

"Perhaps," said the barrister. "What is you want?"

"I want a cigarette. They won't let me smoke. Surely to goodness, a cigarette won't hurt my arm."

The barrister turned a questioning glance towards the male nurse in charge of the patient, but the man did not understand what had been said. Brett, who spoke no Italian, indicated by pantomine what it was the Frenchman required, and the attendant signified his sentiments in silent eloquence—he turned and looked out of the window. So Dubois enjoyed his cigarette in peace. He gave a sigh of great contentment, and then said, lazily—

"Now, ask me anything you like. I am ready."

"There is only one point concerning which I am really at fault," began Brett. "How did your Turkish associates manage to murder Mehemet Ali and his secretaries so quietly?"

"Oh, that was easy enough," declared the Frenchman. "You understand I was in no way responsible for the blood-letting, and indeed strongly disapproved of it."

"Yes," replied the barrister, "I believe that."

"Well, the rest of the business was simplicity itself. Hussein—the Envoy's confidential servant—was in our pay. It was, of course, absolutely necessary to have an accomplice in the house, and his price was a small one—five hundred pounds, I think. The credentials we brought, which you, Mr. Talbot, examined, were not forgeries."

"How can that be?" cried Jack. "The Sultan would never be a party to a plot for his own undoing."

"Don't ask me for explanations I cannot give," responded Dubois coolly. "The exact facts of this story can only be ascertained at Yildiz Kiosk, and I do not suppose that any one there will ever tell you. No doubt you saw for yourself that Mehemet Ali was convinced. Were it not for you, he would have given up control that night. But you and your policemen and your confounded English notions of right and wrong, rendered necessary the adoption of the second party of the plan we had decided on, in case the first miscarried. After I left the house with you, Hussein brought in more coffee. That which he and my Turkish friends drank was all right. The beverage given to Mehemet Ali and his secretaries was drugged."

"Ah!" interrupted Brett, "that explains everything. But why was Hussein killed?"

"That is another matter, which only a Turk can understand. These fellows believe in the knife or a piece of whipcord as ending unpleasant difficulties most effectually. You see they were not ordinary rogues. They pretended to be conspirators actuated by pure political motives—motives which a common servant like Hessein could not really be expected to appreciate. So, to close his mouth thoroughly, they stabbed him whilst he was taking some loose cash from his master's pockets. Then it occurred to them that when Mehemet Ali and the others recovered from the effects of the drug, they also would be able to throw an unpleasantly strong light on the complicity of certain high personages in Constantinople. This was sufficient reason for the adoption of strong measures, so they also were peacefully despatched."

In order that we may take proper care of the young pigs, it is necessary that we know about what time to expect them.

I have made it a rule to keep a record of the date on which the sows are bred.

By reference to my record I find that my sows farrow from the 112th to 115th day from breeding.

Some claim that an old sow will go longer than a young sow, but I bred a yearling, a two-year-old and a six-year-old sow all on the same date. These three sows all farrow on the same day.

I like for my sows to be into a thriving condition when the pigs are farrowed. In fact, I like for them to improve in flesh during the entire period of gestation.

Some people are afraid of getting their sows too fat, and I suppose that they can be made too fat, but they ought to be in good flesh. They should have a surplus laid up for the suckling of the young pigs, because it is hard to keep a sow from going down in flesh rapidly while the pigs have to depend upon her for their food.

The sows are given separate lots with a good shelter, close warm house, if the weather is cool, about a week before they are due to farrow.

The sows are fed sparingly for a few days after farrowing, then gradually brought up to a full ration.

It has always been hard for me to keep from feeding the sow too much while the pigs are young, and as a result I have had several cases of scours with the young pigs.

When I find the pigs beginning to scour, I give the sow fifteen to twenty drops of laudanum in her feed for a few feeds. Her feed is reduced and this usually checks the scours in a day or so. If I have not any laudanum I have used powdered charcoal with good results.

As soon as the pigs are old enough to eat I give them a separate trough where they can eat without being disturbed by the mothem. They are given a mixed feed of middlings, cornmeal, or other ground feed mixed with water. The sow gets a similar ration. More corn is used in cold weather than if the season is worm.—A. J. Legg.

KEEP THE BOYS ON THE FARM.

Fathers want to keep their boys on the farm, but too many of them do not want to give the boys a start, writes U. Carr. They say, "Let them dig their way out as I did before them."

Every boy cannot work hard all of the time in heat or cold, or in rain or when the sun shines, but when he asks for a holiday often he is sent back to work with a sore and heavy heart, and many a boy on the farm seldom gets a chance to go anywhere for pleasure. That is discouraging.

Then, many farm boys are denied a little spending money, which every boy craves. He ought to have a little change that he can spend just as he pleases. I know farmers who always leave their boys at home to care for the house and the stock while their parents go off to town or to places of amusement. This always makes a boy sore.

This is only one side of the question. On the other hand some fathers indulge their boys too much and spoil them. They say, "I have worked too hard all my life and now I am going to give my boy a chance to make a living easier than I did." Another says: "I will give my boy nothing but tools and let him make his own living." I think this is the best plan.

Boys, to be content on the farm, must have some stock and pets of their own. This will do more to keep them contented than anything else. I know what I am talking about, for I live on a farm. I have stock of my own, and I wouldn't change places with any town boy I know. I am only thirteen years old, but I have a horse, a cow and some hogs. I am proud of my start.

For sport the boy likes a gun, and he likes to trap rabbits and other game.

He also likes to have a room of his own where he can keep all of his own things. A bookcase filled with books will gladden his boyish heart, and fathers should buy their boys books when they know they want them.

Some boys are born for one purpose in life, and some for another, and parents should find out what he can do best, and then help him in that direction.

Continual faultfinding makes a boy's heart sore and discourages him. A boy should not be punished for every little fault, but he should be talked to and shown where he is wrong. Most boys are good at heart and do not intend to do wrong, and if they can be helped to see what is right they will generally do it.

LITTLE HELPS ON THE FARM.

Do not plow too early in the spring. Wait till the ground is dry. Follow with the harrow until the soil is finely pulverized.

Use wood ashes for potatoes. The potato relishes the potash contained in them, and the scab does not like the lime they contain.

Give your garden crops just the fertilizer they prefer. Remember that plants that furnish us with edible leaves or stalks flourish if given nitrogen; when the fruit, root, kernel or bulb is the edible part dose with ashes, potash or phospheric acid.

Hen manure may be sown between the rows of lettuce, and allowed to wash into the soil.

EXPLAINED.

"This wine," said Mr. Bluffer, proudly, "has been in my cellar for thirty years."

Mr. Kauler, who is something of a connoisseur, sipped his portion critically. "I don't wonder," he murmured.

BRITISH COAL STRIKE ENDED

Result of Ballot Means Resumption of Work —Rioting in Scotland

A despatch from London says: "It will be peace with honor and the men will return to work," said Thomas Ashton, Secretary of the Miners' Federation, on Wednesday night. Work in the coal fields is rapidly extending. Large numbers have resumed in Staffordshire.

The whole of the miners in the northern counties of England and a portion of those in Scotland have followed the fighting lead of the miners of Lancashire and declared against the resumption of work in the pits until the minimum rates of wages have been definitely fixed. This will give a majority of the miners in the United Kingdom in favor of continuing the strike. There has been some rioting in different parts of the country. At Dunfermline in Scotland the unionist miners stoned the detachment of police which was protecting the non-unionists who had resumed work. At Pontypool, in Monmouthshire, there have also been disturbances, crowds of striking miners smashing the windows in the houses of the men who have returned to work.

The coal which is being raised is taken chiefly by the railways.

DISEASE FROM PHONES.

Berlin Companies Issue Rules to Guard Against Infection.

The following rules have been adopted by the Berlin (Germany) telephone companies for the prevention of the transmission of disease among the telephone operators: In exchanges and public telephone offices the transmitter shall be cleansed daily by wiping with a soft piece of leather moistened with a weak solution of phenol. In exchanges which do a large business the use of the same receiver and transmitter by several operators is to be discontinued. Each operator and each telephone assistant must be furnished with a separate transmitter for her personal use. All operators who are affected with contagious disease must be excluded from service until the danger of communicating the disease is past. In doubtful cases the question of contagiousness must be settled by the attending physician. The instrument last used by the sick operator must be thoroughly cleansed without delay.

BRITISH HYDRO AEROPLANE.

Successful Trial Trip of New Craft for the Navy.

A despatch from London says: A series of successful tests with a hydro-aeroplane which has been constructed for the British Admiralty, were made on Tuesday at Harrow under the auspices of Vickers' Sons & Maxim, builders of the craft. After skimming across the Cavendish dock at a speed of forty-five miles an hour, the hydro-aeroplane rose birdlike into the air and alighted again. The feat was thrice accomplished successfully. As the wind increased, further trials were postponed.

HIS OWN POLICEMAN.

Walked Prisoner All Night to Reach Winnipeg.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Leading a man with a rope tied around his neck and with his arms bound behind his back, a Galician marched a fellow-countryman fourteen miles into Winnipeg, arriving at daybreak Wednesday morning. He said that he had walked the man all night to get to Winnipeg.

EXPENSIVE TASTES.

Signor Gabriele D'Annunzio, the famous poet, writes very quickly, and he attributes his remarkable powers to the fact that all his work is done at night. At eight o'clock in the evening, after a substantial meal, he sits down at his desk and as a rule works steadily on till nine in the morning. Then, after a light breakfast, he goes to bed for the day. Although he is a poet and somewhat of a dreamer, D'Annunzio has also a great love for luxury and worldly comfort, and he is the best and most expensively-dressed man in Italy. The poet's idea of the value of money may be gathered from the fact that when he was offered $15,000 to give a series of lectures in South America he telegraphed as follows: "I was disposed to cross the Atlantic, but not for a packet of cigarettes. Thanks all the same."

Signor Gabriele D'Annunzo.

FOURTEEN YEARS IN WILDS

The Most Remarkable Trip Ever Made Within The Arctic Circle

A despatch from Dawson, Alaska, says: Joseph Jacquet, an explorer, has arrived here after 14 years' continuous residence in the Lower Mackenzie River country bordering on the Arctic Ocean. He is accompanied by Albert Ross, an Indian boy. They came from Fort MacPherson in the record time of 12½ days with fast dogs. They travelled nine hours daily, equipped only with three light blankets, some flour and bacon. They killed five rabbits, gave most of the flour to Indians and carried neither tent nor stove. The trip is one of the most remarkable winter journeys ever made within the Arctic circle.

In the week before starting Jacquet made a little trip of 150 miles to Eskimo Lake and returned to get his wife, whom he left with friends. Dozens of prospectors and trappers are living in the Mackenzie wilderness, several accompanied by their wives. Mr. Jacquet said, Harry Jones, an Englishman, is at Eskimo Lake gathering birds for a London society.

No word has been received at Fort MacPherson from Stefansson and Alexander, explorers, according to Mr. Jacquet. It is feared they are lost.

Two bridges at Southampton were wrecked and much damage done to the electric light plant and other business places. At Galt people in the low-lying sections had to be rescued to boats. Several manufacturing plants were flooded and the loss is very heavy. Guelph reports the biggest flood in 43 years. Two or three bridges were damaged and dams also suffered. Here also factories are flooded, and the Guelph Carpet Company will lose a large amount in stock and looms damaged by water. Access to the Ontario Agricultural College is cut off. Two dams at Paisley were swept away, and Mr. James had a narrow escape from drowning. Part of Brantford was flooded. Quite a big flood occurred at Ottawa. Some heavy losses have been caused at Beaverton and Meaford. The C. P. R. bridge at Durham was undermined and collapsed.

DISCOVERY OF RARE MINERAL

Large Outcrop of Greenstone Found in New Zealand.

An important discovery is reported of a large outcrop of greenstone in a hitherto unexplored mountainous district on the west coast of the South Island of New Zealand, which is thought to be the original mother reef from which all the greenstone found in that island is derived. A syndicate has been formed for its exploitation.

It is anticipated that it will hereafter be so plentiful that its use will no longer be confined to souvenir jewelry, but will be used for mantelpieces, table tops, monuments, etc. It will also be exported to China, where greenstone, in the form of jade, is regarded with peculiar veneration.

Up to the present time there has been no syndicate mining or quarrying of greenstone in New Zealand, though the Maoris have obtained it from the beds of streams, using it for axe heads and for personal adornment, and it has also been found with more or less frequency in the South Island in sluicing for gold. New Zealand greenstone jewellery is very popular with tourists in that country, though not all of it is real greenstone. It is used largely for brooches, bracelets, cuff links, waistcoat buttons, etc.

In another section of the same island a unique deposit of transparent bowenite, known as "tangiwai," "the queen of greenstones," has been found. Tangiwai is different from the ordinary kind of greenstone, as it is translucent, even in moderately thick pieces, and permeated in some cases with irregular cloudy waves. The ordinary greenstone is almost opaque and translucent only in very thin slices.

Old Maori legends tell of the loss of the original tangiwai supply by burial in a landslide somewhere on the slopes of Anita Bay. The site of the present discovery corresponds accurately with the references made to it in the old native stories. Many samples of the stone taken from the new lode have been taken to Auckland, and the Maoris declare it to be the real "queen of greenstones," valued before all others for its beauty and quality.

JAILED FOR LOTTERY GAME.

Young Man Who Promoted 't in Ottawa Gets a Year.

About 100 shop proprietors and customers who played the game were fined about $1,500 in all.

Sunday is the day of rest; but did you ever know a man who felt rested on Monday morning?

NEST EGG OF £6,000,000

What The British Government Proposes To Do With The Big Surplus

A despatch from London says: The Admiralty evidently anticipate the German navy bill passing, with a consequent increase of the striking power of the German navy. The six million pounds surplus which the Budget shows is therefore appropriated as a British navy nest-egg. This is the kernel of Tuesday's Budget statement, though it was not made very plain, possibly owing to the extreme care the Chancellor of the Exchequer took to present the Government's policy diplomatically and pacifically. It is a two-keels-to-one policy in respect to any ship built by Germany over and above those specified in her navy law programme.

The Times holds the decision a wise one under the circumstances. The News, chief Government newspaper, is silent regarding this aspect. The Telegraph says: "Lloyd George is perhaps the most surprisingly elusive member of the Commons. Wednesday he revealed himself in a new and welcome light. It may be some [illegible] regret that this six m[illegible] is not at once to be used, as it should be under normal circumstances, for the reduction of the debt, but the times are exceptional. We do not doubt public opinion will agree that an exceptional financial expedient is fully justified."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. 840, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

CENTRALIA

Father, Mother, Sister, Brother All Should Use Parisian Sage.

PREVENTS BALDNESS—BANISHES DANDRUFF—STOPS FALLING HAIR AND ITCHING SCALP

PARISIAN SAGE is a family hair tonic and dressing that will do much good in every home.

The man who uses PARISIAN SAGE if only occasionally will never grow bald. Baldness is caused by dandruff germs which dig down into the roots of the hair, devour its nourishment and cause the root to die and the hair to fall and thin out.

PARISIAN is a scientific hair remedy that not only kills dandruff germs but gives the hair root just the same nourishment that nature gives it.

PARISIAN SAGE first kills the germs, then nourishes the weakened hair root and causes a growth of healthy hair. This same nourishment (PARISIAN SAGE) causes the hair to grow vigorous which means that the hair becomes full of life and lustre, and grows radiant and beautiful.

Thousands are wasting time, losing hair and growing bald because they are using superficial tonics. While they may clean the scalp and make it feel refreshed, they do not get to the root of the hair where the real destroyer of hair, the pernicious dandruff germs, thrives and multiplies.

MONEY BACK DANDRUFF REMOVER

It is pleasant to use and so harmless that it can be used by every member of the family from the oldest to the little tot.

Get a 50 cent bottle to-day, and if you are not satisfied that it is just as good as claimed, your money back at W. S. COLE and druggists everywhere.

It Is Up To You

To protect your family from the ravages of disease and infection; and the rigors of winter; to make your home the abode of Health and Happiness.

Statistics tell us that there were over 250,000 deaths in North America last year from fever and Pneumonia; Over 90 per cent. of these cases were traceable to out-door closets, and all were the result of insanitary conditions.

Are you going to allow this terrible death rate to continue.

How The Body Kills Germs.

Germs that get into the body are killed in two ways—by the white corpuscles of the blood, and by a germ-killing substance that is in the blood. Just what this substance is, we do not know. The blood of a healthy person always has some germ-killing substance in it to ward off the attack of disease. The fountain head of life is the stomach. A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished. To put the body in healthy condition, to feed the system on rich, red blood and throw out the poisons from the body, nothing in the past forty years has excelled Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a pure glyceric extract (without alcohol), of bloodroot, golden seal and Oregon grape root, stone root, mandrake and queen's root with black cherrybark.

J. H. MARTIN, Esq.

"My husband was a sufferer from stomach trouble and impure blood," writes MRS. JAMES H. MARTIN, of Frankfort, Ky. "He had a sore on his face that would form a scab which would dry and drop off in about a month, then another would immediately form. It continued this way for a long time. He tried every remedy that any one would suggest but found no relief. He then tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which completely cured him. He has stayed cured now for two years, and I recommend this valuable medicine for impurities of the blood."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules.

Learn why PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand

PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand of flour. No two milling companies follow exactly the same process of milling. In fact, no two different brands of flour in the world are exactly alike in quality.

And here is another fact worth knowing: Every wheat berry contains both high-grade and low-grade portions.

The process of milling PURITY flour costs more than to mill ordinary flour. The low-grade portions are separated and excluded. PURITY is an ALL HIGH-GRADE, hard wheat flour. It has greater strength, greater absorption and greater expansion. It is a thirstier, more elastic flour. It drinks more water and expands into more loaves.

Use PURITY FLOUR for your next batch of bread. Count the loaves. You'll find you have made "MORE BREAD AND BETTER BREAD" from PURITY than when you've used an equal weight of weaker and cheaper flour.

PURITY FLOUR
"More bread and better bread"

IMAGINE, if you can, how much whiter, and more toothsome, and more nutritious, the bread made from such a HIGH-GRADE flour must be.

And can you imagine yourself enjoying the flaky pie-crust and the light, delicate cake? —your reward for using PURITY flour

When making pastry, please remember to add more shortening than required with ordinary flour—for on account of its extra strength, PURITY FLOUR requires more shortening for best pastry-results

Yes, PURITY FLOUR costs slightly more than ordinary flour. But use it once and you'll say it's worth more—much more—than the difference.

Add PURITY FLOUR to your grocery list right now.

THIRTY YEARS OF DISFIGURING ECZEMA CURED

"Ever since I was a little girl, thirty years ago, I had suffered tortures from eczema in one of its worst forms. The disease runs in my family, and mine was of a scaly and most disfiguring kind. The eczema formed in round rings, and then scales all over my face and limbs. I have been smothered from head to foot. I was born in Leamington, which is famous for its sulphur baths and pump waters, and one would think that after taking the treatment there regularly as I did, the disease would long ago have been cured, but it was not. I attended the Hospital for years and years, so you will see I gave it a fair trial. Everyone in the town knew of my case. My face was disfigured very badly. A doctor told me that I should never get rid of it. I spent pounds in doctors' bills, and I attended several hospitals but nothing did any good.

"Then one day an uncle of mine recommended the Cuticura Remedies. I took his advice, and commenced to use the Cuticura Soap. To my astonishment an improvement at once set in, and my hair, which had been a complete mass of scales and scurf, soon began to look in splendid condition. Then I bought a box of Cuticura Ointment, and this cleared my skin wonderfully. In a few weeks' time all traces of the scaly eruptions had completely disappeared. Now my skin is clear and healthy, and thanks to the Cuticura Remedies I am completely cured of eczema. All my neighbours were astounded. The Cuticura Remedies are worth their weight in gold, and one tablet of Cuticura Soap goes further than four cakes of cheaper soaps. It has brought happiness into my home." (Signed) Mrs. Butler, 17, Francis Rd., The Cotterridge, King's Norton, Birmingham, Eng., July 26, 1910.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, but those who wish to try them without charge may do so by sending to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 82 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A., for a liberal sample of each, post-free, with 32-p. skin book.

VENTRILOQUISM.

Most people believe that ventriloquism is a gift almost unattainable by the ordinary mortal, but this view is quite wrong. The fact is that anyone can learn to ventriloquize if he has sufficient patience to practice long enough. It is merely a question of deceiving the ear. Practically all the would-be ventriloquist has to learn is the facility of speaking without moving his lips, and, of course, the knack of misdirecting the attention of the spectators. In connection with "stomach talk"—which, by the way, has a misleading derivation, since no man can produce sounds otherwise than from his larynx—it is said that the ancient Egyptian priests made great use of it for the purpose of working their oracles.

CURED OF CONSTIPATON

Mr. Andrews praises Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N.S., writes:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ailment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.

That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that I determined to give them a fair trial.

They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."

For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c a box. 2

INTERESTING GOSSIP FROM ONTARIO'S CAPITAL.

"Abolish the Bar" is Now the Issue—Newspaper Proprietor's Optimism—Removal of Government House.

(We have arranged for a weekly letter about Toronto affairs, which, we believe, will be of great interest to many of our readers. These letters will be from the pen of one of Canada's foremost journalists, a man who has covered some of the world's greatest happenings and now occupies a leading position on one of the Toronto dailies.)

Not since the last years of the Ross government has there been as much interest in the Legislature as was occasioned by the announcement of the "Abolish the Bar" policy decided upon by the leader of the Opposition. There has not been since the Whitney Administration came into power any great issue between the parties. There have been skirmishes on matters of detail, but no issue big and broad enough to reach every elector, and make him search his heart or his prejudices, to see which side he really stood on. The temperance policy advanced by Mr. Rowell furnishes such an issue. It will bring the political gladiators to grips. And no one can tell at this date what the outcome will be. There will be plenty of time for consideration, for, of course, there is no reason why there should be an election for another four years.

THE ISSUE.

From expressions of opinion already made it is evident that opposition to Mr. Rowell's policy will come from three main sources:

1. Those who do not believe in further restrictive legislation.

2. Those who are sincere in their desire to see the liquor trade curtailed or abolished, but who do not believe that the enforcement of such restrictions as are proposed could be enforced.

3. Those who, to borrow a phrase from British politics, may be described as "whole hoggers," and who will not be satisfied with any temperance policy which does not provide for the total prohibition, including the abolition of shop licenses and club licenses, as well as the bars, and perhaps, also, the prohibition of the manufacture of intoxicants.

On the other hand those who believe with Mr. Rowell, say, in answer to these three groups respectively:

1. The liquor traffic is an evil which deserves no quarter.

2. The abolition of the bar is capable of effective enforcement.

3. The wiping out at one swoop of 1,800 tavern licenses is a big enough job to tackle at once; that accomplished we can, if desired, go after the others.

Such is a concise statement of the issue. It contains all the possibilities of a red-hot campaign. It is a campaign that has been inevitable. The wonder is that it has been so long in coming.

THE LAIRD OF DONLANDS

One of the cheerfulest institutions in Toronto these days is the World newspaper, owned by Mr. W. F. McLean, M.P. It is simply bubbling over with joyousness, and all the gladness of springtime. Its optimism is of that variety which its owner, who, however his contemporaries may differ with him, recognize as a master journalist, knows so well how to impart. One day he declares that Eaton's are to move uptown to the "mystery block" at Yonge and Carlton streets, the next that some unknown has purchased a thousand acres of land away out at Leaside, paying from $1,000 to $4,000 an acre. Every day he records deals and impending deals, showing how Toronto is growing. He proposes to organize a "Big Eye" club for people who see a million people in Toronto in a few short years.

His enthusiasm is not to be wondered at when it is known that Mr. McLean is not only a newspaper publisher, but a landed proprietor. For years past he has been accumulating land at Donlands, a short distance northeast of the city. To-day he has a thousand acres. If anyone should offer him a thousand dollars an acre for that property "Billy" Maclean would be a millionaire.

A FAMOUS CORNER PASSES.

Twenty years ago most visitors to Toronto were entertained by a visit to the intersection of Simcoe and King streets, which was considered quite a show place, because its four corners represented respectively, education, legislation, damnation and salvation. On one corner stood Upper Canada College, education; on the second Government House, legislation; on the third, St. Andrews' Church, salvation, and on the fourth a saloon, damnation.

In another month, salvation alone will remain. Damnation and education departed long since, the former because of the mutability of the liquor trade, and the latter when Upper Canada College decided to move out into the country. Government House, encircled by freight yards and factories, has remained the official residence of the Lieutenant Governor. But now the railways have secured the property from the Government. And May day, long a favored moving day among less distinguished people, will this year see the first citizen of the Province engrossed in the business of moving vans. And the official residence, around which circle many interesting historical incidents and memories of distinguished visitors and gay social functions, will be immediately demolished.

THE NEW GOVERNMENT HOUSE.

The new Government House is being built in Chorley Park, North Rosedale, several miles from the old location. The Government has been criticized for selecting a site so far removed from the Parliament buildings, but the Lieutenant Governor's duties are not generally so onerous that he will find the distance from his work much handicap. Meanwhile, since the selection of Chorley Park, property in the vicinity has quadrupled in value, and land speculators have been reaping a harvest.

Until the new residence is finished the Lieutenant Governor is obliged to go into rented quarters. The residence of Mr. Walter Beardmore, at the corner of St. George and College streets, has been secured at a rental of some $800 a month. The Province will, of course, foot the bill.

WHO WILL BE NEXT?

At the time of the formation of the Borden Cabinet last October one of the interesting rumors was to the effect that Mr. A. E. Kemp, M.P., for East Toronto, who had some claims to party preferment, was not a candidate for the Cabinet, but that he would be called upon to be the next Lieutenant Governor of Ontario. The rumor is now revived. His private residence, Castle Frank, is sufficiently impressive to be used for gubernatorial purposes while the new house is being completed.

Mr. Kemp is a man of wealth, which he has rapidly acquired as the head of the Kemp Manufacturing Company, which turns out all classes of kitchen utensils. He has long been high in the counsels of the Conservative party. In East Toronto he had in 1908 some trouble with an element of the party, and was defeated by Joseph Russell, but he showed how to "come back" in the last contest. He is an Orangeman, having been initiated into the order about a year ago.

Sir John Gibson, whose term is drawing to a close, has been indefatigable in his attendance at public functions, and has had the unusual honor of acting as host to the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. Sir John is an enthusiastic Mason, being a Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada, a fact which doubtless added a bond of sympathy between him and his guest.

It is noteworthy that as far as the public knows there has been absolute harmony between the Lieutenant Governor and the Premier, though for the first time since Confederation days, they have been of opposite political faiths. However, Sir James and Sir John have always been warm personal friends, even in the days of active conflict in the House when Sir John was Attorney General and Sir James was leader of the opposition.

WONDERS OF PORCUPINE

AN UNBIASSED ACCOUNT OF ITS PRESENT STAGE OF DEVELOPMENT.

The Dome, Hollinger, McIntyre, Vipond and Other Important Properties Described From a Personal Visit.

A representative of this paper has just returned from a trip to Porcupine, where he found Ontario's gold camp passing from the prospect stage into the producing era. He had the pleasure of handling a bar of the yellow metal valued at $3,000, the product of a few days' run of a ten stamp mill on the McIntyre Mine. He saw the mill itself at work and was told by Mr. C. B. Flynn, the Vice-President of the Company, that the daily output would immediately be raised to $1,000, and that it was hoped before the end of the year to take out $500,000 from this property alone.

THE DOME'S BIG MILL.

The most impressive thing in Porcupine to-day is the new big mill of the Dome mine. This is a huge structure containing forty stamps and accompanying equipment, which probably makes it one of the most up-to-date mills in the world. One is told that it cost between $300,000 and $400,000, and that it will have a capacity of 400 tons of ore a day. The other equipment on the property is on a similar scale. There is a power house worth $100,000 and residences for the managers, club house, dining halls, etc., the latter are all of brick, indicating plans for permanency. Altogether it is estimated that somewhere between a million and a million and a half dollars have been spent on the property. These figures are eloquent of the confidence the owners have in the future of the mine. The owners represent interests close to the United States Steel Corporation and Standard Oil Company, and also own the International Nickel Company, the big Sudbury concern, and control the Nipissing Mines Company at Cobalt.

FORTY STAMPS AT WORK.

The mill has just begun operation, and the sight of the stamps pounding away on the ore, pulverizing it to a powder, so that the gold can be removed, was worth going a long way to see. The mill would have been running several months ago had it not been for the fire of last July, which swept away everything. The mine gets its name from the fact that fairly regularly the gold is found distributed in a great dome shaped hill of rock, which has been found to broaden as it goes down, and is known to carry gold to great depth. The entire mass will be milled, and is expected to yield about $8 a ton, the cost of production being perhaps $3.

HOLLINGER'S RICH ORE.

A visit was also paid to the Hollinger mine, which vies with the Dome for supremacy. Here a 40-stamp mill is nearing completion. The ores found in this property occur in fairly regular veins, and is very rich, running, it is said, $28 a ton. The only question is as to the extent of the veins, but the main one has already been traced 1,000 feet on the surface, and to a depth of 200 feet. We descended to this level in the Hollinger and also in the McIntyre and in the Vipond mines, and it was encouraging to see the well defined quartz veins at this depth, and to be able to pick out samples carrying discernible free gold. Mr. Arthur Cole, mining expert of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Commission, accompanied the party, and secured some striking specimens.

The Vipond is also rushing a mill to completion, and it is expected that within a couple of months the mills on the Vipond, Hollinger, McIntyre and Dome will be running and will have an aggregate capacity of 800 tons of ore a day. It is estimated that by the end of the year $1,500,000 in gold bars will be produced thereby at long last, putting Ontario in the list of gold producing areas.

Other properties visited included the Little Pet, which contemplates putting in a five-stamp mill, and the Dome extension.

PORCUPINE'S HOPES.

Porcupine hopes that it will, in a few years, develop one of the great gold camps of the world. The next few months, with the four mills in operation, and with the pushing forward of underground work, will do much to show how well founded is this hope. Already on the leading properties an aggregate of some 3,500 feet in shafts have been sunk, and some 15,000 of drifting and tunnelling done. On the whole, the results of this underground work have been satisfactory, though some of the prospects have disappointed their owners.

To celebrate the opening of the Dome mill a celebration was held under the auspices of the South Porcupine Board of Trade. The arrangements were in charge of the President, W. Proctor Smith, who with a fund of anecdote and wit, proved to be a delightful companion, and as a host attended to every desire of his guests.

SUBSTITUTE FOR LEATHER.

A Fortune Awaits You if You Can Hit On a Capable One.

There is a fortune of many millions in store for the man who can discover a substitute for leather. The price of the real article is steadily rising, dealers say, and the reason is that in spite of the duty removed the growth of the world's population is faster than the increase in the number of cattle raised.

"There is a growing disproportion between the number of hides marketed and the demand for leather," says an expert. "The question is where the future supply will come from in quantities sufficient to meet the country's future needs. If some genius will only find a substitute for leather he'll be a wealthy man in a day."

The self-made man usually tries to monopolize the spotlight.

Their holdings of pulp and timber lands are 6,000 miles in extent, and have been valued by experts at over $13,000,000. The net earnings in 1910 were $448,000,000. The new pulp mill now under construction will double these earnings. Timber limits are insured with Lloyds of England against fire.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

AT PRESENT TIME BANK SHARES YIELD ABOUT THE SAME RETURN AS MUNICIPAL BONDS.

But They Possess Prospect of Appreciation in High Degree Owing to Increase in Reserves During Last Few Years, as Market Prices Have Generally Declined.

(By "Investor.")

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible, of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor").

The question of the rate of income on bank stocks is an important consideration which is too often confused with the percentage the dividend bears to the par value of the shares. One buys Dominion Bank shares, bearing a twelve per cent. dividend, to find that at the present market price, 230, the return on the money invested is 5.2 per cent., while on Bank of Montreal the return is 4.1 per cent., and on Commerce is just slightly over 4 1-2 per cent., although both these stocks pay 10 per cent. Of the listed stocks the highest yield is that of the Banque Nationale, with returns 5.7 per cent., while Bank of Montreal is the lowest. The return on this class of security is scarcely as high as on sound municipal bonds, which yield in the case of the City of Toronto 4 1-4 per cent. at the present market, and range up to 5 1-4 in the case of the City of Nelson, B. C. As compared with other shares, there is an average difference of about 2 points.

In point of convertibility bank shares do not stand particularly high. Being now-a-days strictly investment shares, the market for them is narrow and confined to investors. Therefore, except occasionally, there is no demand for more than a few shares at a time. Consequently, if a large block, say of 500 shares, was offered at a forced sale the price might decline many points before a purchaser could be found, unless time could be taken to work it off.

In the matter of prospect of appreciation bank stocks for purely investment securities stand particularly high at the present time. The fact that they have not, on an average, appreciated in value to any extent—even declined in many cases—for several years, they are in shape now to make some advance. As was pointed out recently, the process of laying up reserves increases the book value of bank stocks every year, with the result that in many cases that I have worked out, the market value of the stock is considerably below the book value. As a result, the price of the shares is likely to approximate closely to the book value by an adjustment in the market.

Another reason why bank shares are likely to advance is due to the fact that their expanding business requires yearly more and more capital. In order to sell the new stock advantageously and to give their shareholders a profit the management usually issues the stock at a price which gives them a substantial discount from the market price and, as it is almost always offered first to the shareholders, the resultant profit adds materially to the income.

Like all stocks, and particularly stocks with a narrow market, bank stocks are not particularly stable in price, and so anyone who cannot afford to take chances of market fluctuations should not buy bank stocks. In fact, they should confine themselves wholly to bonds.

Why Should a Chicken Lay a Soft-Shelled Egg?

Because, Willie, the chicken don't know how to create a hard shelled egg unless it has some food with lime in it.

So chicken-raisers often provide limestone gravel, broken oyster shells or some other form of lime.

Let the chicken wander free and it finds its own food and behaves sensibly.

Shut it up and feed stuff lacking lime and the eggs are soft-shelled.

Let's step from chickens to human beings.

Why is a child "backward" and why does a man or woman have nervous prostration or brain-fag? There may be a variety of reasons but one thing is certain.

If the food is deficient in Phosphate of Potash the gray matter in the nerve centres and brain cannot be rebuilt each day to make good the cells broken down by the activities of yesterday.

Phosphate of Potash is the most important element Nature demands to unite albumin and water to make gray matter.

Grape-Nuts food is heavy in Phosphate of Potash in a digestible form.

A chicken can't always select its own food, but a thoughtful man can select suitable food for his children, wife and himself.

NEW STRENGTH IN THE SPRING

Nature Needs Aid in Making New Health-Giving Blood

In the spring the system needs a tonic. To be healthy you must have new blood just as the trees must have new sap to renew their vitality. Nature demands it, and without this new blood you will feel weak and languid. You may have twinges of rheumatism or the sharp, stabbing pains of neuralgia. Often there are disfiguring pimples or eruptions on the skin. In other cases there is merely a feeling of tiredness and a variable appetite. Any of these are signs that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has lessened your vitality. What you need in spring is a tonic medicine to put you right, and in all the world of medicine there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich, red blood—your greatest need in spring. This new blood drives out the seeds of disease and makes easily tired men, women and children bright, active and strong. Mrs. Murray Marshall, Zephyr, Ont., says: "I do not believe I would ever have been well and strong again but for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was so weak and nervous that I could not be left in the house alone. I would take weak spells with my heart and think I was going to die. I tried doctors and electric belts, but they did me no good. Then a friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. To my surprise I soon noticed my appetite improving, and from than on I improved rapidly until I was enjoying the best of health, and I have not been troubled with weakness or nervousness since."

These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or can be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GOOD LUCK IN HORSESHOES.

Talisman to Ward Off Evil—Shoes of Gold and Silver.

It is not difficult to understand why lovers of horses came to adopt the horseshoe as a talisman against misfortune, says the London Globe. Horses were considered to be especially liable to the machinations of witches. This fact stands out in all the records of the Lancashire witches and other evil hags.

If precautions were not taken these mischievous witches would ride the horses at dead of night over the hills, and when the owner came to the stables in the morning he would find his animals in a lather and utterly exhausted. A horseshoe fastened over the stable door was believed to ward off such evil.

There is no superstition more deeply ingrained in all classes of society than that which is attached to the horseshoe. As an emblem of good fortune it holds pride of place. Nelson did not disdain to nail a horseshoe to the mast of the Victory. In the early part of the nineteenth century, the horseshoe was very highly prized, and there were few London mansions where it was not displayed, while humbler folks were at great pains to fasten it over their doors.

Horses were not shod either by the Greeks or Romans. The ancients were content with wrapping fibre cloth round the feet of their horses in cold weather, or when it was necessary to pass through miry districts. Instead of troubling about horseshoes they devoted their attention to hardening the hoofs of their mounts.

Nero, who ever strode to outdistance his contemporaries, caused his horses to be shod with silver, while his wife's were resplendent with gold, but in no case were nails driven into the hoofs. The practice of shoeing horses by driving nails into the hoofs was introduced into England by William the Conqueror, but such a practice did not make any headway for centuries.

The Indians, who had no superiors as horsemen, never thought of shoeing their mounts in any way, and yet they were capable of performing remarkable journeys over most difficult country. The Sandown Derby was won by a horse running in a natural state. The race was run twice, owing to the fact that three horses made a dead heat on the first occasion. Prior to the second attempt the owner of Marden gave orders for the light plates to be removed from the hoofs of his nominee, with the result that Marden gained a comfortable victory by three lengths.

Even at the present day in Japan the modern horseshoe finds a strong competitor in the old fashioned sandals made of straw which are fastened to the horse's hoofs after the manner of equine "cricket shoes."

BABY'S LITTLE ILLS

Baby's little ills are many and need close attention. Worms are among the most common of these ailments—there being scarcely a child who is not afflicted by them at some time or other. These, though, can be readily banished by the frequent use of Baby's Own Tablets—the only remedy sold under the guarantee of a government analyst to contain no opiate or other harmful drug. Concerning them Mrs. Jos. Daigle, Ste. Perpetue, Que., writes:—"My baby was troubled with worms; he was nervous and had no appetite. I gave him Baby's Own Tablets and he was soon well again." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Our good resolutions might be more lasting if we could only get them with a guarantee against breakage.

Sleeplessness.—Sleep is the great restorer and to be deprived of it is vital loss. Whatever may be the cause of it, indigestion, nervous derangement or mental worry, try a course of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. By regulating the action of the stomach, where the trouble lies, they will restore normal conditions and healthful sleep will follow. They exert a sedative force upon the nerves and where there is unrest they bring rest.

EXAMINE THOSE TO WED.

Swiss Society Makes a Unique Suggestion.

A striking innovation in the direction of enforced medical examination of women has been suggested by the Swiss Society of Public Utility for Women. The proposition is that young Swiss women should undergo a medical examination on the same system as their brothers when entering the army; that the measure should be made compulsory, and that a certificate of health and fitness for motherhood should be issued to each young woman who passes the examination.

In a recent report of the society, Swiss women were urged to undergo examinations for the sake of themselves and their country. The extremists in the society wish the test to be applied to both men and women, irrespective of army requirements, and made compulsory by law under conditions that govern the granting of life insurance policies. They also seek a law making it compulsory for clergymen to demand a medical certificate from applicants before marrying them.

COLD CAUSED SERIOUS TROUBLE

BUT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS BROUGHT THE CURE.

Mr. Hugh Martin, Suffering From Kidney Disease for Two Years, Tells How he got Back his Health.

St. Hippolyte de Kilkenny, Lake L'Achigan, Terrebonne Co., Que., April 8 (Special).—Again the people of this neighborhood are talking of a complete cure of kidney disease. Mr. Hugh Martin, Jr., a well-known young farmer, is the person cured, and he gives all the credit to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My trouble was caused by a cold," Mr. Martin says, in an interview, "and I suffered for two years. My head would ache and I had pains in the back as well. I felt heavy and sleepy after meals. I was often dizzy, my memory was failing and I found it difficult to collect my thoughts. I was also nervous, while heart flutterings added to my anxiety.

"I was a sick man indeed when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, but by the time I had taken two boxes I was a changed man. Are you surprised that I think Dodd's Kidney Pills a wonderful remedy?"

If you have two or more of Mr. Martin's symptoms your kidneys are diseased. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the sure cure.

Some persons are more susceptible to colds than others, contracting derangements of the pulmonary organs from the slightest causes. These should always have at hand a bottle of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the present day sovereign remedy for coughs, catarrh and inflammation of the lungs. THE QUEEN OF SONG.

Madame Adelina Patti made her first public appearance at the age of eight, and before she was fifteen had assisted at over three hundred concerts. From 1851 to 1912 is a far cry, yet only a few months ago Madame Patti was singing at the Royal Albert Hall in London at a benefit concert for Mr. Wilhelm Gauz. The occasion celebrated the prima donna's fiftieth anniversary of public singing in London, and her renderings were full of grace and tenderness. Madame Patti's figure is still that of a girl, and she believes that soft rain falling on the face is the finest complexion beautifier. The Baroness Cederstrom, as the diva is in private life, lives at a beautiful old castle in South Wales, known as Craig-y-Nos, which is Welsh for "Rock of Night." During her long reign as Queen of Song she has earned $10,000,000.

Useful in Camp.—Explorers, surveyors, prospectors and hunters will find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil very useful in camp. When the feet and legs are wet and cold it is well to rub them freely with the Oil and the result will be the prevention of pains in the muscles, and should a cut, or contusion, or sprain be sustained, nothing could be better as a dressing or lotion.

FACTS ABOUT FACINGS.

What They Mean on a Soldier's Uniform.

Taking the breeks off a Highlander is one ticklish job, and to deprive a British regiment of its cherished facings is another.

Many years ago, however, the military authorities, in their wisdom, attempted to do so, and to make almost all regiments wear white facings in place of the distinctive colors of which they were so proud, with the result of widespread discontent.

What, by the way, are facings? The next time you see a soldier in full uniform, cast your eye over him, and you will notice that his collar, the cuffs of his sleeves, shoulder-straps, and the piping, or edging, of his uniform are a different hue from the rest of the tunic. These are facings.

The general rule is that Royal regiments—i.e., regiments called "Royal," or which are known as the "King's" or "Queen's So-and-so Regiment"—for instance, the Royal Scots, the King's Liverpool Regiment—wear blue facings; but there are exceptions.

Scarlet, for examule, are the facings of the Royal Regiment of Artillery; while the green uniform of the Royal Irish Rifles is relieved by dark-green facings.

No regiment, however, that is not a Royal regiment wears blue facings.

The famous Buffs (East Kent Regiment) are, of course, so called on account of their buff facings; while the Yorkshire Regiment were known as "Howard's Greens," from the name of their colonel and their grass-green facings.

CONDUCTOR CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

"Mr. Copeland, Dear Sir,—For the benefit of others I wish to make known what Copeland's Cure for Consumption has done for me. When I commenced taking it I could not sit up in bed, nor keep anything on my stomach. My doctor, and a consumption specialist of Toronto said I had the worst form of Consumption, that nothing could be done for me, and gave me only eight or ten days to live. After taking two bottles of your cure my appetite improved, and that weakening perspiration stopped. To-day I am healthier and stronger than I have been for years. I will answer any correspondence. Wishing you every success. David Warnock, Street Car Conductor, 220 Silver Birch Avenue."

Every day I receive testimonials like the above from persons given up by doctors, and who have tried all other medicines, but after taking this cure are speedily recovering. Many claim to be cured. As a cure for Consumption, weak or bleeding lungs, lingering coughs and bronchitis it is unexcelled. It acts on the stomach as a stimulating tonic. SHORT KINGS, TALL QUEENS.

Many European monarchs are of shorter stature than their queens. George V. is several inches shorter than Queen Mary. The German Empress is slightly taller than the Kaiser; and it is alleged that when they are being photographed together William sees that the Queen takes a seat while he himself stands. The Czar of all the Russias is by no means as tall as his consort, and Alfonso of Spain is said to be a head shorter than Queen Victoria Eugenie. The King of Italy hardly reaches to the shoulders of his Montenegran wife. The Queen of Denmark, too, is taller than her husband. Exceptions are the King of Norway and the King of the Belgians. The latter, six feet two inches in height, is the tallest ruler in Europe.

PILES CURED

Writing from Poplar, B.C., Mrs. C. Hanson, proprietress of the Commercial Hotel, says: "I suffered for years with bleeding piles. The pain was so bad at times that I could hardly walk, and ordinary remedies seemed utterly unable to give me any ease. Finally I decided to undergo an operation, and went to the Sacred Heart Hospital in Spokane. There they performed an operation. For a time I was certainly better, but within twelve months the piles became as painful as ever. I tried liniments, hot poultices, various 'pile cures,' and indeed everything I could think would be likely to do any good, but still I continued to suffer, and the shooting, burning, stinging pains, the dull, aching, 'worn-out' feeling that the disease causes continued as bad as ever.

"One day I read about Zam-Buk and thought I would try it. The first one or two boxes gave me more ease than anything else I had tried, so I went on with the treatment. In a short time I began to feel altogether different and better. Well, I went on using Zam-Buk, and by the time I had used six boxes I was delighted to find myself entirely cured. That was three years ago, and there has been no return of the trouble."

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for piles, eczema, ulcers, abscesses, eruptions, chapped hands, varicose sores, burns, scalds, bruises, inflamed patches, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores everywhere, 50c. box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

Mr. Flynn of McGillivray lost a valuable 4-year old horse last week. It was being led along the road south of Crediton, and when passing over a bridge became frightened of the rushing water and leaping off the bridge became entangled in some wire, and was drowned before it could be freed.

The main sewer running north along Main street to the river seems to have played out altogether and the earth has caved in in several places, resulting in many lots and cellars being flooded. A new sewer will be necessary and will cost at least $4000. In the meantime danger signs are up advising people to drive on the east side of the street.

A schoolboy on being asked to write an essay on cats, made the following amusing and orginal statements;—Cats that's made for little boys and girls to maul and tease is called Maltese cats. Some cats are known by their queer purrs; these are called Persian cats. Cats with every bad tempers are called Angorine cats. Sometimes a very fine cat is called a magnificat. Cats with very deep feelings is called Feline cats".

The streams and rivers of Western Ontario have been on the rampage during the past week and in many places farm lands and town and village properties have been submerged, and a number of bridges and dams carried away. The dam at Exeter had a narrow escape, but stood the test fairly well, although the breakwater at the south and the bank at the north were considerably damaged. Workmen with bags of clay succeeded in preventing very serious damage being done. The flow of water has greatly decreased and all danger is passed for this spring.

The remains of the late Harry N. Boon arrived here on Thursday evening last and were taken to the residence of the father-in-law, Mr. G. E. Anderson, from where the funeral, which was of a private nature, took place to the Exeter Cemetery on Friday afternoon. Deceased, besides the wife and child, is survived by a brother in Saskatchewan and a sister in England.

JAP SOLD.—Last week Mr. Wm. Kunz sold the celebrated trotting stallion, The Jap, to Mr. George Moir, who will take him to Traverse City, Mich. The Jap is one of the best pedigreed stallions that has ever been owned in these parts and it is regrettable that the animal is going out of the country.

AVERTED A BLAZE.—On Wednesday afternoon during the absence of Mr. W. W. Taman and workmen who were engaged in renovating the store a quantity of shavings and other inflamable material lying near the stove took fire. Mr. Samuel Sanders, operator, happened to be passing at the time and noticing the blaze gave the alarm and thus averted what otherwise might have resulted in a serious fire.

A regular storm period runs from the 18th to the 23rd, having its center on the 20th. The Venus period is central on the 23rd and the Moon is at greatest north declination and perigee on the 21st and 22nd. This astronomic condition calls for steady wind currents from the south, low barometer, very high temperature, ending in electrical storms. Tornadoes will visit various parts, especially in southern regions, during period. Too much importance cannot be attached to the barometer at this and all singular periods. Abnormally low temperature falling to frost line in the clear nights following. Snow and sleet squalls will most likely visit many sections northward during this period. A marked seismic period is central on the 17th, involving the 15th to 21st.

Messrs. S. G. and J. W. Bawden have rented the premises recently vacated by the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and have opened out a Real Estate office, dealing in Western City and Farm Lands, Timber Limits and Coal Lands. They are also distributors of Edmonton Board of Trade and Alberta Government literature. Messrs. Owing to there being a number of cases of measles among the children of town the Medical Health officer and School Board deemed it advisable to close the lower rooms of the school for this week and the higher rooms for Monday and Tuesday, in order to have them disinfected, and to give the scholars an opportunity to obtain medical certificates as to their health and that of their families. The disease is of a very mild form, and apparently parents and physicians have not been as particular about reporting the cases and placarding the houses as is usually the case, and as the M. H. O. deems advisable.

SOME OF OUR CLAIMS.—We don't believe that you can find a better all round place to fit out the home THAN RIGHT AT THIS STORE. We don't believe that you can find a place that will deal more fairly with you than we will. We don't believe that dollar for dollar you can do quite as well anywhere else. Those are our claims— to prove them is our aim. Will you give us an opportunity? — JAS. BEVERLEY, the leading funeral director and furniture man, opposite Commercial Hotel.

BROKE ANKLE—Mr. Samuel Parsons of London Road South while working around the barn on Thursday last had the misfortune to fall and break his ankle. He will be laid up for sometime which is additionally unfortunate at this busy season.

LEAVING TOWN.—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Moir and family returned Wednesday to their old home in Traverse City, Mich. after residing in Usborne and Exeter for the past six years. Mr. Moir was a former resident of Usborne, and after spending some years in Michigan returned to the old township. He is, however, a strong admirer of Uncle Sam's domain and has now returned to that country. Besides "The Jap," the celebrated trotting stallion he recently purchased from Mr. Wm. Kuntz, Mr. Moir has taken with him "King's Son," a three-year-old Clydesdale stallion, bred by Mr. McAllister of Hay Township. This stallion is from that wonderfully successful sire "King Thomas." His dam was imported by Mr. R. J. McMillan of Seaforth. Mr. Moir is to be congratulated on securing these two fine horses. King's Son cannot miss being a first-class sire as he is bred in the purple on both sides, and King Thomas' stock has always sold for good prices. We hope Mr. Moir has the best of success, as his enterprise is deserving of it.

House cleaning is again in evidence. While the good house wife is thus bustily engaged on the inside the man of the house may be seen some place in the back yard taking his meals off the end of a barrel and at the same time endeavoring to suppress a chain of epithets wrought up by his experiences with the stove pipes. The good man of the house will hardly be himself again for the next few weeks.

CORONER'S VERDICT ON DEATH OF HARRY N. BOON AT THOROLD.

Thorold, April 10th.—The adjourned inquest was held yesterday on Harry N. Boon who was killed on the G. T. R. on April 2, under Coroner Herod. The jury brought in the following verdict,—"That Harry N. Boon came to his death on April 2nd while acting as brakesman on the G. T. R. by striking his head on the overhead bridge approaching lock 24 new Welland Canal, and that we consider the bridge too low for the safety of the brakesmen, and also consider that the "tell-tales" before approaching the bridge are not sufficient warning for the safety of the brakesmen. On visiting the scene of the accident on the morning following we found the "tell-tales" in improper condition, twisted and one missing, and are of opinion that some action should be taken to make the bridge in question less dangerous.

CLERGYMAN SHOOTS HIMSELF.

Wyoming, April 15.—Rev. John Gunne aged 53, brother of Rev. Charles R. Gunne, rector of Christ Church, London, and himself rector of the Anglican Church here, ended his life at his home this morning. The late Mr. Gunne, who was deeply beloved, not only by the members of his own congregation, but also by the people of Wyoming and the district in general, had been in ill health for a long time. For months he found it impossible to sleep, but while his condition was sufficient to cause uneasiness, it was not thought that his mind had become affected. Early this morning his wife heard the report of a gun in the house and at once set about investigating. After a time she found the body of her husband, in his night robe, in the bath room. On the floor beside him was a double-barrelled shot gun, one barrel of which had been discharged. The unfortunate man had placed the muzzle under his chin and had fired, part of his head and face being carried away.

Magnificent Ocean Liner Titanic Sinks With Over 1300 Lives

THE KNOWN SURVIVORS, 868

LATEST ESTIMATE OF DEAD, 1300.

The greatest marine disaster in the history of the world occurred on Sunday night off the banks of Newfoundland when the Titanic of the White Star Line —the biggest and most luxurious ship in the world, struck an iceberg about 10.30 p.m. and sank about four hours afterwards.

There were 2,200 people on board, among them many prominent men, and over half on board are certain to have gone down with the vessel.

Wireless telegraphic despatches were sent out by the operator on board and heard by several other vessels, which hurried to answer the call for help, and succeeded in picking up many of the survivors who had left the vessel in her boats. Before the arrival of the other vessels on the scene of the disaster, however, The Titanic had gone down with all who were left on board.

The first vessel to arrive in aid of the ship wrecked was the Carpathia, and according to the latest reports that is the only vessel that succeeded in picking up any survivors. The Virginian and Tunisian arrived too late to be of any assistance. It is now known that 868 survivors are on board the Carpathia, which will arrive in New York to-day. The latest estimate of the dead is 1252 to 1305. Not until the arrival of the Carpathia will the lists of saved and drowned be complete.

BOY DASHED TO DEATH.

Mitchell, April 12.—A terrible accident happened on the farm of Mr. Jas. Hodge, on the Huron Road. Mr. O. Hodge was running the grindstone with a gasoline engine and while he was grinding an axe his little son, James Lindsay, was playing around. The child fell against the rapidly revolving engine. In an instant the little fellow's clothes were caught by the flp-wheel which was running at about 600 revolutions per minute and in an instant the clothes were stripped from his body and his head came in contact with the end of a heavy plank on which the engine was resting. The little fellow sustained a deep cut on the right side of his head. The wound required nine stitches to bring it together and in this state the little fellow lingered two days when he died, never having regained consciousness.

HELD FOR BIGAMY.

Goderich, April 10.—Duncan McLeod, a resident of Goderich for the last four years, was arrested here to-day on the charge of bigamy. It is alleged that in August last a marriage ceremony was performed in Port Huron between the accused and a woman giving the name of Clara McIlwaine. They went, it is alleged, to Port Huron from Goderich for the purpose of having the knot tied. The records show that McLeod was previously married to Mary Aikenhead, in Detroit in December, 1908. As the result he is now being prosecuted by Crown Attorney Seager. McLeod was released on bail of $500.

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

"But where did the knife come from?" pursued Brett. "It was not in their possession when they entered, nor when they left."

"No; of course not. Hessein brought it himself, to be used in case of necessity. He also brought the pliers which cut the wire blinds, and the material used for concealing the broken strands subsequently. Hussein was really an excellent confederate, and I was furious when I heard that he was dead. You know how the diamonds were abstracted from the house?"

"Yes," said Brett. "They were made up into a parcel and flung through the window into the Park. The knife and pliers accompanied them, I suppose?"

"The third Turk—the gentleman who pulled you down on to the bed so unceremoniously, Mr. Talbot—was waiting there for the packet. But he had to hide in the Park all the night, until the gates were opened in the morning. It was a ticklish business right through. I did not know at what hours the police might discover the extent of the crime. The diamonds did not reach me until seven o'clock. And then I had some difficulty in persuading the Turks to give them up to me. You see, I had my own little plan, too, which these excellent gentlemen never suspected, as they already had paid me £5,000 for my help. But the real heads of the party were in Paris—Hessein-ul-Mulk and that gang, you know—and by representing the danger to their cause which would result from any attempt on the part of the Turks in London to reach France, they were at last persuaded. By nine o'clock that morning I got them safely off to the docks, where they boarded a vessel bound for Smyrna. Their passages were already booked in Armenian names. Gros Jean, who had no connection with the affair personally, stayed at a little hotel in Soho in order to report all clear during the next few days. He happened by chance to travel with you and the other man. It was a clever scheme, I assure you, from beginning to end. By the way, may I trouble you for another cigarette?"

"These are not equal to Hussein-ul-Mulk's," said Brett, producing his case.

"No; he has an exquisite taste in tobacco. But I nearly fooled him with the dummy diamonds. I would have done so if it had not been for you. Do you know, Mr. Brett, I have always underrated Englishmen's brains. You are really stupid as a nation"—here Talbot almost blushed—"but you are an exception. You ought to be a Frenchman."

Brett was silent for a few moments. He had fully discussed Dubois' connexion with the British authorities.

"How much of the five thousand pounds given you by the Turks remains in your possession?" he demanded.

The Frenchman hesitated before replying—

"There is no use lying to you. I have not yet expended the first thousand, although I had to pay dearly for a good many things."

Again there was silence.

"Why did you come here?" asked the barrister.

"Because I would be safe for some months with a few hospitable gentlemen whom I know up in the hills there." He nodded towards them.

"And then?"

"Then Marguerite and I were going to the Argentine, to dwell in rural felicity, and teach our children to bless the name of Mahomet and Obdul Hamid."

"Marguerite is Mademoiselle Beucaire?"

"Yes, poor girl! I hear she is ill and in prison, together with her excellent father. Really, Mr. Brett, I cannot help liking you, but I ought to feel anxious to cut your throat."

"In that case you would certainly be hanged. Are you married to Mademoiselle Beaucaire?"

The Frenchman darted a quick look at his inquisitor.

"What has that to do with you?" he snarled.

Dubois' future had already been determined. The rascal was more fortunate than he deserved to be. Owing to the lucky chance that his crime had a political significance he would escape punishment. By no known form of European law could he be brought to trial on any charge and at the same time gagged in his defence.

When the Ottoman Empire is next torn asunder by civil war other thrones will rock to their foundation. Half unconsciously, though he had a glimmering perception of the truth, Henri Dubois was saved by the magnitude of the interests involved.

Brett knew exactly how to deal with him. But a fantastic project had arisen in his mind, and he determined to graft it upon the drastic expedition adopted by the authorities. He abruptly broke off the conversation and told the Frenchman that he would call again during the afternoon.

True to his promise, Talbot and he visited the injured man some hours later. This time they were accompanied by a stout individual and a closely veiled lady—Gros Jean and his daughter.

The meeting between Henri and Marguerite was pathetic. It was at the same time exceedingly French, and somewhat trying to the nerves of the Englishmen.

At last the couple calmed their transports, and Brett promptly recalled them to a sense of their surroundings by reminding them that there was a serious business to be discussed.

"I am commissioned to inform you," he said, addressing Dubois, "that if you proceed direct to the Argentine, never attempt to revisit France, and keep your mouth closed as to your attempt to purloin the Sultan's jewels, you will be set at liberty here and no effort will be made by the French or English police to arrest you. The infringement of any of these conditions will lead to your extradition and a sentence of penal servitude for life."

"Ma foi!" cried the Frenchman, looking intently into the barrister's inscrutable face. "Why such tenderness?"

Brett would not give him time for prolonged reflection.

"I have not yet finished," he said drily. "I imagine that Mlle. Beaucaire cannot produce a marriage certificate. She will be supplied with one, to permit her to travel with you as your wife."

The pair were startled. They somewhat relaxed the close embrace in which they sat. The man's handsome face flushed with anger. The woman became a shade paler and looked from the barrister to her lover.

"Good," growled Gros Jean. "Quite right!"

"We can manage our own affairs," began Dubois savagely; but Brett again took up the parable.

"You owe this lady a deep debt of gratitude for her unswerving devotion to you. She has helped you to lead an evil life; let her now assist you in a better career. You have your chance. Will you take it?"

La Belle Chasseuse sat mute and downcast. This personal development came as a complete surprise to her. Pride would not permit her to plead her own cause. Dubois glanced at her covertly.

The barrister deemed the moment ripe for his final smashing argument. He came somewhat nearer to the bed, and said with exasperating coolness—

"There is a secret room in the Cabaret Noir, the contents of which have not yet been too closely examined by the police. It is in their charge. At my request, backed up by the British Foreign Office, they have thus far deferred a detailed scrutiny. Perhaps if the external influence is removed they may press their investigation to a point when it will be impossible to permit your contemplated voyage to the Argentine. I have nothing further to say."

Dubois looked at him in moody silence. The Argentine—with £4,000? Yes. But a wife!

Suddenly all eyes were attracted to Gros Jean, who emitted a gasping groan. His fat cheeks were livid, and huge drops of perspiration stood on his brow. Feeling that the others were regarding him intently, he made a desperate effort to recover his composure.

"It is nothing!" he gurgled. "The English gentleman's proposal with regard to my daughter interested me, that is all."

Dubois and the innkeeper gazed intently into each other's eyes for a few trying seconds. Then the Frenchman drew Marguerite closer to him, with his uninjured arm, and said—

"Let us get married, ma p'tite. It is essential."

And married they were forthwith, a priest and an official from the Mayor's office being in waiting at the hotel. Whilst they were signing the register Gros Jean motioned Brett to one side.

"Allow me to thank you, M'sieu,' for the kindness you have shown," he murmured. "Touching that hidden room in the Cabaret, now. Do the police really know of it? You were not joking?"

"Not in the least."

"Then, M'sieu,' I accompany them to the Argentine," and he jerked his thumb towards Dubois and his wife. "Paris is no place for me."

Soon after the ceremony Mme. Dubois asked to be allowed to visit Edith. When the two women met Marguerite flung herself impulsively on her knees and sobbed out a request for forgiveness. Miss Talbot should have been very angry with her erring sister. She was not. She took the keenest interest in the Frenchwoman's romantic history. They talked until Fairholme became impatient. He had not seen Edith for two whole hours.

* * *

Six months later, when the Earl and Countess of Fairholme returned from a prolonged wedding tour on the Blue Bell through the Norwegian fiords, Brett was invited to dinner. Talbot was there, of course, and Daubeney, and Sir Hubert.

"Constantinople must be a queer place," observed Jack after the first rush of animated converse had exhausted itself.

"Surely there are no more diamond mysteries on foot!" cried his charming sister, who looked delightfully well, and brown as a berry with the keen sea breezes of the hardy North.

"Not exactly; but I made some inquiries through a friend of mine in the Legation. Hussein-ul-Mulk and his two Paris friends are quite important functionaries in the palace. You remember that the other pair of scoundrels escaped to Smyrna?"

"Yes," cried everybody.

"Well, Mehemet Ali's relatives heard the truth about them by some means. Within a reasonable time they were chopped into small pieces, with other details that need not be repeated."

"Dogs, or pigs?" inquired Brett.

"Dogs!"

"I wish you wouldn't say such horrid things," protested Edith "Is there any news of Monsieur Dubois, and the fat man Gros Jean?"

"You will receive some in the drawing-room, Lady Fairholme," said Brett; and not another word of explanation would he give until dinner was ended.

In the drawing-room her ladyship was delighted to find a splendid cockatoo, magnificent in size and white as snow, save for the brilliant red crest which he elevated when they all crowded round his handsome cage.

"The happy couple in the Argentine sent him to me to be presented to you on your return," explained the barrister. "He is named 'Le Prophete,' and he talks beautifully—indeed his language is most emphatic, but it is all French."

"What a darling!" cried Edith. "I do wish he would say something. Cher Prophete, parlez avec moi!"

And immediately the cockatoo stretched his wings and screamed—

"Vive Mahomet! Vive le Sultan! A bas les Grecs! a bas! a bas!"

THE UNDER DOG'S CHANCE.

How a Prize-fighter Got Even with a Judge.

It is not often that a convicted man has a chance to "get back" at the judge who sentenced him without exposing himself to the risk of further punishment. Such an opportunity did lately smile upon one of the men employed as a rubber at the new Turkish baths installed at the Royal Automobile Club in London, England.

A learned judge, who was a member of the club, was among the first to try the splendid accommodations of the bath. On the whole, he enjoyed his experience, but the violence of the rubbing he received rather surprised him.

The judge, prone on the wet slab, was beaten and thumped and pinched and prodded by the rubber beyond all reason. He stood it as long as he could. Then he groaned, and said:

"Is it [thump, bang] quite necessary [whack, bash, slap] to make me black and blue [crash] all over?"

"Never you mind," said the rubber, hauling off and giving the judge a terrific left-hander in the ribs. "I know my business." [Thud].

"Who are you?" asked the judge. "Your face [bang] looks [crash] familiar."

"Oh, you remember me, do you?" growled the rubber. "Well, then, mebbe ye won't be so ready next time to give me eight months for prize-fightin'."

"That boy of mine," remarked Smith extravagantly, "is the genuine article! He's all wool, you can bet!" "Shouldn't wonder," commented Jones. "I notice that he shrinks from washing!"

Some men are born great, some shrink and others never find out how small they really are.

NERVOUS DISEASES IN THE SPRING

Cured by Toning the Blood and Strengthening the Nerves

It is the opinion of the best medical authorities, after long observation, that nervous diseases are more common and more serious in the spring than at any other time of the year. Vital changes in the system, after long winter months, may cause much more trouble than the familiar spring weakness and weariness from which most people suffer as the result of indoor life, in poorly ventilated and often overheated buildings. Official records prove that in April and May neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy and other forms of nerve troubles are at their worst, and that then, more than any other time, a blood-making, nerve-restoring tonic is needed.

The antiquated custom of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening, while purgatives only gallop through the bowels, leaving you weaker. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine, for they actually make the new, rich, red blood that feeds the starved nerves, and thus cure the many forms of nervous disorders. They cure also such other forms of spring troubles as headaches, poor appetite, weakness in the limbs, as well as remove unsightly pimples and eruptions. In fact they unfailingly bring new health and strength to weak, tired and depressed men, women and children.

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

COST OF BULLETS.

The cost of killing a soldier in battle is going to be appreciably increased by the rise in the market price of lead, says the London Mirror. The cartridge manufacturers who fulfil the British War Office contracts are at present supplying large orders placed some months ago at old prices, but the new contracts will be revised in connection with the price of lead, which has largely increased during the last six months. "Not only the lead but the nickel casing to put it in and the brass for the cartridge case have also increased in price. In fact nearly all the base metals have gone up," said the London manager of a well-known manufacturing house. "The rise in lead has also increased the price of sporting cartridges from 5 to 7½ per cent., so that shooting partridge and pheasants will cost you more."

A RELIABLE MEDICINE FOR YOUNG CHILDREN

Baby's Own Tablets are a safe medicine for all little ones. They are guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely free from opiates and other harmful drugs—that is why so many mothers will give their baby nothing else in the way of medicine. Concerning them Mrs. John Thompson, Coutts, Alta., says: "I have given my baby, when needed, Baby's Own Tablets and think they are the best remedy for constipation I have ever used. I would not be without them in the house." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WISE BEGGAR.

Skinflint—I have no money, but I will give you a little advice.

Beggar—Well, if yer hain't got no money yer advice can't be very valuable.

It doesn't seem right that a woman should have two ears for hearing gossip and only one tongue for repeating it.

It is in Demand.—So great is the demand for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil that a large factory is kept continually busy making and bottling it. To be in demand shows popular appreciation of this preparation, which stands at the head of proprietary compounds as the leading Oil in the market, and it is generally admitted that it is deserving of the lead.

"Did that young man kiss you last night?" "Mother, do you suppose that he came all the way up here just to hear me sing?"

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

One always thinks there is a lot of money to be made in any kind of business that he isn't in.

Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup needs no recommendation. To all who are familiar with it, it speaks for itself. Years of use in the treatment of colds and coughs and all affections of the throat has unquestionably established its place among the very best medicines for such diseases. If you give it a trial you will not regret it. You will find it 25 cents well invested.

If a man isn't sufficiently original to manufacture his own lies he should stick to the truth.

FLOWERS LOVE MELODIES.

Professor Hans Teitgen, of Munich, Germany, has discovered that flowers are sensitive to music, and betray their individual natures by expanding their petals under the influence of certain melodies. Thus, rosebuds open to the old-fashioned airs of Lulli; peonies take on a deeper hue under the fanfares of Wagner; violets raise their heads to the gentle romances of modern composers; while lilies close at the sound of frivolous valse tunes.

The reason a girl won't let a young man kiss her is because she wants him to.

If some cooks land in heaven they will be awfully annoyed to find that they can't leave.

RESULTS HE GOT WERE PERFECT

SAM MALLETTE'S BRIGHT'S DISEASE CURED BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

He Suffered Tortures and the Doctor Failed to Give Relief, but Three Boxes Cured Him.

Rutter Station, Ont., April 8 (Special).—"I got perfect results from Dodd's Kidney Pills." So says Mr. Sam Mallette of this place. And he has a reason.

"My sickness started from a strain," Mr. Mallette continues, "and for a year I did not know a well day. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing, my appetite was fitful and my limbs would swell.

"Then rheumatism set in and neuralgia, backache, headache and heart trouble added to my tortures. I was attended to by a doctor, but he did me no lasting good.

"Finally, when Bright's Disease had me in its grasp, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and after taking three boxes, I was as well as ever I was in my life. I have had no pain since and advise all my friends who suffer from kidney disease to take Dodd's Kidney Pills and be cured."

Mr. Mallette's case shows what neglected kidney disease will result in and what splendid results Dodd's Kidney Pills give.

PEROXIDE'S MANY USES.

A Valuable Antiseptic and Can Be Employed in Other Ways.

One of the most powerful bleaching agents employed in various trades is peroxide of hydrogen, also known as hydrogen dioxide and oxygenated water. The natural color in ostrich plumes is removed by it and it will also bleach a great number of other things, such as bones, ivory, silver, wood, silk, cotton, and hair. It can be used to restore the color to old oil paintings which have become darkened by age. Peroxide is a valuable antiseptic and will also destroy objectionable micro-organisms in water. It can even be used to cure indigestion, but for this purpose, as well as other medicinal uses, it must be diluted. A drop of pure peroxide is strong enough to raise a white blister on the skin.

Minute quantities of peroxide of hydrogen are found in the air, in rainwater, and in snow, and it is sometimes found in the juices of certain plants. The liquid is produced on a large scale by the action of acids on peroxide of sodium. The solution may be concentrated by allowing the water to freeze out, by passing dry air through it, or by evaporation in a vacuum over sulphuric acid.

MOTORS ENGAGE INVENTORS.

Autos and Aeronautics to the Front in British Patent Office.

In 1911 the number of applications for patents at the British Patent Office was 38,186, of which 598 were made by women. The report of the Comptroller-General, touching on the trend of invention during the year, says:

"The ever-increasing importance of means of locomotion is demonstrated by the prominence this subject takes under an analysis of the whole field of inventive activity. The internal combustion engine, an important factor in the science of locomotion, is greatly in evidence, particularly in connection with the revolving cylinder type, and the so-called valveless engine.

"Wheels for vehicles are a still more prolific source of invention. Motor vehicles and motor cycles maintain their claim to attention, variable speed gearing, clutches and engine starting devices being especially noteworthy.

Aeronautics shows a considerable diminution in comparison with the previous year, but the number of applications is still sufficiently great to make the subject one of outstanding features of the year's invention, and the report notes that efforts are being made to utilize aeroplanes as auxiliaries in naval warfare by contriving means for launching them from the decks of battleships.

"Increasing attention is being given to the utilization of the characteristic properties of the gyroscope, more particularly in its application as a substitute for the magnetic compass and in its use as an anti-skidding device for vehicles and as a stabilizing means for flying machines."

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. That is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years he is still perfectly cured.

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

No grief, however great, has the right to rob you of the sunlight of joy.

One of the questions propounded was, "What tea do you use?" and the replies received demonstrate that Lipton's Tea is the most popular of all package teas, showing its sale to be double that of the nearest competitor and considerably over one hundred per cent. more than the next two mentioned brands taken together. Surely Honest Tea is the Best Policy.

CURED IMBECILE CHILD.

A remarkable operation has just been performed on an imbecile child by Professor Erwin Payr, director of the surgical clinic attached to the Leipsig University, Germany, with great success. The professor planted a piece of the thyroid gland, taken from a healthy child, born of a healthy mother, into the liver of an imbecile child, who immediately afterwards began to improve in intelligence. The improvement steadily increased until a complete cure was effected and the patient discharged from the clinic.

WHAT DRAINAGE IS WORTH IN A DRY SEASON

Free Assistance in Drainage again offered by the O. A. C.

During the exceptionally dry season of 1911 land that was underdrained produced on the average about $16.50 more per acre than land that was not drained, according to data collected by the Department of Physics at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Reports were received from a large number of farmers, of whom twenty-five gave definite figures on yields, 8 of the number said they saw no difference, but all the others reported increases. Eleven counties were represented in the reports, from Durham in the East to Essex in the West. The value of increases, including straw, was figured at October 1911 prices, and March 1912 prices. The former showed an average of $15.97 per acre and the latter $17.94, and both together an average of 16.50. The three who reported no increase were counted in obtaining the averages.

In wet seasons the results are even more marked, but even at $16.50 per acre, drains more than pay for themselves in two years.

The O. A. C. is again renewing its offer of assistance to farmers in laying out their drainage systems. The Department of Physics has a special staff of Drainage Advisers for this work. There is no charge for the services of these men, the only outlay to the farmer being the travelling expenses, which are low. As the railway fare is only one cent a mile for this work, and as several surveys are always made on one trip the expenses are divided among the several parties who are concerned. Anyone wishing to have a drainage survey made should drop a card to the Department of Physics, O. A. C. Guelph, whereupon regular application form will be sent, and later on one of the Department's Drainage Advisers will make the survey.

This is the season of the year when everybody should cheer up. The growing time is at hand when nature begins to assert itself in new form and to give of her bounties for the benefit of mankind. If winter lingers long in the lap of spring, as it is doing this season, do not become pessimistic and feel that nature in some way has slipped a cog and has turned away from you. Cheer up, seed time will come again and the snow and frosts will disappear. This season will prove no exception to the rule. It is better to have winter conditions now than a month hence, after a considerable portion of the seed is in the ground. If when real spring conditions do come, they come to stay, the farmer will fare better than having an early spring, with cold, bleak weather following.

A single female fly lays from 120 to 150 eggs, which hatch out in from 8 to 10 hours. These are mature and ready to lay themselves in 20 days. For every female fly killed now there will be several million flies the fewer to be killed in August, so it would appear to be a good thing to begin the swatting season with the appearance of the first fly.

The London Advertiser in its "Stay in Ontario" campaign made reference to Huron County last week. There is no better county on the top of the green earth than the County of Huron, and still the exodus to the west from this section of Ontario has been exceedingly large for many years. In fact, from Huron and Bruce people were going to the west long before the C.P. railway was built. The following comparison of population in the Townships of Huron indicates the decrease during the last ten years.—

Township	1911	1901
Grey	2,850	3,557
Howick	3,463	4,140
Morris	2,240	2,606
Turnberry	1,897	2,141
East Wawanosh	1,929	1,960
Hay	3,014	3,627
McKillop	2,239	2,685
Stanley	1,830	2,152
Stephen	3,453	4,172
Tuckersmith	2,221	2,463
Usborne	1,944	2,367
Ashfield	2,630	3,497
Colborne	1,602	1,866
Goderich	1,926	2,528
Hullett	2,409	2,898
West Wawanosh	1,343	2,218
	37,190	44,877
Decrease		7,687

The above list shows the need of an educational campaign as to the advantages to gained by remaining in the old county. As one farmer said when we mentioned this matter to him last week —"If this decrease keeps on much longer the Government will soon be letting the land out to Homesteaders."

Important amendments to the Liquor License Act are:—

Prohibits establishment of storage for liquors in local option municipalities.

Gives Government power to prohibit sale of liquors in any prescribed area when such is deemed advisable.

Provides for imprisonment for anyone found drinking in local option district who refuses to tell where liquor was secured.

Prohibits licensee or employe from converting time cheque into money or taking same in part payment for liquor.

Provides for raising of maximum fine for infraction of liquor laws to $500.

Gives hotelmen right to eject any person he may suspect of being on his premises for improper purposes.

Prohibits labelling of bottles or flasks except by manufacturer.

Every growing ambitious town is composed of three elements. Those who work patriotically, vigorously and intelligently for its advancement; those who are in a state of apathy, or indifference, and those who take a curious delight in discouraging the effort of others by ridicule, and by a persistent denial that any progress can or has been accomplished, and by boasts of every other town besides their own. The last class are called croakers, but they are really something worse, for their opposition does not arise simply from despondency but from that unenviable spirit that will neither act itself or suffer others to act.

A lady has asked me to tell our readers what she learned a few years ago about cooking bacon. She cuts it in medium thin slices and puts it on in a cold pan and slowly lets it fry until it becomes transparent, then makes it a golden brown over a hotter fire. The fat from bacon should be served with it as it is both tasty and wholesome.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease tha science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The defence was that Reid struck the blow in defence of his property.

EDMONTON

During the past year Edmonton has come to the front rank of the more important Commercial Centres of Canada. Available trade statistics indicate that the volume of trade is expanding at a faster rate of increase than that of any other city in the Dominion.

THE BANK CLEARINGS ARE THE LARGEST PERCENTAGES OF INCREASE SHOWN BY ANY CLEARING CENTRE IN CANADA, AND TO-DAY EDMONTON STANDS SEVENTH IN THE LIST OF CANADIAN COMMERCIAL CENTRES.

THE EASTERN WHOLESALE AND MANUFACTURING CONCERNS ARE BUILDING WAREHOUSES AND DISTRIBUTING PLANTS IN EDMONTON IN ANTICIPATION OF THE GREAT VOLUME OF TRADE TO BE CENTRED THERE. IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO COMPUTE THE EXTENT OF THE TERRITORY FOR WHICH EDMONTON WILL BE THE DISTRIBUTING POINT. THE CITY IS SITUATED AT AN ALTITUDE OF 2,200 FEET AND THE GROUND DIPS TO THE NORTH. THUS, ALTHOUGH ONE GETS INTO MORE NORTHERLY LATITUDES, AS ONE GOES NORTH, THE CLIMATE DOES NOT GET COLDER FOR THE FURTHER ONE GOES THE LOWER THE ELEVATION GETS AND THE LONGER THE SUNSHINE OF THE MIDSUMMER DAYS.

AT FORT VERMILLION, WHICH IS MORE THAN 400 MILES NORTH OF EDMONTON MAGNIFICENT CROPS OF WHEAT AND OTHER GRAINS HAVE BEEN RAISED FOR MANY YEARS. FORT VERMILLION IS IN THE PEACE RIVER DISTRICT AND THE GENERAL CHARACTERISTICS AS TO SOIL AND CLIMATE ARE MORE FAVORABLE IN THE PEACE RIVER SETTLEMENTS THAN IN THE OLDER SETTLEMENTS TO THE EAST AND SOUTH.

IN ADDITION TO THE PEACE RIVER DISTRICT ABOUT 50,000 SQUARE MILES OF FERTILE COUNTRY NOW PARTLY SETTLED AND CAPABLE OF SUPPORTING A DENSE FARMING POPULATION LOOK TO EDMONTON AS THEIR COMMERCIAL CENTRE.

FROM THE FOREGOING IT WILL HAVE BEEN GATHERED THAT CONDITIONS ARE FAVORABLE FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF A GREAT WHOLESALE CENTRE. THERE ARE FACILITIES FOR TRANSPORTATION AND A BIG CONSUMING AREA CAPABLE OF INDEFINITE EXPANSION, WHICH IS PROTECTED FROM COMPETITION BY GEOGRAPHICAL CONDITIONS.

THE ESTIMATE OF AVAILABLE COAL CONTENTS OF THE EDMONTON DISTRICT IS SIXTY THOUSAND MILLIONS OF TONS.

THE OPPORTUNITIES FOR THE INVESTOR IN CITY REAL ESTATE WERE NEVER MORE FAVORABLE THAN AT THE PRESENT TIME. THE FUTURE OF THE CITY IS ASSURED AND THERE IS NO POSSIBLE CONDITION IN EXISTENCE TO-DAY THAT CAN RETARD OR STOP THE CITY'S GROWTH, AND CONSEQUENTLY THE RISE IN LAND VALUES.

FARM LANDS PURCHASED TO-DAY WILL PROVE A SAFE AND PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

For further information regarding City Property, Farm Lands and Homesteads enquire at our office in EXETER --- the premises lately vacated by the Bank of Commerce.

FERTILIZER

WHY NOT USE FERTILIZER INSTEAD OF BARNYARD MANURE?

It is easier to apply to the land and gives better satisfaction in every way. It is used for all grain crops and also a good catch of clover on poor meadows. Give your land a good top dressing of Fertilizer before planting your potatoes and it will double your crop. It is good for beans and for all kinds of root crops It has been tested and found to be better than other fertilizers. Give it a trial. Over three hundred tons sold already.

The National Fertilizer, which is placed on the market by the National Land, Fruit and Packing Company, is the only organic fertilizer made, and shows the following analysis compared with barnyard manure,—

Nitrogen 3.50, equal to 4.0 ammonia.
Phosphoric acid 5.75, equal to 12. soluable phosphates.

HOUSEHOLD

NEW WAYS WITH ORANGES.

While oranges are plentiful the following may be found pleasant: For chartreuse of oranges cut five oranges into pieces the shape of the quarters, but only about a quarter inch thick.

Have ready some clear, still orange jelly, into which dip each piece of orange and arrange round the bottom of a plain mold, filling up the center with pistachio nuts, then lining the sides of the mold with the quarters of orange, one row turning to the right, the other to the left alternately, until the mold is full, the pieces of fruit overlapping each other.

Fill in with about three-quarters of a pint of whipped cream flavored with vanilla brandy or any flavoring liked, adding a little isinglass and sugar, dissolved. When quite set turn into a glass dish, and if liked a little more cream may be poured round and garnished here and there with pounded pistachio nuts.

Oranges Filled with Jelly.—Take as many large China oranges as liked, then with the point of a sharp knife cut out from the top of each a round about the size of a shilling; then empty out the pulp, taking care not to break the rinds.

Throw into cold water. Make some jelly of the juice pressed from the pulp and strained quite clear. Color one-half a bright rose color with prepared cochineal, leaving the other pale. When the jelly is nearly cold drain and wipe the oranges and fill with alternate stripes of the different colored jelly, each color being allowed to get quite cold before the other is poured in.

When they are perfectly cold cut into quarters with a sharp knife and arrange tastefully on a dish with springs of myrtle between.

Orange Souffle.—Peel and slice six oranges and put in a glass dish alternate layers of oranges and sugar and let stand two hours. Make a custard of yolks of two eggs, a pint of milk, and sugar to taste, with a grating of orange peel for flavor, and pour over the oranges when cool enough. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, sweeten and flavor to taste and pour over the top. Serve cold.

SOME DANISH DISHES.

Srishe Tarts.—Make a good pie-crust, using butter for shortening, also a little baking powder. Boil and stone enough prunes to fill the crust, and sweeten to taste. Roll out half of the crust and spread thickly with the prunes. Roll out the rest of the crust; cover the prunes with it and cut into any shape that may be desired. Bake.

Danish Sweet Soup.—Put over the fire two quarts of water, one cupful of pearl barley, two sticks of cinnamon bark, and half a cupful of vinegar. Let all boil half an hour; then add one cupful of prunes and cook until they are well done. Sweeten to taste. Oatmeal may be substituted for the barley.

Sago Soup.—Two sticks of cinnamon bark, two quarts of water, one cupful of sago, one cup of prunes or raisins. Let all boil together until the sago is transparent. Then stir in a cupful of sugar.

Stuffed Cabbage—Cut off the root and dig out the center of a large, firm head of cabbage. Fill the cavity thus made with this mixture: Filling—Two pounds of Hamburger steak, one teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of pepper, one tablespoonful of flour, and a cupful of water. Mix all thoroughly and stuff in firmly. Cover the top with the cabbage dug out of the heart, bind in a clean cloth sewed in the shape of the cabbage, and boil two and a half hours. Put a stout plate in the bottom of the pot to prevent scorching. When it is done undo the cloth, put the cabbage upon a heated platter, and serve immediately.

CAKES.

Dried Peach Cake.—Take two cups of dried peaches soaked over night, chop fine, and boil in a cup of Orleans molasses and cool before using; two cups of sugar; two eggs; one cup of butter; one cup of sour milk; one large teaspoonful of soda; one tablespoonful of each, cloves, nutmeg, cinnamon and lemon extract; one pound of currants; two pounds of raisins; one-half piece of citron; one-half piece of candied lemon; three cups of flour. Bake in a moderate oven about two hours. This cake improves with age.

Cocoanut Cake.—Take one-half cup of butter, one and one-half cups of sugar; two cups of flour, one-half of milk, all of three eggs, and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. For filling grate one fresh cocoanut with one pint of whipped cream, add a little powdered sugar and spread one the cake.

Cake for Small Family.—Bake just one layer, cutting the same in two, and proceed as usual by putting one-half over the other, thereby making a double layer (half) cake.

Cake for Two.—In small families where a large cake is made one is apt to become tired of the same until used. Make a batter as for a good sized three layer cake; divide in three parts. One can be left plain, put either chocolate or spices in another, and to the third add raisins or currants or both and make six cup cakes. Then take the two layers and cut in half; put white filling in the dark one and perhaps banana filling in the other. So you have three kinds of cake and not enough of either to last too long—all made in one baking. One can vary the fillings to suit her taste.

CLEANING.

Clean Your Own Furs.—For white fur, such as ermine, fox, chinchilla, etc., use flour well soaked in benzine, or gasoline. Rub well into the fur, using plenty of flour; shake and beat well. Will look like new. For sealskin, otter, mink, etc., use mahogany sawdust, put in pan till hot, rub on soiled parts till clean; beat well.

Wash with Coffee.—After using stove polish wash hands in coffee, and it will remove the black like magic. Coffee grounds are excellent for cleaning bottles.

Recolor an Old Waist.—If your white lace waist is soiled you may convert it into a waist of ecrue color by putting into water in which has been dissolved a small quantity of yellow ochre.

Soap for Furniture.—Make the same as common soft soap, but use boiled linseed oil instead of grease. This makes a superior soap for fine furniture and wood work.

Renew Veils.—Faded veils, silk gloves, scarfs, etc., can be given a new appearance by dropping in gasoline into which has been mixed a small portion of oil paint of the desired color.

Retint Wall Scratches.—Don't have your rooms repapered or tinted because defaced. Take a little glue if paper is loose and rub on some colored chalk or pastelle of same tint. If scratched or blemished you cannot detect it.

To remove a grease spot, place a blotter under the spot, apply a paste made of French chalk and gasoline; leave on until dry, brush, and the spot is no more. The blotter prevents a ring forming.

QUEEN AMELIA,

Of Portugal, who is reported to have been the prime mover in the recent rapprochment between her son, King Manoel, and Dom Miguel, the Portuguese pretender.

AUTOMATIC COALING.

A coaling-steamer has been constructed in England that is provided with mechanical conveyers by which 200 tons of coal can be transferred to the bunkers of a steamship in an hour. Coaling a large modern vessel by ordinary methods is a tedious and disagreeable process, accompanied by clouds of coal-dust that penetrate every part of the steamer and cause discomfort to passengers and crew, besides wasting the fuel. The new automatic coaling-steamer performs the work expeditiously and without dust. Two elevators travel up and down a track on a raised platform in the middle of the vessel. Endless chains of buckets raise the coal from the side pockets to the tops of the elevators, where it is dumped into covered chutes, that discharge into the bunkers of the steamer along side. Exhaust steam conveyed from the engines to the covered chutes dampens the coal just enough to prevent dust.

Some men are so stingy they won't even tell a joke at their own expense.

Few people have will power enough to stop talking when they have said enough.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, APRIL 21.

Lesson III.—The appointment of the twelve, Mark 3. 7-19; Matt. 5. 13-16. Golden Text, John 15. 16.

MARK 3. 7-19.

Verse 7. His disciples—the larger company of those who had given some public evidence of their faith in him. It is from this larger company that the smaller group of twelve apostles, frequently themselves called simply disciples, were chosen.

Withdrew—Left the crowded city of Capernaum, where the events of the preceding lesson occurred, for the seashore.

8. Idumaea — In the extreme south.

Beyond the Jordan—Both from the rural districts and from the cities included in the group of ten cities known as Decapolis.

Tyre and Sidon—Northwest of Galilee on the Mediterranean. Mark makes it plain that people from every section of Palestine were among the great multitude which gathered about Jesus on the shore of the lake. The fame of his teachings and miracles had reached distant lands and cities.

What great things he did—Or, all the things that he did.

9. Lest they should throng him—Crowd too closely about him.

10. Plagues—Virulent diseases, literally, scourges.

11. Whensoever they beheld him—The figure of speech employed puts the unclean spirits for the men possessed by them; this, doubtless, because it is the evil spirit in each case that is conceived of as directing the action of the person possessed.

13. Into the mountain—A well-known mountain, or rather hill, in the neighborhood.

Whom he himself would — The pronoun is emphatic. It was a smaller, specially invited group that accompanied Jesus on this occasion.

14. And he appointed twelve — Twelve from among those who, by invitation, had accompanied him to the mountainside. Some ancient authorities add whom also he named apostles.

That they might be with him — With him more continually and thus in training for the larger work of evangelism, which was to be theirs more especially after Jesus himself would be no longer with them.

That he might send them forth to preach—This he did on several occasions mentioned in the Gospel narrative. On the whole, however, it is the companionship of the apostles with Jesus and his own words and works which are recorded in the records which have come down to us.

15. To have authority to cast out demons—They were to exercise the same power over disease as Jesus himself employed in ministering to the needs of the unfortunate and outcast among the people.

16. And Simon—The names that follow are in apposition with the noun twelve in verse fourteen above. The enumeration, however, is interrupted in order to give the descriptive names assigned to some of the chosen group.

Surnamed Peter—The meaning of the surname is explained by Matthew (Matt. 16. 18).

17. Sons of thunder—The significant name describes the fiery, vehement temperament, not, as some commentators were wont to suggest, a thunderous eloquence. The Gospel narrative does not furnish us with sufficient data to follow out very extensively the suggestion contained in the name.

18. Bartholomew—To be identified with Nathanael (John 1. 46-50).

Thaddaeus—Called also Lebbaeus (Matt. 10. 3, Authorized Version) and to be identified also with Judas, the son of James (Luke 6. 16).

Simon the Cananaean—Or, the zealot (compare Luke 6. 15).

Judas Iscariot—"Judas of Kerioth," a village in the south of Judaea.

MATT. 5. 13-16.

In the remaining verses, taken from the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus points out in strong and beautiful language the illuminating and preserving influence which his disciples and apostles are to exercise in human society.

13. Ye are the salt of the earth—As such Christ's disciples are to mingle in human society, permeating its every part, and preserving it from corruption through their wholesome influence.

14. The light of the world — Through Christianity comes the enlightenment of mankind as well as the purification and preservation of human society.

15. The bushel—The common measure found in every Jewish household. The use of the article again indicates that the reference is to a familiar subject.

REMARKABLE RESULTS.

Electricity Makes the Chickens Grow Big.

Electricity applied to agriculture is no new thing, but an ingenious Englishman recently conceived the idea of applying it to the cultivation of chickens, and the results, he asserts, are remarkable.

It is a scientist of reputation who made this experiment—T. Thorne Baker. The London Daily Mirror's scientific expert. He has been experimening with twenty-four young chcikens, all of which were exactly the same weight when they came under his care.

Twelve of the birds he placed in a Hearson "foster-mother," and these were allowed to grow in the ordinary way. The other twelve birds were placed in a "foster-mother," in which the perches are wires, and through these wires 5,000 volts of electricity are passed every day. So powerful is the current which passes to the electric "foster-mother" that sparks fly out to one's finger when it is put near the perches.

Mr. Baker decided upon a test to prove which of the chickens had thriven the most. In appearance the twelve electric chickens were obviously larger and more healthy looking than the other twelve. Four birds from each "foster-mother" were taken out haphazard and carefully weighed. The reason given for the exceptionally light electric chicken (No. 2 in the following table) is that the bigger birds took away its food. Here are the figures:

Electric chickens—	Weight, ounces.
No. 1	12.595
No. 2	11.395
No. 3	12.665
No. 4	14.765

Average weight, 12.855 ounces.

Ordinary chickens—	Weight, ounces.
No. 1	8.770
No. 2	14.275
No. 3	11.045
No. 4	10.415

Average weight, 11.129 ounces.

In other words, the "electric" chickens have grown over 15 per cent. heavier than the ordinary birds. The heavy weight of the second non-electric chicken—14 oz. 8 gms.—is accounted for by the fact that Mr. Baker specially selected it from the brood as being noticeably plumper than the rest. In weighing the birds a curious thing was noticed in the demeanor of the electric and non-electric chickens. Those which had been under high-frequency treatment remained perfectly calm and sedate when Mr. Baker placed them on the scales. Not so the ordinary fowls. They squawked and kicked violently when taken out of their "foster-mother," and when on the scales they blinked their eyes and opened their beaks in fright. The electric chickens, on the other hand, were quite placid and confident, ready to peck anybody that interfered with them.

KING EDWARD AND A PENNY.

First One He Ever Handled—Royal Portraits on Coins.

Without taking into account his fellow monarchs there are many wealthier men in the world than the King of England, but it is doubtful if any one of them is unfamiliar with even the smallest coin in his national currency. Yet the late King Edward confessed on one occasion that he had never actually held a penny in his hand.

It came about in this way. Some one asked the King his opinion as to the likeness of himself on the copper coin of the realm. The King then replied that he had seen his features on gold and silver, but had never actually handled a penny. One was then produced for his inspection and he remarked that he thought the likeness was flattering.

As a matter of fact, a good likeness of neither King Edward nor of King George is found on a penny. It was otherwise with the bronze coinage of Queen Victoria. The sculptor who executed the statue of Queen Victoria which the people of Nice have erected in memory of her found a late Victorian penny very useful as a model when he was reproducing her features, and those who have seen the statue, including members of her family, pronounce it to be an excellent likeness.

THE MAKING OF A NATION.

A nation is made powerful, and to be honored in the world not so much by the number of its people as by the ability and character of that people depend in a great measure upon the economy of the several families which, taken together, make up the nation. There never yet was, and never will be, a nation permanently great consisting for the great part of wretched, miserable families.—W. Corbett.

THE BRITISH NAVY.

Jack Tars Said to Have Cause for Discontent.

First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill is never long out of hot water. This time he has roused the indignation of the Radical extremists of his own party because the reduction on the naval estimates for the current year did not go far enough in the direction of retrenchment to please them.

Whereas the "Little Englanders," as they are called, hoped that a saving of at least five million dollars would be effected, Churchill only found it possible to reduce the naval estimates by just over one and a half million dollars. But if he has not pleased some of his own Parliamentary supporters, Winston Churchill has been subjected to little but friendly criticism by the Opposition, who are bent on accelerating the building programme rather than retarding it.

While there has been the usual amount of talk about new ships and armaments, not much attention has been paid to the factor without which England's navy is useless—the man behind the gun. From time to time it has been whispered that there is considerable unrest in the lower deck ratings, where, says Lionel Yexley, one of the service critics, many grievances exist, which, unless rectified, will one day shock John Bull out of his complacency.

As the Jackies are forbidden by their terms of service to form a trade union, the general public knows little about their wrongs, and half-an-hour's talk with some of the men at a naval station is required to show that it is high time some reforms were introduced on the lower deck.

All the trouble has arisen through the conversion of the warship from a stately sailing vessel into a floating gunnery platform. Much of the work and discipline necessary to the early form of fighting ship has been retained on the latest types, where cleanliness is still the fetish. Most of the unrest is undoubtedly due to the way punishment is meted out for minor offences entirely void of criminality. All the disciplinary regulations, Lionel Yexley points out, were framed "when the seaman's main duty was to pull on ropes, and to punish him if he did not get from one to another quick enough, but you cannot drive men to shoot straight with modern ordnance.

"The state employs the sailor during the day at work which calls for the full use of cultivated intelligence, and then it will take him and stand him in a dark corner for two hours each night because he did not have his cap on straight or dared to wear a waist belt to keep his trousers up."

Another of the seamen's grievances relates to the decreased chance of promotion owing to the increase in the number of stokers in the personnel. The leading seaman complains that he has less chance than ever of becoming a petty officer. Increased pay is also another demand of the lower deck. An experienced able seaman, if married, is expected to support a home on just under three dollars a week, less the cost of his uniform.

It is not suggested to anyone that the English Jackies are on the brink of mutiny, but it is known in the best informed circles that a large proportion of them are discontented, and as the first line of defence is not the ships but the men, pressure is being brought to bear on the Admiralty to hold an impartial inquiry into the facts of the case.

RAINFALL AND CONSUMPTION

A study of the influence of rain-bearing winds upon the prevalence of tuberculosis has been made by Dr. William Gordon, physician to the Royal Devon and Exeter Hospital, England. After classifying several Devonshire parishes according to their exposure to rainy winds, Doctor Gordon searched out in precisely which parishes the deaths from consumption during a series of years had mainly occurred. He found that the death-rate in the parishes exposed to rain-bearing winds was generally twice as high as that of the parishes sheltered from them. Further investigations were conducted in many other localities, among them the city of Exeter. The result was the same. Doctor Gordon declares that the important point to consider in the choice of a residence for consumptives is the matter of shelter from the rain-bearing winds of the locality, exposure to which is a more serious matter than altitude, character of soil, or even the amount of rainfall.

STARVE AND THRIVE.

A prominent British labor leader has called attention to an interesting fact in connection with a big coal strike that occurred in Scotland thirty years ago. The strike lasted six weeks, he said, and every week showed a reduction in the death-rate in those districts where the strike was. That did not merely apply to the men who worked underground, and whose risk of accident was lessened through the stoppage of work, but it applied equally to mothers and to the children. Inquiries led to the astonishing result that when wages were very low the death-rate was low.

PERILS OF POWER PLANTS

DANGERS OF ELECTRIC GENERATING STATIONS.

Carelessness of Operatives In Touching Live Wires Means Instant Death.

A big disaster involving great loss of life rarely or never takes place in an electric generating station yet the annual death-roll among operatives engaged in the production of electricity on a large scale is very heavy—heavier, on an average, perhaps, than it is in any other industry.

The workers in a big electric generating station are always menaced by dangers that threaten the unwary with instant destruction. In the whirring dynamos, the big, high-pressure cables that convey the current to the switches, in the switches themselves lurk the most terrible dangers for operatives who may touch them heedlessly.

A London, England, operative in a big electric power house some little time ago was carrying an iron ladder across the floor of the engine-room when the top of the ladder came into contact with a cable over his head. The cable was at the moment carrying a current of over 10,000 volts; it passed down the ladder, and through the man's body to the earth, killing him instantly.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND VOLTS!

Another operative was engaged in oiling a dynamo from which a tremendously heavy current was passing. The oilcan came into contact with the copper plate or magnet in the dynamo, through which the current passed to the cables. At the same instant the man put his disengaged hand on the steel handrail that ran round the dynamo, thus forming a complete circuit between the highly-charged copper plate in the dynamo and the earth, with the result that a current of some 15,000 volts passed through his body, and in a fraction of a second he was electrocuted.

All about big electric power stations are danger signals and notices for the guidance of the workers, and every precaution is taken to reduce the terrible danger of handling "live" electrical machinery to a minimum, but from time to time death overtakes even the most careful operatives.

For example, two men were killed in one of the largest and most carefully-managed electric power stations in London under very remarkable circumstances.

An operative was engaged in repairing a heavy cable, which was, of course, "dead"—that is, no current was passing over it; the cable was, in fact, disconnected from the switch, but it passed over an iron standard, which also supported two heavy "live" cables.

THAT VIVID FLASH.

One of these cables began to "leak," with the result that the electric current ran down the iron standard to the dead cable, which then became alive, with the result that the operative at work on it received a shock that killed him instantly.

He was working on the floor of the power-house, and one of his mates, seeing him drop, ran to his assistance. Directly the latter touched the dead man, he was instantly killed himself by the force of the current.

Occasionally operatives in big electrical works are blinded by the sudden flashing of highly-charged cables. If a heavily "loaded" cable comes into contact with another piece of wire or anything else that acts as a conductor, a flash takes place as the current jumps from the loaded cable to the conductor. Sometimes the flash is of such dazzling brilliance that it instantly blinds any operatives who may be close to the spot where it takes place.

A few years ago three operatives were blinded by the flashing of a cable in the Wentner electrical station in Berlin, Germany. Four operatives, after repairing a heavy cable, were fixing it to a switch, when the cable became somehow suddenly charged, and it instantly flashed under the men's very eyes. All four men were hurled to the ground, and three were permanently blinded.—London Answers.

OZONIZED WATER.

The water-supply of St. Petersburg is now treated with ozone by a process said to remove nearly all the harmful bacteria. The plant has a capacity of 11,000,000 gallons a day. From the Neva the water is pumped into a series of eight settling tanks, in which a small amount of aluminum sulphate is added. By way of 38 rapid filters that contain ground flint, the water then passes into emulsifiers, or pumps that work on the injector principle, in which the ozone is added. From the emulsifiers the mixture goes into a series of five sterilizing towers, and thence to the storage towers. The purification takes place partly in the emulsifiers and partly in the sterilizing towers. The ozonizing battery consists of 128 Siemens and Halske ozonizers, and requires an electric current of 7,000 volts. The process costs about 15 cents for each 1,000 gallons.

THE IRISH HOME RULE BILL

Control of Customs and Excise not Conceded the New Irish Parliament

A despatch from London says: The cardinal principle of the present Home Rule Bill, Premier Asquith stated on Thursday, is the supreme authority of the Imperial Parliament, while at the same time real autonomy is conferred on Ireland in regard to Irish concerns.

The bill provides for the establishment of an Irish Parliament, consisting of a Senate and a House of Commons with power to make laws for peace, order and good government in Ireland.

The bill provides that the matters to be excluded from the control of the Irish Parliament are the Crown, the army and the navy, Imperial affairs, the Irish land purchase, and the old age pension and national insurance acts, the Irish constabulary, the post-office savings banks and public loans, in addition to those excluded by the Home Rule bill of 1893, which left the customs and excise under the control of the Imperial Government.

The Irish Constabulary is to be automatically transferred to the Irish Government after six years, and power is given by the bill to the Irish Parliament to demand the transfer of the old age pensions and Insurance Act to its control on giving a year's notice to the Imperial Government.

The Irish Parliament is debarred from altering the Home Rule bill or the power to appeal to the Privy Council.

Provision is made for the protection of religious equality in Ireland, and stipulating that the Irish Parliament cannot make laws, directly or indirectly, to establish or to endow any religion, or to prohibit the free exercise thereof, or to give a preference or privilege to any religion or to make any religious ceremony a condition of validity of any marriage.

The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland is to have the power to veto or suspend any bill on the instruction of the Imperial Executive.

Any question regarding the interpretation of the Home Rule bill is to be settled by appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

The Irish Senate is to consist of forty members, and the House of Representatives of 164, of which Ulster is to have 59 and the Universities two.

The Senate is to be composed of nominated members. In the first instance, the Imperial Executive is to control the nominations with a view to assuring the representation of the minority. The nominations are to be for a fixed term, and as the members retire by rotation the vacancies will be filled by the Irish Executive. In case of disagreement the two Houses are to sit in joint session.

The Lord Lieutenant is to be head of the Executive. There will be no religious bar, and he will hold office for a fixed term.

The authority of the Executive is to be co-extensive with that of the Irish Parliament. The 164 representatives are to be elected by the existing constituencies, but no constituency is to have less than 27,000 population.

The collection of all taxes is to remain in the Imperial service, and they will be paid into the Imperial Exchequer, which is to pay over to the Irish Executive an amount equivalent to the expenditure on Irish services at the time of the passing of the Act. An additional sum of $2,500,000 is to be paid to Ireland the first year, and this will diminish by $250,000 yearly until it is reduced to $1,000,000.

The postal services are to be handed over to Ireland.

The Irish Parliament is to have power to reduce or discontinue the Imperial taxes, excepting the income tax and the stamp and estate duties. It will also have power to alter the excise duties, but except in the case of beer and spirits it is debarred from adding to the customs duties anything which will give a greater increase than 10 per cent.

The Irish representation at Westminster is to be 42 members, one for every 100,000 of the population.

TEA AND COFFEE HURTS One in Three.

It is difficult to make people believe that tea and coffee are a poison to at least one person out of every three, but people are slowly finding it out, although thousands of them suffer terribly before they discover the fact.

A New York hotel man says: "Each time after drinking coffee I became restless, nervous and excited, so that I was unable to sit five minutes in one place, was also inclined to vomit and suffered from loss of sleep, which got worse and worse.

"A lady said that perhaps coffee was the cause of my trouble, and suggested that I try Postum. (Tea is just as harmful as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee). I laughed at the thought that coffee hurt me, but she insisted so hard that I finally had some Postum made. I have been using it in place of coffee ever since, for I noticed that all my former nervousness and irritation disappeared. I began to sleep perfectly, and the Postum tasted as good or better than the old coffee, so what was the use of sticking to a beverage that was injuring me?

"One day on an excursion up the country I remarked to a young lady friend on her greatly improved appearance. She explained that some time before she had quit using coffee and taken Postum. She had gained a number of pounds and her former palpitation of the heart, humming in the ears, trembling of the hands and legs and other disagreeable feelings had disappeared. She recommended me to quit coffee and take Postum and was very much surprised to find that I had already made the change.

"She said her brother had also received great benefits from leaving off coffee and taking on Postum." "There's a reason."

MUST LABEL OILS.

Provisions Fixing Standards of Edible Vegetable Oils.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Under the provisions of the Adulteration Act an order-in-council has been passed fixing the standards for "edible vegetable oils." These include olive oil and cotton seed oil, the standards of quality of which are set forth in the order. It is provided that either of these may be sold as salad oil, but when cottonseed oil is offered as salad oil the fact that it is cotton seed oil must be declared on the label. The same requirement is exacted in regard to mixtures of cottonseed oil and olive oil; it must be stated on the label that the contents of the package are a mixture.

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

SEASONED TRUST AND WELL MANAGED LOAN COMPANY SHARES GOOD.

But Avoid the New Ones and Those Not Well Managed—Hydro-Electric Has Put Public Utility Shares Sadly Out of Favor—Navigation Shares Depend Largely on Good Fortune, a Thing Investors do Not Count on—What to do When Seeking Advice.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible, of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

(By "Investor")

After bank stocks the Canadian investor has a long list to choose from. So far, in the country's history, the well managed trust companies' and loan companies' shares have been entirely satisfactory—far more so than bank shares—and very profitable; though sometimes of rather narrow market. But the danger of making the mistake and buying shares in some of the ill-managed or new companies is great enough to make it scarcely wise to give these a prominent place.

Public utility companies' shares were at one time prime favorites with the Canadian investor; but the competition of the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario has put these stocks out of favor. And, indeed, an investor was unfortunate who held shares in the smaller companies, such as the London Electric, in which competition by the government has wiped out about 90 per cent. of the shares' value. Before the Hydro-Electric entered London the stock of the London Electric Company sold as high as 134, in 1899, and 97 in 1904. Since then it has sold around 15, and it is doubtful if one could get much more for it. I know one widow unfortunate enough to have 25 shares, which cost her about $3,000.00, now worth but little more than $350. No doubt the march of progress justifies this; but we can feel sorry for the victims—and not invest in public service shares ourselves.

Railway shares—and of these we really have but C. P. R. and its subsidiary, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie—owing to their being dealt in chiefly outside Canada are too speculative—not from point of view of security, but because of their fluctuating market. C. P. R., for example, has moved down and up over 20 points each way since the fall, and "Soo" about the same, so that an investor—except one of the most hardened sort—would be quite uneasy. Of course, the yield is low—just 4 per cent. on C. P. R.—while the prospect of appreciation in the long run, say ten years, is high. These are features that should appeal only to the wealthy investor who alone can afford to sacrifice something in the way of safety and income for the sake of speculative possibilities.

Lake navigation companies are properly divided into two classes, the passenger and package freight boats, and the "bulk" freighters. During the past few years the bulk freighters, those that carry such cargoes as grain, coal and ore, which is dumped into the hold loose and transported in the cheapest possible way, have done a very unremunerative business. There has been plenty of freight, but competition has been so keen that in some instances they have scarcely made expenses. The passenger boats, on the contrary have been making new records for earnings each year. Shares in the companies controlling these vessels are not particularly attractive to the careful investor, as so much depends on good fortune. The loss of a boat, though covered by insurance, means heavy loss of earning power until it is replaced, and so, unless one is in very close touch with the business these shares are on the whole not a desirable investment. At times, however, investments in navigation stocks have been highly profitable, as witness the move in Niagara Navigation. This company, however, is a brilliant exception to the average.

There is one class of share investment to which in most of the instances above given these criticisms do not apply. We took up some time ago the question of preference shares, and the preference shares in practically all of the classes of companies mentioned—where such shares exist—form very desirable investments, when chosen with the same care with which one would choose a bond.

We will next deal with industrial stocks. While industrials are no more, if as much, worthy of consideration than those of the classes considered in this article, there have been so many cases where unwary investors have purchased them unwisely, and so many industrial companies have issued preferred shares of quite decided merit that they will be given an article to themselves.

It will be gathered from the foregoing that the writer does not consider common shares a proper investment for those who cannot afford to take chances. One might go further and say that no one who is not in daily touch with market and general conditions should ever make stock investments, except on the most expert disinterested advice. And when seeking advice give the expert the fullest information as to what your object is in seeking it. Too often a broker is asked if a certain stock is a "good buy," when for a speculator it is, and for a permanent investor it is decidedly not. If you can't trust your financial adviser with information about yourself certainly don't trust him with your money. Get one you can trust.

The mint at Ottawa will begin the coinage of five and ten dollar gold pieces next month, but Hon. W. T. White has decided not to coin any silver dollars for the present.

LETTER FROM THE CAPITAL

INTERESTING GOSSIP FROM THE CAPITAL OF ONTARIO.

The Movement Against Vice—Visit of the Duke of Connaught—Gambling on Horse Racing, Etc., Etc.

(We have arranged for a weekly letter about Toronto affairs, which, we believe, will be of great interest to many of our readers. These letters will be from the pen of one of Canada's foremost journalists, a man who has covered some of the world's greatest happenings and now occupies a leading position on one of the Toronto dailies.)

The convening here of what is termed a World's Purity Conference calls attention to a striking development of the last two or three years. There are now organized bodies for the suppression of the White Slave traffic, for the education of the young in questions of sex, for the suppression of the Social Evil, and various allied matters. Anyone who has handled copy in a newspaper office will recall that up to two or three years ago a reference to these matters in the news of the day was exceedingly rare. Now they are of daily occurrence. The change indicates that a new movement of great proportions against an old form of vice has been inaugurated.

One of the speakers at the recent convention complained that he had been deceived as to "Toronto the Good." He said that on the strength of a written statement emanating from the Morality Department he had cited Toronto all over America as an illustration of a city which did not tolerate the social evil. Now he found that statement was untrue.

Another American speaker took a round out of the press. The tone of the newspapers, he said, was at its lowest ebb. In this he was quickly corrected by a Toronto clergyman, who said that whatever might be the case in the United States, the criticism did not apply in Toronto.

One reason why the convention was not bigger and why it did not create a bigger stir is to be found in the fact that while the vast majority of Torontonians sympathize warmly with the ends aimed at, very few of them care to discuss the questions in public, and some even question the desirability of brass band methods in a campaign of this character.

THE DUKE IS COMING.

Society is making elaborate preparations for the second visit of the Duke of Connaught to Toronto, which is scheduled to take place during the Woodbine race meeting in the last week of May. His Royal Highness is an enthusiastic patron of horse racing, and his attendance at the function this year is expected to make the event the most brilliant in the history of the Jockey Club. The entertainments which will accompany his visit are likely to be of a less public nature than on his first sojourn in Toronto last autumn. They will take the form of luncheons, dinners and small parties, in private houses and clubs.

While society will rejoice at the presence of his Royal Highness there will, in other quarters, be criticism of his lending his support to horse racing, with the pronounced gambling element that is associated with it. And it is just possible that before the visit is concluded this criticism may find open expression in formal language from more than one quarter.

LOTS OF HORSE RACING.

Apart from His Excellency's responsibility in the matter, it is interesting to note what a hold horse racing now has established on this Province. With the chartering of two new racing associations this year, Ontario alone is likely to have no less than 112 days of racing, as follows:

Woodbine, Toronto	14 days
Dufferin Park, Toronto	14 days
Hamilton	14 days
Windsor	14 days
Fort Erie	14 days
Ottawa	14 days
Thorncliffe, Toronto	14 days
London	14 days

The last two named, being newly organized, may not be in shape to hold meets this year, but the other fixtures are certainties, each track holding two weeks of seven days each, one in the first half of the season, the other in the second. No two tracks, with the exception of Dufferin, a half miler, which is a sort of a poor relation to the others, will be open at the same time, so that the horses and the whole paraphernalia will, at the conclusion of one meet simply move on to the next. In sporting circles the circuit is known as the "Merry Go Round."

TORONTO KEEN ON BETTING.

There are probably few cities in North America where gambling on horse racing has a stronger hold than in Toronto. This gambling is by no means confined to the few weeks each season when there is racing in Toronto, though no doubt it is fostered by these meets. There are several thousand men in Toronto who "follow the races" every day, the whole year round. Not only do they keep in close touch with the events on Canadian tracks, but they follow the results all over the American continent. By strange contrast with Canada there are only two or three states in the Commonwealth which permit gambling on racing, Kentucky and Maryland being the chief of these. Even California, which used to furnish the winter circuit, has banished the pastime, so that now the enthusiast has to lay his winter bets on racing in far away Mexico.

It is not merely an academic interest he takes on these far away events. He bets his good money on them, and hundreds of wagers are laid in Toronto every day, even all through the winter months. Despite the vigilance of the law the facilities are at hand for the betting. There is even a direct telegraph wire connected with all the tracks for furnishing speedy results, which even beats that of the most enterprising newspapers. From Toronto these results are flashed to various points throughout the Province, so that two or three minutes after a horse race is run in say Juarez, Mexico, Ontario knows all about it.

NEW HOSPITAL TAKES SHAPE.

Toronto's much heralded new General Hospital, which is being erected at a cost of $3,500,000, is now taking shape. One of the buildings, the Pathological building, is completed, and is now in use by classes at the University. Several others are completed, as far as the exterior work is concerned, and all the others are on the way. The group of buildings which occupy the blocks on the south side of College street are already looking quite impressive. The site is 725 feet by 620 feet in size.

Now that over half of the three and a half million dollars has been spent some interesting discoveries have been made. Although the original estimate of cost was $1,500,000 it is now found that the amount now available will not be sufficient, and the problem causes worry. Another odd fact is that the institution will have very little increased accommodation for the public over the old hospital, and it is thought that the old building on Gerrard street east will have to be retained as an east end hospital. The new institution will have 449 beds for public patients and 98 private beds. Medical men are disposed to criticize on the ground that the new hospital will not be as modern as it ought to be. They say that the claim that it will be the finest in America is a pretty steep claim to make for it.

BEATTIE NESBITT ARRESTED

Former President of Wrecked Farmers Bank Captured at Chicago

A despatch from Chicago says: Dr. W. Beattie Nesbitt, wanted in Toronto on a charge of participating in a conspiracy to wreck the Farmers Bank of that city, was arrested in a South Side restaurant on Thursday night. The prisoner was located in a South Side hotel three days ago by detectives from Assistant Chief Schuttler's office, and was shadowed day and night. Thursday Detective Wallace arrived from Toronto, and the same night the suspect was arrested.

Detective Joseph Cahill and Matthew Barda took the prisoner to Schuttler's office, where he was confronted by Wallace, who declared the man was Nesbitt. The latter protested that the case was one of mistaken identity. He denied that he came from Toronto.

After a brief examination, the suspect was taken to detective headquarters, with orders that he should be kept from seeing any person except police officers. A few minutes later, however, he was placed in an automobile and rushed away from the City Hall to some outlying police station, where it is said he was locked up.

Nesbitt is said to have been living in Chicago for some time under the name of Coleman.

The latest invention to hang in the family dining room is the gum board It is a neat little circular board, plain, or decorated, fastened to the wall. The name of each of the family is painted on the circumstance, and marks the spot where the gum is left until wanted. This saves carrying the gum to bed and getting it in one's hair or swallowing it in the night. It is obvious that the gum board supplies a long felt want, and he who invented the new fad will have the best wishes of the young ladies.

Editing a newspaper is not a nice thing. If we publish jokes people say we are rattle brained. If we publish original matter they say we don't give them enough selections. If we give them selections they say we are lazy and if we don't go to church we are heathens If we do go we are hypocrites. If we remain at the office we ought to be out looking for news items. If we go out then we are not attending to business If we wear old clothes they laugh at us. If we wear good clothes they say we have a pull. Now, what are we to do. Just as likely as not some will say we stole this from as exchange. So we did.

RELATIVE DEAD.—Word was received last week by relatives here of the death at Low Fold, Westmoreland, Eng. of Agnes Hunter, widow of the late Christopher Bolton, in her 81st year. Deceased was a sister of the late John, Leonard and Richard Hunter, all formerly well-known men of this community. One sister survives, Mrs. Witwell Hall of Brooklyn, who is in her 90th year.

WEDDED—Although written for our issue of two weeks ago the following article became lost and consequently was not inserted.—"The home of Mrs. McMahon, Winnipeg, was the scene of a pleasing event on March 28th, when her sister, Miss Stella May Penhale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Penhale, of Exeter, became the bride of Mr. Frank Claydon. Her sister, Miss Viola Penhale of Exeter was bridesmaid, while Mr. Gibb of Winnipeg assisted the groom. The young couple will reside in Vancouver, and will have to well wishes of a host of friends here."

HICKS' FORECASTS.—A reactionary storm period is central on the 25 and 26. This being at the centre of the Venus period, threatening and stormy continued from the preceding period, will most likely lead up into the 25 and 26, and thence forward into the closing days of the month, causing a long spell of stormy and unsettled weather. There will be a marked increase in the severity of storms on and touching the 25 and 26, with possibly brief change to colder and high barometer following. A regular storm period begins on the 28 and extends to May 4, being central on May 1. Moon being on the equator on the 28, sudden change to much warmer, with low barometer and storms of rain with heavy hail, will be most natural on and about that date. Watch your barometer and the gathering clouds at this period. A seismic period involves the 28, 29 and 30.

DEATH OF MR. OKE.—Another of our oldest residents and one of the pioneer settlers of McGillivray Township, in the person of Mr. Hugh Oke, has paid nature's debt, passing away on Monday at the advanced age of 81 years 7 months and 4 days. Mr. Oke had been in feeble health for many months but there was no noticable difference in his condition until about six weeks ago, when he took a turn for the worse and has since been gradually on the decline, old age being the cause of death. Born in Devonshire, England, deceased came to Canada with his parents when very young, first settling in Hope County. A short time later the family moved to McGillivray, where deceased contributed much in clearing farms and assisting in transforming the then unbroken forest into the beautiful farms now owned and occupied by the younger generation. From the Township of McGillivray deceased moved to the Township of Hay, and from there some time later to the Township of Hullett. About 25 years ago he retired from the farm and took up his residence in Exeter, where he continued to reside up to the time of his death, proving himself to be a worthy citizen. He was twice married, his first wife being Sarah Turner, who predeceased him about 57 years, and to whom were born two children—Richard Oke of Deloraine, Man., and Mrs. Alex. Dow of town. Some seven years after the death of his first wife he married Mary Ann Wilson of Hampden, the union being blessed with nine children—six of whom besides the sorrowing widow survive—two sons and four daughters—William of Tuckersmith and Andrew of Seaforth Mrs. Joseph Hawkins of Exeter, Mrs. James Martin of Tuckersmith, Mrs. William Higgins of Usborne, and Miss Lyda at home. The deceased was a man of many good qualities, numbering his friends as many, and endearing himself to all who formed his acquaintance. The funeral took place to the Exeter Cemetery yesterday (Wednesday.) The bereaved family have the sympathy of their many friends.

ADJOURNED VESTRY MEETING.—The adjourned Vestry meeting of the Trivett Memorial Church was held in the School Hall on Monday evening, the Rector, Rev. D. W. Collins, presiding. The report of the auditors was presented by Mr. N. D. Hurdon, embracing the financial standing of the church, the Sunday school and the Ladies' Guild, all of which went to show the finances of the church to be in a healthy condition and most gratifying to the vestry, being the best in the history of the church. The receipts of the church, exclusive of everything but the ordinary contributions, showed receipts amounting to $1691.96, and this will be considerably augmented by outstanding subscriptions, before the report of the auditors is printed. The expenditure amounted to $1437.13, thus leaving a balance of $254.81. The report of the Sunday School revealed receipts amounting to $209.59 and the expenditure $173.04, leaving a balance in the treasury of $36.55. The report of the Ladies' Guild showed receipts of $264.21 and expenditure $188.11, with a balance in the treasurer's hands of $176.10. It may be stated that this amount will be placed in the hands of the wardens to be expended for repairs on the church and to improve the lighting system of the church. Hearty votes of thanks were tendered the Rector, Wardens, Choir Sunday school workers, Ladies' Guild and Bell ringers. At the conclusion of the business of the vestry the meeting was resolved into a congregational meeting when Messrs. N. D. Hurdon and Thos. Hawkins were elected Lay delegates to the Synod, with Messrs. Thos. Case and C. H. Sanders as substitutes in case the former cannot attend. The business of the evening being over the ladies served a dainty luncheon and a most pleasant time was spent socially.

OR, A CURIOUS MYSTERY EXPLAINED.

CHAPTER I.

"You say your things are all ready, Cecil! Then I'll just go below and do up my Gladstone, and put it in your cabin. We shall be at Bergen before long, they say."

The speaker was a young Englishman of three or four-and-twenty, and the sister addressed by him was still in the first flush of girlhood, having but a few days before celebrated her nineteenth birthday.

"Let me see to your bag, Roy," she exclaimed. "It is a shame that you should miss this lovely bit of the fjord, and I shall do it in half the time."

"The conceit of women!" he exclaimed, with a smile in which brotherly love and the spirit of teasing were about equally blended. "No, no, Cis, I'm not going to let you spoil me. I shall be up again in ten minutes. Have you not made any friends here? Is there no one on deck you can talk to?"

"I don't want to talk," said Cecil. "Truth to tell, I am longing to get away from all these English people. Very unsociable of me, isn't it?"

Roy Boniface turned away with a smile, understanding her feeling well enough, and Cecil, with her back to the chattering tourist throng, let her eyes roam over the shining waters of the fjord to the craggy mountains on the farther shore, whose ever-varying forms had been delighting her since the early morning.

She herself made a fair picture, though her beauty was not of the order which quickly draws attention. There was nothing very striking in her regular features, fair complexion and light-brown hair; to a casual observer she would have seemed merely an average English girl, gentle, well-mannered, and nice-looking. It was only to those who took pains to study her that her true nature was revealed; only at times that her quiet gray eyes would flash into sudden beauty with the pleasure of meeting with some rare and unexpected sympathy; only in some special need that the force of her naturally retiring nature made itself felt as a great influence.

Cecil had passed a year of emancipated girlhood, she had for a whole year been her own mistress, had had time and money at her disposal and no special duties to take the place of her school-work. It was the time she had been looking forward to all her life, the blissful time of grown-up freedom, and now that it had come it had proved a dissappointing illusion. Whether the fault was in herself or in her circumstances she did not know; but like so many girls of her age she was looking out on life with puzzled eyes, hardly knowing what it was that had gone amiss, yet conscious of a great want, of a great unrest, of a vague dissatisfaction which would not be reasoned down.

"Cecil is looking poorly," had been the home verdict; and the mother, not fully understanding the cause, but with a true instinct as to the remedy, had suggested that the brother and sister should spend a month abroad, grieving to lose Cecil from the usual family visit to the sea-side, but perceiving with a mother's wisdom and unselfishness that it was time, as she expressed it, for her young one to try its wings.

So the big steamer plied its way up the fjord, bearing Cecil Boniface and her small troubles and perplexities to healthy old Norway, to gain there fresh physical strength and fresh insights into that puzzling thing called life; to make friendships spite of her avowed unsociableness, to learn something more of the beauty of beauty, the joy of joy, and the pain of pain.

She was no student of human nature; at present with girlish impatience she turned away from the tourists, frankly avowing her conviction that they were a bore. She was willing to let her fancy roam to the fortunes of some imaginary Rolf and Erica living, perhaps, in some one or other of the solitary red-roofed cottages to be seen now and then on the mountain side; but the average English life displayed on the deck did not in the least awaken her sympathies, she merely classified the passengers into rough groups and dismissed them from her mind. There was the photographic group, fraternizing over the cameras set up all in a little encampment at the forecastle end. There was the clerical group, which had for its center no fewer than five gaitered bishops. There was the sporting group, distinguished by light-brown checked suits and comfortable traveling-caps. There was the usual sprinkling of pale, weary, overworked men and women come for a much-needed rest. And there was the flirting group—a notably small one, however, for Norwegian traveling is rough work and is ill-suited to this genus.

"Look here, Blanche," exclaimed a gray-bearded Englishman approaching a pretty little brunette who had a most sweet and winsome expression, and who was standing so near to the camp-stool on which Cecil had ensconced herself that the conversation was quite audible to her. "Just see if you can make out this writing; your eyes are better than mine. It is from Herr Falck, the Norwegian agent for our firm. I dare say your father told you about him."

"Yes, papa said he was one of the leading merchants out here and would advise us what to see, and where to go."

"Quite so. This letter reached me just as I was leaving home, and is to say that Herr Falck has taken rooms for us at some hotel. I can read it all well enough except the names, but the fellow makes such outrageous flourishes. What do you make of this sentence, beginning with 'My son Frithiof?'"

"Uncle, uncle, what shocking pronunciation! You must not put in an English 'th.' Did you ever hear of the Frithiof Saga? You must say it quickly like this—Freet-Yoff."

"A most romantic name," said Mr. Morgan. "Now I see why you have been so industrious over your Norwegian lessons. You mean to carry on a desperate flirtation with Herr Frithiof, oh! that is quite clear; I shall be on the lookout."

Blanche laughed, not at all resenting the remark, though she bent her pretty face over the letter, and pretended to have great difficulty in reading Herr Falck's very excellent English.

"Do you want to hear this sentence?" she said, "because if you do I'll read it."

"'My son Frithiof will do himself the honor to await your arrival at Bergen on the landing-quay, and will drive you to Holdt's Hotel, where we have procured the rooms you desired. My daughter Sigrrid (See-gree) is eager to make the acquaintance of your daughter and your niece, and if you will all dine with us at two o'clock on Friday at my villa in Kalvedalen we shall esteem it a great pleasure.'"

"Two o'clock dinner!" exclaimed Florence Morgan, for the first time joining in the general conversation. "What an unheard-of hour!"

"Oh, everything is primitive simplicity out here," said Mr. Morgan. "You needn't expect London fashions."

"I suppose Frithiof Falck will be a sort of young Viking, large-boned and dignified, with a kind of good-natured fierceness about him," said Blanche, folding the letter.

"No, no," said Florence, "he'll be a shy, stupid country bumpkin, afraid of airing his bad English, and you will step valiantly into the breach with your fluent Norwegian, and your kindness will win his heart. Then presently he will come up in his artless and primitive way with a Vaer saa god (if you please), and will take your hand. You will reply Mange tak (many thanks), and we shall all joyfully dance at your wedding."

There was general laughter, and some trifling bets were made upon the vexed question of Frithiof Falck's appearance.

"Well," said Mr. Morgan, "it's all very well to laugh now, but I hope you'll be civil to the Falcks when we really meet. And as to you, Cyril," he continued, turning to his nephew, a limp-looking young man of one-and-twenty, "get all the information you can out of young Falck, but on no account allow him to know that your father is seriously thinking of setting you at the head of the proposed branch at Stavanger. When that does come about, of course Herr Falck will lose our custom, and no doubt it will be a blow to him; so mind you don't breathe a word about it, nor you either, girls. We don't want to spoil our holiday with business matters, and besides, one should always consider other people's feelings."

Cecil set her teeth and the color rose to her cheeks; she moved away to the other side of the deck that she might not hear any more.

"What hateful people! they don't care a bit for the kindness and hospitality of these Norwegians. They only mean just to use them as a convenience." Then as her brother rejoined her she exclaimed, "Roy, who are those vulgar people over on the other side?"

"With two pretty girls in blue ulsters? I think the name is Morgan, rich city people. The old man's not bad, but the young one's a born snob. What do you think I heard him say as he was writing his name in the book and caught sight of ours. 'Why, Robert Boniface, that must be the music shop in Regent Street. Norway will soon be spoiled if all the cads take to coming over.' And there was I, within two yards of him."

"Oh, Roy! he couldn't have known or he would never have said it."

"Oh, yes, he knew it well enough. It was meant for a snub, richly deserved by the presuming tradesman who dared to come to Norway for his holiday instead of eating shrimps at Margate, as such cattle should, you know!" and Roy laughed good-humoredly. Snubs had a way of gliding off him like water off a duck's back.

"I should have hated it," said Cecil. "What did you do?"

"Nothing; studied Baedeker with an imperturbable face, and reflected sapiently with William of Wykeham that neither birth nor calling, but 'manners makyth man.' But look! this must be Bergen. What a glorious view! If only you had time to sketch it just from here!"

Cecil, after one quick exclamation of delight, was quite silent, for indeed few people can see unmoved that exquisite view which is unfolded before them as they round the fjord and catch the first glimpses of the most beautiful town in Norway. Had she been alone she would have allowed the tears of happiness to come into her eyes, but being on a crowded steamer she fought down her emotion and watched in a sort of dream of delight the picturesque wooden houses, the red-tiled roofs, the quaint towers and spires, the clear, still fjord with its forest of masts and rigging, and the mountains rising steep and sheer, encircling Bergen like so many hoary old giants who had vowed to protect the town.

Meanwhile, the deck resounded with those comments which are so very irritating to most lovers of scenery; one long-haired aesthete gave vent to a fresh adjective of admiration about once a minute, till Roy and Cecil were forced to flee from him and to take refuge among the sporting fraternity, who occasionally admitted frankly that it was "a fine view," but who obtruded their personality far less upon their companions.

"Oh, Roy, how we shall enjoy it all!" said Cecil, as they drew near to the crowded landing-quay.

"I think we shall fit in, Cis," he said, smiling. "Thank Heaven, you don't take your pleasure after the manner of that fellow. If I were his traveling companion, I should throttle him in a week."

"Or suggest a muzzle," said Cecil, laughing; "that would save both his neck and your feelings."

"Let me have your key," he said, as they approached the wooden pier; "the custom-house people will be coming on board, and I will try to get our things looked over quickly. Wait here and then I shall not miss you."

He hastened away and Cecil scanned with curious eyes the faces of the little crowd gathered on the landing-quay, till her attention was arrested by a young Norwegian in a light-gray suit who stood laughing and talking to an acquaintance on the wooden wharf. He was tall and broad-shouldered, with something unusually erect and energetic in his bearing; his features were of the pure Greek type not unfrequently to be met with in Norway; while his northern birth was attested by a fair skin and light hair and mustache, as well as by a pair of honest, well-opened blue eyes which looked out on the world with a boyish content and happiness.

"I believe that is Frithiof Flack," thought Cecil. And the next moment her idea was confirmed, for as the connecting gangway was raised from the quay, one of the steamer officials greeted him by name, and the young Norwegian, replying in very good English, stepped on board and began looking about as if in search of some one. Involuntarily Cecil's eyes followed him; she had a strange feeling that in some way she knew him, knew him far better than the people he had come to meet. He, too, seemed affected in the same way, for he came straight up to her, and raising his hat and bowing, said with frank courtesy:

"Pardon me, but am I speaking to Miss Morgan?"

"I think the Miss Morgans are at the other side of the gangway; I saw them a minute ago," she said, coloring a little.

"A thousand pardons for my mistake," said Frithiof Falck. "I came to meet this English family, you understand, but I have never seen them."

FRESH vs. ROTTED MANURE.

Most people have an idea that rotted manure is a much more valuable fertilizer than manure fresh from the barns or yards. This idea prevails because of the heavy, compact nature of the rotted manure. The value of manure is determined by the amount of various elements of fertility contained therein. These elements are mainly nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. They are usually figured at fifteen cents, six cents and five cents per pound respectively. On this basis a ton of fresh barnyard manure is worth $1.98. A ton of rotted manure is worth $2.04, or only six cents more. When the fact is considered that it takes nearly two tons of fresh barnyard manure to make one ton of rotted manure, owing to the loss from evaporation and leaching, it can be seen that much of the fertilizing matter originally contained is lost in the rotting process.

A report gives some interesting observations on the experimental use of fresh and rotted manure. Both were used on the corn and wheat crops, in comparison with unmanured land. The yield of corn on unmanured land was 38.1 bushels per acre. On land dressed with rotted manure, a yield of 65.1 bushels was secured; and where fresh manure was applied, the yield was 70.7 bushels per acre. The increased yield of corn from the use of rotted manure was 27.6 bushels, and from the use of fresh manure 32.6 bushels, an increase of five bushels per acre in favor of the fresh manure. On the wheat crop the effect was similar, though not so marked. On the unmanured land, the wheat yielded 16.1 bushels per acre; where rotted manure was used, 19.1 bushels; and on the land dressed with fresh manure, 19.7 bushels per acre were secured. The increase in favor of the fresh manure was only six-tenths bushel per acre on the wheat crop.

While the increased returns are comparatively small in both cases, it illustrates clearly the fact that fresh manure is at least as good as the rotted manure, and for some crops even better. The prevention of loss by leaching and in the rotted process should be kept in mind, and the saving in labor by applying manure fresh from the barns is worthy of consideration. It should not be understood that the coarse, fresh barnyard manure is adapted to all crops. It would not be suitable for certain forms of garden and vegetable crops; and even for the small grains, on light soil, it probably would not give as good results as the rotted manure. Where manure is applied as it should be, however, on the grass land or just ahead of the corn crop in rotation, the coarse, fresh manure is better adapted to the succeeding crop than the rotted manure. The heat, and the effect of the acids developed in the process of decomposition, aid greatly in liberating plant food, and result in greater crop yields.

Some objections may be made on the score that weed seeds or possibly plant diseases are spread with the unrotted manure. Where applied as suggested above, however, at the proper place in rotation, neither the weeds nor the plant diseases resulting therefrom will be a serious consideration.

The late winter and early spring offer many opportunities for getting manure on the land. These should be taken advantage of; though one should avoid driving over the land when it is very wet from melting snows or from heavy rains. The good effect of the manure may be entirely offset by bad handling of the land.

A grown man never feels quite as uncomfortable as a small boy in his Sunday clothes.

UNBREAKABLE GLASS.

Unbreakable glass, for which there might be a demand just now, was invented nearly 2,000 years ago, according to Petronius and Dion Cassius, though Pliny casts doubts on the story, says the London Chronicle. An artist appeared before Tiberius with a cup of glass which he dashed violently on the ground. It was neither broken nor cracked, but merely dented, like a piece of metal. Then the man produced a mallet and hammered the cup back into its proper shape. Tiberius, however, asked whether anybody else knew the secret; and when the artist proudly answered "No," had him instantly beheaded. The emperor feared that such glass would terribly depreciate the value of the precious metal.

GRAPHIC STORY OF WRECK

The Great Liner Titanic Went Down With Her Band Playing

A despatch from New York says: The Cunard liner Carpathia, a ship of gloom and succor, came into New York on Thursday night with first news direct from the great White Star liner Titanic, which sank off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland early on Monday morning, the 15th inst.

The great liner went down with her band playing, taking with her to death all but 745 of her human cargo of 2,340 souls.

SIX OF RESCUED DIED.

To this awful death list six persons were added. One died in the life-boats which were put off from the liner's side and five subsequently succumbed on the rescue ship Carpathia. The list of prominent men missing stands as previously reported, and the total death list, as brought to port Thursday night by the Carpathia, is 706.

Survivors in the lifeboats huddled in the darkness at a safe distance from the stricken ship and saw her go down. As to the scene on board when the liner struck, accounts disagree widely. Some maintain that a comparative calm prevailed, others say that wild disorder broke out and that there was a maniacal struggle for the lifeboats. That the liner struck an iceberg, as reported by wireless, was confirmed by all.

SENSATIONAL RUMORS.

Sensational rumors told by hysterical passengers who would not give their names, said that Captain Smith had killed himself on the bridge, that the chief engineer had taken his life, and that three Italians were shot in the struggle for the boats. These rumors could not be confirmed in the early confusion attendant upon the landing of the survivors.

Ripped from stem to engine-room by the great mass of ice she struck amidships the Titanic's side was laid open as if by a gigantic can-opener. She quickly listed to starboard and a shower of ice fell to the forecastle deck.

TITANIC BROKE IN TWO.

Shortly before she sank she broke in two abaft the engine-room, and as she disappeared beneath the water the expulsion of air caused two explosions which were plainly heard by the survivors adrift. A moment more and the Titanic had gone to her doom with the fated hundreds grouped on the after deck. To the survivors they were visible to the last, and their cries and moans were pitiable.

GRAPHIC STORY.

E. Z. Taylor, of Philadelphia, one of the survivors, jumped into the sea just three minutes before the boat sank. He told a graphic story as he came from the Carpathia.

"I was eating when the boat struck the iceberg," he said. "There was an awful shock that made the boat tremble from stem to stern. I did not realize for some time what had happened. No one seemed to know the extent of the accident. We were told that an iceberg had been struck by the ship. I felt the boat rise, and it seemed to me that she was riding over the ice. I ran out on deck and then I could see ice.

"It was a veritable sea of ice, and the boat was rocking over it. I should say that parts of the iceberg were eighty feet high, but it had been broken into sections, probably by our ship.

"I jumped into the ocean and was picked up by one of the boats. I never expected to see land again. I waited on board the boat until the lights went out. It seemed to me that the discipline on board was wonderful."

HEROIC CONDUCT.

A young English woman, who requested that her name be omitted, told a thrilling story of her experience in one of the collapsible boats which had been manned by eight of the crew from the Titanic. The boat was in command of the fifth officer, H. Lowe, whom she stated saved the lives of many people. Before the lifeboat was launched, he passed along the port deck of the steamer, commanding the people not to jump in the boats and otherwise restraining them from swamping the craft. When the collapsible was launched, Officer Lowe succeeded in putting up a mast and a small sail. He collected the other boats together. In some cases the boats were short of adequate crews, and he directed an exchange by which each was adequately manned. He threw lines connecting the boats together, two by two, and all thus moved together. Later on he went back to the wreck with the crew of one of the boats and succeeded in picking up some of those who had jumped overboard and were swimming about. On his way back to the Carpathia he passed one of the collapsible boats which was on the point of sinking with thirty passengers aboard, most of them in scant night clothing. They were rescued just in the nick of time. Some died on the way to the Carpathia.

HOW CAPT. SMITH DIED.

Geo. A. Brayden told of how Captain Smith met his death. "I saw Captain Smith while I was in the water. He was standing on the deck all alone. Once he was swept down by a wave, but managed to get his feet. Then, as the boat sank, he again was knocked down by a wave, and this time disappeared from view."

Mrs. Frederick C. Douglas.
Hudson Trevor Allison.
Eleven months' old son of Mr. H. J. Allison.

GEO. E. GRAHAM LOST.

A despatch from Toronto says: A private wire from New York on Thursday night from Mr. Harry McGee, of the T. Eaton Company, stated that Mr. George E. Graham, buyer for the T. Eaton Company, was not on the Carpathia, and was to be numbered amongst those drowned. The word was received by the late Mr. Graham's brother, who lives in Toronto. In the list of survivors as received by wireless Mr. Graham was mentioned as among those saved.

OFFICIAL INQUIRY.

New York, April 10.—The official Government inquiry into the wreck of the Titanic began this afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria, with Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan as Chairman of the United States committee conducting the injury.

The first witness called was J. Bruce Ismay, President of the International Mercantile Marine. He was severely interrogated by the members of the Investigating Committee. Though obviously ill, he answered every question succinctly. He said he always accompanied his company's liners on their maiden voyages. He was in bed when the collision took place and did not see the iceberg.

"How long did you remain on the injured ship?" he was asked.

"That would be hard to estimate," he responded. "Almost until she sank. Probably an hour and a quarter."

Describing how he left the Titanic, Mr. Ismay said he only looked round once. The boat was afloat at that time.

"I did not want to see her go down. I was rowing in the lifeboat all the time until we were picked up," he continued.

Mr. Ismay said there was no explosion on board. He estimated the speed of the ship when she struck at twenty-one knots. If the ship had struck head-on she would have floated.

Capt. Rostron of the Carpathia said that when they found the Titanic's boats they were in the icefield.

"By the time I got the boats aboard day was breaking. On all sides of us were icebergs, some twenty were 150 to 200 feet high and there were numerous small icebergs or 'growlers.' Wreckage was strewn about us," he said.

The committee is seeking to prove that the Titanic's boats belonged to another vessel. Asked concerning this, Capt. Rostron said they were towed away last night; where he did not know.

"What was the last message you got from the Titanic?" asked a Senator.

"The last message was, 'Engine-room nearly full of water.'"

In discussing the strength of the Carpathia's wireless, Captain Rostron said the Carpathia was only fifty-eight miles from the Titanic when the call for help came.

"Providential!" exclaimed Representative Hughes, no longer able to control his emotion.

"Providential," repeated the Captain, "the whole thing. Our wireless operator was not on duty, but as he was undressing he had the apparatus to his ear. Two minutes more he would have been in bed, and we never would have heard."

Senator Newlands asked about the lifeboats at great length.

"Take the Titanic," he said, "whose tonnage is three times that of the Carpathia, how many additional lifeboats could she accommodate without inconvenience?"

"I don't know the ship," said Captain Rostron, "but if she couldn't carry more than twenty she could be made to."

Questioned as to the Titanic's latitude Captain Rostron said:

"She was in what we call the southerly route to avoid icebergs."

"Do you think that the route is a practical one?"

"Quite so, but this is a notable exception."

"Would you regard the course taken by the Titanic in this trial trip as appropriate, safe and wise at this time of year?" the Senator continued.

"Quite so."

"What would be a safe, reasonable speed for a ship of that size and in that course?"

"I did not know the ship," the Captain said, "and therefore cannot tell. I had seen no ice before the Titanic signalled us, and I knew from her message that there was ice to be encountered. But the Carpathia went full speed ahead. I had extra officers on watch and some others volunteered to watch ahead throughout the trip."

Captain Rostron was asked about the lifeboat with but one officer and one seaman in it. This was the boat from which Representative James A. Hughes' daughter, Mrs. R. P. Smith, was rescued. At least two women were rowing in this boat. In another lifeboat he saw women at the oars, but how many he could not tell. One boat was described as overcrowded, having on board the passengers from a wrecked lifeboat.

Itching and Burning on Face and Throat

Sores Disfigured So He Dreaded to Appear in Public. No Rest Night or Day. Cuticura Ointment Cured.

"Six months ago my face and throat all broke out and turned into a running sore. I did not bother about it at first, but in one week's time the disease had spread so rapidly over my face and throat and the burning itching sores became so painful that I began to seek relief in different medicines, but none seemed to give me any relief. The sores disfigured my face to such an extent that I dreaded to appear in public.

"I suffered terribly and could get no rest night or day. At last a friend advised me to try the Cuticura Remedies. I had about given up hope, but thought I would have one more try, and so I used a little Cuticura Ointment, and it helped me from the start. I continued using it and in six weeks' time was completely cured, and can say I would advise anyone suffering from skin disease to use Cuticura Ointment, as it is the best healing balm in the world." (Signed) Roscoe Good, Seven Persons, Alta., Feb. 18, 1911.

FOUND RELIEF ONLY FROM CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My little girl when only a few weeks old broke out on the top of her head and it became a solid scab. Then her cheeks became raw and sore and after trying different remedies found relief only from using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It lasted six months or more, but after a thorough treatment with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment never had any return." (Signed) Mrs. W. S. Owen, Yadkin College, N. C., May 26, 1911.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the most successful treatment for skin and scalp troubles of infants, children and adults. A single cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient. NEWSY TORONTO LETTER

WHAT IS INTERESTING THE PEOPLE AT THE HUB.

The Titanic Catastrophe—Dr. Nesbitt Again—Legislature Prorogued—Bilingual School Question.

Not since the days of the South African war has the city spent such sombre days as the week following the foundering of the Titanic. This, in spite of the fact that the personal touch was almost entirely lacking because with one or two exceptions Toronto citizens were not in danger. In Montreal and in Winnipeg it was different.

But the announcement of the almost inconceivable catastrophe, the days of suspense, and at last the harrowing details sobered and oppressed the whole population. In the clubs men talked and acted as though there was a funeral in the premises. Everywhere that people met little else was discussed. Even the amusement places lost much of their spontaneity and gayety. And such evidences of feeling are not to be wondered at for hardly pertains few more pitiable events than the wreck of the Titanic.

DR. NESBITT AGAIN IN LIMELIGHT.

After a total eclipse of some sixteen months, Dr. Beattie Nesbitt is back in the limelight. The marvel is that he was able to keep in the background so long. For while there are many things about the rotund doctor that are difficult to understand, the one thing that is patent about his character to everyone is that he dearly loves publicity.

The doctor has always been somewhat of an enigma, even in Toronto, where he is known best. Opinions as to his ability vary all the way from that which believes him to be a genius under an unlucky star to that which dubs him as a vastly overrated mediocrity. But Nesbitt knew how to keep in the public eye. He managed to make friends among the newspaper men. He could whet curiosity by a sphinx-like silence, and could rush into print with some pronouncement just at the moment when it would get him the most attention. Some people who came in contact with him describe him as disagreeable and offensive. To others he appeared as something of a buffoon. And it must be said that many of his actions both in the past and in the present chapter of his autobiography resemble the acts of a character out of a comic opera.

THE LEGISLATURE PROROGUED.

Prorogation comes as a sort of anticlimax to the excitement of the session, this year furnishing no exception. True, a function of state it was with all the trappings. The Lieutenant Governor attended in state, which means that he wore a cocked hat, and his most brilliant uniform, and that he was attended by a military escort, and that cannons were fired, but the event was less exciting than an afternoon tea.

Most of the members of the Legislature were far away, busy with the spring seeding and the other private affairs which have had to take pot luck during the session. It was with difficulty that a quorum could be mustered. But finally, with the Cabinet ministers, the members for Toronto, a few others who reside here and an odd one who was detained for some special reason, the legal requirements were fulfilled.

The lack of interest on the part of the members was in striking contrast to the busy days of the concluding week of actual work when the Legislature, as is the way of all Parliaments under governments of all parties, forced through a month's business in six days. At the beginning of a session scant fifteen minute sittings were not uncommon. At the end the House met at ten o'clock in the morning and continued far into the night, disturbed only by contentious matters being shortened or eliminated by mere physical weariness.

THE CEREMONY.

Prayers over, enters the Lieutenant Governor, attended by his aides. The Lieutenant Governor symbolizes his Majesty the King, and the moment is duly impressive. His Honor mounts the Speaker's dais. The Clerk of the House, Mr. A. H. Sydere, a veteran of many years' service, reads a list of the bills that have been passed during the session. His Honor nods assent.

"In His Majesty's name," announces the Clerk, "his Honor doth assent to these bills." A similar ceremony in regard to the supply bills or votes of money for the carrying on of government takes but a moment.

Next his Honor reads the Speech from the Throne, a brief review of the more important legislation with thanks to the members for their attendance and effort.

It is always a mystery as to who writes the Speech from the Throne. The Provincial Secretary, Hon. W. J. Hanna, is credited by some with preparing it, but a Lieutenant Governor, like Sir John Gibson, who has himself been through the mill, might write it himself, perhaps consulting with the Premier as to its contents.

Finally, the speech concluded, his Honor glances at Mr. Hanna, who announced that it is his Honor's will and pleasure that this Legislative Assembly be prorogued, and this Legislative Assembly is accordingly prorogued."

Exit the Lieutenant Governor, and the session is at an end.

THE BILINGUAL PROBLEM.

Of the pronouncement of Sir James Whitney on the bilingual school question there is satisfaction expressed by his supporters, while his opponents say that while his professions seem all right it is only by energy and sincerity in carrying out these professions that can remedy the evil. There is no doubt that the conditions of inefficiency and consequent growing illiteracy revealed by the Government's Commission, Dr. F. W. Merchant, came as a surprise and a shock to nearly everybody. When that report is read in conjunction with the official census figures shortly to be announced, showing the increase in the French population of Ontario it will be fully realized what a tremendous educational problem the Province has on its hands.

The issue lies principally in the eastern counties and in New Ontario. In Essex and Kent, where the French colony dates back to the earliest times, the population is not increasing so rapidly, possibly because Detroit helps draw off the surplus population. But in Glengarry, Stormont, Prescott and Carleton counties there is a steady exodus of Anglo Saxons and a steady increase in French, while along the C. P. R. in Nipissing and Algoma the French settlers largely predominate in many townships. It is estimated that as compared with 150,000 in 1900, the census figures for 1910 will show 250,000 French-Canadians in Ontario. This is in marked contrast to the figures comparing the Anglo Saxon rural population of Ontario at the same dates.

OCCIDENT HIT BERG.

Steamer Was Run Into Shoal Water Before She Sank.

A despatch from Flensburg, Prussia, says: The steamer Occident collided with an iceberg in the Baltic Sea off Riga. Her entire bow was shattered, but her captain managed to run her into shoal water before she began to sink, and her passengers and crew were safely taken off.

THANKSGIVING PSALM.

A Rhythmical and Grateful Chant

A teacher in a Terre Haute public school joins in the chorus:

"Teaching is a business which requires a great deal of brain and nerve force. Unless this force is renewed as fast as expended the teacher is exhausted before the close of the year. Many resort to stimulating tonics for relief.

"For 3 years I struggled against almost complete exhaustion, getting what relief I could from doctors' tonics. Then in the spring of 1903 I had an attack of la grippe and malaria, which left me too weak to continue my work. Medicine failed to give me any relief, a change of climate failed. I thought I should never be able to go back in school again.

"I ate enough food, (the ordinary meals—white bread, vegetables, etc.) but was hungry after meals.

"I happened at this time to read an article giving the experience of another teacher who had been helped by Grape-Nuts food. I decided to try Grape-Nuts and cream, as an experiment. It was a delightful experience, and continues so, after a year and a half of constant use.

"First, I noticed that I was not hungry after meals.

"In a few days that tired feeling left me, and I felt fresh and bright, instead of dull and sleepy.

"In three months, more than my usual strength returned, and I had gained 15 pounds in weight.

"I finished the year's work without any kind of tonics—was not absent from duty even half a day.

"Am still in the best of health, with all who know me wondering at the improvement.

"I tell them all, 'Try Grape-Nuts!'" Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. "There's a reason."

THURSDAY, APR. 25, '12

The Carpathia arrived in New York on Friday evening with 759 of the survivors of the ill fated vessel The Titanic, which was wrecked on Sunday night, April 14th. The total number of passengers and crew on the boat was 2340 and those who lost their lives numbered 1601. The list of noted Canadians and others who sank with the ship given in our issue of last week was about correct. Many graphic accounts have appeared in the daily papers of the heroism of the men and women, of the conditions of life aboard the boats at the time of accident, the calm and quiet manner of all but a few foreign passengers, the many sad partings of husbands and wives and daughters and fathers, and throughout the bravery, heroism and chivalry of the men of the Anglo Saxon race stands out in bold relief, bearing out the noblest traditions of the race of noble men and women. Life must have been dear to many of these men who occupied prominent positions in the affairs of nations, but one and all quietly and heroically stood aside or helped in the work of saving the women and children That the accident was done to some body's carelessness there is little doubt and an investigation is being made with a view of finding out the cause. Undoubtedly the speed was too great for an iceberg region, the search lights and outlooks could not have been doing their duty, and the lack of life saving apparatus has been shown to be insufficient. The terrific pace at which everything is supposed to move in this age is gathering an terrible harvest in the lines of men. The prophetic words of Chas. M. Hays should be the signal to call a halt. "The steamship lines are vieing with one another to attain the supremacy in luxurious ships and in making records. The time will come soon when this will be checked by some appalling disaster."

The high prices which have ruled for apples for the past few years make the the farmer's orchard one of the money makers on the farm. It is very difficult however, to get farmers to realize this. They have been accustomed so long to look upon the orchard as largely a negligible quantity that they fail to see any good in it, even though prices for the fruit are high. A farmer would consider that if he reaped a harvest of 150 bushels from five acres of wheat, and sold it at $1 a bushel that he was making a very good thing of cropping those five acres. And so he would too, in so far as grain growing goes. But let us look into this matter a little. To get that crop of wheat he had to prepare the land, sow the seed, harvest, and thrash it, the expense of which must be deducted from his gross returns from the wheat. On the other hand take a five acre orchard of well selected fruit. When the trees come into bearing, they are there to do business every year without any replenishing. The farmer does not have to put in new seed every spring. If he cares for his orchard properly he will have to prune spray and keep his orchard cultivated and in good shape. Then he will have to pick the apples and prepare them for market. All this will mean some labor and some expense. But look at the returns in an average year under average conditions. The profits from some five acre orchards well looked after often equal the returns from a fifty acre farm. Yet the orchard is neglected, and if it produces enough for family use the owner is satisfied.

Last Sunday morning the pulpit in the Evangelical church was occupied by Mr. G. K. Brown, and in the evening there was no service. We are pleased to learn that Rev. Burn, who has served as pastor of the church the past year so successfully will remain. During his short stay here, the work has progressed wonderfully and there is a unity as never before.

The awful ocean disaster last week has been the talk of the town. It appears to have been a "Titanic" blunder and it is said indeed that so many prominent men of the world lost their life through the neglect of the Company to supply sufficient life-saving apparatus.

Frank Snell has secured work at McClary's Factory in London.

A meeting of the Bowlers was held in H. Elber's office on Monday evening The following is the result of the election of officers.—Hon. Pres. Rev. D. Forster; Pres; H. Elber, M. P. P.; Vice-Pres. Sam Brown; Sec'y Treas; Dr. Orme. Bowling went back last year and very little was done but new resolutions have been made and a number of new members have been secured so there is good prospects of Crediton regaining their past reputation as champion bowlers.

A organization meeting for Local Option in this Township was held in the Methodist Church last Monday. It is expected that a vote will be taken again at New's Year's.

The printing plant of The Crediton Star was moved to Zurich on Saturday where Mr. Zeller will publish the paper. Mr. Wickwire will continue with the paper and expects to keep a press here for local job work.

Frazer Brown leaves this week for Berlin where he will join the base-ball team of that town as pitcher. We wish "Teddy" every success and know he will make good.

Sam Brown, wife and family and Mrs Link motored to Zurich on Sunday where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Preeter.

T. B. Lawson has purchased a Hearse and intends to start business as Undertaker.

Daniel Swetzer left for Algonquin Park a few days ago where he has accepted a position as Fire Ranger.

Mrs. Wm. Erb has returned to her home in Brantford after a short visit here with friends.
