CHILDREN
Are always liable to sudden and severe colds, to croup, sore throat, lung fever, etc. Remedies, to be effective, must be administered without delay. Nothing is better adapted for such emergencies than Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It soothes the inflamed membrane, promotes expectoration, relieves coughing, and induces sleep. The prompt use of this medicine has saved innumerable lives, both of young and old.
"One of my children had croup. The case was attended by our physician, and was supposed to be well under control. One night I was startled by the child's hard breathing, and on going to it found it Strangling.
It had nearly ceased to breathe. Realizing that the child's alarming condition had become possible in spite of the medicine it had taken, I reasoned that such remedies would be of no avail. Having a part of a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously waited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given, the child's breathing grew easier, and in a short time it was sleeping quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved its life."—C. J. Wooldridge, Wortham, Texas.

General News.

—Strawberries are now being shipped from Los Angeles county, Cal. to Chicago.

—Mrs. Rachel Stillwaggon, the oldest person on Long Island, has just died at Flushing in her 106th year.

—The Yakima Indians in Washington State are now reported to be indulging in the ghost dance, and it is feared they will join the Indians in the north.

—The losses by fire in the United States and Canada during the past five years amount to no less a sum than $608,000,000.

—On Saturday night snow fell to a depth of five inches at Del Rio, Texas, being the first snow in four years and the greatest depth on record.

—Mr. Walter Flint, a wealthy trader of Borneo, having been murdered by the Diaks, his brother conducted an expedition against the latter, and a chief and 130 of his followers were killed.

—The family cradle of the Hohenzollerns was made in 1722, and has rocked every prince and princess of the royal house of Prussia since that time. It is of stout old oak.

—One of the coldest waves Europe has ever known swept over that continent last week. All over Britain, snow and ice were abundant, and on the mainland there were immense snow blockades, and much suffering from the cold in the poorer districts.

—Mr. Alex. Loucks, while cutting ice on Louck's dam, Pa., discovered a spider frozen in a solid block of ice. He ingeniously cut into the ice, when the spider stepped out and hopped about The ice was some seven inches thick and was frozen about two weeks ago.

—Alaska's coast is the sepulchre of ships. Dr. Sheldon Jackson says that almost a hundred vessels have found a watery grave there within twenty years. In one storm, and at one place, thirty-three ships were ground between icefields, and 1,200 sailors cast, wrecked, on a barren shore.

—David Jacks, a millionaire of Monterey county, Cal., can ride 20 miles in a straight line on his own land. He is a Scotchman, and in 1848 stowed himself away in a barrel on a vessel bound for California. Now he has a fortune of $7,000,000. He is a devout Presbyterian churchman.

—A horror similar to the wharf horror at Halifax, occurred at Victoria, B. C., last week, by which several men and thousands of cases of salmon were thrown into the water. A shed situated on one of the wharves was piled full of packed salmon, and the wharf suddenly collapsed with the above result.

—A single page in an issue of the Century, taken for advertising purposes, costs $500; in Harper's $400; down to $100. A yearly advertisement in one column of the New York Herald costs $30,000 for the lowest, and $130,000 for the highest priced column. These figures will doubtless be of interest to men who invest $2 or $3 per month, and flatter themselves with the idea that they are entensive and liberal advertisers.

—A sad affair is reported from Valcartier, north of Quebec, where a woman fell in an epileptic fit, and her four children, who were the only occupants of the house, set out to alarm the nearest neighbors. The eldest child was aged five years and the youngest a mere infant. The eldest child carried the youngest one on his back. All were barefoot, although the day was one of the coldest of the winter. The feet of the poor unfortunates are so badly frozen that the physicians deem amputation necessary.

—An extraordinary suicide caused a panic in the Church of St. Michel at Havre one Sunday. A man entered the building with his clothes soaked with petroleum, a rope round his neck, and kindling wood bound round his body. He poured a quantity of petroleum on the ground beneath his feet, set fire to it, and in an instant was completely enveloped in flames. The priest, who rushed to his assistance, was badly burned. The unfortunate man quickly fell down dead, his body being burned beyond recognition. There was the wildest excitement among the worshippers in the church.

—Measurements of the sun's distance by the methods of different periods in astronomical science have given these results: Hipparchus, 150 B. C., found it to be 5,900,000 miles; Posidonius, 100 B. C., 62,750,000 miles; Copernicus, 1543 A. D., 4,700,000; Kepler, 1628, 13,500,000; Wendelin, 1640, 58,600,000; Ricaioli, 1650, 29,200,000; Cassini, 1680 83,000,000; Sahire, 1687, 136,000,000; Saplace, 1799, 92,800,000; Encke, 1824, 95,250,000; and recent estimates make it 91,890,000 miles.

WOMEN'S COLUMN.

Conducted by the Ladies of the Sackville W. C. T. U.

Miss Agnes Weston, the sailor's friend, an English lady, well known for her life-long philanthropy, has been made Superintendent of work among sailors for the World's W. C. T. U.

She has been the means of the erection of two large buildings; one at Portsmouth, and one at Devonport. In one with her staff of workers, she lives at her own expense. As she wrote to a friend, "Like one of old, I dwell among my own people, and they are blue-jackets."

Miss Weston began her philanthropic work in 1868, by visiting the Bath United Hospital. She gave the patients short addresses from passages of scripture, and added to their comfort by little gifts of flowers and fruit. She next turned her attention to the militia men who assemble annually at Bath for their training, and labored among them with great success.

Her work for the sailors was brought about through her having written a letter to a soldier on board the "Crocodile" bound for India, which letter proved helpful to him and his companions, was read again and again during the voyage, and led to the expression of many wishes on the part of the hearers that some one would write letters to them. Several sailors made the same request, and to them all Miss Weston replied promptly. The correspondence increased so rapidly that she was at last unable to comply with the demands made upon her so, in order to meet the difficulty, and not disappoint the men, five hundred copies were printed monthly. Gradually this number has increased; and now over four thousand letters, called "Blue-backs," are printed and circulated monthly through the post, to all parts of the world, to every ship which carries the Union Jack.

In addition, over two thousand copies a month of a "Letter," to the boys in training ships are issued by her.

The next step for the benefit of the seamen was the establishment of floating branches on board each vessel in connection with the National Temperance League. There are two hundred of these floating branches.

The Sailor's Rest and Institute was Miss Weston's next care. In 1874, a house was rented close to the dockyard gates. Appeals were made for the necessary funds. Donations flowed in from all parts of the world and the sum of £6,000 was raised.

The institute combines the varied features of a restaurant and public-house with those of an extensive boarding house, savings bank, reading and smoking rooms, and sailors' club.

During the first year, the receipts defrayed all working expenses, and left a profit of £113. 16s. 8d.

—A novel expedition is preparing to leave London in February, its port of destination being Zanzibar, and its object, investigation of the condition of African women, with a view to their improvement. It will be composed entirely of women, with the exception of Arab attendants in charge of the baggage. These ladies say that, while Stanley has given the world much information about the men of Africa, he has left the women still in the "dark continent" of obscurity. Mrs. Mary French Sheldon, daughter of a well-known woman physician of Chicago, leads the expedition. Her husband is the London manager of the banking house of Jarvis-Conklin.

Mrs. F. H. Rastall, of Topeka, Kan., for years president of the Kansas W. C. T. U. has been made business manager of the Woman's Temperance Publishing Association, Chicago. It is a large establishment, having four editors and 150 employes. Its output of literature is 120,000,000 pages per year of tracts, pamphlets, and books of all sizes, besides the Union Signal, a weekly paper with a circulation of 80,000, and two monthly papers, the Oak and Ivy Leaf and the Young Crusader.

Women in the Year 2000.

As a sort of supplementary chapter to his "Looking Backward," Mr. Edward Bellamy has written an article for the February issue of the Ladies' Home Journal, under the title of "Women in the Year 2000," in which the famous Nationalist will sketch woman, marriage, courtship, etc., as they will be regarded in the year 2000.

Keep Off the Chaps.
Wet wintry weather causes chapped hands, sore throat, croup, colds, pain in the chest, swellings, etc., for which a certain cure exists in Hagyard's Yellow Oil, the best pain expeller for internal or external use. Keep it on hand in case of emergencies. Every bottle is a little giant in curative power.

—There is something like bliss in sitting before an open fireplace, and listening to the snow as it is blown against the window panes. And there is something decidedly like blister in standing on the sidewalk the next morning trying to shovel that same snow off. Lowell Citizen.

The Key Stone.
REGULAR action of the bowels is the keystone of health. The use of B B. B. insures it and cures constipation, dyspepsia, etc.
Miss F. Williams 445 Bloor St. Toronto, writes: "Have used your blood Burdock Bitters for constipation and pain in the head with great success. I improved from the second dose."

How the doctor Made Forty Dollars.

Grand Manan has inaugurated a new wrinkle in the Scott Act business, but it will scarcely become popular. Some time ago Dr. Noyes offered a reward of $10 to the person who would give such evidence as would lead to the conviction of a violator of the Scott Act. One party came forward, made information against one Patrick Dooly for a second offence, secured a conviction and pocketed the $10 reward. The doctor claimed one-half the fine, and the parish court commissioners paid it over to him; the other half ($50) being sent to the county clerk, with a statement of the case. When the clerk recovered from his surprise, he at once wrote to the commissioner, directing him to return the other half of the fine to the county treasury at once. As Dr. Noyes has gone to Florida—$40 richer by the transaction—to spend the winter, the commissioner will either have to "ante" up the money himself, or else wait until he receives it from the doctor.—St. Andrews Beacon.

Pay of English Editors.

F. C. Burnard gets $15,000 a year for editing Punch.

The London Standard allows its editor a salary of $15,000 per annum.

Mr. Pollock of the London Saturday Review, receives a salary of $10,000 a year.

On the London Daily News the chief editor is recompensed for his labor with a salary of $20,000 a year.

Mr. Hatton who is at the head of the London Spectator, gets $10,000 per annum for his editorial supervision.

Frederick Greenwood, "The Casual Pauper," of the St. James Gazette, receives $9,000 per year for his services on that paper.

Edward Lawson, the proprietor and editor of the London Telegraph, of course gets no salary, but his two assistants draw salaries of $17,000 a year.

When Mr. Delane undertook the editorial charge of the London Times, he was paid £4000 a year (about $20,000), and when Mr. Buckle succeeded him, the salary was raised to £5000 (or about $25,000).

Mr. Stead, whose sensational articles on London vice lodged him behind the bars, got $10,000 a year from the Pall Mall Gazette, and his assistant, Mr. Miller, got $8000 when he first took charge of that spicy sheet.

The nearest to London rates are paid by the Manchester Guardian. It pays its chief editor $15,000 and there are one or two members of its editorial staff who each write only four articles a week and are paid $7500 a year salary.

Force of Habit.

It was after dinner at Young's. A well-known Commonwealth avenue physician had been dining with a few professional cronies, and as the cigars were lighted the talk drifted to the tobacco habit, first, in its effect upon the race at large, and then in its peculiar effects upon various individuals.

"I know a man," said the elder physician, whose income by the way runs into five figures, "in fact he is now in my employ, who is a victim to the strongest whims in regard to the use of the weed that ever came under my observation. He is a Scotchman, about 60 years old. Twelve years ago he deserted from the English navy and came to this country, when I gave him a position as coachman.

"One morning I went into the stable and noticed that a hole about two feet square had been cut in a partition between two stalls, and a little shelf had been nailed up underneath it. I wondered what in the world it had been done for, but Donald was away at the time and when he came back, it had slipped my mind.

"It was as much as a month afterward before I had occasion to go into the stable again, and when I did I found Donald standing on a stool, leaning his elbow on the shelf, with a long clay pipe in his mouth, smoking away like a good one, and blowing the smoke through the little window he had cut. Upon my questioning him, he told me that of the 20 years he had passed in her Majesty's service, ten had been on board a powder ship, where the rules against smoking were very strict.

"During all this time he had been accustomed, four times a day, to stand upon a chest and lean out of a porthole to smoke, so that no one would smell him; and when at last he took French leave, he found that he couldn't get any satisfaction out of a pipe unless indulged in in the old posture, and so, from that day to this, you can find him after each meal, and for half an hour before going to bed, standing on that stool, blowing his smoke through the little window.—Boston Herald.

Agricultural Notes.

—The Downton, England, college of Agriculture, one of the best in the world was destroyed by fire last week.

—The Weymouth Free Press states that Mr. Joseph Lent, of Barton, Digby Co., picked eighty barrels of Baldwin apples from thirteen trees the past fall.

—The total shipment of livestock and dressed beef from Canada and the States for 1890 was 517,493 cattle, 47,461 sheep, and 1,031,576 quarters of beef. Canoda's contribution to this was 123,627 cattle, 34,739 sheep, and 15,484 quarters beef.

—Keep the broken egg shells away from the hens, and provide fresh, clean nests in some secluded spot if you would prevent the bad habit of egg-eating. This, with a variety of food and abundance of shell material, will save from this troublesome habit.

—Some Yankee sharpers are advertising young fillies sired by George Wilkes, by Rysdick's Hambletonian, and when the purchasers attempt to trace the pedigrees of the animals, they find the difference between Rysdick's and Rysdyke's Hambletonian.

—A Woodstock, N. B., despatch says that reports indicate a great boom in the potato trade with Boston and other New England towns. The price per barrel has risen to $2.30 and dealers are buying all they can get at that rate. The cold weather in December was a set back, for last week a decided rush took place.

—One of the most demoralizing practices in connection with the horse business is the common one of reporting ficticious prices paid, or realized, for horses or colts, bought or sold. In the end this can only work injury to both buyer and seller, by destroying confidence. Retter, by far, keep silent unless the actual price can be named in the public print.

—The Arabs give their horses the very best care, and when weaned give the colts the milk of the camel. They put them to service when three years old, on a long march on a gallop on the plains to improve their muscle. The training is better than in England. Rich feeding, proper training for special service, appropriate work and exercise according to future work, to maintain the progress desired.

—Salt makes animals more lively, stronger and more capable of resisting disease. Their flesh is harder and the functions of the organisms are more regular. Their digestion is better and they can exist on fodder that might otherwise be injurious to health. With the assistance of salt, moreover, they can extract more nourishment from a given quantity of fodder, since the flow of the digestive organs is more copious. Hence it is of special importance with foods difficult to digest, since the latter may readily produce disturbances in the digestive process and be a cause of sickness.

What a Horse Might Say

Don't hitch me to an iron post or railing when the mercury is below freezing. I need the skin on my tongue.

Don't leave me hitched in my stall at night with a big cob right where I must lie down. I am tied and can't select a smooth place.

Don't compel me to eat more salt than I want by mixing it with my oats. I know better than any other animal how much I need.

Don't think because I go free under the whip I don't get tired. You would move under the whip.

Don't think because I am a horse that iron-weeds and briars won't hurt my hay.

Don't whip me when I get frightened along the road, or I will resent it next time and maybe make trouble.

Don't trot me up hill, for I have to carry you and the buggy and myself too. Try it yourself some time. Run up hill with a dog load.

Don't keep my stable very dark, for when I go out into the light, my eyes are injured, especially if snow be on the ground.

Don't say whoa unless you mean it. Teach me to stop at that word. It may check me if the lines break, and save a runaway and smashup.

Don't make me drink ice-cold water or put a frosty bit in my mouth. Warm the bit by holding it a half-minute against my body.

Don't forget to file my teeth when they get jagged and I cannot chew my food. When I get lean, it is a sign my teeth may want filing.

Don't ask me to "back" with blinds on; I am afraid to.

Don't run me down a steep hill, for if anything should give way, I might break your neck.

Don't put my blind bridle so that it irritates my eye, or so leave my forelock that it may be in my eye.

Don't be so careless of my harness as to find a great sore on me before you attend to it.

Don't lend me to some blockhead that has less sense than I have.

Don't forget the old book that is a friend to all the oppressed, that says: "A merciful man is merciful to his beast."—Farm Journal.

As you like it, Gray and faded whiskers may be changed to their natural and even color—brown or black—by using Buckingham's Dye. Try it.
