The Tory papers strive to lead the public to believe that Mr. Gladstone and his policy are responsible for the present condition of South-Eastern Europe. The despatches from Sir A. Layard show that in fact Lord Beaconsfield, by making England the Protector of the Turks when he was at Berlin, encouraged them to pursue the course they have since pursued, and rendered further hostilities inevitable. Sir Austin in one despatch says:—

I allude especially (he says) to his treaty engagements to introduce reforms into his Asiastic territories for the just and impartial government of their populations, and for the protection of his Christian subjects. The most important and urgent of those reforms were specified in Lord Salisbury's despatch of the 8th of August, 1878, and were accepted, with some modifications, Safvet Pasha in his note of the 24th of October, 1878. They include a gendarmerie organized by European officers, the appointment of Europeans as Financial and Judical Inspectors in the provinces, and the nominations of the Valis, or Governor-General, for five years. Not one of them has been loyally put into execution, and the obligations entered into by the Sultan in the Convention of June have been systematically evaded. The English officers who were brought out here by the Turkish Government to organize the gendarmerie have been treated—chiefly, I believe, through the influence of Osman Pasha with the most marked discourtesy and neglect. Only three have been employed, and every difficulty has been thrown in their way. Colonel Blunt has succeeded, through the loyal and effective support of Raouf Pasha, and in spite of the determined opposition of Osman Pasha, in organizing a small body of gendarmerie in the vilayet of Ardrianople. Colonel Allix, fortunately beyond the reach of the interference of the Porte and the Minister of War, has done the same in Crete. The third, Colonel Norton, was peirpsely ordered off in the depth of winter to Bitlis, where he will, in all probability, find nothing to do, and he thwarted by the local authorities in his endeavours to perform the duty assigned to him. Colonel Cuope received the order at the same time to proceed to Erzeroum, but having been unable to obey it, in consequence of his pay being in arrears, and of the want of money for his travelling expenses, was summarily dismissed the service. The remaining officers, notwithstanding the repeated promises made—to me by the Sultan and the Porte that they should be employed, have been allowed to remain in idleness. Their contracts will, I believe, expire in June or Jul next; there is every reason to believe that they will not be renewed, and all the officers, who, at great expense, were engaged to organize a service essential to the tranquility and prosperity of the country, will be allowed to return to England. A more striking instance of the fully and bad faith of the Turkish Government could scarcely be given.

No European judicial inspectors have, to my knowledge, been appointed. To satisfy me, Mr. Ede, an English lawyer practising in the Consular Court, was offered the appointment in the unimportant villayet of Trebizond. But he was unable to come to any arrangement with the Porte, and the matter fell through. Almost the same has occurred with respect to the Financial Inspectors. Mr. Calvert was named to the post, and Her Majesty's Government authorized his temporary acceptance of it, while retaining at the same time his Vice-Consulship at Rhodes. But Mr. Calvert found that, instead of being named first-class Inspector, as I had received a distinct assurance that he should be, he was placed under the orders of a Turkish functionary. As he could not, under these circumstances, perform his duty usefully and independently, he refused, on my recommendation, to accept the appointment. As regards the nomination of the Valis for five years, no change whatever appears to have been made in the ancient system. They are still appointed and removed at the pleasure of the Sultan.

The condition of the provinces of Eastern Asia Minor is one which must attract the immediate notice of Her Majesty's Government. The Porte has bound itself by the treaty of Berlin to the signatory Powers, and by the Convention of the 4th of June to England, to introduce into those provinces such reforms as may be necessary to secure the just and impartial treatment of their American inhabitants, and such measures as may protect them from oppression and outrages on the part of the Kurds and Circassians. By the sixty-first Article of the former treaty, the Porte engages itself to inform the signatory Powers periodically of the measures taken by it with these objects. The Powers themselves are entitled to watch over their execution. Although two years have nearly elapsed since the conclusion of the treaty, the terms of this article have not been complied with. The condition of the Armenians has in no way improved. It is stated to be even worse than it was before the war. In addition to the outrages of the Kurds, and the maladministration of the Turkish functionaries, famine has appeared to increase their sufferings. They naturally turn to the signatory Powers, and especially to England, for help and protection. It is absolutely necessary that something be done for them, and that the Turkish Government be given to understand that the present state of things can no longer be permitted to exist.

Sir Alexander Campbell, addressing the pupils of the Kingston Military College, attempted, by elaborate calculations, etc., to defend the expenditure of so large an amount in giving a special education to a few young men who may never be called upon to render the slightest service to the country in return. We suppose that the best defence of the establishment is that it was intended to satisfy the Imperial Government, which has so often insisted on our doing more, to prepare for a possible war, than the people of Canada think at all necessary. Sir Alexander said:—

Summing up the expense of education it reached an amount that declared it paramount in the thoughts of the people. He had prepared an aggregate statement of this yearly cost. In Ontario it was $534,000; Quebec; $546,000; Nova Scotia; $193,000; New Brunswick, $150,000; Prince Edward Island, $81,000; British Columbia, $48,000; Manitoba, $14,000; a total of $1,365,000. None of the schools asking this vast sum afforded a military education, which had become a blank in the studies of Canadian youth. The Royal Military College now fills that blank at a cost of $59,000 a year. The general education cost thirty-five cents per capita, and the military education claimed but one and a half cents of that sum. Is it not desirable at that price? The question of its propriety should be discussed in the public interest, but yet fairly and honorably. The more it was discussed in that light the better, he was sure, for the College. At West Point there were 250 cadets, costing $250,000 a year, besides $188,000 for horses and a detachment. Leaving out the last item, as the Canadian school has nothing to compare with it, the cost of each cadet still remains at $1,000 as against $590 for a Canadian cadet, though the cost in a larger college should be relatively less.

The $150,000 is about the amount paid by the New Brunswick Government, in addition to the much larger amount raised by assessment in the school districts.

Of the late terrible explosion of gas in the city of London a telegram says:—

The terrible explosion occurred at seven o'clock in a street in the vicinity of Tottenham Court Road. For some time past gas had been noticed escaping in large quantities, and a man was sent to examine the pipes. He applied a light, and a series of explosions occurred. Connecting at the upper end of Charlotte and Percy under Tottenham Court Road, there were six different explosions in various parts, each a deep trench from eight to ten yards long. From the large traffic prevailing in this densely populated neighborhood, it is surprising that the list of casualties in not larger than at present reported. There are two persons fatally wounded and thirty more or less injured. From one trench sixteen persons were extricated. 400 houses were injured and demolished. Many having large rents are rendered untenable. All the windows along the line of the explosions were demolished, the chimney pots thrown down, and the shock was felt as far up as Hampstead Road. A dense volume of gas issued from the trenches, and the air was charged almost to suffocation. The performance of "Forget-Me-Not" at the Prince of Wales' Theatre had to be suspended. The streets and buildings in the neighborhood are in total darkness. Vast crowds are flocking to the scene of the disaster, and a body of police and firemen are on duty. An eye witness, who was standing at his door in Charlotte street, says he noticed a cloud of bricks and stones shoot up a hundred feet into the air, followed by a loud report, which rolled down the street like artillery fire. He observed people stagger and fall, and the ground shook as if there was an earthquake. The workman who applied the light in search of the leak was blown a great distance away and killed.

Some of the Tory papers now protest that it is unfair to quote what the leading advocates of the N. P. said about it during the elections. The Hamilton Spectator says "the Tariff should not be judged by the predictions of its most enthusiastic advocates, but by the simple test has it been a good measure or a bad one." It admits that it has not kept all Canadians in Canada, and says nobody ever supposed it would. It admits it has not introduced a sufficient number of foreigners to consume the surplus products of the country, and actually denies that any one ever said it would. It admits that it has not produced a multitude of new industries in Canada, because it says "we have been doing a little in most of the lines of industry, for which we have the national facilities," but it asserts that it has produced some new industries and greatly enlarged the old ones. The Belleville Intelligencer, the paper which Mr. Bowell edited until he became Minister of Customs, berates the moneyed men of Belleville because they do not invest money in manufactures, and it says:—

With manufactures we can become the great commercial centre of Ontario—our population would very soon be doubled, trebled, or quadrupled—taxation, which is now felt to be a burden, would become lighter—property would greatly increase in value—immense elevators would occupy our docks, and dozens of vessels would be seen were there is now one. Belleville would become the centre of a great wholesale trade—one factory would follow another, one enterprise stimulate the establishment of another—our city would become the Sheffield or Pittsburg of Canada, and our capitalists would find a handsome return for their investments. Without manufactures there will be no growth, no prosperity, no bright future for Belleville—property will become still more depreciated in value—taxation will be higher—our artizans and mechanics will migrate to more favorable localities—our capitalists will have no chances for profitable investments. Our city will become a one-horse town, and we can write upon our walls that its glory hath departed.

This is a plain admission that so far the N. P. has not done much to promote the progress of Belleville.

The Boston Pilot very properly repudiates the idea that Catholics should refuse to vote for General Hancock, because he happened to be the officer in command in the district in which Mrs. Surratt—of whose guilt, by the way, there was nothing like conclusive proof—was hanged; and it says:—

Catholics, of course, laugh at the foolish idea, that they should bear ill will on religious grounds, to any one connected, however closely, with the execution of a Catholic woman; but there are a great many fools in this world, and a very common specimen is the man who supposes other people to be influenced by ideas and ties which would have no weight at all with himself in a similar case.

While we have very little respect for any man who carries his religion into his politics we should have nothing but contempt for the one who caried both into the sacred halls of justice and law.

The last paragraph shows how careful a writer should be in the use of language when dealing with such subjects. What the Pilot meant to say is unobjectionable; what it does says is most objectionable.

RIDGETOWN, July 10.—Mr. Thos. Boothroyd, of Howard township, near here, was attacked yesterday by a hog that had been running wild for about three years, and had grown to an enormous size, with tusks like a wild boar. The hog threw him down and bit him through the heart, then went for his throat, completely severing the jugular vein, and injuring him on the face and hands. He died in fifteen minutes. His funeral to-day was attended by the entire community where he lived. Deceased was a wealthy farmer, and highly respected.

President Grevy, by decrees dated July 6th, has granted pardons and commutations of sentence to more than 1,300 criminals undergoing punishment in home and colonial establishments. The Minister of Marine ordered a large transport ship to be prepared to bring home 313 annoetied Communists from New Caledonia. Four hundred and eighty Communists living in different parts of Europe have been requested to return.

Francis Jack Needham, Earl of Kilmorley, just dead in his 93rd year, was the oldest peer on the roll. He was a mass of eccentricities to the last. For many years before his death he had a worth, containing the body of a deceased friend, and here also was a handsome coffin, prepared by his lordship's instructions for himself. It bears an appropriate name-plate, with a blank for date of death. The mausoleum was originally erected at Brompton Cemetery, but his lordship had it removed at a cost of $3,500 to his seat at Woburn Park, Chertsey; and when this place was sold it was again removed to Isleworth at a further cost of $2,000. Viscount Newry, his grandson, succeeds to the title and estates.

The Boston Congregationalist—the leading organ of the United States of those orthodox Calvinists who just two hundred and fifty-nine years ago began, near Plymouth Rock, the work of planting churches and denominational schools—recently related the incident that in a large New England High School, when all were called upon, only four knew what the Ten Commandments were. Of these one was an Episcopalian, and the others "Romanists." "Some indeed," is said in a sort of regreiful comment, "have gone so far as to insist that the Decalogue went overboard with the Mosaic ritual, and is no more binding than command to sacrifice a bullock every day as a sin-offering." The Congregationalist urged more direct religious and parental influence on the school-children.

This is naturally supplemented by the following rules laid down by Bishop Coxe, an Episcopalian, for the guidance of his denomination on the public school difficulty:

1. When you can do no better utilize the common schools, and supplement them by additional means of doing good.

2. But where you can do better, let us do our full duty to our children, and to all children, by gathering them into schools and colleges thoroughly Christian.

The Cape Breton Times gives some additional particulars showing how the tariff is crushing the life out of the people in the Maritime Provinces. On an importation of iron the duty was $438.35. Under the old tariff it would have been $138.13. The increased taxation was therefore 223 per cent. On an importation of overcoating, which would have been entered under the old tariff at $74.70, the taxation was $176.30, or an increase of 137 per cent. On an importation of blankets the duties were $191.50, against $70.08 under the old tariff; increase in taxation 176 per cent. On an importation of flannels the new duty was $244.27; the old duty would have been $141.23; increase of 73 per cent. The home manufactured articles with which these things come in competition have been increased in price proportionately.

Yakock Khan wants a palace in England, and £10,000 to live on there, he says, will quite satisfy him for the loss of his throne. Abdul Rahman, the most eligible of the pretenders, writes to say that three crores of rupees—that is, about $300,000—will just about fit him out nicely for a candidate for Cabul; while Mohammed Jan is ready to transfer his weight to the British scale, provided he is paid an annuity with a residence in India.

As an excuse for ousting Mr. Andrew Doyle from the position of Captain of the Steam Dredge, the grateful minded Mr. J. C. Pope said "the Dredge was not made for the Doyles." It seems that our Minister of Marine is not so much of a ruler of the Queen's navy as he thought he was. Some one else has had a word to say in the matter, and Mr. Doyle has been reinstated—no thanks to Mr. J. C. Pope; whilst Mr Henry Mutch has reason to feel that he has been fooled.—Charlottetown New Era.

The Cornwall Freeholder thus describes a recent Conservative Picnic in that neighborhood: "The political picnic at Alexandria last Tuesday, under the auspices of John McLennan, M. P., was attended by about 1,200 persons—principally women and children. It began with groans, howls, and yells, when Dr. Bergin showed himself, and finished up with a fight.

A Ritualistic Association, which calls itself the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament, at its annual meeting, justheld, reported that 69 priests and 1,000 lay communicants had been added to the roll of members. The society now has 900 clerical and 12,000 lay members. Canon Carter, who presided, said there was an evident drift favorable to Ritualism, and he thought the last of the prosecutions had been reached for extreme ritual.
