"Over the mighty ocean, thousands of miles away,
You left me to do your duty; I fain would have bidden you stay.
Your King and your country called you, and you nobly took your stand
To fight for home and liberty in the dear homeland.
And then you were taken away, dear; the call came for you to go home;
Under foreign skies you're sleeping—I am left here all alone.
I try to be bright and brave, dear, as the months have passed into a year,
And I wonder will it be long till earth's clouds disappear.
