GENERAL NOTES AND NEWS

Devote each day to the object then in time and every evening will find something done.

An old and well tried remedy is Baird's French Ointment. By its use Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Ulcers, &c. are soon healed. It will cure the Itch in a few days.

Method is like packing things into a box; a good packer will get in half as much more as a bad one.

Advice to mothers. Many children suffer and die from no other cause than an excess of Worms in the Stomach or Intestines. To avoid this give Dr. McLean's Vegetable Worm Syrup, any child will take it.

The desire of more and more rises up by a natural graduation to most, and after that to all.

The proper way to check slander is to despise it; attempt to overtake and refute it, and it will outrun you.

Did She Die.

"No!

"She lingered and suffered long, pining away all the time for years."

"The doctors doing her no good;"

"And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about."

"Indeed! Indeed!"

"How thankful we should be for that medicine."

If every person would be half as good as he expects his neighbor to be what a heaven this world would be.

Father is Getting Well.

My daughters say:

"How much better Father is since he used Hop Bitters."

"He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable."

And we are so glad that he used your Bitters."—A LADY of Utica, N. Y.

When death, the greater reconciler, has come, it is never our tenderness that we repent of, but our severity.

For Delicate, Sickly Children

Scott's Emulsion is unequalled. See what Dr. C. A. Black, of Amherst, N. S., says: "I have been acquainted with Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with hypophosphites, for years, and consider it one of the finest preparations now before the public. Its pleasant flavor makes it the great favorite for children, and I do highly recommend it for all wasting diseases of children and adults. Put up in 50c. and $1 size.

As riches and favor forsake a man we discover him to be a fool; but nobody could find it out in his prosperity.

Cheerfulness is the daughter of employment, and I have known a man to come in high spirits from a funeral merely because he had the management of it.

A Daughter's Misery.

Under the care of the best physicians, Who gave her disease various names,

"But no relief",

And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had shunned for years before using it."—THE PARENTS.

I venerate old age, and I love not the man who can look without emotion upon the sunset of life, when the dusk of evening begins to gather over the watery eye, and the shadows of twilight grow broader and deeper upon the understanding.

Miramichi Advance,

CHATHAM, N. B. - - JUNE 21, 1888

The Mail Service between Miramichi and Fredericton.

The people of York and Northumberland, as well as others directly interested in the matter, will, doubtless, be surprised to learn that notwithstanding the assurances of the Postmaster General during the late session of Parliament, an arrangement has been again entered into by the Post Office Department by which the obsolete tri-weekly horse-team service for conveying the mails between the Miramichi and Fredericton is to be continued. Exactly one month ago, when the vote of $2,967,-620 for Post Office expenses was before the House of Commons, the following discussion took place:—

Mr. Mitchell.—I put a question to the Minister the other day as to the course the Government were to pursue in regard to carrying the mails from Chatham to Fredericton along the Miramichi river. Fifty years ago they were carried in a one-horse chaise; to-day they are carried in the same way, although there is one railway the whole way and two part of the way. Perhaps I have been neglectful of my duty in not pressing the matter earlier; but when I drew the attention of the Minister to it the other day he stated that in two or three days he would determine on a policy. I hope he will communicate to the company that he intends to utilise the railway for the mail service along the route. The railway goes through almost all the villages and there is no reason why the antiquated system for carrying the mails with a horse should not be abandoned and the railways utilised.

Mr. McLelan.—This matter was brought to my notice a year ago; and on enquiry, I was given the information that in the preceding winter the railway had been closed for a time. In three or four cases the mails in the summer were put on the railways which had been newly opened, and in the winter they had to be sent by the old horse conveyance. I was told that the railway did not continue running in the winter of 1886-87.

Mr. Mitchell.—That is not so.

Mr. McLelan.—That was the information given to me, and for that reason I thought we should not be hasty in transferring the mails from the horse and sleigh conveyance until the railway was established. That, I believe, is now established. Then comes the question of cost. I think the carrying of the mails by railway will increase the cost over the old conveyance by over $3,000; but I have taken up the matter and will be able to make a proposition in a few days, I hope, to send the mails by rail.

Mr. Mitchell.—I wish to say this in vindication of the gentlemen who conduct the railway: It was closed for one week in the winter before last, as some other railways were, in consequence of snow storms. But for six weeks the mails had to be carried for a considerable distance on snow-shoes. The mail service, during the past winter, has been performed in a most satisfactory manner, and the railway has not lost more time from snow, on the average, than a great many leading main lines throughout the country; and if there was an objection to it on that ground, the same objection applied to a great many other parts of Canada. Now, if the railway undertook to carry the mail, and if, unfortunately, for a day or two the railway should be snowed up, they are bound to carry the mail on snowshoes, if they cannot in any other way; and I trust my hon. friend will see that an arrangement is come with the railway for the purpose of carrying the mails. The question of cost is not to be considered, provided the railway will carry it at the same rate as other railways do.

We were given to understand that a promise was made subsequently by Postmaster-General McLelan that a daily mail each way would be transmitted by railway between Fredericton and Miramichi, and the ADVANCE stated such to be the fact, its authority being a telegram to that effect to the editor from Mr. Mitchell, Ottawa.

There is little reason to doubt that Mr. McLelan promised the improved service and the failure of the Government to keep faith in the matter will be a great disappointment to all interested. We have frequently urged the reasons why the tri-weekly horse conveyance should be abandoned and need not now repeat them. It is evident, from the statements made by the Postmaster-General, as given in the foregoing Hansard report, that some one has indulged in misrepresentations respecting the manner in which the N. & W. Railway has been operated, but Mr. Temple M. P. for York, who is a Government supporter, was in a position to correct them, even if information was not sought from Mr. Mitchell. We are told that Northumberland is being punished in this way because it does not send a Government supporter to Ottawa, but such treatment as the county receives in this important matter is not calculated to increase its regard for the administration, to say nothing of the fact that in witholding from the people rights which other communities enjoy, the government punishes its friends equally with its opponents. If there is any defence for the treatment we receive in the matter it would be interesting, at least for the people to have it from those amongst us who speak for the Government. If the Advocate, or the gentleman who is said to advise the government in such matters are silent, will the Sun please explain. If they do not the people will assume there is no excuse save such an one as they are ashamed to give.

The Brigade Camp

The Brigade Camp for the Eighth Military District of the Dominion—the Province of New Brunswick—is to assemble at Chatham on Tuesday next, and continue under canvas with us for twelve days. The first day, until its close, will be devoted to what outsiders would call "moving in," that is, the different corps which are to compose the Camp will arrive at different hours—the local corps first, and those from outside places at hours governed by the distances they will come from and the transportation facilities at their command. The position of Chatham in the matter of railway communication will enable all the troops of the Camp—about eight hundred—to arrive before the even ing of the assembly-day, and Wednesday next will, therefore, enable our people to see, for the first time, every arm of the service—save garrison artillery—represented in one brigade on the banks of the Miramichi.

It is to be hoped that, between this date and the 26th, we shall have the early summer rainfall which has been expected and is so necessary, especially for the grain and potatoe crops—and which must, in the ordinary course, come soon—before the Camp assembles, so that our military visitors may enjoy our ordinary summer weather and thus be enabled to fully appreciate the scenic, climatic, sanitary and other advantages which the locality offers for such gatherings.

There is a disposition in all communities to undervalue the importance of military organizations, and, especially so, in those which, like ours, have, fortunately, had immunity from the exigencies of pressing military necessities. The occasion, however, for absorbing public attention being directed towards the commercial strength and efficiency in drill and discipline of our volunteers has not been wanting, even within the memory of those amongst whom the men composing this year's District Brigade Camp are to be located, and it will be the duty of our citizens who are not identified with the force, to embrace the opportunity that will be offered to them of judging the Brigade as a whole, as well as in detail, as a part of the defensive organization of the country, maintained as a part of a sound governmental policy, calculated to command and, if necessary, enforce respect for both our civil and national rights and privileges.

The Miramichi has always—justly we think—enjoyed a reputation for a spirit of hospitality. It is true that Chatham is a centre more devoted to the material industries than the pursuit of prominence as a great social centre, because, in the condition of the people, who are, essentially, workers, there is neither the general inclination nor means for affording to large bodies of, visitors the congenial enjoyments, pastimes and social surroundings which are available in many other communities. It will, however, be the aim of all amongst us to give our military friends such welcome and good treatment during their stay as are within our means, and we will look forward with confidence to their just expectations in that respect being fulfilled, not only by our people who are identified with the service, but by every member of the community whose pride it is to feel that the Miramichi is honored on this, the first occasion that offered, by being selected as the Brigade camping-ground of the Province.

A Surprise.

The United States Republican Convention is in session at Chicago, and the indications are that notwithstanding his protest against being nominated as the party's presidential candidate, Blaine will be the man chosen. The chief reason is because the party seems to have no strong men to choose from. Blaine has many loyal friends, within the party, but he is also detested by many of the best Republicans.

The Burden of the Public Debt.

Chatham World:—

The St. John GLOBE says "the new loan will add a charge of about $650,000 to the annual burden." The loan is for $20,000,000, at 3 per cent. interest. Three per cent. of $20,000,000 used to be $600,-000, not $650,000.

The interest on a public loan does not represent the entire charge imposed by that loan on the people. The expense of management, exchange for the transmission of interest, etc., and charges for sinking fund are all to be added to the interest in order to make up the entire annual burden. In the year 1887 the interest paid on the public debt was $9,682,828, while the other charges added to this were $1,-880,723. If we deduct from the interest paid the interest earned on investments we will find that the real interest in 1887 was $8,692,042. If we deduct from the other charges amount of premium, discount and exchange earned we find the net payment was $1,-840,215—making the whole net payment on account of charges on the public debt in the year 1887, $10,532,257, so that the extra charges, over and above interest, amount to one-sixth of the whole. In other words the charges for management, sinking fund, etc., are equal to about three-quarters of one per cent on the total net debt. Apply this to the new debt, and it will be seen that our figure is a very moderate one, and that instead of overcalculating we under-estimated the actual burden of the debt.—Globe.

The Tariff Issue.

The importance of the tariff issue in the coming Presidential contest in the United States is shown by the fact of the Chicago Tribune, a strong Republican journal, warning its party that ultra-protectionism is not a winning card. It points out that in the strip of territory about New York Bay, including New York City, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Queen's and Richmond Counties, which comprises the greatest hive of tariff-protected industry in the United States, in the contest of 1884, the Democratic majority was 62,-891, as compared with 54,494 in 1880. In the latter year the Republicans had a moderate protectionist for a candidate, General Garfield; in 1884 they had an ultra-protectionist, James G. Blaine. The same results were observable in the whole State of New York, as well as in Connecticut and New Jersey. These facts lead the Tribune to say:—

Surely, if workmen in protected industries can be won by the high-tariff doctrine such a result should have appeared four years ago, and the States of New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut been saved to the Republican party. Mr. Blaine was a genial, gifted, attractive, inspiring leader. No advocate could urge high protectionism on workmen with greater vigor and plausibility than he. Nevertheless they rejected his doctrine, increased their majorities against the Republican ticket 8,400 votes, and left the unprotected farmers to champion high protectionism. Is it good policy to nominate a candidate with extreme protectionist views or make a platform calling for a tariff higher than the average sentiment of the party favors. Will not such policies make defeat certain in the doubtful Eastern States? The election returns show that when the Republican party has been defeated in New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut it was owing to the vote in the manufacturing centres and that just as high protection doctrines are emphasized the majority again the Republican party in these centres is increased. How much ultra tariffism then will be needed in the platform or in the person of the candidate to insure defeat and make certain the loss of the doubtful Eastern States?

From the above it will be seen that Republican tariff reform journals fully recognize the danger to their party of the high protection issue being emphasized by the nomination of an ultra-protectionist, whether Blaine or Chauncy M. Depew. All this is significant as to the drift of public opinion in the United States; it is steadily in the direction of a lowering of the tariff barriers to trade. The Democrats have recognised this and made tariff reform a principal plank in their platform, while the Republicans are making the discovery that high protectionism is no longer a shibboleth by which to conjure the Republican masses to the polls.—Montreal Herald.

Death of the Emperor of Germany.

The N. Y. Herald correspondent gives a graphic description of the death of the Emperor of Germany, as follows:—

BERLIN, June 15, 1888.—My yesterday's despatch closed at midnight with the Emperor slowly sinking and sad watchers around him. He seemed to be no better nor worse until dawn came. Then he began to show that ominous restlessness which physicians recognize as a mortal sign in extreme illness. Not that he was in pain, for he evidently did not suffer at all. The restlessness increased, and once more the room was filled with his sad family. Next to her mother stood his daughter Sophie.

LAST WORDS TO HIS DAUGHTER SOPHIE.

She yet held the paper which he yesterday placed in her hand, on which he had written faintly:—"Remain as noble and good as you have been in the past. This is the last wish of your dying father."

Now and then a smile flitted over the Emperor's face, which wore an expression showing that he was not in pain. The last nourishment he took was an orange. The last present he received with a grateful smile was a basketful of white lilies, such as he was wont to find in the Havel when he bathed there every summer.

ATTEMPTING RECONCILIATION.

The Emperor took the Chancellor's hand and gently taking the Empress' trembling white hand laid it into that of the powerful Minister. The preacher of the garrison of Potsdam administered the last sacraments. Matters went sadly on, the physicians watching sharply until ten o'clock came.

What follows came to me from an eye witness. Sir Morell Mackenzie stepped out, walked rapidly to the Crown Prince William, who was waiting for him, and, after a few hurried words, they went in where the Emperor was breathing his last. His head was raised by large pillows. His wan hand lay on the white coverlet nervously twitching it. The Empress at the lower end of the bed knelt and remained in that position during the last hour, watching her husband's faint gasps for breath. At the foot of the bed knelt the four daughters, Prince Henry and the two daughters-in-law. The chaplain softly murmured the litany. At some distance were the members of the household.

HIS THOUGHTS WITH HIS WIFE.

Whenever consciousness returned his hand sought that of the Empress, pressed it softly and held it. He would not quit his hold until the fits of coma overcame him. His every look showed that he was fully aware of what was passing around him. Indeed, his eyes had such an eloquent expression that his very thoughts seemed revealed. He breathed his last quietly and painlessly, the immediate cause of death being pronounced paralysis of the lungs.

THE CLOSING STRUGGLE.

Every five minutes Sir Morell—the other physicians standing behind him—felt the Emporer's pulse, and the expression of his face showed that it was growing weaker. The breathing grew short and so faint that the physician was obliged to place his ear close to the Emperor's lips. At eleven o'clock Sir Morell signed to the Empress, who fervently kissed the hand of the dying Emperor, and it was observed he drew it to him and kissed it—his last act. At twelve minutes past eleven o'clock Sir Morell took out his watch and declared that life had passed away. The Crown Prince—now the Emperor—gave whispered orders and two adjutants left the room.

THE NEWS MADE PUBLIC.

At a quarter past twelve, while the silent throngs watched with bated breath, the imperial standard was lowered to half mast, a sign which the reverent crowds outside acknowledged by baring their heads, many crossing their hands as if in prayer.

An hour afterward Prince Bismarck spent five minutes in the death chamber and held an hour's conference with the new Emperor, William II. He found the dead Emperor dressed in a loose white coat, a laurel wreath on his breast, just above the hands, which are folded over a cavalry sword. Only the forehead, eyes and nose are visible, the mouth and chin being covered up.

Frederick William Nicholas Charles, emperor of Germany, was born at the palace in Potsdam on October 18th, 1831. He entered the military service at an early age, rose to the rank of general, and held numerous important appointments. In 1866, when the war broke out between Prussia and Austria, the chief of his staff was Major-General Von Blumenthal, and he had under his orders three army corps, beside the guard corps under Prince Augustus of Wurtemburg. He led his army, composed of 125,000 men, from Silesia through the passes of the Sudetic hills, an operation exposed to great difficulties and to considerable danger. By a series of brilliant operations the army pushed its way through the mountains, fighting severe actions at Trautenau, Nachod, Skalitz and Schweinschadel. Before he had practically effected his junction with Prince Frederick Charles General Benedek had made preparations to attack the latter with a superior force, and the battle of Sadowa or Koniggratz was the result (July 3, 1866). The Crown Prince appeared on the field unexpected by the Austrians in the middle of the battle, struck the heart of the Austrian position, and decided the fortunes of the day. His march from Miletin to Koniggratz, and his series of victories on entering Bohemia, established his reputation as an energetic commander. In the war between Germany and France, he acted a most conspicuous part. The close of July, 1870, found him on the Rhine frontier in command of the Third German army, comprising the 5th, 6th, and 11th North German corps, and the divisions furnished by Baden, Wurtemberg, and Hesse, in all about 200,000 men and 500 guns. On the 4th of August he vigorously attacked the position held at Weissenburg by that portion of Marshal MacMahon's corps which was commanded by General Abel Douay. The French were repulsed and dispersed after a severe struggle. Following up this important victory he attacked on the 6th the United Army corps of Generals MacMahon, Failly, and Canrobert, drawn up in position at Woerth. MacMahon had under him 50,000 men in all, and occupied a strong defensive position on the slopes of the Vosges. The Crown Prince arrived from Weissenburg on the evening of the 5th, with an army of 130,000 men, and began the attack at seven the next morning. The French line was turned at two points and their left and centre broken, notwithstanding a desperate charge of cavalry, which was ordered by MacMahon as a last resort. At the memorable engagement near Sedan (on September 1st) his troops and those of Prince Frederick Charles were engaged against the greater part of MacMahon's forces; and the Germans succeeded in crossing the river Meuse, this extremely difficult operation being effected by the Crown Prince with his Prussians and Wurtembergers, supported by the Bavarians under General Von der Tann. He next made his way towards Paris, entered Versailles, September 30, commenced to throw additional troops round the capital, and remained in the vicinity of the invested city until after the conclusion of peace. On Oct. 28 he was created a field marshal of Prussia, and on Nov. 8 a Russian field marshal. After the termination of the war the Imperial Prince, as he had been styled after his father, had been proclaimed emperor of Germany, paid a visit to England in July, 1871, accompanied by the princess, and, after spending a few days in London, their imperial highnesses became the guests of the Queen at Osborne. The emperor married, January 25th, 1858, Victoria Adelaide, princess royal, of Great Britain, by whom he had seven children—Frederick William Victor Albert (who now succeeds to the throne), born January 27th, 1859; Victoria Elizabeth Augusta Charlotte, born January 24th, 1860; Albert William Henry, born August 20th, 1862; Frederica Amelia Wilhelmina Victoria, born April 12th, 1866; Joachim Frederick Ernest Waldemar, born February 10th, 1868; Sophia Dorothy Ulrica Alice, born June 14, 1870; and Margaret Beatrix Feodore, born April 22nd, 1872.

BERLIN, JUNE 15.

The Bundesrath met at noon, and Prince Bismarck officially announced the death of Emperor Frederick and the accession to the throne of William, who takes the title of William II.

The Ministers assembled at 4 p. m. in the Friedrichskron Castle and awaited an audience with the new Emperor and Empress.

"The royal sufferer has ended his earthly career. By God's decree the Emperor-King, our most gracious master, passed to his eternal rest shortly after eleven o'clock this morning, after long and grievous sufferings, which were borne with admirable fortitude and submission to God's will. The royal house and the German people have been twice bereaved within a short time. They deeply mourn the all too early decease of our much beloved ruler."

The Reichsanzeiger also publishes a telegram from Baden stating that the Dowager Empress Augusta, to whom the news of the dangerous turn which the Emperor's malady had taken, had been carefully broken, immediately expressed a wish to return to Berlin. Her physicians, however, would not permit her to undertake the journey, her strength having been so overtaxed by recent events as to render her unable to stand the fatigue of the trip. She may return next week.

COMMENTS OF BISMARCK'S ORGAN.

The North German Gazette says:—"He was a true Hohenzollern. He leaves behind him in the remembrance of the hearts of his contemporaries and as a heritage to future generations the memory of a Prince in whom the highest perfected virtues of noble manhood were as a crown of glory about his head, illuminating his whole being."

The same paper referring to the new Emperor, William II., says:—"A precious possession of the house of Hohenzollern, handed down from father to son through many generations—namely, an earnest feeling of duty and strictness in the performance of their high functions—has been present with the new emperor in all his surroundings, indicating to him his path through life. He passed the years of youthful education in rigorous work and thus prepared himself for the exalted and difficult duties of his princely office."

MINOR NOTES.

Dr. Mackenzie informed the Empress on Wednesday that he had abandoned all hope of a further prolongation of life.

It is reported that King Humbert, of Italy, is coming to attend the funeral.

By order of the Evangelical Church Council the bells will be tolled at specified hours for fourteen days succeeding in all the Protestant churches of the kingdom. The bells in Berlin began tolling at two o'clock this afternoon. Mourning is displayed on many houses. In a number of shop windows busts of the Emperor veiled with crape have been placed.

PARIS, June 15, 1888.—Immediately upon hearing of the death of Emperor Frederick, M. Goblet, Minister of Foreign Affairs, proceeded to the German Embassay and offered his condolences. The other Ministers did likewise during the evening. General Bruyere called on behalf of President Carnot. President Carnot also telegraphed a message of sympathy to the new Emperor.

The Paris newspapers, without exception, deplore the death of Emperor Frederick, and pay tribute to his manly qualities and liberal, peace loving disposition.

LONDON, June 15, 1888.—Mr. W. H. Smith, leader of the goverement, announced this afternoon in the House of Commons the death of the Emperor Frederick He said that he would move an address on Monday expressing the deep sorrow of the English nation for the calamity which has overtaken the royal family and people of Germany.

In the House of Lords this afternoon Lord Salisbury announced the death of the Emperor of Germany. He said:—"It is needless to say how deeply we grieve over the loss so deeply valued here and in Germany. The Queen has lost a son-in-law and Germany a most enlightened ruler. It will be your Lordships' desire to put on formal record the sympathy you feel for the afflicted relatives and for the nation whose loss we deplore. I will therefore, on Monday, move an address to the Queen and another to the Dowager Empress Victoria."

THE POPE'S REGRET.

Immediately on receipt of the intelligence of the Emperor's death the Pope wired to the Empress his sympathy. In his message His Holiness said that the sad news caused him profound grief.

Telegrams from the provinces all indicate that great sympathy has been aroused. The German Professors and students at Bologna immediately started for home. King Humbert is preparing to start for Berlin. Queen Margherita and the Prince of Naples have sent telegrams of condolence to the Empress Victoria Signor Lemmi, Grand Master of Free Masons, has sent a telegram addressed to the Masons of Germany, saying:—"The heroic resignation which the Emperor displayed under his sufferings proves with what courage and perseverance he would have worked for universal peace and fraternity."

POTSDAM, June 18.—Prince Bismarck and Count Von Moltke and a number of foreign princes arrived here this morning. The railway stations at Berlin and Potsdam are closed against the public. Crowds have gathered outside these buildings. Soldiers and police are posted all around the stations to keep back the crowd. Frederichskron palace is guarded like a fortess. At 9 o'clock this morning bells tolled and the ministers who were to officiate at the Emperor's funeral took their places around the coffin in the palace. The choir sung the hymns. Chaplain Koegel blessed the corpse and the mourners, after which the choir sang another hymn. The commanders of 12 regiments of which the late emperor was the chief, officer, carried the coffin to the hearse. Eight majors then took the horses by the bridles and the procession started for the church.

At 10.30 o'clock the troops assembled in position and the various dignitaries, deputations and warriors' associations proceeded to their places. When the funeral procession reached the castle the ceremonies began with the singing of a hymn, after which Chaplain Koegel offered prayer. The procession then formed and moved to the church. After service the chaplain pronounced the benediction. There was no sermon. After the firing of volleys and minute guns by the troops the mourners took their departure, the court preacher repeated the closing prayer, and the choir intoned.

BERLIN, JUNE 18.—Emperor William has issued a proclamation to the Prussian people, in which he says:—The grave had scarcely closed over Emperor William I, before my father, Frederick III., was called away. Emperor Frederick bore a hard fate, and showed heroic, Christian resignation. He remained faithful to the kingly duties in the few months allotted to him, and exhibited all the noble qualities of mind and heart. His virtues and his victories on the battle-field will be remembered as long as German hearts continue to beat. I have taken the government, looking up to the king of all kings, and pray God, like my father, to be a just and clement prince, to foster piety and fear of God, to guard peace, to promote the welfare of the land, to be a helper of the poor and distressed, to be a firm guardian of right and progress in my kingly duties, in unison with the people who, in good and in evil days, have stood true to their kings. I count upon the people's fidelity and, concious of my purpose, reciprocate it heartily as a true prince to true people both equal, and both equally ready to make sacrifices for the fatherland. My confidence is derived from this and God will lend me strength and wisdom to discharge the kingly office for the welfare of the fatherland.

LONDON, June 18.—Funeral service was held at Balmoral castle to-day, for the Emperor Frederick. Queen Victoria was present.

News and Notes.

There was laughing in England when the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot went into the hansom cab business, but it has stopped. He started a new thing in cabs, they having cost 100 guineas apiece, with springs, rubber tyres and all the improvements. They are so well patronized that not one of his drivers has joined the big cabmen's strike which is now on, and his lordship is about to sell the business for $200,000.

The swiftest cruiser that has yet been built for the Royal Navy was launched on Saturday, 9th at Chatham and will be named the Medea. She is one of the five fast cruisers that were laid down last year, but only one other of the five is expected to be as fast as she. The Magicienne, the Marathon, and Melpomene will steam about nineteen and three-quarter knots an hour, while the Medea and Medusa will steam twenty knots, or just over twenty-three miles an hour, and for some time to come will be among the fastest warships afloat.

The American House of Representatives the other day on motion of Mr. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, affirmed the principle of unrestricted reciprocity with Canada whenever the latter country should make the reductions. The motion was only intended to affirm a principle, and not to be reported to the Senate; but the circumstance that the ministerial party, with the single exception of Mr. Randall, voted for the motion is encouraging to the advocates of unrestricted reciprocity in Canada. The Tories have always argued that the United States would not concede the principle even if Canada endorsed it; but the passing of Mr. Breckenridge's motion brushes away that contention.

littering the plain in front, came suddenly a great shout, that grew in volume as it rolled nearer. The hoofs of a galloping horse rattled on the causeway. A moment later, Moltke, his face for once quivering with excitement, sprang from the saddle, and running towards the King, cried out: 'It is good for us; we have won the plateau, and the victory is with your Majesty!' The King sprang to his feet with a 'God be thanked!' Bismarck, with a great sob of relief, crushed his letters in the hollow of his hand, and a simultaneous hurrah welcomed the glad tidings. A cutler who happened to be hard by improved the occasion in a practical way; he brought up his wine-barrel, and dispensed its contents. King William took a hearty pull of the thin red wine out of a cracked tumbler, and never made a wry face."

In a case recently decided by the Supreme Court of Nebraska the drawee of a draft wrote across the face thereof the words "Excepted September 18. L. B. Mahon." The court held that this was a valid acceptance. It said: The evident purpose of Mahon in writing the word "excepted" was to accept the draft; and parole proof of this purpose, not being inconsistent with the writing, was proper, and should have been received. Had Mahon intended to refuse acceptance, it was unnecessary to put such refusal in writing, as he was, no doubt, aware. The law is not a system of quirks and quibbles upon which courts may seize to defeat rights, but a system of rules and principles in which the rights of parties are protected and enforced, and it is the duty of a court to disregard mere pretexts and decide a case, if possible, upon the merits.

Mr. John Brooks, who had, up to eight weeks ago, taught school in Portland upwards of 35 years, died at his residence Friday evening, aged 60 years. He came here about 40 years ago from Antrim, Ireland, where he had been teacher. He was said to be the oldest living school teacher in New Brunswick.—St. There is a teacher at Bay du Vin, Northumberland Co., older than Mr. Brooks was.

We understand that the Boston potatoe market has completely collapsed. A telegram was received here on Tuesday by an agent for one of the largest Boston firms of potatoe dealers, ordering him not to buy at any price. There seems to be plenty of potatoes yet on the Island.—Summerside Farmer.

At a meeting of the Presbyterian conference in Halifax on Thursday last the presbytery of Newfoundland, recommended the application of Rev. E. N. Suckling of the Reformed Episcopal church, to join the Presbyterian chuch. He had furnished documents showing that he had been regularly ordained a minister of the Reformed Episcopal church and had charge of a congregation of that body for several years. Thirty-five families belonging to the congregation to which he had ministered were anxious to follow his example.

A minister named Pendleton is reported to have furnished the Worcester (Mass) Telegram with certain scandalous reports of the domestic discomforts of Mrs. Cleveland, and the debauchery of the President. Mrs. Cleveland's attention having been called to the matter by a friend, she has written to that lady an indignant and emphatic denial, which has been published. It is difficult to imagine a minister so disgracing his profession and himself, and it is not impossible that the whole thing is an invention to serve the purposes of Mr. Cleveland's opponants in the Presidential campaign. If so, such tactics, tho' exciting even more contempt than disgust, are very likely to hoist their authors with their own petard by inducing sympathy instead of reprobation. This episode reminds us of the other Republican clergyman, who, by means of the famous "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" speech so materially aided Mr Cleveland's first election.

FINE SALMON.—Station Master Barbarie of Campbellton is a very successful sportsman. A few days ago he succeeded in landing four salmon which aggregated 119 pounds.

A FIRE-ALARM was caused on Monday last by a spark igniting Mr. Asa Whitehead's woodshed. It was extinguished by water from buckets without serious damage being done.

THEY ESCAPED FROM JAIL.—The three prisoners confined in jail at Dalhousie effected their escape Tuesday night, breaking through the sewer, and are now enjoying the balmy air of freedom. The Dalhousie jail is a magnificent edifice, but requires some repairs.

THE SALMON FISHERMEN appear to be having good sport at present. Mr. Chas. A. Baillie has just returned from the Restigouche, where, with an American friend, he captured twenty-eight fine fish, the smallest of which weighed 16½ pounds. They were fishing for three days.—Globe 18th.

A SMALL BUSINESS.—The Moncton Times vents its rage over the Brigade Camp not being held at that place by publishing an attack on the son of Colonel Maunsell who commands the Shediac Cavalry troop. The grounds of the attack are entirely unfounded, but that matters little to the Times.

STRAWBERRIES are likely to be a short crop this season. The reports from Nova Scotia indicate about a two-thirds average, as many of the plants were winter-killed, and the same cause has affected the fields at Clifton and other places in this Province. One grower in Queen's County who expected a yield of five thousand quarts has lost nearly all his plants during the winter and his crops will scarcely pay for picking.

FINE ROBES will be made of the two large bear skins that have been displayed by Mr. Clowrey at his store in Chatham for a few days past. They are each about seven feet and a half long, and the same in extreme width. One of the animals was killed at Tabusintac last winter by some lumbermen who felled a tree on his den and the other in a gun-trap at Bay-du-Vin, a week or two ago.

THE "VANCOUVER," which left Rimouski on Thursday last for Liverpool, has on board five bishops, viz: Most Rev. John Medley, Metropolitan of Canada; Right Rev. J. W. Williams, Bishop of Quebec; Right Rev. Arthur Sweatman, Bishop of Toronto; Right Rev. Charles Hamilton, Bishop of Niagara, and Right Rev. Adelbert Anson, Bishop of Qu'Appelle. There were also ten clergymen and seventy other passengers, including Mr. Gellibrand of London, who lately visited Chatham, and Mr. Richard Fairey.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT:—On Saturday last while Fleming Johnston was working at Mr. W. S. Loggie's Shingle Machine in the Cassaly Factory, Chatham, he attempted to pull some rubbish away from the saw, which was running at a very high rate of speed. Before he was aware of his peril, his left wrist had come in contact with the saw and his hand was cut off. He grasped the stump and ran to the office of Dr. J. B. Benson in the next block, where he was put under the influence of an anæsthetic and the limb dressed. Johnston is, we believe, only 19 years old and has the reputation of being a very industrious and worthy young man. Much sympathy is felt for him in his great misfortune.

INTERESTING SCOTT ACT CASES.—The Scott Act cases against Wm. LeBlanc and Jane Downey have again been postponed, this time until the 25th inst. The examination of witnesses was concluded this morning, but Stipendiary Wortman intends taking ten days to consider the points raised before giving judgment. Witnesses examined on previous hearings of the Downey case testified to the purchase of beer manufactured by Ready, of St. John, which on analysis was found to contain 2 1-5 per cent. of alcohol. Mr. R. Rigman, chemist, was examined this morning and asked if he considered that a beverage containing the above percentage of alcohol would be intoxicating. He replied that as there would be only about one glass of alcohol in every forty of the beer, no man's stomach could contain enough to intoxicate him. The LeBlanc case is somewhat similar, the beer which witnesses testified to having purchased at his place containing about the same proportion of alcohol as the Ready beer. —Moncton Transcript.

Serious Fire.

On Thursday last a sweeping fire took place on the farm known as that of Mr. Donald Ross, Sr., Black River, in the vicinity of Cameron school house. It appears that Mr. John McDonald, who owns the property adjoining that of Mr. Ross, was burning brush, or farm rubbish, and it is supposed the fire originated in that way. It seems that the family had little warning, as their buildings were in flames before they had opportunity to save anything. The dwelling house, owned, we learn, by Mr. John Ross, son of Donald, Sr., the old barn and materials for a new one, were all consumed, together with nearly everything they contained. Besides the household furniture, a watch and some money in bank notes belonging to Donald Ross, Jr.; a trunk with wearing apparel and $100 in gold, belonging to Miss Helen Ross, as well as clothes of Mr. Ross' other two sons, were burned. Amongst the property destroyed in the barn were a mowing machine, horse rake, plough five sleighs, a new waggon, seventy bushels oats, two tons hay, a pig and thirty fowls. There was, we believe, no insurance and the loss is therefore, a very heavy one to the family, who are practically homeless.

Rural Deanery Meeting.

The clergy of the Rural Deanery of Chatham met in Dalhousie on Monday the 11th inst. and two following days. There were present the Revs. D. Forsyth, Rural Dean, C. D. Brown, Rector of Dalhousie, W. J. Wilkinson of Baie des Vents, E. B. Hooper of Weldford, and G. J. D. Peters of Bathurst. Revs. J. H. S. Sweet of Newcastle and D. V. Gwillym of Richibucto were not present.

On Tuesday the 12th inst. there was Morning Prayer with a celebration of the Holy Eucharist at St. Mary's Church Dalhousie. The Frayers were said by the Rev. W. J. Wilkinson, and the Lessons read by the Rev. E. B. Hooper. The Rural Dean was preacher and celebrant. After the Service the Deanery Chapter met for the transaction of business at the Rectory, and Evensong was said at the Parish Church at 7.30. The Prayers were said by the Rev. E. B. Hooper and the Lessons read by the Rural Dean. The Rev. W. J. Wilkinson was the preacher. On Wednesday there was Morning Prayer and Litany, the Lessons and Litany being taken by the Rev. G. J. D. Peters, and the Prayers by Rev. W. J. Wilkinson. During the day the chapter again met for business, discussing among other matters, the Missionary Schedule to be submitted to the general committee of the Diocesan Church Society in July.

On Wednesday afternoon the clergy in company with some of the Parishioners of Dalhousie were driven to Campbellton where evensong was said in the Parish Church at 7.30. Prayers were said by the Rural Dean, the Lessons read by Rev. W. J. Wilkinson, and the Sermon was delivered by the Rev. G. J. D. Peters. There was a liberal offertory for the Diocesan Church Society. The clergy were most kindly and hospitably entertained at the houses of Mr. Armstrong, the efficient Lay-Reader, and Mr. Sowerby. After the Service the clergy met the Metropolitan and Canon Medley who had just arrived by train at Campbellton on their way to England to attend the Lambeth Conference, and wished them a prosperous voyage and safe return. On Thursday the clergy returned homewards after a profitable and enjoyable meeting. The next meeting together with the Annual Choral Union Service will (D. V.) be held in Bathurst in September next. It is hoped that the Rev. J. De Soyers of St. John (stone) Church will be the preacher on that occasion.

Mothers!

Castoria is recommended by physicians for children teething. It is a purely vegetable preparation, its ingredients are published around each bottle. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, regulates the bowels, quiets pain, cures diarrhœa and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms, and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the children's panacea—the mothers' friend, 35 doses, 35 cents.

Blackville Notes.

Mr. John Bowser has commenced work on the Public Hall. The sills have been laid and the frame will probably be raised on Saturday next.

A necktie and apron fair is to be held here on the evening of Thursday 21st inst. The affair is being got up by the ladies of the R. C. Church; and something new in Blackville. It will, no doubt, be well patronized.

A new Division of S. of T. was organized in Blissfield on Saturday evening 16th inst. A number of the members of the Blackville Division attended. Some of the Brothers looked very lonely driving away without a young lady to relieve the tedium of the journey.

Blackville, June 19th, 1888.

Escuminac Point Notes.

LOBSTERS, the past week, have not been as good a catch here as they were in the early part of the season.

MACKEREL and codfish are reported in the Bay.

CODFISH:—Israel Burke and William Le Breton each caught 1000 codfish off Tabusintac beach last Friday and Saturday, in twenty-two fathoms of water. They also caught mackerel in their nets.

VISITORS are putting in an appearance. There was quite a fraternal meeting of telegraph operators here on the evening of the 9th. Your correspondent was not allowed to be present at the social gathering, whether or not it was of a public or private nature I have no means of knowing, but, in the meantime, we will await and time will prove what friend Daniel and his associates was about. Miss Williston and Miss Gjertz of Bay du Vin paid the Point a visit on the 8th.

SALMON has been a fair catch in Bay du Vin Bay and on Fox Island but very scarce here. To-day (18th) there is a better appearance, being the best catch of the season.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Death of Murdoch McDonald.

Particulars concerning the death of Mr. Murdoch McDonald, formerly of Black River, and who was well known amongst the lumbermen of Northumberland and Gloucester, have been received by his friends here. McDonald was one of a party of eleven lumbermen who started from Boston July 1st, 1887, under arrangements with G. D. Emery of Chelsea, to go to Central America and get out mahogany logs for him. The party consisted of A. C. Fraser and Wm. Black of Weldford, Murdoch McDonald of Chatham and the remainder from Economy, N. S. All the party, on reaching their destination, on the Bluefields River, Nicaragua, and going to work, were prostrated with Malarial fever, but recovered. McDonald and some others had relapses and were obliged to return North. His relatives, having learned that he died at one of the New Orleans Hospitals, caused enquiry to be made through Dr. G. M. Duncan of Bathurst, who was informed by letter dated 5th inst., from the hospital authorities, that McDonald was admitted on 27th December 1887 and died on 27th Feb. 1888. His case was one of Pernicious Malarial Fever with which he had been sick four months prior to his admission in the Hospital. His remains were interred in the Hospital Cemetery.

The Inter-Provincial Match.

NEW BRUNSWICK CARRIES OFF THE HONORS, NOVA SCOTIA BEING SECOND AND P. E. I. ISLAND THIRD.

HALIFAX, N. S., JUNE 16th, 1888.

The third annual inter-provincial rifle match took place yesterday afternoon, for the first time on Bedford range. The three teams—from New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia—contained some of the best marksmen in the maritime provinces, many of whom have represented their respective provinces at Wimbledon on different occasions. A great deal of interest is taken in the matches between the inter-provincial teams, and although there was not a very large number of spectators at the range yesterday excitement reached a high pitch as the scores of the teams fluctuated.

The first match took place at Moncton in 1866, when only Nova Scotia and New Brunswick teams competed, the islanders being unable to be present through having insufficient practice with the Martini-Henri rifle, which is used in the competitions. In this match the New Brunswickers were victorious, having scored 701 points to 693 put together by the Nova Scotia men.

The next match took place at Charlottetown, the Nova Scotians coming out ahead, the scores being: Nova Scotia, 654; Prince Edward Island, 590, and New Brunswick, 571. Yesterday the New Brunswick team won by a score of 661, Nova Scotia following with 646 and P. E. Island being last with 616.

The scores were as follows:

An analysis of the scores shows that New Brunswick beat Nova Scotia by 15 points and P. E. Island by 45. Nova Scotia lead the Island men by 30 points. At the 200 yards range Nova Scotia beat New Brunswick by 4 points and P. E. Island by 15; at 500 yards New Brunswick were the victors by 15 points over the Islanders, while Nova Scotia fell two points below the latter; at 600 yards New Brunwick again came in ahead, leaving Nova Scotia 2 points behind, with P. E. Island 19 behind the former and 17 away from the Nova Scotia team. A heavy and uncertain wind was blowing all day and the remark was frequently heard "That was the hardest shooting I have had for a long time."

An Island Man Disappears.

We are informed that a young man named David Power, son of Mrs. Mary Power (widow) of Lot 16, disappeared rather suddenly last August and has not yet been heard of. He had been employed lumbering in New Brunswick for some time and returned home in July. Intending to engage in the oyster fishery, he formed a partnership with another man and purchased a boat for which each contributed half. About this time also, he received some $80 or $100 from a farmer who had bought a farm from him a few years ago and was now paying off the balance due. With this money Power attended the Kensington tea on the 23rd of August last, and in the evening proceeded to Summerside. That is the last that his friends have heard of him. It is not even known where he stayed while there. Power was about 5 feet 10 inches in height, 28 years of age, stout and heavy, weighing about 175 lbs., with light complection and red mustache. He wore dark clothes and a soft felt hat. His widowed mother is naturally very anxious and would be most thankful for any information respecting her son.—Summerside Pioneer.

A Floating Sawmill.

Along the bayous and lagoons of Florida grows some of the finest timber in the South, much of it in places considered entirely inaccessible until J. L. Maul & Son hit upon the plan of constructing a floating sawmill. This idea they carry into execution, and their mammoth mill, which now lies off the banks of Burton & Harrison's hammock, near Palatka, is, according to the Southern Lumberman, a marvel of mechanical ingenuity. It has a length of eighty and a breadth of forty feet, and is so solidly built that the motion of the machinery has no more effect upon it than if it were built upon the solid land. Although it stands five feet high out of the water, its draught is only about a foot and a half, which permits it to be taken into the shallowest lagoons, where timber could not be floated. It is equipped with the latest machinery, planer, box heading, shingle saws, and a fine forty horse power engine and boiler. On the hurricane deck is the cabin and office for the proprietor, while the cook house, where the men board, is in the corner of the main deck, which is otherwise free for the piling of lumber, the machinery being all below it. This floating mill has so far proved eminently successful, exceeding the expectations of the proprietors in this respect, and is probably the pioneer of numerous craft of the same kind.—Scientific American.

A Memento of Beecher.

No more curious memento of Beecher exists than that owned by Edison, the inventor of the phonograph. That instrument for impressing on a soft metal sheet the utterences of the human voice, and then emitting it again by the turning of a crank, could never be put to any very valuable use, and Edison has only gained from it a few thousand dollars in royalties from exhibitors. But he utilized it to make a collection of famous voices. Since he became famous his visitors have included hundreds of celebrities. Instead of asking them for their autographs or photographs he has in two or three hundred instances requested them to speak a few sentences into a phonograph. He has kept the plates in a cabinet, and occasionly he runs some of them through the machine, which sends out the words exactly as uttered. Edison is probably the only man who can revive the silent voice of the great preacher.—New York Cor. Chicago Herald.

Installation of Our New Governor-General.

OTTAWA, June 11.—The installation ceremonies and swearing in of His Excellency Lord Stanley took place this afternoon. At 3 o'clock a procession entered the Red Chamber of the Senate, consisting of Lord Stanley, preceded by Lieuts. McMahon and Stanley, aides, and followed by Capt. Bagot, Military Secretary, Sir John Macdonald and other Ministers of the Crown, the Mayor and Corporation of Ottawa bringing up the rear. Lord Stanley walked up to the head of the table, where he remained standing, Major-Gen. Middleton and headquarters' staff on his left and Captain Bagot and His Excellency's staff on his right. The Ministers of the Crown took their places at either side of the table, the Premier and Messrs. Bowell, McLelan and Foster being on the right hand side, and Sir Hector Langevin, Sir Adolphe Caron and Mr. Thompson on the left, all gorgeous in full Windsor uniform. Near General Middleton sat Lady Stanley and Mrs. Bagot. Three of the Supreme Court judges were present, Chief Justice Ritchie, Justices Gwynne and Taschereau. The chamber was crowded. The scene would have been impressive if it had not been that the formality and stiffness and the whatnare-we-to-do-next air which the officials wore made it almost ludicrous. Capt. Bagot broke the depressing silence by whipping out the Royal Commission and reading it. Having thus ascertained that they had before them the right party, the Chief Justice read to him the oath to bear true allegiance to Her Majesty. Then the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod handed a Bible to Lord Stanley and, retreating to the Chief Justice said something in a low voice to His Lordship, who thinking that the G. U. of the B. R. had made a mistake, advanced to His Excellency and recovered possession of the book. Lord Stanley did not kiss the Bible. The two other formal oaths were then muttered over by the Chief Justice, and to each His Excellency subscribed his name to written documents. The constitution or rules do not admit of the Governor-General's word being taken; he has to put it in writing that he will truly discharge the duties of his office. Sir John Macdonald within the last few minutes had walked around behind Capt. Bagot and seemed desirous of poking the Great Seal of Canada in his coat tail pocket. Finally, however the Premier emerged and handed this emblem of authority to Lord Stanley, who took oath not lose it even if he had to keep it under his pillow.

His Excellency being now really Governor-General of Canada and Vice Admiral of the same, the band played "God Save the Queen," the assembly stood up and he took his seat on the throne, motioned those standing to be seated and received the Corporation address which was read by Mayor Stewart, who was arrayed in the robes and insignia of an English Mayor, in which by the why His Worship hopes to be Knighted when in England.

Lord Stanley expressed his thanks for the city's welcome, dwelt on the feeling of loyalty in Canada, referred to Lord Lansdowne as "my distinguished predecessor," emphasized his interest in the colonies, noted the importance of proper union of the Australian colonies, pointed to Canada as an example, and concluded by expressing a desire to be judged by the result of his labors in the Dominion. The proceedings then terminated.

M. A. Kelley's Thirty Thousand Dollars.

Much interest has been shown in various ways in the tax receiver of Pittston, Mr. M. A. Kelley's fortunate investments and it has been deemed of public interest to find out what he thinks about it. Learning that Mr. Kelley had received $30,000 through the Miners' Savings Bank, a reporter interviewed him. He said he simply bought one-fifth of ticket No. 55,315 which drew the Capital Prize of $150,000 in the May Drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery, for which he paid $2, just as he would have put up a margin on stock, and he was surprised to learn that there were men in town who knew the value of the ticket a week before he was advised.—Pittston (Pa.) Gazette, May 26.

What Am I to do?

The symptoms of Billiousness are unhappily but too much known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A Billious man is seldom a breakfast eater Too frequently, alas, he has an excellent appetite for liquids but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred, it is rough, at all events.

The digestive system is wholly out of order and Diarrhœa or Constipation may be symptoms or the two may alternate. There are often Hemorrhoids or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness and often headache and acidity or flatulence and tenderness in the pit of the stomach. To correct all this if not effect a cure try Green's August Flower,

FARM AND GARDEN NOTES.

Good fences should protect your crops.

Banking soil around trees will prevent injury from mice.

Feeding lambs pays, especially if they are small and not thriving.

Burn all cuttings or plucked leaves which are infested by insects.

Keep only as many fowls as your time will permit you to attend to well in every particular.

When fifty fowls well cared for will pay a good profit, one hundred somewhat neglected may be kept at a loss.

Very much depends upon the milking, both in regard to the yield of the milk and the quality of the butter or cheese made from it.

The formation of the cow's udder is such that the secretion of the milk is helped by good milking, while it is retarded and in time lessened by bad milking.

Feed judiciously, keep the water fountain pure, look out for vermin, avoid overcrowding, gives the fowls a chance to scratch, provide shade in summer and a dry shelter in winter.

The seeds of tropical plants, such as tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers, melons, squashes, Lima beans and the like require a heat of 55 degrees to 70 degrees to start them into healthy growth.

EARTHING POTATOES.

A correspondent of Gardening says The majority of people have for so long been accustomed to draw earth up to the stems of their potatoes that the practice has come to be looked upon as absolutely essential; but it is not so in all cases—it depends upon the depth the sets are placed under the surface. If the top of the set is six inches under the ground, very little, if any, earthing is necessary; and if the sets are planted 7 inches or 8 inches deep, the crop will be better without earthing than with. The non-earthing plan is all very well where the soil is very light and deep, but in heavy ground it is not advisable to plant so deep; then earthing up to prevent tubers near the surface getting green is a necessity.

WASP STINGS.

It is a fact not generally known, that if one holds his breath, wasps, bees and hornets can be handled with impunity. The skin becomes sting-proof, and holding the insect by the feet, and giving her full liberty of action, you can see her drive her weapon against the impenetrable surface with a force that lifts her body at every stroke; but let the smallest quantity of air escape from the lungs, and the sting will penetrate at once. I have never seen an exception to this in twenty-five years' observation. I have taught young ladies with very delicate hands to astonish their friends by the performance of this feat; and I saw one so severely stung as to require the services of a physician, through laughing at a witty remark of her sister, forgetting that laughing required breath. For a theory in explanation, I am led to believe that holding the breath partially closes the pores of the skin. My experiments in that direction have not been exact enough to be of any scientific value, but I am satisfied that it very sensibly affects the amount of insensible perspiration.

CURING CLOVER.

"W. F. C.," in the Rural Canadian for April, p. 100, uses the following language "For the first time in all my travels "among Canadian farmers, I met with "some who understood how to cure clover. "They found it out by accident. One "was obliged by stress of weather to "stack up a crop of clover much sooner "than he would have done for fear of "rain. He was afraid it would heat and "spoil. It did smoke somewhat, but "when he came to move the stack, instead of finding it musty, it was in "splendid order, and smelt as sweet as a "clover field in summer. Another had a "similar experience in his barn. Both "these men corroborated my assertion "that in good weather clover may be "carried the same day that it is cut." If the farmers of Canada universally adopt the plan suggested by "W. F. C.," they will soon turn the entire clover crop of Canada into a heap of useless manure. If clover is cut at the right time, let the weather be ever so favorable, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred it is not safe either to draw it or stack it the same day, when much of it is put in the one place. It will heat and mould and come out utterly worthless for feed or anything else. When we speak thus positively we neither speak from hearing or at random, but as the result of a costly experience built upon suggestions similar to those made by "W. F. C." We have a tedder too and by using it ever so freely, in no case can we succeed in getting clover cut at the right season before the blossoms brown—to go in safely the same day.

It is an old time subject, the best way to cure clover, and as the introduction of modern machinery is having a modifying influence upon it, we may continue the subject. When it is very full of sap, (and the nature of the weather previous to cutting has a modifying influence on this,) it is best just to ted it once the same day, but when not so juicy it may be drawn into winrows the same evening if the outlook is fair, but if threatening put up in cock. In the second instance it may be drawn from the winrow the second day, but if put up in cock, it will require a day longer. An hour or to before drawing the cocks should be opened out.

We are aware that the best quality of hay is got by putting it in cock, but if by using the tedder two or three times the hay can be got into its abiding receptacle the second day, we would much sooner have that class of hay than what is put up in cock and subjected to a heavy rain, and there is certainly a great saving in the labor. Caps may be used when hay is cured in the cock, but very few farmers have them. We look upon the tedder as the most valuable farm adjunct in curing hay, and unhesitatingly recommend using it freely. It pitches the hay, which is left hugging the ground, by the pressure of the mower, up into the air. When it comes down again it is all topsy-turvy, and so it lies, the wind blowing through it in fine form and drying it rather than the sun. In our own practice we seldom put up hay any more, but rather labor to get it ready for the barn with all possible dispatch. Timothy hay alone, or with a sprinkling of clover in it may be sometimes drawn the same day, but in this case the clover is rather over-ripe, if the timothy is taken at its best.

Bessie's Wedding Cake.

BY MRS. E. BURKE COLLINS.

'She is a perfect beauty! A real little blue and gold princess! Dainty and petite, you know, auntie, with eyes like your violets out in the garden yonder, and hair like spun sun-shine!'

Mrs. Warner dropped her knitting and lifted both hands in unfeigned surprise.

'Well, I declare! Charlie Stuart getting poetical! But, Charlie, boy, do not forget the homely old saying that 'handsome is that handsome does,' and 'beauty is only skin deep.''

Charley Stuart shrugged her shapely shoulders with a merry laugh, and leaned his brown, curly head against the high back of the rocker in which he was undeniably 'taking it easy.'

A handsome, careless fellow was Charlie, who had just opened a large 'store' in the flourishing town of Pitfield. He had dropped in upon his aunt, Mrs. Warner, this lovely summer morning, for a confidential chat.

''Handsome is'—I know all that!' he responded lightly, 'and tho' beauty is only skin deep—well who wants it any deeper? And, Aunt Helen, there are women whose beauty not being skin deep, would hardly bear close scrutiny, eh?' And the saucy fellow laughed aloud once more. 'But, to return to first principles,' he said, soberly, all at once checking his merriment; 'we were discursing—or about to discuss—the approaching marriage of a certain noble scion of the house of Stuart. Aunt Helen! what is that?'

As the sound of the crash of breaking china from an adjacent room fell upon their ears, cutting the conversation short, Mrs. Warner quietly took up her knitting.

'Bessie is in the kitchen making pies,' she observed calmly. 'It is not necessary for her to make such a noise about it, of course; but if any accident has occurred, she will attend to it without any interference. Such a treasure of a girl as Bessie Dale is! I have never regretted giving her a home, poor child!'

There was a slight flush from Charlie Stuart's handsome face, and a look of profound interest in his brown eyes.

'Surely you know something of her parents? he queried. Mrs. Warner shook her head.

'Nothing at all, Charlie. A woman was found at our door one night, eighteen years ago, when Robert and I were first married. The woman was dying; there was a babe in her arms—a child of a year old. It was a cold, stormy night. The woman died without being able to tell us anything, except that the child was named Bessie Dale, and that they had come from a great distance, and that the child was of good parentage. The woman begged hard for us to keep her. She tried to tell all her story but death overtook her, and we have never known any more. But Robert and I having no children of our own, have loved her and cared for her as though she was really ours. She has been educated, and she is the best housekeeper for her years in all Pitfield. And now, Charlie, go on with your story. Your blue and gold princess—how poetical, to be sure!—will arrive, then, to-day?'

'To-day or to-morrow, Aunt Helen! And I am so glad that you have consented to receive her. Dick will be down here in a few days, and we will have a merry party until the wedding takes place.'

'I shall give a reception of course! cried Mrs. Warner, animatedly. 'In my position as aunt to the bridegroom it will be expected of me; and Bessie shall make the wedding cake.'

'We'll see about that!' muttered a low voice in the neighboring kitchen, where Bessie Dale was 'up to her eyes' in the Wednesday's baking. She had overheard the entire conversation, and the sweet little face had flushed and then grown pale as death, while the big gray eyes wore a look of pain. 'Catch me making Charlie Stuart's wedding cake!' she panted, low under her breath, choking back the hot tears that would come in spite of her heroic efforts. 'I'd—die first!'

And then the tears did come, and Bessie stopped short to give them full vent. She started up at length, half defiantly.

'Here, I've broken Mrs. Warner's big china dish, just because I heard him say he was going to be married. What a fool I am'—drying her eyes with an angry flourish—'it's none of my business. Charlie Stuart is nothing to me and——'

'Bessie!'

Charlie Stuart was nothing to her, yet the sound of his voice brought a vivid flush to her cheek, and then she turned pale as death.

'You startled me, Mr. Stuart!' she faltered.

'Mr. Stuart, indeed!' he cried. 'Now, Bessie, I shall never call you Miss Dale, so don't you expect it. See here, little girl. Aunt Helen expects company—Miss Stella Ray, from the city, a perfectly beautiful young woman, who is to honor the Warner homestead with her presence until a certain auspicious event takes place three weeks from now. Bessie, you are crying!'

'I am not. Good heavens! for what or whom should I cry?'

'I do not know'—dubiously—'for me, perhaps.'

The brown head erected itself haughtily, and the gray eyes fairly scintillated.

'There is not a man in the world ——' she was beginning angrily, defiantly, when Charlie Stuart coolly interrupted her.

'Bessie, Aunt Helen wants you to make the wedding-cake.'

Bessie's eyes darkened ominously, but she answered quietly.

'Very well; I will do anything to please Mrs. Warner.'

And then, there was a rattle of wheels on the drive, and a moment after the village hack had driven up to the door, and deposited a fairy-like figure, in a pale gray traveling dress and plumed hat, and behind the gray tissue veil a bewildering vision. Strawberry and cream complexion; eyes the color of wood violets; hair like the golden sunshine; a veritable blue and gold princess.

It was soon known that Miss Ray had come to Mrs. Warner's on a visit, and that she was to be married on her return to her home in a few weeks.

Bessie listened in silent sorrow, but no one in the world dreamed how dearly she loved merry, careless, Charlie Stuart, whose wedding cake she had promised to make.

She permitted Mrs. Warner no opportunity to discuss the affair with her. She was very cold and dignified to Miss Ray; had she been more cordial poor Bessie would have discovered the delusion under which she was laboring. Time passed.

They were all sitting upon the vine covered porch one evening, when the gate opened, and a tall figure came hastily up the walk. Stella Ray saw the new-comer and started to her feet with a glad cry of welcome. Charlie darted forward.

'Brother Dick! who ever was looking for you to-night, old fellow! And now I suppose we will all be in the way. Bessie' (turning to the girl who sat near), 'let me present my elder brother! Come down to the Lake for a walk, won't you, Bessie? he added swiftly.

It appeared an old proposal but Stella Ray did not seem to mind it, being engrossed with Dick Stuart, to the exclusion of every one else. So Bessie arose and accompanied Charlie without a word. Once at the side of the lake a few rods away, and Charlie flashed about with a merry smile:

'Well, Bessie, you may as well begin that wedding cake,' he cried, 'after which I think you must make one for me.'

She glanced up in surprise.

'Why, of course,' she faltered. 'Charlie, I hope that you and Miss Stella will be very happy.'

Charlie's eyes were upon her face in blank surprise. 'My dear girl, what do you mean?' he exclaimed. 'You know that Dick is engaged to marry Stella—the blue and gold princess, as I dubbed her—in three weeks. And I thought, Bessie, somehow I could not help believing and hoping that you cared for me, and that you would consent to marry me at the same time.'

What could she say? What would you have said, gentle girl reader, if the man whom you had loved all your life, had asked you to be his wife?

A happy hour followed, after which they returned to the house, to find that Stella's father had unexpectedly arrived. At sight of Bessie he started with a cry:

'My business here is ended, I am done!' he cried. 'Mrs. Warner, you tell Charlie the story—as far as you know it—of this girl. I have worked hard since Charlie wrote it to me, and have collected proof which establishes my claim to Bessie. She is the child of my only sister, who married Edgar Dale, and both died abroad. The child was stolen by a servant-girl, and brought to America. Bessie is the image of her mother, and I am sure that I am right. If I am, she is quite an heiress.'

It was all subsequently proven, and Bessie took possession of her inheritance. And then the double wedding came off at Mrs. Warner's—a grand affair, at which all the cake was the handiwork of the girl who became Charlie Stuart's wife.

And since that wedding, nearly all the girls in Pitfield have become experts in cake-making.
