HEALTH!
Fredericton Junction, N. B., Jan. 31st, 1894.
A. L. DUPLESIA, carriage builder here, has improved in health, during the past few months, in a marked degree. His friends have noticed the change. Recently he has written a letter to a prominent St. John firm in which he states the particulars of his case. He writes: "for over a year I suffered with distress in stomach and bowels, and could not sleep. Several remedies failed to give me relief. Last summer I was induced to try "Groder's Syrup." The best results followed its use. It gave me sleep, removing distress and regulating my bowels. I cheerfully recommend this medicine as a cure for any case like mine."
Groder's Syrup is for sale everywhere—$1 per bottle or six for $5—guaranteed.

IN THE GLOAMING.

In the gloaming, O my darling,
Where the weeks are six months long,
If I stayed till midnight, darling,
Would you think that it was wrong?
Would you work the old gags on me?
Would you murmur, soft and low,
That I might be late for breakfast,
Or the clock was six weeks slow?

GENERAL NEWS.

Kansas City university has one woman in the law department. She is called a si-ter-in-law.

The first letter envelope dates back to May, 1692. It is now in the British museum, London.

—A New York life-saver, after a series of observations extending over a period of 20 years, says that the superstition that a drowning person rises to the surface three times is entirely unfounded.

—An English health officer recently received the following note from one of the residents of his district: "Dear Sir, I beg to tell you that my child, aged eight months, is suffering from an attack of measles as required by Act of Parliament."

—Eskimos eat tallow candles and the liver of the walrus. In South America the tongue of a sea lion is esteemed a delicacy. In Siam a curry of ants' eggs is the piece de resistance at any banquet while locusts are eaten by many tribes.

—"What Congress Has Done," was the neatly-printed title on the cover of a book recently received by Senator Quay. Inside was nothing but blank pages. Such a sarcasm at once establishes its leaves to print.

—Sewer gas is as wholesome as ozone, in the opinion of Isaac Zangwill, an English writer, who predicts that we may yet see such gas manufactured artificially to be piped into dwellings for the benefit of the health of the inmates.

—In the famous cellars of the Hotel de Ville, at Bremen, there are a dozen cases of wine that have been preserved for 250 years. Considering the cost of maintaining the cellar, rent and interest upon its original value, a bottle of this choice wine has cost $400,000, and a single drop could not be sold without loss under $40.

—Instead of the time-honored 'Dearly beloved,' or 'Brethren,' in which the pulpit has always addressed its congregation the famous Canon Body has introduced an innovation in one of the "highest" of of English churches. He speaks to his hearers with the simple word "Gentlemen." The change is exciting discussion and free comment.

—The methodist ministers' meeting at Chicago, has, it is stated, passed resolutions of appeal to the Pope asking him to use his influence to establish in the South America States the same degree of religious freedom that prevails in the United States. The appeal is made in view of the persecutions to which Protestant missionaries have been subjected in Peru, Ecuador, Bolivia, and elsewhere.

—The Sunday bicyclists in England have become a vast army. Lord Wm. Cecil, rector of Hatfield, proposes to bring the church into direct relations with this new class of population. As an inducement to cyclists to visit his church he has provided special seats for their use, with a due equipment of prayer and hymn books, and has made arrangements whereby all machines are to be kept under lock and key while the riders are at their devotions. Notices to this effect have been posted at all the inns. Lord Cecil is the second son of Lord Salisbury.

—It is wonderful how little Canadians know of their own country. The Strand Magazine of London, tells us that when in Canada Lord and Lady Dufferin "had to oil themselves all over with strong smelling oil to keep off bites of the mosquitos," and that on fishing excursions they had to camp out 'in tents, which had to be entered by creeping in on all fours through a small hole, then sleeping with a knife under their pillows so as to cut another way out if a bear should look in."

—On the subject of Britain's national defence the London Court Journal says: "We could put into the field for service at home a force of 332,000 men, exclusive of the militia reserve. We have 94,000 militia, 10,000 yeomanry, and nearly 228,000 volunteers. The regular army numbers close upon 220,000 of all ranks, and these could, on an emergency be supplemented by 80,000 reserve men and 30,000 militia reservists, making in all a total of 330,000 men for service abroad. We have thus a grand total of 662,000 men available for service home and abroad. At no time was there so large a force of enrolled men ready to be called upon for service should occasion arise."

—Some of the geographical names familiar to the people of Kent County are older than is generally supposed. In the cartographical collection of the New York Lenox Library, which is said to be richer in old maps, manuscripts and rare books than any other in America, a number of old maps of this province and adjacent territory were inspected by a New Brunswicker recently. One of these curious looking publications, dated at London, 1710, shows "I. Cocagne" as one of its few names on the eastern coast It outlined the province very crudely and imperfectly, but a few of the main features tolerably correct. A still older map, published by S. Samson, Paris, in 1681, shows a river named the "Regibouchou," which is clearly identical with the Richibucto of the present day.

MRS. LYMAN ABBOTT, representing the conservative side in a vexed question, has written an article, entitled "Why We Protest," for HARPER'S BAZAR, in which she advances cogent arguments against woman's suffrage.

THE SUPERCILIOUS SEED.

I.
A little seed lay in the ground,
And soon began to sprout;
"Now which of all the flowers round,"
It mused, "shall I come out?"

II.
"The lily's face is fair and proud,
But just a trifle cold;
The rose, I think, is rather loud,
And then, it's fashion's old.

III
"The violet is very well,
But not a flower I'd choose;
or yet a Canterbury bell—
N I never cared for blues.

IV
"Petunias are by far too bright,
And vulgar flowers beside;
The primrose only blooms at night,
And peonies spread too wide."

V
And so it criticised each flower,
This supercilious seed,
Until it woke one summer hour
And found itself a weed.

—Mildred Howells in May St. Nicholas.

Personals.

—A few weeks ago the governor of New Zealand was compelled to pay a fine of five shillings because his coachman drove too fast.

"Gen." Kelly, of the industrial army which has been having such hard times in Iowa, is a San Francisco printer who gave up a good position to join in the crusade.

—Arthur Percy Fitt, a Dublin University man, who became interested in Evangelist Moody's work in Ireland and came over here a year or so ago as his private secretary, is to marry Mr. Moody's daughter on the 16th inst.

—One of Madame Patti's trials is the mania people seem to cherish for having her adopt their children. She declares she receives hundreds of offers of babies for adoption in the course of the year.

—Professor Seeley, Lord Rosebery's first selection for knightly honours, is best known as the author of "The Expansion of England" and "Ecce Homo!"

—The wedding of Colin P. Hardy and Miss Eva Maud Byers, at Canarsie, was the result of a peculiar romance. Hardy had twice saved the life of Miss Byers within the past year, and her hand in marriage was his reward.

—There are some good people who will say that the nihilists have good reason for there dislike of the Czar of Russia when they hear that he plays on the cornet with a truly royal disregard of time.

—Miss Minnie Charters of Moncton, has graduated with honors from the Pennsylvania Ladies' College of Physicians and Surgeons, taking first prize for the best chemical report. She will spend the summer in Moncton and afterwards settle in one of the larger cities, probably New York.

—Some wag sent a photograph of W. D. Howells, the novelist, and Archibald Forbes, the famous war correspondent, to the detective department of Chicago for identification. The opinion of the department was that, while no conviction could be traced to these gentlemen, they were undoubtedly crooks.

—Mr. Archie Madden, of Maccan, will start out on a journey shortly that will eclipse that of the famous globe trotter, Paul Revere. He intends to drive to California and back, taking with him his famous menagerie which he will exhibit en route. The journey out will occupy about 9 months, and Mr. Madden does not expect to reach Nova Scotia again for two years. By exhibiting his animals he expects to raise sufficient funds for the journey.

—A certain city in England sent a deputation to Charles II., who was very ill, soliciting some favor. The orator without any mercy to the sick man, made a long, tedious discourse. "Have you anything more to say?" asked the merry monarch impatiently. "Nothing," replied the orator, "except that if you do not grant our request I am instructed to recite my speech over again." Charles ordered that all his demands should be freely and instantaneously complied with.

—The wife of a certain distinguished English statesman is occasionally absent minded. On one occasion she gave a dance. The guests were surprised to notice, as the evening went on, that the masculine—or, at all events, the bachelor—portion of the community was conspicuous by its absence. This being mentioned by one of the family to the lady, the reason suddenly occurred to her, and she explained, "Oh, dear, I quite forgot to send out the men's invitations. They are all in that bag under the sofa.

—The Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association have decided upon $69,000 as the aggregate amount they will offer next fall in stakes and purses. The eleven stakes are for youngsters mostly, and they foot up $57,000, the largest being the Kentucky Futurity for three-year-olds, which will be worth $30,000. There will be three stakes of $5,000 each, five of $2,000 and one of $1,000.

Judge--You were discovered at midnight crazy, drunk, running up and down the street declaring that you had no home, when every one knows you live on Commonwealth avenue. What excuse have you to offer?

Prisoner—None, except that my wife is cleaning house.

Temperance Meeting at Dorchester

The Dorchester Lodge No. 40, I. O. G. T., held a public temperance meeting in the Methodist church on Friday evening 11th inst. A large audience greeted the Rev. Mr. Weeks of Moncton the speaker of the evening, who held the close attention of everyone throughout.

He did not occupy much of the time in dealing with such questions as to whether the sale of intoxicating liquors was right or wrong or whether the country was prepared for prohibition. Politicians had asked if the people were ready for prohibition and the answer had come from Ontario and Nova Scotia that they were not ripe but rotten for it. But the two prominent points that the lecturer dwelt upon were that we have a moral and legal right to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors and that to enforce any law it needs men who will put principle before politics. There are those who say that we have no right to interfere in matters which do not concern us, but have we not a right as citizens to defend our country? We have a government whose duty it is to defend us from the foe. Is there a greater foe than the liquor traffic? And yet it is said we have no right to prohibit the sale of liquors! A case of small-pox broke out in Sussex and a public vaccination was immediately ordered. There was but the one case and yet did not the vaccination effect everyone? Let cholera come and our back yards are cleaned up, the sewerage system carefully examined, and every precaution is taken not only for our own benefits but for those about us. And yet in the case of liquor traffic it is said we have no right to interfere. Liberty is the right to do right. Licence is the so called right to do wrong. We have a right to protect our sons and daughters from the foe who lurks at the roadside to destroy them. Here we have protection for the sheep on the hillside, protection for the cattle in the valley and protection for the fish in the sea and yet no protection for our children from the evils of intemperance. Let us protect our children first. There are thousands say we must not assault this evil. We have a perfect right and let temperance men arise and it will be abolished. The temperance people have been playing for fun and the liquor men for "keeps" and the liquor men have come out away ahead every time. Again we have a right to protect ourselves. A railroad engineer may be under the influence of liquor and cause the destruction of many lives and much property. We have a right to interfere when a man sets fire to our property, stabs us, or destroys our children and yet it is said we have no right to prohibit the sale of that which might bring upon us at any time unforseen destruction. Further more we have a right to protect our neighbours. To him who asked "Am I my brother's keeper?" there came no direct answer and yet it might have here said "No but murderer."

To carry out the work of prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors a class of men is needed who will put principle before politics and not those who lay aside their prohibition principles till after the election. There are men in Dorchester who would rather see liquor sold for fifty years than have their government defeated. Temperance men are satisfied with a verbal promise while the liquor men require a written promise. We want men who will defend what we have got. Even some of those who call themselves temperance men say that it would be better if the Scott Act were repealed. And yet why are the liquor dealers so anxious to have the Scott Act remanded? "Because" they say, "we sell more liquor under the Scott Act than under a licence."

We need men who are always seeking after more and who will never give up until the final victory.

There are men who will not do anything unless they can be leaders, but we want men who work for a cause and not for glory, men who will rise as did our neighbours for the freedom of the slaves. The task may be a difficult one but by and by a new and transformed life when we can say "I did something to help poor fellow men."

In summer, autumn, winter, spring,
If you'd be happy, wise,
And to your household pleasure bring,
Just use the Diamond Dyes.

If you mail this verse and notice and 25 cents in stamps or money to WELLS & RICHARDSON Co., Montreal, you will receive Our Home, Canada's new monthly family paper, for one year; also illustrated book on "How to make Mats and Rugs," and one package of Ink Powder, for making 16 ounces of best black ink. Mention this paper.

THE CANADIAN ENGINEER has been enlarged twice since it started, and the first number of the new volume (May) shows an addition of twelve pages, besides a portrait supplement. It is a valuable article on pumping machinery by Wm Perry the well-known hydraulic engineer of Montreal, and there are interesting biographical sketches, with portraits of all the officers of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers. There are also numerous illustrations, more or less attractive to the mechanical mind, and a large amount of news of what is transpiring among the manufacturers of the Domikion.

Bishop Goodenough preached before the house of lords at London. Whereupon some wag wrote these lines:

FARM AND TURF.

—A pneumatic horse collar has been invented in Canada. The part which comes in contact with the horse is as smooth as glass and sufficiently pliable to give with every motion of the animal. The air valves are so constructed as to preclude the possibility of any leakage even under the heaviest pressure and are covered by neatly laced leather flaps, leaving the surface perfectly even.

—The most important part of an underdrain is the outlet, and just as soon as the snow melts this should be examined and all sediment and other accumulations cleared away. If the outlet be located where stock is allowed to run, the chances are that some of the stones or tiles have become misplaced by the trampling of stock in search of water. These should be replaced even if several feet of the outlet must be removed for that purpose. A flat stone or piece of plank or slab should be placed over the drain and the whole covered with soil a foot deep. If the open ditch or creek into which the drain discharges has become filled up, it should be cleaned out that the water may not back up into the drain, and this work is very important and should not be neglected.

Points for Rejection of Horses.

The English government has the following set of rules for those who select horses for cavalry service; they are called "Points for Rejection," but will answer equally well as points for selection:

Reject a horse whose forelegs are not straight; it will not stand wear. Stand behind the horse as it walks away from you, and you will be able to notice these defects, if they exist.

Reject a horse that is light below the knee, especially if immediately below the knee; the conformation is essentially weak; or a horse with long, or short or upright pasterns; long pasterns are subject to sprains; short or upright pasterns make a horse unpleasant to ride, and, on account of extra concussions, are apt to cause ossific deposits; or a horse with toe turned in or out. The twist generally occurs at the fetlock. Toes turned out are more objectionable than toes turned in. When toes turn out the fetlocks are generally turned in, and animals so formed are very apt to cut or brush. Both, however, are weak formations.

Reject a horse whose hind legs are too far behind; good propelling power will be wanting, and disease as a result may be expected in the hocks. And a horse which goes either very wide or either very close behind, and one with very straight or very bent hocks, the former cause undue concussion; the latter are apt to give way.

Reject a horse that is "split up"—that is, shows much daylight between the thighs; propelling power comes from behind, and must be deficient in horses without due muscular development between the thighs.

Reject a horse with flat or overly large feet or with very small feet; medium sized are best; also, a horse with one foot smaller than another.

Alexander's Abdallah.

"Volunteer" writing in Clark's Horse Review says:

There has been very little real history printed concerning Alexander Abdallah. With what there has been we believe we are most fully conversant. To the general horseman there is much that is apocryphal and more that is vague connected with his name. This we do not at present propose to attempt dissipating, although in the near future we hope to be in a position to do so completely. The mere surface facts are for the moment quite sufficient. These are:

That he was foaled in September, 1852, the fruit of the union of a two year-old colt, whose services were free, and a crippled mare of totally unknown breeding; that he made three full seasons in Orange county, N. Y. in 1856, 1857 and 1858; that he was sold and shipped to Kentucky in 1759, and made four seasons there, in Harrison county, meanwhile trotting a race, winning it and getting a record of 2.42; that he was sold to Woodburn Farm in 1862, made the two succeeding seasons there, and in February, 1865, was captured and killed by guerillas, Kentucky then being rent by the throes of the civil war.

Compressed into a paragraph this is the biography of the horse first known as Edsall's, or Young Hambletonian and later as Alexander's Abdallah. There is little in it to indicate why he should become the head of a mighty family of trotters. He was not born great, neither was greatness thrust upon him—the world heard little of him living, but in the years that have passed since the tragic finale of his short life he has achieved it in such measure that few may vie with him. His ancestry did not qualify him for it in half the degree scores of his brothers were qualified; neither did the span of his years nor the chain of events which made up his career guarantee it. That he is what he is to-day can be traced to neither the accident of birth nor the kind turn of Fortune's wheel, but to himself alone to the inherent "good that was in him."

A list compiled after a great deal of difficulty and time shows that there are 608 separate and distinct 2.20 trotter and pacers that trace to his family.

CHIGNECTO POST AND BORDERER

SACKVILLE, N. B., MAY 24TH, 1894

GOD Save the Queen.

THE first Monday in September is to be made a national holiday in the United States under the name of Labor Day.

UTAH Territory U. S. A. is to become a state of the union. Its population is about 230,000.

THE situation in India is still serious and an outbreak is feared. Money is very scarce.

AUSTRIA is endeavoring to place her finances on a gold basis. $67,000,000 worth of silver notes will be withdrawn from circulation at once.

THE Amherst News man who has evidently a more christian spirit than Shakespeare's Shylock wants to know "what is the good of fighting unless there is a crowd to look on." The POST claims a more peaceful and mild nature even than the News and would be satisfied to have matters arranged to suit those who dislike street-brawls, without taking into consideration the feelings of would-be-bruisers.

THE latest invention in sporting circles is a hollow base-ball bat in which are enclosed heavy globes of lead. These globes run out to the end of the bat when the ball is struck and the ball is simply nowhere. The scheme is not a modern one but was frequently employed by sword-makers of the middle ages. It may well be doubted however whether the innovation will be allowed. Developments of skill and not of mechanical ingenuity are what most delight the heart of the base-ball crank.

WORKMEN are leaving the United States to return not only to Canada but to England and other densely populated countries of Europe as well, claiming that they can do better in their native lands. This is one more of the reverses and humiliations to which the Americans have been subjected in the year 1893—that year of glory, when Columbia proposed to seat herself on a lofty throne and receive the homage and admiration of other nations. A fall is moderately sure to follow excessive pride and boasting.

IT is likely to be many months yet before the Wilson Bill which is continually becoming more protective can be made law. The Senate spent two days in discussing the duty on borassic acid and in all probability two thirds of the August legislators know nothing of the qualities, properties and uses of borassic acid. Six items of the chemical schedule occupied three days. Important matters which directly effect the masses will likely take more time and there are three hundred and fifty items to be dealt with in all. Meanwhile commerce languishes, failures multiply, and senators grow wealthy.

IT is a fact worthy of notice that in times of the greatest depression in business concerns, theatres, gambling hells and all legitimate and other amusments flourish most. The past year has strengthened this theory. While honest and honorable men striving by the sweat of their brows to earn a livelihood have been overtaken by all manner of misfortune both in Europe and America, the "Monte Carlo Gambling Company" as it very plainly calls itself announces for the year a net profit of four million four hundred thousand dollars. Monte Carlo is a small independent state, which prospers on the proceeds of vice, and if the nations of Europe were wise they would wipe it out of existence as a public nuisance.

OVER 1,100,000 miners were represented at the International Miners' Congress held at Berlin Germany last week. The representation was largely from Germany and England the former slightly in excess of the latter. The delegates from other countries are comparitively few in number. The session has thus far been a stormy one and numerous disscussions on socialistic problems have arisen. The English delegates are opposed to socialistic ideas and their spokesman declared at the opening of the conversation that it was not his intention or that of his fellow delegates to support any movement to incite class against class. Similar views appear to prevail among some of the German delegates who spoke for peaceful and legal reform of the condition of the miners.

THE REPORT of the British Royal Commission to the World's Fair at Chicago, which has just been issued at London, characterizes the exposition as "a courageous conception, splendid in execution and successful in its results." Apart from general educational benefits the report says there is no doubt that it was greatly advantageous to the western states to whose laborious people the exhibition must have been a revelation of the latest results of civilization. As regards the part taken in the fair by Great Britain the commissioners are of the opinion that that country had less to gain by the exhibition than any of her rivals yet if she had not taken a prominent part it would have been extremely disastrous to her trade.

THE great fires in Boston last week tend to prove that safety from fire is to be found rather among the scattered buildings of a country village than in a city provided with huge fire engines and all other modern appliances. In Tuesdays fire three great fire engines were captured by the flames before they could be removed. The fire was started by boys burning shavings under a base-ball stand on which thousands of people sat. It was not brought into subjection until it had burned over 15 acres, destroyed 200 houses, and left 1500 people homeless. The loss is estimated at $250,000 and the insurance will be perhaps one-half. A second fire on Thursday morning damaged a building to the extent of $50,000 and destroyed $100,000 worth of goods.

Dominion Parliament.

On Wednesday of last week the house was occupied all day in committee on the Weldon bill and passed seven clauses, leaving six to be yet considered when the committee rose at 12.30. The opposition came principally from the group of Quebec members who opposed it the week before. The only important amendment made in the bill was one moved by Dr. Weldon himself to avoid the possibility of making use of this bill to fish for evidence to sustain an election petition. This amendment is to the effect that the petition under this act shall be filed not less than forty days and not more than sixty days after the election.

On Thursday the house went into committee on the tariff, and Mr. McDonnell of Algoma resumed the debate on the necessity for reimposing an export duty on logs.

The debate on the export duty on logs was continued till recess, and after recess until ten o'clock, when the house began to make progress with the free list. Lumber was made to include planed on one side.

The proviso giving the government power to impose an export duty on logs and pulp wood provoked some discussion, but was eventually adopted.

Hickory and other felloes for carriage wheels to be free must hereafter not be bended. Eventually the free list was disposed of and dutiable items which had been allowed to stand were taken up.

The barrels in which beef and pork are imported were made free.

The duty on medicinal preparations was changed so as not to include preparations classed as "official." The house adjourned at 12.30.

In answer to Mr. Sutherland, who asked the questions in the absence of Mr. Bowers, Sir C. H. Tupper explained the present position of the fishery bounty fraud cases. The cases in Victoria and Richmond, N. S, were brought before the grand juries in these counties, and these bodies refused to find bills. One man in Kent, N. B., was convicted and sentenced to two months' imprisonment. Another skipped his bail and left the province. In Gloucester, N. B., and P. E. Island the cases were still pending, so far as known to the department of fisheries.

Mr. Edgar moved his "universal peace" resolution, and made a very interesting and able speech in support of it.

The resolution was seconded by Mr. Dickey, who took the ground that Canada was called on to support the idea of arbitration because many of the disputes which the British empire was likely to have with the United States would relate to Canada.

Sir John Thompson supported the resolution. It had been well said in the British house of commons, when this resolution was before that body, that the professions of many nations in this respect overrun their performances. With Canada it was not so. She not only professed her desire to arbitrate but acted up to her profession. We have already had two arbitrations with the United States and were now offering to arbitrate other matters in dispute. He (Sir John) was, however, sorry to know that certain people in Canada, out of partisan feeling, had allowed themselves to say things about the Behring Sea arbitration that if true would make this resolution ridiculous. Reflections had been made on the good faith of her majesty's government in that matter and on the conduct of the agent who represented her and the arbitrators, especially the neutral arbitrators, who decided the case, that, if he believed, would force him (Sir John) to oppose rather than support the resolution before the house.

The resolution passed unanimously.

Mr. Mills of Annapolis moved his resolution in favor of disfranchising the officials of those provincial governments that disfranchised dominion officials and spoke at length in support of it. He was followed by D. C. Fraser.

Hon. Mr. Daly moved the adjournment of the debate.

BOTH South Africa and the United States have greatly increased their gold output during the past year, and now comes a report from Mexico of auiferous discoveries on which, it is said, a thousand mines might be located. Perhaps the operation of these new grounds, with the greater attention paid to old ones, will do more to bring about something like a parity between gold and silver than legislation may. Silver is depressed compared with gold, only because it it is so much more easily procured.

The Last Words of D. D. Currie.

The Shelbourne Budget speaking of D. D. Currie late editor of that journal says:—"It seems more than a mere coincidence that in the last issue of this paper, the last for which his hands should ever prepare the copy he should have used such words as these:—

"A life of mere pleasure! A little while, in the spring-time of the senses, in the sunshine of prosperity, in the jubilee of health, it may seem well enough. But how insufficient, how mean, how terrible when age comes, and sorrow, and death! A life of pleasure! What does it look like when these great changes beat against it,—when the realities of eternity stream in? It looks like the fragments of a feast, when the sun shines upon the withered garlands, and the tinsel, and the overturned tables, and the dead lees of wine."

Early on Monday morning the remains were sent to St. John for interment via Yarmouth and Digby, being met at Yarmouth by Mr. W. H. Currie, son of the deceased.

The funeral of Mr. Currie took place from Centenary church, St. John, on Wednesday. Services were conducted by Rev. J. J. Teasdale, assisted by Rev. F. A. Wightman. The choir of Centenary furnished appropriate music. The pall-bearers were Revs. Dr. Daniel, Dr. Pope, Dr. Wilson, G. M. Campbell, Job Shenton and A. P. Tippit. Interment took place at the Rural cemetery.

Halifax Merchants have forwarded to Ottawa a petition to deflect the I. C. R., so as to tap Springhill.

The Parrsboro Shore.

SHOWING THAT MR. SCOTT IS NOT AS GOOD AN AUTHORITY ON PARRSBORO GHOSTS AS ON SACKVILLE ONES; CASUALLY MENTIONING WHAT HAS BECOME OF THE "THORNTON AND EFFA", TELLING OF A MYSTIC WELL; AND HONORING PARRSBORO'S PIONEERS.

Mr. S. D. Scott, who is considered an authority on ghosts, having been the only Sackville student that ever carried on a conversation with a composite spook, was once asked by the Halifax Herald to write a paper on Parrsboro ghosts. As Mr. Scott, like all other Conservative editors, has no imagination, and as no Parrsboro spectres had appeared to him during the years that he dwelt on the Parrsboro shore, he made the statement that "a chapter on Parrsboro ghosts would read much like the famous treatise on snakes in Ireland." Mr. Scott's article, therefore, was a dissertation on Parrsboro ghosts with Parrsboro ghosts left out. It may be that Mr. Scott's remarkable assertion was meant to be construed thus: that the only snakes in Ireland are those conjured by brains that are, for a time, stolen away by Irish whiskey; and that the only ghosts in Parrsboro are creatures of the imagination, and not ghosts with "a guarantee of good faith" such as appeared to Mr. Scott in his college days. But a man who always pays his subscription in advance says that, the other night, he saw the spirit of the peddler who was killed years ago at a spot on the Boar's Back, near Parrsboro, on which spot no grass has since grown. The peddler was male; the ghost was female; which goes to show that not only do spirits of the dead live again in the bodies of the living, but that when a ghost is "laid" (I believe that is the correct term) the spirit of the laid spirit may be spirited into a new spirit. When this Parrsboro man felt, as he said, "that this she-ghost was the ghost of the he-peddler," he was making a discovery that will be welcomed by all believers in transmigration.

The ghost of the ghost of the peddler appeared just in front of the skittish mare that the theosophist was driving, but the mare did not shy, as all horses do when they meet the ghost of the Dorchester woods. The follower of Mrs. Besant followed the spirit, as it walked backwards just ahead of the mare. White crape covered the face of the spectre, but her feet were bare. The driver backed his horse; the ghost followed, still walking with his crape-covered face towards the team. (It is as confusing to attempt to be just in using pronouns of different genders in this case as it is to an Acadian at all times, and as it was to A. Ward when he described the capture of Jeff Davis in women's clothing.) Is that all about the ghost? All, except that at length it vanished.

But ghosts are not the only Parrsboro wonders. There is a boiling spring here which is as miraculous as the well of St. Keyne. For if any one shall drink of it once, he or she will never afterward leave Parrsboro any great length of time. This spring is just at the foot of Partridge Island. It is also alongside the road a mile and a half from Partridge Island, near where the hulks of the Sackville schooners "C. E. Thornton" and "Effa" lie. It doesn't matter what part of Parrsboro one goes to on a Sunday afternoon; a native will always point out "the genuine Indian spring," and will sadly lament that his thirst had got the better of his self-restraint; and that his punishment was greater than that of Esau, for he would now have to end his days in Parrsboro.

There are many worse places to live in than Parrsboro, however, although the place has been a little duller than usual of late, because of the Cumberland Railway and Coal Company's new barges which carry the coal that used to be carried in schooners. But the town of Parrsboro, whose population doubled in about six years before the last census, which told of its 1909 inhabitants, has not yet acquired the Sleepy Hollow atmosphere which prevades several of the older villages of Nova Scotia. It seems to be getting along as well as many that have not a single legend to their backs, although a legend is to many towns much the same as the old Man of the Sea was to Sindbad.

Enough has already been said of Parrsboro's Old Man of the Sea, the renowned Glosscap. Now we'll have a few words about others of Parrsboro's early inhabitants.

A great many of the present citizens of Parrsboro are decendants of those pioneers in whose honor Joe Howe wrote "Hail to the day when the Britons came over."

There are no descendants of the former Acadian inhabitants of the Parrsboro shore now living at Parrsboro. The place was not very thickly settled for a decade after the expulsion. The first grant of land in Parrsboro after 1755 was the Partridge Island grant of about two thousand acres of land, which was probably made in 1765. The grantees were John Avery, John Bacon, jr., and Jacob Lockhart. Lockhart and Bacon had to worry along on a quarter of the property each, Avery being fortunate enough to have the other half. The owner of the thousand acres, by a deed dated April 8th, 1777, transferred then to Asa and Abijah Scott, of Fort Sackville, Halifax, and Jacob Hurd. Hurd probably did not long enjoy his property, or else was not consulted when, on September 1st, 1788, Asa Scott and Rebecca his wife and Abijah Scott sold half the original grant to James Ratchford, the founder of the power and the glory of what was once Parrsboro's most powerful and most glorious family.

—The construction of an Insane Asylum at Bridgetown, is to be commenced soon. The building is to be of three stories and an attic, built of brick at the cost of $6,000.

—It is understood that the trial of the election petition against Messrs T. R. Black M. P. P. and A. E Fraser M. P. P. of Cumberland will be heard next month before a judge of the supreme court. It is said that an effort will be made to disqualify both members.

The Stellarton Journal asserts that the coal mines of Pictou County are liable to extinction by subterranean fires. It says the Ford pit is afire; the Cage pit is supposed to be afire; and No. 2 slope is afire—and the worst of all, not a single effort, seemingly, is being put forth to extinguish the fires, or rescue the pits.

—The wholesale department of the hardware business establishment of W. H. Thorne & Co., on Prince street, St. John, was totally destroyed by fire about mid-night Sunday night. The fire is supposed to have originated from spontaneous combustion. The building contained about $60,000 worth of stock, the insurance on which is $40,000.

The Amherst Track.

"Standard Bred," writing in the Hali- Herald, speaks thus of the track of Amherst, N. S.:

"It is said that there will be upwards of forty trotters at work this summer on the Amherst track, and with them no less than four professional drivers. The track has been put in grand shape. The is a hotel at the grounds for the accommodation of trainers and their help during training time and to accommodate the general public race days. In fact, everything that can be is being done to make it the track of the provinces, and the energetic work is all due to Lamy and Etter, who are giants in the work of building up all that tends to give prominence to the trotter, and it behooves all who are interested either in breeding or that line of sport not to forget this when the bell rings to call the trotters to start, and give Amherst's plucky horsemen the benefit of their presence."

An Albert County Case.

THE SMITHS VS. HALIFAX BANKING CO.

The case of Smith et al vs. the Halifax Banking Co., came up Friday at St. John on demurrer. The plaintiffs James Smith, Albert Smith, and Simon Smith, belong in Albert county. In 1885 the plaintiffs allege that Alonzo Smith, a brother of theirs, forged their signature to a number of notes, numbering in all 19, and amounting to in value about $19,000, which notes were discounted at the office of the Halifax Banking Co., Hillsboro. When the notes became due according to the plaintiff's story they repudiated them, saying they were forged, and the bank sued for them, bringing in all ten actions. The defence the Smiths set up was that the notes were forged, and the cases were set down for trial in July, 1886. Previous to the trial, however, the bank, so the plaintiffs say, threatened so much to prosecute the brother Alonzo for forgery that to avoid such prosecution they made an rrrangement whereby they gave a mortgage for $9,500 to the bank and assigned life insurance policies as security for the payment thereof and also gave a joint and several bond conditional for the payment of the amount secured by the mortgage. The amount was to be paid in ten equal instalments of $950 each. The amount was not payed and the bank sued on the bond. The Smiths set up the defence that the bond was obtained by duress and was entered into illegally, etc. The jury on the trial found for the bank. This trial took place in St. John in 1889. The Smiths appealed to the Supreme Court of this province and that court decided there should be a new trial. From this decision the bank in its turn appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada and it was in its turn also successful, and the verdict stands. The Smiths then brought this present suit in equity to an injuction to restrain the bank from proceeding on its judgment, alleging the facts as stated above. The bank has demurred to the bill of the plaintiffs on the ground that they have not set up any equitable ground for relief, and, second, that the matter has already been decided by the courts. The Attorney-General argued for the Smiths, and Mr. M. G. Teed and Mr. E. McLeod, Q. C., for the bank. Decision reserved.

Communication With the Mainland.

Island Examiner.

Until satisfactorily settled, the question of communication between Prince Edward Island and the mainland will be the question of first importance to us. This Province has been and continues to be heavily handicapped by reason of the loss of time and money incurred in making communication with it. Even when there is no ice—as yesterday—the loss and annoyance is at times the cause of great and not unreasonable complaint on the part of the travelling public. But when, as in the latter part of the past winter, there are breaks of ten days and a fortnight in the continuity of our communications for mails and passengers, and no means of carrying freight—except a single steamers of very limited accomodation—for months together, everyone must admit that we occupy a peculiar, anomalous and unfortunate position in this Canada of ours.

It is unquestionably the clear duty, as well as the interest, of the Government of Canada to furnish means of continuous communication winter and summer, between Prince Edward Island and the mainland. Or, if this be impossible they are equally bound to supply the most efficient means of communication that they can possibly afford. It may be pleaded that in putting the Stanley upon the Georgetown-Pictou route and establishing an efficient ice boat service at the Capes, the Government have done all that they could do. We have no doubt that some persons believe that this is so. But the energetic manhood of the Province will not rest satisfied with the present appliances so long as there is a hope or possibility of obtaining better. We therefore believe that the movement contemplated by Senator Ferguson will be applauded throughout the country. We are in receipt this morning of the notices of motion which he has given the Senate. It is, evidently, his intention to bring the whole matter before Parliament. The statements for which he has moved include every information concerning the trips and the lapses of the Stanley and the couriers at the Capes during the past winter, and all the correspondence carried on between the Government of Canada and the Government of Prince Edward Island since the 1st of January, 1891, in reference to the financial claims of this Province against the Dominion, in the matter of public works and stesm communication in accordance with the terms of Confederation. He also desires a categorical answer to the question "whether it is the intention of the Government, during the approaching summer, to complete the borings under the Straits of Northumberland, which were commenced in the year 1892, and, if so, whether it is their intention to put a sufficient sum in the supplementary estimates for that purpose during the present session?"

We shall look forward with interest to the speech or speeches by which Senator Ferguson will support the motions of which he has given notice. It is to be hoped that his movement towards improved communications with the mainland will be actively and earnestly supported by our representatives at Ottawa without respect of party, and that he will be backed up by the united voice of the people at large.

Mrs. Taylor and her daughter with the help of others worked hard to check the fire, but finding it impossible at once commenced to save the furniture. Mr. Taylor's mill which is near the house was thought to be in danger, and a number of men from Port Elgin were soon on the spot, but the wind changed, and left the mill out of danger. The origin of the fire is not known, but it is supposed that it caught from the pipe leading from the kitchen.

HERCULES.
HERCULES is a blood bay stallion, 16 hands sired by Redwood, by Columbus Hambletonian 833, record 2.26, by Ajax 40, sire of three in 2.30, by Hambletonian 10, sire of forty-one in 2.30, and of 113 sires (among whom is Electioneer, sire of Sonol, 2.08¾, Arion, 2 years, 2.16¾, Palo Alto, 2.08¾, etc.) with 659 in 2.30. First dam by Jay Gould 197, record 2.29¾, sire of Adel Gould 2.19, and twenty-six others in 2.30, by Hambletonian 10; dam Lady Sanford, by American Star 14; second dam by Eaton Eclipse, son of American Eclipse, grandsire of dam of Lady Thorne, 2.18¼, and Mambrino Patchen 58. American Star 14 is the greatest female-producing line, crossed directly as in the case of HERCULES with old Hambletonian. American Star have given Guy 2.10¾, Dexter 2.17¼, Robert McGregor 2.17¼, and forty-other 2.30 performers, as well as twenty-seven speed-transmitting stallions. Jay Gould is the fastest of all the Hambletonian Star stallions, and is a full brother in blood to twenty-two sires that have produced 100 performers with records from 2.08¾ to 2.30, including Dictator, Aberdeen, Artemas, Masterlode, Alhambra, Startle, Sweepstake, etc.
HERCULES, as will be seen by the above is one of the best bred stallions in the Martime Provinces, and should transmit great speed-producing qualities. He is ten years old, sound, of excellent disposition, and his colts are all large and appear to know no gait except a trot.
It will pay those interested in improving their stock to investigate the merits of this stallion.

MASTER TURNBULL SINCLAIR the boy soloist sang in the Methodist Church Friday evening to a small audience. His voice is clear and sweet but not remarkably powerful. Mr. C. A. E. Harris of Montreal his regular accompanist was obliged to leave for home before the concert in order to keep his Sunday appointments and Prof. W, H. Watts of Moncton took his place.

SIX YEARS AT DORCHESTER.—Fred and Clarence Delaney passed through Sackville from Amherst Friday on their way to serve a six years sentence at Dorchester penitentiary. They had pleaded guilty to the charge of entering and stealing money and goods from the store of Mr. A. B. Lusby at Southhampton and were sentenced to six years by Judge Morse.

SPRINGHILL STRIKE SETTLED.—The strike at Springhill has ended and a general feeling of relief is felt throughout the maritime provinces. The whole matter of difference between the men has not been settled, but an agreement has been arrived at, bearing upon the immediate causes of the rupture. The men who did the coal cutting objected to acting as laborers. They contend that men should be given them to carry props when necessary, and do other unskilled work usually performed by ordinary laborers. To this the management is understood to have consented and the work goes on.

MONCTON DOCK.—The meeting of electors of the city of Moncton held on Saturday evening last to consider the advisibility of granting financial aid to the Moncton harbor improvement company, was the largest and most enthusiastic meeting ever held to consider a town question. The meeting was practically unanimous on a resolution to give a city bonus of $25,000 on condition that the Dominion Government give asubsidy. The proposition is to build a dry and wet dock at Hall's Creek which is by nature well adapted for the purpose.

SUICIDE AT AMHERST.---Edward Weeks 73 years of age, committed suicide Saturday morning by hanging himself in an unoccupied barn on the Nappan Road. He left the house at 5 o'clock and not returning a search was made about nine o'clock when his body was found with life extinct. He had been in poor health for some time and occasionally despondent. He lived with his son George. An inquest returned a verdict of "suicide while temporarily insane." He had been troubled about his daughter, Mrs. Chas. McKay, who is now in Mount Hope asylum.

BAND CONCERT.—The first open air concert of the season will be given at Middle Sackville on Saturday evening commencing at 8 sharp, local time.

DYNAMITE ACCIDENT:—Charles Small, a young lad, living with Thomas Ross of Rossway near Digby N. S. found a piece of dynamite in a basket, where it had been placed two years ago, by miners and forgotten This he placed on the ground and struck with a stone. The explosion that followed knocked him twenty yards away into a pile of rocks. He has since been in an unconscious state and will likely die.

CLAIMS THE BOUNTY.—Richibucto Review: Mr. Guimond, of St. Louis, was in town Saturday, to see the Clerk of the Peace. He understands it is the custom in the case of the birth of triplets to petition the Queen for a bounty of $25. His daughter recently gave birth to triplets, and Mr. Guimond thinks her claims to the bounty should not be overlooked.

CARGO DAMAGED.—The Alta which was aground opposite Aulac about a week got in to Sackville wharf last Thursday. It was found that a part of the cargo had been damaged by salt water in the hold and in particular about seventy five bags salt consigned to M. Wood & Son had dissolved in the water and vanished leaving the empty bags.

ATHLETIC CONCERT.—The concert of the Mt. Allison Athletes which is to be held in Port Elgin on May 30th, is the first one of their summer tour, on which they will visit Charlottetown, Truro, Sydney, Halifax, and other eastern towns. The company have made a complete success, the glowing commendations of the press showing the appreciation of the public.

FOOTBALL.--A. M. Sanford of Burlington N. S., has been elected captain of the Mt. Allison foot-ball team for next season. S. J. Foute of Grand Bank Nfld., is second captain. Some good men will leave the team this year but it is hoped substitutes will be found in the incoming freshman class. The prospects for a good season's play are excellent. T. Amos Potts of St. John was elected president of the Athletic Association and Jonathan E. Jay of Mt. Stewart P. E. I. secretary.

CREAMERY NOTES:—The creamery a Upper Sackville commenced work Tuesday morning. Wesley Wheaton is in charge in place of his brother A M Wheaton who has taken charge of another creamery just opened at Oak Bay Charlotte Co. The latter consists of a main building 28x40 feet and an ell 24x25 feet. The whole building cost in the vicinity of $3000. It is well arranged and situated as it is in a rich agricultural centre will no doubt yield large dividends.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.—The first issue of the Family Record published at Moncton by the Family Record Publishing Co., is at hand and promises well for future interest and usefulness. It is 16 page in magazine form neatly printed on good paper and in every way a creditable weekly. Like the other Moncton journals its advertising columns are well patronised.

—The Albert Star published at Hillsboro N. B., with Mr. John A. Beatty as manager has also made its appearance during the past week. It is a good sized paper and from its advestising columns commands a fair support from Hillsboro and Moncton merchants. The people of Albert Co. in general and Hillsboro in particular should give it every assistance in their power.

VANDALISM:—The tops of a number of ornamental trees in Mr. Thompson Trueman's garden were broken off on Sunday night 13th inst. While no direct proof has as yet been obtained parties from Fairfield who were committing various depredations about town on that evening are suspected. The penalty for such actions is severe. Where the damage is over 25 cents a fine of $25 and two months imprisonment. Where the damage is over $5 imprisonment for five years. The damage in the present case would likely come under the latter head.

—In the above connection it may interest some readers of the POST to know that imprisonment for life may be visited upon any person who wilfully destroys or damages a bank, dyke, or wall of the sea or of any inland water natural or artificial and the damage causes danger of inundation.

BURGLARS AT PETITCODIAC.—On Friday night burglars effected an entrance through a back window to the store of Messrs Humphrey and Trites at Petitcodiac and attempted to force open the safe. Apparently they were frightened away and left in a hurry for nothing was taken. They left a broken drill and a number of other tools most of which had been obtained from a neighbouring carriage shop by forcing open a window. A hole was drilled in the safe about an inch deep. On Sunday night Mr. Doherty of the Mansard House Petitcodiac was shot in the leg by toughs who had been lurking around for some days. About 12 o'clock Mr. Doherty heard someone trying to force open the back door and proceeded to investigate. The burglars who were three in number became alarmed and left and Mr. Doherty followed them down the street. Suddenly one of the men turned and discharged a revolver at Mr. Doherty striking him in the leg. It is supposed that the men engaged in the two above attempts at robbery are the same and efforts will be made to capture them.

DEATHS AT KINGSTON KENT CO.—Wm Bowser, one of the oldest and wealthiest merchants of Kingston, died Monday morning after an illness of several months. He leaves a wife and five children, amongst whom are Dr. J. C. Bowser of Sackville, and Frank and Wm. J. Bowser of Vancouver, B. C. Dr. Bowser left Sackville for Kingston Saturday.

--Mr. Alexander Girvan died at Kingston, Kent county, May 14. Mr. Girvan was about 75 years of age, and has been in Business in Kent county the greater part of his life. He was born in Richibucto.

--Wm. J. Call, who spent twenty-five years in California and returned a couple of years ago to Kent his native country, died of pneumonia Monday morning at Kingston. He recently purchased the Holderness farm there and was having a lot of improvements made. He was a bachelor and leaves a valuable estate.

—Mrs. Dickinson wife of Thomas Dickinson of Kingston died on Saturday evening of pneumonia which is very prevalent at that place.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION Will be of value to the world by illustrating the improvement's in the mechanical arts and eminent physician will tell you that the progress in medicinal agents, has been of equal importance, and as a strengthening laxative that Syrup of Figs is far in advance of all others.

FORT LAWRENCE CHURCH.—The reference to the postponement of the opening of the new church at Fort Lawrence published in last issue unintentionally conveys a wrong impression. There should be added, "from ministers chosen by the Trustee Board."

SACKVILLE.---A Moncton barrister, who was in Sackville yesterday, was heard to express himself as greatly surprised at the splendid appearance of that town. He says he had no idea Sackville was such a pretty place until he came to take a walk around. Among the handsome residences which he noticed were those of H. A. Powell, M. P. P. and T. A. Kinnear, barrister.---Times.

MT. ALLISON.—A new feature in this year's closing will be the Academy gymnasium exhibition on Saturday morning. The class is a large one and has reached a high degree of proficiency under the tuition of Mr. W. W. Costin. One gold and two silver medals will be awarded.

—For the first time the commercial college will graduate a class in phonography. This class numbers about one dozen.

—The Academy closing on Monday afternoon promises to be of more than usual interest. Beside the regular work Miss Tibbets an accomplished St. John musician will play on the mandolin and some of the best violin music from Miss Ayer's department will assist. The Webb family will also render a selection.

LEA'S WOODWORKING FACTORY.—A Times reporter on Saturday visited the woodworking factory of Mr. Paul Lea, situated at the foot of Westmorland street, and was agreeably surprised to find the hum of industry that prevails in the establishment. At present Mr. Lea has twenty-one men employed, the number being increased from fifteen since spring opened. The factory is well supplied with work and the indications are that the numbbers of employees will have to be increased to turn out work. Mr. Lea has considerable work to do for outside towns, having about a $3,000 job for Mr. Chas. Fawcett, of Sackville in connection with his new foundry. Considerable work is also being done for the new lodge Leing erected in connection with Mt. Allison Institutions at Sackville. The factory contains competent workmen and the place is noted for the first-class work turned out.—Times.

A Difficult Arbitration.

The arbitration between J. L. Black and Amos P. Burke was continued Monday and Tuesday of this week before W. A. Russel, R. A. Chapman and H. A. Powell. On Tuesday evening the matter was adjourned until June 11. The arbitration will likely spin out a few days longer. The matters in dispute consist of private accounts and partnership accounts. Mr, Black alleges that all the partnership accounts with one or two items were settled on Dec. 12, 1888, and that this settlement showed that Mr. Burke had overdrawn his account upwards of $1900, and that Mr. Black was about square. And in order to bring himself up level with Mr. Burke he took notes with the firm to the amount of about $2500 to collect. That Mr. Burke also took notes to the amount of about $800 for collection on account of the firm. And that about $1500 of debts considered bad were left to be collected by the firm. Mr. Bruke claims that Mr. Black should be responsible for all these notes which he took away to collect: claims also that he should not be liable for interest on his overdrawn account which was charged against him in the alleged settlement and that Mr. Black should have no interest on the balance which the firm had almost continuously owed him. This balance at times amounted to several thousand dollars. Mr, Burke also claims that he should be allowed for nine years board at a clerk who was employed by the firm. Mr. Black contends that it was agreed between Mr. Burke and himself that Mr. Burke should pay the clerk's board as the clerk had to attend to the private and post office business of Mr. Burke as the latter was an illiterate man and could not do book-keeping for himself.

There is a matter of mits and socks amounting to a large sum which Mr. Burk claims Mr. Black should pay and which Mr. Black claims he should not pay as he was acting as agent for the firm in selling them and that the parties to whom he sold became insolvent; and also that some of the stock was so poor that he was unable to find a purchaser and that part is still stored in his warehouse at Sackville. There are like wise disputes over lobster factories; business disputes over proceeds of securities which were held both for firm debts and for Mr. Black's private debt; disputes over assumptions of other peoples accounts; ad infinitum. To add to the complications Mr. Burk made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. R. C. Taitof Shediac his trustee was present and interested in the arbitration. Altogether the three arbitrators will need abundance of time, clear heads, and imperturable spirits with entire absence of other spirits, for a satisfactory and just solution of the problem might try the wisdom of Minos and his companion judges.

—Westmorland Orangemen will celebrate the 12th, this year at Shediac.

—The position for the new Coverdale river bridge has been located and the work of building will soon begin.

—There are three Norwegian barks at present loading at Pt. du Chene. Eight or nine more vessels are expected in a few days.

—Crossman & Laws of Amherst have started the erection of an addition to their Foundry. It will occupy the Fitchett property, the houses on which have been removed to make room for this extension.

—There died at Ansdale, Antigonish Co. on May 3rd a woman who had been the mother of 26 children—13 sons and 13 daughters. She was Mrs. Mary Cameron, widow of the late Dougald Cameron of that place. Only 10 of her children survive her.

—Work on the I. C. R. has been practically suspended during the past week, owing to the strike at the Springhill mines. Not over one train outside of the regular trains has been sent out from here.—Moncton Ex.

PORT ELGIN JUSTICE.—A Port Elgin correspondent of the POST writes as following: On Saturday 5th two young men visited the premises of Capt. Geo. Sprague, and forcing open his fish house destroyed a quantity of fish. The complainant who is a man about 90 with a sick wife could not repulse the cowards. On Monday he laid complaint against James Thompson of P. E. Island and Frank Fields of this place. Both parties acknowledged offence and paid costs, together with damages Henry McNutt appeared for Sprague. Much indignation was felt by the young men of the town who may sometimes attack a grog shop but would not be guilty of bothering an old man who is trying to support a sick wife. The Capt. had the active help of some of the boys in his prosecutions.

Personals.

—W. C. Hewson, dentist, will be in Sackville May 28. See spe. local.

—Rev. W. H. Warren formally announced from the pulpit last Sunday afternoon that he had severed his connection with Sackville Baptist church, his resignation to take effect at the end of this month.

—The Moniteur Acadian says that a letter from Edinburgh states that Dr. J. Clarence Webster of Shediac has won the first prize, fifty guineas, in the Royal College of Medicine for original work in scientific medicine during the year. In the ten years he has passed at Edinburgh, says the Moniteur, Dr. Webster has won $4,000 in prizes.

—It is understood that Judge Wells will be appointed revising barrister for Westmorland County, and Robert Hutchinson, of Richibucto, as revising barrister for Kent County. Formerly one revising barrister acted for the two counties.

—It is understood that owing to ill health the Rev. Mr. Pickles of Point de Bute will seek a supernumerary relation at the approaching Methodist conference, and will probably make St. John his home for the next ecclesiastical year. It is also understood that for the same reason the Rev. L. S. Johnson of Newcastle will seek a year's rest. The loss to the church of the services of two such acceptable preachers, will be regretted, but the return to the active work of the ministry of Rev. Drs. Sprague and Brecken will fill the vacancies thus made. —Sun

—"Their old comrades and friends" of the Royal military college of Canada have just placed in the south transept of Dorchester cathedral, a handsome memorial, to the three officers of the Royal Engineers who had graduated in that college, namely 'Lieut. W G Stairs who had served under Sir H M Stanley, in the Emin Pasha relief expedition, and ultimately died of fever, whilst leading an African exploring party, sent out by the King of Belgians; Captain H B MacKay, who died of fever at Mombasa, while acting administrator of the British East African company; and Captain W H Robinson, who was killed in action near Sierra Leone in March 1892. Capt, Stairs, was a native of Halifax, and Capt. Robinson, of Fredericton. The latter was a brother of Mrs. J F Allison, of Sackville and of Mrs. J W Y Smith, M. P. P. Moncton.

THE OLD WIFE.

By the bed the old man, waiting, sat in vigil sad and tender,
Where his aged wife lay dying; and the twilight shadows brown
Slowly from the wall and window chased the sunset's golden splendor
Going down.

"Is it night?" she whispered, waking (for her spirit seemed to hover Lost between the next world's sunshine and the bed time cares of this),
And the old man, weak and tearful, trembling as he bent above her,
Answered, "Yes."

"Are the children in?" she asked him. Could he tell her? all the treasures
Of their household lay in silence many years beneath the snow;
But her heart was with them living, back among her toils and pleasures
Long ago.

And again she called at dew-fall, in the sweet old summer weather,
"Where is little Charlie, father? Frank and Robert—have they come?"
"They are safe," the old man faltered—"all the children are together, Safe at home."

Then he murmured gentle soothings, but his grief grew strong and stronger,
Till it choked and stilled him as he held and kissed her wrinkled hand,
For her soul far out of hearing, could his fondest words no longer Understand.

Still the pale lips stammered questions, lulla-bies and broken verses,
Nursery prattle—all the language of a mother's loving deeds,
While the midnight round the mourner, left to sorrow's bitter mercies,
Wrapped its weeds,

There was stillness on the pillow—and the old man listened lonely—
Till they led him from the chamber, with the burden on his breast,
For the wife of seventy years, his manhood's early love and only,
Lay at rest.

"Fare you well," he sobbed, "my Sarah you will meet the babes before me;
'Tis a little while, for neither can the parting long abide,
And you'll come and call me soon, I know—and heaven will restore me
To your side."

* * * * * * * * *

It was even so. The springtime in the steps of Winter treading,
Scarcely shed its orchard blossoms ere the old man closed his eyes.
And they buried him by Sarah—and they had their "diamond wedding"
In the skies.

NED HASTINGS' FALL.

It was noon at the Blue Jay Mine, and the men had come out of the tunnel to eat the not over dainty luncheon prepared for them by French Pete, the Blue Jay chief. Dan Glass, boss of the lower workings was the first to finish, and lighting his pipe, he commenced to regale them with stories of "the sixties when Quartz Hill was a honeycomb of mines. Breaking of suddenly in the midst of one of his favorite exploits, he smiled broadly and exclaimed; "There he comes now!" indicating, pipe in hand, with an oracular wave, a sturdy looking man coming down the trail that led from Humbug City to the mine.

"You all thought I had been budgin' over to Humbug, 'cause I comed in late this morning; but I hadn't. I'd jest been attendin' a little before breakfast matinee in which thet young feller there played a solo part way up—er down. Youse know him mostly—he's the express agent what hangs out at Winning Card. Well, where dy'e spose I found him this morning?"

"You shut up, Dan. Here is the quart I promised you," said the subject of Dan's remarks, coming up and handing out a bottle marked "Egyptian Cough Mixture, S. T. 1867, X which Dan promptly appropriated and fondly applied to his lips, his movements followed by six pairs of envious eyes.

"You can't keep it, so I might as well tell the straight of it myself," continued the young man, balancing himself precariously upon an overturned wheel-barrow. "I guess you will laugh—Dan did; but I ain't seen where the laugh comes in yet. I may when my hair gets to laying flat enough for me to comb, which it ain't as yet.

"You see, it was like this. I had been over at Humbug, calling on a female friend of mine at the Gold Dust Hotel, and the time slipped by so pleasantly that when I looked at my watch I found I had less than an hour to get over to Winning Card to get the bullion out of the safe for the Silver City stage, which passes about eleven o'clock You know how the road winds around Quartz Hill from Humbug to the Card?—it's a good five mile, mostly uphill. Well, I knew that I couldn't make it that way, and as it was such a bright, moonlight night I thought I would chance old Ashby's Trail over the hill, which isn't over two mile. You know Asby's Trail Dan? That's the one him and Dick Dunn fought about, and he had to kill Dick,'

'Yep," replied Dan, his eyes twinkling with amusement. 'I comed over it at break o' day this mornin', an' ——"

'Never mind,' broke in Hastings. 'I thought I could see well enough to keep out of the holes and make pretty good time, but that old hill's got an abandoned mine every fifty foot, and they run from ten to five hundred feet deep. I don't believe there is a curb or board over the whole blessed lot.. 'Well, I was making good time enough until I came to where I judged the Bob-tail Extension was—a good six hundred feet deep, if it's a foot—when I noticed that the sky was clouding up. In about five minutes I felt a chilly gust of wind, and then it suddenly got blacker than a stack of black cats. Knowing where I was, and the danger of stepping into the Bob tail, made the cold chills play tag up and down my spinal column. I slowed up, and for a while shoved one foot ahead of the other until I begun to get careless, thinking that I knew the lay of the land well enough to know that I was past the worst of it. Suddenly, jest as I started to sing the first verse of 'The Days of '49,' I stepped on nothing but oxygen—and I knew to a dead certainty that I was falling into the Bob-tail!

'If I live to be a thousand years old I will never forget the feeling of horror that took possession of me. As I plunged forward, I instinctively threw out my arms, and fetched breast up, against a piece of scantling—the only thing left of a floor that had once covered the shaft—with a suddenness that took away my breath. I hung onto that scantling like grim death, for I knew it was the only thing between me and the hereafter; but I was limp and nerveless from the shaking up I had received.

'After a while, though, I put out one foot and felt for the left wall—couldn't reach it! Tried a little harder, and got so interested in the operation that I slipped my hold on the board, and barely caught it with my hands! I tell you, my heart came up into my mouth, and I could feel the cold sweat dropping from under my cap and running down my back. But I had touched the side, and in doing so knocked off a piece of wall-rock, which I heard go chinkety chink, chinkety chink, until I counted thirteen, then a faint splash in the bottom.

'I was so weak by this time that I could not wiggle one hand over the other and make the side that way. All I could do was to hang on and yell. And didn't I yell, though! But no one heard me except a lonesome old coyote, who came up and had a yell with me After a while I made up my mind that I'd got to go, and then I began to think of every mean thing I ever did in my life, from drowning kittens to—well, no matter what to—and the few good things; they didn't take me long. You can laugh, if you want to; but I ain't going to drink any more; I can tell you that, now!

'I thought of myself lying in that black pit o' hell, starving and mangled, wishing for death that came so slow Somehow, that seemed all right—I could stand that: but when I thought of the five hundred dollars, Stage Company money, in my pocket, and they advertising me as an absconding thief—it was worse than horrible!

'It was about that time that I began to feel around for the end of a prayer or two that I used to know when I was a kid, and as I repeated the familiar Now I lay me down to sleep,' I could see my old gray-haired mother, away down east on the old home-farm in Vermont—I could see her sitting in the little low rocking chair in the west window, where she wrote me she would always sit as the sun went down in the west, and give him a message for her dear boy, to deliver when he smiled upon him after she had gone to bed. I could see father come in and hand her the paper—the one I subscribed to for her when I first came here. I could see her dear old face flush with pleasure at the throught that she was soon to read the 'personal' about 'Our gentlemanly and efficient express agent,' like they are always putting in out here. The dear old lady nervously feels about for her spectacles, which she can never find, where she has pushed them up on her forehead. At last she has them safely in front of her eyes and has smoothed the ruffled gray hairs into place. She opens the papers and stares hard at the scare head: 'Stop Thief! Where is Edward Hastings, and where, oh! where is the Stage Co.'s $500? I could see her read the infernal black letters in a dazed way—then the truth—the lie—the black lie—gather up her ruised spirit and bear it away while her head bowed in grief! And—and I could see myself in that d—d hole, mangled and bleeding!

'I thought all this, and more, too, boys. A man lives a long times when he knows he has got to die the next minute Then I felt my grip slowly relaxing. I commended my soul to God, shut my eyes, let go, and dropped!"

The interest of his listeners was intense now. Even Dan's hand shook a little as he took his pipe from between his lips, and Hasting's voice dropped almost to a whisper. He paused a moment, and added:

'Dropped—just eighteen inches!"

There was a dead silence for fully a half a minute; then Grasshopper Jim 'f'm Kansas,' got up, slowly wiped his eyes with the back of his hand, inspected the hand critically for a moment, and as slowly wiped it down his boot leg, where it left a long damp streak in its wake. Then he sat down again, looking fixedly at the express agent, and ejaculated amid the approving glances of every miner present:

"Well, I call that ther a——d—d shame!"

The S. T. 1860, X., bottle was passed from lip to lip but no motion was made to pass it on to Hastings until Dan recovered enough to explain that the story was true in every particular—that he could vouch for the most of it. Hastings, in fact, had fallen into the Bob-tail Shaft, and the only reason he had fallen eighteen inches instead of six hundred feet was because in digging the mine the miners had found after going down about six feet that they were some four feet to the left of the vein, and had simply "shelved" and gone on, and that morning coming to work, he had found Hastings "roosting onto thet shelf," too weak from fright to help himself out!

Missouri Joe evidently had sifted the whole matter through his mind, and was not satisfied with the conclusion. "I-s-a-ay, Neddie" he drawled; 'what did you do when you struck bottom? Did you finish that there prayer?"

Ned colored guiltily as he replied:

"Naw, you know I didn't finish the prayer What do you suppose I did,

'Jest cussed, suggested Joe.

'Sure!' answered Ned,—Fred T. Cowles.

DYING ON HIS FEET.

"That man is just dying on his feet."

How often the phrase is used with regard to persons brought to death's door by overwork and consequent nervous prostration and debility. They cannot afford time to rest (so they will tell you) and gradually they reach the stage where their friends speak of them in the words above quoted For all who have reached such a stage or are in broken health from any cause, there is a sure specific in Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic the great nerve and brain invigorator, blood and flesh builder, and a perfect aid to digestion.

A Lame Back or a kink in the neck, is quickly removed by a free application of Dr. Manning's german remedy, the universal pain cure. All druggists sell it.

BABY OR TIGER?

The steamship Colon of the Pacific mail line was only twenty-four hours out from the Isthmus, but already four convivial spirits had formed a friendship and were seated in the smoking room talking of the business and pleasure that marked their years of life in different countries of South America, for all had come from points below the equator.

It was 11 o'clock. A quiet little poker game had passed time for a while, but the cards had laid untouched on the table for an hour. The night was lovely, hardly a ripple could be seen on the moon-frosted water, and the Colon forged ahead as if crossing a pond, throwing aside a phosphorescent spray and kicking up a swirl of fire with her propeller as she knocked off fourteen knots an hour.

It was the perfect night that had induced the four occupants of the smoker to leave their cards and sit beside the large door where they could look over the vessels rail and at the same time converse together.

John Devine, a civil engineer who had been working along the line of the Oroya railroad in Peru, had been telling about the marvelous construction of this railway and hadidentically remarked that during all the time he spent in South America he had not seen a wild animal except one small tiger, and that far in the interior. As he mentioned this, one of the party was noticed to draw back and shudder as if cold.

'What is it, Captain? Let's have the story," said an American consul, who was going home on leave, 'I'll warrant there's something rather interesting if you would tell it.'

'Yes, let's hear it!' chimed in the other two.

Capt. Paul lighted a second long, black cheroot and replied: 'Well it's a curious yarn, and I sometimes wonder whether I really passed through it or not, but when it seems only a dream to me all I have to do is to look into my trunk. There is something there that is a vivid reminder of the night I will tell you about, that something I will show in the morning.

'Of course, gentlemen, you know that Mrs. Paul accompanies me, but I don't suppose that you have noticed my 3-year-old son who is cared for by a Peruvian nurse."

'I have," remarked the consul, 'and a sturdy-looking fellow he is.'

'When the lad was a ten-months-old baby," continued the Captain, 'I was ordered to Guayaquai, Ecuador. As you probably know, I have been representing marine underwriters in South America, having been sent there to prevent agents for damaged ships making too expensive repairs at our expense. I had been sent by my employers to superintend work on a steamer which had sunk in the Guayaquai river at that point.

"It meant four months stay at that hot little town sixty miles from the sea coast, and so I at once rented a little furnished house two miles from the city and installed my wife, baby and servants there. I bought a horse and rode back and forth every morning and evening. It was hot and the mosquitoes were plenty to say nothing about fleas, but our little place was so light and open that it caught any breeze that might be going, and life was not half bad there. The house had only six rooms and all were on the ground floor, but they were sufficient. I frequently told Mrs. Paul that it was dangerous to leave any of the doors ajar at night, for although burglars are not to be feared in Ecuador yet once in a while animals came out of the jungle, and they had been seen near the city. But as time passed and nights became warmer we both grew careless.

'One day I had been detained in town, and it was nearly midnight when I mounted my horse to return for there had been a survey held that day on the steamer, which by this time had been raised, and I waited to hear the report. The night was a perfect one, much like this. I had moonlight to cheer my way until near home, but the last rays came over the hill as I rode past the house, and they just showed me that the front door was half open. 'I must have these doors closed at night,' thought I as I rode into the stable, and taking off Tom's saddle I threw him some hay and walked back to the cottage.

'You are all aware how carefully a man walks when he enters a house where a year-old baby is. Indeed, it is self preservation in many cases. And in this instance I did what many a father has done before me, I took off my shoes on the doorstep. My room was the first one off the hall and I entered it on tiptoe and stole alongside of the bed. It was pitch dark in the room, but I knew that baby was there At first I thought I would go into my wife's room in the front of the house but as I slowly undressed I argued her placing the baby in my bed proved that she had had a pretty bad evening, so I decided to crawl in beside the youngster and not disturb the mother. I undressed noiselessly and, donning my nightgown, lay down on the opposite site of the bed from the baby. As the night was warm I did not pull even a sheet over me. Buster still kept up a loud breathing, but it didn't disturb me, though as I fell asleep I remember thinking that he seemed more snuffy than usual.

* * * * * *

"Uugh!' A weight had fallen across my chest. I didn't make this exclamation aloud. I had been in training as a paterfamilias too long for that. Half awake, I realized that Buster had thrown himself across my body. I slowly pulled one arm out, then took hold of him gently to lift him off without waking him 'Strange how long and hairy Buster's head is,' I thought.

"Yes, we had a frightful experience," said the returned traveler. "Have you any idea how it feels to be hemmed in by icebergs?"

'I think I have,' replied the other. 'I once attended a 5 o'clock tea in Boston.'

EX-MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT

REUBEN E. TRUAX

Hon. Reuben E. Truax, one of Canada's ablest thinkers and statesmen, a man so highly esteemed by the people of his district that he was honored with a seat in Parliament, kindly furnishes us for publication the following statement, which will be most welcome to the public, inasmuch as it is one in which all will place implicit confidence. Mr. Truax says:

"I have been for about ten years very much troubled with Indigestion and Dyspepsia, have tried a great many different kinds of patent medicines, and have been treated by a number of physicians and found no benefit from them. I was recommended to try the Great South American Nervine Tonic. I obtained a bottle, and I must say I found very great relief, and have since taken two more bottles, and now feel that I am entirely free from Indigestion, and would strongly recommend all my fellow-sufferers from the disease to give South American Nervine an immediate trial. It will cure you.

"REUBEN E. TRUAX,
"Walkerton, Ont."

It has lately been discovered that certain Nerve Centres, located near the base of the brain, control and supply the stomach with the necessary nerve force to properly digest the food. When these Nerve Centres are in any way deranged the supply of nerve force is at once diminished, and as a result the food taken into the stomach is only partially digested, and Chronic Indigestion and Dyspepsia soon make their appearance.

South American Nervine is so prepared that it acts directly on the nerves. It will absolutely cure every case of Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and is an absolute specific for all nervous diseases and ailments. It usually gives relief in one day.

Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle-aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasent to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

Dr. W. Washburn, of New Richmond, Indiana, writes: "I have used South American Nervine in my family and prescribed it in my practice. It is a most excellent remedy."

Squire Tapley.

The ex-Police Magistrate of the old Town of Portland N. B.

INTERESTING INTERVIEW HAD WITH HIM BY A ST. JOHN SUN REPORTER.

There is no more familiar figure in St. John, N. B., than ex-Police Magistrate Tapley, who for so many years presided over the court of the old city of Portland, now a part of the city of St. John. 'Squire Tapley, as he is familarly styled by everybody, has been before the public so long in an official capacity that he is known far and wide, and is not less widely respected. The venerable ex-magistrate was recently brought to death's door, and the secret of his complete restoration to health is a matter of interest and importance to men and women everywhere. It having been stated that the restoration was due to the use of Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic and Hawker's liver pills, a St. John Sun reporter investigated the case. He was heartily greeted by 'Squire Tapley who spoke freely of the case. It was absolutely true, he said, and the case could not be put too strongly, that Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic and Hawker's liver pills had restored him to health and vigor from a state so serious that it caused both himself and his friends the greatest anxiety. Loss of appetite, weakness, nervous prostration, sleeplessness, and a general breaking down and decay of vital powers, were in brief, the symptoms; but they and all vanished under the influence of these wonderful restorative remedies. He began to take Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic and Hawker's liver pills, and within a week after beginning their use he was frequently stopped on the streets and asked the secret of the marvellous change in his manner and appearance. To all such enquires he had but one answer: Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic and Hawker's liver pills had wrought the miracle. After having used eight bottles of tonic and two boxes of pills at a cost of only $4.50, 'Squire Tapley declares himself a new man His appetite returned, his sleep restful and refreshing, and he feels thoroughly renewed and invigorated in every respect.

"You may use these statements freely," said 'Squire Tapley to the reporter. "I feel that I ought to recommend Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic and Hawker's liver pills, and I am doing it every day. Many of my friends are using them on my recommendation In fact, I consider these remedies the best in the world."

Fellow sufferer here is encouragement for you. Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic is a perfect nerve restorer and invigorator, and blood and flesh-builder as well as a valuable stomach tonic and aid to digestion. It is a certain cure when faithfully used for all diseases arising from nerve exhaustion, weakness or impaired digestion, an improverished or impure state of the blood, such as nervousness, weakness, nervous headache, sleeplessness, neuralgia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, loss of memory loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, hysteria, and the prostrating effects of la grippe or any nerve weakness of heart or brain arising from worry, overstrain of mind or body, or excesses of any nature.

Hawker's tonic is especially adapted to the diseases peculiar to women, giving tone to the nerves and stomach, vigor to the mind and body, and strength to the blood, restoring the bloom of health to the pale and delicate.

These remedies can be obtained of all druggists and dealers, price as follows; tonic, fifty cents a bottle, or six bottles for 2.50; pills, twenty-five cents.

The Scotch are great sticklers for clan names, as this story testifies:

A beggar who was starving asked for alms at a public house where there was a great gathering of Scotchmen, and was refused. He then demanded in God's name to know if there were any Christains present.

"Deed no, we're a just Grants and Frasers here; ye'll maybe find the Christains in some ither town," was the characteristic response.
