DR. HILLYER'S SAD END

The Well-Known Hamilton Physician Became Tired of the Worries of Life—Hamilton News.

Hamilton, Aug. 17.—(Special.)—Bailiff Hunter went into the office of Dr. E. S. Hillyer, corner of Victoria-avenue and Cannon-street, this morning to make a seizure. He did not see him, so he entered the private apartments. On the bed was the dead body of the doctor and on a table, under two empty vials, which had contained poison, it is supposed, was the following letter:

Hamilton, Aug. 4, 1898.

To Those Interested:

I tire of the struggle. My enemies, without cause, are too numerous, powerful and withal too insidious for me. I have always tried to do my duty, but obstacles, as irresistible as Niagara cataracts, overwhelm me. In death I shall at least find peace and rest—I welcome it as a boon and refuge.

My personal effects should be sufficient, after paying rent, to give me decent sepulture. I would prefer to be buried in Hamilton Cemetery and that the funeral should be private. T. S. Hillyer.

An inquest was opened at 4 o'clock this afternoon, but the jury adjourned till to-morrow night. In the meantime a post-mortem examination will be held. The deceased had had practically no practice for years. He was unmarried and has relatives living near Simcoe.

Police Briefs.

Adam Alford, the tramp, who was arrested yesterday for stealing melons from Joseph Hunter, was sent to jail for six weeks to-day. He was also charged with carrying a revolver.

Willie Cooper, a lad, whose home is in Peterboro, and who is visiting relatives here, pleaded guilty this morning to a charge of housebreaking and theft. He was allowed to go on suspended sentence, promising to go to his home at once.

Killed in Arizona.

Word was received here to-day of the death of Joseph Brown, late of 133 Hess-street North, in Prescott, Arizona. He was killed by the explosion of a boiler, which was being tested.

To Be Married Next Week.

His Lordship the Bishop of Ottawa, late Bishop of Niagara Diocese, has issued invitations for the marriage of his daughter, Miss Hamilton, to the Rev. Lenox Smith, curate of St. John the Evangelist, Montreal, son of Mr. Larratt Smith of Toronto, which will take place at Cacouna on Aug. 24. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Mr. Wood, who will be the guest of Hon. G. A. Drummond at Gadshill for the occasion.

Tooth Saving.

It is only from the old-time pain of the operation that many dread to have teeth extracted. Teeth are friends—and the parting should be avoided if possible—regretted always for the sake of good health and good looks.

Our modern methods take away all of the pain of tooth extracting—but we would rather save teeth than extract them. Modern skill—and methods—and facilities—help us to do that.

WARNING TO MERCHANTS.

Details of a Scheme Between T. H. Pratt, J. Pratt and J. H. Doherty to Defraud Creditors.

Monetary Times, July 29.

We have been at some pains to procure the particulars of a case recently tried, which, we think, must be of interest to our readers. Many a man is working day and night to pay his debts and get an honest living as a retail merchant. Some few who have good businesses find this comparatively easy, but there are hundreds, possibly thousands, who find it hard work. And it is made harder still by the schemes of a competitor who will use the underhand means which were employed by the man or men we are to tell about.

J. H. Doherty, carrying on business in Ottawa as a dry goods and clothing merchant, assigned to E. R. C. Clarkson of Toronto, on Jan. 15, 1898; his statement of affairs showing liabilities $29,485.01, assets $22,045.46, deficiency $7439.55. About a year previous to this, namely on Feb. 2, 1897, Doherty sent a statement of his affairs to the Gault Brothers Company, limited, and other creditors, showing assets $30,461.49, liabilities $10,125.15—surplus $20,336.34. Under these circumstances, a difference of $27,000 being shown in a man's balance sheet within a year, the creditors naturally wanted to ascertain what had become of the assets; and Messrs. Kerr, Bull & Rowell of Toronto were retained on behalf of the estate to examine Doherty with regard to the disposition of his assets.

Upon this examination, it transpired that in September and October, 1897, Doherty had sent to T. H. Pratt, his brother-in-law, in Hamilton, goods to the amount of over $7000 to secure alleged advances of money, and that about three weeks previous to his assignment to Mr. Clarkson, Doherty had sold a stock of goods in his store on Sparks-street, Ottawa, amounting to about $10,000, to G. H. White of Ingersoll for $4000 in cash, and that over $3000 of this amount had been paid over to his brother-in-law, Isaiah Pratt, who was carrying on business for the firm of I. Pratt & Co., in settlement of an alleged indebtedness to I. Pratt & Co.

Doherty's explanation with regard to his estate, and his answers to questions put to him upon his examination on oath, were so unsatisfactory that Messrs. Kerr, Bull & Rowell made an application to the court to have Doherty committed to prison, and His Lordship Justice Street made an order for his committal to prison for three months. Mr. Doherty is now serving his term in Ottawa jail.

Upon the facts disclosed in Doherty's examination the inspectors directed the assignee to take action to set aside the payment of the $3000 to I. Pratt & Co., and judgment has recently been delivered by His Lordship Justice MacMahon, who tried the case at the last assizes at Ottawa.

In reviewing the evidence, Justice MacMahon comments very pointedly on the rather extraordinary facts adduced at the trial, particularly with regard to the absence of proper books of account kept by the defendants and T. H. Pratt showing the transactions between the parties, and to the destruction of the correspondence and other important documents bearing upon the matters in question, and His Lordship practically sums up the judgment as follows: "I regard the whole as a scheme entered into between T. H. Pratt, Isaiah Pratt and Doherty for the benefit of the latter, and to defraud his creditors;" and he gives judgment in favor of Mr. Peter Larmonth, the substituted assignee, against I. Pratt & Co. for the sum of $3160 with interest from Dec. 23, 1897, and costs of suit.

There is a certain satisfaction, not only to the party immediately interested as a creditor, but to the honest merchant, aiming to pay 20 shillings in the pound, as well as to the sympathizer with fair dealing, at hearing that thieving gets its reward. Assuredly it is refreshing to have a judge speak out boldly in condemnation of "a scheme to defraud creditors." If a newspaper said so much, the schemer might sue its proprietors, and mulct them in heavy law costs for daring to tell the truth.

FurtherWarning to Merchants.

Monetary Times, Aug. 5.

Since the publication of the article in last week's issue entitled "A Dishonest Scheme," we have had the opportunity of reading Mr. Justice MacMahon's judgment in the matter of Larmonth v. Doherty. This throws further light upon the matter, and our readers will doubtless be interested in additional particulars of this noteworthy case.

Isaiah Pratt had failed in business in December, 1895, owing $12,000 more than he had assets for, and his wife bought the stock and began in Ottawa, under the old firm name of I. Pratt & Co., the husband managing for her by power of attorney. It is alleged that the firm of Pratt & Co. had loaned money to Doherty regularly, indeed from February, 1896, to December, 1897, had lent $1500. Yet this firm, said to be thus lending money to Doherty, was indebted all this time to T. H. Pratt for over $3000, and the real proprietor of the business, Mrs. Pratt, had no knowledge of any loans to Doherty. Therefore, the judge infers, it is incredible that she would not have known it if the alleged loans to Doherty were true.

Let it be noted here that Doherty was a brother-in-law of Isaiah Pratt and very intimate with him. Their businesses were carried on in buildings which adjoined, and it is inferable from the evidence that whatever went on in one store was known in the other. In 1890 or 1891, when Doherty failed, he assigned to Thomas H. Pratt of Hamilton, who bought in the stock in the name of Doherty's wife. In 1896, or thereabout, however, Doherty resumed the business in his own name. Well in the autumn of 1897 Doherty, being in financial straits, applied for help to Thomas H. Pratt—his brother-in-law—who agreed to help him provided he was paid 10 per cent. for doing so, and provided merchandise out of Doherty's store should be deposited with Pratt as security for advances. From time to time in the fall of 1897 Doherty did ship goods from his store in Ottawa to Pratt at Hamilton, amounting in value to $7274.

As to loans of money alleged to have been made by Pratt to Doherty, represented by notes of $738, $317 and $461, all bearing date Jan. 1, 1898, and all payable on demand, there is no evidence on which the judge can rely that any such sum as $1516 for which Pratt ranked on Doherty, was advanced on these notes. The two neighbors, Isaiah Pratt and Doherty, were in the habit of exchanging cheques, and according to the story Isaiah tells, Doherty would give bonds to Isaiah Pratt for money lent, which when they reached a big enough sum he (Doherty) would replace by a note for their aggregate. This is the way he accounts for the three notes. But the judge dismisses the whole story as a make-up. It is not in Pratt's books of account, and there is no trace of the notes in Doherty's bill-book. Nor does the judge credit the stories told of their origin. "I do not credit Mr. Isaiah Pratt," His Honor says, "his manner of giving evidence did not impress me as that of a truthful witness, and I placed no reliance upon his statements." Further, Judge MacMahon declares, "Doherty I do not regard as a credible witness, where his own interests or those of his relatives are involved; and at the time of the trial he had been recently released from prison, or was then in jail serving his term on an order made by a judge committing him for unsatisfactory answers given as to the disposition of his property on his examination as a judgment debtor." Judgment was given for the plaintiff, Larmonth (assignee for the benefit of creditors of estate of J. H. Doherty), July 14, 1898, for the amount of the three notes mentioned.

All the circumstances, the judge considers, are against the conclusion that the transactions in question, between the parties, were in good faith. And he regards the rule laid down in Merchants Bank v. Clark, 18 G. R. 594; Allan v. McTavish, 28 G. R. 539 and Marten v. Nihan, 5 A. R. 20, that "transactions of this kind should not be held sufficiently established by the uncorroborated testimony of the parties thereto, as a most wholesome one, and certainly a rule which should be adhered to in the present case." The circumstance is commented upon severely that every letter received by T. H. Pratt from Doherty and Isaiah Pratt has been destroyed, and that all letters written by T. H. Pratt to Doherty and Isaiah Pratt relating to these transactions have likewise been destroyed by these parties. Also the statement made by T. H. Pratt in March, 1898, that he had no ledger or other book containing an account with I. Pratt & Co., yet within three months a book was produced (he called it a private ledger), containing such account, covering over 100 entries, all apparently made at the same time. From what source were such entries made? the court asks. They must have been contained in some book which is not forthcoming. "I regard the whole as a scheme entered into between T. H. Pratt, Isaiah Pratt and Doherty for the benefit of the latter and to defraud his creditors," says the judgment. The man who has been sent to jail, and the men who are contemplating some such actions as landed him there, may do well to take heed.

AN OUTSIDE OPINION.

Why American Tourists Flock to Toronto—A Jurist Gives His Views.

Walking up and down the cool corridors of the Arlington Hotel last evening was Judge Martin, the learned dean of the Law Department of the State University of Missouri. The orchestra which plays at dinner every day had just finished "Down in Dixie," and the Judge had to join in the hearty applause before he could say anything to The World.

Judge's Impressions of Toronto.

He was now as ready to speak about Toronto as the newspaper man was to receive his impressions.

"Do I like Toronto? Of course I do," he replied, with a laugh. "I think that it is the most desirable place as a summer resort that Americans have."

Why Americans Come Here.

"Why should Toronto be more attractive than places nearer home, Judge?"

"Oh, there are several reasons why we come up here. The air is delightful, the city government is good and your hotels are most home-like. There are no iron rules to run against, and we can come and go when we like."

The Judge's remarks were certainly borne out by the scenes all around. The parlor was full of lovely southern women in gauzy evening dress, euchre tables were surrounded with eager players, and on the verandah, in the care of a host of colored nurses, were groups of gay, laughing children.

A Special Attraction.

"Another thing you have here to which I would like to pay my tribute," said the Judge, warmly, "is the nice pleasure steamers leaving Toronto every day. These boats will take one anywhere he wants to go, and not even Chicago sends out so many, nor as well managed."

At this point Mrs. Judge Martin came to summon the jurist to a game of euchre, and he reluctantly obeyed.

A Leading Ladies' College.

The fire at Havergal College does not seem to have been as serious as was first reported. The two lower storeys were little affected by it, and with the large number of men now at work it is expected that a portion of the building at any rate will be ready for occupation on Sept. 14. The principal, Miss Knox, returned to Toronto last week and will have a large and efficient staff when the college reopens. The staff is chosen from English universities and from the University of Toronto. This is in accordance with the aim of the college, which is to combine all that is best in English and Canadian education.

Havergal College is striving to bring the experience and training of the Old Country into contact with the enthusiasm and life of the new, and also to lead the girls to a love of outdoor life and games similar to that shown in the leading schools of England and Scotland. A girl needs a strong body as well as a strong mind. For this purpose bicycling, tennis and all out of door games are of inestimable value.

A Case Dismissed.

The conspiracy charge instituted by a woman who goes under the name of Rolston and who lives at 152 Richmond-street west, against Miss Alice Law and Mr. R. A. Hunter of East Toronto, came up yesterday before His Honor Judge Morgan at the weekly Criminal Court sittings. Mr. Raney, who appeared for the Crown, stated the facts of the case to the court, and said he could not advise the investigation of the charge, and recommended that both defendants be acquitted. The attention of the court was directed to the fact that the defendants had at different times been compelled to answer to three separate charges made by the same complainant, all of which had been eventually abandoned, and that the matter had been frequently referred to in the press. His Honor was pleased to direct that the press be informed that both defendants had been honorably acquitted of the charge against them, and, that, notwithstanding anything which may have been published, he hoped the public would form no adverse opinion as to the character of the parties, as there was not the slightest foundation for the charge made against them.

See that the cork from the bottle is branded when you call for Mt. Clemens Sprudel Water.

SHAFTER A GREAT SOLDIER.

So Says Major Burr of the American Army—The Man That Slapped Shafter.

Sitting reading a newspaper at the Rossin last night, with a Spanish looking straw hat surmounting his sunburnt face and a small military stick lying across his duck trousers, was Major Burr of the American army. The Major commanded a battalion of Engineers at Santiago de Cuba, and left on Aug. 15, to join his family, now summering at Cobourg, Ontario.

Land Attack All Right.

Major Burr declared that the statements published by American papers about the mismanagement of the land attack on Santiago were gross exaggerations.

"Military men never expected a holiday affair, and never complained either of the way the campaign was conducted or the so-called neglect of the wounded."

Shafter No Coward.

"Do you agree with Richard Harding Davis' criticism of General Shafter, that he lay on his back in a tent two miles to the rear of the point of attack, and was in favor of beating a retreat?"

"It is untrue to charge Shafter with cowardice. It is true that he wanted to retire, but it was due to the fact that the troops were too eager and occupied a line too extensive to hold. I regard Shafter as a great soldier from the fact that his operations drove out Cervera's fleet to destruction and took Santiago before the expiration of a month."

Scovel Slapped Shafter.

"Were you present when Walter Scovel slapped Shafter in the face?"

"I was in the same place, but did not see the affair."

"The American army was very indignant I suppose?"

"No, they were not, because they didn't know the ins and outs of the case. Scovel is a hot-headed young fellow, and Shafter has a strong individuality of his own."

The Major doesn't hold the Cubans in high regard, nor does he believe that they will have a hand in Cuban government for some time to come.

THE SAME OLD GAME.

The Ways of Sleek Mr. Hyman, Who Ran a Bureau on Church-Street—Left Many Sorrowing.

Mr. H. S. Hyman came to Toronto about six weeks ago. He was young, clever, a brilliant talker, of good appearance and with an experience of human nature eminently qualified to assist him in his chosen avocation. Mr. Hyman had no chosen avocation, or rather his choice shifted. He saw numbers of people walking woefully workless along the streets. Employment bureaus were designed to procure employment. He would start an employment bureau; and he did, at 129 1-2 Church-street.

Hyman's Methods.

The above reasoning is simple, a clever man delights to be simple occasionally, but Mr. Hyman's method was not simple. Having procured an office, he advertised in the daily papers for a young man to take a position of trust. The advertisement was apparently a solid affair. This was the impression gained by its purusal. There was no desire for cooks, laundresses, boys or housemaids, the words expressly were "A position of trust." When a young man presented himself, Mr. Hyman looked him over to see if he had a dollar in his pocket. If so, Hyman was suave and as he explained that a firm in Detroit, whom he represented, wished to procure a young man as city traveler, he would mention that a great number had called, but the present applicant was the only one at all inclined to suit. Then he mentioned that it might be advisable for the applicant to leave $1 with him, merely as a matter of form. In case the position first hinted at was not available or did not suit the young man, the registry fee would be good for a year. Unusually came the dollar. In the six weeks Mr. Hyman was here, he initiated about 1000 persons into the mystery of being "rouged."

Hyman Tires.

Now it is no light thing to guarantee employment to 1000 people, and Mr. Hyman began to worry. About this time the 1000 people began to worry also. In the midst of this worry came a telegram from his mother at Detroit, saying she was very ill. Instantly on its receipt Hyman left his business without a pang, his one thought was to arrive at his mother's bedside before it was too late. Mr. Hyman also left his three clerks, but he didn't leave them anything in the way of salary, and his departure was so sudden that a month's rent is still unsettled. Perhaps he will come back. If so he had better utilize the back streets to get to his office.

A Plea for Epileptics.

Editor World: I want to enlist your sympathy in behalf of the most unhappy and also the most to be pitied of all our citizens. I refer to those afflicted with epilepsy, for whom nothing whatever has been done, either by the city or by the Government. Owing to their affliction they are debarred from attending our Public schools, and their parents, in the majority of cases, are financially unable to supply tutors for them. The result is they are obliged to go without education of any kind. Besides this, were there institutions provided for them, as there are for young criminals, many of those afflicted might be cured of the disease by proper medical attention and care as to the quality and quantity of food allotted to them. But where there are other children and the mother has the affairs of her household to look after, the poor afflicted epileptics cannot receive the attention at home that they would do in an institution, and the result is that the disease grows on them from year to year until they go down to an early grave or into the lunatic asylum.

How is it that we on this side of the lakes are so far behind our neighbors in this respect? There are places provided for the treatment of epileptics in almost every State of the Union, yet there is nothing of the kind in the whole of Canada. A very grave responsibility rests on some party for this flagrant neglect.

Epilepsy is on the increase. There are probably upwards of a hundred sufferers now in Toronto alone uncared for. Will you kindly let The World waken up those who have been heretofore so negligent of their duties and thereby earn the lasting gratitude of many afflicted as well as a more than one Parent.

AMUSEMENT AT TRENTON.

Ontario Musical Association Again Have a Successful Meeting—A Variety of Contests.

Trenton, Aug. 17.—The third annual meeting of the Central Ontario Musical Association was held here to-day, and was a decided success in every respect. The weather was all that could be desired, and the citizens of Trenton exerted themselves to make the day a pleasant one for the visitors. The streets were profusely decorated with flags, banners and evergreens. The townspeople turned out in large numbers to welcome the many visitors, and the town presented a gala appearance. A balloon ascension from the Market-square was the first feature. The trip was thoroughly successful, the aeronaut alighting safely with his parachute.

After the balloon ascension there was a reception of the different bands. Music in abundance was provided under the leadership of T. C. Carey, director of the Prince of Wales Own Rifles band, Kingston. In the afternoon the bands formed up in the main street and marched to Stanley Park. Fully 10,000 people were on the grounds.

The combined bands, under the directorship, rendered the following program: March, Great Captain, Scanton; valse, Intermezzo, Love's Dream; After the Ball, Czibulka; grand march, Tannhauser, Wagner.

A splendid program of sports, consisting of bicycle and foot races, vaulting, jumping, etc., was then carried out. The results are as follows:

220-yard hurdle race (professional)—Nolan 1, Ford 2, Coleman 3.

100-yard dash—Coleman 1, Nolan 2 Ford 3.

Running long jump—Coleman 1, Nolan 2, Ford 3.

Vaulting with pole—Nolan 1, Coleman 2.

A well-contested lacrosse match was played by Campbellford and Marmora, resulting in a victory for the latter by four to ten.

In the evening the annual races of the Trenton Rowing Club took place in the harbor. The double-scull race was won by Wilkins and Clark, while the single-scull race was won by Joseph Bryant.

At 8 o'clock there was a grand illuminated bicycle parade, headed by a jobo cornetta band, which elicited much applause.

The prize for the best marching band was won by the Prince of Wales' band of Kingston.

THOSE WHO TEST THE LAW.

Conspiracy to Defraud—Chicken Stealing—Assault—Robbed His Chum—Disorderly Inmates.

Yesterday Judge Morgan dismissed the charge of conspiracy to defraud laid by Mrs. Rolston against her sister, Alice Law, and Robert A. Hunter of East Toronto. The case arose out of a deal in some property.

Yesterday Magistrate Ramsden remanded Robert Young for a week on the charge of chicken stealing in Scarboro Township. There are said to be others implicated.

Mrs. Ida Swift, Jacib Soebel, Maurice Helpert and Joseph Helpert will be tried before Judge Morgan to-day on the charge of assaulting and robbing Joseph Shainfield at 149 York-street about two months ago.

Herbert A. Dunlop pleaded guilty yesterday to robbing his fellow-boarder, M. D. Boyd, of an overcoat and two watch chains. He was remanded until to-morrow for the theft of three cases of fancy goods from Atkinson Bros.

At the Police Court yesterday J. V. Vezina, the man arrested in Montreal, was convicted on the charge of defrauding L. V. Dubois out of $90. Sentence was deferred until to-day, in order that restitution might be made. The money was paid over yesterday afternoon.

George Hibbitt and George Webber, convicted some time ago for housebreaking, were further remanded for a week, yesterday, to give them a chance to tell where the stolen stuff is hidden.

Yesterday Judge Morgan committed John Bailey of this city as a lunatic. The unfortunate man has been under the delusion for some time that he is related to the Queen.

Mrs. Elliott, charged with keeping a disorderly house at 92 McCaul-street, and Bertha Gordon, Sadie Williams and Ida Blake with being inmates were remanded until Monday at yesterday's court.

Cable News Distorted.

Editor World: Your timely and sensible article suggesting cheaper editions of English magazines has appealed to me in common with many others of your readers. We are tired of the self-glorification which is so much in evidence in the United States papers and magazines of all kinds. I wish, however, to move an amendment to your article, as follows: The Canadian people, while cordially endorsing the suggestions of The Toronto World in the direction of bringing English periodicals more generally before the Canadian public, would respectfully recommend the advisability of the Canadian press supplying Canadian cablegrams instead of the stuff supplied by paid liars like Harold Frederic and others of the same stripe.

This amendment will, I am confident, be unanimously adopted by Canadians. What have you to say to it? Explain to us, if you please, why it is that day after day We are sickened by cable despatches in which everything to the discredit of England is manifested—everything tending to the encouragement of the Imperial idea is minimized and the Great United States made the hub of the universe? The item in to-day's cables relating to the dinner given by Mr. Gilbert Parker is a sample specimen. The tone of the leaders of the English press is decidedly the other way. Yet yours and other Canadian papers publish this lying yarn without a word of contradictory comment. You know it is false and that it is written to convey the idea that the American colonies are drifting away from Great Britain and that the people of Great Britain do not care much whether they drift away or not. Try and organize a Canadian Press Association which shall publish the truth and not disseminate these lies and you will earn our everlasting gratitude. R. E. K.

At Munro Park.

Yesterday's attendance at Munro Park was again very large. In addition to the excellent program advertised, Mr. J. E. Turton sang some of the best songs of the day and was encored after each. The park management has again scored a point through the excellence of the program provided and through the splendid additional attractions put on at each performance. There is a matinee to-day and Saturday.
