CHAPTER XXVI.

During Mrs. Bazel's visit to Cypress Cottage there had been a marked change in the behaviour of Lady Clara towards her. Instead of being at her ease in her presence, she was now constantly on the watch for her movements, and was ever ready to leave the room at the slightest pretext. Also Mrs. Bazel was not left alone with her husband, Lady Clara always managing to be present when he came home from his daily rounds. Mrs. Bazel was at a loss to account for this change in her ladyship's behaviour, but she was too well pleased at the change to make any inquiries.

Lady Clara had not been in the habit of taking much exercise, but now she would insist on her husband accompanying her in her walks, and he could not refuse to do so without arousing her suspicions. Thus it was that on the afternoon of the day on which Mrs. Bazel had been to see Lady Clara, Vershon and Bazel had gone together to the village, leaving the ladies to themselves. Mrs. Bazel was sitting in the drawing-room when her husband returned, and she was surprised to see that he was alone. Before she had time to question him on the subject, he had explained that Vershon had left him at the village, and had promised to return to Cypress Cottage in the course of an hour or two.

'I wish he had left us alone for the afternoon,' he said, as he threw himself into a chair, and commenced filling a pipe. 'I want to have a long talk with you, and I don't like to do it when he is about the place.'

'Why, what have you been talking about?' she asked, in surprise.

'About my affairs, of course,' he replied, lighting his pipe. 'I told you that I was in a scrape, and I want your advice how to get out of it.'

'Oh, I wish you would not talk about your affairs,' she said, with a shudder. 'I feel so nervous when I think of them that I can hardly sleep at night.'

'Nervous! what have you to be nervous about? I am the person who should be nervous, if any one.'

'Ah! but I am so much more interested than you are in your affairs that I suffer more than you do.'

'Well, I don't know that you are not right there,' he said, after a short pause. 'I suppose I ought to be more careful for your sake than for my own.'

'Why should you be careful for my sake?' she asked, with a sudden flush.

'Because I love you, Clara, and I don't like to see you suffer on my account.'

'Hush! you must not talk to me like that,' she said, with a slight frown. 'I have told you that it cannot be.'

'I know you have, but I don't believe you mean it. You don't think that I'm a villain, do you?'

'No, I do not think you a villain, but I think you very wrong to persist in—'

'There, there, that will do,' he interrupted, with a slight frown on his handsome face. 'I don't like to be preached to, you know. I'm not a bad fellow at bottom, and I'm not a villain at all. I'm only a man who has been unfortunate in his life, and who is desperately in love with a woman who—he wouldn't take Mr. Bruce's part under any circumstances.

'Mr. Bruce's part!' he repeated, with a sneer. 'Mr. Bruce's part is the last thing I think of. I love you, Clara, and I mean to have you, in spite of all the Bruces and Vershons in the world.'

'Hush! hush! I will not listen to you if you talk like this,' she said, rising from her seat and laying her hand on his arm as if to prevent his leaving the room.

'Sit down, Clara, and listen to me quietly,' he said, in a tone of authority that was new to her, and which had the effect of causing her to resume her seat. 'I want your advice, and you must give it me before we leave this place. I have been a fool, I know, but I love you so dearly that I cannot help—'

'Hush! hush! I will not listen to you if you talk like this,' she interrupted, with a slight stamp of her foot.

'Well, I will not, if you don't like it,' he said, with a shrug of his shoulders. 'I'm in a scrape, and I want your advice how to get out of it. I'm in a scrape, and I want your advice how to get out of it. I'm in a scrape, and I want your advice how to get out of it. There, I will go on in that strain if you like.'

'Pray do not be foolish,' she said, with a slight shiver. 'Tell me what you have to say, and be quick about it.'

'Well, I will be as quick as I can,' he said, with a sigh. 'I suppose you know that I married for love?'

'I have heard so,' she said, in a low voice, and with a slight frown on her face.

'I married for love, and I have been miserably punished for my folly. My wife has been a confirmed invalid for years, and we have led a cat and dog life together. We married in India, and I exceeded my income there in order that she might have all the comforts she required. We came home to England on my wife's account, and I sold out of the army in order that I might be with her. We have been living beyond our means ever since, and I am in a terrible scrape, from which I see no way of extricating myself except by your assistance.'

'Why, what can I do?' she asked, in surprise.

'You can do a great deal if you will,' he replied. 'I want you to induce your husband to lend me a thousand pounds.'

'Why, what can you do with such a large sum of money?' she asked, in surprise.

'I have a chance of doubling it in a few days if I can only get the use of it for that time,' he replied. 'I have a certain sum of money in my hands belonging to a friend, which I can use for a few days without my friend knowing anything about it, and I can double his money for him if I can only get the use of it for a few days. I will be able to return his money to him in a week, and my friend will never know that I have used it. I have never yet lost my friend's money, and I should be able to make a fortune for myself if I could only get the use of my friend's money for a few days.'

'Why, you talk like a gambler,' she said, with a slight frown on her face.

'I am a gambler,' he said, with a bitter smile. 'I have been playing for a fortune all my life, and I have always been unlucky. If I had been a gambler in fact, instead of being one in name, I should not be in this scrape from which I can see no way of escaping except by your assistance.'

'But why do you not ask your wife to assist you?' she asked, with a slight frown on her face.

'My wife!' he exclaimed, with a bitter laugh. 'My wife is the last person I could ask for assistance. She would be the last person in the world to whom I could confide my troubles. She would be the last person in the world to whom I could confide my troubles. She would be the last person in the world to whom I could confide my troubles

The girl was traced to the residence of her adopted mother, who had taken her away, but no further trace of her could be found.

The weather on Manitoulin Island this winter has been severely cold. The snow was about three feet deep. There has been great destruction of fish in one of the inland lakes, called Perch Lake. The water in this lake is very shallow, only from two to three feet deep in winter. It has been frozen right down to the bottom in many places, and the fish were crowded into these parts where it was a little deeper. A piece of the lake is now open, and there are thousands of frozen fish floating on the surface, and millions of live ones huddled together so thick that you could scoop out cart loads of them with a shovel.

GODERICH, APRIL 21, 1875.

The Great Dominion.

This is the title of an address by Edward Jenkins, Esq., M. P. P., agent General for Canada, to the Manchester, England, Reform Club, and which, printed in neat pamphlet form by Dawson Bros. of Montreal, is upon our table. As the title and Mr. Jenkins' connection with English immigration to this country indicate, the subject is the Dominion of Canada, and is an excellent compendium of general information regarding the resources and condition of the vast territory, with a hasty sketch of a vision of its future greatness, Mr. Jenkins has studied and acquired a vast amount of information, and being possessed of much ability as an orator this address is both interesting and readable. In a moderate flight of fancy he introduces his English hearers to the Dominion at its gateway, the mouth of St. Lawrence and enters upon a rapid description of the salient features of the Maritime Provinces—Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. These provinces possess twenty-five and a half million acres of good settlement lands, fertile in the production of cereals and valuable in its tracts of timber. Coal, iron, gold and stone are mined with great success, whilst along the shores the fisherman pursues his avocation which in value throughout these three provinces in 1873 netted $9,060,000. But in its maritime wealth this portion of the Dominion stands most prominently, St. Johns having the proud distinction of standing, with its 250,000 tons of shipping and 50,000 inhabitants, in this order among the four first maritime cities in the British possessions, Liverpool, London, Glasgow and St. Johns, and being superior to New York and Philadelphia. The total tonnage of sea-going vessels, is 770,000, and altogether the shipping of Canada is very little behind that of the United States.

After referring to the construction of the Baie Verte canal which will save a great distance between the upper portion of the St. Lawrence and New York and provincial ports, the sketch introduces a vivid picture of Quebec, which we will leave the artist to depict" in his own words, as viewed in the ascent of the St. Lawrence:—

"On either side is an endless panorama of boldness and beauty, of wilderness and cultivation, from the highland mountains of Gaspe to the smiling fields and quaint villages of the Isle d'Orleans stretched out in a patchwork of cultivation. This is the province of Quebec. And what a province! Its length between 700 and 1,000 miles, its breadth about 200. In area it occupies 193,555 square miles, or nearly 124,000,000 of acres."

Here is a timber limit of 107,000,000 of acres of which but little more than its existence is known, a sea coast adjacent to which most valuable fish abound; a well watered, fruitful and picturesque country with a salubrious climate erroneously supposed unfit for human habitation, and containing a known wealth of gold, silver, copper, iron, lead, plumbago, zinc and other metals inviting the influences of capital and enterprise to create them sources of immense wealth. Quebec is easy of access by British capitalists, and it is a wonder that they should overlook this Eldorado to sink capital in the pursuit of a Will-o'-the-wisp fortune in some foreign country. The province is too little known by Britain, but the provincial Government is vigorously engaged in the work of opening up the country and unveiling the almost incredible picture of its wealth and richness.

Ontario is viewed next as the leading province of the Dominion—its "very heart and life." In its comparatively small area is included many sources of wealth and greatness—to the north we find vast tracts of timber upon which the plundering axe of the lumberman has but slight effect, vast tracts of fertile country awaiting the tide of immigration; in the southern portion is a well settled, prosperous and wealthy people, progressive and enterprising; towards the west minerals abound, whilst almost encircling it is a chain of "inland seas," well stocked with fish, making an unequalled highway for commerce, and helping to make the land more rich and productive. It is only in late years that the Province had any conception of its real wealth, of its cultivable land and extent of habitable territory; but it has become disabused of its ancient beliefs, and as the emigrant penetrates beyond the Provinces' northern boundary line of oblivion and the improvements of civilization follows its progress, energy is called into greater action and the fertile valleys in the vicinity of the Laurentian range and the banks of the many lakes and rivers are rapidly becoming inhabited. The people of Ontario are really British, with the energy and caution of that people, and with none of the mercurial temperament of their Republican neighbors. Their loyalty is unquestionable, the narrow-minded opinion of the Tory press on the Reciprocity question to the contrary, and although an independent spirit manifests itself it is only the innate British spirit assisting its right to a participation in a scheme of Imperial Confederation and superiority over the offspring suckling at the mothers' breast.

The North-west Territories constitute the picture upon which the lake provinces are but minute details in the superficial portrait. The extent of farming country is enormous; it is well watered, being possessed of navigable rivers, large lakes and facilities for canal building. Cereals grow with wonderful success, the wheat being pronounced to be of extraordinary quality, and roots grow to large proportions.—Minerals and coal abound to an extent hardly conceivable, and a field of immigration is here open to accommodate a hardy race. British Columbia is possessed of a beautiful climate, is fertile, has mines of coal and valuable minerals, and is destined to be the gateway for the trade of the East with Europe. "The Canadian Pacific Railway will place New Westminster 500 miles nearer London than San Francisco," and will pass over a more level grade and through a more fertile country. The Labrador coast is frequented by fishermen, who realize a large revenue from this source, and in and about the Hudson Bay are immense wealth in minerals, furs, fish and the products of wild fowl are stored.

Mr. Jenkins refers to a matter which may not be generally known, and that is that the climate of this country is better adapted for the cultivation of oats, barley, wheat, grasses and other of the staple cereals than that of the United States. [illegible] must part is too high, which fact is demonstrated clearly when we consider that the latitude of Canada is the same as that of the grain-growing section of Europe.

Financially the country is in a healthy condition, being far in advance of the other British colonies in this respect. "Her debt does not exceed $120,000,000, or, taking the population at 4,000,000, about £6 2s. 3d. sterling per head. More than half of this debt is represented by public works, canals, harbours, lighthouses, river improvements, railways, &c., and over $40,000,000 by railway and provincial securities. In four years, namely, from 1869 to 1873—the trade of the Dominion leaped up from $128,000,000 to $217,304,516, an increase of nearly 50½ millions. The total value of the exports from the Dominion for the fiscal year ending June, 1873, was $99,610,573, and of the imports $125,694,943. The banking statistics of Canada show a steady growth, combined with a strength of position her Republican neighbour might well envy."

Lengthy reference is made to the ability which controls this embryo nation and its institutions, in terms which indicate Mr. Jenkins' love for Canada, as well as a true conception of its condition. He appears satisfied that a new spirit of energetic enthusiasm has been instilled into the inhabitants and the legislation, which permits none of the barriers of executive bigotry and conservative stupidity which have retarded progress in the past to stand in its way. An era of prosperity has begun which defies and mocks the croakings of the ill-natured London Times, which has always regarded every Canadian project as a swindle and an attempt to bleed English capitalists to the extent of their last pound. Mr. Jenkins certainly gives the best and most favorable report possible, but it is no fancy picture,—it is a hasty sketch, which in detail would be still more magnificent and convincing to the spectator.

The Way of the Transgressor.

Last week judgment was given in the suit for libel, Crook vs. The Mail, awarding the plaintiff one shillings damages. Some time ago the journal made use of some libellous remarks with regard to Mr. Crook's (Provincial Treasurer), conduct and connection with the disposal of municipal debentures in England, and the suit was brought for a small amount of damages simply for the purpose of vindicating that gentleman's honor in a court of justice. The result therefore is quite satisfactory to the plaintiff, and will be another lesson to that journal to curb its slanderous tongue. Assuming to occupy the position of leader amongst the Conservative journals, the Mail has maintained its prominence by means the ungentlemanly, and recognizing the fact that notoriety is a stepping stone to popularity, the entanglement in a few libel suits with leading persons was but a manifestation of their spirit of enterprise. With the recklessness of an Ishmael it has thrown itself, poisoned arrow in hand, in position to assail the character of honest and responsible men. Its motto is on par with the Democratic election cry of "anything to beat Grant," and the eagerness to get a "slap at McKellar" was only equaled by its unscrupulousness in abusing a man for whom it gave no second thought, for that purpose. Opposition it can not regard with any degree of good grace, but everything not Tory must needs be characterized as rotten, disreputable and infamous—even to the court which decided adversely to its interests. With a sneer it comments upon the late trial and insinuates that justice was blindfolded by saying that "wretches have hung that jurymen might dine."

Notwithstanding that the Mail has railed at the verdict with considerable ire, its courage is shaken and its wrath is as fickle as its "gentlemanly" character. The author of the libellous article speaks apologetically, and bewails the position in which he is placed—of being the mouthpiece of certain persons who forced him to express opinions and sentiments contrary to his principles and feelings. When the prospectus of the journal first appeared a platform was announced which was accepted as the inaugural of a welcome era in journalism, but within of a short period from the time of the first issue of the paper every good principle set forth had been violated, but, as the manager of the Mail himself says, in opposition to his desire. What a humiliating position! We read of the manner in which editors in France rid themselves of the penalties of libelous articles, by having a dummy about their offices who puts his signature to all their editorials and taking upon himself the brunt of the law's revenge. Here we have a man acting as the mouthpiece of a few, submitting to be the law's victim and the subject of people's contempt. The picture is not attractive—it shows a lurking, cowardly spirit flitting in the background dreading the daylight and putting forward a poor tool to do the dirty work of assailing honest men and scattering its venom upon them. Well might it be asked "to what base means" has this leading Tory organ come!

The Grand Jury handed in the following presentment:

West Riding Spring Show.

The first spring show of entire stock for the West Riding of Huron took place on Friday last. The attendance of visitors was pretty large, from the fact that it was an inclement day preventing farmers from continuing their spring work; but the display of animals although excellent was very small, only one entrie having been made, which small number may be accounted for from the fact that some exhibitors were unable to come owing to the Ben Miller and Manchester bridges having been swept away. A goodly number of farm implements were on exhibition, and quite a number were disposed of. Mr. H. J. Nott had on exhibition a light, strongly-built gang plow which was generally admired. Mr. Weatherald exhibited a very neat sulky hay rake, a compact, well finished mower and seed drill from L. D. Sawyer & Co's works which were sold to Mr. Isaac Fisher, Colborne. He also exhibited a staunch looking gang plow. Massey Manufacturing Co., New castle, had a number of ploughs on the ground, as did also Thomson & Williams, of Mitchell, who also showed a good mower. Messrs A. & J. Ferguson, Auburn, agents for Bell & Co., St. George, and Billington, of Dundas, showed an excellent seed drill, plough and a new model mower. Mr. J. Brundson, of Londesboro' showed the well known "champion reaper" and "superior" seed drill of the Jos. Hall make. A. Harries, Son & Co., of Brantford, had a combined Kirby, Burdick single reaper and Kirby mower.

After dinner the horses were called upon the ground and Mr. Jas. McDonagh's "Bonnie Scotchman," and Mr. J. J. Fisher's "John Bull" entered for the prizes in heavy draughts. The former is a bright bay, three years old, of powerful build and heavy, and very active. This occasion was the second upon which he was exhibited this spring, having taken the medal at Lucknow on the 14th. "John Bull" is a beautiful black seven years old horse, lighter in build than "Bonnie Scotchman" of very fine shape and good action. He is well known and has taken a number of prizes throughout the Province. The judges studied the two horses for a considerable time before arriving at a decision. In roadsters there were two entries, both two year old colts out of Peacock, whom they very much resemble. Mr. Fisher's colt was the smallest, but is well shaped, lively and possesses many good points. Mr. Robt. McCulloch's colt was universally admired for its beauty and activity. It is a beautiful bay, as lithe as a cat, full of fire, well trained, and a fine trotter. Three agricultural horses were shown, "Young Conqueror of the West," a fine black colt three years old being very much admired. Mr. John Glen showed a light bay colt two years old which promises to be an excellent animal, and Mr. Otter Wilson showed a fine looking eight year old animal which he bought last winter.

In bulls over two years only two entries were made, John Washington's "Dixie Duke" and Chas. Young's "Stanley." Both are Durhams, the former being a fine beast, dark red and very heavy, and the latter a fine animal light red in color and good weight. Mr. Wm. Cunningham showed a very good grade in the class of bulls under two years. The following is the prize list.

HORSES.

Heavy draught horse—1st Jas. McDonagh's "Bonnie Scotchman;" 2nd J. J. Fisher's "John Bull."

Agricultural Horse—1st Henry Beadle's "Young Conqueror of the West;" 2nd John Glen, 3rd Otter Wilson.

Coach Horse, or roadster—1st Robt. McCulloch, 2nd J. J. Fisher.

BULLS.

Over too years of age—1st John Washington's "Dixie Duke," 2nd Chas. Young's "Stanley."

Under 2 years—1st Wm. Cunningham.

Mr. J. J. Fisher showed a lively looking Jackass which was highly recommended.

After the prizes had been awarded the directors assembled in the Agricultural Hall to consider the subject of where the fall show was to be held. Mr. Wm. Young, President of the Society, stated that ninety-six names had been secured in Colborne as members of the society on condition that the show be held in Smith's Hill. Messrs Anderson and Girvin stated that a large number in the vicinity of Dungannon had subscribed on condition that the show be held there.

Mr. Washington considered that it was not proper to take names conditionally.

Mr. Clendenning was called upon and stated that the people of Dungannon would guarantee to put necessary additions to the drill shed, properly furnish with pens, fence and level the three acres of ground adjoining, and to give accommodation for man and beast. Private stabling was offered for 100 horses and the Methodist Church sheds would accommodate from 10 to 15 teams. They had two large hotels, and should these fail to give all accommodation necessary, they had halls which could be fitted up for the purpose. Everything would be done for the public comfort. The village was centrally situated, and offered the best position for the holding of the show.

Mr. Young stated that Mr. McDonagh was willing to give a 21 years lease of 5 acres of ground, well fenced and free of all expense. Stabling accommodation could be had for a large number of horses, and there was plenty of good pasturage. They had a good hall, and should visitors want any other accommodation than that afforded by the hotel and in houses in the vicinity, the distance to Goderich was very little and they could easily go there. Mr. McDonagh would provide more hotel accommodation, and the people of Smith's Hill would enlarge the hall.

A communication from the Hullett Branch Agricultural Society proposing to amalgamate with the West Riding Society, placing all their funds to the credit of the union and to hold the show at Clinton, was read.

Mr. Andrews, of Clinton, stated that they had an excellent show ground and good buildings. They proposed to admit every member and exhibitor free. The amount of membership fees which the Hullett Branch Society would hand over would be from $300 to $400. They could better accommodate that show than any other place.

Some further discussion followed, and it was proposed to vote on the three places together and that which received the smallest vote to be dropped and to vote on the two remaining places. The following was the result:

FIRST VOTE.

Clinton.	Dungannon.	Smith's Hill.
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	Lucknow.	[illegible]

SECOND VOTE.

[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]

Dungannon was thus chosen. Messrs Girvin, Clendinning, Anderson, and others stated that they would accommodate as many as possible who would make application to them, and any who brought cattle to the show the day before the show began could have them housed and pastured at Mr. Girvin's and other farms in the vicinity of the village.

The meeting then adjourned to meet at Bingham's restaurant, in Goderich, on the 22nd day of June, to prepare the prize list.

John Felton, a German, who entered the room on hearing the trouble, was stabbed four times by Linburg and died instantly. Felton's wife also received a fearful stab in the hip. Linburg then plunged the knife into his own body, and also cut his throat. He lived but a few moments.

An attempt was made to blow up a Catholic Church in Cincinnati on Sunday morning by parties unknown, who placed five cans of gunpowder in the vestibule. The plot was discovered and thwarted in the nick of time.

The Chipman Silver Mine at Newburyport, Mass., was sold last week for $1,000,000 to a joint stock company organized in New York for the working of the mine. The same parties paid $41,000 for other parcels of land in the vicinity.

Spelling matches continue in favor at Boston. For this week five grand matches are announced, one of the prizes being a $600 rosewood piano.

ENGLAND.—A Bill enjoining Moody and Sankey from holding meetings in Her Majesty's Opera House, London, has been filed by seat-owners—not owners of the building, as stated. The Princess of Wales, Duchess of Sutherland and attendants were present lately at one of the meetings.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer introduced the Budget to the Imperial Parliament, on Thursday, announcing a surplus of £417,000.

The revival excitement in London continues. Four crowded meetings were held on Thursday. At one of them held in Spurgeon's tabernacle, and having special reference to students for the Christian's ministry, Mr. Moody delivered a stirring address, closing with an appeal to the audience to go out into the streets and work for Christ, to which thousands responded by rising.

Two of the aeronauts were suffocated to death, and when the balloon reached the ground the third was almost insensible, and has since been so ill that his recovery is doubtful.

News has arrived giving particulars of the state of affairs in China. Chinese troops have been shedding blood in Formosa. The particulars of the first fight in Formosa between the savages and Chinese troops are that two Chinese officers ventured, in January last, to enter the region of the Boton aborigines, and were immediately killed. On February 13th a body of two hundred troops were sent from the village of Hong Kong to retaliate. They burned one village and put the inhabitants to death, including old men, women and children. On their return they were surrounded and routed with a loss of ninety killed, among whom was the Chinese leader. The savages loss is estimated at thirty.

WINGHAM AND VICINIVY.

The late freshet carried away the new bridge on the 12th con. of Grey.

Mr. Wm. Goy, of Turnberry, swallowed an ounce of laudanum on the 12th inst. The dose was too large to have a fatal effect, and Mr. Goy has recovered.

Mr. C. Blakeslie, of Wingham, whilst assisting to repair the bridge at Lower Wingham, carried away by the freshet, fell into the river He managed to get hold of plank and drift near the shore about an eighth of a mile from where he fell in.

Mr. Robt. Follis, 10th con. of Turnberry was chopping wood, on the 9th inst., in a swamp, and a tree which he had cut having stuck on a hemlock stub he climed up to dislodge it. The stump appeared sound, but the moment he put his full weight on, he sank to the bottom a distance of about 20 feet. Here he remained in a very cramped position for nine hours, until some of his neighbors, heard him calling and took him out.

SEAFORTH.

From the Expositor.—The first meeting of the Seaforth District Teachers Institute will take place on Saturday April 24th, in the Seaforth School Room, at 10 o'clock A. M.

Fall wheat in this section, and south of this, is looking unusually well. Most of the fields are already well covered and look green and healthy. Grass seed has also been a good catch.

During the past 23 days, Mr. A. Armitage has shipped from the Seaforth Station, 167 car loads of grain and salt. The grain was on account of Liverpool and Glasgow orders, and the salt for the Canadian and American markets.

ASHFIELD.

A CONTRAST.—Mr. W. J. Hayden, of Ashfield, had a bed of crocuses, four varieties, in full bloom in his garden the week before last. Any one who saw his garden then and visited it during the snow storm last week would have occasion to marvel at the fickleness of spring weather.

EXTENDING THE HARBOR RAILWAY.—A number of Grand Trunk officials were in town last week making arrangements for extending the harbor railway as far as Harbor Lane. The track will be run at the foot of the hill and behind the Grand Trunk elevator to Ogilvie's elevator. A proposition was made to continue the track to the end of the dock, if the warehousemen were willing to cooperate for that purpose. The expense would be small, and the plan would be very advantageous.

THE CAMP.—We understand an effort is being made in town to have the various battalions of this military district assemble here for their annual drill this coming summer. Every person who recollects the presence of the military in town in June, 1871, will be anxious to welcome the district to visit us again. The Middlesex and Wellington battalions have expressed themselves anxious to come here, and we know no place so well adapted for the purpose and so likely to afford pleasure to the men themselves. Let some of our leading military men take the matter in hand.

A FAILURE.—As many of our readers will know efforts have been made in Michigan lately to find a salt bed other than that from which the brine supply is at present drawn from. Their brine is much weaker than Goderich brine, and it was thought by boring to a depth similar to the wells here a stronger spring would be found. A Michigan paper thus announces the result of one effort:—"Messrs. Thompson Bros. of White Rock, Mich., after boring to the depth of 1,311 feet, have abandoned their effort to reach the Goderich salt vein. It has cost them a great deal, and there was a poor chance of success."

THOROUGHBREDS.—Mr. John Salter, of East Wawanosh, is manifesting considerable enterprise in the direction of thorough breeding in cattle. He has lately purchased from Mr. Foley, of the County of Durham, a well known stock raiser, three head of Durham cattle, viz., one cow, a one year old bull, and heifer calf, all from registered stock, the mother of which has taken several first prizes at Provincial Fairs, and New York, Michigan, and Ohio State Fairs.—Wingham Times.

CLOTHES STEALING.—One evening last week a seedy looking character named Porthill was detected by Mr. Jos. Morris, of Colborne, in the act of stripping his clothes line. Mr. Morris grabbed the fellow by the coat collar and getting assistance brought him to town, but having no commitment he had to remain in town over night until he could interview a magistrate. The thief was safely lodged in jail the next day. He was seen prowling about Mr. Symington's house and two fine shirts disappeared with him. He also stole two coats from one P. Carroll and pawned them for 25 and 50 cents each.

The prisoner on Tuesday was brought up for trial, and elected to be tried before the Judge instead of a jury, and pleaded "guilty" and stated that he had no desire to steal, and would not have done so, but that he was drunk at the time. Sentenced to three months in the common jail.

THE WEATHER.—The recent few weeks of fine spring weather had almost convinced the public that "gloomy winters' noo awa," to remain away until the summer and autumn months had again passed. Taking time by the forelock, the newspapers gave hints upon public conduct during the season of spring, old Sol's face beamed with winning smiles, busy husbandmen delved and sowed seed, birds that ought to be possessed of more wisdom twittered and sung summer lays, Jack Frost was deceived and submitted to be completely exterminated and the man of the household who sawed the wood smiled and looked supremely happy, when a change came over the scene and the prospects of spring were buried in a second edition of winter. The season is proverbially fickle, but almost every one seemed satisfied that the last flake of snow had been seen. What gardening has been done, however, will be but slightly affected by the cold and snow, as the seeds sown had not time to germinate and the frost was not severe enough to cause the earth to have up. Fall wheat will not be injured, but the few flowers, crocuses and other early plants, have been nipped by frost and will be retarded in their growth. Since Friday the weather has been wintry like, and snow fell, storms were gotten up and the wind chilled to the marrow after the most approved December fashion.

AT WORK.—The tug Mayflower towed the dredges out of their winter quarters on Monday, and they are at work.

FIRST CLEARANCE TO THEM PEST.—By the Clerk of Monday we notice the following charter announcement:—"Schooner Marco Polo, coal, Sandusky to Goderich, at four shillings per ton."

INSTRUMENT.—Six years ago on the 17th of April the Grand Trunk Railway was blocked up, here, with about six feet of snow on the level. Let us see how we stand as the inclemency of the weather this year.

DROWNED.—[illegible] Tuesday morning, and fined $1 and costs each, and were allowed four days to pay same.

ARTIFICIAL STONE CO.—A company has been organized in town to carry on the manufacture of artificial stone. They have a stock of cements and the necessary tools ordered and the patterns will be forthcoming as quick as possible.

TOO SOON.—Mr. Rob. Tolmie has sold the tug Dory to a gentleman in Kincardine, where she will be taken as soon as navigation opens. Mr. Tolmie is refitting the Sarah E. Day to take the place of the Dory as a fishing tug.

ACCIDENT.—On Friday last Mr. Samuel Curran had three of the fingers of his left hand severely cut by a planing machine in his factory. He will lose a portion of the second and fourth fingers and the third one will lose its suppleness. He will be unable to use the hand for four weeks.

ICE BOUND.—The storm of Thursday and Friday drove the ice on the lake inshore and it has lodged pretty night

GODS AND EMDS.

"Did you break that window?" "To be sure, I did," replied Pat, "and didn't you see me runnin' home after the money to pay for it?"

"In hat on earth made you get so drunk; and why—oh! why did you come to me in this dreadful state? "Because, my darling, all the corner grocories are shut up."

A Brooklyn woman remarked to a friend a few days ago; "I don't feel very well this morning. I do hope I'm not going to have a spell of sickness until the finisher trial is finished!"

"What have you been a-doin?" asked a boy of his playmate, when he was coming out of the house with tears in his eyes. "I've been a-cissin' a town-bull around my father," was the snarling reply.

Passenger—"Sir, this is intolerable; it is hot enough in this car to roast the devil." Conductor: "Oh, no, you're not roasted yet." Passenger subsides, but he can't see exactly what there is to laugh at.

Pope dining once with Frederick, Prince of Wales, paid the Prince many compliments. "I wonder, Pope," said the Prince, "that you, who are so severe on kings, should be so complaisant to me." "It is," said the wily bard, "because I like the lion before his claws are grown."

The Dutchman was a victim to a practical joke who lost five dollars to the Yankee on a bet that the Yankee could eat the Dutchman. Jonathan began the work of mastication at the extremities, and was soon saluted by the rear and kick of the Dutchman. "Oh, mein Gott! Dunder und Blitzen! stop dat bitin'."

Job Dowling's Funeral.—Many years ago I was one of a party in Washington City, when South and North vied with each other in convivial life. Another of the party was General Dawson, member from Western Pennsylvania, whose homestead was Albert Gallatin's old home. He was an admirable story-teller. I recall somewhat sadly, now that he is gone, how well he illustrated the laziness of a class of Virginians. The story was a part of his Congressional canvassing. On one occasion he got across the Pennsylvania line into a little village of Virginia. He was in the midst of a group around the tavern. While treating and talking, a procession approached, which looked like a funeral. He asked, who was to be buried?

"Job Dowling," said they.

"Poor Job!" sighed the general. He was a good-natured, good-for-nothing, lazy fellow, living on the few fish he caught and the squirrels he killed, but mostly on the donations of his neighbors. "So poor Job is dead, is he?"

"No, he ain't dead, zactly," said they.

"Not dead—not d— Yet you are going to bury him?"

"Past is general, he has got too infernal all-fired lazy to live. We can't afford him any more. He's got so lazy that the grass began to grow over his shoes—so everlastin' lazy that he put out one of his eyes to save the trouble of winkin' when out a-gunnin'."

"But," says the general, "this must not be. It will disgrace my neighborhood. Try him a while longer, can't you?"

"Can't; too late—coffin cost $1.25. Must go on now."

About this time the procession came up and halted, when the general proceeded, if they would let Job out, he would send over a bag of corn. On this announcement the lids of the coffin opened, and Job languidly sat up; the cents dropped from his eyes as he asked.

"Is the corn shelled, general?"

"No, not shelled."

"Then," said Job, as he lazily lay down, "go on with the funeral!" Harper's Magazine for May.

The German Crown Prince has, and is entitled to wear, fifty-eight stars and crosses. Bismarck's decorations amount to forty, and Gen. Moltke thirty-nine.

Legal Wit.—Fishing for evidence is a common occupation in law courts. A fisherman of this class was polished off by a legal opponent who said that the learned gentleman's mode of angling at first was well expressed in the lines—

His pole was made of a peacock's feather,
His line was made of the finest tether,
He baited his hook with scales of dragon,
And sat on a rock and bobbed for fogs.

But as the learned gentleman proceeded he strengthened his line and increased his bait; and then,

His pole was made of a giant oak,
His line of a cable that never broke,
He baited his hook with tigers' tails,
And sat on a rock and bobbed for whales.

A Great Feat.—One of the greatest pedestrian feats undertaken, probably begun on April 3rd. Mark Grayson, somewhat known as an actor, author and pedestrian, will undertake to walk around the world in 680 days. The wager is $25,000, between Leon Macarte and Louis M. Grayson for, and John P. Wilkinson and Thomas L. Murdock against a successful termination. Under the terms of the agreement, Grayson is to start from the City Hall, New York city, on Saturday, April 3, 1875, and return to the same place on Thursday, November 23, 1876. The distance included in the entire route is 19,220 miles, which will require from him a daily walk of a little over 32 miles. A large part of the trip, of course, will make up his daily average by walking on shipboard. Should he fall short of making his daily average on shipboard, for any reason, he will make it up on land. The route of his walk is as follows: From New York to Liverpool by water; then to Havre, passing through Manchester, Sheffield and London; from Havre he will walk through France to Lyons; then, passing through Genoa, Florence, Rome and Naples, he will go to Constantinople; from thence, crossing the Bosphorus, he will walk through the intervening countries to India; then to Canton and Hong Kong, China; at Hong Kong he will take ship to the Phillippine Isles; thence to New Guinea, Australia, the Sandwich Islands, San Francisco. The walk across the continent will finish the undertaking. The total number of miles he is to walk by land is computed at 15,712 miles, and by water, 12,636 miles. Grayson is 26 years of age, 5 feet 7 inches high, and weighs 139 pounds. He has been in active training since Feb. 25 at Wilmington, Delaware.

There are 12,000 windmills in operation in Holland, each doing a six or ten horse power service through the twenty-four hours. These mills are kept up at an annual cost of $4,000,000, and they perform all the service required of steam engines at about one-twentieth the cost.

Sir John Macdonald:

(From the Hamilton Times.)

We confess to a certain liking for the member for Kingston. His career has been remarkable, and the man is as remarkable as his career. For public men in Canada—we cannot call to mind one ever became so prominent at so early an age. Entering Parliament before he reached his thirtieth year, long before he reached only of any length, he continued to be the leading man in the Government—the leading spirit of the Conservative party. What, now, was the secret of his success? He had no wealth to back him, no connexion at his back, no represented nationality, he was not the champion of any creed. It was, undoubtedly, due to a combination of qualities and circumstances. From the outset of his public life Sir John Macdonald has evinced intellectual powers of a high order. He had not, as a youth, the advantages of a higher education enjoyed by the generation of younger politicians. A grammar school training is all he ever received, or could receive, in this country. It was before the days of colleges and universities. His scholarship, therefore, is probably more various than profound or accurate. Still, he is never at a loss for information on any subject he may have in hand. As a young man, he must have been a great and rapid reader, a glutton of books, and memory has well preserved what by early diligence he so well acquired. But he makes no show with knowledge; he never parades it to excite astonishment or admiration. In debate he is clear, correct, and usually well informed, and when he gathers himself up for a great effort he rarely disappoints expectation. As an elocutionist he is not always effective; hesitation marks his first efforts; but when he warms to his work it vanishes, and words and ideas both flow copiously from his lips. There is apparently not much art in the arrangement or style of his speeches—listening to them, it would be hard for one to say if the speaker had studied deeply logic or mathematics. Still they are pertinent to the matter in hand, usually exhaustive of the subject, and read admirably. Assuming rather than arrogant or intuitive, however, is the characteristic of the member for Kingston. He detests a slip in fact or a fallacy in argument at once. He interjects an epigram or flings forth a pun on the spur of the moment. His wit is spontaneous and inexhaustible, but, like Lesbia's, we cannot tell whether "he meant "to dazzle merely," or "the wound us." On all constitutional and legal questions he is an authority, and his extended experience has necessarily rendered him proficient in everything appertaining to administration. But it is not so much to strength and acuteness of intellect as to knowledge of character, tact in the management of men, and pleasant social qualities, that Sir John Macdonald owes his past success. He has been an apt student of human nature; like the Bard of Twickenham, he probably considered that "The proper study of mankind is man," and devoted himself to it accordingly. His fascination of manner is great. He tells a story excellently well, and pays a compliment gracefully. He is quick to recognise worth and detect a knave, but it is sometimes difficult to say which he esteems most. Policy has, unfortunately, not unfrequently forced him to reward the man he despised, and to pass over the merits of the deserving. This, however, is, and ever has been, the common practice of Ministers—they always favour the majority.

Maxims worth Knowing.

Money paid on Sunday contracts can not be recovered.

The fruit and grass on the farm and garden of an intestate descend to the heir.

An agent is liable to his principal for loss by his mistatements, though unintentional.

No man is under obligations to make known his circumstances when purchasing goods.

A wife cannot be convicted of receiving stolen goods when she receives them from her husband.

A private person may receive an injunction to prevent a public mischief by which he and others were afflicted.

If a person who is unable from sickness to sign his will has his hand guided when making his mark, the signature is valid.

If any person put a fence on or ploughs the land of another, he is liable for trespass, whether the owner will receive injury or not.

A stamp impressed on an instrument by way of seal, is as good as a seal if it creates a durable impression in the texture of the paper.

A day book copied from a "blotter" in which original charges are first made, will not be received in evidence as a book of original entries.

Money paid for the purpose of settling or compounding a prosecution for a supposed felon cannot be recovered back by the party paying it.

A seller of goods, chattels or other property, commits no fraud in law when he neglects to tell the purchaser of any flaws, defects, or unsoundness in the same.

Permanent erections and fixtures, made by the mortgagro after the execution of the mortgage, upon land conveyed by it, become a part of the mortgaged premises.

An agreement by the holder of a note to give the principal debtor time for payment, without depriving him of his right to serve, does not discharge the surety.

A person who has been led to sell goods by means of false pretences cannot recover them from one that has purchased them in good faith from the fraudulent vendor.

When a house is rendered untenable in consequence of improvements on the adjoining lot, the owner of such cannot recover damages, because he had knowledge of the approaching danger in time to protect himself from it.

Snail eating has been in vogue in Italy for many centuries. In Pliny's time Barbary snails stood first in repute, those of Sicily ranking next; and it was the custom to fatten the creatures for the table by dieting them upon meal and new wine. In modern Rome fresh gathered snails are hawked by women from door to door, for the benefit of good housewives, who boil them in the shells, stew them or fry them in oil. An Englishman strolling about Palermo came upon some people gathered round a number of baskets filled with what, at first sight, he took to be white pebbles. Upon nearer acquaintance the pebbles proved to be snails, waiting to be thrown into a large iron pot standing over a fire made between four stones, and boiled with herbs and tomatoes, for retailing to the expectant crowd. Dining afterward with a Sicilian gentleman, he was invited to partake of some snails treated in this way, and, for politeness sake, forced himself to swallow a couple of them, although he found it impossible to feign the delight with which his host and his daughter sucked the molluscs out of their shells.

The famous Mary Ann Boker, the rich man's daughter, who, years ago, married her coachman, John Dean, is one of the New York lady custom-house examiners. Some time ago a passenger off a French ship was suspected of having a quantity of diamonds to get through, and on the dock she was told she must be examined. The girl protested. It was no use. So turning to her fellow-passengers, she bade them a tender adieu. The warm embrace she bestowed on one lady was touching; she kissed her, not once, but twice, and with each kiss she gave into her friend's keeping a solitaire worth $3,000. Then she went off with a whole mouthful, which she would have swallowed like so many pills rather than disgorge. As she afterward explained, those awful big stones impeded her utterance, and she intended giving the custom-house people a piece of her mind. And thus she was enabled to do so, thanks to her own ingenuity and the size of her friend's mouth.

HAIR RESTORER &c., &c.—All other and local compounds have merely barrier hair fated both ruinous to the public health and death to the human hair. Messrs. Perry Davis & Son, Proprietors of the celebrated Pain Killer, have lately introduced the Bearine which is rapidly taking the place of all other preparations, being an elegant health-giving dressing, perfectly delightful to use, prepared from the pure grease of the Canada Bear.

☞ A common cough or cold should never be trifled with, often when neglected it is converted into a serious and generally fatal pulmonary disease. The more prudent, aware of this, promptly use Wistar's Pulmonic Wafers, a curative which has sustained its reputation for over twenty years—they are always efficacious and exert a most beneficial influence on all the Bronchial and pulmonary organs. Sold by all Druggists and country dealers. Price 25cts per box.

Spots on the Sun.—The sun has of late become an object of great anxiety to many scientific men. Spots are common on that orb, as any one who may take the trouble to look at it through a piece of smoked glass; but although these phenomena have of late assumed appearances which astonish astronomers how much more astonishing is the wonderful effect of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" in cases of severe colds, rheumatism, neuralgia, pains in the back, stomach, &c. For sale by Druggists and country dealers. Price 25 cts per bottle.

Tan Horse.—Of the great number of animals under the control of man, the horse is unquestionably the most serviceable; but it is not strange that so many who own horses, and who are dependent on their own labor for a living, should neglect to give them that care and attention which their own interest no less than their the safety and comfort of the horse demands. The best remedy for horses is "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy;" of this there can be no doubt—it is safe and easily given. ELECTRICITY

THOMAS'

Excelsior Eclectric Oil.

Worth Ten Times its Weight in Gold!

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest Medicine ever made. One dose cures common Sore Throat. One bottle has cured an Old Standing Cough. It positively cures Catarrh Deafness and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured Crick in the Back and the same quantity Lame Back of eight years standing. The following are extracts from a few of the many letters that have been received from different parts of Canada which, we think, should be sufficient to satisfy the most sceptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ont., writes: "Send me 4 doz. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, have sold all I had from you and want more now; it's cures are truly wonderful." Wm. Maguire, of Franklin, writes, "I have sold all the agent left, it acts like a charm—it was slow at first but takes splendidly now." H. Cole, of Iona, writes, "please forward 6 dozen Thomas' Eclectric Oil. I am nearly out; nothing equals it. It is highly recommended by those who have used it." J. Bodford, Thamesville, writes—"Send at once a further supply of Eclectric Oil, I have only one bottle left. I never saw anything sell so well and give such general satisfaction." J. A PUBLIC CAUTION.

Holloway's Pills and Ointment are neither manufactured nor sold in any part of the United States, although they may be obtained in the B. N. American Provinces.

Each Pot and Box bears the British Government Stamp, with the words, "Holloway's Pills and Ointment, London," engraved thereon.

It has become necessary to make this announcement, because the New York Chemical Company (who pay nobody), finding at last that their name has been so exposed, have assumed the title of "Holloway and Co.;" but, even now, no one will buy their medicines direct from them, so that they have made arrangements to supply exclusively the firm of Messrs. Henry and Co., of New York, with their so-called "Holloway's Pills and Ointment."

It is presumed that, from the large connexion Messrs. Henry and Co. have in the British Provinces and elsewhere, the public is very likely to be imposed upon by unscrupulous vendors and others unless they exercise great caution to prevent their being mislead, by finding these medicines bearing a stamp with the name of "Holloway and Co., New York," printed thereon.

Many respectable Firms in the British Provinces, who obtain my medicines direct from here, have very properly suggested that I should, for the benefit of themselves and the public, insert their names in the papers, that it may be known that my medicines can be had genuine from them.

The following is a list of the Firms alluded to; and I particularly recommend those who desire to get my medicines to apply to some of the Houses named:—

Messrs. Avery, Brown & Co., Halifax, N. S.
Messrs. Forsyth & Co., Halifax, N. S.
Messrs. T. B. Barker & Sons, St. John, N. B.
Mr. T. Des Brisay, Charlotte Town, P. E. I.

Messrs. Elliot & Co., Toronto.
Mr. J. Chaloner, St. John, N. B.
Messrs. Hanington Bros., St, John, N. B.
Mr. R. S. Priddy, Windsor, Ont.

Mr. W. H. Thompson, Harbor Grace, N. F.
Mr. J. M. Wiley, Fredericton, N. B.
Messrs. W. & D. Yuile, Montreal.

The medicines are sold at the lowest wholesale prices, in quantities of not less less than £20 worth—viz., 8s. 6d., 22s., and 34s per dozen boxes of Pills or pots of Ointment, for which remittances must be sent in advance.

Chemists and other vendors of Holloway's genuine Pills and Ointment may have their names inserted in the local papers if they will please apply here—

Epps's Cocoa.—Gratefull and Comforting.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to withstand every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack whomever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Made simply with boiling water or milk. Each packet is labelled—"James Epps and Co., Homœopathic Chemists, 48, Threadneedle-street and 170, Piccadilly. Works in Euston-road, Camden-town, and Camden-town, London."

By chronic wasting disease is understood those old lingering, complaints, so protracted in their course, and debilitating in their effect upon the the health, which ordinarily depend upon hereditary influences, as in consumption and scrofula or are the result of depraved nutrition, from imperfect assimilation of food and impoverished blood. Unless the digestive process is complete, material is not prepared for nourishing the tissues and repairing the waste resulting from mental and physical exertion; diminution of constitutional vigor is soon apparent, and the vital organs, partaking of the general debility, specially manifest symptoms of derangement. It is in this class of cases that Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir or Phosphates and Calisaya demonstrates its extraordinary nutritive properties, being at once a chemical food and medicament of the highest value.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER.

As a family medicine, it is well and favorably known, relieving thousands from pain in the Side, Back and Head, Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Sprains, Bruises, Cramps in the Stomach, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Bowel Complaints, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, &c.

The Canadian Pain Destroyer has now been before the public for a length of time, and wherever used is well liked, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when faithfully used, and we have never known a single dissatisfaction, where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its virtues and magical effect.

We speak from experience in the matter, having tested it thoroughly; and therefore those who are suffering from any of the complaints for which it is recommended, may depend upon it being a Sovereign Remedy.

The astonishing efficacy of the Canadian Pain Destroyer in curing the diseases for which it is recommended and its wonderful effects in subduing the torturous pains of Rheumatism, and in relieving Nervous Affections entitle it to high rank in the list of remedies. Orders are coming in from Medicine Dealers in all parts of the country for further supplies, and each testifying as to the universal satisfaction it gives.

DOCTOR BALLOU

OFFICE

No. 10 King Street West,

Three doors from Yonge St., Toronto.

As an evidence of his ability we give below a few of the testimonials of some of our best citizens of cures he performed when he was with us before, which is, in our opinion, sufficient proof to keep him busy as long as he chooses to remain in this city, which will be until no cures every case he will take.

I desire that the citizens of Toronto and vicinity (to whom I am well known) should know of the wonderful cure that Dr. Ballou performed upon my son, William J. Spears, in this city, on January 16th, 1874. He had a very severe attack of Inflammatory Rheumatism, and was brought home from school at Cobourg in a helpless condition, and was confined to his bed, on which we carried him to the Albion Hotel, suffering indescribable torture, to be treated by Dr. Ballou, having little hope that he could ever be cured. After seeing so many rapid cures with it for a lifetime. But what glad surprise awaited us. After one single treatment his pain so entirely left him, his swollen knees and ankles became as natural as ever, and in three days he was, and is to this day, as well as he ever was. In my 5 years such a case we had so considered almost a miracle. If there are any who desire further proof let them come and see

ACHIBALD SPEARS,
No. 403 Queen street West, Toronto.

I would cheerfully recommend Dr. Ballou to all my acquaintances, as his services to me were beyond all price, and I had tested the skill of the so-called best physicians

D. A. CAMPBELL,
175 Sherbourne street.

Dr. Ballou cured me of Lung and Throat Disease in three treatments, when I was so weak that I could scarcely walk to his office.

KATE ROSSITER,
291 Sherbourne street.

Dr. Ballou cured my daughter of Epileptic Fits which she had for eleven years, and she never had one after his first treatment, and before it she had them as often as eight to fifteen every week.
