CLARE BROS. & CO.

PRESTON, ONT.

re is one perception, writes Tait, a horse possesses to which little tion has been paid, and that is the of scent. With some horses it is as with the dog; and for the bene- those who drive at night, such as ians and others, this knowledge is able. I never knew it to fail, and hidden hundred of miles of dark and in consideration of this power nt this is my simple advice: Never your horses at night, but give him head and you may rest assured will never get off the road, and ry you safely and expeditiously. nd to the power of scent in a horse, knew of a pair that was stolen and ed mainly by the track made out by his mate, and that after he had been absent six or eight hours.
