JOHN CATTO & SON
KING STREET—OPPOSITE THE POSTOFFICE.

The various pictures of her late Majesty that have been published, showing her thru all the stages of growth from infancy to old age, afford one an interesting study in the modes of dressing the feminine head during the long years of her life. Glancing over these pictures, with their varied and amazing coiffures, one is forced to the conclusion, that in the modern style of hair dressing a woman has much more chance of looking well than did the women of the early, middle and even the later Victorian days. The severity, the absurdity, the utter ugliness of many of these early styles must have tried many a fair face, and taken from it its beauty, and when a woman was beautiful then, in spite of the way in which she wore her hair, she must have been beautiful indeed. The parting down the middle of the head, that nearly always gives a soft, madonna look to a woman's face, seems to have been the style for many years, and it is not till the eighties that one notices the frizzed "bang," which was a questionable improvement on the smoothly parted hair. In 1834 the hair was parted and smoothed flat till it reached the temples, where it hung in a great cluster of curls to the shoulders. This is by no means an unattractive mode of dressing the hair, were it not that the back locks were caught up in smooth, oily looking braids and fastened in a tight, round, basket-looking mass, directly on top of the crown of the head. In 1837, curls at either side of the face seem to have given place to softly folded bands, that were caught back in coils, and another style shows the hair smoothly and flatly parted down, brought in a deep curve close against the cheek, to the jaw bone, from which it was turned, always smoothly and flatly, up, leaving the ear exposed, the ends being fastened in the knot at the back. In many cases the ears are completely covered by the hair, in others the little lobe of the ear just peeps out, and in still another, where the hair is not brought below the ears at all, coquettish little "kiss-me-quicks" are flatly pasted in front of the ear! The pictures of the coronation in 1838 show Her Majesty with her hair done flatly to the sides of her face, with a "bob" high at the back, but many of the ladies are represented by Leslie as wearing a couple of coquettish curls that fall from behind the ears to low upon the bare shoulders, while the rest of the hair is caught up, braided, and fastened in a round mass at the back, while wreaths of roses encircle this or lie around the head.

When we come to 1850 there is a decided improvement in the feminine way of dressing the hair. There is not quite so much flatness or smoothness, and a really quaint and attractive mode is shown in a sketch of Her Majesty by Winterhalter at this period. The hair is softly parted down the front, divided from the back behind the ears, and the front portions braided thickly and closely, just beginning at the temples. These braids are then festooned and brought back to meet the back hair, which is still massed midway between the crown and the nape of the neck.

After the Queen's widowhood she is rarely represented without a covering of some kind on her head, so that only the plain parting down the middle is seen; but portraits of the Princess Royal show a very pretty way of arranging the hair—parted and brushed in great soft coils back from the face. By gradual and almost imperceptible changes, the style of dressing the hair changed—the fringe and the bang came—who knows whence—till the present style, so tenaciously clung to by the present day Queen and Princesses, was adopted. On our side of the water, however, very few copy this trying style of coiffure. The tendency is to do away with excessive frizzing and teasing, so that the color and brightness and texture of the hair are not impaired. No excessively fashionable style of coiffure is affected by women of taste, the idea being to dress the hair becomingly—to adopt a fashion to one's own individuality, and employ it so that the face is enhanced by it. Certainly the modern style of "doing" the hair is a vast improvement on the early Victorian, and a woman has a thousand times a better chance of looking well to-day than she had in those days that are so unique in the history of fashions.

Miss Fitzgibbon's plan of raising a tenent fund to erect a memorial hall to Queen Victoria is meeting with general approbation. One can always support these small subscription schemes conscientiously, for the sum asked is so small that it will be felt by no one, and the love and esteem felt by all women for the Queen will be sure to inspire them to give speedily when the collectors call. One thing about this scheme of the Women's Historical Society is noteworthy, it gives many a woman who could not contribute largely, a chance of having a share in it. Too many women are, thru the stress of circumstances, prevented from having a share in movements of this kind. The generosity of the poor in giving out of their small incomes when necessity demands has often been noted, and it is often a genuine deprivation to them to be shut off from movements of this kind, which concern them quite as much as the rich. It is very pleasant to think that the fund will represent us all, from the poorest to the richest, for every woman will like to know that she has given her mite to show the loving esteem in which she held the great, dead Queen.

"Dolores" has asked me to place in this department the following "woman's tribute to our dear Queen," which I do with pleasure.

THE PASSING OF VICTORIA.

Low lies the great Queen on a warrior's bier!
Kingdoms and powers, at pause, with reverence wait
The solemn passing of those muffled wheels,
While deep recurrent cannon mourn the sovereign's fate.

Low lies the Mother of England on her bier!
The slow bells toll, and every aching heart,
Torn by the vibrant notes that mourn the Dead,
In silent sorrow weeps a personal loss apart.

Toronto, Feb. 4, 1901. "Dolores."

A school of domestic economy at Bethnal Green, London (Eng.), carries off the palm for enthusiasm among its young pupils. The school is built and finished in imitation of an English workingman's cottage, and the poor little girls of the district are taken in and trained to be capable wives for workingmen. The school has been a great success, and is always crowded to its full capacity, but either the ordinary routine work must be deadly dreary, or the pupil's zeal must be monumental, for the records show that scrubbing and stove cleaning are dealt out as rewards to the little women. When a pupil has been extraordinarily good she is allowed to scrub a floor or blacken a stove for a treat. After all, the theory may be sound. Both kinds of work are delightfully messy, and messiness, undoubtedly, appeals to the youthful mind.

A special meeting of all the members of the Woman's Art Association of Canada is called for Thursday, Feb. 28, at 10.30 a.m., punctually, in order to consider important business in connection with the coming Exhibition.

An epidemic of rinderpest exists in the Visanayan Island, one of the Philippines. Twenty-five thousand Carabou have died, and the natives are famishing.

30 Minutes of soak and rinse with PEARLINE washing, for every hour of hard rubbing with old-fashioned washing. You save half the time. It's easier, pleasanter, healthier work. Soaking the clothes in PEARLINE and water loosens the dirt. You rinse it out with no rubbing. This soaking is absolutely harmless—not so with most soap-soaking. 629

NEGRO MURDERER LYNCHED

The Victim of the Man's Madness Was Miss Ida Finklestein, a School Teacher.

GEO. WARD THE CULPRIT'S NAME.

Had Been in an Asylum and Was Discharged, But Became Demented Again.

Terre Haute, Ind., Feb. 26.—Ida Finklestein, aged 20 years, a school teacher, while walking thru a lonely strip of woods late yesterday on the way from the schoolhouse to the Interurban Electric line, three miles east of Terre Haute, was assaulted by an unknown negro, who shot her in the back of the head and cut her throat, severing the windpipe. After the assault Miss Finklestein ran a short distance to a farm house with the blood streaming from her wounds and fell unconscious on the door steps. Late in the evening she died.

George Ward, 27 years old, a colored man, formerly employed in the car works here, was arrested to-day and, according to the police, confessed to having murdered Ida Finklestein.

The Negro Was a Lunatic.

Ward had recently been discharged from an insane asylum, but apparently became again demented. In his confession Ward said Miss Finklestein taunted him about his color and then struck him in the face. In a fit of anger he shot her and then cut her throat. He failed to explain how he came to be engaged in conversation with the victim.

At 12.30 p.m. a mob, wrought to a tremendous pitch of fury, gathered in front of the county jail and battered down the outer door.

Jailer Lawrence O'Donnell appeared with a shot gun and fired over the crowd in a vain effort to stampede them. Three deputy sheriffs were wounded by shots from the crowd.

Word of Ward's confession was passed thru the streets and the crowd, reinforced by hundreds of recruits, redoubled its attack on the jail.

At 12.45 they succeeded in reaching Ward's cell. He was quickly dragged out to the street and lynched.

There Were Two Onslaughts.

The sheriff was absent when the mob descended upon the jail. His deputies put up a vigorous resistance, and at first appeared to have successfully beaten off the crowd, but on the second onslaught, the infuriated mob, estimated at 3000 in number, swept away all obstacles.

Ward was taken from his cell, a rope was placed around his neck, and he was dragged down the street to a wagon bridge spanning the Wabash River.

On the way to the bridge, three blocks distant, Ward was beaten with clubs and repeatedly shot at. He was unconscious and in all probability dead when the loose end of the rope was tied to a timber of the ridge and his body swung out over the stream.

A strand of the rope suddenly broke, and the leaders, fearing their prey might drop into the river, hastily drew the body back upon the bridge.

It was dragged across to the west side. A huge bonfire was quickly built, the body was thrown upon the pyre, and in a short time was burned to a crisp.

KINGSTON NOT SO EASY.

Smelter Company Wants $75,000 Cash, But the City Does Not Approve.

Kingston, Feb. 26.—It looks as the Kingston's chances of having a smelter are about nil. The Messrs. Meyer and their Chicago backers now ask for a cash bonus of $75,000, one-half payable when the syndicate has expended $100,000 in buildings, and the other half when the works are in operation; also that the citizens subscribe $125,000 in stock, for which the company guarantees seven per cent. interest. The new proposition does not meet with popular favor. The old proposition was that the company would receive $4000 annually for 15 years, after the company started its plant in operation.

A Negro Caused It.

Port Townsend, Wash., Feb. 26.—The Dirigo, arriving yesterday afternoon, reports that on February 18 a clash occurred at Skagway between the military and the civil authorities, which caused considerable excitement. On the night of the 16th a negro sentry on duty in front of the barracks called out the guard, claiming he had been shot at by a civilian. The guard charged the crowd of bystanders, commanding them to throw up their hands. Among the crowd were McLean and Frazer, two patrolmen, and the colored soldiers seized and took them to the guardhouse. Indignation ran high at Skagway, and when the steamer sailed the matter was being investigated.

Body Torn to Shreds.

Kingston, N.Y., Feb. 26.—John Johnson, a Swede, was mangled to death while working at the West Camp icehouse yesterday. His overcoat caught on the grating chain. Grew him on the moving run, and he was rapidly whisked about, the iron projections literally tearing the lower part of his body to shreds.

HER FATHER WAS A DRUNKARD

A Plucky Young Lady Takes on Herself to Cure Her Father of the Liquor Habit.

STORY OF HER SUCCESS.

A portion of her letter reads as follows:—"My father had often promised mother to stop drinking, and would do so for a time, but then returned to it stronger than ever. One day, after a terrible spree, he said to us: 'It's no use. I can't stop drinking.' Our hearts seemed to turn to stone, and we decided to try the Tasteless Samaria Prescription, which we had read about in the papers. We gave him the remedy, entirely without his knowledge, in his tea, coffee, or food regularly, according to directions, and he never knew he was taking it. One package removed all his desire for liquor, and he says it is now distasteful to him. His health and appetite are also wonderfully improved, and no one would know him for the same man. It is now fifteen months since we gave it to him and we feel sure that the change is for good. Please send mo one of your little books, as I want to give it to a friend."

FREE SAMPLE and pamphlet giving full particulars, testimonials, and price sent in plain, sealed envelope. Correspondence sacredly confidential. Address THE SAMARIA REMEDY CO., 23 Jordan street, Toronto, Canada.

PROWLER WHO USED A BAR.

Denver Man Arrested on Suspicion of Having Caused the Death of Women.

Denver, Feb. 26.—Albert Cowan is under arrest on suspicion of being the mysterious prowler who struck down three women with an iron bar last Friday night, and who has murderously assaulted nearly a score of women on the streets in the last six months.

According to Chief of Detectives Armstrong, Cowan carried an iron bar about a foot in length, a revolver and a supply of cartridges. It is said he answers the meagre descriptions of the man wanted.

Questioned by Captain Armstrong, the prisoner said he had been persecuted by women. He said he came from Virginia and had lived here a year ago. Of three women assaulted last Friday night, one is dead and another is dying.

CARRIE AS AN EDITOR.

The "Joint" Smasher Warns Keepers Not to Get in the way of Her Hatchet.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 26.—Mrs. Carrie Nation was in charge of The Journal here to-day. Her contributions to the paper consisted of eight columns of editorials and an account of her crusade against "Joints."

Mrs. Nation says in her leading editorial: "I have never hurt a hair on the heads of my bad brothers, the saloon-keepers, and hope for pity's sake none of them ever will get in the way of my hatchet, for it gets dreadful reckless when it flies around smashing that which murders men."

No attempt was made by Mrs. Nation to handle the advertising space, and liquor advertisements filled several pages.

A DEMENTED WOMAN'S DEED.

Mrs. Maggie Diethorn Threw Her Children Into the River, Claiming Inspiration From Heaven.

Pittsburg, Feb. 26.—Mrs. Maggie Diethorn, aged 26 years, walked out on the 22nd-street bridge about 8.30 o'clock this morning with her two children, aged 2 and 4 years, and, when in the centre of the structure quickly picked up the little ones and threw them into the Monongahela River. Before she could follow the was arrested. Boats put out at once and rescued one of the children, but the other was drowned. The woman was evidently demented. She told the police that the act was an inspiration from Heaven.

TWENTY-ONE SLAVES RELEASED.

The Stockade and Contract Lease System in Carolina Is to Be Investigated.

New York, Feb. 26.—The following despatch regarding the convict lease system operated in South Carolina, whereby negroes are placed in practical slavery, is published here to-day.

Charleston, S.C., slave dealers, in Abderson County, who have been operating under the convict lease system, which was condemned in court a week ago, have made the first move by releasing twenty-one negroes who were held captive in the stockades.

It is said that among the negroes held in the Anderson stockade, were several aged men who had served as slaves before the war.

Judge Benet has declared the whole system will be exposed. Much uneasiness is being felt over the probable report to be made by the grand jury.

MAJOR HOWARD'S DEATH

Causes Much Regret in Montreal and Lachute, Que., Where He Was Well Known.

Montreal, Feb. 26.—(Special.)—The news of the death of "Gat" Howard caused general regret here and in Lachute, where he had resided for some years past. Major Howard came to Canada in 1885, from New Haven, Conn., in charge of the now famous Gatling gun, with which he did excellent service in the Northwest Rebellion of 1885, particularly at the siege of Batoche. After the rebellion had been put down Mr. Howard was instrumental in establishing the Dominion cartridge factory at Brownsburg, four miles from Lacanche, and became first manager of the works, a position which he held for four years. Since severing his connection with the company he had interested himself with many industries, and at the time of his death he owned an extensive fishery industry, with headquarters at Halifax, and large fulminite works at Capleton, Que., supplying most of the leading cartridge and arms companies in America with the products of the Capleton works.

The man murdered in Vallego, Cal., on Feb. 9, 1896, turns out to be Newell E. Clark, the heir of a fortune in New Bedford, Mass.
