ST. JOHN COTTON MILLS.

Judge Palmer Orders the Receiver to Pay for Cotton Purchased and to Buy no More.

In the reference to the case of Weldon et al vs. Parks et al in the Equity court yesterday, the name of His Honor Mr. Justice Tuck was inadvertently mentioned, instead of that of His Honor Mr. Justice Palmer. This morning Dr. Barker in this same suit moved the fixing of a date upon which the hearing in this cause should be proceeded with and suggested Saturday or Monday next.

E. McLeod Q. C., explained that he was obliged to go to Ottawa and asked for a postponement for ten days. He would undertake to return and argue in the suit at that time.

His Honor was opposed to any delay whatever in the matter.

Mr. Weldon Q. C. on behalf of the bank and having referred to his relation to the suit as trustee, said he was the solicitor of the bank of Montreal' and gave a resume of the matter stating that the cotton mill had been run from time to time until February last on the assurance that the matter would be closed. It was not closed and the bank went on and advanced monies until on April 1st inst., the sum of $122,000 was advanced, the proceeds of the mills to be paid into the bank. The bank did not undertake to guarantee the bills of exchange etc., which were now in the bank as collateral security. The bank whether rightly or wrongly, differs from others, they say the assets are not there as represented, and the interest on the bills of exchange was not cash. The bank had received similar accounts from year to year and had found them delusive. In reference to the intimation that there was a conspiracy against the cotton mill he said the bank felt there was a conspiracy against them and that they had not been fairly treated and they have come to the conclusion not to continue, They say the whole of the stuff should be held by the receiver as security under the arrangement for them until paid and say the property of which is pledged in the agreement should be theirs.

The bank also says the prospects are that the mill cannot be run to a profit and they will pay all bills now outstanding if the mills are stopped. They have always been willing to meet any reasonable proposition but none has been made them.

For himself, Mr. Weldon said, that quite without authority from the bank he would propose for the purpose of settlement that the bank continue to run the mill to the time of sale, and if this proposal was satisfactory he would advise the bank in that direction. The bank had no desire to crush out this work, but if the mill goes on and the profits diminish as feared, he thinks the bank security should not be interfered with.

His Honor—The question before the court now is one between the bank and the court. The bank has taken an entirely wrong view of the matter with the court. The agreement was to supply the money to continue the works. The receiver giving the bank the proceeds, the bank paying the necessary amount, not of indebtedness, but of the materials supplied. I shall advise the receiver to conveal stops the [illegible] Bank of Montreal. remedy there is in the court the court will exercise and will discharge the property out of the court. His Honor said whatever was his duty that he would do regardless of the consequences. If the Bank of Montreal does not choose to take the direction of this court or Mr. Parks refuses, then the day has come when the matter should be sent out of the court. The proceeds of what is there must first go to pay wages. The receiver must take care that every dollar it is entitled to, shall go to the Bank of Montreal. It is now said the security is not good enough. It was the business of the bank to know this at first. I consider it ample, said His Honor. It was never understood the work should be stopped by any one at any moment. The matter should be pushed on and the sale made as quickly as possible. This court cannot tolerate a breach of faith in any form.

Mr. Weldon—The matter is now rather in the nature of a contract between the receiver and the bank.

His Honor said I want Mr. Weldon to understand that the bank understood that it was to pay this money.

Mr. McLeod said that Mr. Weldon and McLean were not placed in a fair position to themselves. Mr. Weldon is a solicitor to the bank and a trustee for the bond holders and the duties of these positions are somewhat antagonistic. Mr. McLean was appointed receiver by the consent of all parties. The receiver is an officer of the court Mr. Weldon's partner could not be receiver without his (McLeod's) consent and the receiver's duty was to stand firmly between the parties. He believed the cotton syndicate in Montreal is behind all this. A bill was fyled for the foreclosure of these bonds and the parties, at first hostile, are now friendly, The Messrs Clark, the agents of the cotton syndicate are now the holders of those bonds and are acting in concert with these parties. The security held by the bank of Montreal has not been at all depreciated, but has rather increased in value. Now the bank stops; on the faith of the agreement cotton has been ordered, cotton was worked up, and wages are earned, and at least reasonable notice should have given. Their monies are not in the slightest degree prejudiced.

The court.—I would like the bank to show how, under the agreement, they can justify what they have done.

The court declines to act further in respect of the hearing until this matter of the receiver is first disposed of; and in reference to the disobedience of the plantiffs, said the real plantiffs,—the Bank of Montreal was meant, not the nominal plaintiffs, the trustees who have no locus standi other than as trustees.

Mr. McLeod again expressing his unwillingness to consent to any proposal as suggested by Mr. Weldon.

His Honor ordered that the receiver be directed to pay for the cotton that is ordered and wages, but to order no other goods until further order of the court.

AT TRINITY THIS EVENING.—The marriage of Dr. W. H. Steeves, and Miss Edith Clark, daughter of Mr. W. Walker Clark. chief of police, will be solemnized at Trinity this evening at 7 o'clock, Rev. Canon Brigstocke officiating. The groomsman will be Mr. Wedderburn, and the bridesmaids, Miss Blanche McKinley of Halifax, and Miss Pauline Clark.
