The Ignorance
of many people causes them to waste a large sum of money every year. They do not know how to spend it right. For instance, they go into some large store and pay 25c for a Window Shade that they could buy here for 15c, or 30c for a Curtain Pole and Trimmings that we sell for 15c—there is a waste of 30c on a 75c purchase; or they pay $18 for a Bedroom Suite—our price about $12 or $14 for the same goods. Sharp, shrewd buyers know they can save money by dealing with us. Examine our goods and get prices.

Henry A. King & Co.'s special wire from Frank G. Logan & Co., Chicago: All we can say about wheat is that the price is low, and without rain the prices will go higher. Crop reports are bad and will not improve without rain. The price may not advance much, but all the conditions are in this direction. Estimated cars for to-morow 32. Corn—For the future options dull; there has been good demand for the cash lots at about 1-2c over yesterday. The May option closed at 46 1-2c. Cars for to-morow 150. Provisions—Lard trade to-day.

McIntyre & Wardwell (John J. Dixon) Schwartz, Dupee & Co., Chicago: The predictions of rain yesterday failed to be verified to-day, in consequence of which wheat opened a shade higher than yesterday's close, and advanced 1c to 56 1-8c, reacting and closing at 55 3-4c to 55 7-8c. The strength was entirely due to the weather conditions. The bulk of the business to-day was local. Some prominent operators covered their shorts and took the long side. Outside the weather there was nothing in the situation to cause any advance. Rain within a few days would undoubtedly cause a decline, but every day of continued drought increases the apprehension of damage to the growing crop. Corn dull; a shade better in sympathy with wheat. Twenty-seven per cent. of receipts graded No. 2. Clearances from the seaboard were 123,000 bushels. The cash demand here, notwithstanding the limited receipts, is very small. There are 2,125,000 bushels of corn loaded in the river, most of it awaiting a buyer. There is nothing brilliant in the immediate outlook for corn, unless it should get some sympathetic help from the advance in wheat. Provisions ruled steady and fairly active. There was considerable selling of long stuff early and a weak spot on which the crowd got short, but the decline was recovered at the closing, which was about the same as yesterday. The undertone of the market is strong, and the best local opinion favors higher prices.
