SHE ARRIVED ON TIME.

Crossed a River on One Stringer and Rode Sixty Miles on Horseback.

Mrs. Minnie Hickox, who has just entered upon the discharge of her duties as teacher of the public schools of Cooke City, left Livingston to open the Cooke school on Thursday morning a week ago. Upon arriving at Cinnabar, the terminus of the railroad, she found that the stage would not leave that day on account of the washing out of the bridge across Gardiner River. The stream was so swollen that the stage driver dared not undertake to make a ford.

This was a dilemma not counted on by the plucky school teacher. She had given her word that she would be in Cooke on Monday, and she determined to make it good, even if she had to continue her journey on foot and swim the streams. There was no time to be lost, and so she started out.

All there was left of the Gardiner bridge was a single stringer. Nothing daunted, the lady stepped boldly on to this and walked across the raging river. It was a perilous undertaking, even for a man, and a woman less brave and cool-headed than Mrs. Hickox would have been very likely to have become dizzy and lost her balance. Mrs. Hickox, however, proved herself equal to the emergency, and reached the opposite bank of the roaring mountain torrent in safety.

Luck would have it, she found a party en route to Cooke encamped nearby, and securing a horse, mounted and continued her journey. It was a pretty long ride for a woman and never ridden a horse—the distance being sixty miles over a rough mountain road—but Mrs. Hickox kept cheery way until she reached her destination. Upon arriving at Cooke she was so badly used up with saddle that when she got off she had to be assisted to the ground. The satisfaction, however, she had kept her appointment.

As to Modern Arms.

We hear a great deal now about death-dealing weapons. Every little while somebody brings out a new arm capable of firing we don't know how many shots per minute, and forthwith calculations are produced regarding the exultant slaughter in actual combat where these fearful instruments are used. It is forgotten that in order to commit such ravages the gun must have something to hit and that generals are not going to be fools enough to expose their men to hopeless slaughter.

Experience of the last half century shows that every improvement in arms has been followed b a declining mortality among the contestants in battle. There was less ratio of killed and wounded in the Franco-German war, where breech-loaders were used by both sides, than in our civil war, where muzzle-loaders constituted the equipment of the troops. The science of war must change to met the new conditions. The greatest slaughter prevailed where armies fought hand to hand. In the light of history there is no reason to expect that the employment of magazine rifles and machine guns will in the next great struggle result in such high percentage of casualities to numbers engaged as in the latest wars.—Boston Commercial-Bulletin.

Use for Horse Chestnuts.

It is popularly supposed that horse chestnuts are very unwholesome. Nev ertheless, in Turkey, they are roasted for coffee, fermented for liquor, and utilized for horse medicine.

Have you tried Holloway's corn cure? It has no equal for removing these troublesome excrescences, as many have testified who have tried it.

McIntyre & Wardwell send the following despatch to their branch office in Toronto: Traders made use of the somewhat unfavorable report of Burlington for June and the alleged news of a hot wave in Kansas to affect the Grangers' stocks. At most, however, they were only able to check the bull movement in the Grangers and South Westerns. On the other hand, the manipulation of Sugar, Chicago Gas and other industrials was more active and bullish, interests which have heretofore been active in depressing them being open purchasers. Among the most important news was the payment by J. P. Morgan & Co. of $2,000,000 gold into the Treasury in exchange for greenbacks. This transaction was for account of bond syndicate, and restores the gold balance in the Government's vaults to the level at which it stood before the recent gold shipments. St. Paul earnings statement for June shows a decrease of $120,000 in gross earnings and an increase of $151,000 in net for the week ending June 30. The figures show a loss of $3,992,000 in gross and one of $922,000 in net.
