THE LENINE LUNATICS.

PETROGRAD, To-day.

"What are the plans and intentions of your Government?" the correspondent asked. "The plans and intentions of the Government are outlined in the programme of the Bolsheviki Party, to which the all Russian Congress of Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates entrusted the formation of a Soldiers' and Workmen's Government," the Foreign Minister answered. "First, there will be an immediate publication of all secret treaties and the abolition of secret diplomacy. Second, an offer of an immediate armistice on all fronts for the conclusion of a democratic peace. Third, the transfer of all lands to the peasants. Fourth, the establishment of state control of industries through the medium of organized workmen employees, and the nationalization of the most important branches of industry. Fifth, the delivery of all authority to the local Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies. Sixth, the convocation of a constituent assembly which will introduce its reforms through the medium of the Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies and not through the old bureaucracy on an appointed date. The offer of an immediate peace has already been made, a decree transferring the lands to the peasants has been issued, and power has been assumed by the Soldeirs' and Workmen's Deputies in most of the important places." "What will the Government do if Russia's allies refuse to enter into negotiations for peace?" the correspondent asked. "If the Allies do not support the policy of a democratic peace," Trotzky replied, "the Allied peoples will support us against their Governments. Our international policy is calculated not for capitalistic diplomacy but for the support of the working masses." "Does the Government think a separate peace with Germany is possible in existing circumstances?". "We are against a separate peace with Germany, we are for universal peace with Europe." "What will the Government do if Germany refuses peace; will it continue the war?" he was asked. "We rely on the German Army and working classes to make a continuation of the war impossible. If, however, our frank and honest offers of peace meet with no response, we would declare a revolutionary war against German Imperialism, would mobilize all our forces, confiscate large food supplies and prosecute it as energetically as we did the revolution; but we have every ground to think our offer of peace will make impossible a continuation of the war on all fronts." "What is the country's attitude toward the Governmental changes?" "All the bourgeoisie is against us; the greater part of the intellectuals is against us or hesitating, waiting the final outcome; the workmen class is wholly with us; the Army is with us; the peasants, with the exception of exploiters, are with us, the Soldiers' and Workmen's Government of working men; the soldiers and peasants against the capitalists and land owners." Is it true the Government will publish secret treaties?" was the final question. "Yes," the Foreign Minister answered.

FRENCH REPORT.

PARIS, To-Day.

The evening communications of the War Office follows: "Both artilleries were active in the region of Juvincourt on the Aisne and in Upper Alsace in the sectors of Seppois and Largibon. Some attempts against our small posts toward Demmericourt to the northwest of Rheims and to the east of Maisons du Champagne and also at the foot of the Cotes de Meuse failed. Two German airplanes were brought down on the 22nd instant."

ON BELGIAN FRONT.

BELGIAN COMMUNICATION, To-Day.

During the last two days the artillery has carried out some neutralizing firing and also some retaliatory operations; we also have replied to like operations by the enemy guns. Reciprocal activity was especially marked toward Dixmude and Merckem. On the morning of the 22nd a strong reconnoitering party which was attemping to operate against Mercken was dispersed by our artillery and machine gun barrage.

ENEMY ATTACK ON DORIAN REPULSED.

ARMY OF THE EAST, To-day.

After a heavy bombardment of our positions south of Doiran and the northwest of Monastir the enemy carried out some local attacks which were repulsed. Small elements which gained a foothold in our trenches were immediately ejected. An enemy aircraft was brought down.

FIERCE FIGHTING IN ITALY.

Headquarters in North Italy, To-day.—The battle of the mountains is raging with unexampled violence. The Italians again hold Monte' Tomba and Monte Peraica, positions which they lost last night. The losses have been very great but the enemy's far exceed those of the Italians.

IN EAST AFRICA.

LONDON, To-day.

The following official communication was issued to-day regarding the operations of the British forces in East Africa. On Wednesday our left column, having traversed the Makondo Plateau, entered Sin Ban seven miles northeast of Kitangari. Fifty-seven Germans and 75 Anksein surrendered. To-day our right column entered Newal and 126 Germans and 75 Ankaris were captured. In last Friday's action at Mandobe our small forces inflicted on the numerically superior enemy losses greater than they sustained and also captured prisoners.

PRAISES CANADIANS.

PARIS, To-day.

The newspaper Excelsior publishes an interview with Lieut-General Sir Arthur Currie, Commander of the Canadian Army Corps, who paid the highest tribute to his men. In the course of the interview the General said: "It is the mixture of the two races which has given us such fine soldiers. They have got the dash and irresistible elan of the French, and the tenacity of the Anglo-Saxon. It is the Furia Francesa coupled with bull dog grit. When my boys have got their teeth in they do not leave go." General Currie spoke in glowing terms of the officers under his command and of the French Army which he had watched in action. Asked when the war would end he replied "When there are no more Bosches."

CONSOLIDATING THE GAINS.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, To-day.—During the last twenty-four hours chief activity was behind the lines, where heroic work is being done by the transport services and engineers and artillery engineers in catching up with the rapidity of our rush into enemy territory. We fell back at Fontaine because the occupation of that point, which is completely dominated, exposes Bourbourn to the west on one side and is exposed to the enemy fire from a cross salient. The other side made a salient which could not be held until a general advance was made on the other side. The enemy strongly attacked it yesterday afternoon and, threatened by enfilade fire from both sides, we fell back to conform to the general line.

To the left of Fontaine we pushed on into the hamlet of Anneux Chapelle, north of Anneux on the Cambrai Road and due south of the middle of Bourbon Wood. Further to the left we pushed into the northern portion of Moeuvres and again to the left, after fighting this morning, we forced our way into Tadpole Wood, 1500 yards south of Inchy. The formal line had been established through these points, striking the Canal at Delescant, north of Noyelles, and this is being held while the guns and supplies are being brought up.

A SHIPBUILDING COUNCIL.

LONDON, To-Day.

The British Admiralty announces that the formation of a Shipbuilding Council has been approved and that it will be operated under the chairmanship of an Admiralty Controller. Under this Council representatives of the shipbuilding and engineering trades will be joined by officers of the Admiralty, and problems of naval and commercial shipbuilding and of repair will be considered.

THE RUSSIAN PROCLAMATION.

LONDON, To-Day.

Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade, in his weekly talk with the Associated Press spoke of the proclamation issued by Nikolai Lenine and his followers in Russia urging an immediate armistice, saying. "If it represents the real opinion of the Russian people, which I do not believe it does, it would be a direct breach of treaty obligations and Russia's alliance. Such an action, if approved and ratified by the Russian nation, would put them virtually outside the pale of civilized Europe."

IRISH VALOUR IN THE ATTACK.

British Army Headquarters in Frnce.—The main attack on the opening of the offensive on Tuesday was along the Western bank of the Canal du Nord, which runs almost due north and south from a point a little west of Havrincourt. The main Hindenburg line trenches were built along this waterway and the British had to fight their way up a big ditch. There was intense hard work almost from the start as the Ulsterites, who undertook the bank, got in among the German defences. Because of the secret nature of the attack no artillery could be used to cut the tremendously strong lines of barbed wire in front of the trenches, and the tanks were not operating in this section. Therefore it was necessary for the Irishmen to charge the entanglements and bomb them to pieces in order to force their way through.

It was a big undertaking, for the Irish came under concentrated rifle and machine gun fire as soon as they began to advance, but they maintained the reputation for valor and bombed their way with such grim determination that they drove an entering wedge into the trench system. Near Havrincourt, northwest of the town, is a high bank. On the west of the Canal this elevation was strongly fortified with dugouts and there was a great concentration of machine guns. The British had no alternative but to charge the position up the slopes and this they did. (Not finished).

Bold Theft.

One of the boldest thefts heard of for some time in the city occurred about five o'clock last evening when a young lady had her handbag, containing a deal of money, snatched from her on Military Road while proceeding to her residence on Rennie's Mill Road. The perpetrator is unknown and he disappeared so quickly after committing the theft that no description could be given of the marauder to the police.

Millionaires in a Day

Men Who Have Found a Quick Road to Fortune.

To the man who may toil through a long lifetime in order to save a few hundred pounds to leave behind him there is something breath-taking in the very thought that there are men living who have often gone to bed a million (although the million is in dollars and not in pounds) richer than they awoke in the morning. And yet such feats of money-making are so common across the Atlantic as to excite little attention.

It is not long since news came from New York that Mr. Joseph Hoadley had made £200,000 in five minutes' sensational gambling on the Cotton Exchange there; and that, before he sat down to his dinner in the evening, he was £800,000 richer than when he drank his breakfast coffee. He actually qualified as a "dollar-millionaire" four times over in less time than a man plays three rounds of golf.

A Wife's Birthday Present.

And Mr. Hoadley has many rivals as a magician in gold-making. Not many months before he added thus sensationally to his "pile," Mr. J. Livermore, who a few years earlier had been thankful to earn a daily dollar as office-boy to a Boston broker, pocketed £100,000 in ten minutes' gambling during a panic on "Change, due to a rumour of a short cotton crop and before he closed his book for the day he had more than doubled this amount.

During a boom, a dozen years ago on the New York Stock Exchange, inaugurated by the sensational dividends declared by the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific Railways, many men cleared fortunes ranging from £100,000 to £500,000 in a single day's operations; and one speculator who, at the opening of the Exchange could not have laid his hands on a thousand dollars, left it the owner of considerably over a million. As a reporter graphically put it, "he had made twenty times his weight in gold in half-a-dozen hours!"

On the same day the late Mr. Harriman, the "Railroad King," made £400,000 in a few minutes. John W. Gates, William Rockefeller, and half a dozen others, cleared sums ranging up to £500,000; and Mr. Abraham White, with the proceeds of a few hours' speculation was able to make a birthday present to his wife of a country mansion and estate, for which he paid £200,000.

Made a Million Pounds.

And these feats, astounding as they are, have been eclipsed on several occasions, as when, many years ago, Commodore Vanderbilt netted a round million pounds by a colossal deal in Harlem Railway Stock, which soared so rapidly that he sold at prices ranging from 75 to 179 dollars stock which he bought at 8 and 9 dollars.

And even the Commodore must yield the palm to Mr. J. D. Rockefeller, the most amazing magician in gold the world has ever known, who in a single day made over £2,000,000 by selling in the afternoon at £70 Standard Oil Stock which he had bought in the morning at £35.

At the beginning of the same year (1900) Mr. Rockefeller stated on oath that he owned £6,200,000 in Standard Oil Stock. By December the stock had advanced 400 points, with the result that the value of his holding had increased £24,800,000 in the twelve months—in other words, this super-Croesus had added over £2,000,000 to his pile every month of the year by the growth in value of his holding, apart from the millions made by the buying and selling of the stock.

In such sensational and easy fashion are millions made across the Atlantic.—Pearson's Weekly.

Repairers at Work.

The crew engaged repairing the cable from Bell Island to Portugal Cove have completed their work in mid-Tickle and are now at the landing at Bell Island Beach examining the bed and making the necessary repairs. The cable in certain places, while resting on a good bed, was found to be covered with sea weeds, unusually seen in such quantities in those waters.

DIED.
